Mrs. Carroll thought living in the Cariboo was a great adventure and had many interesting stories about their lives in interior British Columbia as this was an exciting time with the people coming in from all over Canada and the States. The stagecoach had many stopping houses which are still standing beside the present Cariboo Trail from Hope to Prince George

Soon, however the Carroll family moved to Drumheller, Alberta where Mr Carroll worked in the coal mines, farmed, and ran a dairy They had three sons also — Bill, Charlie and Gordon When drought became so bad that most people were forced to sell out, the family decided to come north

With all their household effects on five wagons, they started across country Their eldest daughter was by this time in Calgary attending Normal School so she missed this unusual trip They had five covered wagons, five teams, which were driven by Mrs. Carroll, Mr Carroll, Jean, Bill and one hired man. Charlie and Gordon drove the cattle on their Shetland ponies. They cooked in one wagon and slept in the wagons. It was very hard to sometimes have to keep going all night because they could find no water for the cattle Because of the drought some farmers would not allow them to stop and water their livestock. Although it was such a hard trip and uncertain, with no one place to be heading for Mrs. Carroll said it was a really exciting experience and gave her a feeling of adventure! The children were so impressed that they tell of their many trials with nostalgic voices, right up until today It doesn't impress their grandchildren much because it happened away back, but to a generation of quite sophisticated people many having come to Alberta from cities in the East and from Vancouver and the States, where people were already using every modern invention of the 1930's. It must have been just as much of a challenge as it would have been for the earliest pioneers

The Carroll family reached the Lesliedale area first, but, finding nowhere in that area to settle, they continued on to the Gilby area, at the advice of friends who had just recently arrived from the Drumheller area. They first settled down on the Keasey place and the children attended school at the Wolfe School and also the Estonian School The boys rode their Shetland ponies to school, which they felt was lots of fun

Later the Carrolls moved to a farm in the Benjamin district about five miles north of the Gilby Store and the children attended Benjamin school

Bill Carroll married the former Irene Luyckfassel of Nordegg, and now lives at Forshee on the shores of Gull Lake They have two children Colleen and Jim also three grandchildren

Charlie and family farm just one mile south of the home place. They have six children and seven grandchildren

Helen is Mrs Eugene Cook and lives in Calgary

Jean and her husband Glenn Bardenhagen live on the home place They have three children Ron, Bonnie and Rod — and seven

Gordon Carroll and his wife (the former Violet Huseby of Gilby) now live at Kitimat, B.C They have five children and six grandchildren

Mr Carroll passed away at the age of 78 years in the Rimbey Hospital and Mrs. Carroll passed away in 1977 at the age of 94 years. She had been living in Red Deer

CHALLAND, GILBERT AND MARGARET WILLIE RALSTON

My dad Clarence Challand homesteaded in the Benjamin District in 1905 and married Florence Norris in 1909 and my sister Thelma was born in 1910 and I in 1912 but as our Mother passed away early in life my sister and I were raised and brought up in Leedale by my Uncle Perry and Aunt Lou Challand. All those years in the Leedale School would be another book but when I was old enough to quit school or almost I went up on the hill to help dad farm the half section of land the west half of Section 32-41-3-W5 except for the one year I attended the Benjamin School. I remember knocking out a tooth with my lunch pail of Herbie Sands. This was an accident but I don't think anyone believed me then. Dad and I ranched and farmed on the hill the last of the 1920's and early 1930's

Those were the good old days when we farmed with horses we got from Guy Smith west of Leedale. Then we got 30 cents for No. 2 Garnet wheat and one and one half cents for hogs. I remember working for several years on the threshing machine each fall to pay our threshing bill and working on road work with the fresno to pay taxes

I think at that time we were the only ones with an old battery radio and Stan Laye used to come over every night and listen to the radio and the Joe Louis fights if we got the radio on before he knocked his opponent out

Dad being an old jockey and the love of horses we picked up a fine horse at the pound and we called him Fonda. Fonda turned out to be quite a race horse and I rode him at all the local fair day races and won many quarter mile races with

I think one of the most memorable times in my life was when I met my wife Billie Ralston at the opening dance of the new Imperial Lumber building in Rimbey. After going with her for about four years and riding in every week on little grey horse. I convinced the city gal to come to the homestead. That was 1938 we were married. After came an Edmonton honeymoon then we set up housekeeping in the little house on the hill. The years that followed were some of the happiest even though we had to live on skim milk and eggs, as we had to separate the cream and sell it each week for to buy food and a little gas for the old Ford. I had quite a time making a farmer out of Billie she never complained

I remember on one occasion coming in from the field late and while I did the milking and chores she said she would unharness the horses for me before going to bed so I said OK. The next morning when I went down to the barn to feed the horses the harnesses were all trampled under their feet not only under one horse but under all six. She just undid the hames and let the harness fall. It took me a week to clean all the manure out of all that harness. However we had many happy days picking chokecherries, high bush cranberries and lots of saskatoon berries on apples but Mrs Ben Laye could really make pies out of those saskatoons. We also in the summer of 1939 took the old stoneboat and went down to the swamp and dug all those pine trees and planted them around the house. they are there to this day only full grown now

I'll never forget when Gail our daughter was born in April 1940 in Rimbey Hospital. That month the floods came and flooded all the roads and the highway to Rimbey. It was three days before I could get in to see them. When it came time to bring them home I took the old Ford and Stan Laye followed us all the way home with the team and wagon and pulled us through the mud holes. I don't know if it hadn't been for our good neighbors the Layes, Bakkes and Kilpatricks I don't think we would have raised our children especially Gail as neither of us knew much about babies and it was a real worry to Billie when Gail took sick. Mrs Bakke would come to the rescue. When our son Gilbert Jr came along in 1941 we knew a little more and made out OK with him but they were a handful and I learned to change diapers and Billie helped with the chores. We were a long way from being rich but they were wonderful years months old we took the plunge and moved to Rimbey to work for the Imperial Lumber Co. and eventually selling the farm and moving to Clareshom in 1948 where we still reside.

My Dad spent his last years in the Senior Citizens Home in Clareshom and passed away on June 18, 1964 at the age of 89 years

CHALLAND, TERRY AND LOUCINDA

Terry George Challand was born in Rolfe Iowa February 3, 1873 and spent his childhood there. He was the eldest of a family of seven

In 1905 Terry and his three brothers, Clarence Claude and Merton came to Canada and found work in and around Lacombe

In 1907 Terry came back to the U.S. and returned with his bride Loucinda Archer. They came out to Wittenburg and homesteaded the NE

Mrs Challand or better known as Aunt Lou dedicated her nursing abilities to the sick whether they lived near or far. She also operated a little store in Leedale in approximately 1916-1918 where she sold the staple foods

They worked hard on the land, brushing and breaking to get it into production. They built a home and hip roof barn which still stands

They were active in the Church of Latter Day Saints, Terry being baptized on November 26 1907 and was ordained an Elder in 1908 by Elder Anderson. Uncle Terry and Aunt Lou's marriage was sealed in the Salt Lake Temple

In 1945 Aunt Lou passed away. Terry stayed on at the farm until 1950 when he sold the land and retired to Rimbey

In 1969 he moved into the Rimbey Auxiliary Hospital and passed away there on November 21 1977 at the ripe old age of 104 years, and is buried at the Mount Auburn Cemetery at Rimbey

CUMMINGS, J. E. JONTY

Jonty Cummings came out from England to his uncle's, Mr J C Hopper in April 1926, and worked in and around the district until 1929. He was married to Rose, daughter of Mr and Mrs Chas Kemmis, who were among the first to set the east of Benjamin which became known as the Symonds district.

They then bought the homestead of George Mowbray who had also came from the same part of England in 1902) and have resided there until the present time. They have one daughter Sally who is married to Henry Rangen of the well known Rangen family of Eckville. They have a family of three daughters and live in Red Deer.

Jonty became secretary of the Benjamin school district in 1929 and served in that capacity for several years. The school tax at that time was six or seven mills, far from the present rates. Both Jonty and Rose were always involved in the community effort and still serve in various positions in Rimbey.

They also became well known for their Shorthorn cattle, winning prizes at all the shows and sales in the area. The herd was sold in 1970 after 40 years of selection to a breeder in the U.S., where they continued to do well.

Well remembered are the conditions of the early days, when roads were just wagon trails through the bush and it was hard work with horse powered fresnos, slips and plows to build something of a road. When the crawler tractor appeared with the graders and we had graded roads, with ditches, that seemed to be the ultimate in road building. A lot of people remember those roads after a rainstorm or in the spring of getting stuck or sliding in the ditch. Then came the gravelled roads and eventually the black top road which runs from Eckville to Rimbey.

Many were the happy hours spent in the schoolhouse in this manner. The ladies would take lunch and at Benjamin the music was usually provided by Mrs. Tot Hopper on the organ and George Taylor with the bones at which he was very adept. They would keep things going merrily along until the small hours of the morning when it was hitch the team to the buggy democrat, wagon or sleigh if there was snow), for the drive home where the horses had to be attended to unharnessed and fed a far cry from turning the key in the switch as we do now.

JAMES C. FERGUSON FAMILY

Jim and Ida were married in Rimbey in 1936. Prior to that Jim came from a farm between Rimbey and Ponoka. Ida Reidlinger came from west of Leedale where her parents and family took up a homestead in 1932. Ida worked around Rimbey, and Jim was visiting his grandparents when Jim and Ida met. They worked east of Rimbey and at sawmills for about three years.

A daughter Carol was born to Jim and Ida in 1939. In 1941 they moved to a farm in the Benjamin district, into a small log house. Carol was followed by four more children — Gordon, Clare, Kenneth and Jane. This made up their family for fourteen years, when they had an unexpected surprise another daughter, Marjorie.

By this time Carol had been married for seven years to Richard Mathews from the Forshee district, having been married in 1956. They had three children, Brenda, Valery and Micheal, by the time Marjorie came into the picture. Poor Marjie was born an Auntie and still gets teased. Fancy Brenda feeding Auntie Marjie her pablum and washing her hands and face.

When Marjie was nearly two years old the Fergusons sold out and moved into Eckville in 1965. Jim worked for the Co-op feed mill for a few years, until he retired.

In 1966 Clare married Yvonne Whiteside and they have three sons.

In 1967 Gordon married Loraine Anderson of Gull Lake. They had no family. Gordon's wife died of diabetes in 1973.

Ken still works around Eckville at pipe lines and oil well maintenance.

Jane is in Edmonton where she works as secretary data processing, and with computers.

Marjie is still in high school and enjoys sports and riding horses. She spends most of her holidays with Richard and Carol's family. They have a dairy farm and a few good horses.

By now Jim has reached pension age, and they have at least one long holiday each summer — a luxury they didn't have time or money for when they were on the farm busy raising a family.

PIZER GAYLORD AND GERTIE, AND [illegible]

Gaylord and Gertie were married in 1937. In 1937 we, with Irvin and Clydie Both moved to and built a house on the NE of 34-41 3 W5 east of Jonty Cummings' quarter. In the fall of 1938 we all moved to a farm of O. B. Moore's, north of Leedale, Irvin and my mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Both lived with us too. We all moved back in 1939. O. B. Moore sold Irvin the farm in the canyon and mother, Gaylord and I bought the one on which we lived until 1957 when we moved to Rimbey. Mother passed away in 1949. Her 80 acres returned to the county our 80 acres were sold back to O. B. Moore when we left.

We had four children, Wilfred born in 1939. He is still living at home and commutes to Sylvan Lake where he works as an electrician. Evelyn was born in 1941 and is married to Ray Young. They and their five children farm at Arran, Saskatchewan. Bob was born in 1943. He is married to Pat Sherburne and they have a general store at a little place called Scapa, Alberta. Bob also drives tanker and hauls oil for Gibsons Petroleum. They have two children. Art born in 1946 lives in Kamloops, B.C. He is married to Alberta Rowen and they have two children Art has two children from a former marriage He is a carpenter like his dad

The children drove to Benjamin school with a horse and cart in the spring and fall and in a cutter in the winter When they attended the old school they had about four and a quarter miles to travel and after the present school was moved it was about three and three quarter miles. They faced an awful lot of cold, weather rain and storms over the years but enjoyed the ride in good weather When the school closed down they went to Eckville School until we moved to Rimbey

I remember one really bad hail storm I can t recall what year it was. We were returning home by democrat and team when it started. The children and I just made it into the house and Gaylord took off on the run for the barn with the team. He found an old dishpan which he held over his head to return to the house His fingers and knuckles were skinned and bruised by the hail where he held onto the pan. It was a terrible storm. I ve never experienced a worse one

FOX FRANK AND FAMILY

Frank Fox was born in Clarion County, Pennsylvania, U S A on February 28, 1881 In 1900 he married Rosella Conner and they had one son Bob. In 1911 they moved to Alberta and settled in the Blackie area. Their household effects were loaded on another wagon and some 70 head of cattle were trailed to this farm A few years later they moved again and bought a farm north of Leedale. Later on they bought another farm 10 miles east of Leedale and this is where Mr and Mrs. Fox spent most of the remaining years of their lives

GUTH, MR. AND MRS. LOUIS AND FAMILY
by Joe Guth

My folks moved to Huxley, Alberta from Spokane, Washington in 1917, and I was born there December 15, 1918. Dad was foreman of a ranch at Crossfield Alberta for a while and then moved to the Benjamin-Leedale area in 1922

In 1925 my brother George was born and it was 90 degrees below zero that night Dad called Dr Sam Byers from Rimbey and he arrived by horse and sleigh after George arrived, but George was Okay

Along about 1925 we had a heck of a cold spell and I remember the temperature dropping to 68 degrees below zero. The snow was two feet deep. owls and birds froze. chickens feet froze on the

As for Eckville I don t remember much about it except that there was a flour mill in the town and dad would take a sleigh load of wheat to Eckville to get ground. Well it was a three day trip by sleigh from Leedale to Eckville one day to go, one day to get the grain ground and one day to get back home

There were lots of Indians in the country and sometimes there were quite a few clearing land for dad. I used to play with the Indian kids. We traded them vegetables as part payment for their work One time I had two buckets of vegetables which I was carrying to them on my horse, old Jimmy On my return home the buckets banged together, scared old Jimmy and he left me sitting in thin air All the Indians came out of their tents and laughed at me whereupon picked myself up from the ground and very embarrassed went on my way

There used to be buffalo heads lying around in the woods, and sometimes there were two or three scattered around in the yard. The dogs arge I couldn't pack it all the way home so I left but if it is the grass has probably covered it up or the ants have made a home in it

THE GEORGE GUEST FAMILY — by Isabel

Philip Porter was born at Glen Allen, Ontario after taking up a homestead at Abbey Saskatchewan. He enlisted in the Canadian Army in 1914 and while he was stationed in England he met and married Isabella Ellis. Two daughters were born to them there Isabel in 1916 and Phyllis in 1918. After the end of the war the family returned to the homestead in Saskatchewan where four more children were born. Mrs Porter passed away in 1926 when the youngest child was born. Philip Porter passed away in 1952

I, Isabel Porter, came to Eckville, Alberta in 1937 to the home of Mr and Mrs. James Teed, whom I had known since my childhood in Saskatchewan. Mrs. Teed had suffered a stroke and I had come to take care of her

In 1940 I married George Guest, and we farmed in the Benjamin area, SW 21-41-3-W5 There weren't very good roads in those days, and very often we were stuck in mudholes, there being a hill on the north road and another hill on the south road Many a time we couldn't make the hill, and would have to go home and get a team of horses to pull the car Finally, in 1955, the road past our farm was gravelled

The Benjamin school children were bussed into Eckville in 1954 and the children had to walk a mile to catch the bus the first year Sometimes it was so muddy that they could hardly pick their feet up out of the mud

We had our ups and downs through the years In 1945 on the last Sunday in July we were completely hailed out. The fields looked just like they had been summerfallowed — there wasn't a r left anywhere We had company that Sunday, Tom and Lilly Hunter, of Rimbey and the hailstones made such dents in their car roof that it left holes and the water ran inside the purpose was to get together and discuss the for decided to call the new club the "Benjamin Get together Club", and this organization is still very active today, although more than 35 years have brought about quite a change in membership However, Dora Wingate, who was the first secretary, is still an active member. Anna von Tettenborn was the first president, but she has now retired to Red Deer

In the summer of 1945 I had an afternoon tea

We owned a herd of Jersey cows and were in the dairy business for quite a few years. During the first few years a truck came from Bluffton to pick up the cream, and we fed the skim milk to pigs. Later, a truck from Bentley picked up the cream. Still later a truck route was established to pick up the whole milk and deliver it to Red Deer

In 1968 we sold our dairy herd and milking equipment and in September of that year we moved into the town of Eckville At first we rented out the farm but in 1971 we sold it to Lambourne Farms

We had two children. Doreen Carol was born in Eckville in 1942 She is married to Robert Smith, of Bluffton, and now lives in Red Deer Her two children are Brenda born in 1961 and Darrell, born in 1964 In May of 1954 Doreen and Doris Mogensen were riding horseback on a Sunday afternoon. A dog scared Doreen's horse causing it to rear up and throw Doreen off She landed on her leg, and the leg was broken She had to be taken to the Red Deer hospital, where the broken bone was set. She had to wear the cast on her leg for more than four months

Our son, Richard Gordon, was born in Eckville in October 1948. He is married to Sharon Smith, of Eckville, and lives in Pincher Creek at the present time He is employed by the Royal Bank, and is moved periodically They have two children. Shari was born in 1973 and Janice was born in 1975

In 1972 George became ill and wasn't able to work hard anymore. We then bought the Ecko Theatre in Eckville and operated it until George passed away, on October 24, 1975. I then sold the theatre in 1976, but have continued to live in my own home here in Eckville

THE WILLIAM GUEST FAMILY — by Isabel Guest

William Guest emigrated from England to Brandon Manitoba in 1903. Ellen Beatrice Rea also emigrated from England, in 1905. William filed on a homestead in the Benjamin district

Often the bachelor neighbors would gather at William's house in the evening to play cards, and would put their saddle horses in William's barn On one such occasion the group stayed all night When William went out the next morning to milk his cows he turned the horses loose His guests had to walk home, not knowing how their horses had got loose William never told them of the prank he had played on them

William and Ellen were married in January, 1907 They lived on their homestead in the Benjamin district until 1910, when they moved to a farm at Clive, for 13 years In 1923 they moved back to the homestead. SE 20-41-3-W5. Mrs Guest served as a midwife both in the Clive and Benjamin districts, for a number of years

Five children were born to William and Ellen The oldest William Rea, was born on October 13, 1907 He is now married and is living in Westlock He has been a welder a mechanic a movie projectionist, and is now retired. His four children were George, Walter Doris (Mrs. Manners) and Dorothy Ruby was born on November 1, 1909. She married Frank Laye and they reside two miles north of the original Guest homestead. Her two children are Mrs. Ruby Sztym and Mrs. Margaret Scott.

Edith Jean was born May 13, 1911. She married Bill Withers and now lives in Lacombe. They have three children — Delbert, Mrs. Donna Schreiber and Mrs. Joan Hailing.

George Henry was born on April 29, 1913. He farmed in the Benjamin district across from the homestead, until 1968. At this time he and his wife moved to Eckville.

Albert John was born January 25, 1923. He served in the armed forces, enlisting in January 1945 and serving in the Royal Canadian Engineers for three years. After he returned from the army he farmed the homestead until 1971 and in 1972 it was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Klein. Albert then moved, first to Lacombe and later to Red Deer, where he still resides. He is presently employed on the maintenance staff of the Red Deer General Hospital.

In 1923 Edith, the youngest daughter, became very ill with spinal meningitis. Doctor Somerville from Eckville came to the farm with a Model T Ford equipped with skis so he could follow any sleigh tracks in the snow. Edith was then taken to Eckville where she was hospitalized in Doctor Somerville's house. She eventually made a complete recovery.

All of the Guest children attended the Benjamin School. Mr. J. M. McDonald was the teacher when they started, in 1923.

The first entertainment we remember was a chivaree for our neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Burke, who were just newly married. A large group of their friends came to their home with cow bells, horns, dish pans, fry pans, and anything else with which they could make a noise, and used this means of expressing their congratulations to the young couple. We had never heard of this cute custom that was carried out in the pioneer settlements whenever a couple got married.

Mr. Guest purchased his first car, a Model T Ford, in 1928. In about 1929 George and Willie were driving it just west of the Benjamin school, and somehow they upset the car with Willie under it. George picked up the car and let him crawl out from under it, but the next day when the two of them tried to get the car back onto its wheels, they couldn't begin to do it. Several men were needed to set it upright again.

William Guest passed away in March of 1952 and Mrs. Guest in November of 1967. Both are buried in the Mount Auburn Cemetery in Rimbey. They had lived on their homestead ever since moving back to it in 1932.

HANCHER, ALVA AND YOLA

I, Alva Hancher was born April 23, 1908, on my mother and dad's homestead which was the NE 36-31-4-W5. In 1917, my parents hired Bob Buck to look after the homestead and we moved down to Utah for one year. In 1918 we returned to Alberta to resume farming.

In the spring of the year, the rivers and creeks ran very swift and deep from fast melting snow and were very dangerous. When I was fifteen years old, we had such a spring and an experience that I shall never forget.

James Layton, his brother and some of our friends decided to go down to Taylor's creek and swim for the first time this year. It was early May and the air was warm, I stood on the bank and noticed how clear and inviting the water looked. I dove in and swam up stream enjoying myself to the fullest. Suddenly shouts of alarm drifted across the creek and fear gripped at me as I swam quickly to shore and ran breathlessly back to the group of kids standing there screaming. They told me James Layton, a non swimmer, waded in and hit a soft spot which sucked him under. I looked down in the water and could see him face down on the murky bottom. I plunged in and swam out to him. I reached down and grabbed his hair and pulled him up. his weight lifted easily in the water. His face was dark blue. I thought he was dead. I pulled him to shore and rolled him up to the many eager hands grasping out to help drag him to dry ground and safety. We worked over him frantically looking for a sign of life and it was a long time before his chest began to move a little, he was breathing, thank God, he was alive.

I received my education at the Leedale and Benjamin schools by riding horseback. I stayed on the farm and helped Dad with the work.

In 1929 I married Yola M. Chaland in Lacombe and purchased the SW 19-41 3-5 in 1931 from C.P.R. A small house was moved from the Trenholm quarter, east of Mr. F. Hancher's and set up on our newly acquired farm. The house was very cold in the winter and the dipper that sat in the water bucket was frozen every morning and the children were always thirsty at this time.

In 1937 we bought a Waterloo separator and threshed as far west as Jim Smith's place.

Alva helped build the Leedale curling rink.

Yola was very active in community affairs. She was a member of the W.I. and the Benjamin Get Togethers. Yola was a talented piano player and played for numerous Christmas concerts and special occasions. "I never turned down anyone that asked me to play."

I would like to tell this little story on Alva. I was weeding in my garden, when Alva poked his head around the corner of the big poplar tree which had stood in the corner of our yard for many years. "Do you and the kids want to drive to town with me? I'm leaving right away."

We sure would, was my reply. The day was scorching hot and I could almost feel the cool breeze coming in the car window. When we arrived in town Alva met a few neighbours on the corner of the street and someone suggested they go and have a few cool ones while the women finished their shopping. On the way home from town the inevitable happened. We felt thud, thud thud in the car. Alva looked out his window and impatiently stopped and said, "flat tire." I nodded my head in agreement as I also spotted it. He got the jack and wrenches out of the car and I felt it being hoisted up. I jumped out and stood looking at him in disbelief as sweat stood out on his brow from all the jacking. "I thought you said you only had a few cool ones with the boys." "That's all I had, why?" "Then why did you jack up the back of the car when the flat tire is on the front?"

I can only remember one year that the hail completely took all the crop. It was in 1945. Earlier than that date we sold a truck load of hogs and received three dollars a pig. The trucking charges were three dollars.

We had five children. Laverne who is still farming in the Benjamin district. A baby boy who died in infancy. Phyllis who married Meri Bjornson and lives in Edmonton. They have seven children, Carol, Susan, Merilyn, Christine, Sharon and Jackie and one son Gerrie. Patricia married Delbert Douglas. They make their home in Vernon and have a girl Darlene and a son Dwayne. Alvena married Murry Webster. They have a girl Gail and a son Douglas and live on a acreage in Ponoka.

Alva and I sold our farm in 1966 and retired in Vernon, British Columbia.

HANCHER FRANK

My mother Ida Anna Hancher was born in Iowa October 4, 1879. She passed away May 8 19

Mr. Frank Wesley Hancher was born in Pocahontas County, Rolfe, Iowa, U.S.A. Born October 9, 1876, passed away February 11, 1952. He met Miss Ida Archer and they were married on December 13, 1899. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hancher are buried in the Mount Auburn

Orson and Anna Archer and their daughter Ethel

Cemetery at Rimbey. From Iowa they moved to McHenery, North Dakota in 1904.

His wife's family, Mr. and Mrs. Orson Archer had moved to Alberta, Canada so they decided to come to Alberta also. They moved from McHenery, North Dakota to Alberta in 1905 to work for a farmer at Morningside, near Lacombe. They worked there for a year, then Mr. Hancher went to the Medicine Valley in search for homestead land for $10 which he found and built a log home and log buildings and proved up on the land which was required for a homesteader to live six months of each year for a number of years to prove it. He had to break and cultivate a number of acres each year.

Mrs. Ida Hancher taught school at what is now known as the Leedale school for a small salary.

Frank would work out on construction, such as railroad grade work to make money to buy things they needed to farm with. They lived here on the homestead until 1918 or 1919 when they sold out and moved back to McHenery, North Dakota. The auctioneer was C. F. Darroch of [illegible].

Their relatives arrived in the Leedale and Benjamin area for a number of years. One by [illegible] sions in the valley was Mr. T. G. Chalfand and Mr. Frank Hancher.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hancher

...n the valley is still alive and is in fair health at Rimbey. His age is 104.

Mrs. Hancher pioneered the building of the Leedale Community Hall. A Leedale Hall Company was formed, shares were sold at $10. a share. A lot of work was donated and gravel was hauled from Eckville. The Hancher boys took part in this, their names being Alva and Roe. The trip took two days. The stop over was at Ole Bardenhagen's place.

There was at one time a creamery and butter plant one half mile east and two miles south of the Leedale store, comering the Eastbourne farm.

A party was held in the Leedale Hall December 13, 1949 to celebrate the Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hancher. There were people from near and far, also many relatives there. It was a great success and enjoyed by all.

The feeling between the neighbours in the early days was very good and everyone was treated with respect. The people in the valley could not have survived if each one had not helped each other. Exchange work was the policy. There was very little money in the valley in those days. Seed grain was very scarce and at one time the valley was called "Green Feed Valley." Whoever was able to raise seed grain shared with his neighbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Hancher are laid away in the Rimbey Cemetery in a double plot. They were members of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

They had three children, all boys born on the homestead. The oldest son died in infancy, the other two, Alva was born on April 23, 1908, Roe was born March 12, 1912.

Before moving to North Dakota, they purchased the Orson Archer homestead, in case they wanted to come back.

They farmed at McHenery, North Dakota for three years but due to hail storms and rust, they returned to Leedale and Medicine Valley March, 1921, on the farm they had purchased before leaving Canada.

The land was heavy timber and bush and it took a lot of hard work to clear which was all done with a grub hoe and axe. Sod broken with horses and hand breaking plow. They lived here on this place until they retired. They bought a home in Rimbey where they lived until they passed away.

There are some highlights in their pioneer days in the Wittenberg district, now Leedale.

Mr. Paul Broderson had the first store at Wittenberg and handled a few provisions but the nearest place for the homesteaders, in the valley to get any supplies was Lacombe. Each neighbor would take turns to go with horses and wagon and bring provisions as ordered by the others Mr Link Boyer would go on the trip. George [illegible] Clem Johnsman, Terry Challand and Frank Hancher would also take their turns. The mail and some provisions were hauled by covered wagon to Leedale by a man named John Kemna of Eckville or Gilby Leedale was the only place there was a phone. The settlers were able to call out through Eckville and Gilby when the line would work There was a telephone system between T G. Challand Frank Hancher and Orson Archer which operated on barbed wire fence line. This line was very dangerous during lightning storms

Mrs Terry Challand, Mrs P E. Teets, Mrs Jilly Duke Bert Archer John Archer and Orie Archer were Mrs Hancher's brothers and [illegible]

HANCHER, LAVERNE ROBERTS

On April 8, 1930, at the Trenholm quarter NE 30-41-3-W5, in the district of Benjamin a long dirt road winds through the land. To your left a team of horses are seeding wheat driven by Frank Hancher A little further on you stop at Yola and Alva Hancer's farm home. A familiar team of horses, with buggy behind stand outside and you could tell at a glance that this was Dr Byers team Inside the neat little house was Mrs. Lillie Challand, anxiously waiting the arrival of her first grandchild

Dr Byers and his assistant Mrs Sharp, were in the bedroom hovering over Yola. "The baby is about to be born said the doctor A sharp rap came at the door, and upon opening it, Mrs Harriet Johnsman came bustling in. She looked fresh and clean in her white uniform ready to administer the chloroform to her patient. A baby's cry was heard, and the doctor called from the half closed bedroom door "Alva, bring some snow quickly we need it to help revive your little [illegible]

Alva rushed outside, looking around, he could see no snow The weather was so warm for the last two weeks it had all thawed. He stood there a minute thinking, then ran to an old cellar sure enough a small corner held the precious snow He scooped it up in a small bucket he was carrying and rushed to the house and handed it to Mrs Johnsman with a smile The baby's cry soon became stronger, and it was a happy day in the Hancher household as their first son, Laverne Roberts, was born

Laverne received his education by riding horseback two miles to attend the Benjamin School On extremely cold days, with his feet numb and his fingers half frozen it felt good to open the school house door and feel the toasty warmth of the big black heater, which stood at the back of the room. A large blackboard hugged the east wall and the little school bell was resting on the teachers desk, ready to ring the start of another day at school

Miss Blanche Wallace was the first teacher Laverne had Following were Miss Ethel Hyde Miss Ross and last, but not least Miss Alma Von Tettenborn

After receiving his schooling he helped his dad on the farm and threshed for several neighbors in the district He found time to stook for Alex Sherba, Bill Lawton and Hurley Carroll just to name a few of so many

In the winter months he would go out west of Leedale and find employment at Earl Grey's mill He also helped his uncle, Glen Challand haul lumber from Johnny Jones mill into Rumbey

In 1950 Laverne moved to Edmonton to work for an oil company From there, he was employed by Gainers Meat Packing Plant

In March 1951 he enlisted in the Armed Forces, choosing the air force as his preference He took his training at St John's, Quebec and Camp Borden Ontario, specializing in air frame technician He was stationed in Ottawa, Ontario

In the spring of 1952, he was united in marriage to Kathleen McIlhinney of Ottawa and in August of the same year received an honorable discharge from the air force. He returned to Alberta and farmed the SW 30-41 3-W5 and NE 30-41 3-W5, owned by his grandmother Mrs Ida Hancher

Laverne was very interested in raising hogs They grew well for him and he had such breeds as the older type Belted hog, Landrace, York Berkshire and Tamworth. He always liked milk cows and was happy at that kind of work

When we arrived from the east, we had no transportation so Laverne purchased an old horse cutter from Alfred Kilpatrick and fixed it up as good as new We had a fine black horse, named Spike, to pull our snow cutter I anxiously awaited my first ride

One nice winter night Laverne told me everything was in readiness and we would try out our little cutter by going to Dora and Jim Wingates for the evening. I was all excited as I sat there and marvelled at the beauty of the winter. The fresh snowfall was shimmering in the moonlight as we glided along. The tree branches along the side of the road seemed to reach out to us with their arms so heavily laden with snow. The silence of the night was only broken by the snapping footsteps of the big horse in front of us. "Listen, what was that noise." I asked Laverne. The sound came again and I could feel my face flush as no answer was necessary. Someone must have fed Old Spike a plate of beans before we left as he tooted every step of the way to our neighbors. "Oh Well," I thought. "It isn't everyone that has music while travelling by horse and cutter — or do they?"

In 1953 the first school bus came to our district. Laverne took the job as bus driver. Lacombe county gave him a small yellow feeder bus to drive and his route consisted of 17 miles. The roads had no gravel, with the exception of the Leedale main line road. In the spring of the year, one and a half miles was impossible to travel that was from our farm to the Leedale road. Alfred Kilpatrick had a team of horses and was good enough to have them harnessed and waiting every morning for Laverne to drive them down to the gravel where the bus was left. The team was tied until the trip was made and Laverne drove the horses back. This had to be done most every school day all spring.

About three years later the county hired out the school buses to Gene Lazzer and Melvin Molander then drove a jeep around the same route Laverne had taken three years earlier. In the later 50s the county finding it too costly to hire out the buses, took them over and once more, Laverne had his bus back again.

The children that were picked up in those days, deserve a lot of credit, as they had pioneer hearts, braving the cold of winter or the mud in spring, because the feeder bus was broken down due to the miserable roads. The children I speak of were the Warneke children, Playfairs, Hayes, Simmons, Scotts, Challands, Taylors, Mogensons and von Tettenborns. Laverne drove the school bus for 10½ years.

We enjoyed farming and the land was good to us. We put in long hours of work every day but on Sunday friends and relations would drop by for a relaxing day. The women would visit and the men would play horseshoes all afternoon and we would end the day with as much homemade ice cream as you could eat.

One Sunday when the raspberries were ripe and plentiful, a small group of us decided to go and pick the fruit that day and asked the men to come and help. With much grumbling and their minds more on horseshoes that berry picking they consented.

It was very hot and not a trace of a breeze but we all worked hard to try and fill our buckets. Our pails were only a quarter full when Laverne appeared out of the bush, where he was picking and I was so pleased to see his bucket brimming over with beautiful berries. Since his pail was full, he sat down in the shade of a big tree and patiently waited for the rest of us to finish.

When we returned home I cleaned my berries with great care and then I reached for Laverne's bucket and poured them into mine. I was lost for words, when out came dirt, twigs, and grass. Only the two inches at the top of the pail was berries. "Oh that man," I stormed. "no wonder he got done so fast." He had stuffed anything he could find in the bucket and then just picked a few to cover the top. There was a small war at the Hancher farm that evening. One thing was for sure, I would never ask him to pick berries for me again.

In 1958, Laverne purchased the SW 26-41-3-W5 and NW 17-41-3-W5, the latter being the quarter owned by Lloyd and Molly Oborne. One quarter had 20 acres under cultivation so we bought a steel wheeled John Deere tractor and broke another 60 acres that summer. We purchased Walter Andrew's house as he was building a new one, and moved it on our home quarter. A few years later we erected a new steel rib barn and filled it with milk cows.

In 1971 we sold our farm and purchased the SE 2-42-4-W5, homesteaded by Mert Challand Laverne's great-uncle, and also the W½ 32-41-3-W5 which was homesteaded by another great uncle Clarence Challand.

Through our life together, we raised four children. Leonard is married to Terry Hamilton and is employed at the Lavington Mill. He makes his home in Vernon, B.C. and has a daughter

Rochelle and a son Ryan. Dallas is employed b the Federated Co-op and resides in Hanna Alberta Theresa is married to Kent Kinder and they have a li'le son, Jereme and make their home at Sylvan Lake, Alberta. Kevin is still at home and attending school. He also helps Laverne with the farm work

At this time of writing, we are into the 1977 harvest season and with the continual rain which has plagued our crop and hay for the past two months, I wrote this li'le poem and I would like to share it with you

Sometimes, hell on earth as a farmer's life
Battling storms of rain, wind or ice
But calm yourselves, for beyond the blue
The Good Lord commands his angels too,
Unlock those gates and open them wide
Let all the farmers step inside

HANCHER, ROE RAYMOND

Roe Raymond Hancher was born March. 12 1912, on the homestead NE 36-41-4-5, the next quarter north of Link Boyer I went to school at the Leedale and Benjamin schools My teachers were: D Layton, Miss Kingsep, Peggy MacDonald and Miss Sestrap to Grade 7

I had trouble at Benjamin when Miss Sestrap was teaching so dad and mother sent me to Calgary where I stayed with an aunt and uncle for three years of school While going to school in Calgary, I studied music, learning to play the saxophone and clarinet. Then I returned home and was on the farm, farming and playing for dances until I was 21 years old. I then went to work in Edmonton wrecking automobiles. Th was in the depression times and wages were ver low. I worked from eight in the morning until six in the evening six days a week. My pay for the week was $10. I paid six dollars a week for room board and washing which left me four dollars for clothing and spending money

After one year in Edmonton I married a girl Dorothy Gladys Rutter We rented two rooms and lived there for a few years. My father took sick and went from the city to the farm for one season and a very cold winter My wife and I lived in the Jess Bowman house, one half mile south of the home place The winter was very cold and we had a baby girl Roeberta nine or 10 months old. It was so cold that winter the water pail would freeze solid sitting by the stove It was the coldest house I ever lived in

We had a crop failure that year and I was no able to put the crop in the next spring so I went back to the city I got a job with International Harvester Co. of Canada and was field expert and service man for them. I traveled all of Northern Alberta from Lacombe I was in the company for 18 years when I decided to stop traveling as our family was three children then Roeberta the oldest Wesley, a boy next Elo ne he youngest, and I was needed at home more han on the road

I moved to Westlock, Alberta where I worked for the I H C. dealer In Westlock we built our first home We lived there nine years The dealer there sold his place of business so I moved back to Edmonton and worked for I H.C. truck depart ment as a mechanic for one year I sold my place in Westlock and moved to Thorsby Alberta I bought a home here and have lived here for 22 years I was employed by the Chrysler dealer here in Thorsby where my children finished school

My oldest girl Roeberta, died in 1947 My son Wesley finished high school here in Thorsby and went to Olds Agriculture School for three years He then farmed my land for five years when he was taken sick and had an operation and was not able to farm He went back to Olds and took a course in landscaping. He now owns his own business and is doing good

My youngest daughter is married and lives on Vancouver Island, She has two children, both girls. Wesley has four children, one boy and three girls

My wife was agent for Alberta Government Telephones here in Thorsby until they changed the system to automatic She then was employed with Northern Alberta Dairy Pool as a bookkeeper for the Thorsby Cheese Factory until 1975 when she retired. I am also retired now in 1977 We are enjoying life and just returned from my daughter's place on the Island, where I did a lot of salmon fishing with an old neighbor, J Jones who also lived at Leedale

HANSEN, BEN

I was born in Hatting, Denmark in 1947 and moved to Canada with my parents in 1957 and we lived at Coronation, Ponoka, and Edmonton before moving to the Leedale district in May of

In 1966 I met and married Donna Glenday of Edmonton and in August of 1968 our son, Micheal was born. We left the place in May, 1969 after confirming a place with the Edmonton Fire Department, where I am presently employed Our daughter Tammy was born in May 1971, Ker y in July 1973 and Tiana in October 1974

In late June of 1968 it seemed that the whole country was on fire While working on dad s place a call came to get home and work up land at the south end of our place, as a bush fire had gotten away from our neighbors In the meantime half of the neighbors were fighting a fire on the Melvin Simmons farm

The really hard part about leaving was saying goodbye to all the friends we had made during the year spent on the farm even now when we sit and talk about that year we get homesick

JOHN CHARLES HOPPER — by Jean Hopper

John Charles Hopper was born in 1885 at Langley Moor near Durham, England. His parents were farmers and also owned a hotel in Langley Moor As a young man he worked on the farm, at the hotel, and also drove the local doctor on his rounds The lure of a new and better life caused him to immigrate to Canada in 1905 Before homesteading in the Benjamin district in 1906 he worked on a farm in Manitoba as well as working in the logging camps in the wintertime at Coleman Alberta

After twice returning to England he wed Mildred Mary Gilliam in 1912 At that time she was the postmistress at Langley Moor When Charlie and Polly (as the couple were known) were married they returned to Canada accompanied by Mr and Mrs Gilliam Sr to live on a farm in the Symond district When their house was completed on the homestead in the Benjamin district they moved here

Charlie was for some time a trustee of the Benjamin school which was located about two and one half miles distant from the homestead The livestock that was sold from the farm had to be transported a long way to market in Lacombe by wagon or sleigh before the coming of the railway to Rimbey

In 1928 the Hoppers purchased their first automobile, a model T Ford car This was a great help in getting to town providing it didn't rain and make the roads impassable

Charlie and Polly had one son, Sidney Charles, who married Jean Beddoes of the Lockhart district in 1950 They have two children, Ron and Susan.

Charles' wife passed away in 1964 after a lengthy illness. Charlie continued to live in his home for several years before moving to the Senior Citizen s Lodge in Rimbey in 1973. Following a serious illness, he was transferred to the Rimbey Auxiliary Hospital in 1975, where he was still living in 1977

We sold the farm in 1965 and have moved near the Oyster River on Vancouver Island

KILPATRICK, DONALD (DAN) AND FAMILY — by Alfred Kilpatrick

Donald Kilpatrick my father, was born April seventh 1883 in Huron County Ontario and he came west to Moose Jaw Saskatchewan in the spring of 1910. He was a carpenter and built several barns at Tuxford, Sask. Lillie May Moffat my mother was born October 30, 1885 near Hensil, Ontario. She came west in 1910 on a harvest excursion and used to tell of how hard the train seats were on that train ride to Regina Sask Dad and Mother were married in 1912 on March 12 at Moose Jaw They took out a homestead near Lake Johnston at Old Wives Sask Dad served on the council for the Municipality of Hillsborough and also on the Bayneland School Board

It was the early twenties in the spring when a storm started up, before long it turned into a howling blizzard. Cattle were driven by the storm into fence corners and died there The storm also drove cattle and sheep out onto Lake Johnston and they fell into large cracks that were in the ice and perished there

In 1918 when the flu hit the country quite a number of people in our area contacted it but I never remember of the folks dying of too many people dying from it. Dad came down with it but as children and mother escaped the flu

In our family four children were born Burns my oldest brother was born February 16, 1913 at Moose Jaw I Alfred was born on the homestead on April 21, 1915 Margaret my sister was born in Hensil, Ontario when mother and dad took a trip back to Ontario in the winter of 1920 and 1921 Bob the youngest was born on the homestead on April 18, 1922

Drought and depression hit about 1929 on the prairies. Lake Johnston dried up to where old wells were found. These wells were dug and cribbed about the later part of the 1800's, so the old timers used to say. I can remember as a child going out to the pasture with my dad and brother to pick buffalo chips as they were called they were dried cow manure) to burn for fuel in the summer as there was no wood on the prairie During those years we always had a garden. Our house was up on a hill and about a quarter mile away there was a low area in which Mother always planted the garden and it produced plenty for our family

In 1933 Dad came up to Alberta and rented a farm north east of Rimbey When he returned to Saskatchewan he was unable to raise enough money to ship up to Rimbey so we were unable to make it for that year In the spring of 1934 I came to Alberta and worked east of Rimbey for the summer and in the fall I helped thresh around Leedale After 23 years on the prairie Mother and Dad could no longer take the dry years on the homestead so they pulled up stakes and moved to the Leedale area. They shipped up two rail cars of machinery, six horses, four cows chickens and household effects to Eckville It was right after Thanksgiving that they arrived and they then trailed up to a vacant house of Scotty Houston's and we lived there for the

Previously to coming to Alberta Dad went to Regina to get transportation to Alberta but was turned down on two occasions. A neighbor was going to Regina to get transportation to northern Sask. and dad asked him to try and get it for him to Alberta Our neighbor was successful and so we made it to Alberta I remember one homesick horse we brought up from the prairie with us his name was Dan. Twice he got away once I found him at Dixon and the other time at Benalto close to the river had he been used to water I'm sure he would have crossed the Medicine River and perhaps made his way back to the prairie before we could have caught him

In the spring of 1935 we rented the Frank Hancher farm and moved there for a year Then in the spring of 1936 we bought the Louis Guth quarter NE 31-41-3 W5. This was our home About a couple of years later the NW 31 was bought and Dad and us boys worked at grubbing and getting more land into production. It was a lot of hard work but we were always able to have plenty to eat and fodder for our livestock With the mills that were west of us Burns and I worked in the lumber camps in the winter and later on Bob also worked there too. It was some years after I was married that Dad bought another quarter of land from Frank Johnsman the SE 6 42-3-W5

I, Alfred married Mary Johnsman in 1941 and we have two children Frankie and David Frankie finished her high school at Eckville and then joined the Air Force. She married Robert Matkins who is Program Manager of the Montana Large Aperture Siesmac Array for Ford Aerospace and Communications Corporation They live in Billings Montana and have two boys David and Roby. David our son took part of his High School in Eckville and finished in Red Deer

He also went to Olds and took Agriculture Mechanics. Barbara his wife is a R.N. and took her training in Saskatoon. They are now living in the area and farming our place in the Benjamin district. They have two girls, Shannon and Melanie.

Margaret married Gale Scott in 1945 and they have three girls. Audrey married Wm. McKay and they live in Fort St. John, B.C. They have two children. Janet married Paul Lange and they live at Sundre and have two girls. Francie works in Edmonton.

LAND, CHARLES

Charlie and Kathleen Land came to Canada in 1913, and settled in the Benjamin District on the SE 28-41-3-W5. They homesteaded a bush quarter and started the painstaking job of clearing it by hand and having it broken by horses with a wooden beam breaking plow.

There were several other families in the district at that time, so the roads went from farm to farm across country, and to the school, which was the centre of community life. Here dances, box socials and social evenings were held and Charlie used to help with the entertainment by singing and whistling across the blade of a knife.

Since they lived eleven miles from town which was quite a long trip with horses and wagons, they and the neighbors used to take turns to fetch the groceries and the mail, that way each family would only have to make the tedious trip every three or four weeks and as there was no railway Charlie took his turn hauling freight from Lacombe to Leedale.

In 1917 the Land house burned down with all their possessions, and so for the next couple of years they lived at the Hiram Cutler farm near Rimbey. They returned to Benjamin after that time to rebuild their home.

When the road allowances were surveyed every farmer worked to make the graded roads. They used horses and a slip for the high land. This dug up the dirt and conveyed it to the proper place. When they had to go over low lying ground they corduroyed it, which meant cutting trees and laying them side by side over the swampy ground and covering them with dirt hauled with wagons with moveable floors.

As more land was cleared and crops grown they used to cut and stook the grain then stack it so that later on in the fall or winter it could be threshed when the threshing machine made its rounds to the different farmers.

The Land's bought their first car a Model T in 1927, but sleighs were still used in winter as the roads were not suitable for cars.

In 1942 Charlie had a very bad heart attack. He never actively farmed after that but became interested in gardening and his son Herb took over the farm. They retired to Bentley in 1950 where Charlie had a model garden and they both enjoyed their retirement.

Charlie and Kathleen had four children, one son and three daughters.

Herbert married Mrs. Joan Porter who had twins, a boy Keith and a girl Barbara. Keith is at Fox Creek. Barbara married Robert Barlow of Calgary and they have two daughters, Michele and Alison and they are now residing in Chilliwack, B.C. To Herbert and Joan a son Michael was born and he is at home on the farm with his parents.

Alice married Charles Arrowsmith of Rimbey. They have one son Douglas who married Lois Golder of Lacombe. Douglas and Lois have two children, a son Larry and a daughter Connie Alice. Charles and Douglas and family live in B.C. at Armstrong and Enderby.

Ada married James Haarstad of Bentley. They have two sons Denis and Dean. Denis married Pat Beranek and they have one son David and one daughter Brenda. Ada passed away in 1976.

Ruby married Edward Mottus of Eckville and they have two sons Ted and Steve and one daughter Kathleen. Ruby and family live in [illegible].

DUNCAN AND ANNIE LAYTON — by Mary Binder

One of the early families in the Benjamin district was that of Duncan and Annie Layton. Annie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Lockart, emigrated from Nebraska, U.S.A. to Alberta in 1903, and operated the first post office in the district then known as Lockhart.

In the fall of 1905, Duncan Layton, who had left his home in Truro, Nova Scotia three years earlier to find work in the sawmills of British Columbia, returned to Alberta to file claims on homesteads for himself and five companions. They were Frank Wingate, Wallace Stevenson, George Fraser, Marner Smith and Jack Mink. Frank, Wallace, George and Duncan remained to farm the lands they homesteaded. Early in the spring of 1906 Mr. Layton began teaching in the newly organized Calkins Valley School Division for building a school in the Benjamin district. In 1907 the newly-formed Benjamin School District issued debentures and borrowed money to begin building. Link Boyer got the contract to build the school, assisted by Mr. Benjamin, a member of the school board. Mr. Layton taught from March until June of 1908. There was not enough money to continue longer. The first pupils consisted of three Taylor children and four of the Benjamin children. School was closed in May of 1910 when Mr. Benjamin, having "proved up", got title to his land, then packed up his belongings and moved with his family back to Montana. Without the Benjamin children there were not the required number of school children to operate the

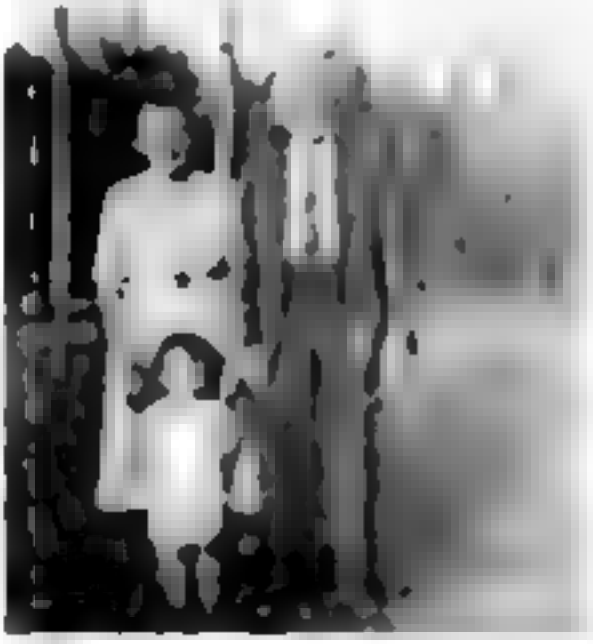
Mr. and Mrs. Layton were married on October 26, 1906 and celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary before Mrs. Layton's death in 1973. Mr. Layton, now 94 years of age, lives at the Valley Park Manor in Red Deer. He still remembers vividly his early years in the area as a teacher and a farmer.



Of their six children, the two eldest reside in the Benjamin district. James married Beryl Beddoes and they have made their home on the original Layton farm since 1941. Their only daughter Sandra (Mrs. Colin Beard) lives in Petawawa, Ontario.

Bob married Clara Tilleman. Their family includes Donna (Mrs. Jim Pearson), Bob, Harvey, Allan, Heather (Mrs. Robert Guldam), Chris (Mrs. Andy Brown) and Tim and Tom.

Laurie married Lenore MacLean and they will be retiring to White Rock in 1977. They have one daughter, Linda (Mrs. Greg Berry) and a son, Keith.

Jessie (Mrs. Hal Beddoes) of Kamloops, B.C. has just retired from a nursing career. They have four sons, Michael, Sandy, Ken and Ian.

Mary (Mrs. F. H. Blake) retired from teaching and lives in Red Deer. She has two sons, John and Tony.

Layton L. married Reva Hyde, and lives in Vancouver, B.C. They have a son, Mark and a daughter, Tammy.

LINER, JOHN AND FAMILY

Early in the year 1910 John Liner left his home in Sweden and sailed for Canada. With him was his brother Olaf and later the same year another brother Per also came to Canada. They first came to Barons, Alberta where a sister and brother-in-law lived. The brothers were all carpenters and for several months they worked at carpenter work in Southern Alberta.

They then came north to Lacombe looking for homesteads. About 30 miles west of Lacombe there were three homesteads available in Sec. 15-41-3-W5. John filed on the SE quarter, Olaf filed on the SW quarter and Per on the NW quarter of this section. That winter the brothers built a log house on John's quarter. When spring came they went south again to do carpenter work for the summer.

In the fall of 1911 John's wife Edla and three children, Anders six, Anna five and Alice two sailed for Canada. Per's wife Mina and son Gunnar came at the same time. After the ocean voyage and long train ride across Canada they finally arrived at Lacombe. John and Per were there to meet them and the trip to the homesteads was made with a team of horses and a wagon. The first winter John's and Per's families and Olaf all lived in the log house that had been built the previous winter. Per and Olaf built houses on their homesteads that winter and moved to their own homes in the spring.

John built a log barn on his land. A few head of cattle were bought, also some pigs and chickens. A few acres of land were cleared. John purchased a team of oxen to break the land. He often had to leave his family and go out to work at his carpenter trade to get some much needed money. Income from the land was very meager the first years.

In April 1913 another daughter was born to the family. She was named Albertina which was soon shortened to Alta. She grew to be a happy healthy little girl.

Anders started school at the Benjamin School in 1913. His first teacher was Miss Flo Johnson. Anna started school the following year. Mr. D. M. Layton was our teacher that year. We found school difficult at first because we did not know the English language. However we soon learned enough of the language so we could understand our teacher and our progress at school was quite

During the summer months wild berries were plentiful. We picked saskatoons, wild raspberries and blueberries which were preserved for winter.

In July 1916 tragedy struck our family. Edla our dear Mother, passed away a few hours after the birth of her daughter Gladys. John was heartbroken and did not know how he would manage to raise his family by himself. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Putland, who had no children of their own, offered to adopt Baby Gladys. John did not want to give up his little daughter but he felt that it would be best for his little girl. So the adoption papers were signed and Gladys became the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Putland. They were very good to her and she had a very happy childhood. For the next two years the other four children stayed with relatives in southern Alberta and John worked at his carpenter work.

In December 1918 John married Sofia Peterson, who had just recently come from Sweden. He then brought his family back to the homestead. We were all happy to be back and we were happy to have a new mother. Again we went to school at Benjamin. By this time Alice was school age also and two years later Anna started school. We had a long walk to school as our homestead was four miles from the Benjamin School but we had a path through the bush which shortened the distance a bit. In 1921 John bought the quarter section which had been his brother Per's homestead and we moved there. We now had a better house and we were a mile closer to school. There also was more land under cultivation so it was not necessary to work out as much.

After finishing school Anders worked with his Dad on the farm for a number of years. He also worked in southern Alberta in the harvest fields for several years. In 1930 he filed on a homestead at Winfield. He built a log house there and it became his home for many years. Besides clearing land and developing his homestead he worked in lumber camps and for a time as a section man on the C.P.R. railway. In 1952 he sold his homestead and bought his father's farm in the Benjamin District. He farmed there until 1968, when he sold the farm and bought a home in Rumbey. In October of 1968 Anders married Eva Andrews and Andy and his wife still live in Rumbey.

Anna finished grade nine in the Benjamin School. Then she went to Calgary where she finished her high school and went to Normal School. She taught school for eight years in several school districts in Central Alberta. After the death of her step-mother in 1936 Anna came home to keep house for her father and help on the farm. In 1944 Anna and John left the farm and went to White Rock, B.C. where they lived until John passed away in March 1948. After her father's death Anna came back to Alberta and in 1949 she married Andrew Crawford, who farmed south of Eckville. Andy and Anna continued to farm in the Diamond Valley District until 1971 when they sold their farm and bought a home in Red Deer where they now reside.

After finishing school Alice worked in Calgary for a number of years. In 1939 she married Gust Svenson of the Winfield District. Gust had a farm west of town where he and Alice lived for many years. Their son Alfred was born in 1940. Alice passed away in 1964. Gust continued to live on the farm until his passing in 1975. Alfred is still farming on his parents farm.

Anna finished her high school in Calgary. Then she went to Normal School. She taught school for a few years, then she went to the Western Baptist Bible College and became a missionary. In 1943 she went to Nigeria, Africa under the Sudan Interior Mission. She served two four year terms in Africa. She came home on furlough in 1947 just before her father's passing. She went back for her second term in the fall of 1948. The climate in Africa was hard on her health, so she found she had to give up her work as a missionary. In 1956 she went to the Peace River District to teach school. There she met Edmond Roy and she and Edmond were married in 1957. Alta continued teaching for a few years after her marriage, Edmond was farming. Then they moved to Peace River town where they worked for a number of years. They are now retired and living in Kelowna, B.C.

Gladys was taken by her foster parents to Burnaby B.C. while she was still very young and they continued to live in the Vancouver Area for many years. Gladys became a teacher and taught school on Vancouver Island. She was about 25 years old when she was told that she had been adopted. She then came to Alberta to visit her father and brother and sisters. She stayed with her father and Anna for nearly a year. Then she went back to B.C. where she has lived most of her life.

LINER, OLAF FAMILY

In the fall of 1910 Olaf Liner filed on a homestead in the Benjamin District. It was the SW 15-41-3-W5. He built a house on his land in the winter of 1912. later he cleared land and built fences. He also worked at his carpenter trade much of the time.

In 1917 he went to Sweden and brought his wife Lydia and son Algot with him back to Canada. They came to the Barons District of southern Alberta where they rented an empty farm house and Olaf worked as a carpenter for about two years. Their son Algot attended the Garden Prairie School. In July 1918 their son Harry was born. In the spring of 1919 they rented a farm southwest of Barons, but this farming venture proved unsuccessful. They suffered three years of crop failure, due to drought, cutworms and grasshoppers. Another son Robert was born in March of 1921.

In the fall of 1921 Olaf moved his family to his homestead in the Benjamin District where they lived for about a year and a half and Argot attended school at Benjamin. In 1923 Olaf sold his homestead and the family lived in Calgary for about a year. Then in the fall of 1924 Olaf bought a C.P.R. quarter in the Lochart District, the SE 12-41-3-W5. Olaf worked hard on this farm. He cleared about 100 acres of land and broke it with horses. They also raised pigs, cattle and milked cows.

Their youngest son Carl was born in January 1927. Harry and Robert were now school age. They went to the Calkins Valley School. Later Carl also had his schooling at Calkins Valley.

Algot worked in southern Alberta and at various jobs in the Calgary area. He remained a bachelor all his life. He now is retired and living in Calgary.

Harry bought a truck and for about 15 years he operated a trucking business known as "Liner's Transport". Then he bought his father's farm, where he is still living and continuing to farm. In 1945 Harry married Marie Krossa, some years later they built a nice new home on the farm. Harry and Marie have three children, Susan, Annette and Gordon. They also have six

Robert bought land in the Lockhart District which he continued to farm for several years. He also helped Harry with the trucking business. In 1957 Robert married Alice Haarstad. They con moved to live on the farm and built a lovely new home. In 1966 Bob and Alice decided to move to B.C. They had a sale and sold their farm equipment and livestock. They moved to Rutland, B.C. and for a time Bob worked as a carpenter. Then they bought a farm at Armstrong where they lived for several years. In 1972 Bob and Alice moved back to Alberta and they are now living on a farm in the Lockhart District.

Carl became an Auto Body Mechanic. He was married in 1957 and bought a home in Calgary. Carl and his wife Martha still live in Calgary and he is continuing to work at his trade.

Olaf and Lydia Liner moved to Calgary when they retired from farming and bought a home in the city. On December 3, 1958 they celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary with a family dinner at the home of their son Harry and in the afternoon they had open house at Robert's farm where many friends and neighbors gathered to wish them well. In 1966 Olaf suffered a stroke which left him partly paralyzed. Lydia continued to look after him and nurse him through his long illness. He passed away in December 1971. Lydia lived in her home in Calgary for sometime after her husband's death. Then she sold her home and is now living in the Senior Citizen's Lodge at Rimbey. At age 93 she still enjoys fairly good health and keeps busy crocheting and knitting.

LINER, PER FAMILY

In the fall of 1910 Per Liner filed on the NW 15 41 3-W5. During the winter of 1912 he built a house on his land and dug a well. In the spring he and his wife Mina and son Gunnar moved to the homestead. He was busy that summer clearing some land and getting a few acres broken. He built a log barn and a chicken house. He bought horses, some cattle and chickens. Like his brothers, Per often had to leave home to do carpenter work to supplement his income. Gunnar who was ten years old was a big help with the chores when his father was away. Gunnar started school at Benjamin soon after they were settled on the farm. He soon learned the English language and made good progress at school.

Per's health began to fail in the fall of 1916 and after an illness of several months he died in April 1917. Mina and Gunnar left the homestead for about a year and found work in Calgary, but they came back to the farm in 1918 and Gunnar bought livestock and equipment and began to farm his father's homestead. However after the extremely long cold winter of 1919 and 1920 they decided to move to a warmer climate. They had a sale in the summer of 1920 and moved to California. In 1920 John Liner bought their farm. Mina passed away a few years later. Gunnar continued to live in California and worked at various jobs. He is now retired and lives in Los Angeles.

MEMORIES OF "OLD BALDY"

Others know the hill as "Old Baldy or "Snake Hill" but to myself and my brothers it was just Grandpa's Hill. I do not know its history from 1919 when my grandparents came from Iowa to this valley. Some say there is an Indian grave beside the pathway which runs along the top. A pioneer once built a home right near the brow of this small mountain and indeed I did see this old basement or foundation on the trail when grandpa and grandma took us for a Sunday climb. As a little child I remember how lovely "the hill looked with it's blanket of shiny green [illegible].

When Grandpa came to Canada he had intended living near Leedale on a flat quarter section of land, but Grandma was so homesick for the "Old Country" that they settled here instead. The hill reminded them of Scotland. A fire cleared all trees from it and this is how it got it's name in the 1920's. It lies on the farthest northwest end of the Medicine Hills. In the 1920's and 1930's we walked right up the south west face of it over slippery leaves and jagged rocks grasping small trees and going in a winding direction so we wouldn't slip. Grandpa always warned us to be careful or "you'll roll right down he hill. It took about one half hour to climb right up to the snake pit where we rested. Once Grandpa showed me the snakes writhing around in their sunny rock cavern. Grandma was always afraid to go there alone for once she had gone looking for berries around the back of the hill and become lost. She finally came to a wire fence and followed it to the fields near the house. Once too a grey wolf had chased their dogs, when they ventured too near the dark forest at the north end. So to us children "The Hill" was a very wonderful and mysterious place where we went for a climb on Sunday. Grandpa walking ahead with his William Walking Stick, then came we children followed by Taffy the old sheep dog and last came Grandma keeping watch over us. It was worth the effort when we reached the top. There we sat down on a soft carpet of moss and leaves to view the snowy mountains and the Medicine Valley below. Grandpa pointed out the neighbor's farms to the northwest and the Calkins Valley to the east. Best of all was seeing the roof of their log house right below nestled in the trees.

The hill smelled of Balm of Gilead trees and raspberries. It was covered with anthills which Grandpa stirred or poked with his stick so we could see the poor little creatures rebuilding their mounds. I really wondered if the whole hill might be one huge red anthill for I was terrified of them when they crawled into my shoes and bit fiercely. There were deer and other wild animals sheltering among the trees. Grandma became very upset when anyone hunted them. She thought of it as a natural sanctuary.

Over the years "Old Baldy" has been many things to many people. Other neighbors have had sleigh riding parties and hiking picnics along the old trail. Now the pavement runs right along the east side and the road crew built a look out on the south-east end. So our little mountain is not

THE NELS MOGENSEN FAMILY — by Margaret Mogensen

Nels emigrated to the Calgary area from Denmark in 1927 and I came from Denmark in 1929. We were married in Calgary in 1929.

We lived in Calgary for 10 years, but at that time there was no work in the city so we decided to go farming and came to the Benjamin district in the summer of 1939. Nels was never out of work after that! It was a raw quarter section with no roads. We lived in a tent for two months while Nels helped the Layton boys with the haying. Then they, in turn, helped him build a two room log house. At the time we moved to the farm we had the three older boys. Hugh was nine, Ken was seven, and Norman was three years old. Until we got a well drilled the following summer we hauled water from Layton's spring, a distance of one mile. While we were living in the tent we had a hail storm that almost killed our chickens and soaked everything in the tent. The mosquitoes were so bad that Norman was completely covered with bites.

The road allowances was cleared the first summer from Lands to the northwest corner of

In the fall Nels went harvesting at Balzac to earn some money for the winter. While he was gone Hugh and I laid part of the kitchen floor and I started to chink the logs inside the house.

Our two horses ran away that summer and we heard three months later that they were in the pound in Markerville. It cost $35 to get them back out again. In the meantime we had bought another horse from Charlie Land to use for hauling water.

An early snowstorm brought Nels home from Balzac, but after things dried up again he was able to go and help Harry Thomas thresh.

That first winter and spring Nels cleared 14 acres and had it broken in the spring. In the summer of 1940 we had a well drilled. We had to drill down 150 feet to get water, so it was really heavy to pump.

We brought chickens with us from Calgary and bought a milk cow from Charlie Land, so we always had fresh milk and eggs. Nels worked for different neighbors for the going wage of one dollar a day to help buy groceries. The boys found life quite different from the city, with two and three-quarter miles to go to school, either on foot or on horseback.

We were very fortunate that we were all healthy except for the fact that Norman was born with a club foot which required long and frequent treatment at the Red Cross Hospital Calgary. Transportation was so poor that it was a problem getting him back and forth and his hospital stays were sometimes prolonged.

Our life was generally untouched by the war except for communication with relatives in Denmark. Letters were sent from Denmark to a friend in the United States, who forwarded them to us and the same with our letters to them until the United States entered the war. Then all letters had to go through the Red Cross and we could send a message of only 25 words.

In 1941 Doris was born in Rimbey. We were worried about the availability of a doctor as the doctor who had been there had joined the army but another did come before she was born. Joyce was born in September of 1943.

In 1947 Hugh left home to take Grade 11 in Eckville. He worked on MacDonald's farm for his room and board with them. The next year he boarded at Wecker's near Bentley and took part of his Grade 12 there. Meanwhile Ken was boarding at Jim Jaffrey's and taking Grade 9 at Lockhart, as there was no teacher at Benjamin. Mr. McCullough, who was the school superintendent offered to let him come and board at his home in Red Deer and finish his high school there. Hugh was able to go there, too, and pick up he Grade 12 subjects that weren't available to him in Bentley.

We remember lots of good times during those years. Things like community picnics, families getting together for Sunday dinners, Christmas concerts, whist drives, showers for all the young people of the community who got married, and the Benjamin Ladies Club. Isabel Guest had the first meeting of the Club and I had the second.

In December of 1950 our house was completely destroyed by fire. We had no insurance, so it was a terrible loss to us. Our neighbors were very good to us, they brought us bedding, household goods, and money. Laytons loaned us their old house and Herb Land pulled it in with his tractor. That winter we got out logs and sawed them and the following summer we started work on the new house. Rural electricity was being brought in at that time, so we had the house wired while we were building.

An incident happened about this time that we've always laughed about. We had some friends who drove up from Drumheller but when they got as far as Baldy they got stuck in the mud from the heavy shower we had had that afternoon. Mr. Aagaard walked up to our place and his wife stayed at Boths. After supper Nels and Norman hitched up the horses to the wagon and Norman went down to get her. On the way Norman thought he heard chickens and, sure enough, he found about half a dozen chickens riding along on the reach of the wagon. He stopped at Johnny Fraser's and put the chickens in their coal box and picked them up again on the way home. So Mrs. Aagaard arrived in fine style with a box of cackling chickens in the wagon with her. She had a good story to tell her city friends in Drumheller when she got back home.

When Norman went to Grade 9 it was no longer being taught at Benjamin, so he went to Peterson's in Bentley and boarded with them helping in their hatchery. The next year the school bus from Rumbey came to within two miles so he was able to come back home and take the bus to school to finish his high schooling. Then in the mid 50's Benjamin School was closed and all the students were bused to Eckville. Doris and Wayne were able to finish high school without leaving home.

In 1960 Linda and Beverly, our two eldest grandchildren, came to live with us and stayed for the next several years. Meantime, work on the farm was getting hard with Nels away a lot doing carpentry work, so in 1963 we sold the farm and moved to Eckville. There we built a new house where we lived for the next eight years. Nels built the Presbyterian Church in Eckville, as well as a number of houses in and around Eckville. I was the librarian at the town library from its opening until we left eight years later in 1972. We made lots of good friends during our stay there and enjoyed many card games with them.

After talking about moving to Vancouver Island for several years, we finally did so in 1972 where we enjoy good health and many new friends — fishermen, card players and bowlers in the Duncan area.

Our children.

After finishing high school, Hugh took one year of education at University of Alberta and practice-taught at Andrew School for two months. After teaching during the following year at Morningside, he decided that he didn't like teaching so he worked for a year and then went back to university and took geology. He married Helen Swainson of Burnt Lake in 1955. He has worked in the oil industry since finishing university and has always lived in Calgary except for three years in London, England. They have five daughters and one son. The two eldest daughters are in university, one in Calgary and one in Queen's University at Kingston, Ontario. The others are still at home and in school.

Ken is part owner of Castle Appliance Service in Calgary, a thriving business with a large staff. His two older daughters are both married and living in Calgary. Linda has twin daughters and Beverly has a son.

Norman worked in the bank in Rumbey for a year after finishing school, then travelled around the world for two years. On his return he worked in Vancouver in the banking business for several years. He is now living in Victoria and working for the provincial government. In 1969 he married Joan Page of Cambridge, England. They have a son and a daughter who are both still at home and attending school.

Doris finished school in 1959 and went to Calgary where she worked for the Associate Clinic for four years. In 1962 she married Ron McKoen of Calgary. They have three children, two boys and a girl, who are all at home and attending school. They lived in Calgary for several years and now make their home in Port Alberni, B.C., where Ron works in industrial sales.

Wayne finished high school in 1961 and went to work for a Tunisian family near Calgary for a year. This was a great help to him in learning to speak French. From there he went to university in Edmonton for a year, then to the University of British Columbia for two years. He then returned to Edmonton to get his Master's degree in history two years later. He then went to Caen, France, as an exchange student, later getting his Ph.D. from Sorbonne in Paris. He married Muriel Colette in France in 1969. They moved back to Canada in 1970 and he is now teaching history at Laurentian University in Sudbury, Ontario. They have two small children, a boy and a girl.

William Little Porter with his wife Alice Mary Dunn Porter and daughter Norah, 26 years of age came to Canada in 1913 from the farming area of Council Bluffs, Iowa, U.S.A

Originally from Castle Douglas, Scotland William Porter came to Portsmouth England to work for Archibald Dunn, who was in business as a Draper (men's suiting and Scottish woollens) After marrying Miss Alice Dunn, fourth daughter of his employer they decided to leave for America, where Mr Porter was hired as a herdsman on a ranch of Armour's Packing plant

After arriving at New York City, with Norah 12 years of age, in 1906, they proceeded to his work near Kansas City, Missouri. After working for 13 years in Missouri, Kansas, and Iowa they decided to take up land in Canada. They put a down payment on a piece of land near Leedale but it was bleak and low-lying and so they were fortunate in finding a quarter-section of beautiful hilly land in the Benjamin district Losing their first initial payment given for the land at Leedale was a blow which was softened by the lovely new log house and the high hill on the half section they settled on. At first they got their mail and groceries at the Gilby Store. The family attended church services at the Lockhart Church, where Norah sometimes played the organ. In this way they became acquainted with many Scottish settlers in the Lockhart district and gradually began trading in the town of

Mr and Mrs Porter worked hard by today's standards making cows and separating the milk raising poultry and seeding a few acres of the hilly soil to produce enough grain for the livestock. Mr Porter farmed with horses and a walking plow at first. Although they were both middle-aged by the time they came to Canada, he pumped water by hand every morning for the livestock and for household use They made their living as most other people did then, from the sale of their eggs and cream and some pigs or cattle. They also went by horse and bug Rimbey once a week to shop, a distance of about 14 miles However, even though they had been used to modern machinery and city living they never thought of themselves as pioneers, for the many neighbors around them had been here many years earlier

The daughter, Norah, married Mr Jim Shorrock of the Gilby district in 1923, and this union gave them three grandchildren. Mrs Porter remained happy and quite well until only a year before she passed away in 1945 at the age of 76 years. Mr [illegible] remained [illegible] at home, and in good health and mind for a few years before coming to live at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Shorrock. He passed away suddenly in December, 1950, at the age of 86. Mr and Mrs Porter are both buried at the Rimbey cemetery, leaving three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren as well as seven great great-grandchildren at the present time

REIDLINGER, JOHN — by Clydie Both

Mr John Reidlinger was married to Lydia Steinvandt in North Dakota, U.S.A in 1914 They were both born and raised in North Dakota They came to "Sunny" Alberta shortly after their marriage and farmed near Medicine Hat, until moving to the town of Medicine Hat in 1924 Here John worked whenever he could find employment. They had nine children while living in and around Medicine Hat

Mr and Mrs Joe Reidlinger

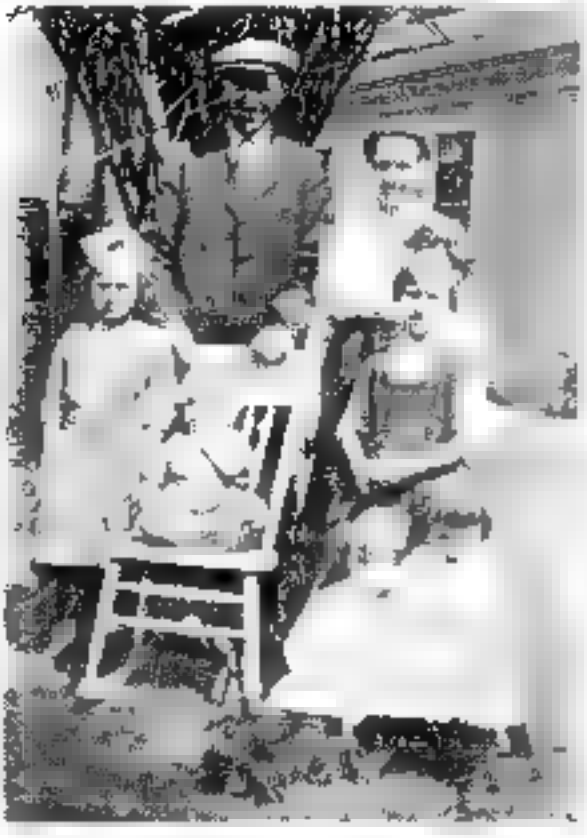
We left Medicine Hat in the "hungry thirties" and, along with five other families, moved west of Lerdale Our farm was about 11 miles west We came out on the "$800 Plan." This money had to buy everything - two horses, one cow, a wagon, machinery, and another $800 was what we have to live on. Some months we had $10 and I also remember sometimes it was only $5. From this amount we had to buy 200 pounds of flour per month, and whatever was left was spent for other necessities. We surely learned to live off of the land! Getting to school was not easy, either We had to walk four miles to the Aurora School while in Medicine Hat we had had to go only two blocks.

All six of the families moved into the Indian Cabins, which were two miles from the farm They all traveled back and forth every day

The Indian Cabins had sod roofs and dirt floors. When it rained we had pots and pans set out everywhere to catch the drip. Dad found a frame house closer to our farm, and we then lived in this until we got our log house finished enough to move into it. We still had dirt floors in part of the house when we moved in!

In later years, when most of the family had left home, Dad built another house, but Mother never lived to enjoy it She died of cancer in May 1951, at the age of 59 years. She was buried in the Rimbey Cemetery Dad never went back to the farm to live, and later sold it to Hugh Halliday

Dad lived in a granary on Percy Thomas's farm for a year or so, then built himself a little house on a corner of a quarter owned by his daughter, Clydie, and her husband, Irvin Both in the Andrew area north of Eckville He lived here for a number of years, but eventually went to the Senior Citizen's Lodge in Lacombe, in Rocky Mountain House, and in Sylvan Lake, where he would spend the winter, but come home to his own house in the summers. He always enjoyed a little farming if he could drive the John Deere tractor



Joe and Lydia Reidlinger and five children.

Dad passed away with a heart attack in the Sylvan Lake Lodge in March of 1969 at the age of 78 years. He is buried beside Mother in the Rimbey Cemetery

Mother and Dad had nine children. The first was Martha, who died when she was one and one half years old

Elizabeth was married to Jack Shubert, and they had five children. They have now retired and are living in Rimbey

Eddie passed away in an accident and also is buried in the Rimbey Cemetery

Ida married James Ferguson and they have six children, three of whom are married. They all live in Alberta. Jim and Ida have now retired to Eckville, after having farmed in the Benjamin area for many years

I (Clydie) married Irvin Both and we have five children. All except the youngest one are now married. Irvin and I farmed in the Andrew area for 38 years, but are now enjoying our retirement in Eckville

Alma was married to Milton Johnson. They have six children, all now married and living in various parts of Alberta. In later years Alma and Milton were divorced, and Alma is now married to Martin Sewchuk. They live in Red Deer and both of them are working there

Laurence married Anne Lippert. They have four children. One girl was married recently but the rest are still single and most of them live in Calgary. Laurence spent some time in active duty overseas in 1945. He was wounded and was forced to spend some time in the hospital there. Laurence and Anne still live in Calgary

Joe married Marie Focher. After living in Calgary for a time, they moved to British Columbia in 1951 and are living in Vernon, B.C. at the present time. Two of their children are married and the youngest is now working in Calgary. Joe was overseas in 1945, and spent about 13 months in active duty

Florence married John McGlynn and they lived in Pincher Creek until Florence passed away in 1965. They had three children, the oldest one now being married. The two younger children live in Prince George, B.C.

Alfred married Julie Kramer and they have one child, not yet married. They all are living in Calgary

TAYLOR, GEORGE NICHELUS AND ADA BELLE — by May Koski

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Taylor emigrated from the state of Iowa to Alberta in 1905 to Morningside, and when spring arrived they all, including baby boy Myron Robert, born at Morningside in February, moved to Link Boyer's place temporarily, while Mr. Taylor put up a sod roofed shack on his homestead, S.E. 30-41-3-W5, 16 miles north of Eckville, or four and one-half miles southeast of Leedale, at this time called Wittenburg, but was renamed Leedale at the end of World War I, 1918. Mr. Taylor's reason for the move to Alberta was that they had a great deal of pioneer spirit, also to find a place with an abundance of wood, grass and sparkling water, needless to say they found all three.

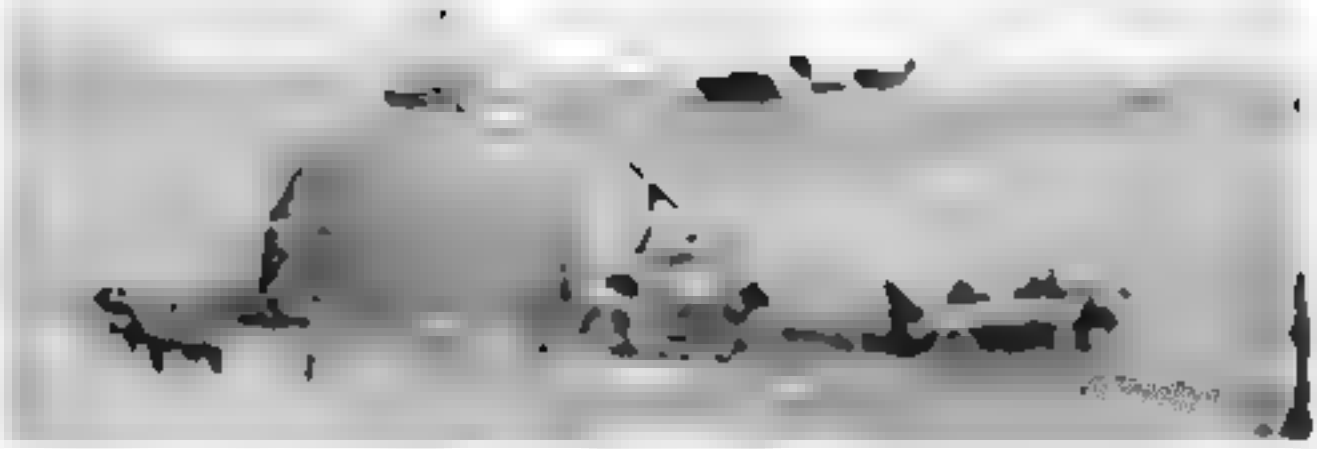
When Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and family moved from Morningside to the Boyer place the first week of March 1906 the weather was very cold, around 42 degrees below zero. They were there three days, and on the evening of the third day upon retiring, the bitter cold was still around, however, at five a.m., when Mr. Taylor awakened it was so "hot" he thought the house was on fire, the snow was melting and there was water all around the place. An explanation of the heat wave was a welcome "Chinook" wind that had blown in, but who at that time as a new comer to Alberta had ever heard of such a thing.

Most all the land in that area was heavy timber and Mr. Taylor's was no exception. The trees had to be grubbed out by hand, with axe and grub hoe, then piled one by one with the help of a horse and logging cabin into piles, and later burned and after that the land was ready for breaking with a breaking plow, then with a disc, then harrows, and in turn could be seeded to wheat, oats, barley or a large garden which was a must. Mr. Taylor was one of the first ratepayers to hold a meeting for the forming of a school district and acted as a member of the first board of trustees, consisting of himself, Orsen



Archer and Frank Benjamin. Mr Taylor held office off and on for many years. The new school was built in 1908 and named Benjamin School District No. 1586. Mr Taylor with his mule team named Tim and Jack, which he brought from Iowa 1905, hauled the bricks for the school chimney from Lacombe over trails that hadn the slightest resemblance to a road. He also acted as Poll Clerk for the first election held in Medicine Valley, the Polling station being in the home of Ernest Dahl. Some of the teachers at Benjamin were D. M. Layton "Peggy" Macdonald, Mr Trenholm, Lydia Sestrap, Ola Kingsep, Miss Edmonds, Muriel Craig, Eva Toma, Olive Heffren, Edith Smith, William Fraser, Ed Dowling, Blanche Wallace, Ethel Hyde, Margaret Ross, Inez Johnson, Dora Wingate, Jean Beddoes and Miss Johnson in 1913 from Markerville.

Mr Taylor was exceptionally good with sickness and always willing during the pioneer days, when the nearest doctor was at Lacombe and the only means of travel was horse and buggy or sleigh. G.N. as he was better known often assisted at the bedside of a sick neighbor or his child and his services were helpful and very

Mr Taylor followed farming all his life but in 1910 he also took up auctioneering, and cried his first sale in the spring of that year, and had many successful sales in the years that followed his last sale was in 1939 for Mr John Johnson of the Eckville area. In the early days there were no bridges across rivers, so on each trip to Lacombe the rivers had to be forded (if they were not frozen). On one such trip Mr Taylor had a man passenger with him and when they the mule team, wagon, and supplies were in mids ream the passenger got so scared because of the rising water, that he grabbed the lines from Mr Taylor and in doing so pulled the mules heads too high and in turn their forelegs were striking the neck yoke and all were near drowning for a fearful minute. G.N hurriedly got the lines back from the passenger and gave the mules their heads, and all were pulled safely

Mrs Ada Taylor was always a willing worker and in summer when the wild fruit was plentiful, she picked and preserved literally hundreds of quarts, consisting of raspberries blueberries, and strawberries. In 1922 the Taylor family was milking five cows and shipping cream to the Rimbey creamery. The butter maker at that time used their cream to make butter to enter in the Canadian National Exhibition Toronto. His entry won first prize. He repeated the same type of entry another year though the date is uncertain and won first prize a second time. Taylor's sod roof shack was soon replaced with a two story log house and it was their home until 1928 when they built a three story frame house and it is still standing in good shape after nearly 50 years. The house is unoccupied at present. Their grandson Mac Taylor owns the home place. In the depression years 1929 to 1941 the younger generation in all walks of life had a hard time finding work or making a career for themselves. However three of the Taylor children were able to learn music and play several instruments, after which they started Taylor's orchestra and played for dances in the area, for many years to come. The instruments and who played them were: George on the piano and saxophone, May on the violin and trumpet, Glen on the drums and George dad on, as he always said the genuine buffalo bones for rhythm. After several years with the orchestra, Glen met Margaret Johnstone and they were married. Their family formed a band called Dad Taylor's Silver Notes. The Taylors' musical background seemed to be an inherited gift.

Some Sunday evenings in winter, the neighbor boys would come to visit and have supper with us, and if the hunters were lucky that afternoon wild prairie chicken was on the table but more often it would be roast pork and homemade sauerkraut. Mrs. Taylor was known to make the best 'kraut for miles around. On one memorable occasion Dustin Hamilton dropped by and as most would remember, he had a good sense of humor and in no time he had us all laughing He asked for the Eaton s catalogue then cut out two or three pictures of men and women modelling the underwear en pasted the models on slightly heavier paper and cut them out again, now they were like puppets, he would then manipulate them very ar fistically just in front of candlelight or low kerosene lamp He called it a Lantern Slide show It really was a rib tickler, amusing and free. Cards were a good pastime. rummy and whist made a winter evening pass quickly

Our family owned two model T Fords. The first one was a 1921 model On one occasion we started for the Benalto Stampede and Fair on a very hot day in July in 1922 Everything went very well until we were two miles from Benalto. hen suddenly the left front tire went flat The boys and Dad got it fixed in no time and off we went. After going only another half mile or so. the other front tire went flat Now once again the tire patching kit was hauled out and the "rut ng" over the hole on the inner tube the stickum and then the patch put very carefully over the hole, then the tube was put back in the tire and pumped up with a hand pump. The tire was bolted back on the car and away we went, but not ery far We had a third flat and this time we were only about a half mile from Benalto. Now the repair kit came out again, only this time the supply was much less However there was just enough to repair the last flat. It seemed to take a lot longer to fix the third flat as all I could think of was pretty balloons and ice cream. Litterly hundreds of fair going folks were passing us in all kinds of buggies, wagons, T Fords and bicycles, and even some on foot. At last we got here and it was a grand day at the fair We made it back home in the wee hours of the morning without another flat tire. Mr Johnny Armstrong was one of the Stampede directors in the 1920's His home place was south of Eckville

In 1925 the Taylor family purchased a Mogul one cylinder tractor It was a heavy type machine in those days. The flywheel itself was over four feet in diameter The engineer put his left foot on the bottom of it and hands at the top gripping and pulling, the body weight would pull it around until the engine started The Mogul rate of speed was under four miles an hour In 1926 they purchased a 28 inch Case threshing machine and did custom threshing in the Medicine Valley for many neighbors and in 1927 hey had 28 days straight of non-stop threshing weather. In 1928 they purchased a new John Deere tractor to replace the Mogul, however they put the Mogul as stationary power to run the grain grinder to make chop. The horses on the farm were brought from Iowa except one buckskin pony, named Buck that Mr Taylor bought from someone around Gilby in 1907 then sold him to Mr John Kenna at Eckville in 1912, but bought him back one year later When Mr Kenna owned him he put Buck with another pony on the mail haul between Eckville, Gilby and Whitenburg After Mr Taylor purchased Buck the second time he kept him until he died in 1934 at the age of 32 years. I might add that we had a dog named Tip for 18 years. Also I have fond memories growing up with Buck and Tip

The stock market was poor in the 1930's. I recall raising two pigs and when they were sold at proper weight one brought $5.00 and the other $3.00 I recall spending some of the money for silk material to make a dress Now for price comparison from then to now, 1977 Three pounds of pork roast costs more now than a whole pig sold for in 1930

Mr George Taylor was born near Laporte Iowa December 29, 1875. He died January, 1941 at his home He attended school at Jessup, Iowa and was reared in the Methodist faith. At age 24 he married Ada Belle Sankey July 24, 1899 of Littleton, Iowa She was born April 28, 1877 and died September 30, 1962 at Red Deer General Hospital. She also was raised in the Methodist faith. They raised seven children, and there are now 89 living descendants of George and Ada Belle Taylor

James and Martha Teed came to the Ben lamin district in 1934 from Abbey Saskatchewan. They lived on the quarter section of land now owned by Lee Both, and they owned the NE 10-41 31 W5. They later sold this land to Jim Ferguson, but it is presently owned by Gaylord Schofer Mr Teed farmed for a few years with horses, and then Mrs Teed suffered a stroke and passed away in 1936

Irvin Both met Mr Teed one day about the middle of May in 1939. They got to talking and Irvin asked Mr Teed over for Sunday dinner That was the first time I met him When Mr Teed got an idea he worked on it in a hurry I really don't know how it came about but Dad Teed (as we soon called him) moved in with us before the next weekend

He was always busy doing something different One year he planted a bunch of turnips and chopped them up for cow feed. The cows surely liked them too! One day Gertie Fizer and I (Clydie) went out to pick berries. Gertie, having no overalls, wore a pair of Dad Teed's When we got home he had her dress on. We certainly had to have a picture of them!

Granddad Teed, as our children called him, made his home from 1939 until he entered the Rimbey Auxiliary Hospital about 1965, with us near Irvin and Clydie Both and Gaylord and Gertie Fizer No related grandfather was ever loved and respected by his grandchildren more than he was, although childless himself, he was a wonderful man with children

During one of his stays with us (the Fizers) he constructed a block house. He piled hand sawn blocks the way you would stack stove wood and plastered it inside and out with a mud mixture like plaster This was in 1948, when he was 76 years of age While constructing this, one day he was cutting poplar logs not far from our house The weather was quite warm and as Dad Teed always wore woolen underwear it became too hot for him. We had all left home for the day, but had visiting us, saw that he was working in his underwear so she snapped a picture. Dad, who usually had a remarkable sense of humor, just didn't appreciate it one bit! He had the house almost completed when he decided to go back and live with Irvin and Clydie Both and family

Mr Teed was a gifted entertainer and played the violin for hours at a time until rheumatism affected his hands in his later years He was a wonderful spinner of tales and had a host of amusing monologues that kept both adults and children in stitches, no matter how often they had heard him perform them. I remember one little boy who laughed so hard that he fell off his chair

We moved into Rimbey from the country in 1957 and Dad Teed moved in with us to stay about 1963. He went into the Rimbey Auxiliary Hospital in 1965. His one great ambition in his later years was to return to the province of his birth Nova Scotia but he never realized it He passed away in 1967 at the grand old age of 95 years

VIPOND HISTORY

In the summer of 1929, Fred and Florence Vipond of Nakusp, B.C. arrived for a visit at the Rene Steeves farm in the Lochart district Mr Steeves had worked for Fred in Fred's lumber camp in British Columbia previously and had told the Viponds a lot about this part of Alberta Fred helped Rene seed his crop. He and Florence liked the country and they wanted to settle somewhere where Marg had a school to attend They bought a half section from the C P R. in the Benjamin district — E 17-41-3-W5. It had 50 acres broke on the north quarter and 15 acres on the south Rene agreed to plow and summerfallow it that year and the Viponds returned to Nakusp Fred contracted to log a million board feet of white pine logs off his timber limit across the lake from Nakusp. The following spring they loaded a box car with their lumber and personal belongings and moved to Alberta. They spent the summer on the Steeves farm living in a newly built chicken coop. The men planted the two crops, then built a house and had a well drilled on the Vipond farm so that the family could move in. Fred arranged to store his box car of lumber at Rimbey and what he didn't need, he sold Some of it he delivered by team and wagon as far away as Eckville. One batch he traded for a milk

The nearest neighbors consisted of the Bill Guests and Wingates to the north Pryce Andrew and McTighes to the south. They were all good neighbors. The 1930 crop was a bumper wheat crop but the price fell from $1.20 a bu. to $.30 a bu. That was the start of the depression Fred remembers a time when the price of a hog wouldn't cover the freight charge Times were tough but they stuck it out and kept clearing land until 260 acres were cleared. Florence taught piano lessons to many young people in the

Marg took her schooling at Benjamin Jean and Ethel were born in the late thirties and also attended school there until Grade 8. They were among those who had the excitement of moving to the "new" school when it was moved in To have a school with a basement and furnace was really something after the drafty old school. Kids would bring jars of hot chocolate, soup or stew and heat them up in a tub of water on the wood stove in the basement High school was possible attend when school buses started running to

Fred was a school trustee at various times They got hooked for various jobs besides hiring and firing the teachers Wood and coal had to be hauled to the school and boarding places for the teacher had to be found. So it was one day when Fred and another trustee were cleaning out the school barn, they noticed smoke to the east of the school. They quickly drove towards it to discover

ing. The neighbors got busy with tractors and put the old Layton home on skids and hauled it across the frozen fields to Mogen sons' farm. It provided them with a home until they could build a new one

Most of the social life was carried on at the school. Whist parties, dances, talent shows box socials, bridal showers, sports days and Christmas concerts were some of them The McTigh family had the only big skating rink around the neighborhood for a time. Skating parties and hockey were enjoyed. They put up a rink shack and sold hot dogs and chocolate bars. Florence was a member of the Benjamin Get-together Club. Marg joined C G.I T Jean and Ethel sometimes attended the Vacation Bible School that came to the school during the summer

Improvements were added to the community during the years. Electricity came to the farm in 1951 and gravelled roads and telephones

Marg married and left the farm in 1943 Jean and Ethel left about 1956 and took training in Edmonton Jean as an X-ray technician and Ethel as a teacher Marg has a family of five She is now a widow and works as a computer operator for Toronto Dominion Bank. Jean married Lawrence Takkinen, a diesel inspector for C P Rail. They live in Cranbrook. B.C with their two sons Ethel married Les Meyers and they live in Edmonton with their family of three

Fred and Florence retired from farming in 1963. They bought a home in Eckville and found it a friendly place to live The family lost their wife and mother in 1972 in a losing battle with cancer

Now — Dad's own words — I then lived alone in our home for three years. Then I got tired of batching and enrolled in the Old Age Manor Home and sold my house I find the life here with the other pensioners more agreeable than living alone and batching. This home is well run, we are well fed and looked after

VON TETTENBORN FAMILY

In May 1929, Bernard Carl Baron von Tettenborn arrived at the farm of Paul Broderson Leedale At 22 years of age he had left his native Germany to try to recoup the family fortune lost in the runaway inflation and depression following World War I. He worked for Paul Broderson. later for Bill Broderson to learn Canadian farming methods and save money towards buying a farm of his own He was just in time to share in the "dirty thirties", the depression which had become world wide. At Leedale he met his future wife Alma Eriksland, who was then teaching the Leedale School

In the spring of 1932, Bernard von Tettenborn bought the south half of 35-41-3-W5 in the extreme north east of the Benjamin District In fact the east quarter was in the Symonds District This was C P R land, completely raw and covered with trees. This seemed a bargain at six dollars an acre, but proved to be very expensive in time lost and human effort expended In October 13, 1933 Bernard and Alma were married.

Through hard work and thrift other lands were added. In 1944 a quarter one and one half miles north was bought from Charlie Arrowsmith. This was known as the Old Mowbray quarter one of the oldest homesteads in the district. In 1951 the NW 35 41-3-4-W5 was bought from Mr Bileski In June 1933 this was owned by a Mr Bucknall later farmed by Felix Matthews of Eckville, then owned by Elmer Olson, who sold it to Bileski

In 1940 a start was made in Red Poll cattle A considerable herd was built up but discontinued in 1960, as the work involved was too much for the owner's health. The struggle to get ahead in the years of low farm prices is too well known to enlarge on here. We were all in the same boat, but youth, good health and warm hearted neighbors made our life here a pleasant one borns on this farm. In December 1934 their first son Bernard Carl arrived. In February 1936 their daughter Iris Maria. In September 1946 Elizabeth Anne. In December 1950 Linda Irene and in January 1953 Mark Alexander. The son Bernard now farms at Round Hill. Iris married a Lutheran minister and now lives in Victoria B.C. Betty Anne now Angus lives in Toronto. She got her B.A. from Carlton University in 1968, now has completed her thesis for a master's degree in Psychology and at present is working toward her doctorate. Linda graduated from the University of Alberta in 1972 with a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing. Linda married Ron Prefontaine in 1975 and now lives in Moose Jaw where she is on the supervisory staff at one of the hospitals. Mark married Sandra Hill in 1975 has his journeyman's papers in machining and now lives and works at Hinton.

Alma von Tettenborn taught at various schools during the teacher shortage. The winter of 1942 and 1943 she taught the Benjamin School. This proved to be one of the coldest winters. A picture of the school and pupils of this time is being sent. Many of these children are now grandparents.

The fall of 1968 was one of those rainy snowy ones, difficult harvesting. On November 4, 1968 Bernard von Tettenborn senior died of a heart attack while struggling with the harvest. His wife Alma continued farming for a few years hiring the work done, until her youngest had graduated from High School and launched out on his own. Then she rented the land to the Hutterites. After living for a time in Rimbey she now resides in Red Deer.

WETTSTEIN, EMIL AND FAMILY

Emil was born in Zurich, Switzerland in 1934. He came to Canada in 1955 first settling in Ontario. In May 1956 he moved to Alberta and worked on different ranches in the southern part of the province. In July 1967 he married Sheila Gambue Synak who moved to Calgary from her birthplace Brantford, Ontario, and together with her boys, Michael born 1961 and Christopher born 1962, they moved to Beiseker Alberta. In 1969 Katherine was born in Calgary and on July 1 of that same year the family moved to the Stewart Chappell place where they lived and Emil worked for Phil Fach on a share arrangement on the cattle with an agreement to purchase the farm. On December 6 the house they lived in at Chappell's was moved to the farm south of Glen Taylor's place. There was very little snow at that time in December. The family joined in the community affairs and took part in Christmas concerts, picnics and social affairs at the Benjamin School with Emil contributing his Swiss yodeling as entertainment at different times. In February 1970 Sheila joined the Benjamin Ladies Get Together Club taking part in their activities. In 1972 a group of ladies in the Benjamin District got together to form The West Country Art Club and Sheila was their first instructor teaching basics in drawing and oils. Living had seven years instruction in Ontario and also having won a scholarship from A. Y. Jackson of the Group of Seven who was the honorary president of the Art Club she belonged to in Ontario. In 1974 James was born which added one more to the Wettstein family. In 1975 they traded the quarter just east of the Oster camp quarter to the Hutterites for Glen Taylor's home quarter giving them the east half of Sec

WINGATE, FRANK AND FAMILY -- submitted by Ada Brooks

Frank Wingate was born on April 23, 1881 in Worchestershire, England. At the age of 21 he came to Canada sailing on the same boat as Mr. Bill Guest and worked as a farm laborer in Manitoba in 1902. Then he went on to Vancouver and to Revelstoke, B.C. There he worked in the mines. He received many recommendations for his faithful service. He came east taking up a homestead in 1905 which later became known as the Benjamin District. Frank and Wallace Stevenson came together from Arrowhead B.C. after receiving a letter from Duncan Layton telling them of the homesteads that were available. George Fraser was also working in the mill at Arrowhead. Frank homesteaded the NE20-41-3 W5 and Wallace Stevenson the NW22-41-3-W5. They helped each other build cabins where they lived and batched together. At that time they had to clear land to put up buildings and blaze trails to travel on.

There were many wild animals lynx cougars, wolves and bears they had to watch out for. They mostly traveled on foot sometimes riding horseback. Their nearest post office was Lacombe. Many times they walked this distance for their mail and groceries. In places they had to walk under branches that spread out over the trails. After walking under a branch one day they noticed a lynx was sitting out on it. In 1906 George Taylor moved into the district so he helped blaze many of the old trails. He settled on a homestead north west of Frank's.

Frank Wingate enlisted when the first World War broke out in 1914 and served four years overseas in the 49th Battalion. After Armistice was signed, Frank was married to Ada Edridge of Norfolk, England on November 19, 1918. He returned to Canada in the spring of 1919 bringing his wife with him. They stayed at the home of Bill Guest's in Clive the rest of the year, coming out occasionally to make improvements on his homestead. The Bill Guests came out later and settled on the south east of section 20. During the years Frank was overseas a bush fire swept through and burnt his homesteading cabin and barn.

On Frank and Ada's move from Clive to the Reed place, the former George Guest, farm they made Lacombe the first day but their trek from there took three days because of a detour they had to make by Bentley. The water in places came up to the wheel hubs. Frank had four horses pulling and one tied behind. They couldn't buy any hay as there was none to buy so had to feed them oats that he had bought in Clive. The Wingates lived on the Reed place until Frank was able to build another house on the homestead. Drinking water was a problem so Ada had to carry it for almost a mile from a spring on the south west of section 20. They were able to use water from ponds and rain barrels for washing purposes. Ada was fearful of Indians during her first few years as she had never seen one until she came to Canada.

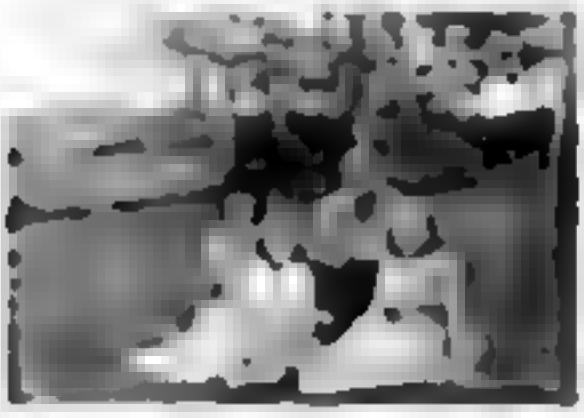
Their only son James Francis was born on the 8th of November 1920 at the Ran Steves' home at Lockhart. James still lives and farms the original homestead in the Benjamin District. They also had eight daughters losing Jessie in April 1937 at the age of seven weeks from a whooping cough epidemic that year. The other girls are Ada Marion Brooks of Lesliеville, Irene Winnifred Conrad of Yakima, Washington, Elsie May Engen of Erkville, Ivy Beele Roe of Red Deer, Mary Louise Mantle of Sherwood Park



Edmonton, Joan Isobel Kraft of Sicamous, B.C. and Doris Mae Rowland of Olds.

In the summer of 1932 the Wingates were able to build a new house. The carpenter was Alex Ferguson. He walked to and fro from his home which was about three and one half miles one way. We were able to move into it the early part of that winter. This house is still in the same place. The old one is still being used for a

In the winter months of the earlier years Frank helped take out corduroy to make roads through swampy places. Many animals were lost in bog holes in the swamps and quick sand in the creek. Animals fed on the open range during the summer months and so many miles were walked through heavy bush land looking for cows especially if it were stormy weather. There were times they wouldn't be found until the next morning unless they came home on their own. Range pasturing ended when herd law came into existence so this meant the size of the herds had to be reduced. After threshing was done and the green feed hauled in from the fields the animals were then turned in to pasture. Farming was done by horses until the early fifties on the Wingate farm when Jim purchased his first tractor. The horses were then retired to easier work for awhile.

When growing up we had only the bare necessities. food was plain and often not much of that. At times we would be pretty hungry so it was very tempting to pick up a crust of bread or sandwich that had been thrown on the ground by some other boy or girl at school. Second hand clothes were a welcome sight. I was always a happy girl when Jessie and Mary Layton outgrew their dresses as they'd be passed on to me. Then of course when I outgrew them they'd be passed on down to my sisters as long as there was anything left of them. Mother used to make our underclothes and nightgowns out of flour and sugar bags. When I was 12 years old Mother shortened her wedding dress for me to wear to the Christmas Concert. Food was home grown, flour and porridge were ground from whe... Soap was made from the fat from the animals that were butchered. For a change Mom used to boil whole wheat it took two or three days of boiling before it was soft enough to eat but it sure tasted good with milk and sugar. They only bought things that couldn't be grown or made.

There were many years of hard times but everyone went through them together helping each other even in time of sickness. Doctors were only called when the illness was serious and before cars were available babies were delivered at home with the aid of a midwife. The first five Wingate children were born at home. I just thank God for the good neighbours and friends that we had who were always there when needed to help assist in anyway. Many are gone now but not forgotten. To those that are still living I thank you. May God bless you all.

Our dear Mother passed away December 11 1960 after a lengthy illness. Before her death she said she was glad she had experienced hard times and had no regrets as they made her appreciate the easier years more

Our Dad continued to live on the farm until the late 60's when he moved to Devon Lodge in Lacombe living there and batching for four or five years. He then moved to the Senior Citizens Home also in Lacombe where he only spent a short time as he had the misfortune to fall and break his hip which hospitalized him for much time in the Red Deer and Lacombe hospitals. He was then moved to the nursing home in Lacombe where he still lives and is confined to the wheel chair. WITTENBERG CREAMERY — research by Mary Kilpatrick

This is the story about a creamery that was located on the north west corner of the NW 23-41 4 W5. All the information that has been gathered on this business is what has been told by many old timers who remember it. Apparently the creamery was operating in 1907 and ran from that time until about 1914. The creamery was built by Elijah Bradshaw who formed a company. The name of the company was "Wittenberg Creamery". The building was situated east and west, perhaps about 60 or 70 feet long with a peaked roof and there was a lean to built on the south side which ran the full length of the building. This part held the steam boiler and punched well. Located in the middle of the main part of the building was the cooler room. This room had thick double walls which were packed with sawdust and ice was used as the cooling agent. After Bradshaw left and other people moved onto the farms nearby some continued to use the cool room. Ice most likely was gotten from the Medicine River and hauled and placed in this room with sawdust packed around it to keep it from melting.

In the early days many of the settlers did not own such a thing as a cream separator so after the milk was strained it was put in containers called vessels. These vessels were taken to a cool place, such as a root cellar and left there for a couple of days to let the cream rise. The cream by this time would be on top of the milk and it would be skimmed off with a skimmer. This was a flat scoop with tiny little holes in it. This would let the milk through and hold the cream. When the pioneers had enough cream to ship they would take it to a collecting place in their district where a sample of cream was put into a small bottle with their name on it. The cream was then weighed and recorded, then dumped into a large barrel which had two handles on each side of it and then two men would lift it up into a wagon and it was hauled to the creamery. The cream would be pretty well churned by the time it got to the creamery due to the roughness of the trails and the jolting of the wagon. There was only one grade and it did not matter if the cream was sweet or sour. This cream came from as far away as the Rimbey and Eckville districts.

A Mr. Light ran this creamery and it has also come to the writers attention that grain was also ground at the creamery.

After the creamery had closed down the building was used for many years as a granary and barn for livestock and in about 1947 John Playfair bought the quarter and the building was torn down by John Warneke about this time too

ANDERSON, CHARLES ADOLPH — by Elsie Heikkinen

Charles Anderson was born in Thompson Minnesota, U.S.A. on September 30, 1885. His parents had emigrated from Finland in the mid 1800's. He married Lillie (Elina) F. Bodie of Duluth, Minnesota in 1905. She was born there on May 9, 1889. They had two sons born to them Harold in 1906 and Clarence in 1909, with whom they journeyed to Canada in the year 1910, and settled in the prairie province of Alberta 50 miles south of Medicine Hat.

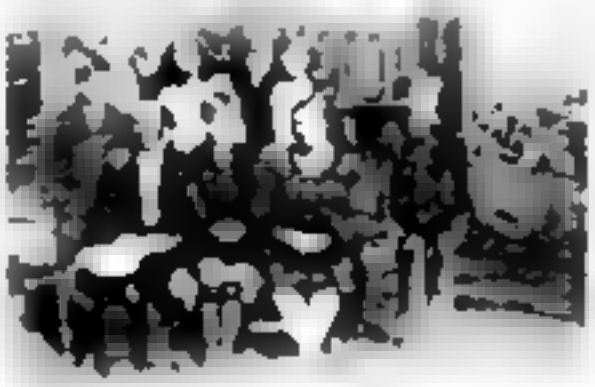
Frank Anderson (my grandfather) had immigrated to Alberta earlier to file on homesteads. Lillie Anderson's parents, Mike and Anna Bodie were already settled near the town of Manyberries, Alberta (named for the variety of wild berries growing there) and which also turned out to be the Anderson's post office as they settled nine miles north east of this town.

They were industrious and happy people with a wonderful community spirit and their toils were rewarded with fields of golden wheat, number one quality. The fields, however turned to dust when the drought hit in the early 1920's. After many crop failures, Mr. Anderson was forced to abandon the land and took advantage of the "free rail transportation" given by the government to prairie farmers.

In the early spring of 1925 they loaded livestock, machinery and household effects into box cars, and travelled by train to the town of Eckville, Alberta, where former neighbors, the Jack Macky's, had already settled and were in readiness for them.

In the meantime, Mr. Anderson found a shack and some pasture land to rent along the railroad track, a few miles west of Eckville, for the first stop-over. Later he found the Cloninger farm then for rent in the Hespero area, directly across from the Shady Lane school (which has since been moved). Those attending school there were Elsie, Wilburt, Hazel and Melvin. The teachers during those years were Miss M[illegible]ar, Miss Foss, Miss Burnett and Miss Hazel Johnson. The highlight of the year was a hilarious Christmas Concert, with an over-capacity crowd in attendance.

In 1928 Mr. Cloninger passed away and the farm was sold. As a move again was inevitable, a house for rent was found a mile north of Eckville, belonging to Mr. Forhan Sr., druggist at Eckville. A lovely year was spent there; the neighbors and people as a whole were very hospitable.



[illegible]

Mr. Anderson again was fortunate in getting Jack Simpson's farm near Benalto, for rent and moved there in the spring of 1929. At that time many families travelled to Russia, and Mr. Anderson got the urge, too, thinking of bettering their life and in May of 1933 left with his wife Lillie, and four youngest sons, Wilburt, Melvin, Richard and Raymond. The first part of their [illegible] via Minnesota, U.S.A. to visit relatives then on to Montreal, where they boarded the ship for Russia. They found the ocean trip very exciting but upon reaching their destination they were to find it to be a lot different than what they had anticipated.

They returned to Alberta in the Christmas season of 1936, and great was the rejoicing to be together with their family again. Their only regret was that Wilbur and Melvin had to remain. However, Melvin traveled back home to Alberta in 1938. That same year Mr. Anderson leased, with option to buy, some Hudson Bay land in the Sunset Hills area. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson then settled down to farming in earnest, with their three sons.

Richard (Dick) eventually took a job with Mr. G. Sterling in the Revelstoke Lumber and Hardware business in Benalto, Alberta, and enlisted in the Air Force as a ground crew mechanic in 1939. He was stationed in several places before being transferred overseas, where he only served a short time due to the war ending on June 6, 1945.

Mr. Anderson got a sudden impulse to build a sauna (steam bath) at Sylvan Lake, which took shape in the summer of 1947, built by his son-in-laws with help from himself and his sons. It proved to be a very successful enterprise and he operated it with the help of his wife until 1954 when he passed away with a heart ailment on November 17 at the age of 69 years. This was his first time ever to have been hospitalized.

In spite of arthritis, Mrs. Lillie Anderson is still in fairly good health and has enjoyed living at the Eckville Manor House for the past year. She was one of the first residents when the lodge was opened in March, 1976. She celebrated her 88th birthday this year. Her radiant smile conceals her age, however, so that one would never

The children of Charles and Lillie Anderson are as follows:

Harold married Edith Andla of Hespero in 1929 and remained home to help farm that year. They then moved to Oras, Alberta, where their son was born. In 1934 a daughter was born, but died in infancy. They moved to Calgary in 1942 where Harold was engaged in carpentry work until he retired in 1971. He then built a large new home at Oliver, B.C., but didn't have much time to enjoy it as he passed away with cancer in 1975. They have one grandchild.

Clarence married Anne Huhtala of Benalto, Alberta, in 1933 and settled on their farm directly across from the Benalto highway entrance. Farming was his life, but in the instance of his mother's being widowed, and not keen on operating the steam bath by herself, he decided to sell the farm to Mr. Alfred Wohler in 1955. He and his wife took over the Steam Bath and set Mother up in a little house of her own close by. In the fall Clarence would hire out at harvest time, his beloved work, and his wife would operate the steam bath, which they did successfully until 1963, when he sold out to his brother Dick. They retired to a home in Rocky Mountain House. They have one son and one daughter and seven grandchildren. Clarence passed away with a heart condition in the fall of 1972, still in the process of helping others do their harvesting.

Elsie worked for Mrs. Minnie Buchanan in 1932 when highway number 11 was graveled, and the crew lodged with Mrs. Buchanan. This was a busy time for the Benalto Hotel. Elsie eventually went to work for Mrs. Emma Kinna, in the Red and White Store and Post Office next door for several years. Wanting a taste of city life, she took housework later with an early pioneer family of Edmonton, the Richard Secords. He had been one of the first teachers of Strathcona, South Edmonton. In Edmonton in 1936 Elsie was married to Ted Hiekkinen of Benalto. Ted was then buying grain in Gadsby, Alberta, for the Alberta Pacific Grain Company and was transferred to Benalto, where we settled to live. One funny incident stands out from our courtship days. When Ted was in Benalto and I was in Edmonton, he had phoned me to come out on the bus, but I was reluctant, as his sister was sick and I wanted to stay and help her, which he wasn't too pleased about, and likely told me to "Stay there then." His sister decided that I had better go in the morning, so I took the bus and got as far as Leduc, when, surprisingly, I was paged and a message from Ted instructed me to go back to Edmonton, as he had arrived here on the early train. Ted gave up grain buying in 1939 when we moved onto our farm at Oras, Alberta. We remained there until 1941 when we moved to Calgary, as Ted was engaged in carpentry work. In the meantime we sold our Oras farm and bought a quarter at the west end of Sylvan Lake. We came back to Benalto in 1946 to live, and are still here, retired now. We are blessed with three sons, three daughters, and 13 grandchildren.

has one son and a new grandson in the past year. He has made two visits here, one in 1968 for a stay of eight months, and again spent a year with his family here in 1976. He is retired now and they live in an apartment. Their climate is similar to that of British Columbia.

Hazel married Sivert Lien in the year 1934. He was a grain buyer for the Midland Company in Benalto. They continued to live here until he had a move to Hines Creek, Alberta. From there they moved to Sherwood Park where both were engaged in janitorial service at the school until 1964, when they moved to Campbell River, B.C. They have since retired to Westbank, B.C. They have three sons and two daughters and nine

Melvin married Helen Lund of Sylvan Lake, Alberta. They reside in Calgary where he is foreman of a carpenter crew. He has built a modern cottage at Sylvan Lake in 1975, and they spend most of their weekends there. They have a son and three daughters and three

Richard took work with the Revelstoke Lumber Company, after the war, in Brooks, Alberta. In 1949 he married Jeanne Benoit in Brooks. They moved to Drumheller temporarily and then to Dawson Creek, and in 1963 retired from that job and took over the Sylvan Lake steam bath from his brother Clarence. He operated this very successfully until 1975, when he sold out and bought a home in Salt Spring Island B.C They have a son at home and three daughters in Edmonton, Alberta, and three [redacted].

Raymond married Maila Korhonen of Eckville, Alberta in 1955. They farmed for several years on the home place, until it was sold in 1963. They then looked over property in Oliver B.C and bought a fruit orchard with a fruit stand, which they operated for some time He built a new home, and due to ill health, found the orchard work too strenuous so sold out in 1974 and built another new home in the town of Oliver B.C and is engaged in maintenance work for the area schools. They have two sons and four daughters. One of the daughters is married

BELLIKKA, ARTHUR — by Viola Bellikka

Arthur Johannes Bellikka was born on September 20, 1909 at New Ipswitch, New Hampshire, U.S.A., the son of Antti and Sara Bellikka. In 1916 he emigrated with his parents from Brandon, Minnesota to Saskatchewan later in 1916 coming to Sylvan Lake. They lived there until 1925, when they moved to Eckville Art received his schooling at Kuusamo and Marianne Schools. He learned the carpentry trade by working with his father from the time he was a young lad Art was very interested in sports all of his life He was a member of the SISU Club at Eckville His transportation during the winter was a pair of skis and in summer it was his Model T Ford

I was born on May 30, 1917 at the home of Mrs George Johnson in Sylvan Lake, who was my mother's mid wife. My parents, John and Maggie Byttymen, lived on a homestead on the north end of Sylvan Lake, our post office being Palm Bay The years of my childhood were happy years, even though we were very poor financially, which meant that I was denied my ambition to become a teacher There was just no money for tuition, or even for books I loved the outdoors and the beauties of nature I enjoyed picking wild berries, and looked forward to threshing time and to the Christmas programs at our school I received my schooling at Boyle School and at Eckville High School, then worked for various farm families for $6 to $10 a month wages. "Hired girls" were expected to do a great deal, including cooking, cleaning taking care of children feeding hogs, milking cows and doing many other things. On one of the farms the oldest son taught me to drive the tractor and when I brought his lunch to the field I was expected to continue with the plowing while he ate his lunch It was a challenge

On January 5, 1937 I married Arthur Bellikka. The first home we rented was across the road from the Eckville Cemetery. I still remember the old black flat top stove we got. It had an oven door on both sides, but it baked lovely bread. Today, it would be a valuable antique Art's father and mother gave us a milking cow for a wedding gift. She was a beautiful cow and kept us in milk cream and butter while we lived there My mother and grandmother each gave us two setting hens, so I was busy that summer with little chicks, and had very good luck with them My biggest problem was keeping the chickens out of my garden, which was my pride and joy This was a good year and by fall we had vegetables galore – even pumpkins, squash and corn

In the meantime the chickens had grown to full size, and my sister came to help me can them for winter's meat Early the next morning when we got ready for our task the aroma of skunk was overwhelming when I opened the door of the chicken house I have never forgotten the sight that met my eyes, when they became adjusted to the dark interior of the building – dead and mutilated chickens lay all over the interior! My pet Henny Penny, was still alive, so I went to pick her up, but she was so mutilated I had to put her out of her misery. This experience was the end of my chicken raising. That night I concealed a trap by the hole that had been dug the night before and the next morning I found the biggest four-legged skunk I've ever seen I've never liked shooting any animals, but this is one time I did not hesitate to get the 22 rifle. I had only one shell, so my aim had to be good – and it was My husband would not believe it, but I had left the skunk in the trap for him to take on, when he came home

Art worked on carpentry throughout the community wherever a job could be found. Wages were 20 to 25 cents an hour and there were times when he did not get paid at all. During the summer we made a covered trailer with the help of my brothers, Elmer Kuula, and Art's nephew, Ray Koskinen, who came from East Coulee to stay with us until his parents relocated in Rouyn Quebec

In the fall of 1938 we packed up the trailer and moved to the folks' place. That winter we lived at Aunt Sarah's and Uncle Charlie's place with my sister and her husband. This was a terrible winter there was no work to be had, and some days we had very little to eat. In the early spring Art and Elmer Kujala, my sister's husband, decided to get to Edmonton to see if they could get work. They had to pawn practically everything they had to keep going, but thanks to wonderful people like Jack and Mary Luoma they were able to have a room at the Fairview Hotel. One day, in desperation and determination, Art jumped over the wall around the area where the Hudson's Bay store was being built. He confronted the foreman with "Where do you want me to start?" He got put to work, so we moved our trailer to Edmonton to the South Side Trailer Court. My brother Aldo, and our dog Rover, came with us. The job lasted for a few months, then again we moved back to my folks.

The trailer was too cold to live in for the winter, so we built a two-room cottage by the lake on my father's place. To me this was a haven. We had happy times there, as our home was a meeting place for the young people of the community who came to skate and play hockey. The Palm Bay Sports Club was organized that [illegible] ry 13, 1939 the first executive [illegible] Art as president.

We slept in a tent and I cooked the meals in a granary for a crew of four men. I baked all our bread, as we had our own stove with us. After supper we would jump into the old Model T and speed out to play ball. It was great to be young!

Then things changed — on September 10, 1939 Canada declared war. I shall never forget my mother's face when she heard the news, (even though she was expecting it). She knew what it was all about, as she had already lived through one world war. My brothers all enlisted for ac[illegible]

That fall we moved our little cottage to Art's parents' place and sold it the next summer to John Vara of Eckville. We then moved to Sylvan Lake, where we lived until January, 1942. On June 27, 1940 we became the parent of a baby girl. We named her Patricia Viola — a name chosen by my great-uncle, Percy Kent, of Red Deer.

My husband had been working with Bennett & White Construction Co., building the Holsum Airport, which job was finished in August, 1942. I then returned to Sylvan Lake and on August 12, 1942 our son, James Arthur, was born in the Red Deer Hospital. My husband's work took him from Medicine Hat to Suffield, but I remained at Sylvan Lake, where we had rented a cottage from F. Bloom. Thanks to Mr. Bloom, I got my first washing machine that winter.

The winter of 1942-1943 was one of the coldest winters I can remember. I tried to get water from the town pump, but it was impossible. The snow was very deep and the temperatures dropped to 45° F. Thanks to my good friends and neighbors, the Coutts and the Balogs, I got water and fuel.

Art's work shifted to Edmonton, so in January, 1944 we moved to Edmonton, where we finally managed to purchase a lot and build a home. Art eventually left Bennett & White and went into a contracting and building company with Elmer and Dick, my brother. During the post war years materials were hard to obtain and consequently the business suffered and finally went bankrupt. It took a number of years to pay the debts, but we were used to hard times.

Art obtained a job as an appraiser for the City of Edmonton and was with the Assessor's Department until the time of his death, on June 24, 1959. The spring he died he was attending [illegible]versity, taking extension courses in real estate appraisal.

Art and I led a busy life, as we were always involved in the work and activities of our community and our church. Art served on various Boards and Councils in the City, and his interest in sports led him to coaching or managing boys' hockey teams. Remembering how he had had to repair hockey sticks for the Palm Bay Red Wings, he continually worked to get better playing conditions and equipment for the boys. I was a Cub and Scout mother, a Guide mother, an executive of the Home and School, and helped on Talent Shows for ACT. My almost 25 years of teaching Sunday School has been the greatest [illegible] most rewarding experience of my life. In [illegible] we had moved to a larger home in the Highland district, in order to be closer to junior and senior high schools. Patricia and James both graduated from Eastglen Composite High School.

Patricia returned this summer (1977) from Glendale, California, where she has made her home for the past 12 years. In 1975 she married Mario Bonilla of El Salvador, Central America.

he is continuing his schooling for a career of clothing design in Los Angeles. Pat is presently working for a law firm in Edmonton, but plans to return to university to continue her studies for her B.A. degree in Linguistics.

James married his high school sweetheart Joan O'Dell and they have three sons. Jerry age 17, Jason age 12, and Jeffrey, age 6 years. They live in Winnipeg, Manitoba where Jim is a field manager for Snap-On Tools. The boys like their father and grandfather before them are great sports enthusiast hockey being their favorite game, also.

What greater rewards could one ask of this life than to have loving children and grandchildren. My children were very fond of their grandparents, and always enjoyed visiting or staying with them, as well as having them come to live with us. Pat and Jim remember how they used to sit on Grandpa Bellikka's knee — how he used to tease them with his goatee, and he always had a bag of peppermint candies in his vest pocket. They said Grandma made the greatest flat bread riiska in the bottom of her

Having a sauna at Grandpa Bellikka's, making home-made ice cream at my parents' home and, still, getting together with the family by the bonfire at the lake — family life is still the greatest institution in the world, for it is in the home that the foundations are laid for the kind of world in which we live.

Happy the home when God is there
And love fills every breast;
Where one their wish and one

And one their heavenly rest.

In 1963 I married Leo Cosby, formerly of Smithville, Ontario. We still live in the Highland district in Edmonton.

The highest salary paid in that time was $1100 and the lowest was $740.

BRATTBERG AUDREY AND ELMER

Audrey Kathleen is the third child of Knut and Alma Sunde. A keen scholar, she enjoyed her school years at Athambra, Rocky Mountain House and David Thompson High School. She participated in school athletic programs and was also a member of the Rocky Mountain 4-H Beef Club. Upon completion of Grade 12 she attended the University of Alberta, Edmonton where she received a B. Ed. The next three years were spent teaching mathematics at the David Thompson High school. Audrey then returned to the University of Alberta, Edmonton and obtained a M. Ed. in Curriculum and Instruction.

made trips across Canada through the United States, to Hawaii and three times to Europe. Her first trip to Norway was in 1957 with the whole Sunde family. Ten weeks, one summer were spent travelling about Europe with sister Carol Lois and Miriam Farrington and Maureen Killick. The last trip to Europe was more extensive lasting six months, and included visits to Greece, Turkey and Tunisia. Most memorable of all was Christmas with relatives in Norway.

Audrey is presently teaching at Stratford Junior High school in Edmonton, and is also a curriculum co-ordinator in junior high mathematics with the Edmonton Public School Board.

Audrey is married to Elmer Harold Brattberg, son of Harold and Elsie Brattberg. Elmer was raised on a farm in the Bentley district and attended school in Bentley. He has a B.Sc. in Electrical Engineering from the University of Alberta, Edmonton and is presently employed as a Senior Engineer with A.G.T. in Edmonton. Elmer was very active in high school athletics and also became an avid skier. He has skied most ski areas in the Rocky Mountains and also made a trip to Europe to ski in the Alps.

Audrey and Elmer have a mixed farm in the Bentley area near the north shore of Sylvan Lake. Many enjoyable days of hard work and relaxation have been spent here on week-ends and holidays. During the spring, summer and fall months they commute from the farm to their jobs in Edmonton with their Cessna 182 airplane. Both Audrey and Elmer have their private pilot's licenses and have encountered many interesting experiences while flying their plane.

BYTTYNEN, ARALDO (DICK

I was born on October 12, 1920 and spent my childhood days on my father's farm on the north shore of Sylvan Lake

In 1940 I left for the war and served with the Calgary Highlanders until 1946. Shortly after my return I married Florence Mattson of the Kuusamo district, and we took up residence in Edmonton. We have two daughters, Colleen and Jane. The girls have grown up and married. Colleen married Brian Dukanigan and has a daughter, Kathleen. Jane married Brian Kirkwood and has a son Jeffrey.

BYTTYNEN, JOHN L. by Viola S. Cosby

My father, John L. Byttynen, immigrated to Canada from Minnesota, U.S.A. in the early 1900's. He was born in Cokato, Minnesota in 1885. He had three brothers, Abraham, Albinus and Anthony, and four sisters, Aurora, Sarah, Aina and Susanna. His parents emigrated from Finland to the United States in the 1880's, their ancestry being of Finnish, Norwegian and Swedish descent.

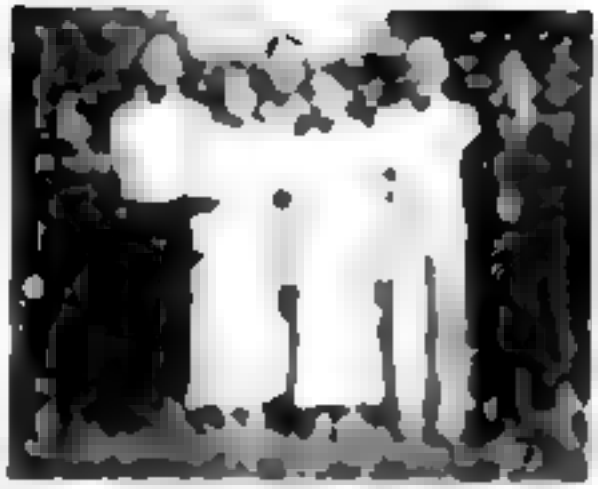
He homesteaded on the north end of Sylvan Lake in the year 1912. On November 17 1913 he married Maggie E. McKee, daughter of James and Nancy Mahala McKee.

My mother was born in Frankfurt Ontario in 1893. Her ancestors emigrated from Scotland and Ireland in 1763. Her father and mother were married on June 8, 1887 at Belleville Ontario. Her parents and two brothers, John and Allen and two sisters, Alice and Minnie, moved westward by wagon and oxen to Manitoba. They were in Brandon, Manitoba, at the time of the terrible blizzard in 1901 1902. The storm lasted for 72 hours. They were snowbound for days.

That following spring they moved further west to Alberta where they homesteaded in the Boyle School District in 1904. The two youngest members of the family attended the school after it opened in 1912.

Grandfather McKee died February 7 1916. Some years later, Grandmother married John Ebeling of Bentley. She died in June, 1939, one year after Grandpa Ebeling died.

There were six children in our family. Sylvia L. — 1915 Viola S. — 1917; John A. — 1919



Araldo R. — 1920; A. Anthony — 1921 and James A. 1923 (deceased 1923. We were all born at home. My grandmother was usually the midwife. Anthony was two and one-half pounds at birth and she took care of him, carrying him on a pillow and keeping him warm with heated bricks. I still remember receiving a spoonful of my grandmother's remedy for tummyache. It was a special recipe of hers and we never did learn how to make it.

My parents worked hard to make a living for the family. Land had to be cleared and ground broken for planting — trees cut and sawed for firewood were the only source of heat.

they were happy years. We had all the wonderful gifts of nature around us and the added opportunity of living beside a lake. I remember with nostalgia all the wild flowers and wildlife. There were not only birds of every description but so many varieties of waterfowl. I still love to hear the call of the coot, commonly known as the mud hen, especially in the springtime when they are mating. Yes, and even the eerie cry of the loon before a summer storm.

There were wild animals galore. The deer came down to the water for drink even the fawns got used to us. My parents forbade the killing of beaver and muskrat and the creek on our meadow became not only their home but also a sanctuary for the wild geese and swans every spring and fall. We awaited their arrival every year with joy and anticipation. It is hard to believe that all this now is so changed. In place of a beautiful solitude of God's creation there is the creation of man — screeching power boats and ugly pollution.

My father worked at the coal mines in Alexo and Nordegg in the 1920's, coming home maybe once or twice a month. It wasn't an easy life for mother to look after the farm and animals. We raised a big garden of vegetables every year and picked lots of wild berries to can. Sometimes the cold, cold winters froze our storage of fruit and vegetables and it was grim indeed

It was a very difficult and trying time for my mother to take care of all the outside chores when we were all so young. The only baby-sitter she ever had was an old Norwegian fisherman Ole Olson Hum, known as "Old Ola" to us all. We enjoyed him when he came as he used to tell us stories He made whistles for us out of wood and sometimes he carved little animals for us out of wood pieces We didn't see him very often but we sure looked forward to his visits (He died many years ago.

My father was injured in the mine and from that time on he could not do heavy labor He worked off and on as a carpenter He also did blacksmith work at home — more or less a jack-of-all-trades. He had wanted to be a veterinarian and had done some studying in books, and with the practical experience did his best to help when being called on by neighbours to take care of sick

One of the exciting times of our childhood was when the Indian caravans stopped at our place on their way to Rocky Mountain House and then in the fall on their way back to the reservation at Hobbema. We looked forward to seeing them especially Chief Yellow Eye and his wife and son Tom Dad repaired their wagons and took care of their horses' hooves. In return, they brought us moccasins, a pair for each of us and usually a beaded pair for my mother One year they brought dad a beautiful buckskin coat He wore it for many years. It burnt with the house when my parent's home burned in 1949. This was the new home that was built after we grew up

Dad also lost the black robe which was made from the hide of his favorite horse "Prince" Old Prince was a part of our family from 1915 to 1943 He served us faithfully all those years, on the field, on the road as part of a team, or as a single with the buggy or cutter, stone-boat or garden cultivator He was also used for riding and if we got lost in the woods searching for cattle, we didn't need to worry as old Prince always took us safely home

We attended Boyle School one and one-half miles from home Our school was a one-roomed schoolhouse. Grandpa McKee helped in building the original building in 1912 and my father helped put the addition on some years later

The years we spent in school were happy years in spite of the hardships of the cold winters when the old wood stove didn't give adequate heat to keep our fingers warm enough to write The teachers were marvelous people who knew how to give us warm-up drills or parade around the schoolroom desks. The battle of the elements was not always easy I remember particularly the year I wrote Grade 8 Departmental Exams It rained so much the road was a sea of mud. The teacher, Miss Hilman, and I trudged to the school each day so I could write my exams which were sealed in big brown envelopes to be sent away It was worth it as I received my diploma and the honor of being the first pupil from Boyle School District to have obtained a diploma! We were both so thankful on the last morning when Mr Frank Johnson, chairman of the school board, came to pick us up with his horses and buggy to drive us home. He was responsible for seeing that those big brown envelopes were properly submitted to Edmonton

During these early years, Palm Bay was our Post Office. The Post Office was at the home of the John Palms. They owned the property adjacent to my parents. Mr Palm drove with horse and buggy or cutter to Eckville to pick up the mail for the community. On request of neighbors, he also brought groceries. This was a whole day's journey! We owe much to these old

Sometimes in the winter the lake was used for transportation when the ice was deeply frozen There was always the danger of going on it too soon This unfortunately happened to the Laycock family on December 7 1937 Mr Laycock was the teacher at Boyle School at that time. It was a nice clear Saturday morning My mother came back from feeding the chickens and called out. "Those folks are driving too far out on that ice!" We all ran out to have a look and the next thing we heard was a loud boom, like when ice cracks, and we saw the car go into the break in the ice about one and a half miles from our place. My brother, Johnny put his skates on and away he flew across the ice I ran to tell my father who was hauling some barrels of water for the pigs. He quickly unhooked the team jumped on the back of one of the horses and started along the shore, as the ice on the lake was like glass I started running but by the time I got there everyone was out except Mr Laycock. His son Gilbert and my brother were pulling him up out of the water It was truly a miracle that they all got out as Mrs. Laycock and their five-year old son were in the front seat with Mr Laycock while Gilbert and two other brothers were in the back seat The car was completely submerged

Mr Laycock was unconscious. They worked on him on the ice but he didn't respond, so my father with the help of the boys, put him over the back of the horse and quickly got him to the Hill's home about a mile away Mrs Laycock and I took turns carrying Ross, and believe me, it seemed much more than a mile. When we got there a message was sent to phone the doctor It took a long time for him to come from Eckville

My father kept working on Mr Laycock on the kitchen floor, applying artificial respiration until he was exhausted and asked me to take over We were sure happy when we heard him make a noise and he started to bring up water and slime I have never forgotten it! It was truly by the grace of God this man lived

We who lived or grew up beside the lake knew the dangers of the environment and we were taught as we grew, but I am sure my mother must have had plenty of anxieties when we were small. We were fortunate that we had so few serious accidents throughout our childhood.

What could have been a major tragedy was the morning Tony had his two fingers on his right hand cut off. It was a December morning 1927 — the day of our school's Christmas programme. With the anticipation of an exciting programme, the boys had forgotten to cut kindling the night before, so father sent them out that morning to bring in kindling to start the kitchen stove. Tony grabbed a piece of wood off the cutting block just as Johnnie brought down the axe. Mom and Dad drove him to Eckville with the horses and cutter. Those 11 miles must have seemed like an eternity. Thanks to Dr. Sommerville, Tony's fingers were saved.

Our community should remember with gratitude the great doctors of these early years. Dr. Sommerville of Eckville and Dr. Henry of Bentley) who dedicated their lives to their calling. Even when the roads were impassable, they found a way. I remember the time in 1940 when Dr. Coppock of Eckville answered an emergency call by using a speeder on the railroad tracks to come and take a patient to hospital.

My parent's land was used for many different kinds of recreation. In the 20's there was an open air dance platform where dances were held occasionally. People came from miles around to dance in the moonlight. There was also a concession booth where candies, gum and chocolate

Another highlight was the picnics by the 'Sisu Club'. This was an athletic club under the direction and training of Henry Jokkinen of Eckville. There was fun and games for everyone. Many families came to fish and spent the night. There was a plentiful supply of perch, pickerel, pike and jack-fish. During the depression years, fish was our main source of food.

In the late 30's, a group of young people formed the Palm Bay Sports Club. The first executive elected January 13, 1939 consisted of: President — Art Bellikka. Vice-President — Howard Johnson. Recording Secretary — Viola Bellikka, Treasurer — Laurie Layton, Secretary — Doris Vig. Program Convenor — Ray Niemala. Ice Convenors — Aldo Byttynen, Johnnie Byttynen, L. R. Layton, Wood Boss — Howard Vig, Marvin Wester, Ragnar Johanson. Lunch Convenors — Walter Johnson, Annie Anderson, Mary Balog; and Official Bouncers — Andrew Anderson, Ted Johnson and Chester Vig. The Palm Bay Red Wings played in the District Hockey Tournament (arranged under the auspices of the Red Deer Board of Trade) March, 1939 and took first prize.

The rink was also for pleasure skating. A concession booth was put up where coffee and hot dogs, etc., were served. The biggest handicap was the heavy snowfall, but there were usually willing people to clear the rink. A most willing and regular helper was the young school teacher of Boyle School, Laurie Layton.

The club put on dance programs at Young People's Hall to raise funds to buy hockey and other sports equipment. The hockey sticks alone would have been a major expense but for Art. He always managed to fix the broken sticks by splicing them together.

Two fastball teams were formed for summer. The ladies' team was managed and coached by Art Bellikka and the men's team was coached by Ted Johnson.

These were very exciting and enjoyable times and I am sure that it was one of the happiest times of our lives, especially for my parents, as they enjoyed the activities of the young people. My mother always had a cup of cocoa or coffee to These happy times came to an end, as young men left to fight for their country. My parents like so many others, saw their sons go off to war. They all enlisted for active service — Johnnie in the Royal Canadian Engineers, Araldo, Dick with the Edmonton Fusiliers, later transferring to the Calgary Highlanders when he went overseas in 1941, and Tony with the Royal Canadian Artillery. The first to leave from the Palm Bay Club was Ivan Russell. He was like one of the family.) He was with the Edmonton

Johnnie was stationed at Chilliwack, B.C. for the major part of his service with the Royal Canadian Engineers. Dick served three years on active duty. He was wounded in France in August, 1944, returned to the Front in Holland and ended up in Odenburg, Germany, at the close of the war. He returned to Canada in December 1945. Tony was with the 78th Battery 13th Canadian Field Battery, 3rd Division, Royal Canadian Artillery. He was injured in England during a blackout. After several months in hospital, they were convinced he would be happier back in Canada.

Sylvia married Elmer Kujala November 1937. They have a family of six children and seven grandchildren. Elmer died in November of 1962. Viola married Arthur Bellikka January 1937. They had two children and have three grandchildren. Arthur died in June of 1959. Viola married Leo Cosby in May of 1963. Johnny married Lorraine Graham in May of 1943 and they have six children and six grandchildren. Araldo married Florence Matson in June of 1946 and they have two children and two grandchildren. Tony married Gloria Hergert and they have five children.

My father is now 92 years of age. He has been a patient in a nursing home for the past four years. My mother died on December 5, 1950.

Palm Bay still remains, a little corner of Sylvan Lake, but only we who have the memories of what it used to be, can appreciate what we once had.

We are all indebted to the pioneers in every age and every generation. We owe much to those who came before us! They all want to remain great in their own worth and strong in their convictions — no matter what — they are our heritage

CARLSON, HANS AND IDA — by Ida Carlson

Hans and Ida Carlson came to live on the NE ¼-35-2-W5 in the fall of 1939. At that time we had only clay roads, and travel was often made difficult because of the mud. The Boyle school was located across the road from us. We were serviced with mail route and telephone lines. Our building site was located on the corner of the land where there was a cross road. The mail route and telephone line did not go any further west than our place. We had only a few acres in cropland. We did have a water well, a good one, which never failed and is still in regular use, although now the water is brought up from it with a pressure system

The trees were in abundance, and supplied our cooking and heating fuel. When clearing land we found pouches of dried pemmican and a rock with arrowheads expertly chiseled out. We also have a rock that has been analyzed as a part of a falling meteorite

We cleared the land bit by bit. It did take the most of 30 years to clear the land of trees, but we were recompensed each time with more fields and a better view of the mountains and Sylvan Lake nearby. Our two children, Peter and Marion, enjoyed the lake to the utmost

During our time on the farm we changed from one thing to another. Many years were spent with a dairy herd, but later on we went to beef cattle. Hans was a very good cattleman and hog producer, so we had some of each. Our grain crops were mostly barley, although we at other times had oats and wheat, and clover seed and rape more recently. We rotated our grain fields with hay crops as this keeps the soil in good condition and also helps to prevent erosion. At one time we had a herd of goats and for a number of years had the usual flock of laying hens and chickens for meat purposes, too. Many beautiful birds made their homes on our farmstead. We grew vegetables in abundance, and had some good results with growing berries

The passing years brought many changes in our way of life. Eventually our road became a hard-top. We were able to have a comfortable home with many modern conveniences. The telephone lines had gone underground and to the dial system, and also had been extended several miles west, although still remaining on the Bentley exchange. In 1941 we started paying our hospital tax. We were included in the Eckville hospital district and this system was kept that way for many years. In the late 1940's we, along with other farmers, helped put the rural electrification in our district and this line went west as far as the present Allan Russel farm. For many years now the school children of the Boyle district have been bused into Bentley

For a few days now, in 1977 on our farmstead an oil well drilling rig has been busy day and night drilling for oil.

So many things have been left unsaid. I am grateful to my son Peter and daughter Marion and their spouses and all my grandchildren, my relatives and good neighbors of a good community. Indeed it was a privilege to have been allowed so many years on this location. May the time we were allotted still prove rewarding

Hans passed away in December of 1975, and I am now making my home in the Eckville Manor House in Eckville

[illegible]EN, PETER AND MARIE — by Ida Carlson

Pete Christiansen spent the last seven years of his life with his wife and younger members of the family in the Boyle district at mixed farming. Pete and Marie, with three very young children, came to homestead in the Scandinavian settlement, west of Bentley in the Stephenson school district. They arrived in the spring of 1901 and lived there until 1928 when they moved south to Turin, Alberta. This move caused the family much hardship with the terrible droughts on the prairies at that time and the depression years. Still owning land in the Boyle district and after five years of the prairie experience, they returned to this land to make their home. Pete died in 1941, age 71, and Marie, after some years moved to Abbotsford, B.C. She lived there until 1964 when she moved to Calgary. In 1966 she was hospitalized at Claresholm, Alberta, and died there in June of 1967 at the age of 87 years. Pete and Marie were charter members of Grace Lutheran Church, west of Bentley and both are buried in the Vig Lutheran cemetery. Grace Lutheran Church is still active after more than 70 years since its beginning

When Pete and Marie arrived at their homestead from Sissiton South Dakota their address was Alberta district, N.W.T. When they needed supplies they went all the way to Lacombe as there were no bridges over the Blindman River for sometime. Pete came as a youth to the United States from Denmark. Marie was a girl of 10 years when she came to the United States with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Solberg, from Norway. About 1906 they moved into the same Scandinavian settlement west of Bentley but their farmland was in the Boyle district and, no doubt, their history will appear in "Homesteads and Happiness". Eleven of Pete and Marie's 14 children were born on this original homestead. The first child born to them in Canada was a son "Albert". If the child had been a daughter, the name would have been "Alberta". Albert was the first one of the children to die at the age of 49. There are still 10 children of this pioneer family living. When Pete and Marie arrived on their homestead the other settlers there were Martin Johnsons, Hans Skjonsbergs, Vigs and Haarstads came almost at

I am grateful to Helen Beranek of Bentley for the book called "The Hansens". This book is written by Harry Hansen of Bentley and published in 1969. This interesting book covers several generations of the Hansens up to 1969. Many friends and neighbors of the family are included too. Harry has some nice comments about "Pete and Marie" written here too. The Hansens were and are such well motivated people that who could help but be their friends. Many interesting pictures are included in this book. Eric, Ole and Carson Bardenhagen of Eckville are named as being on one picture of a group at a picnic at Gull Lake.

P.S. I cannot close without telling you that I had a grandmother who was truly a great lady and she was none other than the late "Martha Solberg".

EKLUND, CLARENCE AND PHOEBE — by Phoebe Eklund

I, Clarence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ardor Eklund of Bentley do take thee, Phoebe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Brewer of Lacombe to be my lawful wedded wife for better or WORSE? Date November 14, 1939. First home — a wee c age on Gull Lake shore. Landlord Bob Woolgar who charged three whole dollars per month, a sum not always easy to raise. As the next day was warm and balmy the new Groom helped his dad thresh their grain, and the new Bride, no coat or sweater, merrily tripped to the field with lunch. Our closest neighbours were the Butchers and the Huttons. My reminiscing is written in this fashion because 38 years later 1977, everything is so different. Weather — 40 to 60 below zero, and I mean Fahrenheit! With me the word, 'threshing' and they would be sure mean, $300 for rent. I'm sure Clarence feels i has been all for the 'better' and not 'worse'. He's a real 'wheeler dealer' but all our friends main tain I am the only possession he hasn't traded. I wonder why — oh yes, the wheels and gears in my head rusted too fast and they never rotated at a quick enough pace.

In 1942 we moved to Bentley to manage the Purity 99 Service Station previously operated by Ronald Kirk. Between the Holmes Grocery Store and the Garries Hardware Store was a Tie Yard for tying horses. Good old days! Many a summersault did I as a child, turn on the Tie Yard in Lacombe. Clarence did general trucking, as did his friends, Elton Poling and Alex Wilson. In those days Clarence hauled fuel from Turner Valley (no pavement then), and in the evenings delivered fuel to the farmers. I kept busy serving gas, keeping records, AND keeping puppy. One time Mr. Hergott, the Station Agent phoned that Connie, whom he luckily recognized, was on a train headed for Rimbey and Hoadley. The Depot was only a hop and a skip from our place. I very diligently set about becoming acquainted with all the good people in the Blindman Valley. Did you ever try sorting out all the Skjonsbergs, Vigs, Solbergs, Petersons and Andersons when you don't know a soul? I pertinently asked Buz Farrell how many children he had and of course he was still an eligible bachelor! Three of our first and faithful customers were George Cabeuka, Albert Hansen and Mr. Elgood. Another was Alfred Haarstad who was loved by everyone, and to my knowledge never had an enemy. Four single boys who used to buy fuel were Abe Giesbrecht, Charlie and Harry Larsen, and Marvin Wester. I also remember the Wianckos from Rimbey stopping sometimes. In those days people had time to he gas rationing coupons and sugar coupons? It

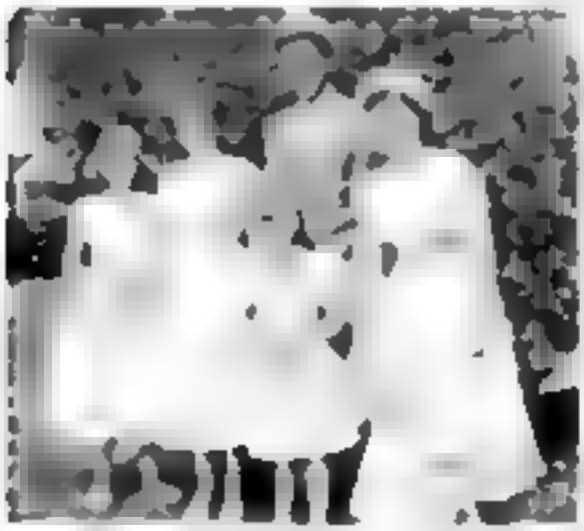
day being when Connie turned the tap on a 45 gallon drum of oil.

In 1944 we moved to the good old Boyle District (the best in the west), where we lived for almost 30 years. Most of these were on the quarter purchased from John Balog (S.E. 35-39 2-W5), but we later bought the S.W. and N.E. quarters in this section and built a house on the N.E. one. In July of 1944 baby Gloria joined three old Connie. Life was good in those days as enjoyed simple life. A trip for the girls on a hand sleigh pulled by mom to the mailbox and up the hill to Aunt Allie and Uncle Ole Solberg's wonderful big log house was a treat far superior to a motor trip to the big cities now. Allie and Ole were substitute 'mom and dad' for many young people, including teachers or ministers who boarded with them. Nobody could ever count the lunches (including fresh cinamon rolls) and meals they served to hundreds of people. Uncle Johnny Solberg was our mailman for — in the days when being a mailman may include delivering groceries, picking up cream, selling stamps, walking and shovelling lots of snow. If we hadn't been fortunate enough to have an expert road maintainer, Frank Wine (another

Best in the West" I'm sure there would have been impassable roads many times for the mailman and all of us. Our third girl, Donna Lee born in 1950, shed tears when Johnny retired, and printed a "Hi mailman!" inside the mailbox door which cherry greeting still remains.

In 1957 a fourth girl Heather Marie, was born and truly brought much pleasure to her three sisters and middle aged parents.



Clarence and Phoebe Eklund and daughter [illegible]

Connie started to Boyle Country School and was privileged to have Mrs. Edith Russell as her first teacher. Dear Ida Carlson entertained the whole neighbourhood that year as Peter was also a beginner and generously invited everyone in school to his Birthday Party. Of course parents also came to pick up their children. Next year our country schools started to disappear and the buses took over.

Connie, a medical secretary, married Doctor Clifford Herzer, son of Mrs. Sandy Strachan of Rimbey, and they have lived in Los Angeles, California for 16 years. His three year Dermatology Course will be finished in May and they plan to move to their acreage near the Red Forest Arcadia. They have three children, Cindy, Clifford and Cheryl.

Gloria married Leo Ganson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ganson of Lacombe. For six years they lived in Newfound and where Leo taught school, then two years at Peoria, two years at Botha, and at present he is principal and teacher of a new Seventh Day Adventist Church School near Sylvan Lake. They have one boy, Gerald and three girls, Janice, Julie and Glenda.

Donna was a dental assistant, working in Calgary where she met her husband, Lance Holly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Holly of Calgary. Lance, after working as Orderly in the Stettler Hospital, has been taking a Paramedical Course for the past two years in Calgary. He has accepted a call to work in the Grande Prairie Hospital, so plans to move there in May. They have two boys, Glen and Brian.

Heather married Jack Bartko, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bartko of Rimbey, and so far live closest to home much to grandma and grandpa's delight. They lived near Rimbey, but presently are on an acreage 10 miles from Bentley. They both love the farm and animals and are hoping to live in the country. Jack shares his mother's musical and artistic talents. Their little girl, Laurie Lee, is the youngest of our 10 [illegible]

In August, 1973, we moved to our present home 15 miles west of Rimbey, S.E. 26-42-5-W5, situated in the Leedale area. At the time, my roots were so deep in Bentley area that I didn't share my husband's enthusiasm in moving to a new land. However, even though I will never forget all our dear Bentleyites, I found the people in this area to be wonderful, kind, and helpful too. Rimbey is a friendly town, and I enjoy shopping there. For the past five years we have sold Vermeer Round Balers to supplement our farm income. I like to think we are pioneers as Clarence has cleared many acres of land. Life has been good. There have been a few clouds amidst all the sunshine, but thanks to God, loved ones, and friends, the stars and the rainbow are as bright as ever. Happy memories everyone!

JOHANSON, ERICK

Anna Katherine and Erick Johanson with their four children emigrated from Finland to Michigan, U.S.A. around the turn of the century, then to Canada in 1911, settling in the Wetaskiwin area. In 1914 they took out a homestead in the Sunset Hills area north of Sylvan Lake in the Boyle district.

Of the children living — Hilda Wester lives at Sylvan Lake, Arthur lives in Bentley, Irene Palm lives in Condor, Esther Lind in Prince George, B.C., Sam in Edmonton and Hazel Nelson in Ed[illegible]

Erick enjoyed carving wood. He is known for the wooden horses he carved and sold for $4. Some of these are displayed in various homes in the district.

JOHANSON, VICTOR FAMILY — by Mrs. Signe (Victor) Johanson

In 1923 we decided to leave Sweden and move to Canada. Victor's uncle, Mr. Ed Lofgren at Blackfalds sent back glowing reports of Canada to relatives in Sweden. He said you could make money in Canada, and we found out later this meant many hardships and much hard work. The opportunities were not so easy for a green Swedish family. Blackfalds was to be our destination. We left Bastutrsk, Sweden, July 1923, with our two children, Ragnar, two years old and Victoria, four months old. We arrived over six weeks later at Blackfalds as there were many delays along the way. We spent ten days in London England, while the boat was being repaired. Our children were vaccinated for smallpox while we were there. The journey had its drawbacks but the people along the way were friendly and helpful. We arrived at the uncle's place in late August, and stayed with them for one month. They had a large family of their own and four more made it a bit overcrowded. W hen went to work for a bachelor Mr J Hilstaad, who wanted some help on his farm in the Bentley district, and we stayed there for two years. While living there, Victor started looking for a farm of his own and found one that was covered with very heavy poplar trees. However we built a log house from the logs that were cut to make a place to a build a house.

We were situated on NE 3-40-2-W5, one half mile north of Boyle School and two miles from Mr Hilstaad's farm, so Victor would help him over a time until we got more established. It was fortunate there were deer and rabbits to be had to supplement our diet and also fish from Sylvan Lake that was one and one-half miles south.

When we were grubbing trees, we used to take the children's shoes off. That way they wouldn go very far away and we would know where they were at all times. They didn't seem to mind as they played contentedly.

Victor was learning to speak English a little better each year as he met and worked with others, and he learned also to read and write in English, and read a great deal in the years to come. However it was a Norwegian settlement so they could speak and understand each other without the use of English.

After our house was built we needed some good water, so he got a water well drill and drilled us a well. Over the years he drilled many water wells. He was still drilling water wells long enough to drill a well for our oldest daughter and her husband at Lesiteville in 1951.

Victor and a neighbor made one half mile of corduroy road through a swamp one mile north of our place to make a better trail to town. There were jackfish jumping in the deep water and grass where they worked. In the years to come he always had a team of horses and a man or himself to help build more roads. They worked off their taxes this way.

He also invented a brush cutter to be used on a tractor, as we had one by that time, hoping to clear land a little faster. He contracted a large area of trees to be cleared. The invention worked fairly good but the cost of hiring men to pile and burn the brush and the cost of gas for the tractor plus repairing his machine proved costly and at the end of the contract he had made no money. However he used it on our own farm for a while.

After we had been in Canada five years we became Canadian citizens.

Ragnar started school when he was six years old and didn't know any English, as at home we spoke Swedish. However Boyle School was for tunate to have a teacher that year who could speak both English and Norwegian so she was able to teach and help Ragnar through the firs year. Her name was Miss Magda Wold, now Mrs Magda Anderson of the Eckville district. As Ragnar learned English so did Victoria and I we were learning together and when Victoria started school she knew as much English as Ragnar. As the children progressed in English so did I until I could also read and write in English.

With a lot of hardships and hard work our farm began to take shape. We got more land cleared and broken every year and we had some livestock mostly milk cows, as the milk butter and cream were necessary foods and income. It took the better part of the day to take the cream to town with a team of horses and buggy. We also had some chickens and pigs. We cleared more and every year to provide more feed for the animals, making it possible to increase the livestock. All the farming was done with horses in the early years, which were also our transpor ation until we got a model T Ford. I learned to drive it too, which created tension among the onlookers. I learned all the contrary ways of the car and could handle it as well as the next per son and drove it constantly, until it was van dalized. Then it was back to the horse and buggy for a while until we got another car.

In 1935 an addition was built on the house and another daughter Elizabeth, was born that year. In the winter time Victor would run a sawmill sawing lumber so he could get lumber to build a new barn. After the barn was built there were a few barn dances held, one or two for the war ef fort, and the orchestra at one of them was the well known Ma Trainers Orchestra from Calgary. They took a few minutes before the dance to go to the neighbors and play a few musical numbers for an aged pioneer lady Mrs Eric Solberg. There were some dances held for the benefit of the Palm Bay Hockey Club, and also a wedding dances.

In 1939 Victor purchased a 32 vo t windcharger to supply us with electricity. I got a washing machine that was run by a 32 volt power and it was a big help as we had hired men and I used to board school teachers.

I also looked after an aged widower, Mr t-pland, who lived across the road from our place. He was our closest neighbor. We used the windcharger until we were able to get Calgary Power. When there was first talk of rural elec trification, Victor was out canvassing the neighbors for prospective farmers that would like to get a line put in. I believe it was one of the first rural lines put in. Then he took a course in farm electrification, wrote and passed the exam and wired many farmsteads in the years to

His main interest was farming and he learned all he could to make the land produce good crops. Farming always came first and every new facil y that came out to improve and make easier and bet er farming he was ready to try. We got a threshing machine as by this time we had [illegible] siderable cultivated land on our half section, so fall he went with his threshing machine and a crew of men to thresh for the neighbors and ourselves. Many of the crew were neighbors [illegible] worked off their threshing dues this way and sometimes we had Indians hired too. Then a few years after the war we purchased a combine and did only our own as by this time we had the half section all cleared and cultivated.

He was also very interested in politics, believing in the C.C.F. party and one year [illegible] didate for the Liberal party in the Rocky Mountain House constituency in one election but [illegible] defeated.

Our first telephone line that Victor helped organize was strung on various types of poles that were replaced later with more substantial [illegible]

The Bentley community had a strip cleared [illegible] one of the Sunset Hills and made [illegible] into a ski hill now known as the Medicine Hat Ski Hill. In 1950 they decided to have a log lodge built and they asked Victor if he would supervise and help build the lodge, which he did. It was the only building there for many years until later another building was built.

He was elected councillor for the Lacombe County and served on the council for many [illegible] until his passing in 1964 at the age of 68 years.

After the Second World War we took a trip to Sweden, the first time since settling in Canada, and then we went again in 1963. When we returned from our first trip to Sweden we brought back ten pounds of Vega barley, that he wanted to try here. It was passed through customs and he seeded this small amount in a separate and well prepared piece of ground. It grew and showed great promise, was harvested with great care, yielding several bushels. This grain was seeded until he had enough seed to seed his complete farm. It was a productive barley with a fairly short growing season and he used it from then on.

When Ragnar and Vicky were going to school they did the janitor work at Boyle after they got old enough. The pay would be up to $3.50 a month which was almost enough to pay for a pair of skis, which they bought! When they were through school, Ragnar stayed at home to help farm and Vicky went on to High School in Red Deer.

When Ragnar got married, a house was built on the farm and they lived there and went into partnership with us, finally buying the home place and the farm across the road from our place, farming this for a few years finally selling and moving to Salmon Arm, B.C. in 1973.

Ragnar married Bettie Britton of the Marianna district in 1948. They have four children, Anne, Bernard, Cindy and Valerie.

Anne graduated from the Bentley High School and took a nurses aid course in Calgary and worked at the Rocky View Hospital until she married Wayne Malone of Calgary. They have two girls, Rene and Teresa, and they live at Hin[illegible]

Bernard finished high school at Bentley and vocational school at Lacombe, is now employed at C.C.I.L. at Wetaskiwin, and has taken a heavy duty mechanic course at Edmonton.

Cindy took some high school at Salmon Arm, B.C. and is now employed at Hinton.

Valerie took some high school at Salmon Arm and is presently taking vocational school at Swift Current, Saskatchewan.

Victoria was married in 1942 to Albert Moitus of Withrow, and has three sons, Barry, Brian and Ken. They live at Withrow until Albert enlisted in the army in 1944. After his discharge from the Army he purchased a farm at Lestieville, where they reside and are still farming.

Barry graduated from the David Thompson High School and took a Merchandising Administration course at S.A.I.T. in Calgary, and is now a manager of Totem Lumber Co. Store in Calgary. He married Helene Cote of St. Paul, Alberta and has two sons, Cameron and Spencer and they reside at Bragg Creek.

Brian graduated from David Thompson High School and took two weather courses, one at Ottawa and one at Toronto. He was upper air technician at several locations in N.W.T. for seven years. He then took another course at Ottawa to become a Pilot Briefer, working for three years at Yellowknife Airport. He married Gwen MacLeod of Saskatoon in 1973, and had one son Kevin and a daughter, Rea Anne. They live at Airdrie and he works at Calgary Airport as Weather Forecastor.

Ken is still at home to graduate from the David Thompson High School in June, 1978.

Elizabeth took her schooling at Bentley High School and a secretary course at Calgary. She married in 1957 to Carl Wood of New Brunswick and has three children, Deborah, Judy and Kevin. They live at Calgary.

Debby married Herb Fitch of Sylvan Lake and has one daughter Trudy. They live in Red [illegible]

Judy is going to University in Calgary, and Kevin is still in High School.

I stayed on the farm for a while after I became a widow, then moved to Bentley, where I lived for a time, then moved to Sylvan Lake and now reside in the Sylvan Manor at Sylvan Lake.

I look back on the years past and wouldn't mind doing it all over again. We had hardships and hard work but there were also the social times. There were the Sunday dinners, community gatherings, and school picnics held on the shores of Sylvan Lake and all the neighbors were there. Then there were the Christmas concerts, and the parents would try to help the teachers as much as possible to make it easier for them, like filling candy sacks, making popcorn balls and sewing costumes, the men would get the Christmas tree and set it up, and set up the stage and repair it if necessary, also keeping the gas lamps burning. It was the highligh. of the year. The ladies would serve lunch at the close of the concert and everyone went home happy knowing it was a job well done on the part of the teacher, students, and parents.

OSCAR KARJALA FAMILY

Oscar Karjala took his homestead, the NW 5-40-2-W5 about 1910. His brother Robert came to join him about 1916, as the brothers had planned to farm together, which they did for about a year.

Robert, his wife Ann and their only child Emil, born in Butte, Montana, in July 1916

Sarah and Robert Karjala

continued to live around here like Robert worked at ditch digging to drain swamp land to make it viable farm land.

Shortly after this Robert returned to Butte Montana to work in the mines. During this year Mrs. Karjala and Emil made their home with the John Palm family at Palm Bay. The mines closed and Robert returned to his family. Robert then purchased the SW 4-40-2-W5 which was the Pete Holappa homestead. He began to clear his land and also did custom work. The long winter of 1919 was one of hardship. Many cattle in the area were starving. Robert sold hides in Eckville in order to buy food for his animals.

Robert is remembered for his jolly nature. About 1929 Robert was stricken with a kidney ailment. The doctor gave him about six months to live. But, being a determined man, he took care of himself, allowed himself no salt in his diet and carried a special water supply from the John Koski farm, by so doing he lived another seven years. Robert died December 26, 1936. He is buried in the Kuusamo Cemetery.

Ann Karjala married Homak in 1940. They moved to the coast where they made their home. She died in 1965 and is buried at Cloverdale, B.C.

Emil started school at Boyle. After his school years he worked for many farmers in the Bentley-Eckville district. He inherited a great sense of humor. He was known for his love of animals as well. Emil sold the family farm to Alan Russell in 1973.

Emil died October 8, 1977 and is buried in Kuusamo Cemetery.

KUJALA, SYLVIA LUCRETIA ETHEL (SYTTYNEN)

Born March 24, 1915, at Palm Bay on North Sylvan Lake, I attended Boyle School and did the janitor work before and after school hours when taking the latter grades. Making that old heater get going and give us some comfort was a real challenge. Many students of that time must remember our marching around singing and clapping our hands for a long time before we could settle down to our books and when recess and noon came around we would flock around and above the old jacket heater, everyone making a mad dash to get the warmest spots. Water was another big chore. It had to be carried by pail from Mr. Turner's place near by or if his pump failed, I had to get it from Andrew and Huida Anderson's place which was then west of the school. It was certainly rugged going when the snow drifted and got deep.

The summer after finishing Grade 9, I went to work for Petro's Dairy at Sylvan Lake. They delivered milk to the campers and cottages just during the summer months. In the winters, I went to work in Calgary, Red Deer or in the town of Sylvan Lake, and back to help at the dairy for the summer again.

I met Elmer the winter of 1935 at a dance at Eckville Hall. He was on a break from hauling railroad ties at Rocky Mountain House, driving a truck for Fred Moos.

Elmer (Jalmar) Sylvester Kujala was born May 1, 1906. He grew up in the Kuusamo District. He had six sisters and four brothers. Only Ivy Kasper of Vancouver, B.C. and Amy Slaughter of Santa Monica, California, are still living. Elmer attened Kuusamo School, taking his Grade nine. He enjoyed sports of all kinds and helped manage softball and hockey teams for the Elspeth Club. They were real winners, I have been told.

He loved music and when some of the young men formed a local orchestra, called the Cocoanuts, he played trumpet, which he had learned to play. He played the violin and accordion as well. They played for many dances at Elspeth, Benalto and other places and at picnics, which were great community get togethers in those da

Elmer and I were married November 20, 1937 at the home of Rev. R.S. Stevens, then minister of the Presbyterian Church in Sylvan Lake. My sister, Viola, and her husband, Art Bellika were our witnesses. Our only guests were our parents. After the wedding ceremony, Elmer's father treated us all to coffee at the Sylvan Lake Cafe where we jokingly called the soda crackers our wedding cake.

Our first home was a cabin rented from Arvie Niemela. It was a small two room place right by the lake, near my folks. That summer, Elmer built a motor boat in his spare time, between carpenter jobs, and I had lots of fun helping build it and trying it out.

Elmer's mother wished to visit her relatives in Montana, and asked if we would stay at the Kujala home to help out while she was away.

In the spring, Elmer's father gave us a little log house and two acres by the lake which he had bought back from Mr. John Eskie, who wanted to move to town. He said it was our wedding present and it sure was a wonderful and much appreciated gift. It had only two small rooms, but was comfortable enough after we got it cleaned and fixed up. We moved into it that spring of 1939.

Our first son, Ronald Mathew was born December 15, 1939, in the old Eckville Hospital. He came home just in time to spend Christmas with us.

Kenneth Elmer Kujala was born August 17, 1942, in Eckville with Dr. Coppock being our doctor both times.

Elmer worked on a lot of buildings around Benalto and Eckville district. But work was very scarce so he decided to go to Edmonton where he and Art Bellika formed a construction company. My brother, Dick, joined them too, after returning from overseas.

Within the year the boys and I joined Elmer, making our home with my sister Viola until we rented a tiny house nearby.

Byron Anthony Kujala was born that winter on December 8, 1946, in the old Misericordia Hospital in Edmonton.

By that summer the house we were building was far enough advanced to move in. We put up with sub-flooring and plyboard over some windows for a while, but gradually got it finished. It was in a new district and the two older boys had a few months extra holidays that summer until the new Delton School that was being built, was finished.

Elmer worked for the city of Edmonton as a tax assessor for a few years then back to carpenter work again.

Carolyn Sylvia Kujala was born July 21, 1949, at the University Hospital, Edmonton.

Loretta Margret Kujala was born August 28, 1952, also at the University Hospital. Dr. Margret Hutton was our doctor both times.

The summer of 1952, we decided to go farming so we sold our house and bought a farm by Clyde, Alberta. We had some very rough times those years trying to made do in an old drafty house until we were able to build a new house which we did eight years later.

David John Kujala was born October 27, 1955, in the Westlock Hospital.

Elmer worked on many buildings in and around Westlock and Clyde district, helped on the Athabaska School and built annexes on the grain elevators in many parts of Alberta. He last worked on the Auxiliary Hospital at Westlock.

On November 10, 1982, neighbors from around our area gathered at a neighbor's home and gave a surprise party for us on our 25th wedding anniversary. Everyone had a wonderful time. Music was supplied by a few neighbors, Elmer helping out, calling all the square dances he could remember and the Spanish Waltz too. We received many lovely gifts from neighbors and family.

er died on November 27 1982. of a heart attack We laid him to rest in Dunngan Cemetery situtated between Clyde and Westlock

We farmed for a few years more, the two older boys coming home to put in and take crops off I rented the farm out for a while, then sold it to buy a house in West Jasper where we live today. I have worked at the New Misericordia Hospital for a few years and I have been an Avon representative for 10 years now

We all feel very blessed to live in a country as free and beautiful as Canada May we all work to keep as much of it as naturally beautiful as possible for our future generations

WALDEMAR MOTTUS AND FAMILY — by Esther M Mottus

Waldemar (Wally) Mottus was born in Varu, Estonia, December 8, 1908, the youngest of the eight sons of Mr and Mrs. Johan Mottus

After an eventful journey to Canada (as described in the story of Lena and Johan Mottus elsewhere in this book Wally arrived in the Gilby district north of Eckville on May 24 1916. at the age of eight years. Johan Mottus died in 1918 and it became necessary for his sons to earn their own living as soon as possible At the age of fourteen Wally got his first job. harrowing land with horses for Fritz Kinoa He walked behind the harrows in bare feet, not for lack of shoes but because he preferred it that way. In those days most children went barefoot all summer

From that time on, Wally was on his own. At age fifteen he went to Southern Alberta where he worked for farmers from spring to freeze-up He came home to Wood Lake for the winters. For several years his life followed the same pattern southern Alberta in summer and Wood Lake in winter While working for Harry Snell in Barons he operated the first corn binder to be used in Alberta

By being thrifty, Wally managed to save $300. With this wealth in his pocket he went to Edmonton in 1927 and enrolled in Hemphill Trade School where he took a course in Automotives and Tractor Mechanics In 1931 he got a job working for John Kemila Sr ) in his garage, doing repair work at seventy-five cents an hour

Wally had a great love for the outdoors, and enjoyed hunting and fishing. During the winter months of 1934 and 1935 he and two other young men established a trap line about thirty-five miles south-west of Rocky Mountain House Fur bearing animals were fairly plentiful and the catch was quite good of squirrels. weasels and lynx When summer came he went ot southern Alberta as usual

In 1936 he rented space in John Kemila's garage, and started his own business, doing welding machinery and general repair work He 'batched' in a small one-room shack near the garage At one time a friend, Jack was visiting him Wally went to work in the morning leaving Jack still asleep When Jack awoke he prepared to light a fire in the wood burning stove, using kerosene. There was one big "bang The kerosene can exploded and the whole shack was enveloped in flames. Jack got a few burns which were. fortunately. not very serious and Wally lost all his clothes and possessions. The shack was completely destroyed. After that episode he moved into the Kemila home where he got his room and board

In 1937 Wally married Esther Nelsson, a teacher from south of Eckville. This is where I Esther, come into the story

My parents were farming in the Diamond Valley district They desperately needed help on the farm, so Wally gave up his shop in Eckville and moved to the farm. My parents bought a house in Sylvan Lake where they retired Wally did not give up his shop work He set up a shop in a machine shed on the farm where he did his own repair work, as well as some work for neighbors He spared no effort in making machinery run smoothly and efficiently

Farming continued to be his main occupation. In 1942 Wally bought the first combine in the district — a small John Deere. For three years he straight combined successfully, to the intense surprise of those neighbors who didn't believe it could be done

My mother died in 1938, and my father came back to the farm to live with us In 1939 our first child, Lucille Dorothy, was born. Two years later along came a son, Leonard Waldemar

There were no gravelled roads in the rural area at that time, and no snowplows in winter When Lucille reached school age a problem loomed large How was she to go to school? The nearest school was four miles away There were no school busses We didn't relish the prospect of driving her to school every day over roads which were often impassable and it was too far for a small child to walk so we decided to move In 1944 we bought a house and a shop in Rocky Mountain House Later in 1944 we had a farm auction. Father moved with us to "Rocky" in time for Lucille to enter school there. Wally made extensive renovations to the shop he had bought There was no water or sewage services in Rocky Mountain House in 1944, but we modernized and renovated the house anyway putting in our own water pressure system and septic tank

Father died in 1945. We didn't like to leave the house he had built in the Diamond Valley empty Empty houses are ruined by neglect, so we had the house moved to Eckville in 1952 It was a large house and it was difficult to move but the task was successfully accomplished. We had the house modernized and re-decorated That house still stands in Eckville, and it is presently rented by James Keegstra. It stands as a memorial to the pioneer who built it my father Nels John Nelsson

Wally established a thriving business in Rocky Mountain House He had all he work he could handle and more. He was an agent for Homelite chain saws, which fitted nicely into his machinery and welding business. But life wasn't all work and no play Wally loved to curl and curled regularly in the local curling club. He went to bonspiels in most central Alberta towns and also took part in the summer bonspiel in Nelson, B.C one summer We took up bridge and spent many pleasant evenings playing bridge with friends. We all enjoyed camping and loved our numerous trips into the beautiful west country In 1948 our third child, Linda Claire was born

Our life in Rocky Mountain House was full and happy Wally was active in the 1% Club. He was elected to town council twice, and was on council when the new arena was built He was also a member of the Masonic Lodge. I was a member of the L.O B.A Lodge the I.O.D E., and I taught Sunday School in the Presbyterian Church. I was also a substitute teacher at the Rocky Mountain House School

Lucille finished high school in Rocky then took a business course in Edmonton after which she worked in Port Radium N.W T., Ottawa, and Calgary as a stenographer Leonard also finished high school in Rocky then attended Montana State University where he took his B.S degree He took his M Sc degree at U. of A. in Zoology and finally his Ph.D degree at U of A in 1972 He is now vice-president of a consulting firm in Vancouver Linda took grades one through nine in Rocky

In 1962 we bought some land on the N.W shore of Sylvan Lake and built a modern home there in preparation for retirement In 1963 Wally sold his shop in Rocky and we moved to Sylvan Lake. Linda entered high school in Bentley After graduating from high school Linda took her nurses training in Foothills Hospital in Calgary, getting her R.N degree in 1969 She has since worked in Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary and Stanford University Hospital California

Our children are all married. Lucille and Alex Sahados have three children, and Linda and Fred Taylor have one child, while Leonard and Sharon Mottus have three children. Wally and are enjoying our retirement very much. We like the peace and quiet of country life and enjoy the visits of friends and relatives We can finally say, in all sincerity, Life is Beautiful!"

NETSEL, JOHN — by Viola S. Cooley

John Netsel homesteaded the quarter next to my father's place NW 33-39-2-W5 on the lake in the early 1900's. He emigrated from Norway when he was a young sailor He loved the great outdoors, and especially the water He built row boats and also made a cabin boat He used to take people, including my mom and dad, for lovely moonlight trips on Sylvan Lake in his cabin boat He ran his own sawmill for several years, using a steam engine for power

On Christmas Day 1918, he married Aurora, my father's sister Uncle John spent a lot of his time in the north in the winters. He had a cabin there, and tended to his trapline while Aunt Aurora stayed on he homestead. She spent a lot of her time visiting neighbors. Her fingers were always busy knitting socks and mittens Her pastime was reading cards and telling fortunes from tea cups She had a deep interest in the lives of people, and always was the organizer for family get-togethers and parties

In her lifetime she had many careers, even having worked as a detective for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in New York City in the U S A She was a professional cook, and had worked in a number of famous hotels in Minneapolis She immigrated to Saskatchewan and then to Alberta

I remember when she was the cook at the Eckville Hotel in 1931 1932 That was when I was attending the Eckville High School My room mate and I dropped in to see her often and usually got a piece of cake or pie. Being teenagers, we surely appreciated her good cooking

When we were children she entertained us often with tales of her adventures We enjoyed especially the stories of her fishing with her father in the fjords along the coast of Norway She spoke several languages

There was grief too, in their lives Their home by the lake burned to the ground in the late 1920's In 1955 Uncle John died in his 90th year Aunt Aurora continued to live in the little home by the road, but it, too, burned to the ground in 962, leaving her heartbroken, as she lost everything including her pet dogs and cats. The Psikla family took her in and cared for until the summer of 1963, when she moved to her sister Sarah's home where she died on November 29 1963, in her 98th year

ARVI NIEMELA FAMILY

Arvi Niemela came from Haapajarvi Finland in 1928 to Vancouver, B.C. where he worked at various logging camps until he moved to the Eckville district where he practised his trade as a carpenter and is well known for the numerous houses and barns he built.

He married Hilja Talsma in 1936 and they have two daughters, Mabel and Eleanor Mabel Eastwood) is a lawyer in Vancouver and has three daughters, Claire, Judy and Susan Eleanor (Mrs. Leo Popow lives in Lacombe and has three children, Kelly, Greg and Lisa

PALM, JOHN — HISTORY OF A HOME STEADER

John John Fredrik Palm was born on July 15, 1861 in Pyhajarvi, Finland. Exactly why or when he came to North America is unknown Perhaps, like many other Scandinavian immigrants, he had heard of a "better life" and the opportunity to own land here He worked at several jobs in North America Probably around 1902 or 1903, John Palm met Eva Johanna Ostlin, also a Finnish emigrant. She had been born at Uusikaupunki, Finland, on September 14, 1870 After coming to North America, she lived for a while in Montreal, working in a private home The couple were married in Calumet, Michigan in 1903, and moved shortly afterward to Butte Montana, where Mr Palm worked in a mine

It was also in Butte that John Palm saw a map of land available for homesteading in Alberta (then part of the Northwest Territories), and he chose a quarter section on the north bank of Sylvan Lake then known as Snake Lake. He filed his claim by telegraph, paid the required $10 fee and went back to work in the mine to build up his savings

Members of the Palm family first arrived in Alberta in January 1905, when Mrs. Palm made the journey by rail to Red Deer With her were 17 year old Frank, Mr Palm's son by previous marriage in Finland, her six-year old daughter Aille, and the couple's year-old son Willie. Mr Palm meanwhile remained in Butte Mrs. Palm and the children stayed in Red Deer for several days until Mr Koski of Eckville happened to make the trip and gave them a lift to the district During the next few months, the new arrivals stayed with the Herman Johnson family, who lived about five miles from the Palm homestead

Over the winter Frank crossed the frozen lake to the property and with the help of neighbors, built a log shack. In September 1905 his father arrived and the family moved into their new home

Although John had selected his land sight unseen, he must at least have been pleased with the natural beauty of the surroundings. His home and farm buildings were situated on a hill overlooking a bay of Sylvan Lake. Throughout ea were stands of spruce, poplar and birch n all, a setting which must have reminded him of Finland

To obtain title to a homestead a settler had to acquire 15 head of cattle and clear a specified amount of land — conditions that were not always easy for new homesteaders to meet. But the settlers were accustomed to using their wits n difficult situations and meeting the government's conditions was no exception. For example, it was said that cattle belonging to a Mr Upland were borrowed time and time again by various neighbors wishing to show government inspector the required number of cattle. As well, it wasn t unusual for homesteaders to show an inspector a cleared piece of land, lead the official through thick timber to another clearing and then perhaps on to a third. After several such expeditions, the inspector could say that he had seen in total the correct amount of clearing when in fact he might have seen one patch of aring from several different directions. But government inspectors overlooked such

In the early part of this century, self-reliance was a necessity and the homesteaders became skilled at all kinds of work, although not always with good results. Such was the case when Mr Palm invented a harrow made out of spruce. He left the boughs on the tree, each branch about a oot long. He sawed the trunks in half with the flat side up. Using willow he lashed on cross pieces and finally, added shafts for the implement to be pulled by horse. Came the day to hitch up the horse. Mr Palm had a standard harness which included side blinds. But he was a kind man perhaps a bit too kind on this occasion — and it occurred to him that the horse too, should have the right to see. So he cut off the side blinds. The horse took one startled look at the contraption behind him, and took off. John lost hold of the reins, the horse got away and both animal and harrow went over the lake bank, the horse landing on its back. Mr Palm lost no time in cutting the lugs and freeing the horse. But the harrow stayed in its watery resting place for years — and it's a good bet that family and friends didn't mention the harrow episode too often in John s presence.

The Palm s food supply was heavily dependent upon the family cow and a small garden spot. But the surroundings also offered many sources of food. With home-made nets and sinkers made out of birch bark and stones fish were netted and hooked, supplying the family winter and summer with fish. Rabbits were snared in winter, and in the fall ducks, geese and partridges supplemented the family's meals. Raspberries, saskatoons and blueberries were canned for winter use. Some homesteaders ate deer and bear meat. It was said that Mrs. Palm always kept a kettle of soup simmering on the stove and that all visitors were fed even though she may have had to add a little water to the pot. Staples such as flour were carried by Frank Palm from Evarts store, a stop on the old freight trail between Red Deer and Rocky Mountain House 13 miles from the Palm homestead.

Cool, clear drinking water was provided by natural flowing springs in summer, and from holes dug in the ice during winter. Lake water however had to be strained to remove small bugs. In 1917 or 1918 John dug his own well. In the district wells ranged between 15 and 50 feet in depth.

In 1910 the Palm family returned to Butte Montana, to the mines, but they were back on the homestead the following year.

Clearing of land was the biggest job facing the settlers. In those days you were making headway if you cleared an acre of land each year as well as keeping up the farm work. Grass in both the slough and treed areas was cut with a scythe and stacked for winter animal feed. One method of clearing timber was burning it repeatedly for two or three summers. Some of the timber on the Palm place was so thick that it was almost impossible to burn. In 1911 Mr. Palm began logging and hired a man to saw the poplar timber with a steam engine. The sawing was done on shares with the sawyer getting half of the lumber and Mr. Palm used some of the rough teen dollars per thousand.

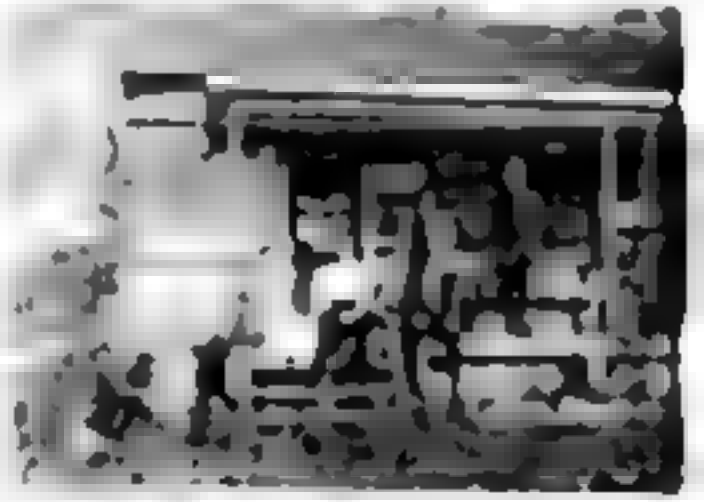
An important agricultural milestone in the community occurred when Henry Talson bought a hand-fed type of threshing machine. Called a Stanley Jones thresher it had a stationary motor and a straw carrier onto which the men forked piled straw. In 1918 John and three neighbors, Oscar Karjala, Henry Johnson, and a Mr. Leukuma, formed a company and bought their own threshing machine for two thousand dollars. They paid for it by doing custom work for other neighbors.

John had a second sideline, a leather tannery, run in co-operation with Pete Holappa. The operation consisted of a log building housing two wooden tanks about seven feet in diameter and five feet deep. Cow or horse hides were first soaked in the lake to soften them. Willow bark cut and gathered in summer was cut into two inch lengths and added to one of the tanks. The animal hair was removed in the lime barrel. After thorough cleaning, the hides were placed in the tannery for six weeks. They were stirred, hammered, and worked until they were pliable and ready to use. Mr. Palm made footwear for his family and neighbours, as well as horse harness and similar items.

Danger and health problems were a way of life for the early homesteaders. The food supply was at times uncertain and a shortage of good food contributed to illness and death. Infant mortality was high. Three of the Palm children died in infancy due to prolonged sickness, no doctor or medicine. Mary (Nielsen) was born in 1914. There was little money for anything beyond life's necessities, and of course, hard work and new problems always faced the settlers.

Black bears were often bothersome. A nearby homesteading minister had been troubled by a bear robbing his supplies. One evening the minister saw movement at the window, so grabbed his gun and shot the offender. The following evening he again saw movement at the window. Thinking that the bear had had a friend, the minister again took his gun and shot – only to discover he had killed his one and only cow.

The settlers around the north end of Sylvan Lake gradually developed a community spirit. In 1916 they met and decided to request a post office. Mr. Palm was delegated to send in the application, which was granted. It then became his duty to make a weekly trip to Eckville to pick up the mail. For this service Mr. Palm was paid fifteen dollars per month, a welcome addition to the family income. The post office continued until May 2, 1922, when Mr. Carritt began delivering mail on a route from Bentley. Probably because of the mail service the area became known as Palm Bay and that name was used on birth certificates and other official documents for years.



Saturday night was, of course, sauna night. Saunas in the settlement were the old type consisting of an open fire in the center of a steam room with a pipe to let the smoke out. Every Saturday evening perhaps six or eight visitors would arrive at the Palm home, for their mail and a bath. First the women and girls would visit the sauna, then the men and boys. A refreshing dip in the lake usually accompanied the bath. The rest of the evening was spent in conversation, ending with coffee and lunch. Sunday was a day of rest, with people completing only necessary work. Papers were read and neighbors visited.

Boating, swimming, and the annual Finnish mid-summer holiday in June were the main summer activities. Around 1920 the Elsperh and Young People's Halls were built, and the quickly became centres for dances, box socials and Christmas concerts, adding greatly to the community life.

John Palm continued to farm until about 1937 when he retired to Sylvan Lake. He died on September 2, 1939 and Mrs. Palm died April 22, 1945. Both are buried in the Sylvan Lake cemetery.

It is interesting to try to imagine what Mr. and Mrs. Palm would think of what has become of their property today. Nothing remains of their buildings. Most of the quarter has been cleared, and the land belongs to a developer who will soon likely chop the property into what the real estate trade might call "prime lakeside lots", which will sell at prices far beyond John Palm's wildest dreams. We can do nothing but accept the situation, and perhaps occasionally reflect upon the homesteaders who first settled on the land.

RUSSELL, DOUGLAS H.

Douglas H. Russell was born in Edinburgh, Scotland and came to Canada in 1907. He and his brother, Len, worked for farmers in southern Alberta prior to buying adjoining land three miles west of Trochu, Alberta. Douglas married Edith M. Smith in 1928. Douglas and Edith have resided in Victoria for the past several years, but have come back to Alberta every summer to spend time at their cottage at Pigeon Lake.

While Douglas and Edith lived at Trochu two sons were born: Ian and Alan. Dry years during the 1930's made it necessary for Edith to return to the teaching profession, and she secured a teaching position at the Diamond Valley school. In 1939 Douglas purchased the E 4-40-2-W5, one mile west of Boyle School, where Edith was teaching at that time.

In 1940 the family moved from Trochu to the new farm. They had been raising Clydesdale horses and Shorthorn cattle, and these were moved to the new farm. Their first dwelling was a granary borrowed from Victor Johanson, then a temporary house was built during the summer of 1940, in addition to a 15 by 16 foot straw-roofed barn and a storage shed, the shed still being used.

Less than 30 acres were cultivated when the farm was purchased, but through the years from 1940 to 1949 the more easily cleared portions of the land was cleared by the family, but after this custom clearing was done. Douglas sold his Clydesdale horses in 1944 and bought his first tractor, a 1928 Wallis. The next tractor acquired was a 1948 John Deere "D" purchased in 1950. This tractor is still used on the farm during haying season.

In 1952 Douglas discontinued active farming, but Edith continued teaching at Boyle, Saima, Evarts, Condor, and various other schools until her retirement in 1969.

Ian Russell began his electrical apprenticeship in 1950 and has been working at that trade since then, his work mainly being in Edmonton. In 1963 he married Doris Upton, from Rumsey, and they have a son, Kevin. In spite of hearing problems that eventually led to total deafness, Ian has continued to work at his trade.

In 1955 Alan married June Johnson from Clandonald, and they have two sons, Brian and Gary. For about 10 years Alan was employed by oil companies. In 1963 Alan and June bought the home farm and have resided there since 1964. Their holdings were increased by the purchase of the Albert Westphal quarter in 1971 and the Emil Karl quarter in 1972. These two quarters adjoin the home farm.

THE ERIC SOLBERG STORY

Eric and Mattea Solberg were married in Romedal, Norway, on June 6, 1879. After a few years they decided to make a move to America, so Eric left to find a place for his family. A year later, Mrs. Solberg set out with four young children, Marie, Ole, John and Anna, to join her husband. Boat travel in those days was not as luxurious or comfortable as we know it today. She liked to tell the story of how they had purchased a good, strong length of material for straw to use as a mattress for the journey across the ocean. The intention was to have the material for use in their new home. The day came when they would be leaving the ship and she decided that now was the time to empty out the straw, so she dragged the mattress over to the rail and was attempting to shake out the straw. The captain of the ship saw her struggling with it and, thinking that it was her intention to dispose of it, he came to her assistance. To her great dismay with a mighty push he shoved the entire mattress overboard. Her precious piece of material was gone!

They journeyed to Sisseton, South Dakota U.S.A. where they put up a sod house. The first winter was a hard one, with blizzards sweeping over the wide-open prairie, snow so deep as to cover the windows and block the doorway. They lived many miles from a town where supplies could be purchased, so it meant a journey of several days with a team and wagon to go to town and back for the necessary groceries and sundry other items needed for the home. Needless to say, these trips weren't frequent.

The Solberg home was situated next to an Indian reservation, so it was not uncommon to have frequent visits from the Indians. The Indians at this time were still somewhat savage, but the Solbergs, while a bit apprehensive, never really feared for their lives. Mrs. Solberg was called on occasionally to act as mid-wife by the Indians. She was well liked by them and they eventually referred to her as their "White Mother".

In 1907 Mr. and Mrs. Solberg once again decided to make a move, so they came north to Canada to settle in the district west of Bentley. Here they settled and farmed on NE 9-40-2-W5. The land was covered with heavy bush and had to be cleared by hand, but Mr. Solberg was a strong man and it wasn't long before he had a few acres opened in which to plant a crop. Their two eldest sons, Ole and John, had come to the area a few years earlier.

Grandma and Grandpa Solberg. Mom (Eklund's) mother and [illegible]

Their experiences in this new country however were not to be without its share of anxiety and tragedy. The first night in this district was spent at the home of their son Ole, approximately one-half mile north of where the Boyle school was to stand in future years. On the following morning their youngest son, eight year-old Gilbert, had gone outdoors with the intention of inspecting and exploring the surroundings. Having come from the bald prairie of South Dakota, he was, no doubt, intrigued by the abundance of tall trees. He spied a squirrel and started to follow its antics in the tree tops. Of course he soon became lost and couldn't find his way back to the house. There were no roads or fence lines to follow. He walked all day and towards evening he came upon a house. Even at this young age he wouldn't admit that he was lost or hungry. However, he went to the door, knocked, and asked the bachelor there for a drink of water. The bachelor, a Mr. Schrader, realized that the child was lost so he took him in, fed him, and kept him there for the night, or until such time as someone came searching for him. A search party had been organized by this time, with the pre-arranged signals of rifle shots to signify when he was found—one shot if dead, or two shots if alive. Mr. Schrader's home was about one mile south of where in later years Salma School was to be situated. So Gilbert had wandered a considerable distance through the woods from the house in the Boyle district. It is with certainty that there was a joyous reunion. A few years later tragedy struck when their 16 year-old son, Edwin, died as the result of a hunting accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Solberg were active in the community and were among the early members of the congregation of the Vig Lutheran Church. Mrs. Solberg was one of the founding members of the Church Ladies Aid. Their door was always open to whomever should pass their way and they made everyone welcome. It was the site of many community picnics and dances, too. Mrs. Solberg, having been a dairy-maid during her youth in the old country, was especially adept at making many varieties of cheeses. Perhaps I should explain here that being a dairy-maid meant that the young girls would take the dairy cows up on the mountainsides to summer pasture. Here their duties were not only to herd the cows, but to care for the milk and cream by making butter and cheese.

Mrs. Solberg would spend long hours carding and spinning great amounts of homespun yarn which she would knit into warm socks, mittens and other garments for her family. One member of her family recalled how often he would waken in the morning to the familiar whir-r-r- of the spinning wheel, roll over for a few more minutes of peaceful sleep, secure in the feeling of well being. To Mrs. Solberg, the time spent at her spinning wheel was truly relaxation. Mr. Solberg, too, had his hobby, which was the gathering of soft willow shoots. These he would soak in water for a time to make them supple and these he would fashion into baskets of various sizes. Some of these baskets were even used as a bed for a young baby. Loving children as he did, there were many of his grandchildren and great grandchildren who were the recipients of his hand-woven willow rattle. Mrs. Solberg was always willing to lend a helping hand whenever needed and many a time she was called on to act as mid-wife. She helped to bring many a baby into the world, as the nearest doctor at that time was in Lacombe.

Mr. and Mrs. Solberg farmed until the mid twenties when they sold their farm equipment and retired. For a short time they lived in a house owned by their son-in-law E. G. Erickson. This house was on the old "Kidd" place. From there they moved into a house owned by their son Ole while a new house was being constructed for them on the north shore of Sylvan Lake. (This is now part of The Breakers subdivision.) This was a log house built by the late Victor Johanson. Eventually they moved into this house where they were to spend their remaining years. As in the years on the farm, this home, too, proved to be a gathering place for many a family picnic and get-togethers for the community. Eric loved to go out in his rowboat and catch a fish or two for dinner. Matthea continued with her spinning and knitting throughout the years. Summer days would find her out searching for the wild raspberries that grew so abundantly in the bush along the lakeshore. She had always had a cow or more to care for and these she refused to part with until a very few years before her death. Eric was very proud of his garden, especially the fact that he was able to grow a plum tree from seed that eventually bore fruit. At that time there were very few fruit-producing trees in the area, if any.

They celebrated their Diamond Wedding Anniversary in June, 1939. At that time there were 54 grandchildren and 46 great-grandchildren. Eric passed away in November, 1941 and Matthea followed in February, 1945. They are buried in the cemetery of the Vig Lutheran Church, now known as Grace Lutheran Church.

There were eight children. Marie became Mrs. J. P. (Pete) Christiansen. Marie and Pete had 14 children before Marie passed away in June, 1967. Ole married Allie Palm and they had two sons. Ole died in January, 1978. John, who married Sophia Vig, had 16 children. For many years John was the mail carrier between Bentley and Rimbey. He lived in his own home in Bentley until November, 1977 when, at the age of 92 years, he became a resident of the Eckville Manor in Eckville. Besides being well known for the Norwegian rocking chairs which he makes, his ability to handle the fiddle and the bow has won him many trophies in old-time fiddling contests in Red Deer, Stettler and Rimbey. Mr. Solberg and his fiddle have kept company for the past 73 years—since he bought it second-hand to play his first square dance in 1904. He recently picked up his golden violin to play for his son Edwin's golden wedding anniversary party in [illegible].

Anna married Aidor Eklund. To them eight children were born. Anna died in Sidney, B.C. in February, 1971.

Sever married Bertha Benson and to them were born nine children. He passed away in February, 1977.

Edwin died at the age of 16 years as a result of a hunting accident.

Minnie married E. G. (Fred) Erickson. They had four children. Fred passed away in 1937. In 1948 Minnie married J. E. (Jack) Sunnell. She now lives in her home in Sylvan Lake.

Gilbert married Olga Johanson. There were three sons born to them. Gilbert passed away in

PIONEER DAYS OF MR. AND MRS. S CAIRNS — by Hilda Cairns

They called it "back to the land" but I call it "back to the bush", which was a big change for us prairie folks There were six families who shipped cattle, horses, and household articles from Medicine Hat to Rimbey, Alberta, the railway station nearest to our destination. We came by train, and some of the men folks came with the equipment on the train. After unloading and reloading from the stock cars, we started on our way, which was about 25 miles west to the Aurora District at that time. The roads were nearly impassable as it was one of those wet springs in 1933. After a long tiresome trip we arrived at the deserted "Indian Cabins" It was like a small village, as there were six families and about 22 young folks, most of them of school age What an experience! Some of the folks had never been away from city lights

Mr Cairns (always known as "Stub") and myself, Hilda, had three boys at that time. Elton the oldest, was 13 years old. Raymond was 10 years old and Gordon was eight years old. They all attended the Aurora School, where they received a Grade 8 education. We did not stay on the original land, but farmed with Mr H Freitag on a share basis

Later we had a new addition to our family — a little girl, Yvonne, born on November 12, 1936. As the boys grew up, they left the district Raymond returned to Medicine Hat for a visit, as he had several uncles and aunts there on his father's side He got work in the ammunition factory and later Gordon joined him there Elton joined the army in 1941. Soon after this Raymond also joined, and Gordon joined the navy

About 1941 we left the district as we were too far from transportation when the boys had left home. We went to work for J Sunell in the Blackfalds District for a time Later, as Yvonne became of school age we moved to Sylvan Lake Mr Cairns had a dray business for several years but when the gas was piped in, he gave up his horses and went to work for an oil company for several years. We bought our home here in Sylvan Lake in 1942, and have lived here ever since We celebrated our golden wedding anniversary in 1970. Mr Cairns (Stub) passed away very suddenly in 1972. In 1973, I sold the home and now I live in the Sylvan Manor

A little more about my family

Elton married Edna Snell in 1945 They have one son, Garry who lives in Edmonton

Raymond married Muriel Chapman in 1943, and they have two girls. Raymond took up residence in Medicine Hat before going overseas, and still lives there Muriel passed away in 1976

Gordon married Evylin Ross in 1951 They had two boys. Doug was killed in a pipeline accident in 1973. Don is a professional hockey player Gord and Ev adopted a little boy Martin, in 1965 They live in Calgary

Yvonne married George Ross in 1957 They had two boys, Darcy and Dwight, and a girl Crystal They all made their home in Sylvan Lake where they all went to school

There are many things left out of our years since then, but space won't permit telling of all our experiences. I have made many new friends but still miss the old pioneer friends

CAMPBELL, GLADYS AND FAMILY

Gladys Andrews was born January 3, 1905 to George and Lena Andrews in Ruck, Oklahoma She came to Lacombe in the spring of 1905. They moved to a homestead at Buffalo Lake in the fall of 1906. In 1922 Gladys married Bill Campbell

On August 17, 1923, a son, Robert Campbell was born. On August 1, 1924 Clifford was born and Charlie arrived on November 11, 1926. He passed away in February 1927 at the age of three months.

In 1928 the Campbells separated and on January 12, 1930 Gladys Campbell came to keep house for R. C. Block in the Aurora district. In April 1930 Gladys went back to Bashaw, Alberta to bring her sons, Bob and Clifford, back with her.

J. B. CORNFORTH — by Lavina Robinson

The Joe Cornforth family arrived in the Leedale District from Bellseker, where Joe was a barber and also at Joffrey and Rimbey. Finally they settled on the SE 24-41-5-W5, right next door to the Aurora School, which was kept well supplied with Cornforth children for the next 16 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornforth had a large family and all were born at home except the last one, number 13. He was born in the Rimbey Hospital. Occasionally Dr. Byers would make a call at the farm, but it was always hours after a baby was born. Each new baby was cause for great excitement for all members of the family, and oh, how we loved those little bundles!

Starting in 1918 with Ruby, the eldest there followed Jean, Clara, Sidney, Joe, Ivan, Lavina, Elaine, Lorraine, Ben, David, Katherine and Delbert, the youngest, in 1940. On February 17, 1943 Sidney passed away in the Rimbey Hospital and in March, 1959 Joe Jr. was killed in a truck accident at Lodgepole. By 1976 the Cornforth clan numbered 11 living children, 54 grandchildren and 52 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Cornforth was an ardent trader and dealer. He also cut a lot of posts and wood, and sold these to provide for the needs of his growing family. Ruby soon went out to work in the Bellseker area, and Jean and Clara, when about 14 years of age, went to work in the Bentley area. They started their jobs at $5. per month, and gradually increased to $15. a month. Out of this wage they managed to send home a few dollars each month to help support the younger members of the family.

There was a small lean-to addition on the north side of our house, where for many years we boarded a succession of school teachers for extra income. For some years previous to 1945, the mom of this large household of children made weekly cream pick-ups in the district and delivered the cans to Myers' Store in Leedale.

Mr. Cornforth served as trustee and as secretary on the Aurora School Board for many years. He was the jolly old Santa Claus for many years at Aurora's Christmas concerts. When he moved to Ontario he carried on the Christmas Santa tradition in Eaton's store in Lindsay, Ontario for many years. The last two years even Santa got modernized, and he landed at the store by helicopter.

Mrs. Cornforth was a member of, and a hard worker for, the Ladies Sewing Club as long as she lived in the district. At a farewell party the club presented her with a cushion with all the members' signatures hand embroidered on it. She and all her children attended the Aurora Church and Sunday School.

In the early spring of 1946 Dad Cornforth and Elaine left for Ontario to find a new place for the rest of the family to move on. Many relatives already lived down east.

On April 5, 1946, Russel Cole, of Rimbey, a young, but promising auctioneer held his very first auction on the farm of the Cornforths. Several days later Ivan and Joe took mom, along with five brothers and sisters, by team and wagon to the Leslieville railway station. There Mrs. Cornforth bade farewell to Alberta, and headed for a new life in rural Ontario. The Cornforths took six of their children to Ontario and left six grown-up ones in Alberta.

Joe and Mrs. Cornforth celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on November 14, 1966. Mr. Cornforth passed away on January 14, 1967, and Mrs. Cornforth on April 14, 1967 in Lindsay, On-

ELLIOT ELMER — by Jack Elliot

Early in the spring of 1934 Dad loaded up all the machinery on a hay rack and grain tank for a move to a farm in the Aurora district west of Leedale. Accompanying him on the trip was his brother-in-law, Lou Hicks. Both men drove four horse outfits and trailed another team on the grain boxes. They cooked and slept outside but had binder canvasses to make shelter if rain did

Dad and Mother decided to leave the farm they had bought in 1925, eight miles east of High River. Drought and grasshoppers, along with the depression made them think that a move to a homestead would be no worse choice.

Dad, Charles Elmer Layfayette Elliott, was born in 1890 at Burford, Ontario, and Mother, Ruby Pearl Hicks, was born in 1892 near Sarnia, Ontario. Dad came with his folks to settle west of High River in 1906, and Mother's folks settled just south of High River in 1906. Mother and Dad were married at High River in 1916. There were three children born there by 1922. Charlie, Jack and Gordon. Shortly after Gordon was born the folks moved to Sarnia, Ontario where Dad worked for Imperial Oil in the surrounding oil fields. In 1925 they moved back to High River and the farm they bought. While in Ontario, a fourth boy was born to the family, Walter.

Immediately after school was out in 1934, Mother along with two boys started the trip of trailing 15 head of cattle, accompanied by a team, Bennett wagon, and all the camping gear on the same 200 mile route that Dad had taken earlier that spring. As far as Calgary Jack and Gordon were with their mother, but from Calgary to Leedale, Gordon and Walter had the trailing chore. Most of the trip was blessed with good weather. Every day there was the constant problem of cattle along, or on, the road getting mixed with our herd. On two occasions the horses broke loose and tried to go home. The trip took 12 days. From Calgary north the pasture on the road sides was quite good, but on the whole trip it took a lot of foot work to keep the cattle moving along.

The summer of 1934 was abnormally dry at our new home. Dad had the Wallace farm rented for that year. The hay crop that year was very poor or none existent. Part of the cattle herd was sold for what little could be realized in the hopes of being able to winter the cows and calves. The change from the prairie to bush for the cattle and horses took its toll and many did not live to see the grass next spring. There was shortage of good feed along with shortage of money, that was the lot of homesteading in the mid thirties.

Gordon and Walter went to Aurora school that first year. There was a very large enrollment for one teacher to handle. Most every quarter was occupied by a homesteader in 1933-34. Many of the homesteads were heavy bush land. With few livestock and no crop land most of the homesteaders got jobs in saw mills or working for neighbors. The highest wage was about $1 a day. Most of the jobs were at the rate of $5 to $15 per month with board. With the long hours spent working outside and much of it in the cold, it made a person appreciate the end of a long day. The crackling log fire, a satisfying if not fancy meal, family, friends and companionship were the essence of living and hope for the future.

Jobs in the summer often entailed leaving the district for the prairie to get a little better pay and steadier work. Some of these trips were probably partly wonderlust from being teen agers. Most years we came back in time for harvest. During the 30's I hauled bundles for Tom Cummings, Harry Thomas, Feilx and Elmer Mathews, Jervel Maddox and Artie and Stanley Hollingsworth. Those threshing excursions, aside from the 11 hour days did give us a chance to meet many farmers, and get better acquainted with the district. It's surprising, but most of the farmers kept their daughters pretty busy while the threshers were around. The hard work didn't stop the hilarity of finding a barley bundle for a bed partner or a greased outhouse seat for after dark use. (I did hear rumors that the gentleman of the house had made the first trip to the outhouse and not the daughter though.

In the winter of 1934-35 a shining star started over the horizon that gave most everybody a little more hope. A Social Credit group was formed at Aurora that held meetings every two weeks followed by a dance. The school was crowded for every event. There was lots of discussion at every meeting along with lots of expectation. About the time the meeting was over the refreshments would arrive. It helped get the dance off to a good start as well as kept it going to the late hours of the morning. The dollar paid for the bottle seemed a small price to pay. The music was supplied by Ival and Earl Johnston, Teddy Evernden, the Lyons' family, as well as other musicians who happened to come through the district.

In the summer of 1935 our youngest brother, Ronald, was born. We were in the process of building a house on dad's homestead where good building logs were easy to come by. The lumber came from logs taken to Lawton's mill where they were sawed on a share or cash basis. We moved to the homestead in the spring of 1936 after living the previous winter in the hip roofed Johnson house that was owned then by Wilson Cox. NW 35

January of 1936 will be remembered as one of the coldest experienced. The thermometer hovered at or below -40 F. about —30 C) for three weeks. It barely got to 30 or 40 degrees below minus 40 C) in the day time. It took most of the time to just haul wood and buck it up for stove lengths. Trips out to haul feed and get groceries meant really dressing warmly and doing a lot of

was none existent in the winter. The narrow gauge sleigh tracks over the snow drifts were not for tires to follow. Anti freeze and vehicle heaters were unheard of.

CHARLIE went back to High River and stayed with his grandparents the Hicks. At Christmas 1935 he came in to see us but left immediately to attend the Texas Boys Parliament at the University in Edmonton. Charlie worked in Penticton and High River until he went into the Air Force in 1941 where he trained as a radar technician. He was married to Jean Arton of Calgary in 1942. On the way to go overseas he contacted pneumonia while in Halifax, so he never got overseas. Jean joined him a little later and he spent the rest of the war years on the Charlie went to U.B.C. after the war and completed his electrical engineering. He has worked with Westinghouse at Hamilton since 1949, and is due to retire in July 1978. Charlie and Jean have two daughters, Caroline, who married Randy Kowalski and lives in Hamilton, and Sharon married Joe Codispodi and lives in Calgary.

I Jack am the writer of this story and the rest of my history follows in a separate article.

GORDON. In June of 1939 tragedy struck our family, when our brother Gordon, along with his friend Edgar Robinson, were both killed in an accident near Penticton B.C.

WALTER was the only one of our family attending school at Aurora after 1936. In the 1938-39 term Walter worked at Trenholms' (a mile south of Leedale), and went to high school at Leedale. He rode a small white mule to school and out home on weekends. That mule's head was only on the right end occasionally. The next year Walter stayed home and rode a bike, or horse, as conditions dictated. That year he had Oliver Misner, Steve Johnson and Doreen Mason to share the long trip. It was a ride of 9 miles daily plus several gates to open. One morning he left home at 4 a.m. and pedal biked to Calgary where he worked until he joined the Navy in 1942. He saw a lot of duty on the high seas. Most of his time was spent on convoy duty in the Atlantic but he was taken off that long enough to take part in the Allied landing in North Africa, Sicily and the D Day landing in Normandy. After the war he settled in Calgary and married Mary Lehto of Barons.

For years Walter did cost and payroll accounting for Conforce in Calgary. Then he changed jobs in about 1970 and is now with Dome Petroleum. Walter and Mary have two daughters, Wendy, a school teacher and Judy who is in Junior High.

The folks stayed on the farm until 1950 at which time Ronald had most of his public schooling at Aurora. The farm was sold to Richard Harriman and the folks and Ronald moved to Red Deer.

RONALD finished his schooling in Red Deer and worked for the city for a couple of years. He joined the Air Force in 1959 and has completed training as a navigator, radar controller, and pilot. He spent the last six months of 1965 on a tour of duty in Egypt as a staff pilot on the Canadian Peace Keeping force. He has had numerous moves and is now stationed in Winnipeg as a staff pilot. Ron married an Ottawa girl in 1962. He and Pat have two sons and a daughter.

After the folks moved to Red Deer, mother worked as a seamstress at the P.T.S. for seven years and dad did janitor work at their church. Upon retiring in 1958 they moved to the Twilight Cottages. Dad passed away in 1961. Mother moved again in 1967 to the Centennial Court. Mother passed away in 1974. They are both buried at the Red Deer cemetery.

While living at the Kinsmen Twilight Cottages and Centennial Court, the folks really enjoyed their many new friends and old acquaintances.

ELMER JACK

The beginnings of my history are in the previous Elmer Elliot story, now I shall continue with the next 40 years of my story. 1937-1977.

In the summer of 1937 I worked out and bought a team of horses. That winter I stayed home and cut posts and wood for sale. I was also able to cut and sell telephone poles for the Leedale to Rumbey telephone line, and I donated 20 poles to the group as a sort of line share. From 1939 on it meant going to the saw mills as the tamarack was all gone on section 37.

In the fall of '38 Bill Gardner and myself rode the freight to Penticton B.C. I stayed and worked at a bush camp that winter. Bill, along with my brother Gordon, and Sidney Cornforth who were both out there too, came back to Leedale just before Christmas. Early in June of 1939, Paul Heringer, Edgar Robinson, and my brother Gordon were on their way to Penticton in an accident between Summerland and Penticton, Gordon and Edgar were killed. I came back home with Paul immediately.

That fall war broke out in Europe. The war for the time being seemed far removed. Gradually the war became more real as the men started to join the services. National registration was held in the summer of 1940. The continuing news of a worsening Allied situation gradually drew our lives more into the war effort

. worked at Lawton's mill bush camp in the winters of 39-40 and 40-41 Their mill had been in the Aurora district on Cox's land until about 1937 NE 26 Lawton's mill had operated one winter before I worked there at the new location, that was approximately four miles west of McTighe's. The two winters spent at Lawton s were not too rewarding, about a dollar a day I worked for Stanley Hollingsworth and Ted Pimm as they had the bush contract. The cross cut and swede saws were the order of the day, with all the skidding and hauling being done by horses

The bunkhouse banter and a
making the long cold days go f
was quite eager to go to the camps in the fall, but when the warmer days of spring beckoned it didn't take long to break camp. Many lifelong friendships were made at these camps, that along with the memories will not be forgotten

In the spring of 1941 I was working for Stanley Hollingsworth hauling logs from the McTighe bush to the mill when we weren't stuck However, the bush dried up fast and we were making good time until that fateful day of April 26. (Thinking of it now I believe Stanley and I would have been just as well playing in the bush with the squirrels, instead of hauling logs to be burned up at another spot). I will not dwell on the fire of that fateful day other than to repeat the words of Jack Collingson who stood with me in the McTighe s blacksmith shop and watched it burning on three sides. Jacks words were, "This is worse than sitting in a submarine at the bottom of the Dardanelles and having the Turks depth charging us during the first World War

I went over to Jones' mill and fought fire for two weeks after that The wages were 25¢ an hour less board of $1 a day In spite of that, I did make $5 a day a couple of times when conditions got a little hot. The Saturday night revellers that were conscripted and trucked to Jones' to fight fire were about the worst equipped army of fire fighters that were ever assembled. There were about 120 men at Jones that Sunday morning that missed church service. A couple of days later we were down to about 20 men. We heard rumours that there wasn't an able bodied man to be found in Rimbey the next Saturday night

About this time things were coming to a head pretty fast. I had lost all my clothes at McTighe's fire and conscription calls were coming fast They gave the offer of clothes supplied plus $1 30 a day When my call came in July, I willingly went and joined the air force. active on the second day. I was among the first at Edmonton Manning Depot From there I went to Lethbridge, a new station that was Number 3 B & G. in the Commonwealth Air Training plan. In the service I was an aero engine mechanic and the work was really enjoyable. Many lifelong and rewarding aquaintances were made while in camp I was trained at the time the big air force build up was being made overseas

With the hope of going overseas gone, Florence Richardson and I were married on May 3, 1943 at my folks' house on the homestead Rev Habermel conducted the service and Bruce Johnson and Florence's younger sister Edna stood up for us. We left immediately for Lethbridge as my furlough was running out Florence's history is in the Ed Richardson s story that she wrote

I was stationed at Lethbridge until January 1 1945, at which time the station was closed From there it was No. 3 S.F T S. at Calgary where I got my discharge later in 1945

We went up to Jones' mill in 1945 and I drove a cat there until we got a farm in the fall of 1949 The land, W½ 36-41 5 is still our home. We bought it from Ralph and Margaret Johnson who were retiring to British Columbia Johnsons had got their home quarter from Jim Monohan in 1937 and later bought the quarter across the road from Thomas s in 19

We have spent the last thirty years on the farm. We went into the dairy business, and now my second son Milton has joined me in partnership, also my two youngest, Johnny and Dixie. work with us

In the summer of 1976 we had the misfortune to have a disastrous fire which destroyed our barns and milking equipment We moved our cows to a farm east of Leedale and milked there twice a day until we could build new facilities again on our own farm. We have enlarged our set up and now milk on the average of 75 cows. The milk is trucked out every other day to Red Deer

Florence and I have raised a family of three sons and three daughters and we have six

Before Florence and I went on holidays to Hamilton Ontario in mid November 1977 she sat down and wrote the story of her family in this area, the Ed Richardsons. Unfortunately this was to be her last story. While having a wonderful time she took sick on December 4 at my brother's place in Hamilton and passed away on December 9, 1977 at St. Joseph's Hospital.

We had been married almost 35 years. She was really looking forward to the compiling of this book on the history of the district she knew and loved so well.

ELLIOT, M

I Milton Elliot am the second son of Jack and Florence Elliot. On February 20, 1970, I married Patricia Levinsky at Rocky Mountain House. We have three children, Trevor Allan, Shayne Edward, and Tracy Elaine.

After a few years working out on seismic rigs and soil testing outfits that took me all over the country I went as far north as to where I washed my hands in the Arctic Ocean. I was just like a gypsy and always away from home so I decided I was going to make a change.

As I liked the farm very much I decided to go into partnership with my father which I did. I am now living on the SW 36-41-5-W5, (the former Thomas quarter) across the road from my folk's place. We are in the dairy business and are known as J and M Dairy.

THE ERSKINE FAMILY — by Robert Erskine

Because of the drought and depression of the "Hungry Thirties", the Erskine family moved from Oyen, Alberta, to greener pastures in the Carlos district SW 13-41-5-W5 north of Lesliеville in May 1934.

The father Samuel Erskine, born of Scottish parents on the Island of Antigua, died in 1937. The mother born in northern Scotland, (nee Hannah MacKay) died in 1953.

Jessie, their eldest child, was born in 1912 in Calgary. She married Russel Pendergast and they have two sons, Duane and Bruce. Jessie taught school for many years at Lone Deer and Rocky Mountain House. The Pendergasts are now retired, living at Lanzville, B.C. on Vancouver Island. Bruce Pendergast's son is the first great-grandchild born in the family.

Robert (Bob) was born in 1914, also in Calgary. He is the only one of the family remaining in the Carlos area. He has worked for some 25 years at developing varieties of plants for cold areas. Selections have been made of apple, crabapple, sandcherry, black, white and American currants, gooseberries, chokecherry, raspberry, and strawberry plants. Numerous rose and lily varieties have been selected, and a few potatoes, as well as a number of other plants.

Hannah was born at Oyen in 1916. Jessie and Hannah were both awarded the Lieutenant Governor's Bronze Medal on graduating from Grade VIII at Oyen. Hannah became a registered nurse and served overseas in the Armed Forces. After the war she received her M.A. degree from the University of British Columbia and a Ph. D. from the University of Illinois, U.S.A. She now lives in Washington D.C., U.S.A.

William (Bill) was born in 1918 at Oyen. During the Second World War he enlisted in the R.C.A.F. and trained as a pilot and navigator. He served as navigator with the same crew and plane on 33 bombing missions over Germany. He married Doris Gildes. They live at Toronto and have three daughters, Denise, Lynne and Cathy.

Rosina (Rose) is the youngest of five, born in 1923 at Oyen. She married Richard (Dick) Brookes. Their two children are Robert (Bob) and Linda. Linda is a registered nurse, working at the hospital in Rocky Mountain House. She is married to Barry Balch, a partner in the Link Hardware at Rocky Mountain House. Rose has taught school for many years at Rocky Mountain House.

GARDNER, WM. — by Eunice Gardner

William Riley Gardner, better known as "Bill" was born April 6 1913, at Wittenburg (Leedale) to the late Bill and Sara Gardner. His father died on July 4, 1921, when Bill was eight years old. His mother was in failing health and went to Washington U.S.A., where she was told she could be treated. She took Bill with her. They were there for two years, returning to Leedale in 1924. She passed away December 29, 1926. Shortly after, Bill went to live with his uncle, Tom Gardner where he stayed until he bought his own land in 1949. This was a quarter of C.P.R. land, the SW 31-41-4-W5. He still worked with his uncle during the spring seeding, summer haying and fall harvesting, until his uncle passed away in December 1950 at the age of 90 years.

Bill broke up much of his own land using an axe and horses. I believe it's safe to say he used horses longer than anyone for miles around. He broke many horses in his day both to ride and to harness. He also did a lot of castrating, of his own stock and the neighbors, right from tom cats to stallions, without charge.

During the hungry '30's, while most people were eating rabbits, he was eating deer and moose meat. The first wild game he shot was a big deer with a 22 short, at the age of 14 years.

The big game is getting pretty scarce due to good oil roads and road runners

On May 4, 1955, after putting in many miles and burning a lot of gas, he married the former Eunice Odland, youngest daughter of Jake and Lena Odland, of Bingley-Sleepy Valley district and they started raising a family. He wanted a son to name after his uncle Tom. On March 2, 1956 the first "Tom" was born, but it turned out to be a girl. They named her Helen Brenda, after Helen Gardner, Bill's youngest sister. On April 6, 1957, (on Bill's birthday) another "Tom" was born. They named this one Wilma Ellen. Wilma after William and Ellen being his mother's middle name. Finally, on August 2nd 1959, Thomas William did put in his appearance, therefore, they decided to leave well enough alone.

The three children took their schooling at the Leslieville Elementary and David Thompson High School. As soon as they left school they went out to work. Helen got a job at the Grand Hotel in Rimbey. Tom's first job was driving a road packer on road construction, and Wilma well she got married — to Michel Fortin, formerly of Ontario. They went to work on a dairy farm in the Lacombe area.

GRAY, ARNOLD — by Wanda Gray

Arnold Wade is the second oldest son of Gordon and Anna Gray. He was born on August 3, 1954 at Rocky Mountain House, Alta. He lived with his parents on their farm which was previously owned by his grandfather, (William

Arnold took his elementary schooling at Leslieville and his junior high at David Thompson. Everyday he had at least an hours bus ride to and from school. One day, however he didn't feel like going to school and his mother had to chase him down the lane with a stick! Arnold grew up like any other typical country boy, always into mischief.

Arnold's dad drove the government grader many years, for the community. One day, Gordon left the grader running and Arnold decided to play on it. Well, to his suprise he accidentally hit the gear shift and it started moving! He got so scared that he jumped off and ran to the out house to hide. In the mean time, Gordon looked out the window and saw both the grader going down the road and Arnold just a running. All of Arnolds efforts were unnecessary for shortly after, his dad showed him how to run it.

Arnold moved to Eckville to attend high school, where he lived with his aunt Viola Johnston. He worked at various jobs until he moved to Red Deer.

While Arnold was in Red Deer he worked for his brother in-law hauling house trailers. He had the job of driving the pilot car. Shortly after, Arnold met his bride-to-be Wanda Arlene Bunch.

Wanda is the daughter of Walter and Vivian Bunch. She was born on August 19, 1954 at Edmonton, Alta. Wanda grew up in the Eckville district where she attended elementary school. She lived with her parents on their farm until they moved to Red Deer in 1964. There she took her junior and senior high school. In 1970 her parents moved to the Athambra area and now reside in the Lesieville district. Wanda remained in Red Deer working at a variety of jobs before she met Arnold Gray.

Arnold and Wanda were married on August 26, 1972 at Rocky Mountain House. They bought a house trailer and lived at Arnold's dads farm for a few months. During the time they were there, Arnold worked for the neighbor farming. That same year they moved to Red Deer where they lived in Mayberry's Trailer Court for nearly two

In the spring of 1974, they returned to his father's farm. There they lived in their trailer while Arnold was employed with Kidd Construc

On June 23, 1974 Gordon Gray passed away at the age of 62. They remember him with love, and the respect he deserved as a kind hearted father.

Arnold's mother, Anna Gray moved to Eckville and sold the farm to Arnold and Wanda. They then sold their trailer and moved into the house where they are now residing.

Arnold and Wanda now have a daughter Shonastee Lynette. She was born on April 2, 1977, in Calgary, Alta. Shonastee is both a joy and a delight to her parents.

Arnold is still employed by Kidd Construction as a heavy equipment operator. They are renting out their farmland to their neighbor

GRAY CLARENCE

Clarence, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, was a small child when his parents moved to the Carlos area in 1912. He attended school at Washington Heights.

In 1937 he married Lois Pendergast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pendergast.

They built a log house on a homestead, in what later became the Lone Deer School district. The land was the N.W. 30-41-5-W5, and is now owned by Bill Whitely. The summers were spent on the homestead and the winters at various logging camps or saw mill.

In 1956 they moved to the Garth district west of Rocky Mountain House and a few years later to the Ferrier district. Clarence worked for Alberta Forest Service on road construction and maintenance in the Clearwater Forest Reserve for approximately 20 years.

Clarence and Lois (Bon) have two sons — Ronald and William. In 1960 RONALD married Patricia Lindsay of the Aurora district. They have one daughter Sandra, and one son Allen.

WILLIAM married Kay Martin of Eckville in 1970. They have one son, Kevin, and one daughter Wendy.

Ron and Bill and their families live in the Ferrier district, west of Rocky Mountain House.

Clarence and Bon continue to live in the Ferrier

GRAY, WILLIAM HENRY — as told by Viola Gray Johnston

In Ozark, Michigan William and Eleanor had fastened a canvas over the wagon box, and set out for Alberta Canada. We were living on an acreage at the time and my dad had worked as a river boat pilot and a sawyer My mother was a French Canadian, having been born in Quebec

In 1911, my father and mother packed up their belongings and their family of six children, and we boarded a train headed out to western Canada We arrived at Red Deer and the first year lived in the Poplar Ridge district, where one more son was born to the family

In 1912 another move was made this time to the Carlos district, where my parents would spend the rest of their lives. While at Carlos three more sons were born but two of these died in infancy, and are buried on the home farm

William Gray filed on the NE 17 41-5 W5. The land has now been in the Gray family for 65 years. My brother Gordon took over the farming from my dad and now Gordon's son, Arnold lives on the land

I remember that we moved from Red Deer to Carlos on a March day that was bitterly cold. We had a team and sleigh and drove, I believe, the whole distance in one long day's travel Our dad had fastened a canvass over the wagon box, and we had wrapped hot stones and placed these on the bottom of the sleigh box to give off warmth for the journey and we had a coal oil lantern that gave off a bit of warmth too

I remember the first night we arrived in the Carlos district I was a child of about five years of age. We spent that first night at the Jhalmar Ostrem home. Ostrems had a large family but somehow made room to shelter our big family too The next day we moved into the Nils Sat erlund house where we lived until we moved over to the McPherson's mill site, which was right near where our cabin would be built My dad worked at the mill and when it shut down for the summer my folks got to stay there

The most embarrassing moment of my whole life happened whilst we were living at the mill site that summer There was a little foot bridge across the creek and a lot of the older folks were crossing it. I ran along trying to follow my dad and I fell into the creek. Being at a mill site the water was covered with saw dust, and as I fell in I had my mouth open maybe ready to scream Anyway, I took in gobs of sawdust My brother in-law, John, quickly fished me out of the creek and I remember the folks laughing and laughing at me and I was so embarrassed. I suppose I did look silly all drenched and covered with sawdust I wonder if I reminded the folks of a doll all stuffed with sawdust as many of them were in those days

Our first garden was ploughed using a saddle horse and a cow we borrowed from a neighbor Fred Street At first my dad used to walk to Leslieville, about 11 or 12 miles one way and then carry home the groceries and other supplies in packs on his back For our size of family it certainly wasn't a small pack. Later he drove a team of oxen to town

I never remember being hungry In fact we always had a good variety of different kinds of food except for one time For three days once we were down to potatoes and cranberries, but us kids made a real joke of it at the time. Though perhaps our mother may have worried about it As the bowls went around the table we'd say "Do you want potatoes with your cranberries or will you have cranberries with the potatoes this time?"

I remember my mother used to cut the tops off vinegar bottles to make them into jars to preserve fruit and jam in. She would take a piece of cardboard to fit the top, cover it with cloth dipped in flour and water paste then wax the whole thing so it was airtight Worked quite well

Nelson, Earl Gordon, Clarence Florence and myself all went to school at Washington Heights When Miss Lees was the teacher in 1920 she felt we should have a hot drink at noon. Each family brought a nickel to school and we bought cocoa We took it in turns bringing milk to use in it Each kid took a turn making the cocoa and some were definitely not destined to be cooks. We eventually began to loathe the thought of another pot of some of the dish watery stuff that was served up. When Miss Cline was the teacher we had some hot lunches, too. Often the boys would catch rabbits in the schoolyard. We girls would bring vegetables from home, and presto, we'd cook up a pot of rabbit stew or bunny soup!

I remember the "lard pail" lunch buckets, the pride and joy of every school kid. You scratched your initials on the pail to be sure you got the right lunch. Charlie Ambury was going to school at the time, and his pail had the initials "C A" on so one of the kids scratched a "T" making it read "CAT". Then unbeknown to Charlie, the kids caught a mouse and put it in one of his sandwiches for a joke. A great idea!, except Charlie didn't eat all of his lunch that day, he took it home. In those days nothing was wasted and the lunch you didn't eat at school was served on the table at night. Still not too much of a problem, except, the Ambury's happened to have company at the supper table. Can you feature the embarrassment, and the anger at finding a mouse sandwich on the table? Mr. Ambury was so furious he made a real case out of it which involved the teacher, the kids and the school board. What a bomb shell that simple act of the letter "T" had created!

Mr. and Mrs. Gray's oldest three sons, Otto, Walter and Floyd, each took up homesteads in the Carlos area, but eventually they returned to the States to live. The next two, Nelson and Roy, went to live in Montana. Nelson married Nora Case of Lesliеville. Nora's parents were the first couple ever married in Lesliеville. Nelson and Nora moved to Missoula, Montana, and so did Roy and Floyd. The youngest three sons, Earl, Gordon and Clarence, all took up homesteads in the Carlos district, married and raised their families here.

There were three daughter, Irene, Florence and Viola. Irene married John Lewis, and they came to homestead in the Carlos area, but eventually moved to Ohio to live. She is now retired and living in California. Florence married Bill Gawden, a miner who worked at Nordegg. They went to live at Rosedale, near the mines in the Drumheller area. I. Viola, married a neighbor boy, Ival Johnston, and lived in the Carlos district until we retired to the town of Eckville in 1965.

My mother passed away after a lengthy illness in 1937. My dad died as the result of a highway traffic accident in 1943, as he was on his way to visit with his sons in Montana. He was then 73 years of age, had lived a long and rewarding life, and watched each of his 11 children start out on life's journey. He had also had time to enjoy the company of many of his

HEMBERY GEORGE — as told by Bill G——

George Hembery lived on the SE 36-41-5 (Lee Hollingsworth's land). He was a rough Montana fellow who carried and used a black leather snake whip. He was first to be on hand if a neighbor was in need. He was a butcher by trade and sold meat. He had a very young wife who died while they were living here, then George moved to Peace River.

HICKS, L. — by Mrs. L. A. Hicks

In the spring of 1934 Lewis Allen Hicks and his wife moved to a homestead in Carlos country way back to no-man's land, or almost no one lived near us.

We came up from High River. Previously Lew had worked in the oil fields at Turner Valley.

My brother, Elmer Elliot and his family had come up to live in the Aurora district also. We settled on the S.W. 7-42-5, the quarter directly north of George Grey, and there we had some memorable experiences.

We lived in a big tent that first summer while our log house was being built. One day there was a very sudden rain storm. The rain came down so fast (before the tent could be really wet) with the result that the rain came right through. We quickly rolled up our mattress and covered it. Then I got out an umbrella under which we sheltered. When the rain stopped there was a dishpan full of water on top of the cupboard (it held our candle). The only dry places were in the oven, under the table and inside the cupboard.

We got into our log house before winter but lived on a dirt floor with only furniture to act as partitions. The roof was covered with tar paper. One spring day I smelled a funny smell. It was the tar paper burning around the roof chimney jack. I had some cans lined up intending to get some seeds planted. These I took outside with two pails of water, dipped them into the water then threw up on the roof. Enough water splashed around the fire to deaden it a bit. Then I climbed the ladder which was at the back of the house, and finished extinguishing the fire.

Another time as I started out to bring in our few head of cattle from the open pasture we had no fences. I noticed a big cloud in the west which suggested I needed to hurry. There were some other cattle pasturing on the other side of a creek near us and that day they had come across to our area. So when I tried to round up ours (I was on foot) they stuck up their tails and off they went with ours following them. After some fruitless attempts to get our cattle headed for home, I decided to give up and go home. But — where was home? It was all open country — no houses — no roads. Then I remembered the cloud. So I tried to keep it in the rear and thought if I could find the creek I could get home. After some time I finally came on a trail and decided to follow it. It turned out to be the trail between our place and our neighbor to the north — and I got home just as the rain started. My husband, at that time had a trucking job picking up cream to take to a creamery at Bluffton. He would go one day and return the next. Well, he was on one of those trips when I was out after the cattle, so had I not gotten home, he wouldn't have known where to look for me.

The ground out in our area didn't seem to be very productive, at least, not the part we planted so we decided to leave the homesteading business for others and we moved to a home which we rented from Vancel Misner and lived there for awhile until we finally moved in to Bluffton in the spring of 1937. And so ends our experience in Carlos country.

In 1943 we moved up to Pouce Coupe, B.C. where I am still residing. Lou passed away on January 10, 1967 as the result of an accident. We have one son Stewart, who married Marg Price and has three children.

HOLLINGSWORTH, L. — by D. and L. Hollingsworth

Lee was born in the Gimlet district on the former Perry place, (which is now Bill Houston's). Lee went to several schools, Aurora, Gimlet, Faraway, Eckville and Sylvan Lake. The winters were spent out at the saw mills.

In 1953 Lee went to Nanton and spent the summer haying. In 1955 he rode horseback from Aurora to Coleman via Nordegg and Kootenay Plains. He stayed in the cabin on the White Rabbit creek on the Plains then continued on down to Coleman, then north to the Twin City cabin where Old Barb Wire Johnny once lived. Four summers he was in the south haying on the A 7 Ruey and Streeter ranches. While at Streeters he helped train Brahma bulls in to the Calgary Stampede. These were the years Ivan, Joe and Ben Cornforth, Art Hopp, Don Bryanton, Bruce Johnson, Lawrence Richardson and Bud Robinson all used to head south for summer work on the ranches.

For several summers Lee hauled gravel around Rimbey, Eckville, Red Deer and Hanna.

In 1956 Lee and Doreen Oliver were married at the Gimlet Missionary Church. Doreen was born in Innisfail, Alberta and went to school at Pine View (west of Bowden). In 1948 the Oliver family moved to Lesliеville.

Lee and Doreen have four children, Monty, Darcy, Angela and Rodney. All the children have attended Leslieville and David Thompson schools, and Monty and Darcy also went to school in Rimbey. The family are living on their farm in the Aurora district.

The Hollingsworths have always been interested in rodeo. In 1967 and the following two years Lee donated rodeo stock for the Gimlet stampede. Darcy has ridden in rodeos from White Court to Innisfail, and Rodney is now starting the circuit. Monty has driven chariots in races from points as far north as Vermilion south to Medicine Hat. Lee and Doreen have served as time keepers at various rodeos and Lee has judged pony chuck wagon races for four years.

HOLLINGSWORTH, S. — by B. Hollingsworth

Stanley Hollingsworth was born in Stettler in 1911. He moved with his family to the Leedale area in 1919. He married Adaline Misner. Adaline was always known as "Babe" and she had come to the Leedale area with her family from Alliance, Alberta.

Stan and Babe's home place was the SE 36-41-5. Stanley worked on a gravel crusher for many summers and worked in the mills during the winter. In 1945-46 they helped to run a restaurant in Sylvan Lake.

Stan and Babe had three sons and one daughter, also 12 grandchildren. GILBERT married Lorraine Oliver, lives near Leedale and has a family of five. EARL married Anna Gra[illegible]

HUHN FAMILIES — Information from Mrs. Campbell

August Huhn, his wife and son Harry and grandson Raymond, originally came from East Germany. They purchased the Jim Pendergast quarter SE 22-41-5. They were good gardeners interested in improving their surroundings. They had apparently had a very productive farm in Germany but had been forced to leave everything behind. They came to this farm in the early 1950s then sold, and lived in Leslieville for awhile. Mrs. Huhn passed away in Rimbey and August eventually moved to Stettler.

Eric Huhn, brother of August, and his wife and family, Dieder, Peter, Laura, Irene, and three more younger children lived on the NE 22 and also the SW 2. Another daughter Mary had stayed in Germany. Soon after leaving the district the family returned to Germany for a visit but came back to Canada and are living at

JOHNSTON, IVAL — by Viola Johnston

Ival Johnston was born in Tacoma, Washington, U.S.A., the eldest son of Mrs. Lillian Fizer. The family moved from Washington to the Stettler district, and then arrived in the Carlos country in 1912. Ival and his brother Earl have many interesting tales to tell of their school days at the Aurora School — including the big pots of oatmeal porridge Miss Lees cooked up for the morning lunch for her pupils.

Eventually Ival took up a homestead, SE 5-42-5-W5, and he, with his wife, the former Viola Gray, youngest daughter of the William Grays, lived on this land in the Aurora district for 36

Ival and Earl were avid hunters and excellent fishermen. We often went up to Medicine Lake to camp and fish for several days. The fish would be salted or smoked and would provide a tasty addition to the meals for months to come. We preserved moose, elk, and deer meat in sealers, and always had a good supply of canned wild berries for winter use as well as an abundance of them fresh during the berry-picking season. Cranberries and gooseberries were plentiful in the nearby swamp, and the surrounding hillsides produced buckets full of saskatoons, choke cherries and pincherries, as well as blueberries. One winter Ival and I shot rabbits to sell to a fox farm, and every other day we would have a sleigh box full to sell.

In 1941 a big fire occurred at McTighe's saw mill. Ival had been working there, but had come home prior to the fire in order to work on the farm. Reports were broadcast on the radio about the fire and we could see the reflection of flames in the sky. Joe Cornforth Sr. and I took two saddle horses and rode about 15 miles up into the area but finally the smoke became so thick that we had to turn back. My brother-in-law, Earl Johnston, and two other men eventually walked out, but Earl was badly burned, especially his hands. He was unable to work most of that summer until his burns healed. He lost all his clothing and the bedding that he and Ival had used at the mill, but he felt very lucky to have come out alive himself. My brother, Earl Gray and his family were all at the mill at this time, too, so you can imagine how worried all of us at home were.

When the first oil well was drilled in the Carlos area west of us Ival had the job of transporting the men the last five miles into the rig site since the roads were so muddy that cars and trucks could not travel. Ival used the tractor and a wagon or stoneboat for the job.

Ival had a threshing machine and did a lot of custom threshing for the neighbors around the district until about 1963. During the winters he often did custom sawing, and often took his mill out west of Rocky Mountain House to saw logs.

We left the farm in 1965 and moved to Eckville, where, the following day, my husband Ival, passed away. I keep busy with my handicrafts, as I enjoy doing creative projects. I also enjoy travel, my gospel work, and the companionship of my many friends in the Eckville Ival and I have seven children, 26 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. Our son Lester married Mary Connors of the Carlos district. They farm in the Leedale area and have a family of five children. Dorothy married Erwin Heringer. They farmed a half section west of our farm at Aurora for nearly 20 years, but now live in Eckville where Erwin is employed by the school division. They have a family of three children. Leroy is married to Marjie Brown of Leedale. He owns construction equipment, lives in the Rocky Mountain House area, and has a family of six. Lenore is married to Gene Steele lives in Calgary, and has three children. Eleanor married Don Evernden of Rimbey and also lives in Calgary. She has twin daughters and a son. Glen married Gail Casey, lives in the Gimlet district, and has a family of three. (Three other children died in a car accident in 1965. Lyal married Sheila Kendrew of Eckville. lives in Rimbey, and has three children.

LINDOAT, CHARLIE AND PEARL

Charlie and Pearl homesteaded the NE 6-41-5 in October 1929, selling to Lewis (Chief) Alberta in 1941. They had four children, Irene, Orville, Verna, Hazel. They went to Drumheller after leaving the district.

LOWE, P — by Ramona Stewart

The Percy Lowe family purchased section 35-41-5 W5, six miles west of Leedale, and moved

there in November 1951 from Blackfalds, Alber

The family consisted of Percy, Verona Melvin 16, Ramona 11, Kenneth 7, and David 4

The roads weren't too good and most people travelled by team and wagon, although we had an old three ton truck that was pretty cold in the winter time. When we required our mail we walked two and one half miles to the Carlos post office for it in the winter or in the summer we rode the horse "Spud". We borrowed the old pony from Jack Elliott in the summer of 1952 and had the use of her for three years. Ramona and Spud were inseparable and had many good times together. During the years spent on the farm in the Carlos area the children went to school at Aurora where Mrs. Beckett and Mrs. Emily Ames were the two teachers. The year of 1956-57 Ramona went to David Thompson school for Grade 10. That was the year the school was built.

Percy Lowe farmed the section of land he owned, and he also had a sawmill where he sawed lumber for several years. He had a caterpillar and cleared land for himself and some of the neighbors.

Verona milked cows, and when necessary worked on the sawmill, picked berries, and had a big garden. She was a member of the Ladies Sewing Circle and she was often busy with community picnics, bazaars, pie socials, Christmas concerts and so forth.

We had skating parties in the winter time, on the beaver dams, over by Art Robinsons, and Carl Skorstengaards. We often walked the three or four miles to go for the evenings fun, and perhaps a weiner roast. One night in particular that is recalled, Melvin and Ramona walked over to Freitags about three miles in the winter and helped Albert, Robert, Ruth and Irene to wall paper the living room. We had a real ball before the evening was over. I often wonder how Mrs. Freitag ever put up with us, in those days but we certainly had fun.

In 1956 MELVIN purchased land north of the Aurora School where he resided until just recently when he sold it and bought an acreage west of Rimbey.

RAMONA, went to work in the Eckville Drug Store in July 1957. In 1959 she married Lawrence Stewart and moved south west of Rocky Mountain House where they farm in the Strachan district. They have two daughters, Laurie age 16 and Carrie 12 years.

KENNETH married Annie Nothoff of Eckville in December, 1962 and they now reside in Fort St. John, B.C., where Ken is a cat operator. They have four children, Debby 14, Robert 13, Sandra 12, and Tammy 10.

DAVID married Beverly Casey on July 27 1968 and they reside in Calgary with two children Tracy 6 and Troy 4. David has his own trucking and winch work business.

VIRGINIA ARLENE was born in March, 1955 when the family lived at Aurora. She died in July 1955. Percy Lowe passed away in July 1966.

Verona has resided in Lacombe since 1958, where she worked in the hospital for many years. She then worked in the Senior Citizens Lodge for two years and also in the nursing home where she was head housekeeper. Verona resigned in December 1972 when she married Eugene Lindsay, and they still live in Lacombe. Eugene works for Mels Paving Ltd. of Red Deer.

S. A. LYONS FAMILY — by Fern Wolney

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Lyons came to the Leedale District in the early 1920's. Mrs. Lyons came from South Dakota and Mr. Lyons from Iowa both in the United States. They purchased the NW 31-41-4 W5 from the Canadian Pacific Railway for the sum of $1,013.15. According to the contract, payments were to start in four years time, and run for ten years. The last payment was to be made in 1936. Interest for this entire contract over a fourteen year period amounted to only $310.

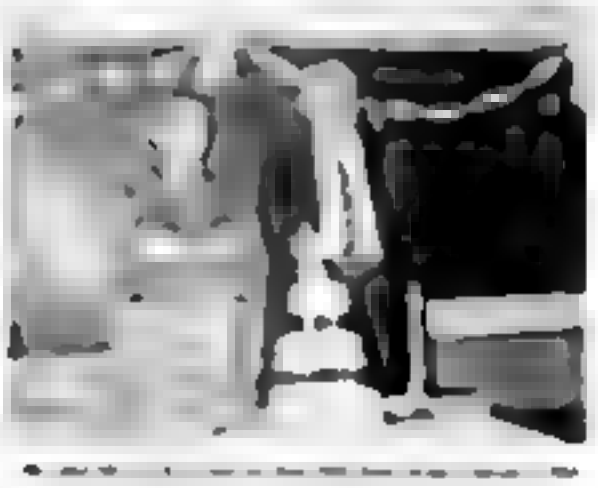
Mr. and Mrs. Lyons had a family of three sons and three daughters, all born in British Columbia except for Mary, who was born in Cantmore Alberta. Edith is now deceased.

Mr. Lyons, called "Lon" or "S. A." for short had the cream route west of Leedale from 1945 to 1964. He owned a 1928 Chevrolet truck which he used very often to take sick people to the hospital. Sometimes when he didn't have any gas he would go to a good neighbor and borrow enough to get the sick person to a hospital. Once he took Mrs. Heringer to hospital when there was no doctor to deliver her baby. He put a mattress and quilts into the back of the old truck, made her comfortable and got her there on time. He also had the experience of delivering a couple of babies where there was no doctor available. He took Charlie Elliot and Mrs. William Lees to hospital for appendix operations, Eileen Corn forth when she was very ill, and many others. He would also help take the school children to different school activities at Rocky Mountain House and at Leslieville.

The Lyons family were musical, and often played at dances at Aurora and at Faraway. During the winters Mr. Lyons often worked at Varty's and McTighe's sawmills. He was too proud to go on relief, but seemed to do a fair job of providing for his family during the hungry thirties. During the earlier years he drove the school van at Pine Lake. The van was a buggy pulled by horses.

Mrs. Lyons was a hard-working person and took care of the farm while he was away working. She enjoyed creating handmade quilts, and always had boxes of washed and carded wool ready for another quilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyons celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at the Aurora Hall in January, 1964. Mrs. Jack Elliott baked a wedding cake for the occasion. Mom and Dad en



.oyed visiting all the friends that came, and the singing, musical selections and the short dance which contributed to their pleasure on this special anniversary. They lived on their farm until 1966 and then had an auction sale and retired to Kamloops, B.C. Mr. Lyons passed away in 1970 and Mrs. Lyons in 1972.

MANNIX, WILLIAM JOSEPH AND VERA MERLE

William Joseph, son of William Henry and Elizabeth Jane Mannix was born at Okotoks, Northwest Territories, February 26, 1903, and moved with his folks to the Bingley district in 1906. He took part of his schooling at the Beaver Flats school.

Joe's first job was working for Frank Pet ford at the Valley Mill in 1916. He earned $2.50 for a 10 hour day and had to pay $1 per day room and board and $.03 towards compensation. He took the last board that came through the mill when it closed in 1956.

After the mill closed he worked for various farmers in the district until the fall of 1921 when he went to the United States to work in the wheat fields and picked apples before returning home. Joe worked for many lumber companies through the years. Jim McKechnie, Varty's, Phoenix Northwest Tie and Timber, and McTighe.

Joe recalls his first trip through the Medicine River Valley in 1923. He was hired by Tom Skully for $7 a day to drive him, with team and cutter, to Leedale, then on to Gilby to pick up hides. They picked up at Louis Robinson's near Leedale, then spent the night at Hugh Lindsay's, who rented rooms for 35¢ a night, going on the next day to Frank Tarrabains at Gilby, then on to ship the hides by train from Eckville to Simpson and Lee, Fur Buyers in Calgary. Tom died during a fire which burned the McTighe Mill about 25 miles west of Leedale in April 1941. He had holed up in a creek while the fire went over but died of exposure.

The fall of 1925 five teams with bundle racks left Lesliеville to follow the stooking and threshing run on the Prairies. Four men, Joe, Ray Richardson, Percy Black and his hired man took five racks down as Norris Joe's brother was already there. Percy's two outfits stopped at Trochu and Joe, Ray and Norris worked for Bill Abel at Three Hills. They threshed with a steam engine fired with straw. There were bumper wheat crops that fall and it took them from September 3 to October 30 to thresh an area from eight miles north to six miles south of Three Hills. On October 31 Ray, Norris and Joe started for home camping two or three miles south of Pine Lake. It got so cold that night, 30 below F., that they had to take turns keeping the fire burning so they didn't freeze. It proved to be the coldest day that winter of 1925-'26.

The spring of 1925 Joe bought a team of three year olds, (Percheron and Morgan breeding) at Dave Congar's Sale, northwest of Hespero for $19.50 a piece. He broke them the next spring and Maggie and Jiggs made the trip to the Prairies on bundle wagons in the fall of 1926, '27 and '28.

In 1929 Joe took his first eight hour day job which was with Royalite in the Oil Fields of Turner Valley. He and his brother Norris, were plant employees and worked riveting tanks together. They got $5 for eight hours of work. They finished work at five o'clock so took jobs stooking grain for farmers in the area after hours.

In 1930 Joe decided to try his hand at farming for himself so he rented the George Joy's farm in the Condor district where he lived until the spring of 1933 when he purchased the Wilson Cox farm S.E. 2-42-5-W5 in the Carlos district. He then homesteaded the S.W. 1-42-5-W5. There he met and married Vera Merle Pendergast on June 2, 1934.

Vera Merle, daughter of Samuel Thomas and Sarah Woods Pendergast was born in her grandparents' log house, 16 miles south-east of Innisfail at Horse Shoe Lake, Alberta, October 20, 1908. She took her schooling at Horse Shoe Lake and moved with her family to the Carlos district May 14, 1931. She, being the eldest, helped her folks on the farm and was on call for any friend, neighbor or relative who needed help, sometimes receiving pay, sometimes not.

June 2, 1934 she and Joe went by team and democrat to Lesliеville, then by train to Red Deer to be married.

"Then the little mistakes started.

Betty Merle was born March 10, 1935; William Dale was born June 22, 1936. Russel Lee was born September 6, 1937, Shirley Joan was born June 27, 1939. All were born in the St. Joseph's Hospital in Rimbey. Hospital bills were paid not only in cash but with produce. The hospital canned their own fruits and vegetables, so would take most anything as payment.

They recall one trip to Lacombe in 1940 with Mrs. Nugent. They went with Mrs. Nugent and Mrs. Lindsay to a Field Day at the Experimental Station and upon returning they ran into rain at Rimbey about eight o clock in the evening The road was so slippery they had to tie ropes on the car and hold it from slipping into the ditch. They caught up to Mr Skoreiko about three miles east of Leedale stuck in the middle of the road. By pushing his car with Mrs. Nugent's they both managed to get to Leedale where Mr Skoreiko turned north and they continued west, arriving home at 3 a.m taking seven hours to go 20 miles

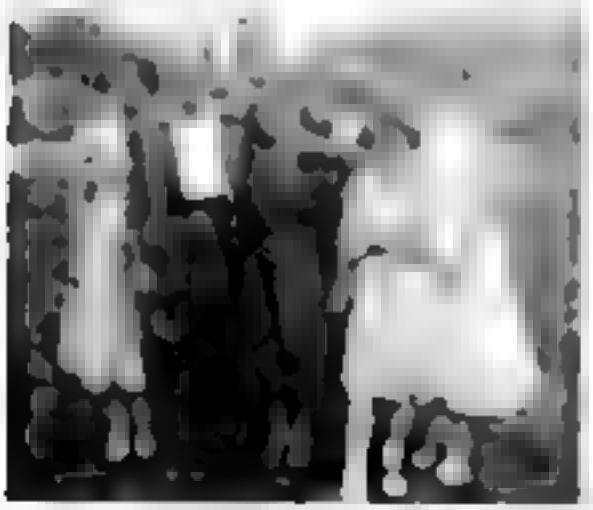
In 1941 Joe hired the Wolney Brothers to break and disc down three acres of land After brush harrowing it (cut willows, tied together and pulled with horses to smooth the land he had Vera drive the team while he hand seeded this land from the back of a wagon with the first Altaswede Clover seeded in the Aurora district He then rented the land to Ralph Johnston, except the hay land and nothing was done with the clover In the spring of 1943 it was such a mass they burned it off The clover came back so thick they had a terrible time haying it

May 16, 1942 Joe, Vera and family moved to Sylvan Lake where Joe, with the help of Maggie and Jiggs, delivered ice, milk and wood. In 1944 Jiggs became a celebrity when he led the Orangeman's Parade in Sylvan Lake and Red Deer In 1945 they built a new home in Sylvan Lake which is now owned by Bob and Shirley Pickering

On February 26, 1946 one more little Mannix was added to the family with the arrival of Carol Anne

About 1943 Joe went to work for Forest Plowman delivering Imperial oil and gas and did odd jobs of carpentry until 1953 when he returned to the farm at Carlos. Vera and Carol spent summers on the farm but did not move there until 1959. Carol receiving her schooling at Sylvan Lake. Aurora, Leslieville and David Thompson Over the years Joe served on the Aurora School Board many times



Betty married Charles Albert June 2, 1953 They had three girls and two boys, Wendy Peggy, Brian, Duane and Cindy. Cindy was taken from them in an accident September 12 1975. They reside at Sylvan Lake

Dale married Shirley Popilchuk September 25, 1958. They have two girls and one boy, Shari Connie and Randy They reside at Sylvan Lake

Shirley married Robert Pickering November 22, 1957 They have two sons, Daryl and Darren and reside at Sylvan Lake

Lee married Carrol Belt May 18, 1962 They have two girls and two boys, Vernita, DaLas Wade and Carrie, and reside at Leedale

Carol Anne is still single living in Red Deer

In February 1962, Joe and Vera sold their farm to Lawrence May and after living a short time in Leslieville retired to Sylvan Lake where they still reside

MAY LAWRENCE

In the fall of 1961, I, Lawrence May moved from Mantario, Saskatchewan to my new farm in the Aurora District It was the former farm of Mr Joe Mannix and my new home quarter number was S.E 2-42-5-W 5

Coming from the prairie, where I was bothered with hay fever it was a nice surprise to find it disappearing in the Alberta air Another welcome change was the amount of rain fall we received that first year but sometimes, to my dismay, it never seemed to know when to stop

In August of 1962 I married the the former Joan Stevenson of Flaxcombe, Saskatchewan and we moved a trailer onto our farm. After being used to power water and telephone it seemed we were homesteading, without these conveniences Out came the flat irons, coal oil lamps and yesteryear's appliances

The next couple years were busy ones. Joan was teaching school at Leslieville and I was busy building a barn, fences, etc and trying to milk a herd of Holstein cows, no mean feat for a young man who didn't know one end of a cow from the other Those winters were bad ones and it was a common occurrence for Jack or Milton Elliot to take Joan to the school bus in their democrat as our road invariably was blocked with snow

Our first son, James Darren, was born June 13, 1964 at Eckville Hospital and Joan became a full time wife and mother

In the winter of 1965 we bought a Pembina Pipe line house and had it moved down from Buck Creek

Then, was no different from 'now' and there was always lots of work to be done on the farm

On September 21, 1966 we had a baby girl Debbie Ann, to add to our family

About this time I decided making cows was not my cup of tea and slowly started a range cow herd. The next few winters were spent working on rigs up north. Believe it or not, the highlight of my wife's social life those years was the 'fence line phone' installed between our place and Jack

Elliot's. It was there in case Joan needed help but the jingle of the phone could be heard morning noon or night

On September 12 1969 we had another baby Lisa Dawn, and that winter I stopped working away from home

The years have a way of blending one into another and us remembering them by what has happened. In 1970, Darren started school at Leslieville, riding the bus to and fro each day

Nineteen seventy-one and 1972 were years spent fencing, picking roots, burning brush piles and all the other jobs to be found on the farm Tearing land is a never-ending job on a new place and you just get finished to start again

I purchased the Robb Ervin quarter, S.W 2 42-5-W 5. in 1972 to add to our place. This gave me tough ground plus a year around spring, which I needed

It was now Debbie's turn to start school at Leslieville and Lisa followed in 1975

The past few years Joan has been teaching at Condor the children have become involved in after-school activities and my leisure hours are spent coaching a minor hockey team at Eckville during the winter and taking part in other community affairs the rest of the year

It's funny when one looks backward how the hardships of yesterday can bring back a feeling of nostalgia today

[redacted] JABEZ AND ZELLA — as told to John Little

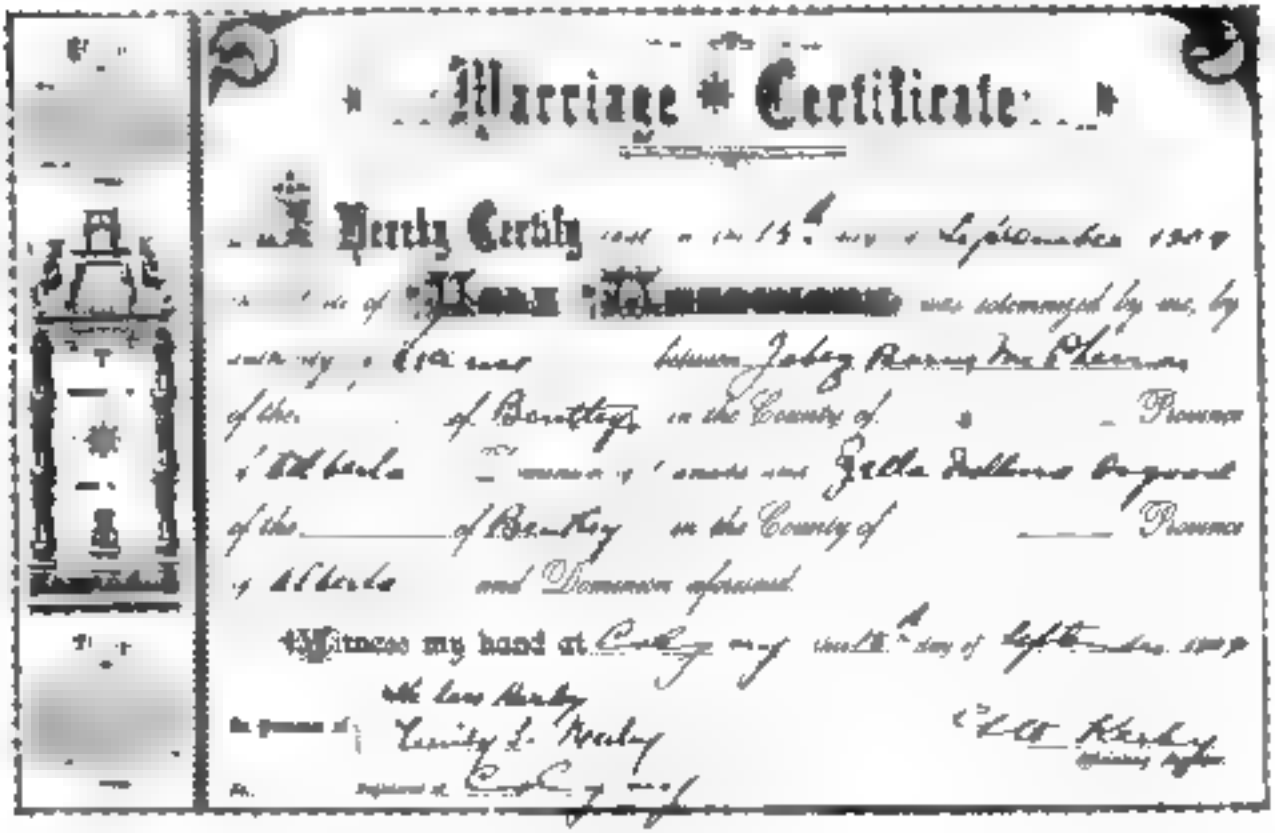
Jabez was born in 1879 He came from Clark County Wisconsin U.S.A. He came to Canada in 1900. Zella Melissa Osgood was born near Milwaukee, Wisconsin in 1891. She came to Canada on the last day of January 1902 They were united in marriage on September 15, 1909 They made their home around the Bentley district

In 1913 it is believed they started up the first sawmill in township 41-5 located by the spring on the NW 17 41-5 to mill the pine and spruce on the quarter. It was, as most mills, driven by a steam engine, which was run by Dick Sambrooke Jabez was the sawyer, also an edger was used John Whitesell ran the planer It was believed to have turned out about 10,000 feet of planed lumber a day which was hauled to Bentley and Eckville Most of the freighting was done by Charlie Whitesell and Wilbur Charlie hauled the lumber with his horses to Gilby and Wilbur took over the load with his horses and finished hauling the load to Bentley where most of the lumber was sold. However some of the lumber was hauled to Eckville Charlie Whitesell was also one of the first homesteaders in the township, taking up the SE 4-41 5-W5 in July 1906. A brother of Charlie's Delbert who worked at the mill, homesteaded the NW 4-41-5-W5 in May 1907



Marriage Certificate

I Hereby Certify that on the 15th day of September 1909

of the [redacted] of Bentley in the County of [redacted] Province of Alberta and Dominion aforesaid.

Witness my hand at Calgary this 15th day of September 1909

In presence of Trinity L. Healy

Registered at Calgary

There was a second mill site started around 1920 on the NE 20-41-5-W5. Very little is known except that Jabez had to buy equipment as he had sold his machinery after the milling was finished on the first site as there was no intention of his sawing again. He had been on a picnic and seeing the stand of timber he could not resist the urge to go sawmilling again. So he went to Carstairs to the forestry office and obtained a permit to mill.

The logging was contracted to Robert E Hayward who employed other local homesteaders to cut the trees

Mrs Zella McPherson cooked for the crew with the help of Mrs. (Dick) Vivian Sambrooke She remembers canning 500 quarts of fruit one summer which was taken out in the wagon box of oats, which was for the horses. Not one jar of fruit was broken

Some of the crew was made up of Charlie Andrews, Frank Andrews, William Gray, William McPherson. The others are unknown

MORE NOTES on the fire. Information from Jack Elliot

Jack recalls that there were about 10,000 logs that had been cut skidded and decked, that burned down to heaps of ashes. Can you imagine the man hours of work that had gone into getting those logs on the roll ways only to see them burn up"

As mentioned in the previous story, Mr Montgomery rushed to the creek for safety What made his ordeal so harrowing was the fact that nearby was a pile of between 2,000 to 3,000 logs that burned. Quite some "camp fire", eh??

It was only a miracle that saved the families who were escaping. If the fire had been but 10 minutes ahead of them they would never have made it Had only one large tree fallen across their path it would have cut off their exit After the fire it took thousands of cuts to clean all the fallen trees and debris from the trail to make it usable again

Jack led Maurice McTighe from the mill to Clarence Roberts. His eyes were practically swollen shut from the exposure to smoke. Roberts fed them and bedded them down, and the Mounties brought them out home the following day

PENDERGAST SAMUEL THOMAS AND SARAH WOODS — by Sam Pendergast — 1983

This is Alberta
While winter's grip is holding
We look forward to the spring,
When the ice and snow have vanished
And the birds begin to sing

We look for the leaves and flowers
To brighten up the land
It's the wonderful plan of nature.
Just the touch of the Master's hand

When busy hands have planted
The good seed in the soil
Farmers wait with hope and patience
'Till rewarded for their toil

When with the rain and sunshine
There is grain o'er all the land,
Then the farmers reap the harvest
From the touch of the Master's hand

Then comes along the Autumn
When the leaves have turned to gold
As the sun is setting in the West
What a beautiful sight to behold

Time comes for the summer to take a rest
The ground to be covered with snow,
For the Northern Lights to brighten the sky
With their white and golden glow

The wonderful beauty of nature.
When there's peace o'er all the land
Let us stop and think it's all been done
By a touch of the Master's hand

RANDALL, W A. — by Florence Randall

Arne William Randall, my husband for over 31 years passed away August 6, 1977 He was a man proud of his four children and two grandchildren, and a man proud of his Finnish heritage. He was a man who appreciated life and lived it to the fullest a man who loved three things above all: his home his work and the sea. This handsome, dignified man of high morals bore a graciousness few men have

Our married life was as complete and beautiful as any married life could have been We had ups and downs. But from every down we learned to cope better with the next down as well as to appreciate our many ups. We lived more in our married life than many couples in their combined lifetimes Everything we desired or endeavored to accomplish we did. There are no regrets. And nothing unfinished

Arne consoled much more than he sought to be consoled which was evidenced by the thousands of students who sought his counsel As one student wrote to him "You have been willing to be whatever person we needed at the time sometimes a father sometimes a friend always a teacher and advisor

Where there was hatred he endeavored to sow love Where there was injury, he pardoned Where there was doubt he encouraged faith and where sadness he gave joy Wherever there was despair he provided hope His blind student, Harry Cordellis, wrote, "You opened the door for me to a beautiful world

As a leading educator he created an environment where learning had to take place because he cared about people. As a student wrote, "I am sure you do not remember every student whose life you have entered and effected, but you must be aware that a spark of you lives within each of us"

Arne was not a religious man, as such but he lived the Ten Commandments. Our family's philosophy has become our religion We believe in a higher power, but we also believe in a consciousness which enables man to realize the oneness of the Universe, to sense the presence in it and throughout it and to comprehend that love is the rule and basis of the Cosmos — or a cosmic [illegible]

We believe in reincarnation Arne and I and the other members of our family have been together many times and will be together again Death is merely a short separation. Arne has shed his bodily clothing and walked from one room into another far more beautiful.

Two weeks before Arne passed on he experienced a few moments of supreme illumination This experience or revelation as he expressed it, no doubt clarified his thinking about life and death and a higher power Perhaps this is why the night before passing away he asked for a priest Mass was said for Arne in California the following morning as well as in Poison

Walt Whitman asked himself, "Is it lucky to be born?" He answered his own question. It is just as lucky to die." We can only feel that Arne was lucky too — after a seven-month bout with [illegible]

The rest of our family will carry on until we meet again

RICHARDSON, ED. — by Florence Elliot

Born in Saratoga, Minnesota, Ed Richardson came to Canada as a young man and worked for a few years in the Alliance and Daysland district of Alberta

On February 22, 1908 he married May M[illegible]

at Daysland. To this union were born 10 children Hazel, George, Ella, Charlie, Aileen, Marjorie Lawrence and Florence, twins Edna, Harvey Ella passed away at the age of seven and Charlie as a baby and they were both buried at Forestburg where the folks were living at the time Harvey was born after they came to Leedale and was a baby of two or three weeks when he passed away and is buried in Leedale Cemetery

Many dry years and hard times forced the Richardsons to make a change and hope things would be better In the spring of 1929 they moved to the Aurora district five miles west of Leedale where they settled on the SE 36-41-5 and made their home there for several years. At that time there was only a trail from Leedale west and many springs the high waters from the Gimlet Creek or Medicine River made it almost impossible to get to the store at Leedale

Hazel and George were finished school when we arrived in the district so Aileen, Marjorie Lawrence and myself, Florence) attended school at Aurora Edna was too young, but joined later We rode horseback to school and Aurora being built at the top of a hill, it meant one thing — the kid on the back end of the horse always slid off. that was me) and I don't ever recall riding to the top — I walked

In the winter we were driven to school The district neighbors took turns taking us and the teacher I recall one time when we were upset right in front of the school, teacher, kids, books lunch buckets and blankets, a real show We kids and the driver thought it was real funny, but the teacher thought it was done on purpose and was quite upset about it all

Later on we moved farther south and went to Washington Heights School We were older then and we walked to school two and a half miles The school children used to take turns and did the janitor work for which we were paid $5 a month. In the winter we had to be there an hour before the rest of the children to get the fire going and hope to have the school warm before the others got there Those were the days!

HAZEL, married Ordell Murphy and they lived in the Bingley district. They had seven children Del passed away, and Hazel and the family moved to Rocky After her family were all married and on their own Hazel married a widower Earl Gray Hazel passed away in June 1972

GEORGE never married He went overseas in 1943 and was wounded while in service. When he came back he settled in the Bingley district also. He passed away April 2, 1972

AILEEN married Eugene Lindsay and lived in the Aurora district where she raised a family of five children. She passed away October 6, 1971

MARJORIE married Richard (Dick) Owens lives at Cloverdale, B.C and has raised a family of eight children

LAWRENCE never married but he makes his home in the Leedale district He has a house and a lot there

FLORENCE (that is myself), married Jack Elliot May 3, 1943 and we have six children and live in the Aurora district (Special Note Florence passed away on December 9, 1977

EDNA married Victor Misner, they live in the Last West district and have six children

Dad Richardson passed away in 1946 and mother passed away in 1952

ARTHUR ROBB FAMILY — by Florence

Arthur Robb was the eldest son of William and Bertha Robb. He came with the family from Langley Prairie, B.C in 1914

In 1923 Arthur filed on the SE 30-41-5-W5 (This is the quarter more recently owned by his nephew, Leonard). This land had been part of the J B. McPherson's timber berth. When it was opened for homesteading, Arthur filed on it immediately He didn't live on it, although the boys built a log building on it which was convenient

Arthur's father had bought the Soltiz quarter SW 27-41-5-W5. from Archie McKinnon (a loaned money, too). This transaction was around 1924 or thereabouts After father's death in 1929 Arthur got the Soltiz quarter and about four years later he abandoned his homestead so that his brother Harry could have that quarter

Arthur was married June 9, 1927 His wife Beth, had been born in London, England, had worked in Toronto, and then came to Red Deer to nurse at the Provincial Training School. I was working there, also, for a time, and while there I met Beth, and eventually introduced her to my brother Because our father would not hear tell of Arthur living away from home, he and Beth went to Red Deer, got married and Arthur got work there. They didn't come back to Carlos as if father's funeral in October 1929

Beth and Arthur had two children, Clarence and Margaret. Beth belonged to the Ladies' Club and Arthur was active on the school board Arthur built the four-roomed, two-storey log house with the verandah that still stands on that land, although no longer occupied

Arthur farmed until 1941 when he had a farm auction sale and moved to Sylvan Lake. About this time he joined the army. After his discharge the family moved to the coast, where Margaret married Bruno Wieler. They have two daughters and a son. Clarence also married, and has four sons. He is a postman in Kamloops, B.C.

Later on, Arthur and Beth moved to Rutland in the Okanagan Valley. Then in about 1958 or so they moved back to the coast to White Rock.

Arthur passed away July 5, 1969, and his wife Beth died the following spring.

ROBB, HARRY — by Janet Robb

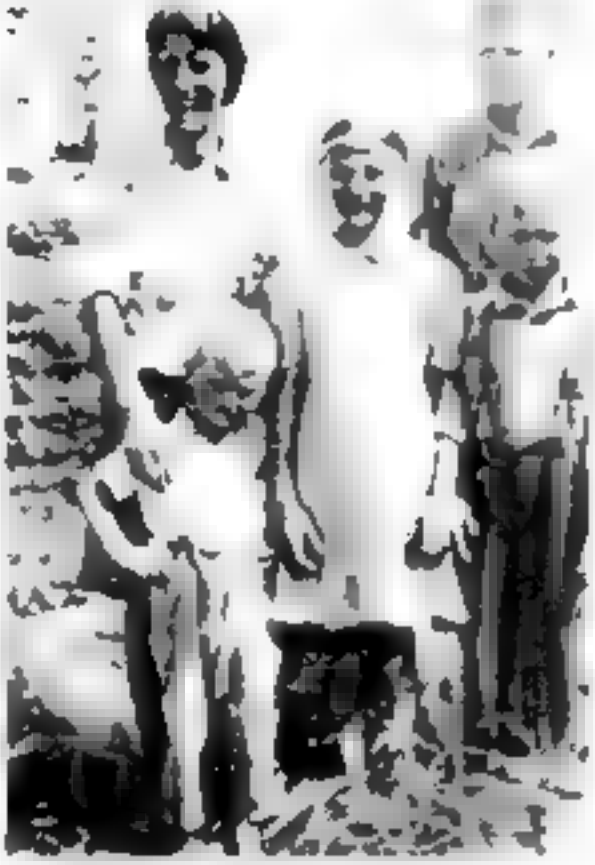
Henry Joseph Robb (Harry) was the youngest son of William Robb. He was born September 5, 1896 at Langley, B.C., one of twins. His twin brother Howard Stephen died in February 1901 at the age of 4½ years.

Harry came to Alberta with his parents, brother Arthur and sister Florence in June 1914. He was drafted into the army during the first World War. While training at Petawawa Camp in Ontario in early 1918 he became sick with pneumonia. Had it not been for his friend Bert Baxter finding him so ill, he would likely have died. When he was well enough to travel he was discharged and sent home, but was a long time recovering.

He would work in the bush at McPherson's lumber mill in the winter. He also worked with farmers during the summer months. He liked horses and usually sported a good saddle horse.

When Arthur Robb returned from Toronto to take over the family farm, he abandoned his homestead in Harry's favour. When the Tom Skorstengaard family arrived in the district they rented Harry's farm until they had a house built to live in on their own land.

Harry was united in marriage to Marion



Marion and Harry Robb (Leonard, Norma and Howard)

Anna Laye in 1934. Marion was born April 23 1901 near Wiggins Lancashire England. She was the eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs. Benjamin Laye, who settled in the area between Leedale and Rimbey. Marion came to Canada by boat when she was five years old.

Harry and Marion lived for many years on Harry's homestead farm. Later they moved a half mile farther north to NW 21 which was purchased from Herb and Walt Dale, the land where their son Howard and family still live.

They worked hard through the years and built up their farm. They purchased one of the first tractors to be used for farming in the district a new John Deere model AR.

Harry and Marion have three children – Norma Howard and Leonard and fourteen

NORMA married Harvey Stewart and now lives on a farm at Bluffton. They have three children — Jessie, who is married and Ronnie and Marilyn.

HOWARD married Janet Wilson. They have six children.

LEONARD married Debra Wilson and they have five children.

Harry passed away in Red Deer hospital September 18, 1952. For many years Marion lived on the farm with her sons. She eventually retired to the Rimbey nursing home where she resided until her passing on July 23, 1974.

ROBB, HOWARD

Howard Stanley Robb was born May 28, 1936 the oldest son of Harry and Marion Robb. He took his schooling mostly at Washington Heights, but also attended Aurora for a short time.

At the age of 14 years, after the death of his father in 1952 he and his ten year old brother Leonard undertook to carry on the farming operation. They would go to school through the day and as soon as they got home, they would head for the fields sometimes working till after midnight to get the land seeded in the spring and harvested in the fall. They cared for a herd of cattle and put up the hay for their winter feeding.

A few years after their father passed away their mother, Marion, was stricken with a paralytic stroke, and invalided. So for many years the boys cared for their mother as well.

For several years the Robb brothers, Freitag brothers and Carl Skorstengaard jointly owned a threshing machine and all worked together at harvest time.

In 1965 Howard and Leonard purchased a cat" and entered into the construction business. Since then Howard has worked throughout the north central Alberta region on road construction and oil field work.

On December 20 1963, Howard married Janet Wilson eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson of Bingley. Howard and Janet have six children, and now live on the farm his parents once lived on. Their children are Pamela, Angela, Becky, Sheldon, Monica and Sherman.

ROBB, LEONARD

Leonard Franklin Robb was born April 30 1942, the second son of Harry and Marion Robb. He took all his schooling at Washington Heights.

Leonard's childhood was cut short by the death of his father when he was only 10 years old.

Leonard started in at the age of 10 and along with his brother Howard, they farmed their father's land.

Eventually Leonard owned the quarter section his father had first owned, the SE 20-41-5.

Leonard was united in marriage to Debra Wilson on January 8, 1966. Debra is the third daughter of Mr and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson of Bingley. Leonard and Debra have five children Kevin, Calvin, Dean, Denise and Melanie.

For several years Leonard and his family lived in a mobile home on the home place. In October 1968, an oil heater fire completely destroyed their home and contents. For the next six years the family rented the William Lees buildings. Leonard's mother lived with the family for several of these years before retiring to Rimbey.

Leonard has sold his quarter of land to the Bill McIlwraith family and now resides on an acreage near Oras. In 1965 he went into the road and oil field construction business with his brother. He now works independently, and owns heavy equipment machines. He also owns a few head of horses. Horses were something his father was always interested in too.

WILLIAM ROBB AND ED ROBBIE FAMILIES — by Florence (Robb) Bobier

William Robb was born in Fergus, Ontario, and his wife, Bertha, was born in Belleville Ontario. They married and lived at Langley Prairie B.C. In May 1914 William Robb came to Alberta to look for land in the Peace River country. When he went to the land office in Calgary he was directed to the country north of Lesliеville.

He chose the SE 22-41-5-W5, then went back to Calgary and filed on it. This land had been abandoned by Carlos Sleeper an earlier homesteader from North Dakota, U.S.A. Mr. Sleeper had built a building 16' by 32' intending to have a store business. He tried, but with little success. He also tried to get a post office, but before that was completed he became discouraged and handed it all over to Jasmer Ostrem and his wife and returned to North Dakota.

In June 1941, the Robb family came, bag and baggage, to Alberta. My brothers, Arthur and Harry, and a friend of theirs, came in the boxcar with four horses and household goods and some farm implements, besides furniture of Mr. and Mrs. Hayward. The boxcar was shipped to Blackfalds, then had to be unloaded and the things freighted by wagon and teams from there to Carlos, a distance of about 50 miles.

My oldest sister, Bertha (Mrs. Harry Patterson) was left behind in Vancouver, B.C. My other sister, Ethel, was away to St. Paul, Minnesota, U.S.A. visiting relatives when we moved. She later came to visit at home when she returned from St. Paul. A few years later she married Frank Bain at Hardisty, Alberta, and they made Edmonton their permanent home.

My mother and myself, Florence, then a young girl of 11 years, came by C.P.R. to Red Deer. We took a stagecoach from there to Burbank, where we caught the C.N.R. going west. We arrived in Lesliеville some time in the night, found our way to the Hopkins Hotel and after supper we went to bed. The next morning Mrs. Hayward and four children (our travelling companions) started off for Carlos in one vehicle and Mother and I in another. We had a spanking fine team of drivers and buggy all from the livery barn. We were the first passengers over that "rocky road to Dublin." It was a drive of some 10 miles over muskeg and rough roads. Arrangements were made for Mother and me to sleep at a neighbor's, Mrs. Ostrem's, home. Nils Satterland, another neighbor, gave up his home so we two families could use it until our houses were ready to use.

The second day after we arrived Mother and I decided, after breakfast at Mrs. Ostrem's, to walk the mile to our house. There it was, sitting on the top of a hill — no trees, and well exposed to the wind from all directions. We took a look around. The yard was strewn with tin cans, paper and garbage. Inside, the floor wasn't too dirty. There was a single board partition across the center of the house, but no ceiling and no windows. We saw a ladder-type stairway up the west end of the house and a hole in the floor was the way upstairs. Once we had climbed the "stairway", we found that one end had been used for a hay mow and chickens. We swept and did our best, but soap and hot water were badly needed.

The load containing our stove, beds, and some cooking utensils finally arrived and we moved into our house. To erect the stove was the first major job, as it required six feet of stovepipe for a chimney. The Hayward family occupied the east room downstairs, and we slept upstairs while the kitchen was shared by all 11 persons until the Haywards had erected a building to move into. In this new country we soon learned we had unwanted company at night. People who were no longer in the country had had bed bugs — and we packed them home in our clothes. The legs of the beds were set in cans of coal oil and the beds were searched regularly for these creatures. We could often find them in the desks.

That first winter Arthur and Harry got work at McPherson's mill nearby. Before they went to work at the mill, though, they went hunting somewhere west of Herman Freitag's homestead. They shot a deer, hung it in a tree and came home. Harry collapsed about one-half mile from home. Arthur came home and Father went back to help Harry home. Early next day Arthur and his father drove back and brought the deer home. This was a real treat added to the bread and flour gravy which had been our daily diet. For breakfast rolled oats and bread, dinner bread and gravy, supper the same. Occasionally we had a meal of boiled beans for a change of diet. We didn't even have potatoes that first summer. When Arthur had worked in the mill for awhile he got a sack of potatoes for wages. We learned that the potato water in which the potatoes had been cooked improved the flour gravy when added to it. Without even one bite to eat, Father drove over 25 miles in the spring of 1915 to find potatoes for seed. After that year we had plenty of potatoes. We ate a lot of rabbits in the first winter, but when they became diseased we stopped eating them. The next year we had a garden, turnips, carrots and parsnips made a welcome addition to our meals. It was two years before we had milk. Father bought a cow at a sale. She wasn't a good milker, but even that little was a big help. It also added butter to our menu. There was no trouble with water, although it had to be hauled in barrels from a nearby spring. A cold job on a winter day, but it was good, pure water.

In the summer of 1915 Father and Arthur went to Vulcan to work in the harvest with two teams and two racks. During their stay there, one of the horses got loose, and died from eating too much wheat from a bin. Shortly after this, the other horse died, and this was quite a severe loss. Father came home with the remaining team and rack, and Arthur stayed to earn more money.

Two years later Mother was offered the post mistress job, at a salary of $100 per year. The company and social side of the job meant considerable to her, as she couldn't get out among the people, and this job brought them to her. She kept this job for the next 19 years, and Father got the job of carrying the mail at the same time.

There was no school for me to attend that first summer However by 1915 Nels Sa terland offered his house for a schoolroom and a teacher was hired. By 1917 our Washington Heights School had been built and I finished my grade schooling there In 1930 I went to Three Hills Bible College

Mother missed her church connections and felt that there should be some witness in the neighborhood. Both Mother and Father were raised Presbyterians in Ontario. They wrote to the Presbyterian Board in Red Deer and in 1920 William Wilson of McGill University was sent out for the summer months Sunday services were held fairly regularly for the next five years. In 1933 I held Sunday School in Washington Heights then in the afternoon I walked over to Aurora, four miles away for another service. I would eat a lunch along the roadside

In the spring of 1927 Arthur got married in Red Deer and worked there for the next two or three years In the fall of 1929 our father was admitted to the Red Deer Hospital. He was operated on for cancer of the stomach, but died October 11, 1931. He is buried in the Leslieville Cemetery

Mother and I stayed alone on the farm for the next year We hired Charlie Ambury to help with outside work. Arthur and his family arrived in the late fall of 1930 to take over the work on the farm, and they lived with Mother while I went to Bible College. A year later when I came home I found Mother was not too well, so I stayed home to care for her and Arthur and his family moved to the John Soltz farm We rented the land to an outsider, and with the post office my garden and the cream cheques we managed

I bought a cow and ten-day-old calf from Mr Entenap for $25. She was an excellent milker rich in cream In the fall of 1935 I bought another cow from Bill Erskine She didn't prove to be such a good milker, so I had her butchered. I canned one quarter of the meat, returned a quarter I owed to Arthur and sold one-half for $15, the price I had paid for the cow The next fall I sold the calf for $19

We couldn't continue to live in the old house on the hill so early in the spring of 1937 I took out a home-improvement loan. I contracted the job of tearing down the old house and building that little stucco house on the south road near the west corner of our quarter Ival and Earl Johnston built a barn and chicken house of logs for us. We moved into our new house on August 19 1937

The need of a store in the district became evident so I talked over the idea with my friend Will McKinnon, a merchant in Leslieville. He stocked me with some groceries, and I opened up the store in the kitchen along with the post office All was going quite well, but oh, the work! Shipping cream, caring for the cows pigs chickens and my garden, as well as the post office (my mother having retired in 1934 was all my responsibility With the added work of the store I decided I needed a helpmate, and this led to my decision to get married

My husband, Edmund Bobier was born in Moosomin, Saskatchewan, August 22, 1901. He had taken his teacher's training course, then decided to go homesteading in the Peace River country We were married May 12, 1939. When I married I was required, by the laws in force, to relinquish my position as postmistress

Now I had one job less, and some help, but not for long. World War II broke out and my husband joined the Airforce and my brother Arthur joined the army This left me with the store, the farm work, and my first son, who was a real comfort to me. The old adage "there is no rest for the wicked" certainly applied to me. My second son orm, and ten and a half months later

Alfred's arrival caused a bit of excitement, as he was born two months prematurely My husband had been discharged from the Airforce by this time, so about nine o'clock in the evening of February 13, he got the team and cutter ready wrapped me in blankets in the sleigh, and we set off for the Eckville Hospital, 25 miles away At Leslieville we changed into Mr William McKinnon's car and he hurried me on to Eckville. In spite of icy roads we arrived safely, and just after midnight my Valentine was born. That was a race for life, and my three-pound baby lives today a man of six feet three inches tall

On April 1, 1945 we moved our family to Condor and purchased the Killick's store business Five years we carried on there, but in 1950 sold out and moved to the Peace River country The Government was offering returned servicemen land there. Due to the fact that we already owned a quarter there we moved onto it, and then looked over the Government land. We took a half section near Belloy and I started in homesteading again. We lived in two 12' by 14' granaries that we had built on the land. Later we did move the house from Edmund's first homestead onto this land. We farmed here until 965, when we sold out and moved to the city of Grande Prairie. In 1972 we were on the move once more. This time we bought a home in High River. It has proven to be a lovely place for retirement and with my son Alfred this is where I am living today.

My mother, always a very tiny frail-looking person, moved with us to Condor, and then to the Peace River country. She went homesteading with us when she was 88 years of age. On December 19, 1960, Mother passed away at our home near Belloy, at the ripe old age of 96 years. She had given birth to seven children but never once in all her years was she in a hospital. Four of her children predeceased her. Harry's twin died at the age of five years, and my twin at the age of nine years, before we moved to the Carlos area. Harry died in Red Deer Hospital from cancer on September 18, 1952. Ethel died January 8, 1959, and Arthur died July 5, 1969. My husband, Edmund Bobier, passed away here at High River in October, 1974.

Although my family has grown smaller, my memories of them and the life we all had together remains as clear as ever. My two older sons are married and I have three grandchildren. I am active and busy with my garden and home here, and I love to travel.

ED ROBINSON — by the Robinson Family

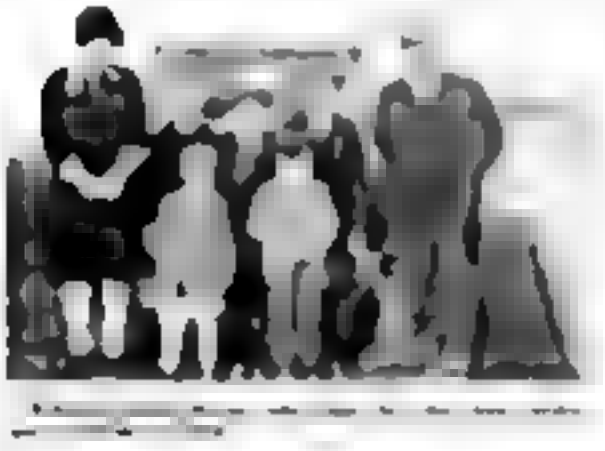
Dad was born in Grand Forks, North Dakota, U.S.A. on August 1, 1895. He came to the Assiniboia area of Sask. with his parents in 1912, later moving to Rearville, in the Chinook area, where they had homesteads. Ed married Anna Beryl Clipsham on January 1917. She was born in Ontario May 19, 1899. They farmed in the Chinook area for a time.

In 1928 dad, my uncle, and some neighbors went to the Peace River country, looking for land and some of them found land to their liking in that area. However, later that fall, dad bought land in the Condor District. They moved in the spring of 1929, on account of the depression. They came by Model T Ford and their possessions came by train. The first stop was a farm south of Condor. Five children, Arthur, Jean, Edgar, Gordon, and Dora had been born while dad and mom were living in the Chinook area.



One episode that I remember was that my dad's sister, a school teacher, came to visit us. As the roads were far from good, one mile of which was rough corduroy, she decided that the side looked much better; she was lucky that her car didn't break through the muskeg! After finding out what muskeg was, she decided to keep to the roads in this country.

We later moved to a rented farm east of Condor. In these years we attended Rearville School on the prairie, Daisy Nook, and Shady Lane Schools in the Condor area. We had to ride horseback and later walked, as there was no bus in those days.

In March of 1932 dad moved the family to a farm in the Aurora District where we attended that school. This move was made by team and wagon — over poor roads. Alice, Donna and Roger (Bud) were born in the Aurora area.

My parents were active members of the district. Dad was on the school board and belonged to the original Social Credit Party which put on entertainment in the district. In 1932 there were a number of families who moved into the district so the little log school had to have an extension added to accommodate the 45 pupils.

There was a spring south of dad's called King Springs. This is where they held picnics and ball games every Saturday afternoon. People came on horseback, with teams and wagons, or walked. No one was too busy then to enjoy an afternoon of sports. We had a creek past our buildings which froze and flooded in the winter time. The young people of the district found this an ideal skating rink. There was also a big hill just west on Heringer's, which made a good bobsled hill.

Mother started the first ladies club in the district. It was called the Aurora Ladies' Sewing Circle. Its main purpose was to teach the young people how to sew and do different crafts.

In 1946, Robinsons had a sale. They had sold the farm to their son Art. With their three youngest children they moved to British Columbia where they lived until the fall of 1947. At this time they returned to Alberta and settled in Leedale. In 1950, Mother took over the post office, where she was postmistress for 17 years. Dad passed away at the end of May 1951. Mother was a member of the U.C.W. and was the Leedale news correspondent for several years. When she left Leedale she took a trip to Ontario, the place of her birth. Here, she attended the Exposition, as well as visited her aunt. Upon her return she settled in Red Deer where she was very active in many organizations until her passing in September of 1974, at the age of 75 years.

The Ed Robinson family included eight children. Art, the eldest, farmed the home quarter for 40 years.

Jean married Rob Ervin.

Edgar Robinson was born in Calgary on May 3, 1920. He helped at home and attended Rear ville Daisy Nook, Shady Lane, and Washington Heights Schools, and took Grades 11 and 12 in Lesliеville and Rocky Mountain House. We. Edgar and I Jean). walked the four and a half miles to Washington Heights, and we never missed a day of school In 1939. Edgar, along with two neighbor boys, went to British Columbia to pick fruit He met with an accident, and was killed in June 1939 at 19 years of age

Gordon was born at Youngstown, Alta. on August 31, 1922. He took his schooling at Shady Lane, Daisy Nook and Aurora Schools He helped at home, and worked out a lot His favorite pastime was riding his saddle horses. ## WHEN PA IS SICK

When Pa is sick, he s scared to death.
An Ma an us just hold our breath,
He crawls in bed an puffs and grunts.
And does all kinds of crazy stunts.
He wants Doc Brown in mighty quick.
For when Pa's ill, he. s awful sick
He gasps an moans an sorta sighs.
He talks so queer an rolls his eyes.
Ma jumps and runs an all of us.
An all the house. is in a fuss,
An peace an joy is mighty skeerce
When Pa is sick It s somethin fierce

WHEN MA IS SICK

When Ma is sick she pegs away
She's quiet though not much to say
She goes right on adoin' things,
And sometimes laughs, or even sings.
She says she don't feel so extra well.
But then it's just a kinda spell
She L be alright tomorrow sure.
An good ole sleep will be the cure
An Pa, he snuffs and makes no kick.
For women folks is always sick
An Ma, she smiles, lets on she's glad,
When Ma is sick It ain t so bad

Woman was created from the rib of man
She was not made from his head — to top him
Nor out of his feet to be trampled upon
But out of his side, to be equal to him
Under his arm, to be protected:
And near his heart, to be loved.

Diamond Valley, Bluebell

ANDERSON, ALLAN AND CORA

Allan Anderson was born in the Diamond Valley district. His folks originally came from Sweden. His dad Oscar Anderson lived in North Dakota for some time before coming to Alberta. His mother was Signe Hendrickson before she was married. She came directly to the Diamond Valley area with her folks when they came from Sweden.

Allan took his schooling at Diamond Valley School. He spent most of his life on the family farm, which his father homesteaded in 1903. He still farms and does carpenterwork besides.

In 1938 he married Cora Temple from Neudorf, Saskatchewan and ever since they have lived in the town of Eckville. Cora was born and raised in Neudorf, Saskatchewan area and took her schooling at Duck Point School. She worked in a dry goods store and bakery before coming to Eckville. After she came to Alberta she worked at various jobs, the longest time being with Sestrap and Co. Allan put in 17 winters in the lumber camp, running the "edger", and for the last four years Cora went along to be the cook's helper.

Allan was among the folk who helped get a church erected in the Diamond Valley district about 1935 and Allan and Cora have always been members of that congregation.

ANDERSON — BROOKS FAMILIES — by Arvid Anderson

The history of our family in central Alberta began with the coming of John Nelson, an uncle of my mother's, from Varmland, Sweden in about 1900 to homestead the NW 2-38-3W5 on October 27, 1902. This land later became the home of Adam (Scotty) McPherson family.

Mr Nelson spelled "Nilson" in Swedish was a minister of the Swedish Mission Covenant Church and after homesteading he continued to minister to the Scandinavian communities of the central Alberta area. He became widely known as "Preacher Nelson", travelling by team, and sometimes on foot covering an area from Coronation on the east through the Camrose and Wetaskiwin and Pigeon Lake settlements on the north and nearer home, from Alhambra to Burnt Lake and Red Deer. He was associated for many years with the Burnt Lake Mission-Covenant and Swedish Baptist churches, and I understand, was also a home missions worker for the Presbyterian Church of Canada from 1904 to 1908. The John Nelsons had two children. Joe Nelson was elevator agent at Hespero (originally Pitcox) for a time after leaving his farm, SW 14-38-3W5, west of Evarts. He went from there to Meeting Creek as elevator agent and finally to Bowden to own and operate a garage with his sons, Russell and Harold, until his death. His wife was the former Ingeborg Lund, a registered nurse, whose home prior to her marriage was the Horseguard district, south of Alhambra. She still makes her home in Bowden at this writing. Naomi, the daughter, became Mrs. "Jack" Torgerud of Red Deer, and was the mother of Raymond (Ray) Torgerud, who was among the first announcers with CKRD when it was established in Red Deer. Ray will be remembered especially for his reading of the daily newscasts.

Preacher Nelson was fascinated with the primitive beauty of his new homeland in the Parklands area of Alberta and immediately after his arrival from Sweden began to write back to the "Old Country", urging his relatives to follow him. This soon resulted in my maternal grandparents coming to the Red Deer area. "Grandpa" Eric Hendrickson, Norwegian by birth, and a 27 year veteran of the Swedish army was becoming tired of the regimentation and controls associated with life in Europe and was looking for the kind of freedom enjoyed by the people of the new world, so he was open to this persuasion. He arrived in Red Deer with his wife Karen and their youngest daughter Signe, who was then 14 years of age, in 1903. The rest of their family, Aaron, Fred and Carl Hjalmar Erickson followed within the next eight years, Aaron coming last in 1911. The older daughters, Mrs. Anna Nyberg and Mrs. Bertha (Oscar) Selstrom also came. Mrs. Nyberg to Red Deer and Mrs. Selstrom to a farm south of Burnt Lake.

Mr Hendrickson after his arrival in Red Deer worked for a time at carpentry prior to homesteading and coming west from Red Deer to what was then a part of the Evarts area, but now Eckville. He homesteaded SW 28-37-3W5 where Jim Murray now lives. He was especially adept with the "broad-axe", an art he had learned in Norway, and at constructing log buildings with the "dove-tailed" corners and scribed lower edge channelled to fit together — a characteristic Scandinavian and Finnish type of construction. Some of the log houses he built in about 1904-05 have been lived in continuously since those pioneer times and with improvements to the finish and renovated to modernize them, are still in use today. Noteably that on his own homestead occupied by Jim Murray, the house on the Logan farm and also that on the Ed Derbyshire farm.

My father, Carl Oscar Anderson known locally as Oscar, arrived in Alberta from farming near Pleasant Lake, North Dakota in 1903. He worked with the late Dan Clausen, later a well known citizen of Eckville, helping to operate a sawmill on the NE 10-38-3-W5, presently owned by John and Neva Craig, and on which I am now building on an acreage. While so engaged, my father homesteaded the NW 10-38-3-W5. He married Signe (Eric's dottur) Hendrickson in 1907 and they made their home on his homestead, where a frame house and barn had been erected. They lived there until my father's death in March, 1918. Before his death, he had with the help of the late Oscar Oastrom and others cleared and broke about 100 acres of his homestead land.

Three children were born to them here: Astrid, Arvid and Allan. Astrid died at the age of 16 while still at school at Diamond Valley. Allan now lives in Eckville and still farms land homesteaded by our father. I, Arvid, was born on father's homestead and grew up in the Diamond Valley district and received my public school education and first year high school in the country school of that name. The original building has been renovated and now serves as a community center. My first teacher was Miss Pauline (Polly) Hutchinson. At the time of my birth the village of Evarts, three miles to the east of my parents' farm was still a thriving center, but the hope of being on the route of the Alberta Central Railway, which by-passed Evarts to the north through Benalto and "Kootuk" (later re-named South Eckville), by the C.P.R., was beginning to fade at that time. This turn of events dashed the hopes of Evarts becoming a metropolis, but it continued for many years to be the Post Office for that area, until the establishing of Eckville's Rural Route No. 3, at which time our postal address became Eckville. My earliest recollections of Eckville include the hitching-posts that used to stand along main street with a horizontal beam at about three foot height, to which saddle horses and teams were tied. Also there were tie-sheds behind the stores which fronted the west side of main street. Fred Isaacson's garage opened on the street near where the hotel now stands. Dr. P. L. Backus, who set a broken arm for me at age 11, occupied what is now the Roy Saari residence. There were then these long established Eckville businesses: Mike Sestrap's General Store, Forhan's Drug Store, the Co-op (in the building where the bakery and confectionery have been more recently), J. T. Marshall's hardware, Cowan's International Harvester agency, Dan Clausen's insurance and a restaurant operated by a smiling Chinaman known widely as "Happy". There was the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Isaacson's Garage, a hotel, Maclin's blacksmith shop, the Eckville Creamery, Moro's flour mill. A landmark as you entered the village from the south was Walter Herring's house on the corner opposite the C.N. crossing. The Eckville School of that day is now Leo Remmard's welding shop. There was a livery-barn between the present Co-op main store and Lilvam's Garage, which later became the Isaacson Garage and which afterward was destroyed by fire.

In the 1930's I began taking Bible College training with the object of entering the Christian ministry. Upon completing this training, I was ordained to the ministry under the Apostolic Church of Pentecost at Port Coquitlam, B.C. Shortly after ordination, I took a pastoral charge in Victoria, B.C. While pastor of this assembly I married Bertha Hurly, then residing in New Westminster and employed at Royal Columbian Hospital. We had met while attending the Fundamental Bible College in Coquitlam. Our daughter, May, now Mrs. Brian Van de Wark was born while we lived in Victoria. From Victoria we went to High River, Alberta to pastor a church there during the years that the town was a training center for the R.C.A.F. where young men were being trained for overseas service in World War II. It was here that our second daughter, Beverly was born.

After a number of years we moved to Lemberg, Saskatchewan to take charge of a church there. After five years as pastor of this church some health problems developed which were the cause of my requiring a change of occupation for a time. It was for this reason that we returned to the Central Alberta area, living for a few weeks in the Horace Meeres' house at Condor, then going to Benalto where we spent three years and finally moved to Eckville where I established the sash, door and cabinet business known as Anderson Woodworking. The first shop-building to house this business was erected in October of 1953 on the lot purchased from the village, and opened for business in November of that year. Many houses in the Eckville area built during the years 1953 to 1965 are fitted with windows, doors and kitchen cupboards manufactured in this plant.

In 1958 we moved the former Buchanan residence from Benalto to Eckville and after renovations it became our home for the next 23 years. In 1956 our son Bryan was born in the Eckville Hospital.

As the work increased the origina woodworking shop was enlarged, the shop area was doubled in 1961 and 1967 a two-storey front for office space with a basement for a heating plant was added.

In 1968 Dual-Craft Industries Ltd. was formed for the manufacture of the Chalet folding trailer and and truck canopies and campers. An assembly building 40 ft. by 120 ft. was erected for this purpose and the wooden parts manufactured in the former sash and cabinet plant were assembled in this building and shipped to customers as far away as Halifax, Nova Scotia and Waterloo, Iowa U.S.A.

During our years in Eckville, I was secretary for a time of the Eckville Mutual Telephone Company. I spent some years on the Town Council and when Red McAndrew resigned to move to Red Deer, I succeeded him as Mayor continuing until business duties forced me to drop out of civic service.

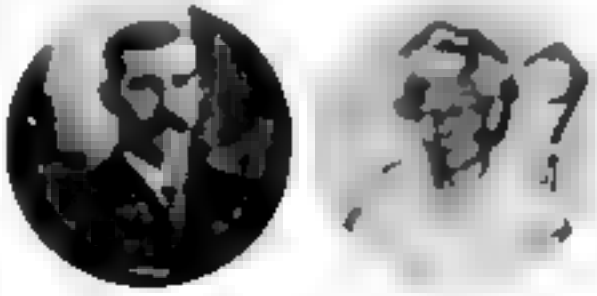
In the early part of this year (1977), the Dual Credit Industries and Anderson Woodworking properties were sold to Mr. Donald Macrae and his partners. As our Eckville residence formed a part of this property it meant a move for us. We are at the present moment engaged in building another home on an acreage on the same quarter section where, some 74 years ago, my father in company with Dan Clausen sawed the lumber for his homestead house and barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Anderson [illegible]

Our daughter May Van de Wark lives in Calgary where her husband Brian is a member of the Calgary City Police Force since 1962. Their family consists of two daughters, Cindy and Shannon. Our second daughter Beverly is Mrs. Neil Kuhn. Her husband was employed for [illegible] years with Dual-Craft as foreman during which time the Kuhns had a home built in Eckville. Upon leaving Eckville they went to Hope, British Columbia to a business of their own. They have three children, Shelly, Lorlie and Shane. Just recently the Kuhns have sold their business in Hope and now reside in Abbotsford where Neil is in the automotive parts [illegible].

May, Beverly and Bryan got most of their public school and high school education in Eckville schools. May spent her first year after leaving high school with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Eckville. Our son Bryan lives with us and is at present with Donald and David Macrae in the Dual-Craft business.

In order to complete the history of our family I should add that after my father died in 1918, my mother rented the farm to a relative for two years and in 1920 married James Brooks who had homesteaded NW7-38-3W5, which he sold later to Frank Page and purchased instead the land now owned by Orla and Andrew Nielsen. His homestead was until recently the home of the Chucas family.



Photos of James Brooks when a Mounty and Mrs. Brooks

After my mother's marriage to "Jim" Brooks, they continued to make their home on my father's home place. Their children are Harry Brooks of Lesliieville who married Ada Wingate; Alford Brooks who spent more than 20 years with the Canadian Air Force and now lives with his wife, Beatrice, formerly of Halifax N.S. at Summerland, B.C. and Myrtle, Mrs. Arthur Bott of Rocky Mountain House, Alberta. A more complete record of the Brooks' family history will be found under the names of Brooks and Bot[illegible].

ANDERSON, CHRIS JR., — by Lillian Anderson

Chris Anderson Sr. was born in Beirsted, Denmark, on June 26, 1883, coming to the Fort William, Ontario area, where he worked for the railway company laying track. He came on west to the Medicine Hat area of Alberta and filed on a homestead south of Seven Persons in 1908. Here he met his wife, the former Gonda Van Maarion who, with her parents and family had immigrated from Rotterdam, Holland to Canada in 1910. They farmed in the Seven Persons area un-dl drought and crop failure for several years forced them to leave. The government offered to help such farmers by giving them two free railway cars for their belongings and family to relocate. The Andersons, with their family of eight children, moved to Cheddarville, south of Rocky Mountain House to S .2-37 7-W5 in 1925. Their land at Seven Persons was later sold at a tax sale.

In 1928 the family moved to the Daley farm N 31 37 3-W5, where they farmed until January of 1931, when they bought the E 15-38-3-W5 from a Mr. Hepworth, who was a creamery owner in Red Deer. They moved their belongings on wagons, as there was no snow that winter and no frost in the ground. This lack of frost enabled them to put up fences for their cattle, horses and pigs. In 1950 Chris sold the farm to Chris, Jr. He and Mrs. Anderson then retired to Calgary where Mrs. Anderson passed away in 1958 and Mr. Anderson in 1977.

In 1942 Chris Jr. married the former Lillian Aghbown of this district and they still farm the home place. They have two children. Margaret Newlands, who has been a stewardess for P.W.A. for 10 years, and her husband, Brian, who is project manager for Cascade Development Ltd. in Calgary, along with their daughter Kirsten, live at Bragg Creek. Son Richard, with his wife, the former Pat Snider, live at Sylvan Lake, where Pat is a teacher and Richard, after obtaining a B.Sc. Degree from the University of Alberta, is employed with the Alberta Hail Project of the Weather Modification Board at Penhold.

Mary Anderson married Elvin Ross and they live in Calgary. They have a son, Robert, who is with the armed forces in Ottawa.

Gonda Anderson's first husband passed away in Calgary around 1951. They had one daughter, Marlene, who lives in Calgary. Gonda married George Rumble and they now live at Crossfield.

John Anderson, who was serving in the Navy was lost at sea in the sinking of the "Spikenard" in the north Atlantic on February 10, 1942 at the age of 24 years.

Lillian Anderson married John Rowles in 1936 and they live in Calgary. They have a son, John Jr.

Charley Anderson also served in the Air Force for several years. He is now in the Real Estate business in Red Deer. He married the former Laureen Ralston in Red Deer in 1941 and they have one son, John, of Waterton Lakes, and two daughters, Joan of Calgary and Janice of Red Deer.

William Anderson (Charley's twin) was a fighter pilot and was shot down over Germany on March 24, 1945, and died at the age of 24 years. This was during the second world war.

Carl Anderson also served in the Air Force for quite some time. Upon returning, he farmed in this area before going to Calgary to work for the city. He retired from this job in February 1977. He married the former Helen Kulyk of Oyen in 1955 and they now live in Calgary.

It seems that all the records of the Bluebell school have been lost. However, it was one of the early schools and should not be forgotten.

We know it was opened in 1905 with Miss Ada Brown as teacher. Miss Brown later married John Killick. Some of the teachers were: Miss Cochrane, J. M. MacDonald, Miss Coughlin, Miss Johanson, Mrs. Wannass, Miss Camron, A. Harrie, Miss Norton, Miss Stewart, William Morris, Mrs. Worma, Mildred Anderson, Mrs. Owens, Mrs. Earl Hansen, Miss Golightly, Miss Phillips, Mrs. Macintosh, Miss McKee, Mr. Bowles and Mrs. Savoy.

The school was named by Mrs. Hansen whose favorite flower was the bluebell, and they grew in abundance around the school. The teachers in those days usually boarded with the farm families. A teacherage was built about 1949. The janitor work was done by one of the older pupils for which they were paid the large sum of $10 per year. All they had to do was to get to school early enough to have the school warm by nine o'clock, have the wood carried in and carry the water from across the road. In the holidays they washed the windows and scrubbed the floor.

Olaf Medin, a bachelor, lived across the road and quite often gave the janitor a helping hand by stoking up the fire in the morning. He also planted a hedge of spruce trees around the school yard

Some of the first families to send children to school were Isaacsons, Bottons, Rasmussens, Hansens, Pedersens, and Bradshaws. The first school burned down in 1932 at Easter. The children were not allowed to enjoy a longer holiday however as half of the barn was new and it was turned into a classroom. The new school was built and ready in the fall.

The school house was used for many social activities, such as card parties, dances, business meetings, and the annual Christmas concert. The last day of school, picnics were always an enjoyable event. The school closed in 1955 and the children were bussed to Eckville. The school was sold to Art Moench who remodelled it for a family dwelling. It is now owned by Ezra Isaac [illegible].

Other teachers at Bluebell school were L. G. Dodson, Mr. Strerrett, Miss Huttin, T. J. Knoor and Mr. Gleeb.

BOLLER, CHRISTIAN

Christian Boller came to Alberta from Oslo Norway in 1905. After a period of time working for the railroad he started farming with his cousin Hans Olsen in 1909. Later they bought the quarter of land known as the Benson Place, SE 20-38-3-W5. They farmed together for a few years then Chris sold his share to Hans. Chris then bought a quarter of land from Jack Coughlin which is at present owned by Henry Nagel.

In 1924 he married Selma Botten who had come to Alberta with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Botten in 1902 from South Dakota, U.S.A. Prior to her marriage Selma worked in Red Deer for a few years.

For a few years during the 1940's they owned a quarter of land that they bought from August Christensen, at present owned by Cliff Hansen. Upon selling this they bought the Coughlin quarter directly east of their home place.

In 1947 they retired from farming to live in Sylvan Lake, later on moving to Red Deer, and in 1963, they moved to Calgary. In 1964, Chris and Selma celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary. Chris passed away in 1966 and Selma in 1971.

Chris and Selma had one daughter, Verna. She attended the Diamond Valley school. In 1949 Verna married Bruce Castleman from Sylvan Lake. They moved to Calgary where they still reside. They have four daughters, all of whom live in Calgary.

THE BOTTEN FAMILY — by Iris Rasmussen

One of the first families to move into the Evarts district was Halvor Knut Botten and his wife, Gunhild Ellingson, born July 21, 1862 and April 15, 1864 respectively in Fron Hadngar, Norway. They had a family of four daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Botten emigrated to the Evarts district on November 3, 1902 and along with them came Pete Pedersen, his wife, Sifred and their family. Pete Pedersen settled on NW 28-38-3-W5. Pete and his family lived in this area until 1908 when he sold the land to Neils Rasmussen. This land is now owned by Mrs. Theresa Rasmussen and rented by Elmer Rasmussen.

Mr. and Mrs. Botten were interested in educating their daughters. Mr. Botten donated two acres of land on which to build a school, which became known as the Bluebell School. It was in operation from about 1904 until 1955. All the Botten girls attended this school.

Mr. and Mrs. Botten's oldest daughter was Thilda Hagrimsen, a daughter of Mrs. Botten by a previous marriage. She was born in Minnesota U.S.A. on January 23, 1892. As well as attending the Bluebell school, Thilda also attended Central School in Red Deer. She worked at the Evarts Hotel for a time before marrying Hans Olsen in

There was always a place for people to rest and get warm

During the early years Mr. Botten would transport people to Red Deer and Rocky Mountain House. Thressa Botten Rasmussen tells of different pioneering days When coffee was in short supply Mrs. Botten used wheat She would wash it well and put it in the oven. Over the wheat she poured a little molasses. Next it was roasted slowly until dry This roasted wheat was stored and ground the same as coffee. The taste was equally as good. Milk was nearly always in plentiful supply Mrs. Botten made different kinds of cheese, roma, grout and vesting, a dish made of thickened milk, served with sugar and cin-

BROWN JIM, JIM, AND NELLIE

James Brown and Helen Dobie were both born and raised in Scotland. They were married at Dalkeith Mid-Lothian, Scotland on April 30 1915

After Dad's return from active service in World War I, he resumed his business as a coal merchant, but the urge to emigrate was upon him. The decision to be made was — Australia or Canada? With the toss of a coin they chose Canada and on May 11, 1929 Jim and Nellie and their four children, Jimmy, Mary, Alex and Jemima left Greenock, Scotland on the "S.S Metagamma" bound for Alberta, Canada through the Soldier Settlement Board Scheme

After seven days at sea, and I must say, not all pleasure, with seasickness, man overboard and icebergs, we landed at Quebec From there to Kootuk by train, where we were met by the late Alf Thubron, in place of Mr Goldfinch, who was supervisor for the Soldier Settlement Board After an overnight stay at the Erkville Hotel. Mr Goldfinch took us by car to Hespero, where we collected our baggage off the train and loaded it onto a hayrack and horses belonging to Donald

At first glance the buildings on the farm were a big disappointment but the decision had been made and the best had to be made of it. The land had been rented by a neighbor, Louis Hubl for the year so Dad worked for neighboring farmers to learn the Canadian ways of farming.

A barn was built and our first milk cow was purchased from L. Hubl. Bessie, our first animal on the farm became a real pet and we did have milk. Our first team of horses and harness were purchased from another neighbor John Mayles. Machinery and more horses were purchased as [illegible] and [illegible] ready to start farming.

After coming from a town where Mother was used to the butcher and baker vans coming to the door this was quite a change. The stove was a big challenge and learning to make bread was another but with the help of kindly neighbors these problems were overcome. Mother knew how to make scones and many a time a scone and cup of tea was served and enjoyed in our home.

Our school was Gaetz only a mile away and the post office was at Hespero. Dad was a great walker and often walked for the mail and the few necessities, including coal oil for the lamps. Later on we could get coal oil at N. F. Eriksson's and our mail route was R. R. 3.

Our social life consisted of the school picnics in June and the Christmas concerts at the school. Many a Friday night saw the family walking to Hubls' our closest neighbor) to listen to the Old Timers from C. F. C.N. Calgary. To hear a few Scottish tunes did much for the morale. A few house parties at different homes were always enjoyed, and the children were always included.

In November 1930 a baby girl, Janet, arrived with Mrs. Charlie Wright attending as midwife. With the 1930's came the depression and all it brought with it, but with courage, pride and determination we came through.

Dad served on the school board and was secretary of the Farmers' Union for many years.

BURNS AND FREW — by W. T. Burns

I was born in Quebec in 1897. At four years of age I moved to California with my parents, a few years later to Oregon. Then, in 1909 to Claresholm, Alberta and to the Ricinus district in 1913. In 1915, during World War One, I enlisted in the 22nd Battery in the Artillary and spent three years overseas. I returned home to help my parents and to work on my own land. My parents were old timers of the Ricinus district. My mother passed away in 1923 and was the first white woman to die west of the Clearwater River. My dad passed away in 1929.

In 1926 I moved to the Diamond Valley district and married Margaret Frew, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Frew, who came from Scotland in 1913 to the Evarts district and later moved to Ricinus. In 1947 they moved to Eckville and lived in Eckville for 12 years. Mr. Frew was well known for his accordion playing.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Frew

Mr. Frew's work in Scotland had been making and moulding iron in the Crown Ironworks. One day on the farm he found a piece of iron with the Crown stamp on it. "We thought he had found gold." He was so happy to have found a piece of iron with the Crown stamp on it, that he had made in Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Frew both lived to be 80 years of age. She passed away in 1959 and he in 1960.

My wife and I lived in Diamond Valley for 44 years. We raised a family of three sons — Bruce, Stanley and Robert — who now live and farm in Diamond Valley and are well known.

We had many ups and downs in the early days, especially through the thirties, but many happy days, too. It was a good life.

Now, in our older years we enjoy living in Eckville and enjoy our many friends here. We moved here in 1971 and last year (1976) we celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary.

BURNS, ROBERT

Robert spent his growing-up years in the Diamond Valley district with his parents, Wycliffe and Margaret Burns, and older brothers, Bruce and Stanley. After attending school at Diamond Valley and Gaetz, Robert went out to work on the the majority of these years being spent working for the Duke Drilling Company. At the time he started drilling for them, he was told that he was one of the youngest drillers in Alberta.

With due consideration, a decision was made to make his life's work and home on the farm. He then went home to Diamond Valley and purchased the Lightbown home quarter, SE 5-38-3-W5.

In July of 1961 Robert married Deloyce Tolonen, daughter of Tolmi and Elsie Tolonen and sister to Rodney. Deloyce grew up north of Eckville and took her schooling in the Estonian and Eckville High School. After two years of teacher training she taught in Bentley for two years. Following her marriage, she taught in the David Thompson High School. In the term of 1962-1963 Deloyce returned to university to complete four years and graduated in 1963, receiving a Bachelor of Education degree. She taught only until the arrival of her family. Family additions were three - Brent, Drena and Lance. Since the Burns farm is on the edge of the Red Deer County, the children attend the Spruce View School.

In 1971 Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Burns moved to Eckville, at which time Robert took over the farm, SW 5-38-3-W5, and in the meantime had purchased the Philip Larson quarter, SE 6-38-3-W5.

Bob is very interested in cattle. Along with a range cow herd, he is presently establishing a purebred Simmental herd. He and his brother Bruce operate a feed-lot.

Bob, Deloyce and family are active community members, plus being members of the Diamond Valley Church. Bob is a Church Board member and has served on the Eckville Co-op Board for seven years. The family is active in the Range Land 4-H Beef Club, of which Bob is presently the leader.

Farm life for the R. Burns family has been very busy but rewarding and happy as well.

STANLEY BURNS FAMILY – by Anne Burns

Stanley Roy Burns, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wycliffe Burns, married Anne Dobia, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dobia of the Evergreen district. The wedding took place on November 3, 1950. They lived in the house which Stan had built prior to their marriage on his father's farm.

In the year 1953 Gayle was born on February 11 on her grandmother Burns' birthday. She, being their first grandchild, was named after her grandmother, Margaret Gayle.

That spring Stan and Anne purchased the N 5-38-3-W5 from Douglas Walker. In the fall of that year they moved their house onto this land. The families that had lived on this land prior were Bill Ballance, Jack Day and Douglas Walker.

During the years from 1953 to 1956 the rainfall was very heavy. Stan decided to go into hog farming with grain farming being their chief occupation.

On February 27, 1955 another daughter, Beverley Anne, was born. By this time Stan had had bad luck with his hogs and the crops were poor so he decided to do some bush work for the winter, west of Rocky Mountain House. By the fall of 1956 he began roughnecking on the drilling rigs and this he continued for ten winters.

During these years and Stan's earlier years a lot of softball was played. The first team in the district was New Hill, which later changed to Gaetz and finally was called Central. This team consisted mainly of the same players and all those years Stanley played as pitcher. There were many teams taking part in different districts and they formed a league. Softball games were the chief sport in the surrounding communities for 20 years. The tournaments were plentiful, and enjoyed by all.

In 1963 Anne and Stan built a new house with Jack Friesen being hired as carpenter. Many homes in the community were built by Jack, as he was a very good carpenter and a fine fellow.

Beverley and Gayle attended school at Spruce View except for Gayle's first year at Benalto and last year in Red Deer, where she graduated. Gayle took training in Dental Assisting at NAIT. On July 20, 1974 she married Peter Stan and they are now residing in Calgary.

Beverley has completed four years of university towards a B.Ed. degree. In the fall of 1977 she began teaching at Sundre, Alberta.

Stan has served on the board of directors for the Eckville Rural Electrification Association for many years. He has held the position of secretary for ten years and at present is the board chairman

Both Stan and Anne have served on the board of several worthwhile organizations in the community

A son, Sheldon William, was born on March 16, 1970 and at present is attending Spruce View school

During the past several years Stan has been growing rapeseed, barley and some hay. Animals on their farm have been scarce, except for chickens and pets

Nora was fortunate in being able to take a Recreation Leadership course, organized through the Department of Youth from Edmonton. He liked the country around Red Deer so the family joined him there in 1905. They spent one year there and then moved to the Happy Hill district. Charlie Hendrickson, a bachelor was their closest neighbor and the children were quite taken with his table. It sat in one corner of his house, and its base was a tree stump.

Mr. Crawford later rented the Liggot place in the Diamond Valley district and their five school-age children attended Gaetz School until the school at Diamond Valley was built. The family lived on several other rented farms before finally buying the S.W. 18-38-3-W5 in 1920. There were about 13 acres under cultivation when it was purchased. During the next 12 years Mr. Crawford and his son Andrew cleared by hand about 112 acres and broke it with horses.

AUGUST DAHLGREN FAMILY

Gust Dahlgren came to Fargo, North Dakota U.S.A. from Halmstad, Sweden in 1896. In 1898 he sent for Ida Malmstrom and they were married in Fargo that year. In 1903 he came to Alberta to take up a homestead, which is now the Mick Logan place. He built a log house in 1905 and sent for his family, who had remained in Fargo. The family was able to watch the building of the school, and Gust actually named the Diamond Valley School. In the late spring and early summer the dew was heavy in the morning and when the sun came up the whole valley sparkled like diamonds. This gave him the idea for the name, "Diamond Valley

There was plenty of meat of all kinds, beef, pork, mutton, chickens; and prarie chickens were plentiful at that time. They took some of the grain—rye, oats and wheat— in bags to some place toward Rocky Mountain House and had it made into flour. There was no market for what they raised, but there was plenty of food

The freight was usually lumber going to Red Deer and supplies coming back as there was a store, saloon, and a livery stable in Evarts. There was also communication between Evarts and Red Deer by telephone

Gust and family sold out to Ed Wadson in 1913 and moved to Washougal, Washington, U.S.A. They had a family of eight children and as they grew up, each one took his place in the business world. Both Gust and his wife have passed on. Their family still live in the States

Henry, the eldest son, had a drug store and was a pharmacist in Portland, Oregon. He and his wife are retired on a little acreage close to Portland. They have been out to visit a few times since they left here

DARLINGTON FAMILY HISTORY — by Bill Darlington

Will and Mabel Darlington were married in Essex, England in 1913. Their three children Bill, Ken and Joan, were all born there at Springate Farm. Later the family moved to Kent to a larger farm. Here Will had a dairy herd and supplied milk to the city of London. However misfortune in the form of Bangs disease in the cattle, along with the post-war hard times made the Darlingtons decide to try their luck in the new world

In the autumn of 1926 they set sail for Canada and a new life on the western prairies. They travelled by train from the east coast to the Lougheed district of Alberta, where an uncle of Will's was already farming. Here they farmed for the next nine years while their family was growing up. However these were the dry 'Dusty Thirties' and grain farming in that area did not prove too profitable. As an alternative Will and his family became interested in raising registered Shorthorn cattle

In 1937, with two grown sons to help, Will and Mabel decided to make another move, this time to the Millet district. Here they continued to raise their excellent beef cattle as well as a dairy herd, as Millet had one of the best cheese factories in Canada at that time

In 1943, with son Ken and daughter Joan both in the Royal Canadian Air Force, Will and Mabel and son Bill purchased the Doug Snyder farm in the Hespero district, west of Eckville. At the end of World War II (1945) Ken and his wife Lorraine also came to Hespero, purchasing one of the quarter sections of land from his father. Meanwhile, Bill had married Mary Gathercole and settled in a small house in his parents' yard later taking over the big house when the senior Darlingtons built a new smaller home. Bill's three daughters, Sheila, Shirley and Marie, and son Bill Jr. were all born there

The Darlington families were all interested in cattle. Bill and his father continued to raise some of the best beef in the west, while Ken had a herd of registered Jerseys and also a large poultry flock. All of the Darlingtons took an active part in the district activities and were always exhibitors at the Benalto Fairs. Bill and family also took a keen interest in 4-H Club work, as the many trophies in their living room will show

In the fall of 1954 Will Darlington passed away, leaving his family to carry on the traditions of good farming that he had always practiced

In 1957 Ken and Lorraine and their two daughters moved to Edmonton where Ken had accepted a position on the poultry branch of the Provincial Department of Agriculture

Granny Darlington, as she has been affectionately called by everyone for many years, lived on in her own home, bearing up in her true English style, after the death of her husband and then that of her only daughter in 1961. She kept up her interest in all of the farm activities until her arthritis forced her to give up her home and retire to the Eckville Manor House. Here, at age 86 in 1977, she still keeps up her cheerful interest in all activities of the district. Few babies have ever been born here who did not wear a tiny outfit fashioned from the knitting needles of "Granny" Darlington.

DIAMOND VALLEY CHURCH — by Neva Craig

Prior to beginning this little history of the Diamond Valley Church, I would like to pay tribute to those who have ministered to us in the school house and in private homes, off and on through the many years before it came into being. As a little girl, I remember a Swedish pastor, Mr. John Nelson, from the Burnt Lake area, coming to speak in the different homes. There were quite a few Swedish people in the district at that time, but we all went, whether the Word was preached in Swedish or not. I think a few words were always said in English for our benefit. Then, there was a man by the name of W. G. McKechnie, who had lost his eyesight in his teen years, and, later becoming a Presbyterian minister who covered an area between Sylvan Lake and Rocky Mountain House.

There were others later on, of various denominations, who came to Diamond Valley to hold services. Mr. W. Cross, from a Nazarene College, held services for at least one summer, also an elderly Presbyterian minister who lived in the Centreville District, by the name of W. Sheppard.

There was usually a goodly number of people present, and I feel that those who ministered the gospel to us in those early years may have laid some of the ground-work for the present church. William Deverill came in the late spring of 1934 at the invitation of the late Joe Hollander of the Gaetz district. There wasn't too much response in the few services held there, but the Max Lightbown family became interested. Later that summer, Max accompanied the Deverills to a camp meeting at Rossington, a district not too far from Westlock, Alberta. Following this, at the invitation of Max Lightbown, regular Sunday services were begun in the Diamond Valley School, with Mr. Deverill in charge. He lived in the Lightbown house on the SW 4-38-3-W5, and stayed for two or three months. Upon leaving, he placed Mrs. Nester, from Roundup, in charge of the services here. Mrs. Nester was a widow with three daughters, Eva, Lucy and Barbara. Eva, being the eldest, came here to stay with her mother for the first year, and attended school at Diamond Valley. The two younger girls stayed with Mrs. Nester's parents. Their only mode of transportation was walking, and Mrs. Nester walked a goodly number of miles in all kinds of weather. They, too, lived in the Lightbown house. Phillip Larsen, a neighbor, gave her a cow to milk in the summer months, and she sold butter to make a bit of extra money.

Through harvest time Mrs. Nester began announcing that there would be special Evangelistic services later on, and just before Christmas and into the new year Mr. and Mrs. G. Batke came. During this time a real revival took place, and a congregation of over 50 people was formed.

Camp meeting was held in Alex Stewart's barn loft the next summer, and on a clear evening the lusty singing could be heard a mile away. Following this camp meeting, Mrs. Nester was married to Mr. C. Upshall, and, together with the three girls, they continued the work here.

Services were held in the school for over two years, and people began to feel the need of building a church. Land was donated for the project by Charles Snyder, directly across the road west of the school.

The decision was made to build a log church large enough to seat about 100 people. Logs were taken out from a forest reserve about 10 miles west of Ricinus during the winter of 1936, by volunteer labour. There was a small cabin on the property nearby that was not in use, and the owner said the men could stay there while they were cutting the logs. The men remember waking up in the morning to the tune of bubbling porridge being prepared by Mr. Upshall. Logs were then hauled by team and sleigh from this area to the church site. The stopping point along the way was the home of Clyde Comstock, a bachelor. Construction of the little log church was begun in the spring of 1936 with Ed Bartburger in charge. He had learned the trade of building with logs in Germany. A number of the men from the congregation helped when and where they could. Lumber for the floor and roof was sawed at a mill on the west side of the Clearwater River at Ricinus, on the George McNutt land, with a steam-powered saw mill. A man by the name of Ralph Berry, from Dapp, was in charge of the foundation work, roof shingling, doors and windows, and the benches. Money was a scarce commodity during those years, but a sum of money was donated for nails, shingles and windows to the amount of about $100. Somehow it covered the necessary expenses, doors being donated from an old house on the W. T. Burns' farm.

The church was completed and dedicated for service in the late summer of 1936, being affiliated with the Apostolic Church of Pentecost. Mr. and Mrs. Upshall continued the work until the following summer, when Mrs. Upshall's mother became very ill, and they left to be with her for a time. They later started a church in E[illegible]

Following the departure of the Upshalls the work was taken over by Miss Rowse and Miss Sczebell. Miss Rowse was the preacher and Miss Sczebell the homemaker. They lived in two granaries that were put together, and Miss

Following the building of the church, camp meetings were held two different years in Charles Snyder's barn loft. Miss Rowse and Miss Szrebel lived in these granaries until a small two-room parsonage was erected in the late fall. Water was obained from the school pump across the road.

The John Falkner family came after these two young ladies left. Some Eckville people may remember Jack Falkner who lived for a time in Eckville and worked as a motor mechanic in Larry Knudsen's garage. Mrs. Falkner did most of the preaching, as Jack worked most of the time to supplement the family income.

Bert McPhail, a nephew of the Falkners followed them as pastor, when they moved to Cheddarville. The John Harty family arrived in August 1940 and stayed until early spring the following year. Ben Evert came in the spring of 1941 and was married that summer to Myrtle Downs, of Calgary. C. S. Fair filled in for a short time after the Everts left and then Ken and Anna Seargeant came as Pastor, and were here for eight years.

During this time a new four-room parsonage was built, and during their stay here their home was blessed with four sons.

Ray Young, who had been pastor at the Withrow Mission, moved to Diamond Valley and was pastor at the two churches. One pastor has served both churches since that time, with the odd exception. Arden and Maryse Ellis came to us from Vancouver Evangelistic Tabernacle, but due to ill health, were not able to stay very long. Louis and Shirley Peskett followed the Ellises, and both were good young peoples workers. During their stay in the area the Frontier Youth For Christ Camp was founded at Shunda Lake, west of Nordegg. It was while he was leader at one of the summer camps that Louis was seriously injured in a mountain climbing expedition with young people and passed away 10 days later in an Edmonton hospital. Prior to this time he and his wife and two sons had been living in Edmonton where he worked as a Youth for Christ Director. A mountain, near the David Thompson Highway between Nordegg and the Saskatchewan crossing is named "Mount Peskett" in his honor. Agnes Hall from Saskatchewan, came as an assistant pastor to Louis Peskett and served at Diamond Valley for some months.

Mel and Gretta Taylor arrived following Agnes Hall and were here for about a year. Bud and Doris McLean came to us from Kerrobe Saskatchewan, with their two boys. Cliff and Eva Baines, with their family of two children, came from Camp Creek, near Athabasca.

Mel and Muriel Hansen came from near Cold Lake, with one daughter and twin boys. Hugh Cruikshank came from Port Alberni, B.C., and was here for eight years. During this time the assembly increased in number and the need of Sunday School rooms became apparent. The parsonage was sold and the money was used to build Sunday School rooms, adjacent to the church. The parsonage was sold only because it was impossible to procure a well on the premises. Mr. Cruikshank felt the call to missionary and evangelistic work in the Far East, and as of 1978 is working in Indonesia.

Arthur Thomas, a local farmer and member of the congregation, had charge of the pastoral duties for about a two-year period. This brings us up to date on the history of the Diamond Valley Church. We are at present without a pastor, as we have been intermittently throughout the years, but contacts have been made. Like so many small country churches, our membership has fluctuated, sometimes in number near the sixties and sometimes as few as eight or ten. Through the years we have almost always had a Sunday School program at Christmas – usually of the local ladies.

A number of weddings have also taken place, the first one being that of Ted and Lillian Von Hatten.

We have been very fortunate indeed to have had Arvid Anderson, one of the first converts in the district, for our Bible class teacher for a period of over 20 years. He has also filled in many times when we were without a pastor. We have appreciated all of our pastors, as well as each of our local people who have so willingly given of their time down through the years as Sunday School teachers or any other duties to be found in connection with the progress of a church. My apologies to any whose names may have been missed, or for any dates that may be

He is good; for His mercy endureth forever.

DIAMOND VALLEY GAS CO-OP

On January 18, 1968, W. T. Burns, Charles Skocdopole and Robert Hubl were having coffee at a local lunch counter when the subject of natural gas arose.

A meeting of interested persons was held at the Gaetz Community Centre on February 26, 1968.

Charles Skocdopole was nominated president, W. T. Burns vice-president, Robert Hubl secretary-treasurer. Directors were: R. H. Lewis, Bruce Hagerman, Jack Sheppard, Dave Pearson, Vern Nelson, R. A. Stainforth, Jim Savage, Donald Hansen.

The boundaries were set as Highway 2 on the east, Red Deer River on the south, Clearwater River on the west, Highway 11 on the north. However, a two-mile buffer zone was established if need be.

The name "Diamond Valley Gas Co-op" was chosen, as this seemed to be the district with the

A meeting on August 26, 1968, saw the incorporation of the Co-op with the Corporation Branch of the Provincial Government, with Mr Herb Warner being the representative. A contract was signed between Apache Oil and the Co-op to purchase gas from a well on Robert Hubl's farm for 14.8¢ per MCF

Due to slow response of the local farmers, the boundaries had to be changed. Burnt Lake Gas Co-op was formed so the new boundaries were set Medicine River on East, Gilby road on north, Stauffer road on west Caroline highway on the south

The services of Bell and Fenske as consulting engineers were approved. An estimated cost of $ [illegible] per gas meter was set as a basis for the first 42 customers. Skocdopole Construction Ltd was hired to do the construction of the system Work started on October 27 1971 and was completed December 23, 1971

Gas turned on D V Gas Co-op Dec 21 1971 Glen Skocdopole and W T Burns

Donald Hansen and Robert Hubl donated their services to instal meters and other service work. Robert Hubl is the permanently paid service man at this date

In 1972, block B north of Eckville was installed, with 68 customers. A five-year contract with Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas was signed at 21½¢ per MCF escalating ½¢ per year

The fall of 1972, block C was formed and built with the gas supply being the original Apache well for the south end and the trunk line north of Lesliеville to supply the north end

Members of the board in 1972 were W T Burns president, C. Skocdopole vice-president, Robert Hubl secretary-treasurer Directors, Donald Hansen, Glenn Skocdopole, Claude Caton, August Kasper, Wilbert Kubic Les Hake, Les Finkbeiner

In 1975, Wyc Burns retired and was replaced by Al Turner

In March, 1976, Mel Knopp and Arlen Von Hollen replaced Les Hake and Les Finkbeiner

1977 saw 138 urban and 136 rural customers to hook-up including Kountry Meadow Trailer Court at Benalto

Due to the bad fall in 1977 many farmers would not permit construction to proceed across their land, so construction was not started until very late However, most of the system was completed before the ground froze too hard. Twenty four customers did not receive gas because of this. These farms will be connected to gas as soon as weather permits in 1978.

DIAMOND VALLEY LADIES CLUB — by Darlene Burns

During war years, the ladies hereabouts
Gathered at various homes to hold Red Cross teas
They knitted, sewed, visited and together
Sent parcels to the boys who were overseas.
Then at the home of Azalea Phillips
In August, of nineteen forty-two
A club was formed and fifteen paid-up members
Carried on, "business-like" the work they'd set to do
Mrs. Gonda Anderson — since departed from us
With ready wit and steady hand, held the president's chair
The secretary-treasurer was Margaret Nielson
And these two, for 10 busy years, held the offices with care
Mrs. Mabel Tennant, Margaret Burns, Neva Craig
And Christina Murphy with the Club did stay,
While Selma Boller, Azalea Phillips, Eva Sonnie Alice Snyder, Elizabeth Wright and Jesse Stewart later moved away

Margaret Murphy moved to Vancouver, Meta Erickson was a member too
Later Mrs. Mae Crawford passed away, but still the club had work to do
Then the war was over no more parcels to be sent
But Club work continues on, the helping hand is lent.
With fruit baskets for the ill, wreaths for the departed
Farm sale lunches, showers and gifts for homes newly started
In August of 1943 two new members joined the clan
[illegible] Anderson and [illegible] Olson helped the club to plan
In March of 1944 Jean McNeil and her mother Marion McLean were to stay
Along with Hazel Hansen, a good club member until she passed away
Donations towards the hospital,
Dances for a worthy cause.
Improvements on the old school house,
Club work continues on without even a pause
Lydia Bergstrom, Barbara Goedicke, Lily Wadson and Mrs. Helen McNeil
Joined with Sally Tennant and Teresa Rasmussen to be in on the deal
New neighbors were Ruth Logan and Gertrude McLean
With Audrey Olson and Mary Medin adding their names to the local clan
The roll call at the meetings proves interesting indeed
And the raffle is always an object that someone will need
The entertainment that each one presents is of a varied kind
From readings to puzzles and prizes and they're not always easy to find Cancer collecting each year has been our concern
Then Beatrice Horner, Margaret Bouskill and Adeline Lemke
Became new members, we learn
In 1954 a tree was planted in memory of [illegible] support was lost
The birthday cakes, bean suppers and picnics proved to be fun
Anna Crawford, May Caton and Anne Burns all joined, too
A bread baking contest was held
And the District Home Economist told us what to do
The television appearance was a new experience for us all
Eileen Hansen paid her membership fee, Darline Burns added on in the fall
Donations to the ball club, to the orphanage and baby gifts were sent,
The "Jolly Seventeen" had to make more money
Because it was always easily spent
If the Community Centre needs a helping hand for repairs
They can count on the "Club" for an organization that cares.
Agnes Murdock and Marj Tullock then came along
Each meeting begins with a favorite hymn for our opening song
Deloyce Burns, Mary Storms and Vi Wells are added to the slate
With Evelyn McGeachy Zella David joining in,
Everyone tries not to be late
A happy 25th Anniversary celebration for all, brought memories galore
For the members of long standing, and new neighbors had good times in store
Mary Burdick, Marjorie Toker and Stephanie Hansen wished their way into pay
Leona Robin, a new member to help
But Sharon Engeri soon moved away
Catering to anniversaries, shut-ins receive Christmas baking, Welcoming dinners even bibs to the handicapped taking Sewing courses offered sometimes special guests
Invited to the monthly meeting
Helpful, thoughtful and busy, the years have a way of fleeting Nineteen hundred and seventy-seven,
Thirty-five years of co-operation
We have Margaret Neilson, Neva Craig and Christina Murphy
Who were here in the start of our little nation
We congratulate the members, we wish them the very best
We remember those departed, and God Bless all the rest

DIAMOND VALLEY SCHOOL HISTORY

As a number of homesteaders were coming into the area in the early 1900's with their families, a school was definitely needed, but there had to be a certain number of children before a school could be built. In 1908, when the

Robert Crawford family with five school-age children, moved into the district. It was decided to take immediate action to get a school. In what was thought to be the central part of the district a two acre parcel of land was purchased from Smith Brothers section 9-36-3-W5 for a small fee. A school board was formed consisting of Alex Stewart, Gust Dahlgren and William Ballance. In September 1910 a debenture of $1 000 for building and furnishing a school was obtained from the Bank of Ottawa, Edmonton. Most of the lumber came from the Pettifler sawmill and Allen McKenzie of Red Deer was awarded the contract to build the school, receiving $542.50 for his work. Sam Smith broke one acre of the land for $4 and David Lightbown was paid $1 for fire guarding the school. The school taxes per quarter section of land in 1910 were $6.

The school site was registered in Edmonton in January 1911. On January 30, 1911 an advertisement for a teacher was placed in the "Family Herald and Weekly Star" — cost 53 cents. This was the beginning of Diamond Valley School No. 2 54.

Emil Sonnie was paid for six cords of wood on February 11 and school supplies such as erasers, chalk, broom, dust pan, scrub brush, pail and cup, wash basin, heater and stove pipes, were purchased. The first teacher was Kate Pendergast from Nova Scotia. She arrived about the middle of April 1911 and her salary was $60 per month. She boarded at the W. Ballance home. Her pupils were Roy Gingras, Helen Ballance, Gladys, Norman and Reg. Caskie, Edith Larson, Henry and Ella Dahlgren, Allen, Victor and Helen Sonnie, Agnes, Louise, Francis Temple and Andrew Crawford.

The children came to school cross-country and much of it being low-lying land, they were often wet. Many times they came to school barefoot, later donning shoes and stockings at school. Two of the teachers, Mr. Wilson and Miss Berthason boarded at the John Lightbown home, also Miss Shultz, who taught at Gaetz school. Other teachers boarded at the Robert Crawford and Orla Nielsen homes throughout the years. Jim Lightbown, Charles Tennant and Wve Burns all served as school secretary for several years.

In 1918 the district was changed from Local Improvement District to Municipal District of the Golden West. On October 15, 1937 the district was included with the Rocky Mountain School Division. On December 30, 1954 the school was transferred to the Red Deer School Division. September 1954 school busses began transporting the Diamond Valley children to the Benalto school. The original building still stands and with the addition of a new entry and kitchen, it serves as the community centre for many gatherings. The school board members at the time of the school closure were John Kangas, Harry Medin and John Craig.

The school inspectors during the years were J. F. Boyce, A. R. Gibson, and W. J. McLean. The school superintendents were Mr. Barnes and Mr. Devril. Teachers: Miss Kate Pendergast, Mr. John Acton, Miss Carrie McMann, Mrs. J. K. Sneddon, Mr. H. J. Wilson, Miss Charlotte Clark, Miss Dorothy Maxted, Mr. Maurice Rockwood, Miss Bessie Burdick, Miss Mary Hutchison, Miss Gertrude Kennedy, Miss Blanche Crawford, Mrs. A. Rasmussen, Mrs. C. McCanna, Miss Edith Smith, Miss Ena Paul, Mr. M. H. East, Mr. C. H. Pollock, Miss Anna Liner, Miss E. Walters, Mr. S. McCrimmon, Mrs. Edith Russell, Miss Christina Munro, Miss Darlene Nielsen, Miss Fay Tollifson, Mrs. Barbara Goedicke, and Mrs. Dorn.

An honour roll hangs in the community centre with the names and pictures of the young people who served in the armed forces during the Second World War. John and William Anderson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Anderson, Senior, were killed in action. Others who served were Edna J. Phillips, Mike, John, Angus and Roderick McLean, Roy Wadson, John and Donald McNeil, Jim and Jerry Murphy, Charles and William Wright, Arthur Larratt, Alfred Brooks, Harold Tennant, Tom Horner, Ed Lightbown, Gordon Ballance, Charlie and Carl Anderson, Cecil Russell and Gordon Caton.

ALEX AND FRANK ERICKSON

Alex and Frank Erickson managed a meat market in Eckville about 1918-20. Frank married and had two sons. He passed away, and his widow and son live in Seattle, Washington, U.S.A.

Alex Erickson worked in a top executive position for Pat Burns and Company until his retirement. He lived in Vancouver for many years. His first wife died while in Vancouver. After his second marriage Alex moved to California, where at 96 years of age in 1977 he still resides.

THE ERICKSON FAMILIES — by E. J. [illegible]

The history of the Erickson families goes back to 1903, when Erik Hendrickson immigrated with the younger members of the family to Red Deer. According to old Scandinavian custom, sons of the family took their father's Christian name, adding the suffix "son" thus the name of the descendants became Erick"son".

Erik Hendrickson, a retired Swedish army man, on a pension amounting to approximately twenty Canadian dollars annually, came to Canada to begin a new life at the age of 48 years.

Stringer who at that time was a member of the council of the Municipality of Golden West, which later became a part of the Municipality of Red Deer. A ring of five or six longs, or more made quite a count-down!

In 1917 the Happy Hill phone line was organized and members hauled dry tamarack from the west country during the winter. After construction in the summer of 1918 a telephone service with about 12 members and including the Happy Hill School became effective eastward from the Fred Erickson home. A line was also organized westward to Hespero, and by means of a simple switch on the wall of the Erickson home members of the Happy Hill line could be connected to the Hespero store. Later lines from Evergreen, Diamond Valley and New Hill were connected to the Erickson home. A switchboard was installed with the first operator being daughter Emily. This service was in operation for many years under the directory-listed name of "Erixon" until absorbed by the Eckville Mutual Telephone Company.

Fred Erickson was also the Esso dealer for many years, winning merit awards from the company for his business.

The elder son, John, continued farming the home place for a number of years. A gas plant was built on the north-east corner of he quarter. John is now retired and is living near Sundre.

The younger son, Frank, married Lela Hester and they moved to Mission City in the Fraser Valley of British Columbia. Here he established a successful auto-dealership. They are now retired, and are living in Vancouver.

The youngest son of Erik Hendrickson, Hjalmar, homesteaded the NE 20-37-3-W5, selling this to G. W. Smith of Red Deer who later sold it to Aaron Erickson in 1916. The total price was $1600, with a small down payment and the balance payable over a 10-year period. Hjalmar spent his life at Blairmore, Alberta, where he worked as a carpenter. He and his wife had a family of four children who are now living in Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

just missing transportation on the "Titanic" the ill-fated ship that went down with a loss of almost all aboard. The family became farmers in the area and the parents retired to Haney British Columbia in 1941 when the younger son, Harry, took over the home farm.

Aaron took an active part in community affairs, holding offices in the Diamond Valley U.F.A. local, as a school trustee. He was active in canvassing for membership for the Central Alberta Dairy Pool when it was organized. He was a Dairy Pool delegate for the Eckville district for a number of years. He also took a part in getting the rural mail route No. three established. He was a member of the original Board of the Central Hall when it was planned and built by volunteer labor in 1930. The land for the hall was donated by Fred Erickson, who also

After the death of his wife in 1956, Aaron returned to Eckville and built a house in town where he lived for a time. However he spent the last couple of years before his death in 1966, with his daughter Lily in Edmonton.

Harry married Meta Payne from Rocky Mountain House. After being owned by the family for nearly 70 years the home farm was sold by them when they retired to Penticton, B.C. in 1976.

The eldest son, Maurice, is a chartered accountant. After his marriage he spent a term with the Sudan Interior Mission in Ethiopia. He and his wife are now living in Dawson Creek B.C. where he has established his own accounting business.

Robert entered a banking career. He is married and lives in Calgary, Alberta. The girls, Jeanette, June and Connie are all married and living in Alberta. June taught school for a number of years.

Elvie, the eldest daughter of Aaron Erickson married Lloyd Nelson and lives on a farm at New Norway, Alberta.

Lily taught school at Crimson Lake and Spruceview and later spent several years in Nigeria with the Sudan Interior Mission. After returning home from the mission field she taught school briefly at Eckville, then married Don Kennett and now lives in Edmonton.

The elder son of Aaron Erickson, Erik Ingvar won a scholarship at Young People's Week at the University of Alberta and took a two-year course at the Olds School of Agriculture. He then farmed in the Diamond Valley area until retiring to Osoyoos, B.C. in 1971. He married Emily Johnston of Lesliville in 1935 and they raised a family of three. Bernard, Lorraine and Phyllis.

Erick served at different times in various associations such as secretary of the Diamond Valley U.F.A., before its disbanding under the Social Credit avalanche in 1935. He served in later years in various associations and in various capacities in Unifarm, the Livestock Shipping Association, the Eckville Mutual Telephone Company and the Eckville Co-operative Association. He also served for a number of years as a deacon of the Benalto Baptist Church. Emily also took an active part in various women's groups.

Son Bernard graduated from Ryerson Institute in a course in business management in 1971 and has held various accounting positions in Alberta, Manitoba and Ontario.

Daughter Lorraine lives on a farm near Red Deer.

Younger daughter, Phyllis, after graduation from high school in Red Deer, worked for the Alberta Government Telephones in Calgary for a while. She later took a course at the Berian Bible College and after graduation served for some years with the Yukon Baptist Mission, until its amalgamation with the Northern Canada Evangelical Mission. She now lives at Grimshaw.

All the girls are married and have their own families.

GEFLE, CARL VICTOR

Carl Victor Gefle, better known as Bud, was born June 19, 1928 in Calgary, Alberta. He is the eldest son of Martin and Lillie Gefle.

Bud took his schooling at the Bluebell School. Depending on the weather, he walked, rode horseback or drove horse and buggy and boarded the horse with Uncle Olaf Medin. Among his fondest school memories was to have had the present Mrs. Stephanie Woima as a teacher. Although there were many good teachers, she has left an everlasting memory.

On one occasion several students had to remain inside the school in the basement for misbehaving. This area of the school was used for storage, including your coats and lunch pails. Never at a loss for something to do, Bud included, a game of football was organized using empty syrup pails. The game was vigorous and noisy and the students outside, hearing this, naturally wanted to join in, putting an end to it all.

Youth activities were organized on your own. If you wanted to skate you made your own rink, and challenged all comers (including your sisters) to a game of hockey. A neighbor, Mike Worsley, and Bud enjoyed nothing more than whipping Marion and Bernice at this game and only occasionally did they each take one of the girls for a partner to make it a bit more even.

Assisting with the farming as soon as you are old enough is a way of life, and during the war years all the youth had to do their share. At that time the Harvard plane was a common sight and sound for many years in the area. The pilots took advantage of the farmers working in the fields to practice their flying techniques by taking dives at them. It caused a few horses to run away and unnerved many a farmer who was only aware of their presence just as they were overhead and pulling up again. Bud remembers the amused look this procedure always brought to his grandfather Victor Medin, when he helped him cu

The winter soon saw the young men leave school and pursue their talents in the logging camps in the west country. Saturday night, regardless of weather conditions, meant a trip to Nordegg to watch the local hockey team. If they came home for the weekend there could be a chinook at camp and a blizzard on as they neared home.

Bud put up a windcharger for his parents so they had electricity (25 watts per light) several years before the rural power lines came through.

He worked for several years with electricians from Sylvan Lake and Eckville. Their work took them to many areas locally, and as far east as Penhold, Alberta. Running water and sewage disposal were practically non-existent in all of the rural areas. One day as the men were preparing to have dinner, the waste pail, being full to the brim, was sitting out waiting to be emptied, when one gentleman had the misfortune to turn around and put his foot right into it. Embarrassing indeed!

This same community was planning a social evening and one mischievous youth made some very delicious chocolate using his own special ingredients, one of them being Ex-lax. The next day found some very busy people, depending on the extent of their sweet tooth.

Although Bud isn't actively engaged in electrical work now, he is a source of consultation for many folk.

On November 12, 1955 Bud married Trudie Gertrude Amelia McKellar.

Trudie was born September 4, 1935 in Calgary, Alberta, the eldest child of William D. and Beulah M. McKellar. She was raised in Turner Valley, and many points in southern Alberta, where the oilfield work took her parents. The prairie was hot and dry, and one summer we lived in a tent. I can still remember my mother, nearly every day, carefully burning the ticks off my brother and myself. In 1945 we moved to Condor, Alberta, where my parents still reside on the farm, and we attended the Northup School. The Christmas concert was the highlight of the year for most students and parents. It took hours of practice and much patience from the teacher, but our efforts were rewarded by our parents attendance and keen in Atlas oil was still in Dad's blood and in 1946 we moved to Leduc where I finished my schooling. All the student functions were held in the school auditorium and the music was supplied by several talented students. We were fortunate to have a good skating rink only a block from home and I spent many hours there.

The Gefle's have four children, all born in Eckville. Michael Stephen born August 8, 1956. Timothy Gordon born January 6, 1958. Connie Nadine born November 14, 1959 and Donna Lynn born May 24, 1963. The children all attended the schools in Eckville. They have participated in school athletics, Minor Hockey, Cubs and Scouts, Explorers and Figure Skating.

In 1960 we bought the N.W. 29-36-3-W5, after renting it for a number of years. Bud built most of the buildings and did all the landscaping and tree planting.

In 1973 Bud entered a partnership with his brother Allen Gefle, when they bought the former Isaacson farm from Frank Thompson which is the N.W. 27-36-3-W5 and S.W. 34-36-3-W5.

Bud also operates several oil well and batteries for various oil companies. He is a charter member of the Benalto B.P.O.E. Number 494 Lodge and has held several offices including Exalted Ruler. He assisted with coaching minor hockey in Eckville in its formative years.

Trudie is a charter member of the Benalto O.O.R.P. Number 233 Lodge and has held several offices including Honoured Royal Lady and Secretary.

At present our son Michael is assisting his dad with the farming on a full time crop basis and works part time on the oil rigs.

Previously he worked for a contractor for Calgary Power in Central and North Central

Tim is operating a cat, plowing in the gas lines to the farms in central and eastern Alberta during the summer. He also helps with the farming when he is available and enjoys restoring cars to prime running condition. Tim and Mike have both operated the well for their dad.

Connie and Donna are both attending school in Eckville.

The closest we ever came to getting completely hailed out was in July 1959. That year we did combine some but the snow came and stayed before we finished. A lot of our neighbors were not so lucky, "but then there is always nex

MARTIN GEFLE'S — by Bernice Nielsen

Hi! I'm Bernice Nielsen and I'm going to do my best to write my parents' memories for the Eckville and District history book.

My dad's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Gjefle, (nee Mary Lee) came with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Syver Gjefle and Mr. and Mrs. Ole Lee, to America in about 1867 from Nordre Land, Norway.

My dad was born December 23, 1895 at Mound City, South Dakota, U.S.A. In 1911, the family decided to venture to Canada. They shipped their livestock, equipment, and personal belongings by train to Red Deer. They stopped overnight in North Dakota to say goodbye to dad's aunt and uncle, on whose land the Garrison Dam is built. There is controversy over this dam today between the United States and Canada. Younger family members live there now, and their house is about forty rods from the Dam. From South Dakota to Red Deer, the trip took four days. My grandfather had to remain at the U.S. border for one extra day while the livestock was checked for disease.

He and his family then homesteaded NW 30-38-5-W5, in the Horseguard District. The house they built in 1911 is still standing there, a little worse for wear, but a pleasant memory to drive to and look at once in awhile.

My dad filed on a homestead SE 31 37 5-W5 in the Horseguard District on December 23, 1913, his 18th birthday. There wasn't any snow on the ground on that day. During the fall of 1915 he operated the water wagon for the threshing machine. Harvest was late. This particular crew that year worked 90 consecutive days threshing grain all the way from Alhambra to Evarts. In 1916 dad went to Red Deer, and got his steam engineer's certificate, and operated a steam engine in the saw mills during the winter.

Dad served in the Infantry in the First World War. He was stationed in England. The Armistice was signed the day before the troops he served with were to leave for France. He, along with many others, had a go-around with the 1918 flu. In the Army the cure for most anything that ailed a body was a shot in the arm (I think) of number nine and a few good big slugs of rum. What number nine consisted of no one seems to know. Maybe that is what we should be getting now instead of a swine flu vaccination! In 1919 dad returned to Canada and resumed farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Medin (nee Lydia Andersson) were both born in Sweden. My mother, Lillie Gjefle, is their oldest daughter. She was born June 24, 1905 at her parents' home in the Evarts District. In 1910 they moved to the Coronation District. Her parents also had a farm there.

The first school mom attended was Lucerne. It was built around 1914. Her means of transportation was horse and buggy. Her first teacher was Miss Gaetz and her second one was Miss Hood, in 1915. She boarded at Grandpa and Grandma Medins'. In 1919 grandpa moved his family to Medford, Oregon, U.S.A. Mom continued her education there attending Lincoln and Medford High School. During the summer holidays she worked in the orchards. In 1923, they returned to Coronation, and in 1924 back to their farm in the Evarts area, but their address was by now, changed to Hespero. Mom was employed at different places throughout the district, and was also her dad's right-hand man at home, milking cows and working in the fields.

In March 1928, my parents were married at Red Deer. They never have told me when or where they met, so I'll not pester them about that. It seems I've been asking them enough other questions lately. But my guess is they more than likely met at a dance somewhere between Evarts and Rocky Mountain House. After their marriage they lived in Calgary and dad worked for a rancher at High River. In the fall of 1928 they moved back to the Hespero area. Dad spent the winter hauling logs from the site eight miles southwest of Rocky Mountain House to the Rocky Mountain House Fort.

In the spring of 1929 they moved to Coronation and farmed there until 1933. These years, because of drought, they harvested three crops out of five. Mom tells me it was for sure the "dirty thirties"! By 1930-1931 things were really getting bad. All farm produce was getting cheaper. Eggs were from eight cents per dozen and down. Cream also was not worth much. Good cows could be bought for $10, if you had the $10. Pigs sold for $2 $5. Along with the depressing parts of the thirties, now and again, some little thing would turn up and lift your spirits. Mom recalls one instance when she was trying to find just five pennies around the house so they could buy the Chicago Herald. When, lo and behold, in the back porch hung a pair of pants since the previous spring. She looked in the pockets and found $2. They hitched up the horses, headed to town and, besides the Chicago Herald, they loaded up a good supply of groceries! Lady Luck smiled on dad, too, when he was on his way to Castor for a load of coal. The weather was cold so he walked alongside his wagon to keep warm. He found a nice length of chain and 35¢ on the road. He had a lunch with him, but went to the cafe and treated himself to hot coffee and pie for 10¢. His double wagon box full of coal cost 75¢.

In 1929 wheat was $1.55 per bushel, oats five (p)seven cents per bushel. The yield in 1929 was about 11 bushels per acre. In 1933 wheat was 28¢ per bushel. That same year dad seeded 400 bushels of wheat and harvested 200 bushels. The grasshoppers and wind took the oat crop completely. A few other prices mom and dad remember from the thirties: the best coffee 25¢ per pound, a good house dress $1.00; prairie wool, $8.00 per ton (later it went up to $12 per ton) and snuff was 10¢ per tin.

In 1933 my Grandpa Gjefle passed away. Dad and mom moved to his farm in the Horseguard District. Grandma Gjefle lived with them from 1935 until 1937 when dad and mom moved to the Alfred Rasmussen farm just a short distance from Grandpa and Grandma Medin's. By this time, of course mom and dad had Carl ('Bud'), Marion and me (Bernice) around to keep them alert. I was pretty young so I don't remember a great deal, but I guess we were still in the era of the "dirty thirties". I sure do remember when the army worms came around and cleaned up the garden!

Christmas was always spent at Grandma and Grandpa Medin's and there were, always, so many good things to eat. The only hardship of the day was that we could never open our presents until the dishes had been washed. The Christmas tree was very pretty, especially after dark, when grandma lit the candles on it

New Year's Day was celebrated at our house Grandma Giefle would be with us that day having returned from spending Christmas in Spokane, Washington, or in Montana. New Year's Day was her birthday Come summer we spent a lot of time at my Grandma Giefle's, puting up hay Dad would haul it home in the winter with four head of horses The distance was 15 miles and the trip took about 14 hours, which included loading the hay rack

In 1940 dad and mom rented a quarter of land from Mr Botten, SW 33-38-3-W5, in the Bluebell District The Bluebell School is located on the northwest corner of this quarter Ezra Isaacson now lives in it Mr Botton was a widower, and since the house was quite large, he lived in the front room. This was the first time we had a telephone, and was it ever great to be able to phone grandma One of the first catastrophes that Bud Marion and I got ourselves into was the pantry It was large, with nice shelves on three sides, so we went in, shut the door, and looked to see if the people who had moved out had left anything behind. There was no door knob on the inside, just a latch on the outside so there we were hollering for the folks to get us out

During World War II gas, sugar and butter among other things were rationed. We made our own butter with a dasher that you pulled up and down in an earthern churn. We didn't get many cakes, but mom had a recipe for gingerbread that you sweetened with syrup or honey so we had lots of that with whipped cream. Rhubarb was our canned fruit

In 1941 my dad was quite sick he spent the winter getting over a bad case of high blood pressure. The neighbors were kind in helping us out with the chores. Many thanks to them

Local entertainment was visiting family and neighbors. After harvest was finished, we would have card parties and dances at the school on Saturday nights to raise money for the Christmas concert Music was supplied by Norman Anderson, Margaret and Walter Boettger, and Bob Matthews

In 1943 we received a pleasant surprise when our brother Allan was born. There was some dispute between Bud, Marion, and me over who the new fellow would sleep with

In 1944, dad and mom purchased the farm from Mr Botton. In 1944 or 1945 we had a hail storm that broke most all the windows on the north side of the house. The veranda saved the windows to the west The crop and garden were lost, but we gathered hailstones in a hurry and made ice cream! Along about 1945 Bud sent away for a wind charger that he erected on top of the house, wired the kitchen and we had 25 watts worth of powerful light when the wind blew

[illegible]54, our country schools were closed — [illegible]on had taken over! The students from the Bluebell District went by bus to Eckville Allan was the only one from our family who got in on that

In 1955-56, the oil drilling rage started in our area. In 1956, Calgary Power came to us. The countryside that used to be pretty dark is now lit up with oil flares and yard lights. There are pipe lines going underground in most all directions That's progress!

Time surely passes very quickly Here it is 1977 Mom and dad are both doing just fine and taking a great interest in farming activities

As for their offspring Bud married Trudie McKeller of Condor They farm a mile west of our folks on the former Ga hercole place They have four children Michael, Timmy Connie and Donna

Marion married Russell Stauffer They make their homes between Calgary and Medicine Hat Russ drives a bus for Greyhound and they also operate Barr[illegible] Aviation at Medicine Hat. They have two children, Judy (Mrs. Vern Payne) and Terry

Allan married Ruth Halstien of Estevan, Saskatchewan, and farms the former Isaacson place. Allan also works for Robert Pollit Oilfield Construction. Ruth operated a beauty salon at Eckville for some time They have two children, Travis and Vivian

As for me, I'm Elmer Nielsen's roommate We farm in the Happy Hill district and I operate a Giftware and Beauty Shop at Spruce View

I may have a wrong date here or there, or an error in my little story If so, they were definately unintentional.

In closing, may I congratulate our parents, grandparents and all senior citizens for a job well done I doubt if we youngsters have their determination or guts

HANSEN — O'[illegible]NEN

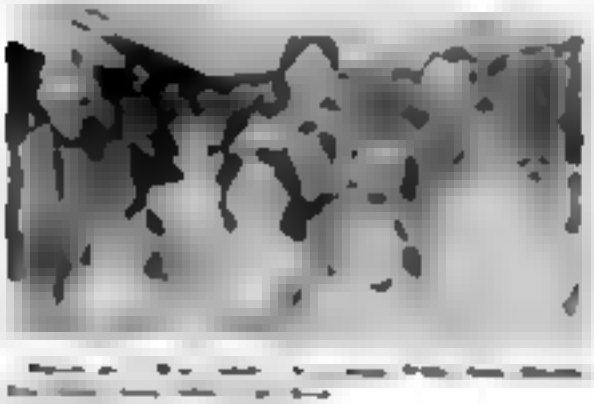
Hans Peter Hansen born October 5, 1865, in Denmark Christina Neilsen, born March 16 1868 in Denmark Married in Omaha, Nebraska [illegible]

In the summer of 1902 Hans Peter Hansen visited various parts of Alberta, looking for a suitable piece of land on which to make a home

He selected the SE 26-36-3-W5, which became the Hansen home in Alberta. The family of six children, born in Nebraska, consisted of Grace Marie, born February 10, 1894; Hans Chris, born May 16, 1895; George William, born February 8, 1897; Carl Ingvar, born December 3, 1898; Alma Patricia, born January 9, 1900; Albert Nels, born August 6, 1901. The family arrived, along with more settlers, in Red Deer on April 27, 1903. On July 18, 1903, Rosa Julia was born.



The Evans farm, about five miles north of Red Deer, was rented for a year; during the summer some land was cleared and broken on the homestead and a slab shack was built. The family moved to the homestead in the spring of 1904. Evarts was the post office. Meanwhile, Peter Hansen worked away from home in the irrigation ditches around Lethbridge. The purpose was to get necessary cash that they needed, since they had had nine crop failures in Nebraska.

More buildings were constructed in 1904, among them the original house, which still stands. This was the year Elia was born on September 21, 1904. It is recalled that an umbrella was put over the bed to protect the mother and the new baby from heavy rains.

The year 1905 saw real tragedy strike the family with the murder and robbing of Peter Hansen, while transporting a binder from the Evans place to their home. A man was charged with the crime and tried in the first criminal case in judicial courts in Alberta.

Mrs. Hansen received $1,000 from a life insurance policy. She used this money to buy milk cows so the family would have a continuing means of support. Mrs. Hansen had received in her native land the equivalent of a home economics course, which would include medical aid, home nursing, sewing and all home-making arts.

In 1906 or 1907 Mrs. Hansen filed on a homestead with widow's rights, which was about six miles west of the home place, and proved up on it with the help of her children. To help out the family income, Chris, the oldest son, freighted from Red Deer to Rocky Mountain House, mak

Hansen home was the stopping place for many travellers from Red Deer to Rocky Mountain House.

Meanwhile the school division had been formed and Mrs. Hansen had the honor of naming the school, which was "Bluebell" No. 1196, this name being used until the school closed in 1964. Her children, Chris and Grace, attended school at Crossroads (neither one could speak English) and then attended Bluebell school along with the rest of the family. Later some of the grandchildren also attended this school.

In 1908 Mrs. Hansen married Andrew J. O'Brien, and three girls were born to them. Mayme was born on December 3, 1908, Alice on February 7, 1910 (died in 1974), and Helen born on October 16, 1911 (died in 1928).

In 1922 Mrs. O'Brien had a very severe heart attack and was unable to work any longer.

From 1904 up to 1928, when she moved to Red Deer, Mrs. O'Brien was one of the busiest and most helpful women in the West Country. She was always at the call of her neighbors for nursing service, and in any other need that arose in those pioneer days. During her time she was present at the birth of 187 children, and in many cases rendered assistance which saved lives. Her home was always open to friends and visitors and her hospitality became famous over a large territory. She was active in the work of the Women's Institute and other local organizations. She moved to Red Deer in 1928, where she ran a boarding house. Mrs. O'Brien passed away in 1932, and is resting in the Red Deer Cemetery.

ALBERT HANSEN FAMILY

Albert Hansen was born in Sterling, Nebraska, U.S.A. on August 6, 1901. He came to Alberta with other members of his family in 1903. He received his education at Bluebell school.

Albert lived on the family farm with his mother and, as a teenager, worked at many jobs in the surrounding district, one of which was winter employment for the Knight Brothers, the family of the famous bronc rider Pete Knight, in the Crossfield area. His job there was hauling wheat about 17 miles to the elevator, and he made a trip each day.

In 1928 Albert purchased the family farm S 26-36-3-W5, from his mother and settled down to clearing land as time and finances permitted. On April 14, 1931 he married Hazel Lutz of Eckville. Their son Donald was born at the Lutz farm on the outskirts of Eckville on February 20, 1932. Their daughters, Myrtle, on September 28, 1933 and Betty on October 5, 1934, were both born at Mrs. Porter's nursing home near Condor, exactly one year and one week apart.

For extra income a large herd of purebred registered Ayrshire cows were milked, and the cream and milk was sold. In later years the milk was picked up by a truck at the driveway and taken to the Alpha plant in Red Deer

Albert and Hazel were very active in all community work. Albert was a trustee for the Bluebell School District for many years. He was also instrumental in the grading and gravelling of the Diamond Valley road which was strictly a community project as the Municipal District had no funds available for the work at that time. In later years he was a director on the Eckville Co op Board, the Eckville Mutual Telephone Association, the Eckville Credit Union and the Co-op Livestock Marketing Association

Hazel was a long-time member of the Diamond Valley Ladies Club, in which she was a very active worker in their many community projects

Albert and Hazel were secretaries for the Eckville Rural Electrification Association Albert was one of the founding members of the Board of Directors, which led to many endless hours of hard work and bookkeeping for himself and his wife. As well, they provided board and room for several crew members when surveying and construction of the rural power lines got underway

We, the younger generation, recall the doors of our home being locked for the first time in our lives after well over $50,000 was collected one day from farmers in the surrounding area as a deposit on the installation of Calgary Power The Hansens were also Secretary Treasurer for the Union of Rural Electrification Associations for Alberta for approximately ten years

Hazel passed away on November 24, 1964. after a lengthy illness

In October 1965 Albert married Helen Haarstad They resided on the f[illegible] spring of 1969. when they retired [illegible] Vernon. B.C Albert passed away on July 6. 1970 Albert and Hazel are both laid to rest in the Red Deer cemetery

HANSEN DONALD AND STEPHANIE

Donald son of Albert and Hazel Hansen. was born at Eckville in 1932 He attended school at Bluebell. the Red Deer Composite High School and S.A.I T in Calgary

In 1954 he purchased the S 29-38-3-W5 from Mrs. Leo Zaleski. which had been formerly owned by Charles and William Schuneman. This land was across the road from land owned by his parents, S 28-38-3-W5, and with whom he farmed in partnership for several years

During the winter he worked for about 12 years as a sawyer and millwright for the Atlas Lumber Company in sawmills in the Nordegg area. Other winter employment included working on oil rigs, pipelines and operating Cats on various construction jobs

In 1956 Donald married Stephanie, the fourth daughter of Frank and Ann Dobia of the Evergreen district. Stephanie attended school at Hazel Dell and after leaving there attended S.A I T in Calgary She graduated from there a nurse's aide. She worked for several years at various hospitals throughout Alberta

To his union three sons were born Dale in 1959. Gordon in 1961 and Gerald in 1965. At the present time the boys are busy with their education and farming with their dad

Dale and Gordon each rent a quarter of land and are two of the few "fourth generation in this area involved in farming and homesteaded by their great-grandparents

THE HYNDMANS — by M. F Maclean

My first recollection of hearing anything about Canada was in the early winter of 1921 when I went to a meeting with my father showing pictures glorifying Canada put on by the C P R They were trying to get immigrants to go to Canada, where they would get their own farms from the Soldier Settlement Board. and reduced fares on the boat and train from the C P R

The picture of Canada I must say were very impressive. They showed people picking apples off the trees, children skating skiing, picking apples and grapes and eating them, which impressed me very much. Apparently my father also. as he did not go back to sea for the rest of the winter but prepared to leave for Canada

In March of 1922, about 30 men, over half of them with families left the Island of Barra Barra is the farthest west island of the Outer Hebrides. is 14 miles around with about 12 hundred people there at that time. It is about 30 miles northwest of the Scottish mainland

We stopped for a few days in Glasgow where we were joined by a number of other settlers from other Islands from the Outer Hebrides

We sailed from Glasgow on the last day of March on the H.M.S. Metagama and after a very rough crossing and being delayed by icebergs we landed in Quebec, April 14 instead of Montreal, as the ice was not yet out of the St Lawrence River

We took the train from Quebec City and the idea was that families would drop off throughout southern Ontario and spend a year learning to farm before proceeding west to get their own farms as these men were all sea-faring men and had never touched a horse before, let alone put a bridle on one. Some dropped off at Dalhousie Toronto, Chatham and Windsor. Our family was dropped off at Chatham where my father got a job on a mixed farm with a lot of milk cows.

The following spring in April we again boarded the train, destination Red Deer wherever that place may be. We could not find out from anyone in Ontario but they all knew that it was in Indian country and there were no road maps at this time. We were joined in Toronto by two families and two single men. The rest of the settlers had decided they had come far enough and stayed where they were.

Before I go any further, I must tell you how little was known about Red Deer at that time by the people of Ontario. The last week before we left, there were people in our house every night begging my dad not to go there on account of the Indians. They told us so many stories and begged him for the sake of the family not to go but dad was determined. He wanted his own farm and by going west was one sure way of getting it. Finally the night before we left, the storekeeper in Chatham brought Dad his own shot gun and shells to protect us from the Indians. Also, they talked him into shipping our own stove, as they knew we could not get one where we were going. Dad was always mad about that for when we got to Red Deer we found the same stove. It cost $22 and it had cost dad $64 to ship it from Ontario.

When we got to Red Deer we looked for Indians, but sorry to say we did not see any. We were greeted by three Scots in kilts and one playing the bag pipes which brought back a lot of memories. The three were Scotty McPherson, Andy Stewart of Evarts and Chief MacDonald of Condor.

We were loaded into cars and driven four miles west to the Indian School where we were put into separate homes. The car that I rode in was driven by Charlie Chuck of the Club Cafe and needless to say as children we were very disappointed at not seeing any Indians, even Charlie Chuck disappointed us in that he wasn't wearing pigtails.

We were to get the buildings ready for occupancy for about 200 families who were expected to arrive sometime in May from all the Islands in the Outer Hebrides. The first five families that came to Red Deer were from the Island of Barra and were joined a short time later by the family of Alex McNeil. Those same six were the ones that settled in the Diamond Valley district.

The Indian School at that time was quite an impressive sight. There were two large brick and stone buildings, three stories high. Kitchen facilities to handle at least five hundred people with dormitories to handle the same, seven separate family homes, barns, corrals, etc. After the new immigrants arrived, each man was driven around to pick out farms that were for sale at that time and if they liked them and the price was right, the Soldier Settlement Board bought for them. Some settled around Vermilion, Camrose, Westlock, Condor and many other parts of Alberta. As these settlers had no farming experience, they were lined up at the barns and someone there would demonstrate how to bridle a horse, harness him and hook him up to a wagon. They would drive him around and also learn to hook up a team and four horses.

A lot more settlers arrived later but I am not going to dwell on them as this history is only of the six families that settled in the Diamond Valley district.

McNeil. Alex McNeil settled on the NE 34-37-3W5, known then as the Dick Wright place, now partly owned by the oldest son Angus, and John Murdock. There were five boys and two girls in their family. Angus living at Sylvan Lake. Mary (Mrs. Bossier) in Edmonton, Donald in Vancouver. Angus John died July 2, 1969, John living at Sylvan Lake, Murdock in Red Deer and Lathan (Mrs. Johnson) in Red Deer. Their children went to both Diamond Valley and Happy Hill schools. Angus hauled cream to the Eckville Creamery for a couple of years, in about 1925-26.

Galbraith. Rod Galbraith settled on the SW 2-38-3W5 known then as the Billy Woof farm, now owned by Lawrence Murphy. They had three boys. James, Angus and Neil, all living at the coast and all went to the Evarts School.

McLean. Rod McLean settled on the NW 35-37-3W5 also owned at that time by Billy Woof and now owned by Scott Murphy.

McNeil. John McNeil (bachelor) settled on the SE 34-37-3W5, later known the Gibson place, later as Ingvar Erickson farm and now owned by Gary Stewart.

McCormick. Jim McCormick (bachelor) settled on the SE 4-37-3W5, known then as the Belke farm, now owned by John Murdock.

Neil Maclean's family history is found elsewhere in this book.

It only took about three years for the bachelors to find out that the way of life was not for them and both left for the sea and Vancouver and finally found their way back to the Island of Barra. About three years later, Rod Galbraith left for Vancouver and Rod McLean left for Vermilion and later found his way to the coast.

Alex McNeil and my father stuck it out and acquired more land as the years went by. Alex died on the farm at the age of 80, March 19, 1949. His wife died at 84 in June of 1964.

In about 1929, a few more settlers came to the Diamond Valley area from the outer Hebrides. James McNeil settled on the NE 9-38-3W5 known as the Larry Telning homestead and is now the home of Murray Craig. They stayed about seven years, then went back to the Island of Barra. Rod Gillis settled on the SE 16-38-3W5 known then as the Gosney farm, later as the Charlie Wright place. He stayed about six years, then moved to

Vancouver where he died in 1976 at the age of 93 The Wilsons came into the area about 1929 and worked for John Watson for a number of years before moving to Chandonald, Alberta

All of these people loved music and especially dancing Whenever three or four couples got together, the dance was on If only three couples were available, then the children were taken into the act to make a foursome. Having no music did not bother them, for someone would just hum the tune. I learned to dance so young that I can't even remember when About 1925 when C F C N started broadcasting their old time music on the radio, they would all go to McPhersons who had a radio at this time and dance till midnight every Friday night Then they started having surprise house parties every two weeks which lasted for years with the whole community getting in on them. The Cunningham boys of Eckville supplied some of the music

They were happy people and all spoke the Gaelic language and as I remember, very clannish. If you were from the outer Hebrides, you were automatically one of the gang

I dedicate this history to the memory of my parents, Joseph and Antonia Hollander, who, through hardships and perseverance, helped blaze the pathways where highways never ran, and left a heritage and legacy that their children and grandchildren can justly be proud of

My parents were born in Bohemia, Czechoslovakia father in 1878 and mother in 889. Father had taken his three years of compulsory training in the army, and following his discharge he travelled extensively through most of Europe He was a great scholar, and was able to speak seven languages quite fluently We, as children, were always amazed whenever people came to visit us, for he was able to carry on a conversation with them in their mother tongue

Mother and father were married in 1905 and about six months later they sailed for New York There was a song which the folks of Bohemia used to sing. Translated into the English language this would read as follows: "North America is like Paradise—only the voyage there is high priced, Beautiful America—beyond the sea, beautiful America." Mother always said that it was that song that made up their minds and lured them to the United States and later to Canada

During their 18 days at sea (Mother was sea sick the whole time) father met a man who claimed to own a farm and he asked father to come and work for him. The man was very friendly and promptly borrowed what was then a large sum of money from my father giving his word of honor he would return it whenever father wanted it Needless to say father never saw the money again!

In 1906 my parents bought a team of horses, a cow and a few household effects and, armed with enthusiasm and hope, they went to Bismarck, North Dakota, where they filed on a homestead and built a 12 by 16 foot sod shack It had one window a door, but no floor This, then, was their first home

Mother was very young and about to have her first child and because she was born of well-to-do parents, life in this new land was very bewildering to her The Indians would canoe down the river not far from their hut, and at night would dance around their fires within their sight. The settlers were few and far between and what with the language barrier and being afraid of the Indians (although they were always friendly) and with very little money life was very hard for them. Sister Mary was born in this hut and to these conditions on January 28, 1907 with only a kind stranger to take care of mother and child

I remember father telling us of his experience during a severe blizzard while they were in Bismarck. On this particular day he went to town—this was a three-day affair because they lived 29 miles from town. It took one day to get there, one day to get the supplies and rest the horses, and the final day to return home. A blizzard blew up on the way home and father lost his way. The roads were only trails that crossed and recrossed each other in various intervals. He was unbearably cold and thought that he would surely freeze to death. He was about to give up when he came upon a ranch house. He had to be helped off the sleigh and after a hot meal and a rest he was escorted a few miles until he got his bearings

My parents moved to Canada and to Winnipeg in 1907 later they moved to Fernie, B.C. where father worked at the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Mines. Mother was a very good seamstress and it didn't take long before she had all the sewing that she could handle. She had bought a Singer sewing machine while they were still in Winnipeg and it was still in use and in very good condition when she passed away in 1951

While my parents were in Fernie they rented a house belonging to Mr Isidor Rowter In 1908 the town of Fernie was threatened by fire—people were evacuated to neighboring towns. Mr Rowter and father refused to leave and let the house burn down. With water from a well beside the house they fought off the fire but it was a losing battle, and finally to save themselves, they had to go down into the well. They both suffered smoke inhalation, and father suffered partial blindness for several days; strangely enough the house they fought to save did not burn down

After father recovered, a friend of his, whose name was Frank Brzak, persuaded him to come with him to the Gaetz district, where Mr Brzak had a homestead Father Mother and Mary stayed with Mr Brzak and father filed on his homestead, NE 25-37-4-W5, and commenced working on a log house. Brother Joe was born in the Brzak home on April 15, 1909 with just a neighbor lady in attendance

The cellar was dug by hand and hand-hewn logs were used for the ceiling later to be used as the floor of the house) The house (cellar) was now ready for occupancy while the rest of the house was being completed or at least made livable.

Father bought three oxen, two cows and a few chickens from John Jones of the Happy Hill district and started the business of farming in earnest their roots had taken and were set

Those were hard times for the pioneers, and many were the experiences they endured. One can never give the early settlers too much credit for braving the hardships and for the tremendous amount of work involved in this new land and establishing a foundation for the future generations. My parents were only one of the many and it amazes me that they did so well with so little to do with

Before their home was completed father received word that a railroad from Red Deer to Rocky Mountain House was in the process of being started—men were needed, and father got a job. He helped build the bridge that spans the North Saskatchewan at Rocky Mountain House The wages were low and the working crew slept in tents—the winter was very cold, but they were thankful to be working. Father would send his wages via the rail crew to Mr Robinson, a storekeeper in Evarts. Neighbors who went for food and staple would pick up the mail plus anything else that the women of the homesteads needed. Sometimes this would be only once a

While father was away mother kept busy She dug up clay and mixed it with water and filled the cracks between the logs of the house. Wood was plentiful, but she had to chop down the trees and split the wood by hand to supply the wood for her cookstove and the heater She melted snow in the winter time for the stock and the household

Every evening after the two children were in bed she would cover the windows with blankets so the lights wouldn't show from the outside she was afraid of strangers. She would then take her Czechoslovakian and English translation book and learn the English language. One night there was a knock on the door but she kept quiet hoping whoever was there would go away A man's voice said "Don't be afraid Mrs. Hollander I know you are there" She let the man in. It was Mr Faik who at that time was postmaster at the New Hill post office. He was concerned because all the neighbors with whom he had been in contact said that they had not seen mother for several weeks

Father continued to work on the homestead but in the winter months he worked in the coal mines at Nordegg. During the fall he would work harvesting south of Calgary

The oxen were eventually replaced by three horses, more land was broken and life became easier The Evergreen post office came into being, and a general store was built eight miles north of our place, known as Pitcox, and later replaced by the Hespero General Store. The Gaetz school was two miles north of our place Four more children were born Helen in 1911 Milan, Annie and Josephine following her All the children attended Gaetz school.

Our social life consisted of the annual school picnic, the box social and Christmas concerts Dances were held in the schools and also in private homes. To pass away the winter nights, father would read us stories or tell us Bible stories, while the rest of the family would strip feathers to make into pillows and feather bed covers. We always enjoyed visiting the John Mottl family they boasted a large gramophone and had many many lovely records. Mrs. Mottl was a dear, cheerful person and was always very kind to mother, and we loved her dearly

Father bought another quarter of land, NE 37-4-W5, which my brother Milan now owns and farms. The old house was remodelled and many friends gathered there to dance in the large living room. The house burned down in 1935 and a new one was built in the same location

The children grew up and started their own homes. Mary married Ernest Lipka, a local man, and they had two children, Helen and Albert. Mary passed away in 1943. JOHNSON, JONAS — by Trudie Gelle

Jonas Johnson was born at Gamlebult Sweden on December 14, 1867 to Anna and Johann Johnson He took some schooling there but learned English after he immigrated to the U.S.A He had a fondness for learning and did a great amount of reading on his own

Uncle Jonas did some farming in the U.S.A before he came to Canada with his brother, Victor Medin. They shipped some horses and machinery up by train. Together, he and Victor got their buildings up and crops in. Uncle Jonas homestead was the N W 20-38-3-W5 and is now owned and farmed by Wan Medin. His original home is still standing in the same spot in fairly good condition

ery usually passed by the homestead and were always welcome to stop and rest their horses, and there was always enough food prepared for anyone extra. Uncle Jonas had a reputation for being a good cook, so no doubt many looked forward to sharing a meal with him. He raised his own beef and pork, butchering it and doing the curing himself He also made his own bread and butter If the trip was a long one, lodging was also available for the night

There was a well known saddle horse named Nisse, that belonged to Uncle Jonas. When someone needed a one way ride they would borrow Nisse and upon reaching their destination, if the reins were tied up securely he would return right home on his own for a deserved water and feed. While returning home on one occasion the reins came loose and Nisse started grazing along the trail. Nearly everyone knew the horse by sight and experienced seeing him on homeward journeys. On this occasion thinking the animal had got away from its rider, a farmer along the way caught him and put him up until Jonas, realizing he was long overdue, came looking for him

Uncle Jonas never forgot the time he was returning from Red Deer, and had to find a way across the Medicine River The circumstances are not clear, but Jonas being a heavy man, and Nisse not a large horse. he could not safely swim across with his passenger Jonas tied the horse's tail securely around his hands and let him swim across with him safely in tow

Uncle Jonas suffered very badly from arthritis and had to use crutches to get around He took a keen interest in community affairs and was Municipal Councillor for many years. In 1926 he retired from active farming and spent the rest of his life with his brother, Olaf until his passing at the age of 78, a bachelor

While living with Olaf he liked to cook a boiler of coffee for the social evenings at the Bluebell School The crippling arthritis sometimes made it impossible for him to attend these functions. but some of the young people would go over for a game of cards or checkers, or just a visit Several young lads also would spend the noon hours from school with him and he really enjoyed having them around as often as they could

McCANN, WILLIAM AND GERTRUDE — by Gertrude McCann

Bill McCann was born in Hague Saskatchewan, September 2, 1911. He was the youngest son of Joseph and Mary McCann natives of Bruce County, Ontario They homesteaded at Dewberry, Alberta, then moved to Gleichen where Joe teamed lumber to Arrowwood. Later he bought a farm one-half mile north of Arrowwood, where Bill grew up and received his education. He drove a horse van daily while attending school After finishing school Bill joined his father in farming He was a great horseman and loved all animals. His horses were always in demand for parades and floats. June 3 was a school holiday if you participated in sports. This is how he met his future wife. Gertrude. He was an avid curler, ball player and skater In his early teens he was the team goalie He attended the United Church

Dry years and dust storms made him discontented so he and his mother journeyed to the Gilby area to take over a farm his grandfather Barr had owned. Here he learned ways were different fuel had to be chopped and sawed to keep you warm. Roads were poor, and faithful "Dobbin" was appreciated. About this time he took a bride. Gertrude Roebuck, a school teacher She was the youngest child of Alfred and May Roebuck, who emigrated from England to New York, and later homesteaded near Champion, Alberta, where Gertrude was born on March 1, 1912

Gertrude was a sickly child in her early years. She remembers her dad, during the flu epidemic of 1918-1919, nursing neighbors and doing their chores, making the rounds on horseback through huge drifts and bitter cold She was educated at Auburn School, Kirkcaldy and at Vulcan High School She later trained at Calgary Normal School to become a teacher Schools were hard to get, and unless you had "pull" you often remained without a job. Boarding houses were few and far between, so most of the time Gertrude rode horseback on her former school pony, "Pete" Riding six miles were no chore, but on one spring day, April 21 clouds came in the sky She had shepherded her pupils home and then decided to try to get home herself By the time she got there she was covered with two inches of frozen sleet Her arms were frozen from the shoulders down. The next day she had to go to school — no sick pay those days Telephone poles had been snapped off by the gale and the weather was freezing cold. They were without telephones for six months

Concerts, social evenings, pie socials, box socials and picnics were the main entertainments and school houses were used for these purposes. Neighbors had skating ponds and young people gathered on Friday evenings and Sunday afternoons to skate. Later they adjourned to one of the young people's homes for supper Gertrude taught kindergarten in Edmonton for five years before she came to Eckville on July 23, 1940 as a bride

Bill and Gertie had three daughters They were Margaret Mary Mrs. Harold Burdick) of Eckville, who gave them four grandchildren, Leslie, Scott, Shelly and Melanie Betty Ann Mrs. Charles Greenslade) of Calgary, with grandson Bradley Barbara (Mrs Lyle McFadden, of Pincher Creek with granddaughter Dana

One of the most trying times of her marriage was in the fall of 1942 Gertrude was asked to help out at Medicine Valley School for three months because the former teacher had been thrown from a horse. It was from 40 to 55 degrees below zero most of the winter Her horse played out, and Alec Lawton was kind enough to let her have a horse for two weeks

They moved to the Botter farm south of town then right next door to the Razzolini farm, where Bill lived until his death on May 19, 1963

Gertrude went back teaching in 1953 and planned to retire on December 31, 1962, but 1964 found her back in the Eckville Elementary school where she taught until retiring in 1975

Gertrude had quite an active musical class since 1948. She is a member of Benalto Baptist Church. She was organist, pianist and Sunday School teacher when needed. She is quite active in the Eckville Craft Guild, mainly in the knitting, crocheting and needlework sections. She is a flower lover and gardener She moved to Eckville in December, 1966, where she still resides

MACLEAN, NEIL AND THE FAMILY — by M. [illegible]

The Neil Maclean family came to the Diamond Valley District early in July of 1923 after emigrating from the Island of Barra, which is the most western island in the outer Hebrides on the west coast of Scotland

My father was a sea captain and knew nothing about farming or handling of horses, but being of a very determined mind, he wanted to farm

We settled on the NE 4-36-3-W5 known then as the Gingras farm, now owned by Murray Craig It had 20 acres broke on it and the rest was heavy willows and small poplars

There were five boys and three girls in the family and all went to the Diamond Valley school. Mrs. Kay (the oldest) McNabb now lives in Shaunavon Saskatchewan. Michael lives in Hemet, California and Sylvan Lake. Mary (Mrs Topping) lives in Penticton, British Columbia. John lives in Edmonton. Angus was killed by an oil derrick in August of 1964. Rod lives in Port Moody British Columbia and Murdock recently bought a house in Eckville where he intends to move from Calgary. Jean (Mrs Gilbert McNiel) lives in Surrey, British Columbia.

My father died at Sylvan Lake in February 1961. My mother also died at Sylvan Lake in May. 1974 at the age of 95.

Our first three of four years on the farm were very hard. The first year we were eaten alive by bedbugs and we did not know what was causing all the welts on our bodies until some kind neighbor told us. Oh how well I remember how those bedbugs liked that foreign blood. After that we got some relief as mother had every bed post and chair leg sitting in a can of coal oil. Although it did help, somehow they had a way of dive bombing us from the ceiling on to the bed. Finally in desperation, we moved out of the house in the summer of 1924, cook stove and all and had the house fumigated two weeks apart. Mom and Dad slept in a granary with some of the younger children, three or four slept in the wagon box with a binder canvas over it and I slept under it. I think it rained the whole two weeks and I can see my mother to this day trying desperately to cook a meal for us on that stove outside in the rain. That was the end of the bed bugs in our house and we never had them again.

The neighbors were very helpful and showed Dad how to do a lot of things. Dad started to break some land with four horses abreast which meant that one horse was always walking on the furrows which made it hard for him, and he was always crowding the one that was in the furrow. One of our neighbors showed Dad how to get away from that by using five horses, three behind and two in front which meant, of course four lines to handle instead of two. My father was a sea captain although I had never seen him dock a two or three hundred foot long boat but five horses and four lines were just beyond his comprehension. When he would get to the end and had to turn around, my dad would have two horses going east and three going west and he would be hollering bloody murder for me to come and help but usually by the time I got there another pole would be broken out of that sulkey plough. My job at that time was to walk on the furrow that was being plowed and try to prevent it from falling back in its original position but with extra work done on that plough a longer landside and extension of the moldboard, we did get a few acres broke that fall.

Driving five horses became easy for me as at 14 years old, Dad eventually gave up his seat on that plough and went to the lowly job of seeing that the furrow did not fall back.

Being the oldest boy I was the official rabbit catcher which was our main diet the first two or three years on the farm. After school I would make the rounds and take the rabbits out of the snares, and reset them. I also devised ways to catch prairie chickens which were plentiful in the area at that time. The second year I graduated to a 22 rifle single shot but was only allowed five shells each night so I still set snares and saved my shells to shoot jacks. Then one day one of our neighbors came in and told us that it wasn't safe to eat the rabbits as they were covered with water blisters that winter. Oh! how I loved that man, as I was getting sick and tired of snaring rabbits but my mother had a different idea. She said "It doesn't matter how many blisters they have you catch them." She would cut the blisters off and boil them for so long and always told me the first one of us that died from eating blistered rabbits, I could quit catching them. When any one of us got sick I hoped she would blame it on the rabbits, but none of us died and I had to continue hunting rabbits.

Another incident that comes to my mind my dad asked me to go to Eckville with a team and wagon and two ladies went with me. As I had not been to Eckville before he told me to go one mile north, one mile west, four north to the correction line, one east and three north. I followed directions on the way to Eckville but on the way back when I got to Larry's corner, I could see what looked like a fairly good road ahead and it looked to me as though it would shorten the trip by two miles. After two and a half miles the road petered out but it looked open ahead so I went on. I ran into water on top of what was supposed to be the road. I decided to go on anyway, but did not get very far when both horses went down. also the wagon to the axles. I couldn't get the horses up so I unhitched them from the wagon. Finally I got one horse up and with a lot of coaxing got him on dry land. The other horse would not come out so I decided to leave him and go home for help. First I gathered a lot of sticks and put under his chin so he wouldn't drown. a water by this time was over his back. The women had already walked on so I got on the other horse and started for home. After about a quarter of a mile I looked back and saw that the other horse was standing so I went back. He was afraid to move but Lnally with a lot of effort, he made it to dry land.

I don't have to tell you what was said to me when I got home. With four log chains and a roll of barbed wire and another team we went back and got the wagon out.

That was my first experience with what people called a "muskeg". I can assure you that living in the Diamond Valley area at that time, it wasn't my last.

HUGH McNEIL — by Granddaughter Phyllis Andrew

Quebec was the birthplace of my maternal grandparents. Grandfather was born in 1867 and grandmother (Martha Kelley) in 1870. The McNeil and Kelley families were among the few English-speaking settlers in a French community, coming to Canada in the latter part of the 19th century. My grandparents were married in 1891 and for 12 years lived at Points aux Chene, Quebec. While in Quebec, a son, Philip, died in

As the land in Quebec was very rocky, the family of five children then moved to Riverside (later named Elbow) Saskatchewan, and filed on a homestead. The closest railroad was Davidson which was 35 miles away. By 1911 many railroad lines were built throughout the province. The homesteads were taken and the price of land had soared. There were now five boys in the family so grandfather set out to buy more land where it was not so costly. In January, 1913, he bought a quarter section, NW 22-38-3-W5, five miles south of Eckville. The land was bought from Dr. Evans, a doctor practicing in Eckville at that time. Grandpa bought adjoining land as it became available, until he had a section.

A nearly finished two-storey house was on the land when it was purchased. The house must have been a grand one in those days, as it had a furnace. It was fascinating to me to be able to pull and lower chains in order to control the heat from the registers. The basement could be entered by two ways: a heavy trap door in the pantry, or by steps on the outside at the bottom of which was a door. Large pipes branched off from the furnace, which was in the centre of the basement, to the many rooms. Close by was a large supply of logs which were needed for fuel. There was an ice-house on the farm, and homemade ice cream was a must for the picnics.

Grandpa used to enjoy teasing his grandchildren by talking to them in French. He attended to the farm business, and for a number of years was secretary-treasurer of the Bluebell School District. Grandma was more inclined to stay at home, but she did have her friends. One day when grandpa and I were coming from Eckville, by team, we stopped at Charles Schuneman's (presently Frank Zaleski's) with a birthday gift for grandma's friend, Mrs. Schuneman, so the women in that day must have associated with their neighbors. She had a very friendly disposition and enjoyed corresponding with relatives and friends.

Love of music could be considered a trait of the McNeil family. They sang, what seemed to me to be, continuously. Some of the instruments they played were violin, accordion, and mouth organ. A piano, bought in Quebec, in 1904, for my mother, was brought west and is still in her family. Uncle Everett played the drums in Mrs. Bill MacDonald's orchestra. What a favorable impression he made on me when he came riding into town on his spirited horse, sporting attractive chaps.

My grandparents celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in August 1941. They continued to live on the farm until February 1943, when they bought a house in Eckville. They were in the house only a week when grandma passed away. Grandpa then made his home with his youngest son, Gilbert, who had taken over the home farm. Grandpa passed away in June, 1950. Both he and grandma are buried in the Eckville cemetery. Of their family of nine children three are surviving: Mrs. Margaret McDonald and Wesley McNeil, of Eckville and Mrs. Mae Fletcher of Surrey, B.C.

The eldest son, David, married Ada Reeves of Penhold. They farmed near Evarts, retiring to Red Deer in 1956. They had three children: Lloyd on the home place; Beatrice (Mrs. Willard Phillips, R.R. 4, Eckville; and Ethel Thornton of Calgary. There are eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. David passed away in February, 1977.

Herbert (deceased in 1967) lived in Great Falls, Montana, U.S.A. working in the smelter there, before retiring to Seattle, Washington, U.S.A. He was predeceased by his first wife Phene, in 1939. His second wife, Henrietta passed away in 1974.

Leonard (deceased 1967) married Jean Fraser of Abbotsford, B.C., in 1930. They farmed the NE 21-38-3-W5. In 1935 they moved to British Columbia with their three girls: Evelyn, Marion and Leona. The girls are now married and have families.

Everett married Muriel Elson (deceased) of Eckville. They had three children, Gordon, Bertha, and Clarence (deceased). They lived on the Calvin Fletcher farm for a few years before moving to British Columbia. Everett passed away in 1975. His second wife, Hazel, resides in Burnaby, British Columbia.

Gilbert married Jean McLean of the Diamond Valley district, in 1941. They had a family of three — a boy and two girls. Marvin and wife Joanne, live in Stettler. They have a son, Ryan. Sharon and husband, Richard, live at Surrey B.C.. They have four children. The youngest daughter, Lois, is working in Calgary. Gilbert and Jean retired to British Columbia in 1971. He passed away in February, 1972 and is buried in the Eckville cemetery. Jean lives at Surrey, B.C.

McNEIL, WESLEY — by Helen McNeil

Wesley married Helen Hainsworth, of Lesliеville, in February, 1929. They lived near Withrow for 12 years where they rented the Calvin Fletcher farm. They then moved to the NE 29-38-3-W5 with their three children, where they farmed until retiring to Eckville in 1964.

Son, Jim, married Betty Whillier, of the Gilby area, and is employed as a mechanic in Wetaskiwin. They have three children. Kathy has completed her first year at university. Mitchell and Colleen are at home. Isabel and husband Ken Martin, live in Richmond, B.C. They have two boys — Kevin and Kirby. Avril is married to Glenn Rangen. They farm north of Eckville and have two boys, Randy and Eldon.

MEDIN, CARL EDVIN

Ed Medin was born in Smolin, Sweden in 1888.

After completing his schooling, he left for Canada where he had four uncles, Jonas John son, Olaf, Victor and Robert Medin.

He arrived in Red Deer on May 5, 1907. After finding someone who could speak Swedish and tell him where to go, he found his way to the home of his uncles, and this became his home off and on for a few years.

His first homestead was the NW 36-38-4-W5 which was in the Wood Lake area. He built a shack and dug a well there but spent most of his time working out.

In 1913, he moved to SE 23-38-3-W5 in the Evarts district, this was to be his home for many years. During this time, he bought the NW 23-38-3-W5 and the SW 24-38-3-W5 and started raising Hereford cattle.

He took an active part in the community. He did a great deal of carpenter work in the district. He worked at building the Evarts curling rink and later enjoyed curling in it.

He had many good friends in the district, two very good ones being Simon Lund and Frank [illegible].

In 1933, Ed and his Uncle Victor went to the Worlds Fair in Chicago, U.S.A. They drove down in Victor's car and enjoyed the trip very much.

Ed. lived at Evarts until the late 1950's when he sold his land and moved on to SE 31-38-3-W5 which had been his Uncle Olaf's homestead quarter in the Bluebell district. He lived there until 1972 when he sold his land and bought a house in Sylvan Lake, living there until moving to the Eckville Manor House.

He passed away January 1, 1977, in the Eckville Hospital and was laid to rest in Diamond Valley Cemetery.

MEDIN, HARRY AND MARY

Harry Axel, son of Victor and Lydia Medin was born in September 1909 at the family homestead. Except for a few years spent at Coronation, and Medford, Oregon, U.S.A. he has spent his life in the Diamond Valley district.

Living and working with his parents, Harry also did custom work breaking land, grinding grain and threshing. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge in Eckville until it disbanded.

In 1940 Harry purchased the NW 17-38-4-W5 from Alex Stewart. In 1950 he built a house on this quarter and married Mary Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown of the Gaetz district. We have spent our life since, engaged in mixed farming.

We raised a family of three children, Ronald, Faye and Dennis, who took their schooling at Diamond Valley, Benalto, Spruceview and Red Deer. They were all members of the Benalto 4-H Beef Club.

In 1962 Ronald married Elva Lorraine, daughter of Alfred and Ruby Anderson of Revisville. They reside in Hanna, Alberta, where Ron is manager of the United Farmers of Alberta farm supply. Their three children are Gregory, Kevin and Christine.

In 1963 Faye was married to James Pollitt, son of Mac and Donna Pollitt of Leslieville. They purchased a farm in the Gilby district where they now reside. They have a family of three children, Dallas, Sandra and Shane.

In 1971 Dennis married Penny, the daughter of Gordon and Joyce Primrose. They have two children, Holly and Jacqueline, and reside in Rocky Mountain House.

MEDIN, OLAF — by Trudy Gelb

Olaf Johnson was born around 1872 at Gamlehult, Sweden, to Anna and Johann John son. He took some schooling in Sweden before he immigrated to the U.S.A. where he had to learn English. There was a lot of confusion with mail, due to the many Johnson families here. To get away from this he changed his name to Medin which is similar to a place in Sweden near the family home. He worked in a factory in Chicago and played baseball for a Chicago ball team as a pitcher. Later Olaf moved to Eckville and homesteaded S.E. 32-36-3-W5. He also bought and farmed S.E. 19-36-3-W5 which he later sold to his nephew Harry Medin.

Olaf raised several teams of horses for his own use and for sale. Some were sold as dray teams as far away as Red Deer, Alberta. He also worked for some time in the brickyard in Red Deer. He did a lot of carpentry work and helped many homesteaders get their homes and barns up, as well as the old Blue Bell School.

Olaf moved to Coronation, Alberta in 1912 where he obtained land and farmed for a couple of years. During his absence his house was used to accommodate the teacher at the Blue Bell School which was just across the road.

Although Olaf never married he took a deep interest in the young people and community affairs. On very cold mornings it was common to find him stoking the school fires. He also became the local barber, a trade he picked up and at which he was very good. Of course he always enjoyed having someone stop by for a good game of cribbage. It was also common to find many different saddle horses stabled in the barn while their riders were attending school and quite often supplied a boiler of coffee for them.

Around 1946 Olaf retired from farming and sold his land to his nephew Edwin Medin, now owned by Bernard Lahti. He remained living on the farm in his original home, travelling to Minnesota for part of the winters and staying with his nephew and wife, Bill and Esther Berg.

Olaf Medin passed away quietly at his home on August 8, 1957.

MEDIN, ROBERT

Robert Johnson was born at Gamlekult Sweden around 1878, to Anne and Johann Johnson. He immigrated to the U.S.A. as a young man, settling first around Minnesota and Illinois where his brothers and two sisters were living. This area was populated by several Johnson families and it was difficult to keep the mail from going to the wrong family, so like his brothers he took the name Medin, which is similar to a place near the family home in Sweden.

He purchased land near Rugby, North Dakota and farmed it for several years before coming to Canada. Here he purchased his homestead, SE 34-38-3-W5, now owned by Willard Phillips. Robert first went into mixed farming, later milking cows and taking the cream to the creamery in Eckville.

About 1915 he married Olivia Lund. They had one child, a son, who died in infancy. Shortly after this Olivia went to Rockford, Illinois for a visit. When she returned she brought Stanley who was just a young boy, home with her. Olivia and Robert adopted him. Shortly after this Olivia passed away leaving Robert and young Stanley.

Robert's sister Annie Nelson, was a widow herself at this time so she came from her home in the U.S.A. and stayed for a number of years, keeping house for Robert and Stanley. In 1929 sister Annie returned to her home in the U.S.A.

Robert travelled to Sweden in 1928 to visit his family. He was accompanied by his niece, Hilda Johnson when he returned to Canada and she stayed with him to look after the housekeeping until she married and moved away.

Robert continued farming until his passing in 1948 at the age of 69 years. He is survived by Stanley of Rocky Mountain House, and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

VICTOR MEDIN FAMILY — by Lillie Gothe

Victor Medin, my father, was born in Sweden in 1874. There he grew up and got his education on a small farm in the Southern part of the country. In 1893 at the age of 19 years he immigrated to the United States. There he worked at various jobs in several different states, from training horses in Indiana, doing farm work in Illinois and Minnesota,, to farming for himself in North Dakota.

In 1903 Father moved to Alberta then still in the Northwest Territories, to the Evarts area. He shipped his horses and some equipment by train to Red Deer and drove the horses west to Evarts. There he acquired a homestead, SW 20-38-3 W5.

Lydia Anderson (my mother) was born in Sweden in 1881, also on a small farm here it would be called an acreage. She was educated in Sweden and after finishing school she was employed in a nearby town until about 1901 when she moved to the United States. There she joined her brother, Oscar Anderson, on a farm in North Dakota. She worked at house work and learned to speak English. In 1903 Mother and her brother came to Alberta. Mother obtained work in Red Deer at the Alexandra Hotel. Later she worked for a farm family near Evarts. Her brother, Oscar, took a homestead west of Evarts. In the winter of 1905 Victor and Lydia were married, I believe, in North Dakota.

Mom and Dad settled on the homestead and began the job of building a home for themselves and their future family. Times were tough for the pioneers — money was almost non-existent. Dad hauled lumber to Red Deer from the sawmills further west and worked at them some of the time. When he took a load of lumber to Red Deer he would usually bring back supplies for the camps and also to the store at Evarts, as that was their town and post office. This was a means of a bit of income, which was always hard to obtain.

All but one or two of dad's horses died of swamp fever, as did a number of horses brought into the country from south of the United States border. My dad's brother, Jonas Johnson, came from North Dakota at the same time and homesteaded the adjoining quarter section NE 20-38-3 W5. He also lost some horses. However, quite a few wild horses were brought into the district. By helping to break and train them dad acquired some horses for himself. By this time dad and Uncle Jonas had some cattle. One year they lost most of the calves with blackleg, something they had not heard of before. All land had to be cleared the hard way with an axe and a grubhoe and horses for power.

Mother always had a good garden, so we had plenty of vegetables. Wild berries were plentiful — raspberries, blueberries and wild strawberries. There were also cranberries. These did not have to be sealed, but could be kept in an earthenware crock with a good lid. All the pioneer women canned or dried all berries and vegetables that could not be kept in the cellar. Beef and pork were home grown and home cured. Fish could be caught in the lakes and rivers, and these provided fresh meat for a change. In later years mom raised a lot of turkeys and chickens. With cows for milk and butter there was always something to eat, even for any hungry traveller who might come along. Bread was all homemade; no ready sliced bakery bread was ever seen. Pioneer life meant a lot of work for the women. There were no washing machines and no dishwashers unless the children did them! The main equipment was the wash tub and scrub board and the old dish pan. Light at night was provided by coal oil [illegible] By the last Christmas in 1918 the Aladdin mantle lamps came along. They were a wonderful improvement!

The Medin children came along in due time. First I (Lillie) was born at home at Evarts in 1905. I married Martin Geffe of Alhambra in 1928. We have four children. Carl, Marian, Bernice and Allen.

Harry, was also born at home at Evarts, in 1909. He married Mary Brown in 1940. Their children are Ronald, Fay, and Dennis.

Walter was born at Coronation in 1916. He is still single, and farms the home place.

May was born in Medford, Oregon, U.S.A. in 1921. She married [illegible] in 1948. They have one son, Stuart.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Wedding, Miss Dora Olsen and [illegible]

We all live within six miles of dad's homestead.

As schools were built they became the centres for social life as well as education. Bluebell, built about 1905, is where Harry, Walter and May received a good deal of the three R.s. After being closed when centralization came into effect Bluebell was sold and remodelled. It is now the home of Ezra Isaacson.

Mom and dad spoke only Swedish when they came to the United States, so employment was a bit difficult to find. However, they soon learned to speak English. Canada appeared to hold a promising future, and it was to become their home. They had no desire to return to Sweden.

Recreation and entertainment were all provided by the people who took part. These were all local people, both young and old. Dances, box socials and even shadow socials were popular. The music was mainly accordian, violin and harmonica, and everybody would sing. Building bees and quilting parties also had their place. Refreshments were usually coffee, sandwiches and cake or cookies. Believe it or not, everyone could have a good time without booze!

In 1908 dad went east to look for land that was easier to clear and break. He located a quarter section about five miles southwest of Haneyville, a small store and post office some 20 miles east of Castor. In 1910 Medins moved out to the new place that was all prairie with no trees, but lots of stones. They drove out with horses and wagons, taking lumber for a shack and a few necessary bits of equipment. Benches, tables and bunk beds were all home-made, and prairie hay was used to sleep on. Later the railroad came through and Coronation became our town. With another quarter purchased, the farm grew to a half section, raising wheat, oats, and some flax. Dad also raised cattle and horses for work and pleasure. He had a team of good driving horses at all times. A very special pair were Prince and Frank – both black.

In 1914 Lucerne school opened. There my brother Harry and I attended school until the fall of 1919. By 1915 our house was enlarged and the teacher boarded with us. Her name was May Hood. She came from Edmonton. We drove a horse and buggy to school. The country school was the place for all gatherings, such as church, concerts, dances and socials.

In the fall of 1919 we moved to Medford, Oregon, a beautiful valley in the southern part of the state, where much fruit was grown. Those were pleasant years. One joyous event that took place in Medford was the arrival of sister May in April, 1920. Dad worked in an orchard, as did Harry and I during our school vacations in the summer, the vacation there being three months in length.

In 1923 we returned to Coronation for two years. In 1924 the crops were very poor, very weedy, hard to bind. In the fall of 1924 we returned to our original homestead. Then the post office was Hespero, located in the general store. It also had the telephone exchange. When the Hespero store burned the postal service was moved to Eckville. Now Hespero is only a ghost town.

In 1924 mom and dad bought a radio — that was really something! The only stations we could get were CFCN Calgary and CJCA Edmonton in Alberta, but we could get several stations in the United States. In 1925 dad bought his first car, a Chevrolet coach. That made it easier to go west of Rocky Mountain House to pick blueberries.

Mom and dad are gone now and we still miss them very much. Dad passed away in 1956 and mom in 1968. They are both buried in the Diamond Valley cemetery.

So this brings to an end my little contribution. God bless the pioneers — they were a brave and wonderful people.

MURPHY, HUGH — by Barbara Neilsen

Mr. Murphy was born in Kent County, Ontario, in 1870 and went to Vancouver in 1910, where he met Margaret Gavin, who was born in Aberdeen-Shire, Scotland in 1885. They married in 1915, and left for Regina, Saskatchewan. Later they moved to a farm at Hespero, now owned by Jim Gowans.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy moved into the Evarts district in the spring of 1919. Moving in those days was quite different from modern methods. There was little packing done. Everything was loaded into the hayrack helter skelter and sorted out at the new home. The cattle and extra horses were herded along behind the wagon, usually tended by the older children. In those days the "correction line" was a very rough road with lots of corduroy, so all the household goods got well shaken up en route.

Five of the 10 children were born in the Evarts district. They were Merritt, Jerry, James, Mae and Keith. It was while there that Mr. Murphy took over the auctioneering business of George Welsh, who was leaving the district. I believe Mr. Murphy's first sale was on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Black as they were leaving to live in Calgary. This was the beginning of a very successful auctioneering career that lasted over 20 years in the area from Rocky Mountain House to Red Deer.

The year 1924 was a tragic year for the family, as two children, Merritt and Mae passed away in the same week in October. That same year saw record lows of temperatures: on December 17 the temperature fell to 68 degrees F. below at Evarts. The temperature did not raise above 45 degrees below F. for three weeks. The school was closed because of cold weather and snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy and their family moved to the Shady Lane district in 1925, buying the SW 15-39-4-W5 from Mr. George Lee.

While living here, two ladies came to the school to hold church services. They came to our home and invited us, dad promised to go, but I don't think he intended to go but each night he went. On hearing the gospel he was converted. This meant giving up the old life with the drinking, smoking and other things that didn't go with Christian living. This meant a much happier dad and a much happier home life.

The older children took most of their schooling at the Shady Lane school. Scott and I did the janitor work for awhile. Elsie and Robert were born here.

In 1930 Mr. Murphy sold out and bought a farm in the Diamond Valley district. Using his carpentry skills which he acquired when he was employed at Vancouver as a carpenter, he built a house and a barn. In 1944 the farm was sold. Mr. Murphy always had the desire to go back to Ontario to visit his relatives. While there he bought a farm at Thamesville and tried his hand at a different kind of farming, that of growing corn and beans. Mrs. Murphy and three youngest of the family joined him there. After two years of farming in Ontario they moved back to Vancouver where they had a happy retirement. Mr. Murphy passed away in 1958 at the age of 80 years. Mrs. Murphy still lives in Vancouver. She is 92 years old.

Jack went to the west coast where he worked in the fishing business, later working in the Powell River pulp and paper mill. He married Alice Johnson, they have four children. Peter, Rosemary, Fraser and Patricia. They still live in Powell River, British Columbia.

Scott married Christina Munro, and to this marriage four sons were born. Lawrence and Allen, two sons passed away in infancy and are laid to rest in the Diamond Valley Cemetery. They farm in the Diamond Valley district.

Barbara married Myron Nielsen. They had seven children. Virginia, Wayne, Mervyn and Raymond, twins and a baby girl passed away in infancy and were laid to rest in the Benalto Cemetery. They live at Benalto.

Jerry joined the armed forces in World War II, leaving in 1941 and coming back in 1946. He married Helen Hiller and to this marriage were born four children. Judy, Conrad, Jim and Loree. They live in Edmonton.

James also served in the armed forces in World War II. In 1941, while still in England, he met and married Joan Wonham and they have five children. Bonnie, Terry, Patricia, Fraser and David. They live in Surrey, B.C.

Keith and his wife Dorothy have four children. Jo-Ann, John, Scott and Cathy. Keith passed away in July of 1976. Dorothy passed away in September, 1977. They lived in Burnaby, B.C.

Elsie married Albert Harris and to this marriage was born three boys, Murray, Ronald and Danny. Albert passed away in 1961 and about two years ago Elsie married Peter Johansson. They live in Vancouver, B.C.

Robert and his wife Helen have four children, Robert, Mike, Dale and Susan. They live in Surrey, B.C.

SCOTT D. MURPHY FAMILY (SW 33-37 3-W5

In the spring of 1940 Scott Murphy left his homestead in the Bungley district to farm the SW 33-37-3 W5 in the Diamond Valley district. As only 70 acres of the quarter were under cultivation, clearing and breaking of the heavy bush was undertaken.

There were no buildings, so in the winter of 1941 spruce logs were cut from his father's quarter and hauled to Tony Cesoma's sawmill, to be made into lumber for a house.

At the Diamond Valley church on April 5 1942, Scott Murphy was united in marriage to Christina Munro of the Evarts district. Christina was teacher of the Diamond Valley school.

Throughout his years in the valley Scott has been interested in mixed farming. Their two sons, Laurence and Allen, have the same interests as their father, for they both farm

NAGEL, HENRY AND EMMA

Henry and Emma Nagel bought Bill and Ger te McCann's farm in 1953 They have two children Don and Louise Louise married Jack Corless from Sundre. They have three children Ricky Adrian and Marianne. They are now liv ng at Fort McMurray, Alberta, where Jack is principal and Louise teaches Grade 4

NELSSON, NELS JOHN — written by his daughter, Esther Meitus

Born In Varmland, Sweden February 9, 1876 to Mr and Mrs. Nels Nelsson, twins — Britta Maria and Nels John

The twins lived in their farm home and grew to maturity there Then they both got the urge to go to "Amerika" the name commonly used to designate any country on the North American continent. Nels John went to U.S.A. in 1903 Britta Maria married Nels Fredrick Erickson and moved to Canada a few years later

Nels John, my father worked at his chosen trade, carpentry, and became very proficient There was always plenty of work for a good carpenter in a growing country and he helped build many houses and commercial buildings mostly in Two Harbors, and Duluth, Minnesota

Father didn't stay too long in the U.S.A. He was nostalgic for his old home, so he returned to Sweden intending to remain there. However the call of the west was in his blood, and again he crossed the Atlantic, this time coming to Canada. Again he took up carpentry and helped build dozens of houses in the Crow's Nest Pass area and in Edmonton. There was no bridge across the Saskatchewan River there and he used to cross the river by boat

Like hundreds of young men of the day, father got the urge to own some land of his own As he didn't have much money he couldn't buy property so he decided to file on a homestead in Central Alberta. Most homesteads near Red Deer were already taken, so he proceeded to go about forty miles to the west He chose a quarter, SE 13-37-4 W5, in the New Hill area in 1907

A settler could get a homestead for a small fee, but a requirement was that he make certain improvements within a specified time. There were so many necessities to buy and so much work to do to establish a home and a farm out of wilderness area! He spent his summers working on his homestead, then when fall came, he went back to building houses to earn more money, which he then applied to his homestead the following summer

Father built himself a two-roomed house and a barn for his horses on his land. Then he dug a well by hand, lined it with wooden cribbing, and put a windlass with a rope and bucket over the well to facilitate lifting water to the surface. The bush and had to be cleared. This was done with axe and grub hoe, and horse power was used to pull out stumps. It was a back-breaking task, but, like most pioneers, he was not afraid of hard work. Bit by bit he wrested good farming land out of the virgin bush. His first crop, oats, was seeded by hand broadcasting. When the grain matured, he cut it with a scythe.

On the quarter directly south of Father's land lived a Swedish family, Emil and Linda Ostergren, and their two children, Ernest and Ellen. They had come to New Hill a year earlier in 1906, and were fairly well established. Father spent many a pleasant evening in their company playing cards or enjoying the music they provided for themselves with violin and guitar. Father had a very good singing voice and could play the violin quite well. It was nice for him to get a good home-cooked meal once in a while, and good fresh milk and eggs from them to eke out his modest diet.

In 1910 tragedy struck the Ostergren family. Emil died of pneumonia, leaving his young family alone in a still strange land. Father helped them with heavier work but it was difficult for them to manage alone in spite of neighbor's help. However, romance came along, and father married the widow Ostergren in 1911. Since the Ostergren home was all set up for family living, much better than his bachelor "shack", Father moved into the Ostergren home with his newly acquired family. Henceforth, he no longer worked out in winter. The Nelssons decided, for better or worse, to make their living solely off the land. In 1912 along I came — another mouth to feed.

Mother had one of the best gardens in the country and raised enough vegetables to last all winter. Wild berries were abundant and these were picked and canned. For meat, father would butcher a beef or a pig in winter when we could because we couldn't keep it from spoiling wild grouse. For a special treat we would have

Mother was a good seamstress, and she sewed all the clothes for her family, even coats. Well washed flour sacks were used extensively for clothes, towels, sheets and pillow cases. She knit socks, mitts, and sweaters for all of us. She also made her own lye soap.

Cows were the backbone of the settlers economy, providing meat, milk and butter for a growing family. Mother used to make butter which they exchanged at the store for necessities. They also kept chickens, geese, and hogs.

We kept our milk and cream in large syrup pails which we hung into the well, our only cooler." It was a hazard, getting water from the well with a bucket. Those milk and cream pails dangling near the water were always in the

The roads in those days were really something! The settlers cut trails through the bush, following paths of least resistance, around sloughs and along hill tops. In wet terrain, corduroys were made by cutting poplar poles and laying them crosswise over the swampy spots. These corduroys made travel rough when your only vehicle was a lumber wagon with no springs. Drainage was poor, and these makeshift roads were often almost impossible to travel over. Father told of shopping trips to Markerville or Evarts. He tied the wagon box securely down on the wagon so it wouldn't float away when he had to cross bridge-less streams. As he urged the horses into deep water he put his flour and his sugar on the wagon seat beside him so they would not get wet.

Taxes were inevitable even in pioneer days. Money was scarce, so settlers were given the opportunity of "working off" a part of the taxes by doing road work. Neighbors would work together, laying corduroys and covering them with dirt hauled there with horses and slips. It was slow and tedious.

In 1912 the New Hill school was built. Mr. Elwell was the first teacher. Finding a boarding place for the teacher was a problem, but Father's homestead house was empty, so that was rented out as a teacherage. There were many teachers who lived in that teacherage. One of them was Miss Eva MacIntyre who later married the New Hill postmaster, Bill Stringer.

The day father bought a new democrat was a day of rejoicing. How I admired the shiny leather seats! It was such an improvement over the heavy lumber wagon, and it had springs to absorb many hard bumps as we drove over our primitive roads.

Mother and Father liked cattle, and they gradually acquired a fine herd of Aberdeen Angus. There was no fenced land for pasture so the cattle roamed on open range. We lost many a young calf to marauding wild animals and some larger cattle got bogged down in muskeg lakes, where they drowned.

In 1919 my parents bought the Charlie Miller place NW 20-37-3-W5 in the Diamond Valley district. This was a good quarter, almost completely cleared of bush. In 1927 my parents and I moved to our new location, leaving my 27-year old brother Ernest to farm the old place. Father built a fine new frame house and the required outbuildings and Mother and I painted them. Father's twin sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Erickson, were now our neighbors, living only one and one half miles north of us.

My parents were both interested in having a new community hall in our area, so a meeting of neighbors was called at our house, and plans were made for building Central Community Hall. This hall was located on the Erickson farm and was built by volunteer labor.

Father was a member of the U. F. A. local. I went away to continue my education in 1928.

Meanwhile my parents carried on with their (farming and I helped them during holidays only

In 1937 I married Waldemar (Wally Mortus, a welding shop operator in Eckville. Because of my parents' failing health, it seemed expedient that we take over the farm work. Mother and Father bought a house in Sylvan Lake and retired there. Their retirement together was destined to be short. Mother died in 1938 and was buried in the Diamond Valley cemetery. Father moved back to the farm with us. While we lived on the farm Wally and I had two children, Lucille and Leonard, who brought much pleasure to their grandfather.

In 1944 we all moved to Rocky Mountain House where Wally opened a machine and welding shop. The farm was rented out. Father's health continued to fail and in 1945 he died, and was laid to rest beside Mother in the Diamond Valley cemetery.

Hans was 17 years old when he came to Alberta from Norway with his father and mother Daniel and Karen Olsen, in 1903. They settled on a homestead, N.E. 20-28-2-W5. This area was later called the Bluebell School district. Evarts was their nearest post office and store. Daniel met with an accident and died in 1905. He was the first person to be buried in the Diamond Valley Cemetery. Karen Olsen passed away in 1909.

After his parents' death Hans took over the farm, but left shortly afterward to run a butcher shop in Bawlf. His stepbrother, Kristian Holmson and a cousin, Chris Boller were left to look after the farm in his absence. He came back to the farm in 1911 and married Thilda Halgrimsen.

Thilda had come with her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Botten, to Evarts from South Dakota, U.S.A. in 1902 when she was ten years of age. She had started school in South Dakota, and continued her education at the Bluebell school as soon as it was built. After finishing school she worked at Evarts until she got married.

Hans and Thilda also had a quarter of land at Coronation, but they didn't live out there very long before they sold it and came back to settle on the home place to make their permanent home. They did a lot of cutting brush and clearing land. Hans and his cousin Chris bought the quarter to the south of the home place, S.E. 20-38-3-W5, called the Benson place, and farmed it together for a few years. Then our dad bought Chris out as he had got a quarter of land of his

Their family consisted of four boys, Harry, Walter, Donald and a baby boy who died at birth, and two daughters, Margaret and Mildred. We all attended the Bluebell School at one time four of us rode on one horse to get to school. With a load like that you would think the poor horse would be bogged down, but, no, it didn't stop her from wanting to race when the other kids on horseback were with us. Harry was up front and I was on the tail end, with Walter and Donald being in the middle. When she got a break-away Harry couldn't hold her so we had some fast and furious rides until our dad put another bit in her bridle. However, we never fell off the horse.

I can remember that when we were kids we used to help pile brush and pick roots in the summertime, along with our parents, so we know a little of the pioneer days and of the work it involved. The boys used to help with the stooking but the most tedious job of all, was haying. It seemed to take all summer because it was slow and tiresome work in all that heat.

We always had quite a few horses. Our dad used to break them in during the wintertime. He would hitch up a bronco with an older work horse to a bobsleigh and box, jump in and away they would go. He would let them run until the horses tired and calmed down. By the time spring came he had an extra horse or two to use for spring work. When the bronco was quieted down pretty good he would let us kids go along, and we thought this was great fun.

There weren't any household conveniences away back then. The first one I remember was a washing machine with a round wooden tub. It had a big wheel that a handle fit into and you pulled it back and forth. That made the agitator work. This wheel was fastened inside the lid. We took our turns at keeping it going until the washing was done — but it beat scrubbing the clothes on a washboard. No wonder washday was called Blue Monday.

Our mother passed away in 1932 at the age of 60 years and our dad passed away in June, 1942, at the age of 56 years. They were both buried in the Diamond Valley Cemetery.

Gradually the family grew up and left home. Harry was married to Audrey Cunningham in 1935 and moved to S.W. 27-38-3-W5, about one mile east of the home place, formerly owned by J. T. Marshall of Eckville. They have two daughters, Johanna and Faye. Johanna is married to Bill Budvarson of the Craig district. They have two sons, Jim and Perry, and live in Eckville. Faye married Melvin Molander of Eckville and they have two children, Cheryl and Corey. They live in Didsbury.

Margaret married Claude Cunningham in 1936 and they live two and one-half miles south of Eckville. They have three children, Lloyd, Dale and Judy. Lloyd married Linda Lutz of Olds and they have two children, Dawn and Neal. They live in Eckville. Dale married Mary Watts Storms. They live on the Sr. Cunningham farm south of Eckville and have one son, Ronnie. Judy is single, and works in Calgary.

Walter married Laura Langer of Eckville in 1944 and they live on the home place. Their two children are Barbara and Barry. Barbara works in Calgary, and is single. Barry married Dixie Blow of Cochrane and they have two sons, Kerry and Robbie Barry is presently living in Scotland

Donald was in the army from June 1941 until December 1945. He returned from the Service and farmed his quarter of land which joins the home place, S.E 20-38-3-W5. He and Walter farmed together for a few years, then he took employment in Calgary and now resides there He is still single

Mildred married Russel Fraser of Ontario in 1961 and they have one daughter Debbie. They live in Calgary

Most of our children attended Bluebell School until 1955, when it became centralized and the children were bussed into Eckville

THE EGNES PALKOT FAMILY — by Dora

Egnes Palkot was born in Lithuania on July 31, 1885. He came to Pennsylvania U.S.A and worked in a butchering establishment for two years. In 1911 he came to Calgary, Alberta and worked as a brick layer's helper He left there when work became scarce and went to work on a farm at Claresholm. In 1914 he rode a freight train to Innisfail and then proceeded west on foot to the Stauffer district where his sister Mrs Bredick, was living. He was equipped with a swede saw, axe and pack sack He often spoke of the time he stopped at Mrs. Linneberg's hen house and took a few eggs to suck and Mrs. Linneberg came out to gather eggs and found him there

Egnes homesteaded on SW 17-37-4-W5. He built a small log shack and began clearing land He returned to Claresholm for several years in the fall to work and in the winters worked in the mines at Nordegg, returning to the homestead each spring to continue clearing land. In 1915 he borrowed a horse, an axe and a plow and broke three acres. The next year he bought a team of horses. He broadcast his crop and that fall he cut the crop with a scythe dried it, then threshed it with a flail and stored it in bags. His diet on the homestead consisted mainly of berries, rabbits and wild birds. If it hadn't been for these, many homesteaders would have starved or given up and moved away On one occasion when Egnes came home from the mines, he found that his home had been occupied by some other settlers who had come too late to build a house before winter set in. They then moved on to locate on land of their own

Each year more land was cleared and broken, and in 1918 Egnes received the title to his homestead. Egnes cut tamarack posts and hauled them to Alhambra to earn extra money This, along with his other income, made it possi matched grey horses, a fancy driving harness for them, a black cutter for winter and a fancy black buggy With such outstanding travel equipment he started courting and soon won the hand of Antonia Sperosk

Antonia had come from Lithuania in 1923 and made her home with her brother, Frank Speroski, who lived in the Gilby District Antonia tells a story about one time while out driving they had stopped the team. When Egnes went to embrace her, he knocked her large hat off, which frightened the horses and they had a run-aw Antonia and Egnes were married in 1924

By this time the threshing was done by John Dietz, who had a hand-fed thresher driven by a 10-horse power pump engine. This was quite a job, as the stacked bundles had to be cut and fed into the machine and, as there was no blower on the machine, men had to fork the straw away into piles. In 1925 the Ebis bought a Case thresher and tractor This was a real machine and it cut the strings as well as having a blower and grain augor

On September 15, 1925 their first and only son Edward, was born. On this same day their entire crop was completely hailed out By this time there was approximately 80 acres in crop Luckily, Egnes had put hail insurance on the crop and this was the last day that the insurance was valid. It was the one and only time he had ever carried insurance and he was hailed out only once after that in 1946

Their first daughter, Frances, was born October 2, 1927 During that year they also purchased a used Chevrolet touring car which came with snap-on curtains. In 1929 he traded his car for a new Plymouth

In 1932 Egnes purchased an old 10-20 Titan steel wheeled tractor, which he used only for grading, because he was now established in the pig raising business. Egnes had an old binder which a farmer in Claresholm had discarded His line of machinery had now increased to include a wooden box and wooden wheel seed drill, a two-bottom horse plow, a six foot single disc a horse-drawn mower and a dump hay rake

During these years the necessity to get their crops off made these early homesteaders into unpublished inventors. The fall of 1927 was very wet In order to cut his crop Mr Dobia mounted a motorcycle engine on his binder to run the sickle canvas reel and knotter The bull wheel drive was disconnected and set in a two-horse dirt slip The horses were hitched to this and they pulled the binder through the soggy fields. Mr Dobia took the crop off for Egnes that year It took eight horses to pull this, while in an ordinary year four horses could easily pull the binder

By this time the homestead shack was getting too small and an additional room was added This addition made it possible to have bedrooms upstairs. This was a necessity because on July 16, 1933, twin daughters, Ileen and Ireen, were born.

In 1933 the SW 18-37-4-W5 was purchased from John Junaitis. There were 30 or 40 acres broken on this land and it was fenced with two rows of barbed wire. Egnes ran cattle on this land, as well as on a half section of Hudson Bay land which he leased. The sloughs, which were dry enough, were mowed and stacked for hay for winter feed. Indians were hired to cut brush and grub and limb the big trees. In winter these trees were cut into firewood. The Indians would contract the work for three to four dollars per acre. At times there would be as many as 30 tents at the work site. The first part of this land was broken by Ed Clay, with 12 horses on a wooden beam plow. The other parts were broken by Mervin Howe, using Pete Lecerf's 23-36 International tractor with steel wheels and a steel beam plow. In all, 150 acres were cleared. The remaining patches were broken by Sandy Morigeau and Frank Dobia in later years.

During the hungry thirties, relief men were available to farmers for winter work. The government paid the men five dollars a month and the farmer five dollars for his room and board. Most of these men were very good workers. The farmers would usually give the worker the five dollars which had been intended for payment for board and room. The men usually did the chores and cut wood.

In 1936 a Massey Harris Pacemaker tractor was purchased. It had rubber tires and was the first one thus equipped in the district. It caused much speculation as to the desirability of rubber tires, in regard to punctures and traction, but it proved to be reliable. A six-foot tiller and a three bottom plow, 14-inch, were also purchased at this time. Egnes decided these pieces of equipment would be used for preparing the land only, and the seeding and binding would be done with horses. Within two years tractor hitches were put on all pieces of equipment. The horses were soon sold, except for two teams, which were kept for hauling bundles. Wheat, oats and barley were grown by this time, and summerfallow was part of the crop rotation.

In 1941 Edward finished his schooling and joined his father in the farming business. They purchased a Massey Harris 101 with rubber tires. Ed used this tractor and a rubber-tired wagon to haul fattened hogs to market at Hespero.

During these years many of the farmers paid their taxes by helping to build roads. This proved quite a job, as poles had to be cut and laid side by side in the muskegs. This was called corduroy and on this, dirt was hauled and laid over the logs, so the traveller could have a smoother ride. In other places ditches were dug and the dirt pued on the road and levelled off. This was done mainly with slips and fresnoes, pulled by horses. The farmers of the district took turns maintaining these roads.

In 1942 a number 15 eight-foot pull type Massey Harris combine was purchased. In 1943 a quarter of land was bought from Frank Trezka. There was about 80 acres of cultivated land, and the remainder of this land was broken by 1946. The building site on this quarter was broken, and during this procedure three gallons of powerful moonshine were unearthed. The men on that year's threshing crew will not forget the party they had with the help of this moonshine!

In 1949 Egnes and Antonia left the farm and bought one and a half acres at Sylvan Lake. They built a house and established the Suns Paradise Camping Grounds. They remained at Sylvan Lake until 1971, when they sold the camp grounds and purchased a home in Innisfail. Egnes passed away in Calgary on September 2, 1974. Antonia still resides in their home in Innisfail.

Ed married Fersa McNeil of Evergreen on November 29, 1947. In 1955 they sold the Stauffer farm and bought a farm at Innisfail. They have two daughters. Linda is married to Raymond Smith and has two children, Kelly and Carmen. They live and work on the home farm.

Marilyn is married to Bill Howard of Winfourne.

Frances is married to Jack Curtis and they reside in Delta, B.C. They have three children, Ronnie, Elaine and Cathy. Ronnie and Elaine are both married and Elaine has two children, Steven and Darren.

Aileen married John Glambeck in 1953 and they have three children, Bruce, Allan and Bonnie. They live in Red Deer.

Irene married Tom Burke. They live in Calgary with their three children, Kevin, Shelley and Phyllis.

PHELPS, WILLIAM MAXWELL

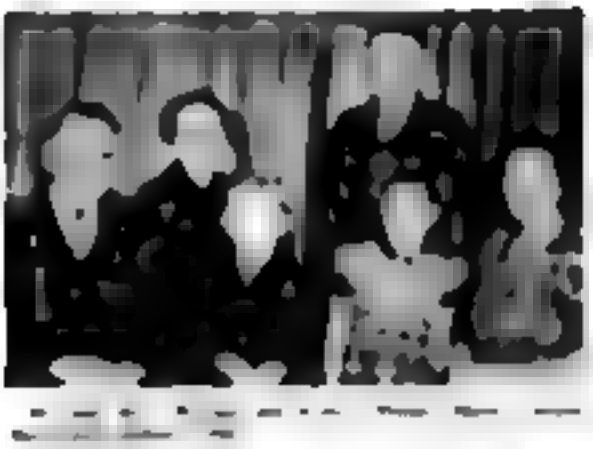
Bill was born in Dowagiac, Michigan, U.S.A. April 13, 1907. He came to Alberta in 1927 to his half brother (Fred Dalton) and family at Olds, Alberta. He worked on different farms as hired help. In 1930, he came to the Diamond Valley district to a friend that had Sec. 29-37 3-W5 rented. Bill helped him farm as he was a school teacher. Bill and I, Evelyn Martinson, were married October 1, 1932. The school teacher, Wendell Phillips, had left Bill the land by this time which Bill rented. We were there and farmed it until the spring of 1934. Then we rented SE 30-37 3-W5 owned by A. J. Hoven. We farmed with horses. Bill took horses to break from the Armstrong Brothers of Eckville for several years. In the spring of 1936, my mother had a sale and left the farm. We rented the land SE and NW 11-38-4-5 from her and moved there with our family of two, Marie born March, 1934 and Lenard born July, 1935. We bought this half section in 1938. We farmed with horses until after 1940. We had saddle horses and a driving team until 1942 when we bought our first truck.

My two brothers, Floyd and Melvin Martinson and two sisters Virginia and Ruth Martinson were with us from 1936-1952. They took their schooling at Gaetz school. By 1952, they married and made homes of their own.

Bill and I had lots of help as the years went by. Bill loved his farming horses and livestock.



He did a lot of community work in di[illegible] organizations

In 1942, we had a daughter, Muriel and in 1944 a son Delbert. In 1948, we bought our first car after spring seeding and took our family and went on a two month trip back to Bill's home state of Michigan, U.S.A. Also through Iowa and South Dakota to my folks relatives. In 1949, we bought the SW and NW quarters of Sec 11-36-4 W5. These quarters were bush land. We cleared the NW quarter in a few years and had it into crop. We always milked 10 to 20 cows by hand and had a lot of hogs. In 1950, we built a chicken house and brooder and I spent a few years raising chickens and turkeys. The profits weren't large but we had spending money. The spring of 1949, the power came in which was a big help to the district.

The spring of 1956, Bill had a heart attack after he had finished seeding the crop that day. He was in the hospital for six weeks. He recovered and was able to do ordinary work until the spring of 1961 when he had another heart attack and passed away. Son Delbert was 16 years old at the time. He and I carried on farming with hired help. We threshed until 1965, then bought a combine and swather. Delbert lives on and farms the home place. He married Lila Wyzkoski and they have four girls, Cindy, Charlene, Candice and Crystal.

Muriel married Max Bott and lives and farms near Withrow, Alberta. They have one son, three children, Clayton, Constance and Lorna. Connie was married in June 1977 to John Macleod of Edmonton. Lenard has been an oilman for over 20 years. He has worked in Alberta and the U.S.A. At present he is living in Texas and is president of Thomson Drilling Co.

Marie married Edward Bott and lives and farms near Withrow, Alberta. They have four children, Russell, Gene, Carolyn and Joanne.

I have a suite in the Jem Apartments in Eckville, Alberta and am manager and caretaker there.

PHILLIPS, WILLARD AND BEATRICE — by Beatrice Phillips

Eckville has always been a part of my life as my family did much of their business there. I was born at Evarts, Alberta, the daughter of David and Ada McNeil. We had a mixed farming operation and milked a few cows. The cream was taken to Eckville usually twice a week, and the needed purchases made. One time I remember Dad taking some wheat to be ground into flour at the mill there. Mother had a great deal of difficulty making good bread with it, but I know nothing was wasted, as she always found a way to make use of everything. It was the secret of success in the hard times, and we, as a family did very well, thanks to our careful parents.

In the fall of 1942 I, along with my sister Ethel and Doreen Stauffer, took up residence in one room above the home of my aunt and uncle the J. M. McDonalds. Here we ate, slept, and studied, but spent very few weekends there. It was a very disturbing sight on the Monday morning in January when we drove up in front of our school and, peering through the frosty windows of the truck, saw the smoldering ruins of the school with only the chimney standing. School resumed a week later in the Hall. We did lose credits in our chemistry course because we did not have a laboratory but, thanks to our much loved teacher, Mrs. Westergard, school continued. We did have concerts and bazaars to raise money to help replace some of the lost equipment.

February was a sad month, too, for we lost our grandmother, Mrs. Hugh McNeil. March saw more and more snow and winds that made many roads impassible. One Friday night my sister and I had to walk the last half mile home in the dark, falling over four-foot drifts. Spring came, with the rivers all flooding their banks and causing the loss of two lives — Mr. Leithead at Evarts and Bill MacDonald, the father of our good friend, Kay. It was a time that will be hard to forget.

After finishing school in Eckville I went to work at the Evarts store and then to the bank in Sylvan Lake. Doreen went on to finish her schooling at Red Deer and Dickson, after which she did some supervisor-teaching. She married Clifford Hillman and they still reside on their farm at Evarts. They have three children. Ethel went on to graduate from the Eckville School and later graduated as a nurse from the Royal Alexandra Hospital. In 1949, She worked in Stettler before her marriage to Frank Morrison Thornton in 1951. They now live in Calgary and have two children. Ethel still does part time nursing at the Foothills Hospital.

In January of 1947 Willard Phillips and I were married. We went to live in the Evarts district and worked for Peter Stewart on his farm for five years. We then purchased a quarter of our own, and moved into our new home in the spring of 1952. Robert Medin was the previous owner of the quarter we bought. In 1980 we bought the land we now live on from Ken Darlington. He had built up the place after his return from the war. It had originally been owned by D. Snyder.

Willard was born in the Arbutus district near Rocky Mountain House. His father, J. Arthur, came west after graduating from MacDonald Agricultural College. He had been born in Westmount, Quebec, and had lived in the city environment, so he knew little about farm life in the rugged west. He took a homestead, and married Laura Gardiner, who, with her parents, had moved from North Dakota, U.S.A. They also were on a homestead. They raised five boys and one girl, Willard being the second oldest. He attended school in Arbutus, then went to work in the bush. His first job on a threshing crew in 1935, was in this same area. He also worked in the Evarts area in succeeding years and from there he joined the army and went overseas in January, 1943. He took part in the "D Day" invasion in France, returning home in December of 1945.

We have two sons, David and Keith, who both took all their schooling in Eckville. After their graduation they went to work mainly in the oil industry. David married Wendy Primrose of Rocky Mountain House. They have two daughters, Carrie and Angela. David is presently employed as a driller with Loffland Bros. Drilling. Keith married Judith Szoke and is presently employed as a welder at the Syncrude plant near Fort McMurray.

RASMUSSEN FAMILIES — by Iris Rasmussen

In the spring Neils Rasmussen, his wife and family moved into the Bluebell area. They located on the NW 29-38-3-W5, which they purchased from Pete Pedersen and which is now owned by Theresa Rasmussen.

Neils Rasmussen, born September, 1862, in Denmark, emigrated to California, U.S.A. There he met Jensina (born September 13, 1862 in Denmark) and they were married on October 14, 1885 in California. They soon moved, and took up a homestead in Lakin, Kansas, U.S.A.

Neils and Jensina Rasmussen had eight children born in Kansas. A daughter Ethel, born April 17, 1909, passed away on May 15, 1909.

Upon coming to Canada they brought with them settlers effects, ambition and a desire to expand in a new country. In 1923 they purchased NW 32-38-4-W5, in the Condor area. This land was later rented by their sons. They resided on their Condor farm until their passing, Neils in February, 1932 and Jensina in February, 1933. They are buried in the Medicine Valley Cemetery, which is located on SE 16-38-3-W5, and is more commonly referred to as the Diamond Valley Cemetery.

Descendents of Neils and Jensina Rasmussen were: Clara Anna, born February 5, 1887. She married Charles Dickerson Steinbeck, known as Carl. They came with her parents to this country and homesteaded the SE 19-38-2-W5, which is now owned by Harry Medin. They lived in a log cabin on this land for about eight years. This cabin is still standing. Clara and Carl Steinbeck had seven children: Herbert Franklin, Edwin, Fred, William, Hilda, Joseph and Marie, all born in and around this area. Frank, with his wife and family from North Carolina have visited this area four different times. Joseph and his wife have also been here. Clara passed away after a sudden illness on January 15, 1918. She is buried in the Medicine Valley cemetery. Carl moved back to the States with his family on April 6, 1919.

Alfred Thomas, the oldest son of Neils and Jensina, was born September 22, 1891. Alfred homesteaded the NE 19-38-3-W5. He met Lilly May Ellis, a local school teacher in his area, and they were married in 1921. Alfred and May have five children, Freda, Elsie, James, Lee and Nesley, all living in the Fairview, Alberta area. Alfred and May moved to the Clive area in 1927 where they farmed. In 1955 they moved to Whitelaw to be near their children. Alfred and May have both passed away. They are buried in the Whitelaw cemetery.

Martinus Henry, known as Enos, married Agnes French, a Condor girl. They lived until 1925 in the area, then moved to Yakim, Washington, U.S.A. Enos was accidently killed in May, 1926. Their three children were Henry, Earl and Dorothy. Agnes now lives in Oregon, U.S.A.

Rudolph Andrew, known as Rudy, was born December 2, 1894. He lived at home until joining the Army in May, 1918. He served in the 31st Battalion in Bramshot, England until the war ended. In 1923 Rudy married Gena Botten. They farmed the NE 29-38-3-W5, purchased through the Soldier Settlement Board. Rudy and Gena had six children: Ruth, Herman, Elmer, Oliver, Enos and Helena. Helena passed away six weeks after her birth.

Next came a sad time for Rudy and his family, as Gena passed away on February 13, 1933 of pneumonia. The shock of this news caused Rudy's mother to pass away the next day. There was a sad, double funeral and both were buried in the Medicine Valley Cemetery. Rudy carried on with his family of small children with help from relatives and neighbors. In the spring Irene Bardwell (nee Wylie - a widow with three small children, Kenneth, Joyce and Alice, came as his housekeeper. This proved to be a satisfactory arrangement, as Rudy and Irene were married June 21, 1934. Shortly after their marriage the community held a charivari, as was the custom in those days. Rudy and Irene managed to get outside without the crowd seeing them. They joined in the racket and revelry. After a while, when no one appeared, several men lifted Orrin Wylie in the window. No one was there! There was a great deal of laughter when Rudy and Irene were discovered in the crowd.

To this marriage was born Ronald, Daniel,

Shirley and Loyal. This large family was active in functions at the Bluebell School and throughout the area. Rudy and Irene were interested in raising their family in a Christian way. They attended the Diamond Valley Church regularly.

In the fall of 1947 Rudy sold his land, and early in 1948 they moved with their younger children to Abbotsford, B.C., where they still live.

Orvel Nesley was born May 24, 1897. Like his brother Rudy he joined the Army in 1916. Orvel was in the 51st Battalion in Bramshot, England. After his discharge he rented land from his parents, eventually buying the original farm NW 29-38-3-W5. Orvel married Thressa Botten on August 31, 1932. On the day of their wedding Ernest, Orvel's brother, drove them to Red Deer. While Orvel was away his other brothers and other ambitious fellows in the area got into the house and prepared it for the returning newly-married couple. They moved the new bedroom suite upstairs and brought the old one down, which they set up with great care. They filled the oven of the cook stove with rubbers and boots. To make things more interesting they placed a pump engine in the middle of the kitchen floor. Orvel and Thressa must have had mixed feelings when they returned home!

Orvel farmed in this area until his passing on April 26, 1962. He is buried in the Red Deer

Clarence Raymon, the fifth son of Nels and Jansina Rasmussen, was born April 1, 1900. Ray married Anole Bjornson of the Markerville district in May, 1922. They lived in this area before moving to Flatbush in 1934. Ray and Annie have seven children. Bjorn, Richard, Clara, Clifford, Jean, Margaret and Ann. Ray passed away July 4, 1973, one week after attending a Rasmussen family reunion.

Ernest Richard, known to many as Johnny, was born March 31, 1903 in Lakin, Kansas. Ernest farmed the Condor land for his parents for many years. On April 11, 1934 he married Gladys Jayes. In 1945 they moved to Fawcett, Alberta, where they operated a cafe and service station for many years. This service centre had a motto "Eat with Ma, gas with Pa" and that is what many people used to enjoy, as Gladys was an excellent cook and Ernest's service was equally as good. Gladys and Ernest retired to a small farm in the Nestow area. They had three children, Gerald, Stanley and Bonnie Jean. Ernest passed away suddenly in January, 1975.

Hilda Ida, born July 26, 1905, came with her parents to this area. She attended the Bluebell and Prairie Rose schools. While on a trip to Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, Hilda met and married Floyd McCormick on December 1, 1924. They made Spokane their home, where they had two sons, Floyd and Wayne. Floyd passed away in January, 1960. Hilda then married Lawrence Gugler in May, 1965. Lawrence passed away July 16, 1972. Hilda lives alone in Spokane, Washington.

Two grandsons of Nels and Jensina, sons of Rudolph Rasmussen, live in this area. Elmer Stanley was born March 16, 1927 at his home in the Bluebell area. Elmer with his brothers Herman and Oliver, moved to the Fawcett area where they took up homesteads. Elmer stayed with his Uncle Ray and Aunt Annie for some time. On April 11, 1950 he married Iris Helen Wilson, a local school teacher. They lived on the homestead for three years before moving to Barrhead, Alberta. Here he started working for Farm Electric Services, and worked at this job for eight years. In May of 1962 Elmer rented and from Mrs. Thressa Rasmussen, where he now resides.

Elmer and Iris have four children, Wayne Elmer, born July 7, 1954, attended school in Eckville and on August 10, 1974 he married Sandra Nielson. Wayne works in Red Deer but intends to make Eckville his home.

Lois Anne was born December 5, 1957 in Mayerthorpe, Alberta. She took her schooling in Eckville, graduating from high school in 1975 different types of cooking.

David Terrance, born November 18, 1962 and Clark Robert, born December 7, 1964, both attend Eckville school and reside at home.

ENOS AND IRENE RASMUSSEN — by Irene Rasmussen

Enos Gilbert was born July 22, 1936 at home in the Eckville area. He helped his dad on the farm until Mr. Rasmussen sold his land to Walter Boettger. Enos then helped his dad move to Abbotsford, B.C., but he returned to stay with Orvel and Thressa Rasmussen. He belonged to the Genalto Agriculture Society for a few years. He showed sheep at the Edmonton Stock Fair on several occasions. For 13 years Enos rented land from Mrs. Tennant. He met Irene Bozak of the Gaetz district and they were married in April of 1957 in Red Deer.

Enos and Irene lived in various places, until moving to the New Hill district. They later bought land there. They have five children, Therese, Brenda, Dorothy, Charles and Gale. Therese graduated from the Spruce View school in 1977 and is working in Red Deer. The other children are still at home.

THE RAZZOLINI FAMILY

Giovanni Razzolini came to Canada to Vancouver from Montrumo, Italy, in 1913. From Vancouver he moved to Rockyford, Alberta to work on a farm. In 1922 he came to Eckville and bought the W 21 39-3-W5, from the C.P.R. This land was in the Blue Bell School district. The land was all bush and he had to clear it by hand and with horses.

In 1924 he married Marina Zanesco of Castelcucco, Italy in Calgary. After their marriage they returned to the farm, and to a brand new home, something that most people did not have. This house had been built by a brother-in-law that had lost his wife. Mr. Razzolini's sister) and they were to raise three of his children in exchange for the house. In the meantime the brother-in-law remarried, and the raising of his three children by Giovanni and Marina never came to pass.

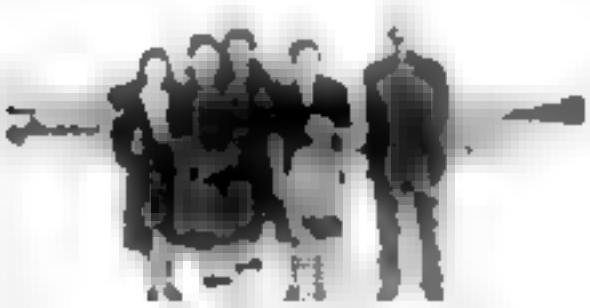
For income many cattle and pigs were raised. Four children were born to them: Amelia Maria, Luigina and Gino. Due to ill health Mr. Razzolini sold the farm in 1958, at which time the family moved to Lacombe. Mr. Razzolini passed away on September 3, 1963. He is buried at Alto Reste Memorial Gardens in Red Deer. Mrs. Razzolini now resides in the Eckville Manor.



Amy was born in April, 1925. She married Ron Davidge of Edson in May, 1946. They have two sons and one daughter, Dennis, Terry and Janice. Dennis married Mary Nickel of Vancouver and they have one daughter, Michelle. Terry married Linda Pointer of Calgary and they have one son, Kyle. Janice married Laurence Tisch of Calgary and they are now living in Winnipeg.

Luigina was born on November 10, 1929. She married Clem Croome of Edmonton on January 11, 1953. They had two sons, Murray and Dale. Clem passed away on August 20, 1960. Luigina married Jim Wright of Diamond Valley in November, 1967, and they have one daughter, Rina.

Murray married Sally Esary of Vancouver. They have one son, Adam, and one daughter, Becky. They are living in Coquitlam, B.C.

Dale and Rina are living in Calgary.

THE HARRY MAXIM SATRON FAMILY — by Violet Satron

Harry Max Satron worked for Trident Drilling, later purchased by Peter Bawden Drilling. Harry was employed on the Trident rig, which drilled the hole where the Gilby Gas Plant is now located. While working in this area Harry met his wife-to-be, Violet Cordon. They were married on August 1, 1957 at Our Lady of the Assumption Church, Sylvan Lake.

In 1960 Harry decided to go farming and purchased the E 25-38-4-W5 and the SE 30-38-3-W5 from his father-in-law, John Cordon. On August 21, 1963 the original barn burned down, so Harry applied for a timber lease from the Forestry Department. He cut the trees, hauled and sawed the logs, planed the lumber and, being handy with a hammer and talented with a saw, he built a new barn in 1964. He continued logging and in 1971 began building the new house, following plans which he and Violet had drawn up. The family built the house themselves, with the exception of pouring of the basement, floor and footings, and the building of the fireplace.

In 1972 Harry and Violet tried out a new venture — a Holiday Farm. In 1973 they accepted 52 young people from the ages of 16 to 23 years, for five weeks, supplying them with room, board and farming experiences.

During the winter of 1976-1977 Harry was hired by the Eckville Agricultural Society as "spear-header" for the inside construction of the new Multi-purpose Building in Eckville. His job was to order material, solve construction problems and to organize the work for the many volunteer workers.

Harry is a member of the Benalto Elks Club, the Eckville Curling Club and the Hespero Hall [illegible] and children's activities, even to teaching the school children to curl. He never misses a hunting or fishing trip out west, usually accompanied by his boys and often by the whole family. In 1977 Harry received a five-year Leadership Award from the Canadian Council of 4-H Clubs.

Violet, having been a horse-lover all her life, has taken part in many horse shows and gymkhanas over the years. In 1976 she was president of the Eckville Catholic Women's League and vice-president of the Eckville Curling Club, in addition to taking an active part in the Eckville Curling Club and the Hespero Community Club. In 1977 she was presented with a Ten-Year Leadership Award from the Canadian Council of 4-H Clubs.

Harry and Violet have three sons and a daughter — Daniel, Dennis, Terry and Brenda. Daniel and Dennis both have graduated from Eckville High School. Terry and Brenda still attend school in Eckville.

SMITH, WILLIAM AND JEAN

Bill Smith was born at Irvine, Alberta, the second youngest son of Tom and Elizabeth Smith and came with his parents to the Kuusamo district in 1926. He attended school at Evarts, Kuusamo, Eckville and Red Deer.

After leaving school he worked one summer for Glen Eisenhauer, near Sylvan Lake, where one of his jobs was to plough for 37 days with a six-horse team. The pay was $25 a month with every second Sunday off. After this he worked for Stewart Brothers Equipment of Red Deer for a few months — salary $45 per month — before going back to the farm to stay

He farmed with his brothers in the Eckville district until 1941 when he and his brother Tom enlisted in the army. Before going overseas he and Tom bought S 20-39-3-W5 from Luther Finlay. During the next four and a half years he served in England, Italy, Northwest Europe and with the Army of Occupation in Germany before returning home in 1946.

In 1948 he married Jean Staniforth, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Staniforth from the Evarts district. She was born in Red Deer and educated at Evarts and Red Deer.

In the spring of 1948 they moved to NE 6-39-3 W5, which they had bought from Ernie Barlund, and they have lived and farmed there ever since. They started without central heating, electricity, plumbing, telephone or gravelled road, but these all came as time went on. They farmed at first with a combination of horses and tractor and stooked and threshed the crop. In 1957 they bought Tom Cunningham's farm, SW 5-39-3-W5 when he quit farming to go to work for an oil

Jean taught Sunday school at Hespero Presbyterian Church and was a member of the Ladies' Aid until it was disbanded when the church closed. Both Jean and Bill were members of the Hespero Church Board. Bill was on the Eckville Co-op Association board of directors for 17 years and on the Eckville Co-op Livestock Association Board for many years, having the jobs of chairman and secretary on each of these boards. He has also had a turn as secretary of the Eckville Legion. Jean was on the executive of the Eckville figure-skating club and sang in the

In 1905 they came to Diamond Valley, where he homesteaded NE 32-37-3-W5. This farm is now owned by John Murdock. They had seven children.

Victor and his wife, Eva, remained on the home farm until they moved to Calgary a few years before Vic died.

Of the Sonnie sons Gus has one son, Bud, who has a son now. He is the only boy to carry on the Sonnie name.

ALEXANDER MALCOLM STEWART

The blood of three branches of the Stewart clan, traceable back through the centuries, fused in the veins of Alexander Malcolm Stewart. He was the second man to cross the Medicine River at Evarts and locate a homestead in what was later to become the Diamond Valley district.

He was born at Port Huron, Ontario, August 24, 1876, the son of Angus D. and Jane (Stewart) Stewart, and he attended school there. After working on a farm in Ontario, he came west from Wyoming, Ontario to Manitoba in 1899 and in 1901 he came to the Red Deer district and worked on farms in the area. On August 13, 1901, he first crossed the Medicine River by boat where Evarts was subsequently located, to work at a saw mill three miles west of the river. Range three, although it was being surveyed that year, was not open for homesteading. However any man 18 years of age or older who was a British subject or who was willing to take out naturalization papers, could choose a quarter section and build a small house on it and then have the first chance to file on it, as soon as that could be actually be done.

Alex Stewart filed on SW 4-38-3 W5 in 1902 and his first shack was built of slabs and poles. This was subsequently replaced by a home on a location farther to the south. Roads were non when a post office was opened at Evarts, mail had to be brought out from Red Deer. The country was wet and most of the horses brought in died of swamp fever. For several years Alex used a team of oxen to break the land that he so arduously cleared by hand. He had one ox that he sometimes rode and when, as sometimes happened, he did not take the pasture bell off him, it announced his arrival at his destination.

In 1905 his parents and his sister, Catherine came west from Ontario to join him on the homestead. His father, Angus D. Stewart, the son of Alex D Stewart, was born at East Williams, Ontario in 1843. He was married May 29, 1872, to Jane Stewart, the youngest daughter of Archibald E. Stewart, and they lived in Caradoc township for some time prior to moving near Wyoming Ontario, from whence they later journeyed westward. A Presbyterian in religion and a Liberal in politics, Angus Stewart was a kind, generous and honest type of man. He homesteaded on the NW 17 38-3 W5, which originally had been C P R land, but which had been traded back to the federal government and opened up for homesteading in 1906. He died on January 30, 1910, at the age of 67 years. Mrs Stewart continued to live with her son until the early 1920's, when she went to live with a daughter Mrs. Duncan Macartney, in Manitoba where she died in 1925. Both Mr and Mrs. Angus Stewart are buried in the Diamond Valley cemetery. Their daughter, Catherine, married Glen Caton, one of Alex Stewart's nearest neighbors, in 1910

Alex Stewart was married to Pearl Coughlan in 1918, and following her death in 1930 he married Jessie Caton in 1936. Throughout the years he took an active part in practically every phase of the development of the district, being a member of the first council when the first four township local improvement districts were formed, and when the district school was built in 1910 he was appointed secretary-treasurer of the district at a salary of $35. per year He never turned to power farming, using horses continuously after the era of the ox team had passed For a number of years four black horses provided his favorite source of operational power He also took great pride in his herd of Shorthorn cattle In 1950, at 74 years of age, he received a Save the Soil scroll from the Alberta Department of Agriculture. The year 1956 marked the 54th successive year that he had put up hay in the Diamond Valley district

He had a remarkable memory for names and dates and a keen sense of humor that is remembered by all those who knew him. His door was opened to everyone and he took part in every local activity Throughout his life he enjoyed wonderful health. He had been having some of his field work done on a hired basis for two years, but he continued to keep his cattle and horses, until 1960, when he suffered a heart attack. He then sold his cattle and horses and rented the farm on which, however he continued to live. As late as the fall of 1963 he helped to shovel grain. He died January 28, 1964, at the age of 87 years and is buried in the Diamond Valley cemetery His widow resides in Valley Park Manor in Red Deer

THE CHARLIE VANHORN FAMILY (GAETZ — by Bora Carlyle

Charlie Vanhorn came to Gaetz district with his parents and brother William and sisters Eva Reta and Winnie. They settled on a homestead one mile west and a quarter mile south of the present location of Gaetz school. He began working as an elevator agent and worked in many locations. While working in Monitor he married Charlotte Boles of the Gaetz district, who was also one of the first class in Gaetz school

Charlottie had come from Oregon, U.S.A with her parents in 1910 and lived on their homestead one mile west of Gaetz school. During their stay at Monitor their first child, Gladys, was born in 1918. They spent three years at Kootuk the C P R siding south of Eckville, later moving to a home one mile west of Gaetz school Here two more daughters were born Jessie on December 26, 1924 and Laurine on December 27, [illegible]

Their home burned and they decided to start farming on their own, buying a quarter section from Ressers, a half mile father west. Here they broke more land, farming with horses. They built a new barn in 1937 and raised hogs cattle chickens, and shipped cream for many years

Their daughter Gladys passed away in June of 1933 and is buried in the Gaetz cemetery On August 11, 1942 a son, Howard, was born. All of their children attended Gaetz school

Charlie was a school trustee for Gaetz school for many years and was also a member of the Evergreen Hall Board. When orchestras were brought in for special dances, the members of the band would board with the Vanhorns Charlottie was an excellent cook and they enjoyed their stay with the Vanhorns

Joe was in the air force and when he returned at the end of World War II they bought the old Moldet place. Here they had two sons, Leonard and David. They sold their farm and moved to Whitehorse in 1953. Here they had two daughters, Hope and Faith. They were later divorced and Jessie and the girls moved to British Columbia. David moved down a short while later and is married and lives in Chilliwack Leonard still lives in Whitehorse Jessie married John Edgar in 1974 and lives on the King George Highway in Surrey, B.C

Laurine married Alfred (Bud) McNeil in November They farmed Bud's father's farm until 1951, then sold out and moved to Whitehorse, Yukon

VICK, EDGAR AND MARIE

Robert Edgar Vick was born June 3, 1881 in Uley, Gloucester, England. At the age of seven he moved with his family to South Wales where his father was Head Carpenter for Lord Llangat tock on the Hendric estate. Here Edgar appren ticed to the carpentry trade, later being ap pointed house carpenter. He worked as a carpenter for C. S. Rolls and Company. Charles Rolls was the son of Lord Llangattock. He also did a large amount of body work for modern cars the Rolls-Royce. During the years between 1904 and 1910 he worked at sea as ships' carpenter.

In April of 1910 he sailed for Canada, working for a short period in Manitoba. Homesteads were available in Alberta at $10 per quarter section, providing the homesteader would clear a certain amount of land, raise so much stock and stay at least six months of each year for three years on his claim. He could then receive title to the quarter. He took up a homestead on S.W. 9-37-4 W5, ten and one-half miles south of the W throw corner. He also worked for four years for Calgary Power on the Seebe Dam as a carpenter.

In 1915 he went to England and joined the British army, serving in France, Iran and Arabia as Royal Engineer. In February 1919 he returned to his homestead and took up a second homestead on S.E. 9-37-4-W5. Morley Beaver Chief Walking Eagle was a life long friend, having prospected for oil in the west. This chief was the Indian who forecast our winter weather pattern so well until his death.

In January 1925 Edgar married Marie Louise Lecerf. She was born October 23, 1894 to Jules and Louise Lecerf in Lille, France. In 1902 the family arrived in Canada and lived in Lille, Bank and Blairmore, Alberta. Just after they arrived the tragic Frank slide took place. The family were at Lille and could hear it plainly. They went back to France in 1904, but returned to Alberta in 1906 and homesteaded the S.W. 24-36-4 W5 in the Raven district, travelling from Innisfail by ox team. Marie Vick was a seamstress before her marriage. She was a member of the New Hill Ladies' Club until she moved in 1956 to make her home in Sylvan Lake. She is a member of the Catholic Women's League and a member of the Auxiliaries. Edgar Vick passed away August 12, 1952.

Robert, who married Audrey Wells of Red Deer in 1956, lives on the family farm. He built a home on the Southwest quarter and now owns all of section nine. They have seven children, Michael, Jolene, Pat, Gwen, David, Ken and Danny.

WOOF, WILLIAM

William Woof was born at Gill Ferbank, Yorkshire on February 24, 1874, one of nine children born to Richard and Alice Nelson Woof. Richard's great grandfather had come from Norway and settled in England. William Woof's mother, Alice, was Scandinavian, too.

In 1900 he came to the United States to Iowa but the lure of homestead and to the Canadian west brought him to Calgary in the spring of 1907. He walked to Red Deer and stayed overnight at the old immigration hall where he found a way to go with a land locator in a party that included Jack and Andy Murdock and Alex Stewart of whom you will read elsewhere in this book. They were to inspect land across the Medicine River in the present Diamond Valley district. It was not yet surveyed so homesteads couldn't be recorded but assurance was given that if a house or shack were built on the land selected it would be their homestead as soon as the survey was completed. Bill Woof selected SW 2-29-3 W5 and walked back into Red Deer to get a job to pay for lumber for his shack. He also worked at breaking land with oxen, first on the George W. Smith farm southwest of town.

Back at the homestead Louis Olson, who had homesteaded on section 10, usually went by team and wagon to get their mail at the Markerville post office and utilized these trips to obtain their meat supply in the form of prairie chicken. Being a crack shot Bill Woof was usually commissioned to do the shooting for the party.

In 1905 he went to British Columbia and spent a lot of time working there but had to get back to Alberta to claim his homestead. His first crop of 15 acres yielded 25 bushels to the acre. Lacking horses or oxen he made a deal with Oswald Forhan to have the use of his team of oxen in consideration of one day's work for Mr. Forhan for every day the oxen were used. Later he traded Gus Dahlgren a wagon for a team of oxen and he bought two other oxen at a sale east of Evarts. Breaking and discing with them became his main source of income, breaking as much as three acres a day. His was one of five ox teams breaking land on section 31 for Donald Smith – but he sold his oxen after that.

Then he got another contract to clear and break 40 acres for Sam Smith on land adjoining the Diamond Valley school. For this he bought three huge oxen, a plow and a wagon for $325 from Alex Thompson of Lesliеville — Alex Thompson and George Bailey were Lesliеville's earliest settlers (1903). After completing the contract he broke 12 acres for Sam Bralon on section 9 and the amount of the purchase price was fully recovered when he sold the oxen to a cattle buyer.

In 1912 he was married at Evarts to Mary Eva Foster who was born at Seberem, Cumberland, England in 1887 and came to Lacombe district in 1911. In 1913 Bill Woof did more breaking at Ferrier west of Rocky Mountain House with three oxen and a Cockshutt sulky plow he bought from Ed Mannerfeldt. With these he had to cross the Saskatchewan river west of Rocky Mountain House by ferry. At this job, he worked three three-hour shifts with an hours rest in between as the weather was hot and sultry. The current rate for breaking at that time was $10 per acre.

By now they had a family of two sons Richard born in August 1913 and Robert Foster born in 1918. They decided to leave the homestead and in 1921 they moved to Kelowna B.C. A daughter Rooney Alice was born to them in September 1922.

After varied experiences in British Columbia they returned to Alberta and purchased a farm in the Poplar Ridge district, five miles west of Red Deer, together with machinery and cattle onto which he moved in 1923. Later he purchased some school land and when his sons were able to farm on their own they obtained land on section 17.

The year 1951 was one of tragedy. On April 8 Mrs. Woof, who had been an active community worker and took a keen interest in local affairs died at the age of 63. On December 25 death claimed the younger son Robert at the age of 33. The elder son Richard moved to Ohaton, Alberta and Bill took over his son's land. So much land required a tractor and although all his experience had been with oxen and horses, he gamely went ahead at 80 years of age to master the knack of operating a tractor, and he kept on at farming over a span of almost 10 years.

In 1963 he retired, eventually selling his land to Bob Edgar. In 1967 he moved in to Red Deer where he enjoyed keeping house for himself and, having an active mind, took an interest in public and political affairs and regularly attended meetings of the Central Alberta Old Timers' Association.

His son Richard and his wife Pauline are farming at Ohaton. They have two sons. Billy who is married to Betty Benz of Caroline. Bill works for Kipp Scott in Red Deer. Their second son, Eddie is married to Simone Correveau and they live at Stoney Plain.

Rooney Alice was married to George Christian who was engaged in the electronics business in Vancouver, B.C. and they had four daughters; Jean (Mrs. Jerry Keeley) of Edmonton, Shirley (Mrs. Lloyd Hamilton), Marie (Mrs. Joe Langevin) and Jerry Ann (Mrs. N. Hansen) all of Red Deer. Rooney passed away June 20, 1973.

Mrs. William Woof and her son Robert Foster are both buried in the Red Deer cemetery. Bill Woof passed away in September, 1969.

The original homestead in the Diamond valley district was owned by John Craig and was recently purchased by Laurence Murphy.

BARDENHAGEN, CARSON AND GUNHILD

Before coming to Lacombe, Carson and Gunhild Bardenhagen farmed in Michigan, near the Great Lakes, with their family of nine children, namely Carson, Lena, Jack, Eric Sena, Henry (Hank), Ole, Fred and Anna.

When they decided to come to Canada, Carson, Frank Prause (a close friend) and Carson Jr. came first to find a place to live. They bought a boarding house in Lacombe, then sent for the rest of the family.

[illegible] seen a gopher so, of course, it was quite a novelty when the train stopped on the prairie to get out and chase after gophers. Eric almost got too far before he realized the train was moving on and he really had to run just managing to catch the last car as it went by.

In 1907, they sold the boarding house and filed on a homestead, site unseen, in the Gilby area. This was the NW 18-40-R-W5. When they drove their team and buggy out to have a look at their new farm they found most of it under water. They built a small log cabin in which they lived while they were building the big frame house with a rock foundation.

The oldest boy, Carson, worked at various jobs, eventually married Anna Maddox and with their only child, a daughter, Evelyn, finally settled in the Gilby area where they farmed for many years before retiring to Eckville where they lived until their passing.

Daughter, Lena, married Ben Hicks and made Bentley her home.

Jack was an accomplished pool player and won many tournaments. He became a barber and made his home in North Dakota, where he married a school teacher Bertha Bjorke.

Henry, his wife Annie, and their children Elva, Elmer and Francis (Pommie) lived in Eckville for a few years. Hank worked in the Eckville Hotel as a bartender.

Sena married Fred Kraft and Eric married Linda Matteus. Ole married Helen Johnson.

Fred started his education in a country school near Lacombe and continued it in the Medicine Valley school when his folks moved to the homestead. While still in Lacombe, his dad invested a brush cutter, pulled by a team of oxen and later by horses and went around cutting brush for the settlers. Fred and Ole followed the cutter throwing the brush into long windrows which later were burned.

Working with oxen was very slow. The only time the oxen got any speed on was during fly time when they would throw up their tails and take off at full speed for the nearest shelter, with whatever they happened to be hitched to.

Fred left the farm when still in his teens and went to work as a cowboy on the Anchor P (P) [illegible]ch in Southern Alberta. There he learned to handle horses so when he came back home he broke many horses for the neighbors, some to harness and some to ride. He also worked on a farm in Cayley for a Mr. Keller. When his father passed away in 1923, Fred came home and took over the farm. He was always interested in sports and played in the Gilby baseball team as well as Eckville. In foot racing he was seldom beaten. Singing was another of Fred's favorite pastimes and he always helped out with the entertainment at all the social functions. He was [illegible] riding to them on his favorite pony Diamon[illegible].

In 1933, he married Mary Raabis and two years later their son, Arthur, was born. Maxine came along nearly two years after that.

Work was hard, as they had no modern conveniences and money was scarce but it was fun working together whether out in the field cutting grain and stooking or at home feeding pigs and chickens and milking cows. The first year the laundry was done in a tub of water on a scrub board, with home-made soap. The white clothes were then boiled and, believe me, they were white when done. We needed no bleaches.

When Fred presented his wife with her first manually operated washing machine. Mary was really happy. No more back-ache from bending long hours over the scrub-board and no more raw fingers. And it even had a hand wringer on it. A few years later this was replaced with a machine which was operated by a gas motor and washing clothes was a breeze from then on.

In 1945 the second son, Dennis, was born and a year and half later a daughter, Gail. When Gail was about six years old. Fred and Mary sold the farm to their new neighbors, Roy and Bernice Leach, and moved into Eckville where Fred went to work as janitor and maintenance man in the Eckville Hotel then under the management of Bill and Bertha Marsh. Mary was offered the job of cooking in the Co-op lunch counter and remained there for fifteen years before retiring. Fred worked in the hotel for about ten years when, due to his health, he was forced to give it up. Fred passed away suddenly in November 1975, and was buried in the Gilby Cemetery.

Mary then went to work in the Manor House in Eckville which opened for business in February 1976, but retired about a year and a half later.

Their son, Arthur, went to the Estonian school until it was closed when all the children were bussed to Eckville. When he graduated, he went to work in the Eckville creamery as bookkeeper but eventually ended up as manager of the butcher shop in the Co-op store. He married Shirley Gant and to this union four children were born: Conley, Jody and the twins, Tracey and Troy. At present, Arthur is a meat cutter at Maxine married Paul Stephenson and had five children: Charlene, Ricky, Randy deceased, Teresa and Michael. They are at present living in Red Deer.

Dennis is living in Veteran.

Gail married Ron Bruns and lived for a time in Fort St. John, then Smithers and finally moved back to Eckville, though Ron is still flying in Northern B.C.

JIM AND JOHANNAH BLADES AT THE GILBY STORE—by Jim and Johannah Blades

We bought the store in June, 1965 and as we became acquainted with the people of the community we enjoyed meeting them and doing business with them. We lived there for nine years, selling out in June 1974. We regretted leaving the community, but had to get, because of Mr. Blades' health.

DEKKER, JOHN AND SUSANNA

Mr. and Mrs. John Dekker came to the Estonian district in 1905 from their home near the line between North and South Dakota.

Mr. Dekker and four sons arrived in mid summer looking for land. Mr. Dekker, to the best of my knowledge, filed on 14-40-3-W5. Two of his sons, Henry and Edward, found land to their liking in the Lesheville district and Christian filed on a quarter section five miles west of where Gilby store is today.

Father and sons then returned to the Dakotas and brought back their cattle, chickens and various farm implements and tools needed to bring their land into production.

Mrs. Dekker and their two daughters, Susanna and Annie, arrived in Lacombe in December of the same year. One son, John, stayed in the United States to finish his education.

Soon after their arrival, they suffered the loss of their son, Christian. He died of pneumonia. There was very little medical help available and very few drugs around to combat that ailment in those days. Christian was buried in the Bentley Cemetery, with Mr. Layton officiating, on Christmas Day 1905.

The winter of 1905 - 1906 was certainly a long cold and difficult one for the Dekker family. They certainly appreciated and never forgot the kindness of the other pioneers living around them.

Mr. Dekker and son, Edward, helped build the Estonian School and to the best of Susanna's memory a Mr. George Martin was the first teacher. Both Susanna and Annie attended this school.

The Dekker family left the Estonian district in 1915 and moved to Christian's homestead in the Medicine Valley district. They stayed only a short while and then, with the exception of Susanna, moved back to the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Dekker and Annie left first, in 1916, and the sons left soon after.

Susanna Dekker married Marlee Gant, a widower with one child, in 1916. They lived on the Gant homestead which was four and one half miles west of the Gilby store. While on this farm, one daughter was born and a few months later their house and barn went up in flames. They escaped the flames and saved only a few clothes and a small lamp. People smiled at them for carrying a lamp into the flame lit night, but Susanna has often said "That little lamp was the only light in the darkness for them for quite awhile". The loss of warm buildings was a dreadful hardship in those early years.

Susanna, her husband, and the two small girls hen moved on to the Christian Dekker homestead which they had purchased when the Dekker family left in 1918. Four sons and two more daughters were born on this farm. Susanna and Marlee lived on this place until 1947. They bought a rooming house in Red Deer and lived there for fourteen years after which time they retired to a home in Blackfalds for eleven years. They both entered Valley Park Manor in Red Deer in 1972. One son, Jessie John, passed away in 1923.

Susanna and Marlee celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary on May 12, 1976, at Valley Park Manor with many of their family and friends around them. It was a very happy occa-

Marlee Gant passed away in July, 1976, at the age of 96 years. Susanna still resides in the Manor where she has made many friends. She still loves to reminisce about the hardships and happiness of homestead days.

ESTONIAN DISTRICT SEWING CIRCLES — by Audrey Poote

It was in the winter of 1937 that Aune Parkkari made the suggestion to a few neighbor ladies gathered at a "wood sawing" that we meet at one of our homes every two weeks. The idea appealed to us as times were hard and there was very little in the way of entertainment in the community. Since we were mostly busy mothers with small children, we took patching, knitting etc. along so we would not feel our time was be-

The first meeting was at Irene Palm's with about half a dozen ladies present. We decided at that time to have two rules: one was that we use first names and the other — no gossiping. Perhaps it is because of the latter rule that we have all got on so well!

I believe that the second meeting was at Hulda Westers. A group of us drove up there with a team and sleigh, quite unaware that Mary Psika was walking a short distance behind us. She arrived about an hour later, having walked the whole distance of about five miles. Those were the days when men were men — or rather when women were women! I suspect that most of us would rather miss a meeting than to walk five miles to attend, but it goes to show what fellowship meant to us in those days.

Ethel Mathews was a member of our group. She was a great walker. She walked to most of the meetings during those first years and was later joined by Lila Kingsep. Ethel had a great appetite, but no figure problems — perhaps because of the vast amount of exercise that she got. No more circles were held that year.

Since then we have had sewing circles every year with the exception of one when, for some reason, we never got them started. During the winter of 1976-1977 there were no meetings either. It seemed as though the ladies were becoming involved in so many activities — curl-ing, and the very successful Handicraft Guild in Eckville to mention only two — that there was no time available for the sewing circle.

During the forty years there have been many changes in the community. Estonian school, where our children got most of their education, is gone. We have bade farewell to old neighbors and have welcomed new ones. Our homes have been touched by births, deaths, and marriages. We have shared laughter and tears, and still the

Sewing Circle met, and we are closer friends because of our association through the Circle

We have had contests, exchanged recipes and during one winter we took a first aid course under the able guidance of Edith Brooker We also have spent time cutting mat rags, making baby quilts, and carding wool

Because we always took our sewing along, we just started calling our meetings the "Sewing Circle" but the sight of Aune's little truck with cab and back filled to capacity and all of us talking and laughing started some of our more imaginative husands referring to our meetings as "hen parties."

There must have been a strong bond of friendship formed, as we have travelled to Rimbey Condor, and Sylvan Lake to meet at the homes of members who have moved away from our district Looking back, I can count close to fifty ladies who attended these meetings throughout the years, and those who have moved away are scattered from Fort Saskatchewan to Nebraska, U S.A

ESTONIAN SCHOOL NO. 1788

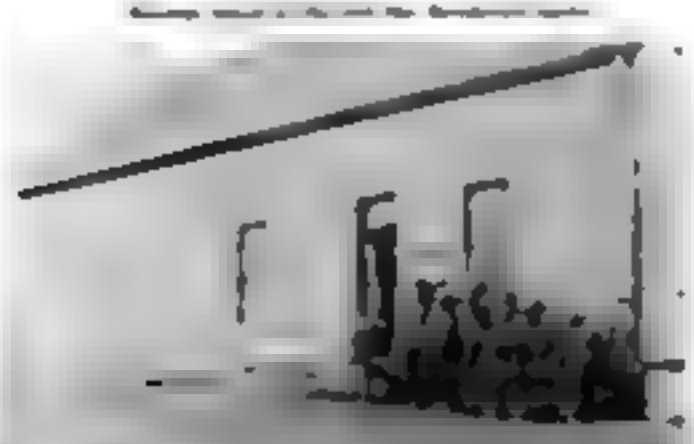
At the turn of the century immigrants from Europe poured into Canada. Many made the decision to locate north of Eckville in Medicine Valley as it is now called Estonians primarily a few Finnish, and a couple of Scandinavians settled in what became in the next decade, the Estonian School District Only a few of these immigrants spoke a bit of English and to these, the non-English speaking turned for interpretation of Canadian laws. Realizing the necessity of learning the national tongue of Canada they realized that it was necessary to build schools, halls etc and to this end community spirit in the fullest was displayed

In their urgency to progress, a suitable site for a school was selected, as centrally located as possible. Rough boundaries were drafted and the Estonian School District emerged in 1910. The board members were local farmers who set a minimum mill rate, collected taxes, hired the teacher and kept a supply of wood at the school The Estonian School site was located on an acreage in the north-east corner of 10-40-3-W Carl Langer's property



In an account written by Mrs Anna Tipman an early teacher at the Estonian School, the school, built in 1910 from lumber hauled by local pioneers from mills many miles away, is described in detail. This building served the hundreds of pupils exceedingly well for the next 35 years at which time progressive-minded farmers considered it appropriate to provide a modern facility

By 1945 school affairs were administered by the Rocky Mountain School Division. Our council representative, John Hillman of Evarts, was approached and his cooperation was readily obtained to proceed with the construction of a new school building. The Division would provide materials, a chief carpenter (Karl Soderlund, assisted by Mike Rauman), but volunteer help from farmers would be necessary to assist in the building project

the year 1945

There was no modern gymnasium in those days. Exercise so vital to good health, was obtained by walking or riding great distances to school Even extremely harsh winters did not deter excellent attendance. There was no indoor washroom, but two toilets in far corners of the schoolyard served the purpose adequately. There were no organized games, discipline was strictly enforced, although many of the students were much bigger and taller than the teacher. The language barrier among children was quickly negated, although the accent of their national language remained. Education was of primary importance to everyone attending the rural

Of great interest, one teacher, Mr. Duncan Layton, age 94, a resident of Valley Park Manor in Red Deer, when visited, recounted his memories of the year 1914-1915 when he was a teacher at the Estonian School. He had a class of 52 children, grades I to VIII. He lived in a small shack a mile north of the school on the Gary Pederson land, presently the Paul Langer farm.

In conversation with Mrs. Ena Kinna of Sylvan Lake she revealed her husband, Ernest, acquired his first "tailored" suit of clothes in his nine years of life — this being tailored by Mrs. Layton's capable hands — the suit in red, a Santa Claus suit, for the Christmas program. The Andrew School teacher, Mr. Layton's sister-in-law, joined her school with the Estonian for the summer picnic. Of great pride to Mr. Layton was the fact that six of his early students became professionals, one even became a doctor. The six he mentioned were Ole (Agnes) Kingsep, August Matthews, Anna Posti (Tipman), Otto Kingsep, Salme Raabis and Leyda Sestrap.

Olga Posti (Mrs. Alex Mottus) served as janitor for a time. Salary? Twenty-five cents per day — when she could collect. The trustees considered "women were to work for nothing." When a lady teacher was at the school the boys obliged, whenever possible, in starting the fire.

Early students were the Postis, Langers, Matthews, Moros, Raabis', Piboojas, Moos, Deckers, Stenvigs, Langfords, Woorls, Heikkilas.

The intellectuals of the community in the early years were the teachers. They were respected, treated with courtesy and admiration. Fortunately a full slate of teachers was made available for this narrative. I shall try to name them in the order of the earliest to the latest, with the comment that, due to the rigors of homestead life, males predominated in the list. The list follows: Messers. Layton, Smith, Logan, Egen, J. M. McDonald, Priestly, Hughes, August Matthews, Lowry, Irwin, Little. Lady teachers were: Minnie Kinna, Helen Christie, Anna Posti, Miss Gudmanson, Miss Benedictson.

In the 1930's to 1940's Messrs. Edward Tipman, George Findlay and Ansley taught. Then lady teachers followed — Barbara Athey, Miss Rogers, Miss Aarsby, Barker, Jean Kenworthy, Ruth Wright, Isabel Lesher, Mrs. Lucy Nelson, Elma Jackson and Mrs. Hanson.

Parents recognized the lack of musical appreciation in the school, so volunteers scoured the district with raffle tickets to raise money for the gramophone and a piano. The Gilbertson family owned a lovely piano. They agreed to sell it to the Estonian School for one hundred dollars with the provision that it remain for the sole use of the Estonian community forever. Unfortunately, upon dismantling the contents of the new school before transporting it to Eckville, the piano disappeared. This was a great loss to the community, as it was a remembrance of the Gilbertson family, a pioneer family who remained with us for a long time.

The Rocky Mountain School Division, at a crucial point in attendance (55 pupils and one teacher in charge) transferred grades seven and eight to Eckville, providing transportation for them by bus. In promoting centralization as the new approach to modernizing education, involving bussing, a teacher per grade, indoor physical education, etc., the Estonian School — the ultimate community project — was hauled to Eckville where it serves to this day as a Home Economics room. Mr. Hillman took careful charge of all records, turning them over to the County of Lacombe.

In 1961 Lacombe became County No. 14 and assumed the direction of education and municipal affairs within the confi[illegible] enlarged boundary and the new title "Lacombe No. 14." In the transfer all records of the early history of the Estonian School District were destroyed. Only memories of the few remaining senior citizens can supply details of those early years.

The original site of the Estonian School reverted to the Langer Brothers property. Of particular interest and pride, the original Estonian School District has produced a great number of professionals among the pupils of the 1940's and 1950's. A total of 68 years of University plus technical graduates, is presumed to be a record for a rural Alberta district.

Information of pranks at school, even in those early years is gradually leaking out. Playing hookey was not unusual — boys not especially academic took a day off now and then, returning home at the usual time in the evening. Two lads even built a raft, stored eggs from the henhouse and other obtainable food aboard and shoved off down Medicine River for points south, only to get fouled up in a fish net strung across the river, upset, and lost all of their supplies — adventure.

The girls in summer often took their lunch to eat outside the schoolyard to a creek bank in the shade of trees. One day the boys found a snake, cut it into pieces, and chased the girls at maximum speed, while yelling and screaming, toward the school.

Another episode netted a young scholar a strapping. The girls made a ball of rag strips with which to play Anti-I-Over. This little boy caught the ball and ran, victorious, to the baseball diamond. The girls tattled and the teacher ordered he boy inside. Not understanding English, he answered Yes and No" in turn He says he must have said "yes" at the wrong time, as he got a sound strapping

THE GILBERTSONS

Mr Martin Nathan Gilbertson entered the United States from Norway with his parents, as a very young child. They settled in Minot, North Dakota, where he received his early education He later entered a college where he studied architecture and accounting To help finance his education he taught English to new immigrants in the same school in which he took his training and many stories were told of his experiences He used different poems to teach the "TH sound, poems in which, in later years, are recalled as having been an amusement to his then young family. On behalf of Martin and for the benefit of the new immigrants of today, I enter one particular poem which remains with me still. It will be added as a footnote to this history

Martin later moved to Duluth, Minnesota, where he operated a building contracting business. In 1901 he met and married Bertha White, who was born in Northwood, Iowa and who, for some time, operated a dress-making business with one of her three sisters

In 1903 they came to Canada and Martin his young wife Bertha and infant daughter named Myrtle arrived in Alberta They settled in Red Deer where they planned to start a butcher shop or some form of a merchandising business, but after inquiring about and they decided to buy a half section seven miles north of Erkville

The first dwelling was built in the large grove at the north end of the homestead, where they lived about two years During that time a second daughter, Cora, was born to them

About that time Martin's father and brother Olaf arrived from Minnesota and filed on a homestead joining Martin's to the north, which is now owned by Mr and Mrs. Paul Langer Martin and Olaf's father (his first name I cannot recall) lived there until his death and his remains were buried in the Sunset cemetery

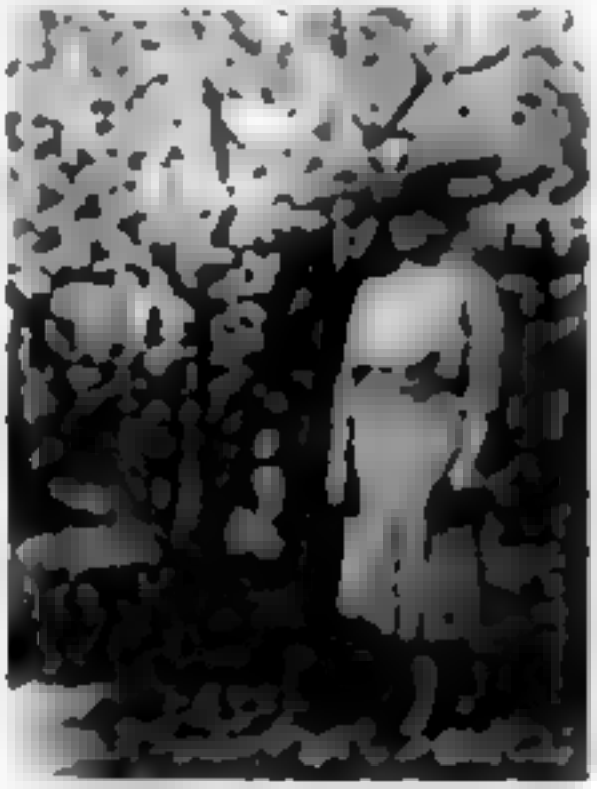
Martin and Olaf built the Gilby store and Olaf operated it as a grocery store for a few years Thus the Gilby store and district is named after the Gilbertson family

When the homestead was cleared enough to make the claim valid Mr and Mrs. Gilbertson moved to Everett, Washington, U.S.A. where Mr Gilbertson again engaged in the contracting business and also worked as a bookkeeper for the Hyde Wholesale Company In 1910 they moved to Pitt Lake where they started a general store which they operated well into the First Great War period. Mr Gilbertson was given a choice between leaving his wife and family which, by now, included twin daughters, Pearl and Ruby to join the army or return to Canada to the homestead.

Since Mrs Gilbertson was suffering from asthma in a very severe way and the coast climate was unsuitable for her, they decided to return to Alberta to resume the improving of the homestead

They returned to Alberta in the latter part of 1917 They lived with Olaf Gilbertson until a small frame house was built across the road from the Estonian hall They later built a more permanent home where they lived for about 15 years. Martin worked hard to organize the farmers in plans of co-operation to protect farmers, as a whole, and improve the market price of farm produce He organized the hog pool, and helped to establish the wheat pool. He valued the help of fine people such as Alf Thubron and Alfred Haarstad

Mr and Mrs. Gilbertson sold the farm in the year of 1942, to Mr and Mrs. Arnold Madisen and retired at Salmon Arm, B.C. They bought a comfortable home looking over Shuswap Lake where they enjoyed growing different varieties of fruit and berries



Martin Gilbertson passed away in Kamloops in 1946, at the age of 74 years. His body was returned to Salmon Arm for burial.

Mrs. Gilbertson lived with her daughter Myrtle McClurg at Salmon Arm, B.C., and later moved to Vernon, where she passed away in 1971 at the age of 95 years. Her body was returned to Salmon Arm and placed to rest in the Mount Ida Cemetery beside that of her beloved husband Footnote

A lasting tribute could be allowed Mr Martin Gilbertson for his tireless efforts to assist new immigrants in the mastering of the English language, for the poem which follows is one of which he used 55 years ago, and which may be of benefit to new immigrants of today

To the composer "because I do not know his name I apologize

Theofulus, the unsuccessful thistle sifter
Who sifted a sieve full of unsifted thistles
Thrust three thousand thistles
Through the thick of the thumb
See then that thou when thou sift a sieve
Full of unsifted thistles
Thrust not three thousand thistles
Through the thick of thy thumb

GILBY CEMETERY

In 1903 many pioneers homesteaded north of Eckville Along with hardships of daily toil there occurred the death of a neighbor or relative. In a new country a cemetery was often a distance away—and it became apparent a site for a cemetery was a necessity in the vicinity One such was located on the Chas. Rankin farm NE 17-40-3-W5 and was named the Gilby Cemetery and registered in 1903

The first burial was Christopher Kingsep (father of Henry Kingsep Only some seven eight burials took place there. The cemetery has fallen into disrepair Then the Gilby Kalmia cemetery originated and was used exclusively

GILBY HALL

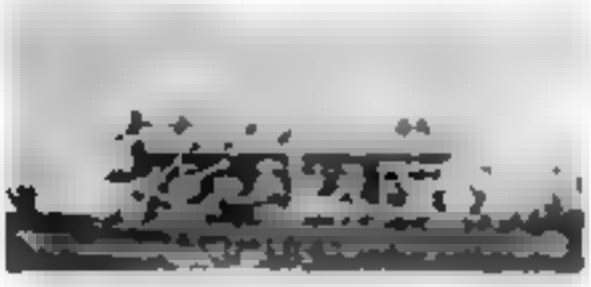
The Gilby U F A who had been meeting in the hall above the store owned by Shorrock Bros decided to build a community hall The first committee consisted of Frank Lawton president Oscar Thubron vice-president and possibly Hugo Mo'lus as chairman

Land was donated by Oscar Thubron. A fee of one dollar was paid to make it legal. Work started in the spring of 1921 with volunteer labour By July it was finished in time for the pic nic and dance

The only wedding ceremony and first wedding dance was for Henry Pano and Salme [illegible]



A piano was bought from Mrs. Hobson of Leedale Mr and Mrs. Crane donated a colt to be raffled She also played the piano in 1921

The hall was heated by two wood-burning heaters that usually smoked. The Thubrons were very faithful all through the years to start fires

Music was supplied by Carl Koots' violin and Mrs. Thubron on the piano. They got $5 each later. Mrs Gordon Jacobs, whose family had taken over the store, also played. At one time the Burr Bros. played Hawaiian guitars

About 1923, Matthew Bros. showed silent films

In 1927 a kitchen and ladies' coat room was built, a nice help for the ladies

The men paid 50 cent admission. Ladies were free but were expected to bring lunch which was free until later years. A box or weight social was held to raise funds

The hall has been used for Sunday School and church services, funerals, 4-H gatherings political meetings anniversaries bridal showers, wedding dances and farewell parties

Power was put in in 1951, a new floor the same year

It had been Mrs Laura (Westergard) Whidden's wish that the hall be reshingled and painted in 1971 After she passed away, Mr Whidden arranged to have it done. He also supplied paint for the inside and had the ceiling painted. The propane furnace was installed in 1972, replaced by gas overhead heaters in 1976. Then the present board worked very hard improving the inside, putting carpet on the benches, making moveable small round tables so handy for any occasion.

Cabarets are held twice a year and a Christmas program and treats each year.

GILBY (KALMU) CEMETERY

Pioneers at the turn of the century had many problems to contend with. Not only did they enter a new country to find a new locality in which to settle, to build a home and provide a living, but they had to provide a resting place for those who did not survive. In the Gilby district, pioneers of Estonian origin met on June 13, 1914 and organized the Kalmu Cemetery Company with John Turner as president, correspondent Fritz Kinna, and Mike Sestrap as treasurer.

Those present at the organization were John Henry and John Kinna, Paul and Karl Langer, Mike Sestrap, P. Perler, A. Puhoja and Fritz Kinna.

John Turner donated the present acreage from his land for the cemetery. For finances, the meeting agreed to sell 60 shares at $8 per share for a plot. If anyone was unable to pay for the desired plot a note for 30 days was to be accepted. Stipulations were that all graves were to be mounded, a cross erected and the plot to be kept in a tidy condition.

Oscar Mottus agreed to build and erect a huge cross, 10 feet high, painted black, to be placed centrally. This cross survived for many years. Mr. Mottus received $3.50 for his efforts.

Mart Sestrap was asked to build and erect a tool box, six by three by two, painted, with hinged lid and provided with a lock. For this he received $2. He also was asked to provide 100 tamarack stakes for markers.

Dan Clausen succeeded Mike Sestrap as treasurer for a salary of $5 per year plus 50 cents for each plot issued.

The salary in 1930 was increased to $10 plus $1 for each plot. At present this has increased to $25 plus $10 for each plot issued. Volunteers for the past years have held a clean-up day every year with good results, but markers on all graves could enhance the appearance. A few years ago a pump was installed and with good fortune the Alberta Government gave us a grant towards improvements. Again with volunteer effort, a new fence was erected, white posts with green wire, two new gates and finally, a large sign — Gilby (Kalmu) Cemetery. At a meeting it was decided that the cemetery be named "Gilby (Kalmu)" to retain the original name. Incidentally, Kalmu is a grave, a "resting place" in Estonian, so it was decided to retain this in the sign, as Estonians organized the cemetery (mara).

By the end of 1977, 231 bodies have been interred in the Gilby (Kalmu) Cemetery. Mrs. Perler was the first pioneer to be buried there.

The present secretary is Walter Andrew.

GILBY LADIES' CLUB

The first meeting of what was to become the Gilby Ladies' Club was held at the home of Mrs. Frank (Ava) McTighe-Saunders during the winter months of 1938 (may have been 1939). At this time it was a get-together for a few hands of cards and a social afternoon, ending with a simple lunch and coffee. Ladies present were the hostess, Mrs. McTighe, Mrs. Tim (Ethel) Sambrook, Mrs. Bill (Alice) Andrew, Mrs. Oscar (Agnes) Thubron, Mrs. Frank (Clara) Andrew, Mrs. Clarence (Kathy) Ferguson, Mrs. H. (Bea) Carroll and Mrs. Sid Jeffrey. Meetings were held in the homes of the ladies with lunch provided by the hostess.

As no records were kept, it is impossible to state exactly when the Club was formed, but it is believed to have been 1940. It was felt that more could be accomplished as a Club.

Over the years, the majority of the ladies in the district became members, each contributing in her own way to the success of the Club. Most held office in some capacity or served on committees. Meetings were held alphabetically from homes and most brought their pre-school children which resulted in a very lively afternoon, as there were from 18 to 20 members. As no snowplowing was done in the winter, many of the men drove their wives using sleighs and horses, especially when roads were drifted or blocked. This changed as time went on.

After the business meeting, card tables were set up and the remainder of the afternoon was spent playing whist and visiting. Lunch was served by the hostess to end a pleasant afternoon.

Many worthwhile causes were supported over the years. Funds were raised by various means — holding dances, serving lunches at farm sales and field days, catering to wedding receptions, bazaars, raffles, amateur nights and dances, members teas, etc.

Some of the causes that were aided annually were: The Red Cross, Cancer Fund, Easter Seals Fund, T.B. Christmas Seals, Heart Fund, Crippled Children's Fund, Canadian March of Dimes (Polio Fund). Contributions were also sent to Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, Springhill Disaster Fund and European Flood Fund.

Benefits were sometimes held for unfortunate ones in the area, including a Benefit Dance for the Eckville Arena Fund.

In 1945, funds were raised to furnish a ward in the new local hospital. Contributions were continued over the years and hospital sewing was done from time to time.

When children were being bussed to Eckville resulting in the closing of the Andrews' School, the Club organized and financed the Annual Christmas Party held in the Gilby Hall.

Gilby Ladies Club about 1954

In September 1954 the Charter Members of the Club were honored at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. John (Connie Huseby Each of the eight ladies received a corsage and an honorary membership. Business was dispensed with and everyone enjoyed a social afternoon

In 1955 a Jubilee float was entered in Eckville s first parade

Many enjoyable events were held by the Club and their families. Perhaps, the most enjoyed was the Annual Picnic in July usually held at Gull Lake, but also at Crimson Lake and one year at Gilby's picnic area

Occasionally a turkey supper was held at a member's home Whist tournaments were organized for some years with the play-offs held in Gilby Hall.

Members and families were remembered with a gift when ill or in hospital, for special anniversaries, at housewarmings, farewells, etc Flowers were also sent to a bereaved family of the Club

The last meeting was held November 13, 1969 at the home of Mrs. Pryce (Jessie) Andrew with eight members present At this time, it was decided to disband as a Club. Members were becoming so involved with their children's activities in town, they found it difficult to attend meetings and participate in Club projects

The remaining funds were contributed to the Eckville Arena Fund

And so it ended, again with eight ladies, a mile north from where it began, twenty-five years later A quarter century of pleasant association with ladies of the district

GILBY STORE

Mike Seatrap homesteaded the SW 6-41-3 W5 While he was away working his shack burnt He was known to have remarked later that the fire was the best thing that ever happened to him as that was when he decided to build a store at Gilby in 1910. The store was 80' long, had a hall above and a full basement below The hall was used as a social centre and meeting place for the people of the surrounding area

All bare necessities were to be had at the store, including yard goods. Mike was a tailor by trade and made overalls to sell. Butter and eggs were often taken in trade for supplies

Gus and Mike Seatrap

Before long, Mike's brother, Gus, who had homesteaded the NE 6-41-3-W5 came to help him at the store

About 1912, the post office which had been "Medicine Valley" operated by E. T Withers on SW 2-40-3-W5 was changed to "Gilby" and was situated in the store. The post office provided many services, one of them being the registering of births John Kemlla mail carrier hauled the mail by covered wagon from Eckville. Folks would come to Gilby to visit and chat for hours

while waiting for the mail to come and be sorted

In 1915, Mike Seatrap sold to Shorrock Bros who sold to Henry Jacobs in 1922. Henry Jacobs sold to Frank Tarrabain about 1929. The old store burnt in December, 1930. Among valuables destroyed were the Gilby-Kalmia cemetery records. The store was rebuilt, about 1937, by Hamilton and Hauptman.

Histories of the different owners of the store are found in this book.

Through the years Gilby store has been a very valuable asset to the community. The present owners are Leo and Kathryn Robins. Their children are Jackie age five, Heather age three and one-half and Cindy age six months.

GILBY SUNDAY SCHOOL – by Phyllis Andrew

Years ago a group of devoted people from Bentley saw the need for a Sunday School in this area. Gilby Hall was chosen as the centre and on October 4, 1953 Mr. Grant Sanders, Freda Gheseger (husband, Lon, deceased) (Spycher) Dorreen Carruthers (since married), and Esther McKilligan began classes. There were only six adults and children present on the opening Sunday, but the four stalwarts were not to be discouraged and made visitations in the district. Contacting the homes brought results, as 27 were in attendance the following Sunday, and services continued for 12 years.

To begin with, fires in the hall were built by the late Alfred Thubron and wood was supplied by the parents. Rent for the hall was free unless we used the hall at night, for which there was a three dollar charge.

Esther McKilligan was the superintendent and Mrs. J. Maddox was secretary-treasurer until February 10, 1956, when Mrs. Hazel Sambrooke was elected secretary-treasurer. Esther McKilligan left Bentley, so there was a shortage of teachers. The Sunday School Mission helped us out by sending us two young ladies — Misses E. Creighton and K. Hudson. Through the kindness of Mr. J. Maddox these girls were able to stay in a vacant house formerly owned by Tom Quinn on the S.W. 6-41-3-W5th. The girls were only able to assist until the end of the summer.

It was always difficult getting teachers however, Ed Morsch and Norman Blish then came to our aid. Bill and Bob Ward, of Three Hills, gave a great deal of time and effort helping the Vacation Bible School and Sunday Services — at which time they would often show films. The services of many others, particularly those of the local girls who helped so faithfully through the years, were greatly appreciated.

Besides going to University of Alberta where she was taking Pharmacy, Dorreen was able to give us valuable assistance as she was a very capable, efficient girl. For the summer months of 1957 she went to Hay River Mission Field under the name of Gilby Sunday School. A lovely "Friendship" quilt was presented to Dorreen when she left. The quilt blocks were autographed with embroidery thread by those attending Sunday School, sewn together and quilted by the mothers, at the A. Mathisen home. We tried to help with Dorreen's venture by sending money, a religious picture which was given to the Hay River Hospital, and by forwarding any left-over Sunday School papers.

V.B.S. (Vacation Bible School) was held for a week every summer at Gilby Hall, and later at Estonian Hall. Children from far and near attended and had a rewarding time studying the Bible and doing handicraft. All those attending V.B.S. had fun participating in the sports and games. At the end of the busy week there would be a program or picnic and awards were given. Mr. J. Brunner (Missionary from the West Indies) who assisted at V.B.S. in 1956 returned to help with the summer session in 1957. He was an adept woodworker so that made Vacation School more interesting.

When building fires at Gilby Hall presented a problem, Sunday School was held in the homes. This proved successful as all parents were co-operative and some mothers even passed around treats such as home-made candy or cookies at the close of classes. It was the opinion of many that the Estonian Hall would be easier to heat and, fortunately, we had a janitor handy. This was Mr. A. Mathisen, who was very dependable and always had the hall tidy and warm. Although we changed our location, we were still known as the Gilby Sunday School.

Mr. Sanders had a bus which he drove around to pick up those children not having a ride. This generous act meant a lot to many boys and girls. Mr. Frank Wine was always willing to [illegible] the district for funds, whenever needed. He did a very capable job, so there was some money to operate the bus, plus a small amount to help defray other expenses.

For quite a time there was a fairly extensive library in connection with the weekly Sunday School. There were suppers, skating and toboggan parties and bridal showers for Dorreen and Freda, only to mention a few of the extra activities which helped to provide fellowship and lasting friendships.

[illegible] without our able secretary-treasurer. Hazel worked hard to keep things going and was responsible for many duties, particularly at Christmas time when the Sunday School always had an excellent program. Phyllis Andrew, took her position in 1963.

Meanwhile, our superintendent, a diligent and conscientious worker, had moved to Calgary. He continued to assist us but the long trip was "out of the question". We were sorry to hear of his wife's passing shortly after they left Bentley. He has since remarried.

Freda, with her pleasing ways, helped us so much but now had her own family concerns.

Regretfully, the Sunday School was unable to continue after 1965. I'm sure all of you associated with the "School" (there were over 200 names on the roll call) will recall, with nostalgia, the good times shared and fondly remember the many choruses sung, with great vivacity such as Heavenly Sunshine

HARVILOW, ANDREW

Andy was born in (Redvesa) Ukraine August 19, 1896, older of two children born to Alexander and Alexandra Havrilov (Harvilow) As a young boy he worked along with his mother for landlords, making 15 kopeks (cents) a day Having an urge for better prospects Andy at the age of 16, with a friend from the same village, set out for Canada, a land unknown to him

Boarding a passenger liner at an Austrian and Hungarian port, in Trieste, Andy bade farewell to his homeland Sailing over the blue waters of the Atlantic took him 21 days at a cost of 150 rubles ($75: The approaching shores of Canada (Quebec City) opened up a wide new world for the courageous young lad, Canada, the land that he has called home for 65 years

July, 1913, Andy set foot on Canadian soil, his destination being Hosmer, B.C He took the C.P R train from Quebec City to Hosmer, a coal mining town

As his pocket money was at a premium, work had to be obtained but due to a language barrier, communicating was difficult Close friends of Andy s taught him five words in English thus Mister give me a job.

With determination in his heart, Andy was fortunate to get a job at a logging camp, drawing wages of $25 a month After holding his job for nine months, the company went bankrupt, and Andy faced his first disappointment only receiving $50 for all his labors

During the war years. 1914-1915, all places of employment logging and mining) ground to a halt. That winter Andy again boarded the train this time from Hosmer to Sylvan Lake Alberta Fending for survival during these poverty stricken years. laborers willingly accepted available offers from employers.

From the spring of 1915 to the fall of that year Andy accepted jobs on farms near Bentley, working for Mr Polling for room and board, and, for Henry Stone, earning $25 a month. The winter of 1915 saw a slight increase in wages, Andy was working for Garries. cutting and hauling fire wood for one dollar a day

Moving to Oyen, Alberta in 1916, Andy worked for Jack Norton a farmer, for two years Then in 1918, from spring to fall, he worked at Rosebud, for a farmer by the name of Comstock There he was the ploughman for eight breaking ploughs

In the year of 1920, Andy purchased the N W 18-30-2-W5 from Mart Talson, working for him for three years. This quarter was covered with bush except for five acres which he rented to Moro. To pay for the farm he worked at several logging camps, namely, Brierley, Varty, Rowan, Mc Dougall, August Moro and the Phoenix Camps As transportation was not available from these camps to Rocky Mountain House, their only mode of travel was their two feet. Andy often is heard reminiscing about the time he was walking alone in the early morning dawn carrying an accordion and suitcase Suddenly stopping in his tracks, he saw a dark object ahead of him. Taking it to be a bear, he decided to serenade the unidentified object with his accordion He thought "If I make a loud noise, it will nicely walk away" Approaching it closer his object proved to be a large burnt stump

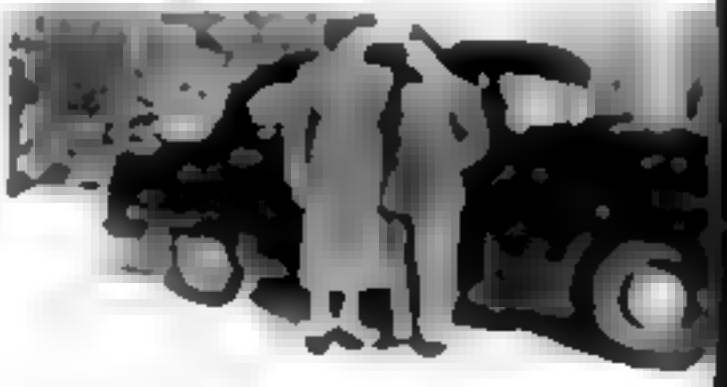
The days of hard work proved very strenuous but Andy had time for enjoyment He is musically talented, playing the button accordion even to this day (age 81) His accordion had helped him bear many burdens, as he is able to play his troubles away Andy played for several sm country dances as well as entertaining for various organizations

The depression years of the dirty thirties when money was only heard of. Andy. whole heartedly. supplied a home for two orphans. Pete and Fred Bobye, whom he met in Calgary This formed a close relationship as if they were brothers

From 1940-42 he worked at logging camps on the Queen Charlotte Islands. Returning to his farm. he spent his summers clearing his land by hand, and then farming it a few years, also giving a helping hand to threshing outfits

In 1952-53. Andy rented a pool room in Fort Saskatchewan, where he made several friends

Miracles do happen, the love bug bit. It was in 1955, Andy married Olga Ignatius, gaining two stepdaughters, Hazel Ignatius and Edith Niemela Andy remembers quite well the time during the courtship when Olga graciously gave him coffee with doughnuts dunked in salt instead of sugar



After farming together till 1963, they both sold their farms, Andy to Tolmi Tolonen, the closest neighbor and Olga to Ted Sailor of Blackfalds, and then retired to Sylvan Lake

Andy, during the years, had purchased a cabin, Andy's Cottage, on Lakeshore Drive which served as their home during the construction of their new home

At the present time, Andy is residing in this new home, 5224-47A Avenue, in Sylvan Lake, where he is enjoying good health.

During the retirement years he has enjoyed curling, lead, fishing, camping and playing his accordion. Andy has three great-grandchildren, Bonnie and Trevor Hietala and Kerri-Lynn Niemela.

The highlight of his life was a trip made in 1967 back to his homeland, the Ukraine, visiting his brother Peter and his family. While there he became a godfather to his niece's little boy [illegible]er. For entertainment, Andy belongs to the Sylvan Lake Curling Club, Friendship Club, and the Sylvan Lake Fish and Game Association.

Andy has certainly appreciated and enjoyed being a part of the Eckville Community.

JOHN NESTOR AND SUSANNA HEIKKILA FAMILY — by Jean Hietala

Father was born in Kuortaea, Vaasa Finland and grew up there. In those days there was a movement of people wanting to come to America, as they called it. Father also wanted to come, so he came with a number of friends in October 1891. After sailing for two to three weeks they landed in New York, U.S.A. It was good to touch land once again. Their first problem was to find employment and they worked their way to Montana, and some went to Wyoming. Father worked in the coal mines in Wyoming, but a little farm is what he wanted to get started. He found one in Stockett, Montana and started working on it when he was not working in the mines.

Mother was also born and raised in Finland close to the border of Sweden. Because of this, she was able to speak both Finnish and Swedish. She came with her two aunts who were going to America. They also chose Montana as their location. They worked in Great Falls — mother joining the staff at a boarding house, waiting on tables. This is where she met this miner and farmer coming in for meals.

Dad and mother were married in Stockett, Montana in March 1906. They made their home on the farm, not too far from Great Falls. The first child of this family was sister Hilda. She arrived a week before Christmas Day. They were happily settled in their own place, but this was not to continue for long. Agencies were telling of free land, lots of grass, good soil, but did not mention the nine months of winter or any other disadvantages.

Father was persuaded to go and see for himself this fabulous country. He chose the NE 34-38-3-W5. The other three quarters had already been taken. Father worked on the homestead for three months in the summer, and built a two roomed log house with the help of other settlers. In April of 1906 the family moved here. Mother and Hilda came by train and stayed in the Alberta Hotel in Red Deer until Mr. I. Hyvonen came to pick them up. Father came with the family belongings which they brought to the homestead.

In the fall Hilda had a little brother, Elmer being the new addition to the family. Over the years the family grew to include nine children. We were a happy family, sometimes we would fight over things but not often, for willow switches were so handy on the farm, and we respected them.

We are all grown up now, father and mother have passed away, along with four of our brothers. Father passed away in 1927, mother in 1939, Henry in 1956, George in 1965, Elmer in 1974 and Edward in 1969.

Hilda (Hawkins) lives in Ottawa.

Elsie (Rasmussen) lives in Perdue, Saskatchewan.

Ted and Bill live on the old homestead in the original house.

I, Jean, live on the farm with my husband, Henry Hietala.

THE HOGLUNDS

Aaron and Mary Hoglund with their three children, Edith, Walter and Myla, moved from their homestead at Rocky Mountain House in January 1919, to a farm 6½ miles northeast of Eckville. They had come to their homestead from Berkley, California, but unfortunately had to relocate because of the lack of school facilities for the children in the Frisco district. The move was a two-day trip, with the family and belongings securely bundled into a horse-drawn sleigh. One night was spent with some friends at the half way mark, and the journey continued the next day. The weather was cold and there was plenty of snow, so the trip was quite an undertaking, with the horses and the driver probably taking the brunt of the discomforts.

Ours was a small mixed-farming operation [illegible] pigs, turkeys and chickens, grain and hay fields. The work was all manual, with horses being used working of the land started in the spring with preparation of the land for seeding, and carried on throughout haying and on into the fall when the grain was harvested by binder, and the stooks stood in the fields waiting for the threshing crew to arrive. The prairie chickens took advantage of the delay by perching on the stooks and feeding from the grain in the heads. Even though one couldn't see the birds their presence was evident because they communicated with each other by a distinctive whistling sound.

The Langer Brothers, Paul and Carl, had a threshing outfit and they would do the threshing for the other farmers around the country when their own threshing was finished. The crew consisted of the engine man - he kept the tractor going, which in turn kept the separator in motion), the separator man, grain haulers, and the bundle rack drivers. The sound of the tractor alerted all of the neighbors that the threshing crew was approaching and it was a most delightful sound. The neighbors all came to help, the men wherever needed and the women to help with the food preparation and serving. Of course this help would all be returned when the threshing outfit reached the neighbors' farms.

One might think that with the threshing completed the work would be all done, but not so. Even though the grain was in the granary and the straw was in the stack, ready to provide food and shelter for the cattle during the winter until the heavy snowfall the horses and cattle were happy foraging in the fields, picking up what the harvesting operations had left behind). There was still work to be done. The next big project was bringing in the supply of firewood for the following year. The trees were felled and logged in the wintertime. The logs were sawed into chunks in the springtime after which came the work of splitting the chunks into stove-size pieces which in turn had to be arranged in neat piles. One always planned to get enough wood to last for the next year.

We children attended the Estonian School where the teacher taught grade one through grade eight. Our first teacher was Miss Linnan Olive Benedictson - later Mrs. Lewis True.

A trip to town for us, didn't come very often but one can well remember the a
There you saw large barrels containing apples, coffee beans, dried beans and mixed hard candy. The purchases were wrapped in brown paper and tied with strong string. A five-cent bag of hard candy out of the barrel was always included with the order. That store string was saved by winding it onto the ball already started. Mother used the backs of Dad's discarded leather mitts to make covers for these balls of string thus providing us with baseballs. All we then had to do was find a stick that most resembled a bat, and the game was on!

What the general store could not provide was ordered from Eaton's catalogue. Although Mother made most of our clothes we did get a new outfit ordered from the catalogue in the spring, and usually another one in the fall. Three weeks was a long time to wait for these new was exciting when the large parcel did arrive! The dresses usually fit without too many alterations, but the dress-up shoes were worn regardless of how they pinched or how long it took to break them in. The arrival of the new catalogue never lost its ability to promote wishful thinking.

Dad followed his trade as a painter and interior decorator and he was kept busy in all of his spare time around the neighborhood beautifying homes and farm buildings. He was the councillor for the municipality for two terms. Mother and Dad participated in community efforts toward fund raising for charitable and many other worth-while projects by putting on plays and concerts at the various community halls. Mother often gave a helping hand to the teachers of country schools with their Christmas concerts. These concerts were the highligh: of the Christmas season at each school, with all the children participating. Mother played the piano and assisted with the singing and dancing. In later years she played organ on Sundays at the Sunshine Gospel Mission Church and, before the Estonian School was moved away and the children bused to Eckville for classes, mother, Kate McKenzie and Faye Hoglund conducted a Sunday School class at the school.

Our first car was a Model T Ford without side curtains - they came later. To wonder and amazement of the passengers, they could ride in comfort, protected from the strong breeze created by the car in motion, as well as natural weather elements. During the colder weather two men were needed to start this Model T. One man would jack up a rear wheel to give it freedom to revolve while the other man was positioned at the front to do the cranking. If, or when, the motor started, the warming-up process consisted of a few rounds around the barnyard with the chickens squawking and flying in every direction, losing feathers galore as they made their escape from this motorized monster. The Model T had a running board and by stepping on it one could get in and out of the vehicle quite gracefully. The horse and buggy days were now of a past era!

The coal-oil lamp sat in the middle of the kitchen table, so long winter evenings were spent with the family gathered around, reading, doing homework, or playing cards. We children frequently quarreled over these card games and quite often Mother would get so exasperated with us that she would gather up the cards, lift a lid from the kitchen stove, and throw the cards into the fire. How we acquired a new deck of cards does not come to mind, but it must have been Walter who purchased them, as he had some spending money obtained by selling his muskrat and weasel skins. When he was old enough he would accompany Dad on his painting and paper-hanging jobs in the summertime and this also helped to increase his spending money.

The food we ate was almost all home grown or homemade and the aroma of that homebaked bread as you approached the house was beyond description. You quickly opened the kitchen door and there they were — six or more loaves along with a quick flat-bread baked and ready for immediate consumption with homemade butter. Food tasted so good that it is not suprising that the idea still persists that girls nowadays can't cook or bake and have the food taste "like Mother used to make".

Life was hard. The depression dampened many spirits — the plans and goals that so many had were either delayed or put aside forever. But one always remembers the close community feeling and the neighborliness. People helped one another, and the joys and sorrows of one were shared by all. In spite of the hardships, it was a good life.

Walter Hoglund is married to Faye Meyers. After many years of living in the Eckville area they have recently moved to Summerland, B.C. Edith (Mrs. Albert Brooker) lives in Calgary. She had two sons, Bill and Ronald, who are both married. Bill lives in Edmonton and Ronald lives in Sherwood Park. Myla (Mrs. Swanky) lives in Calgary. She has one son, Allan.

HOGLUND, WALTER AND FAYE — by Faye Hoglund

Walt and I were married December 11, 1941 in the Lutheran Pastor's home in Red Deer. This was followed by a reception for 32 friends and relatives in the Club Cafe banquet room in Red Deer and an open dance at the Gaiety Hall on December 12.

Faye and Walter Hoglund

Walt, the only son of Aaron and Mary Hoglund, was asked to come and farm the home quarter. Farming was all done with horses and horse machinery. There were some acres of open grain land and the rest was in hay. Since this was the time of the beginning of the war, there were no available men to be hired, so this was my start of outdoor work. I learned to drive horses and, as the years went by, got promoted to the

The next year Walt got Ray Meyers and Arvie Maki to help him and his Dad in clearing a quarter of school land across the road, which we had leased from the Government. (Later we were able to buy this quarter.) The clearing was done by hand and axe, then George Ignatius came with a breaking plow. Then came the time to pick the roots before the land could be worked up for planting. The grain was cut with a binder then had to be stooked and left until it came our turn to thresh. Bill Palm, our neighbor, had a machine.

Threshing time was quite a hassle, but fun, too, cooking for a gang of 15 to 20 men, finding places and beds for some to sleep (although the neighbors would go to their homes), and providing food and water for the horses. Neighbors would all help one another at this busy time. Some would go to help with the evening chores, then back again to the gang for a nice big supper and piles of dishes to keep the women busy.

Later Mr. Jack Hill, long-time friend of the family, gave us the opportunity to rent his two quarters of open land, and we could buy his machinery in the bargain. This was a great boost for us, as Nature was good to us and we reaped a fair crop. Much of the income went back into farming expenses. Roy Saari came with his Cat and brush cutter and did some clearing on the school quarter, and George Ingatius turned the sod. This work with the machinery made our farming much easier, but we were kept busier with the additional land to farm. We then bought a few more cows to add to our herd, and bought more hogs, as raising hogs was Walt's Dad's specialty. Prices were good by this time, which made it even more encouraging.

While I worked outdoors, with the garden, milking cows and raising chickens and turkeys, Granny, as she was known to all in the community, kept busy indoors with cooking and dishes. We'd milk our four cows and separate the milk, then take the cream to the local creamery. The milk was mixed with grain into a mash and fed to the chickens and little piglets. The income from our cream would help to fill our pantry with

Saturday usually meant a gathering of neighbors at our home. We would start up the sauna, steam bath, and after having a good hot bath the neighbors would enjoy visiting and the coffee, fresh cinnamon buns, and cake that Granny had made.

Walt played the drums in a band of five. Fred Moos played the guitar, Lorraine Havens the banjo, John Vitana the violin, and Bob Matthews the piano. They played at the local halls, and in the winter months the dancing usually didn't end until the wee hours in the morning. In the summertime many times we would just change our clothes and go straight to work in the fields.

When an opening came in our local Co-op Store I applied for the job and worked as clerk for $35 a month for three years. When the war ended many of the boys were home again, picking up their jobs, and I then returned to the farm.

From Mike Rauman we bought a small unfinished house which we moved to the school land quarter - the realization of our big dream of a home of our own. I made cupboards of apple boxes stacked together, and curtains from the flour and sugar bags, trimmed with rick-rack. We had no floor covering, but I kept my floors nice and white by scrubbing them with a scrub brush and lye water. Art Dahl did a few of the necessary

To be prepared for the cold winter weather we would haul logs from the bush and then call the neighbours in again to saw the wood into blocks which would fit into our cook stove and larger ones to use in our air-tight heater. Sometimes we would saw the wood with the big buzz saw, and then the crew would go on to the next neighbor's job.

Walt enjoyed hunting, so would welcome the winter when he would take his gear along with some of the neighbors, and go west of Rocky Mountain House to hunt big game. These trips always resulted in a moose or elk, which helped out our food supply, and we enjoyed the meat. We often went to Buck Lake fishing, to give us a change in diet. I liked the outdoors, also, and would often go tagging along behind.

Walt's community activities included several years membership on the local Co-op board, the Credit Union board, helping to organize the Farmers Union and serving as president for a time, and helping with the Curling Rink. We both enjoyed curling and spent two or three nights a week in the local rink as well as taking part in the bonspiels. Walt became part of another band called the "Harmony Five", which became very popular in the community and was kept quite busy. This band was made up to Walt, John and Ludwig Koots, Waldo Raabis and Bob Matthews.

Under the leadership of Mr. John Lundberg, telephone service was made possible for the community. It was great to be able to communicate without having to hike to the neighbors to pass our messages along. Since this was a party line it sometimes took time and patience before we could get onto the line for a turn at talking. Once a week we would pick up our mail from Andrew Parkkari's mail box. We had many precious visits with Barb and Jack Luoma - we would often trudge through the snow to spend a full day there, and they would come to visit us in return. The Sewing Circle provided some social life for the ladies of the community. Once a month we would go to one of the homes, each taking her turn. We'd spend a very full afternoon, just relaxing, doing hand work, or sometimes the necessary darning, mending or other jobs, and then enjoy a bountiful lunch before returning home.

We later bought a quarter of land from Art Koski and another quarter from the Koski estate near to town. Ernie Dorchester farmed these two quarters for 17 years, and after he retired to Eckville Glen Rangen is now farming these two quarters. David and Bill Mackenzie are farming the school land quarter. The home quarter estate had always been interested in hairdressing so we decided that I should take the training in the Marvel School in Edmonton. I started a hairdressing business in Eckville town in 1955, and was kept very busy and happy at my job until the time we thought we would like to make a change. As of 1978 we have a four-acre orchard and a home in Summerland, B.C.

Many former Eckville people live here and we have enjoyed visiting with them again.

HOW I BEGAN FARMING DURING THE DEPRESSION — by Herman Lapp

I arrived in the Eckville District in the winter of 1931, at the peak of depression. The first year I found some work around Eckville. The next year, with $25 down payment, I bought a hilly bush quarter on Section 13, northeast of Eckville from the Canadian Pacific Railway. That was the time when established farmers had hard times to make ends meet, but there were not many choices for me.

So, with $125 of capital and lots of optimism I started serious farming with an axe (swinging my axe from dawn to dusk). With help from Fritz Kinna's brush cutter and his breaking plow, broke about 70 acres of lighter patches of br... land. I paid for gas, and the rest of the work w... on time payments. We finished breaking land late in the summer, so there was no time to pick any stones or stumps, for I had to catch the harvest work to make some money, as I had none left. Harvest wages were from $1.50 to $2.50 for an 11-hour day. After harvest I put up a 12 by 16 foot frame cabin of lumber from sawmills. The lumber cost from $10 $12 per 1,000 board feet.

During the winter, I was scouting for cheap machinery (to do the job and fit my pocket-book) from public sales to farmers' yards. I was able to buy one seven-foot Massey Harris single disc drill, in working condition, for $10; one six-foot single disc harrow which needed some repairs for $8; two ponies and collars for $50 on time payment from the Thubron family at Gilby. Also I bought for $5 other second-hand harness from here and there. I got wheat seed from F. Kinna on time. I rented a team of horses from neighbors, and then I was ready for the big job ahead — putting in my first crops. The spring was late, so I had no time to pick any stones or stumps, and I had to do my best by rolling some of them aside. Many times, though, I found my disc or drill one or two feet off the ground.

Living was cheap those days: eggs, five cents a dozen; live pigs one to two cents a pound, choice steers two and a half to three cents a pound. No farmers I knew charged anything for vegetables, they were so cheap. I also did some fishing.

That summer I cleared some more land and broke it. In the fall I bought a six-foot second-hand binder to take off my crop, but found all the troubles of the world were hidden in that binder. Somehow, I got my crop off and threshed 1600 bushels of Garnet wheat out of it, with the price being 30c a bushel. Did I feel rich!

You hear many young men say, "It was easy to get started farming in those days." How many young men are willing to go through what you just read?

Alexander Johnson was born in Alavudelle Finland, in 1878. In Finland, he name was Hal ju, which was changed to Johnson upon arriving in the United States.

Alec came to the United States as a small child and spent some time there before moving to Canada. He spent 44 years in Canada. While living in the United States Alec had married a widow with children, but his wife and stepchildren all died of tuberculosis.

JOHNSON CARL (CHARLIE) AND SARAH—by Sylvia Kujala

Sarah was born in Brainerd, Minnesota U.S.A. as Serafina Cristine Byttynen on August 3 1883 and Charlie (Carl) Johnson was born in Dawson, Minnesota in 1926.

Having come to visit Sarah's brother, John Byttynen, and her sister, Aurora Netsel, a few times over the previous years, Charlie and Sarah Johnson came to live in Canada July 19, 1929.

They had been farming in North Dakota and before that had worked in Minneapolis and St Paul, Minnesota. Her sister Susan, and their Uncle Eli Joseph came with them. They stayed with her brother, John Bytynen, until they could find a farm they wanted. They bought a quarter section previously owned by the Angle family, now owned by Rudolph Saari, in a partnership deal. When the partnership broke up, Charlie and Sarah looked for a farm on their own. In the time they lived on the Wells farm for a few years (now owned by the Psikla family.)

They bought a CPR quarter SW 1-40-3-W5, in 1934 and moved on to it when they had built a little house, a sauna and other farm buildings. They must have worked very hard as this farm was of virgin land. They managed to clear bits of land here and there for fields and hay meadows. They raised mostly cattle and a few pigs and chickens. They seemed to enjoy life there, and always seemed very happy even though the money earned from a small farm then, as now was very little. Sometimes Charlie had to go to work during the winter months at a sawmill in the Gilby district, and Sarah went along to cook for the crew. I remember the winter of 1937 when we, my husband Elmer and I, together with my sister and her husband, Viola and Art Bellikka, stayed on their farm to take care of it until spring.

Charlie and Sarah were both very warm, generous people, and made their place a home for many a man, young and old, who needed help in those depression years. It worked both ways, as the men sometimes helped out with the work around the farm.

Charlie had one son by a previous marriage still living in the United States. This was Bill Johnson, who with his wife, Ivy, still live in Havre, Montana. Sarah had been a pioneer of the district years before, having become the young bride of Oscar Karjala. After their marriage broke up, she went back to her relatives in Minneapolis, where she met Charlie some years later.

Charlie's health began to fail, so they moved to Eckville, renting a house for a while, then got their savings together to buy a little house and rented out their farm. Charlie died in the Lacombe hospital after a lengthy illness and was laid to rest in the Eckville cemetery.

Sarah, in spite of her arthritis and diabetic condition and failing eyesight, determined to live on in the little house. This would not have been possible if it had not been for her kind neighbors and friends. Mrs. Agnes Bardenhagen being a nurse, helped out very much in spite of her busy life. In the fall of 1975 Aunt Sarah did not feel well, so stayed with her sister, Susan, in her trailer for a few weeks, then went into the Lacombe hospital. She died January 17, 1978 at the age of 92 years and six months. She was laid to rest beside her husband in the Eckville cemetery.

John Kind passed away on February 22, 1975 at the Eckville Hospital. His wife, Celeste, now resides on the farm with their eldest son, Leslie.

KINGSEP, HENRY — by Mrs. Selma Palm (His daughter)

Henry Kingsep was born in 1870 on Horma Estate in Worn, Estonia, a big farm or estate where they employed about 13 workers, both men and women. Henry was educated to be a school teacher. The study of languages in the higher forms of education was compulsory, as a result, my father spoke German and Russian fluently. I was told of when my father was teaching school in the town of Nuustak that he met my mother, Emilie Saar, daughter of a shoemaker there. They fell in love and were married when he was 24 and my mother was 17 years old. They lived in the top storey of a big but very plain school house where Dad and his assistant were teaching. There were also some pupils boarding there who only went home on weekends. I was born in that schoolhouse in 1898 and was 11 months old when my parents sailed to Canada in 1899.

My father had heard and read about this new, big country of North America where there was freedom and a lot of unoccupied land for him and his fellow countrymen to live and raise their families. Also, his older brother, Christian, who was a sailor had visited Canada and was favorably impressed with the wide open spaces compared to the crowded conditions in the little Baltic countries.

Another thing that attracted the early settlers was the fact that land was available in Canada for the payment of only $10 under a homestead plan. The homesteader got title to the land, 160 acres, after living on it for three years, and making certain improvements. Father began to study the English language in preparation for a new life across the Atlantic. The family travelled for three weeks on the ship before reaching New York, U.S.A.

As their destination was Canada, they continued their journey by railroad. As the railway was already laid as far as Red Deer, Alberta, they stopped there and made their first dwelling in a crude little shack about two miles east of Sylvan Lake, then known as Snake Lake, in the Northwest Territories. Soon my Uncle Christian and his family of five children took up land next to ours. In about three years time all the land around us was taken, leaving no room for Dad's countrymen who were to follow him soon. Because of this, Father moved further west and took up land, NE 9-40-3-W5, on the banks of the Medicine River, where there would be lots of water for people and livestock and a lot of unoccupied land to extend into a settlement.

That was the beginning of the Medicine Valley community north of Eckville in 1903, but of course Eckville was not there at this time.

During the early years Father had to make the trip to Red Deer to get provisions and mail for ourselves and the neighbors. It took about three or four days to travel that distance with a team made up of one horse and one ox. Since there were no roads whatsoever, he had to go through swamps and brush, often cutting down brush before he got through. To make travelling even more difficult it rained a lot more in those days than it does now. Father often took shelter under the wagon box when it rained and also during the nights on those trips. The mosquitoes were very numerous and created misery for both people and livestock. Father would often build a bonfire in the pasture and the smoke would drive away these insects, especially at milking time. For food he would snare rabbits and catch fish in the Medicine River from a boat of his own construction.

Finally a little store was opened about one mile north of where Eckville now stands. My sister and I had to carry our homemade butter and our eggs over four miles to the store to exchange for other groceries. We would carry that bundle tied to the middle of a stick with us girls each taking hold of one end. We were allowed about 25 cents for two pounds of butter and the eggs were about the same price. When the school was first built close to the store, we had to walk the four and one-half miles every morning and evening for many months before our own community was able to build a school only one and a half miles away. My older sister and I were almost of high school age before we could attend school regularly. Three of my older brothers and sisters and I all started to school together along with the children from about 30 other families of Dad's countrymen who had come out west and had settled around us. Going to school in those days seemed like a picnic to us in comparison to the heavy work at home, milking cows and doing all kinds of chores on the farm, helping both Mother indoors and Father outdoors

My father was a hard-working man, and he built practically everything that we had in our home in Medicine Valley — tables, chairs, beds with hay as mattresses, and even a stove out of rock and stone, where Mother could even bake bread, potatoes and turnips. Dad also made a wagon. He soaked the boards in some sort of solution to make them soft and then bent them into wheels. The house was made of logs, with a sod roof and an earthen floor. Grass soon grew on the roof. Moss was stuffed in the cracks between the logs. It had just one small window. Later on, Dad added another room, which had a floor of boards.

It was at this humble place that Dad's father came to visit us from the Old Country. How well I remember the apples that he brought! They were the first apples that we children had ever tasted, and they were so delicious! Unfortunately Grandpa soon got sick and Dad had to go to Red Deer to get a doctor. It was in the bitter cold of winter, so Dad fixed a tent on the sleigh so that he and the doctor would not freeze to death on the two-day trip. The doctor examined Grandpa and left some medicine for him, but he died before Dad was able to return from the trip taking the doctor back to Red Deer.

Dad made a coffin himself and Grandpa was buried on a hill by the Medicine River. There was not a cemetery, a minister, or a church anywhere near in those days. The few neighbors we had came together and sang hymns, and some spoke. The ladies covered the grave with wreaths of spruce bows and paper flowers.

In that same log shack two of my brothers, Henry and Otto, were born, also my sister Emma, now Mrs. Herman Lapp, my sister Agnes, now Mrs. Stabel, was born while we were still at Sylvan Lake. All the children were born without the benefit of a doctor and with no phone available to call for help, and no roads to enable anyone to travel quickly. As the family grew larger, Dad started planning for a bigger house. Our land was almost all covered with trees, both poplar and spruce, so he had to cut them down to clear the land. He built a saw mill to cut the trees into boards. The pile of lumber got bigger and bigger as the years passed by until there was enough for a comparatively large house and a new barn. Our first barn was a sort of dug-out with a big pile of straw or dry grass on top. It was a great day for us children to move into a big house with a lot of room to run around in. My two younger brothers, Nick and Robert, were born in that new house. We enjoyed the new barn too, when it was finished, a year or so after the completion of the house. It is really sad, almost tragic, when I think about all the hard work that went into building that house and barn under those difficult circumstances and then have them both burn down — the barn a few years before Dad passed away and the house about six years after his death. The loss was not covered by fire insurance in those days! On the spot where the barn once stood an oil well now produces the "black gold".

Before many years of farming Dad started concentrating on the building of a threshing machine. There was no outfit in our community until many years later, and "necessity is the mother of invention". We grew oats and barley and a little winter rye. Wheat didn't seem to be suitable for the cool, wet summers we had then. With the help of us older children and that of a few neighbors Dad threshed the little grain that we had, and then went on to thresh the neighbors' grain.

It amazes me now when I think of how much Dad was able to accomplish, yet he never seemed to be too busy to help his neighbors or to give advice when consulted. He helped to build the new neighbors' dwelling places and his team of horse and an ox was often put to work to plow an acre or so for them to use for planting potatoes and a garden. In order to buy the necessary farm machinery and livestock the men of the family often had to go out to earn money by working on building railroads and bridges. While the men were gone Dad assumed the responsibility of getting the provisions and the mail from Red Deer for many of the neighbors. Since Dad could speak four languages, he was able to help many with their language problems, being able to interpret for those in difficulty with speaking or writing. He learned the Finnish language from the Finns living to the south of us. Dad took no pay for his help, but counted it a privilege to be able to help those less fortunate than he.

Taxes were paid mostly by working on the building of roads. The community halls and the schools were built largely by free labor everyone giving of his time and energy for a community project. Dad was very interested in anything which he thought would help to improve and advance our community and took the lead in promoting many undertakings of a community nature. He helped to organize the local Co-op Store, was a stout supporter of the U.F.A. movement and a member of the Gilby local. He had the gift of expressing his views very clearly and logically, and was often the spokesman for [illegible].

In spite of so many other activities and interests Dad found time for music, too. He played the violin very well and his experience in the old country as a choir master encouraged him to organize and direct a choir which he kept up almost until the end of his life. He helped his own children and other young people to get a start playing the violin. He purchased two violins from a second-hand store for only three dollars. One was for him to use and the other for us children to practice with. Later, when my sister and I were in high school, Dad bought a second-hand organ. He and some of the children enjoyed playing on it, too.

My childhood recollections are that my father governed his children with a firm but gentle hand. He believed in equal opportunities for all. We looked up to him as a man of wisdom and fair judgement. We have certainly missed his wise council since he passed away on December 7, 1929 at the age of 59 years. He was buried in the Gilby Cemetery on a cold, bitter, blizzard day with three feet of snow on the ground. Despite the extreme cold about 300 neighbors and friends gathered to pay their last respects to one of our first pioneers in the Medicine Valley.

The history of the children (and their families) born to Henry and Emilie Kingsep follows:

Linda Kingsep Mottus was one of the first ones to attend the Estonian School when it was built in 1910. She married Gust Mottus, a farmer. They farmed north of Eckville and also raised berries. They were members of the Farmer's Union and the Co-op Store. They later moved to the town of Eckville, where Linda was a cook in the hospital for five years without missing one day.

Gust and Linda raised one son and twin daughters. Their son, Rudy, took over his father's farm. He and his wife, Myrtle, raised five children. Their son Arnold lives close to Red Deer with his wife and two children. Their daughter Jean (a nurse) married Joe Maki and they live close to Eckville with two children. Their daughter Helen married Les Davenport. They live in Calgary with two daughters, Cherryl and Angela.

Linda and Gust's daughter Emma married Archie Huhtala, who was an electrician in Eckville. They operated an electric appliance store and repair shop owned by Fritz Kinna. Archie served on the town council of Eckville. They now live in Edmonton where Archie is supervisor of electrical construction at Athabaska Tarsands Plant. Their daughter Lynn is a graduate of the University of Alberta in Edmonton and works in the archives in Calgary.

Emma's twin sister Elsie went to business school in Calgary, then married Vernon Brewer, an accountant in Toronto. They have three [illegible].

Linda passed away in 1967 at the age of 71 years. Her son Rudy predeceased her. Gust passed away in July, 1977.

Selma Pallo (Kingsep) went to high school in Red Deer. Selma took a business course in Edmonton, where she later worked as a stenographer. She married Henry Pallo of Red Deer in 1922. They have two children. Daisy is married to Leon de Launay, an electrical engineer with Bell Telephones in Montreal. They have three children. Jack works at Red Deer City Hall. For many years he was assistant city treasurer and now is internal auditor. Selma passed away in 1976 at the age of 78 years. Her husband, Henry, predeceased her.

Agnes Stabel (Kingsep) was a teacher and taught at Benjamin and Andrew schools. She has lived with her family in southern Alberta, but she and her husband Nells are now retired and live in Red Deer. She had five children, all of whom attended Bible School for two years, except for the youngest. Her daughter Violet passed away in 1962. All four sons became teachers although only Franklin is teaching now. Robert and Raymond are now building contractors and Arnold is a minister. Agnes and Nels have 15 [illegible].

Henry Kingsep Jr. was a bachelor, and farmed north of Eckville, next to his parents' farm where we grew up. He took an agricultural mechanics course in Calgary for one year. He was a trapper of muskrat and beaver — mostly in the Medicine River. Henry passed away in 1969, and is buried in the Gilby Cemetery.

Emma Lapp (Kingsep) was born at Eckville and went to Estonian School. She took her high school in Red Deer and Edmonton (where she also took some nurse's training. She worked in Calgary and Vancouver for a few years before she married Herman Lapp, a farmer north of Eckville. They lived on the NW 13-40-3-W5 for nearly 40 years and carved a modern farm and home out of the wilderness. They raised registered seed grain and purebred cattle. Later on they rented out part of their land, and turned to commercial cattle feeding in a modern way. They were also busy with community activities. Herman was a charter and provincial board member of Eckville and District Credit Union for 40 years he was a member of the Eckville Co-op Association, he was board chairman when the new store and feed mill were built. He served as a member of the Hospital Board when the nurses residence was finished. He was chairman of the Gilby rural electrification association provisional board when it was organized and took part in many farm organizations. Emma was active as a member of the Home and School executive, a member of the Hospital Auxiliary and of Church and Estonian Ladies Aid. She also participated in musical and other types of programs at the Estonian and Gilby Halls. In 1972 Herman and Emma retired in a more moderate climate in their home in Penticton, B.C., and are taking an active part in the new Retirement Centre, such as square dancing, entertainment and executive duties. Herman and Emma raised two daughters and one son.

Gloria and June attended high school in Eckville and they both have their names on the Eckford Trophy for being the best all-around student of their class. They both had training in piano, and also teacher training. Gloria taught school in Edmonton for a few years, then married Dr. John Lange. They moved to Pennsylvania, U.S.A. They have three children.

June got her Bachelor of Education Degree and taught school in Lacombe. She went on a world tour and settled down in Australia, where she married Anthony Acton. They live in the city of Melbourne and they own and operate their own graphic art and print shop.

Roy also took his high school at Eckville, and played trumpet in the Eckville and Bentley bands. He took a three-year course at NAIT in Edmonton. He married Frances Frid of Eckville, daughter of John and Anne Frid. They work for the city of Edmonton and live in their own home in Sherwood Park. He is an executive in telecommunications office and Frances works in a city office as intergovernmental assistant.

Otto Kingsep was 19 years old when he left the farm to attend SAIT in Calgary. He became a journeyman electrician, machinist and welder. After some years as superintendent of a manufacturing plant, he went into technical education and worked as a teacher department head, and, for the last 20 years as shop director and school planning official. For several years he worked in underdeveloped countries setting up technical training programs and schools. His daughter Karen lives in Edmonton. Son David passed away in 1975. Otto and his wife Vina are now retired in Penticton, B.C. He is a member of the Penticton "Tune Agers", a group of retired musicians. He teaches and calls square and round dances.

Nick Kingsep was active in Estonian Society and in other clubs for many years while on the farm at Eckville. After he left the farm he worked as an electrician in Calgary and later owned and operated a lunch counter in Ponoka. He married a nurse at the Ponoka Hospital, and then he and Rita moved to Calgary. He enrolled in war emergency classes and became a machinist. He advanced to foreman, production manager, and finally owned and operated his own manufacturing plant. Some of the items he manufactured were covered by his own patents. His latest venture was a farm machinery manufacturing plant in Lacombe. Nick and Rita are now retired and living in Calgary. They have one son, Gary, a mechanical engineer in Calgary, and two grandchildren.

Robert Kingsep married Lila Wester and they took over the home farm. He designed and built two water well drilling rigs and was in the water well drilling business for many years, mainly for oil companies.

Their two children grew up on the farm and went to Eckville School. They both played in the school band. Robert Jr. worked with his dad for several years before he moved to Edmonton where he worked for an auto supply company. He later trained as a computer technician and programmer. He now works as a programming pharmacist, live in Edmonton. They have one daughter, Lyann who married Art Gagne, a school teacher. They live in Vermilion, where Art teaches science in high school.

Robert passed away in 1971, having been predeceased by his wife, Lila.

THE ROBERT KINNA FAMILY – by Robert Kinna

Robert spent his boyhood working on his father's and grandfather's farm. He eventually purchased his grandfather's John Kinna #1 homestead. In 1939 Robert married Julia Solberg, from Bentley, and they moved to a small house on the farm. There a daughter Edna Marilyn, was born. Times being hard on the gave and went to Calgary to take a government-sponsored machinist's course. When it was completed he moved with his family to Edmonton to work in the aircraft plant. When that plant closed he got employment in the Canadian National Railway machine shop. While working there, his daughter Judith Marie and son Ronald John were born. In 1960, being bored with turning out wheels for freight trains, he went to Montreal and Toronto and took a course as a diesel technician on the Canadian National microwave

When that office closed, taken over by remote control, he moved to Dawson Creek and on to the Little Smokey Repeater Stations. The opportunity arose, and he transferred to Lloydminster as a diesel technician in charge of seven microwave sites from North Battleford to Vegreville

In 1975 Robert reached retirement age and

THE KOOTS FAMILY HISTORY

Paul Koots came to Canada with his brother Peter, in March of 1903 from Estonia. Paul was married with three small boys, and Peter was single They heard of the opportunities in the west and wanted to take advantage of them Because Paul did not have the money for a fare to Canada and since his brother did not want to go alone, Peter lent him the money They landed in Halifax and traveled to Red Deer by train and were able to get transportation to the present Eckville area, where they knew some Estonian families. Peter obtained SE 16-40-3-W5 and Paul SW 10-40-3-W5 as homesteads The two brothers built a small two-room log cabin on Peter's homestead. They then got work on the railroad laying ties and tracks and pouring cement for the bridges They worked west of Calgary into the mountains. Their biggest problem was that of language. Of the group of Estonians working for the railroad one spoke a little English and acted as interpreter Peter had some acres broken with seeding and harvest both done by hand With Paul sending some money to his family in the old country and paying Peter back, there was little left to save from his wages. This was very discouraging and he began to think of returning to Estonia.

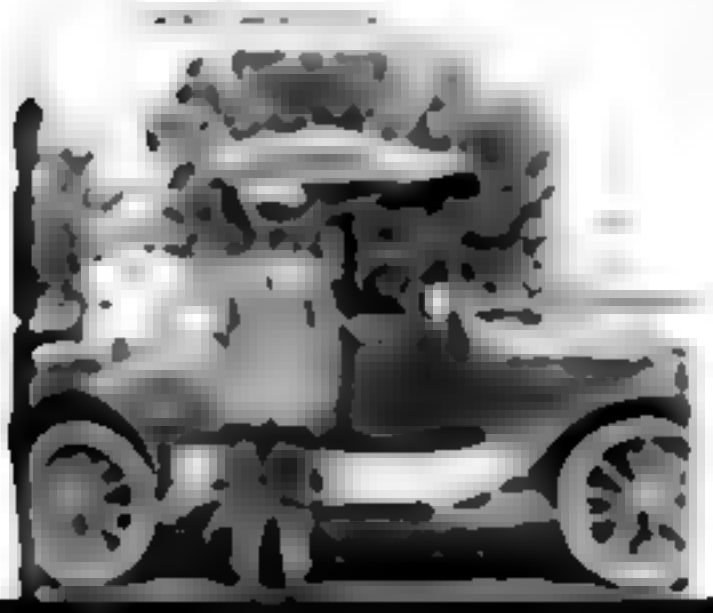
In the meantime the family of Jaan Teener had heard of Alide Koots not being able to join her husband in Canada and loaned her the money realizing Paul would pay him when he could. Alide wrote her husband of her good fortune and with her three sons, Ferdinand, Carl and Woldemar, sailed for Canada. Paul had paid back the loan from his brother and saved enough for a fare back to his family. He went to Red Deer and gave up his homestead then went to pick up the last of his mail before buying the ticket back to the old country. In the mail was the letter from his wife telling that the family were on their way to Canada. Their boat docked in Halifax after a journey on which Alide had been very sick. Jaan Teener and daughter Anna watched over the boys during the trip. Alide gave the Teeners her blessings and was forever grateful for all they had done for her. They all arrived in Red Deer in the spring of 1905. Paul made transportation arrangements for them to his brother's homestead and the family settled into Peter's cabin. Paul had taken another homestead, NE 16-40-3-W5, and on this land the brothers built another house, twice as big as Peter's. This was the Koots family's first home since Paul was married. After a while there was an addition to the family. Twin boys were born, John and Ludwig. The bigger boys were conscripted as babysitters when their mother had to work outside. Once when neighbor ladies came to see the twins, the babysitters had disappeared. Their mother did not find out about this until sometime after. Later a daughter, Adele was born and she remained the only girl in the family. The family's last child was another boy, Ernest, born on the day of Alide and Paul's silver anniversary.

A few acres of land were cleared each year by hand, and eventually Peter and Paul each bought a horse. This made a team which both of them used for work. Paul bought a democrat which was used for family outings for years.



Later each bought another horse and had a team of his own. A log barn and later a granary were built on the homestead. There were several Estonian families in the district now and mixed in with these were Finnish, Norwegians, Swedish and some Germans. A schoolhouse was built for the children of the settlers, some of them being more than 10 years of age. All of them had to learn to speak English first, then to read and write the language. Most of those who attended the school were able to complete the eighth [illegible].

There was very little in the way of medical facilities in this district. Alide Koots' services as a midwife were often called upon, since all babies were born at home.

When Ferdinand was old enough he went to work at the Red Deer saw mill. Carl went to work in the first co-op store in Eckville when he was 16 and had completed his Grade 8. He boarded in town with a family and bought a bicycle to come home with on Saturday afternoons after the store had closed. Paul bought a second-hand violin since he was able to play a few tunes on it. Carl also became interested in music and began taking violin lessons from Arthur Kinna. John's interest in the violin was also aroused, that being the only musical instrument in the house. He organized a group of young people to form an orchestra. In this group Ludwig played the flute and Walley the cello. There were many socials and Christmas concerts where these local young people performed. Later he established dance orchestras where he played the saxophone and Ludwig the tuba. John studied the violin in the Alberta College in Edmonton.

The Estonian Hall was built in 1918 on two acres of Koots' and Paul and Ferdinand took active part in the building of the hall, with the rest of the Estonian Society members.

In 1919 the family bought their first car — a 1917 model Maxwell. In 1919 they also bought a steam engine and separator for threshing. This outfit did a lot of custom work in the area. Carl worked with Ferdinand as engineer and separator man. When Ferdinand died in November of 1921 of pneumonia, Carl had to learn to be a steam engineer and apply for a permit to operate it. Walley later went to the Institute of Technology and Art, after working for a farmer in Barons, Alberta, and took a steam engineering course. He completed this and went to work in the Turner Valley Gas Plant.

The family lived in the log house until 1933 when the boys built a new house. When tractors came into existence the steam engine and separator were sold. Carl bought a general store in Sylvan Lake with Ike Kaila and later bought Ike's share, as the effects of the depression were felt. Later, Walley came into the business as a partner. Carl married Thelma Wright from Innisfail and had two daughters, Dorinne and Bonita. Paul Koots died in 1935 from a heart attack. Carl died in 1947 after complications set in.

after an operation. A few years later Thelma married Walley and had one son, Rodney.

After public school Adele went to Olds College and completed the Home Economics course. She later enrolled at the Calgary Institute of Technology and Art in the Fine Arts course. She began clerking at her brother's store in Sylvan Lake during the depression and in 1941 met Ernest Dorchester.

Harold Dorchester, his wife and two sons, William and Ernest, came to Alberta from Coderre, Saskatchewan in 1937 and settled north of Leslieville. In 1942 Ernest and Adele were married. In 1946 Harold and his wife went to B.C. with son William following the next spring. Ernest Dorchester bought the Fritz Kinna farm three miles north of Eckville. After 29 years of farming they sold it and moved into Eckville where Ernest is now self employed as a carpenter. In his free time he golfs and curls.

Ernest Koots was able to complete his high school education. When the war broke out he joined the Air Force. He met Jeanette MacDonald from P.E.I. while in the service and married her in 1946. They have two children, Janet-Anne and Donald. Ernest bought a store in Hespero which subsequently burned down. He then moved to Nordegg where he managed a grocery store for the Big Horne Trading Co. Later he moved to Edmonton where he worked for a short time in Woodwards. For more than the last 20 years he has been a salesman for Burns Foods. After graduating from high school in 1967 Janet-Anne received her degree in Honors Chemistry from the University of Alberta and her Masters in Madison, Wisconsin. Donald also graduated from high school in Edmonton and got his degree in Education from the University of Alberta.

Ludwig married Leida Kirves in 1951. Leida's parents, Thomas and Minna, came to Canada in 1950. Her mother died three months later. Thomas and her brother Herbert, moved to Vancouver but Thomas came back to Eckville where he died in 1952. Herbert stayed in Vancouver where he married Erna Muld and had three sons, Thomas, Madis and Andres. Leida and Ludwig have two sons, Ronald and Clarence. They both received their grade schooling in Eckville and went on to the University of Alberta, Ronald graduating with a degree in Agriculture and Clarence a degree in Education. They are very sports-minded and have taken part in local sports throughout school and after. Ludwig was also involved in sports in his younger days. Ludwig stayed with the farm and is mechanically inclined as well as being handy with carpentry tools. He farmed with his brother John. John never married but with his love of music and hobby of making violins he lived in contentment. He died of a heart attack in 1974. His mother Aide, had died in November of 1959. Ludwig is still living on his father's second homestead where he grew up.

Peter Koots met his wife, Marie, through a Estonian newspaper from New York. They had three daughters, Selma, Amanda and Ella. As he grew older, a friend convinced him to return to Russia while the friend, of course, did not follow. Peter felt with no boys to take over his farm he would have a very hard life in his old age. Although Paul tried, he could not change his brother's mind. In 1921 he sold his farm to his nephew, Carl, and left for Russia with his family. He died a couple of years before Paul did while Marie died in the spring of 1964.

LANGER Carl and Anna

Carl Gustav Langer and his brother Paul came to the Eckville district about 1902 from Estonia. They filed on homesteads about 1903, five and one half miles north of Eckville on the east side of the road. Carl homesteaded the NW 10-40-3-W5. and Paul on the SW 10-40-3-W.

Anna Teener arrived, also from Estonia, a while later. Anna was a relative of the Kinna family. Her sister Emma Tomingas and John Tomingas family homesteaded a short distance west across the Medicine River, later known as the Eric Bardenhagen place. Carl Langer and Anna were married about the year 1909.

Up until this time Carl Langer worked to clear a little bit of land by hand and ax to try to get a start. This was done a little at a time, in between other jobs that he could get to have some income, as there was none from the farm.

Some of the neighbors and he worked on the railroad off and on. A lot of the time at Banff and Kanaskis, where the railroad was being built at the time. Travelling by hand car from Banff where they were staying, to their work on building the railroad, and in the winter shoveling snow by hand to clear tracks that were drifted. Besides all this there were buildings of sorts started on the farm, all out of logs cut from the homestead. Farming started with two or three cows, chickens and maybe a pig and eventually horses, by which all the work was done.

Horses were the most popular mode of work and travel. Once in a while a trip to town was done by democrat along a dusty winding road around every slough and pot hole on the way and fording streams. Before the democrat and horse many trips to town had to be on foot. The get together with neighbors or berry picking.

Around the year 1908 Carl Langer and his brother Paul Langer purchased a steam engine and a threshing machine, by mortgaging their homesteads and everything else they owned, as there was very little cash available. This was the only machine for threshing in the area, and the farmers who had a crop had to cut it into bundles and put it in stacks in the fall. The threshing outfit went around to each farm and threshed the grain from the stacked bundles.

The first few years of the Langer Brothers operation they threshed crops for the farmers all winter long, all the way from Sylvan Lake to the Leedale area, moving the separator with the steam engine. When the snow got deep they had four or six horses hitched to the front of the steam engine to help move it from farm to farm would go along and pitch bundles, haul grain and haul water and firewood for the steam engine. They kept on threshing till everybody's crops were threshed. The threshing from the bundle stacks required about eight men and when they threshed the bundles stooked in the fields it required about six to twelve teams of horses with bundle racks, two field bundle pitchers and two spike pitchers at the machine. The steam engineer was Paul Langer, who had to have a government qualified boiler engineer's certificate, the water hauling man, who usually handled the wood for fuel for the boiler and a separator man, Carl Langer, to set and adjust the threshing machine, a total of about eighteen to twenty men. Usually the outfit worked short handed as help wasn't always available for a full crew.

The separator was a new Case 36 inch machine, about $1200. The steam engine may have been a Sawyer Massey used steam tractor about $500. Horses were worth about $100, cattle about $30. Threshing wages were about one dollar a day and a dollar a day for a team of horses. As there was very little money to be had most of the work was done and paid by exchange by doing a days work for a days work in return, or payment in grain or feed. A very neighborly feeling persisted and everybody pitched in and helped wherever it was needed. When the work was done they didn't ask for pay, because there wasn't any. Usually a thank you was all they got and usually were very happy and rewarded from the visit and the company of other people.

A three furrow breaking plow was also purchased and some plowing was done with the steam engine but this was not too successful as it required a lot of help to operate and the land too small for this type of operation. The steam engine threshing went on till about the year 1929 when Carl purchased a new Wallis gas tractor with extension wheels and steel lugs for $1240, which was used for threshing and other work. The steam engine was sold to Bill Dirsten for his lumber mill at the north end of Sylvan Lake.

Horses were the most popular mode of work and travel up until then. Carl Langer, Fritz Kinna and Charlie Raabis built a brush cutter that was drawn by about six horses. This made land clearing a little easier. The men had to build everything for this machine, even the cutter blade. They had to cut a saw-tooth edge on the cutter blade with chisels and hammers.

These three men along with their neighbors were instrumental in building the first roads in their area with two horse slips and four horse slips or fresnos for moving the earth. Spade and shovel and ax cut trees from alongside the road for corduroy base in soft places in the road and for culverts. Roads usually had to be built around sloughs - the easiest route. There were also a few teams of oxen used in the road work and seen traveling on the trail. One homesteader in the area had one horse and one oxen and he worked with this odd team for many

In about 1920 a small Cletrac track tractor was purchased for farm work, but many a morning when the old Cletrac gas engine wouldn't start the horses were still there and more reliable at that stage of mechanical machinery.

In about the year 1917 an Everet touring car with water proof removable or folding roof removable curtains with celluloid windows, car vacuum tank for keeping a steady flow of gas was purchased. This may have been the first car in the district.

The Langers were active in getting the Estelaan school built and operating, for many years an institute of learning. It was located on the north east corner of the Langer land. Here the children of the district received their first learning. They were also actively involved in the building and operation of the Estonian Hall as a community center.

The Eckville and Gilby Co-operative Co. Ltd. was registered as a company with limited liability and a capital of $10,000 on September 17, 1912. The first Provisional Board of directors and the first seven share holders were. President — E. M. Matchett — farmer. Vice Pres. — Fritz Kinna — farmer. Sec. Treas. — Arthur E. F. Eckford — farmer. Director — Carl Langer — farmer. Director — R. Stopeen — farmer. Director — A. Rangen — farmer. Director — C. Kasper — farmer. Witnessed by Archibald Lutt, Eckville, Alberta, who was the first manager.

Carl and Anna Langer had a family of six sons and one daughter.

Paul Leonhard — farming in the district, was married to Velma Gyori on November 24, 1938. They had a family of two sons and two daughters. Beverly Mrs. K. J. McKenzie, is a teacher for the Calgary Board of Education. Paula works for the Alberta Government Telephones in Calgary. Kenneth farms in the district. Leslie passed away in 1964 and is buried in the Gilby cemetery.

Arthur — operated a hardware business in Eckville for 28 years and installed and operated a coin laundry and car wash in the town. He is now retired.

Robert — married Weema in 1938, had two sons and one daughter. Robert in British Columbia, married with two children. Myrna in British Columbia, married with one daughter. Gregory in Edmonton. Robert was in store business and real estate in British Columbia, now retired.

William Richard — farming in the district with his brother on the original Langer homestead.

Arvey — farming in the district on the original homestead.

Laura — Mrs. Walter Olsen, living five miles south of Eckville. They have a daughter, Barbara, who works in a Doctor's office in Calgary and a son, Barry, who is working overseas in the oil industry, and is presently in Scotland.

Elmer — passed away in 1918.

Carl, Anna and Elmer are buried in the Gilby Cemetery, which they also helped to locate and to start and maintain, along with their pioneer friends and neighbors.

John Teener, Anna Langer's father homesteaded the land now belonging to the Thubron family. John Teener reached the age of 70 years in the 1920's and sold his land and retired, receiving a Government pension at the age of 70, which was at that time the grand sum of $8 per month. He was taken in by the Langer family and lived the rest of his life with them. He immigrated to this area from Estonia and was buried in the Gilby cemetery.

LANGER, PAUL

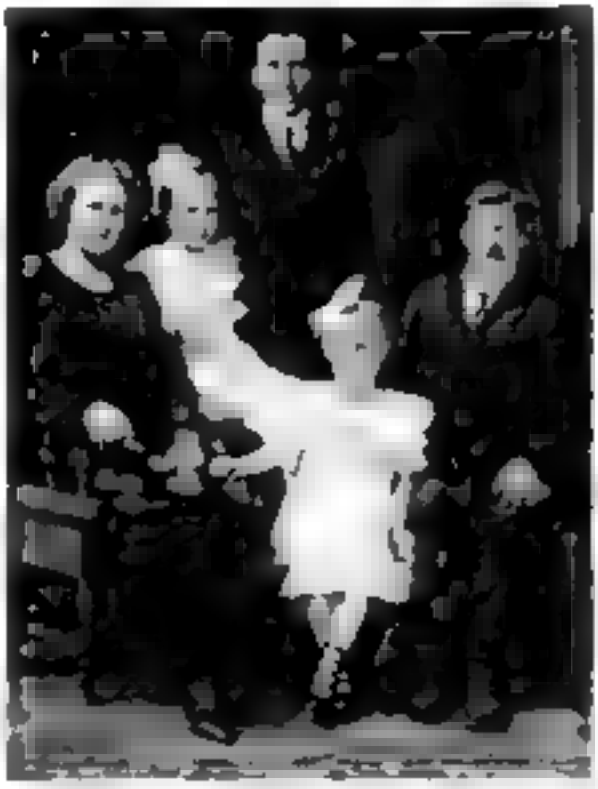
Paul Langer arrived in Canada as an immigrant around 1905, coming from Samerpalu Voru, Estonia, Europe. He bought the SW 10-40-3 W5 from Mr. Paul Koot, who had acquired it as a homestead, but had decided to return to his native homeland to rejoin his family. His plans were changed in a hurry when he got to Red Deer and received a letter in the mail stating that his family was already on their way to Canada. Paul Langer also bought the adjoining SE 10-40-3 W5 from the Armstrong brothers. About 1912 or 1913 he built a comfortable home on the first quarter of land he had bought.

Paul married Lydia Perler and they had a family of three girls: Erna, Alfina and Hazel. A son Felix died as an infant. (Lydia's history and that of their children is written under the heading of Peter Perler and Family.)



Mr. and Mrs. Paul Langer. Erna, Alfina, Peter Perler, Hazel Langer + Evelyn.

Paul was very active in community affairs being one of the founding members of the Eckville Co-operative Association, a member of the U.F.A., and helped with acquiring the Eckville Mutual Telephone Association. He was also active with the Estonian school affairs, this school being located on his brother Carl's land. In any community project he was always a willing helper.

Paul and his brother Carl, who owned and lived on the N 10-40-3-W5, together owned and operated a steam grain threshing outfit Paul operated the steam engine and his brother was separator man. This was one of the first steam threshing outfits west of Red Deer at the time and they threshed grain for farmers as far east as Sylvan Lake and many miles north west and south of Eckville. They threshed, starting in the fall and continuing almost until spring, as farmers had smaller fields those days and had their grain cut into sheaves and stacked so that winter threshing was possible. Both Paul and Carl were very mechanically inclined and Carl was also a very good blacksmith. He had a good shop on his farm for their own use, which still exists to some extent and is used by his sons. Minor repairs were no problem for Paul and Carl — they didn't have to make the time-consuming trip to Red Deer for repairs All farming was done by horses in the early years and Paul raised and trained all his own horses

Paul liked fishing and he and his fishing partner, Mr Harry Thomas of the Gilby district would take off with a team of horses and a sleigh with grain tank, also feed for horses and self to ice fish with nets at Buck Lake about seventy five or eighty miles to the north, returning about 10 days later with several hundred pounds of jumbo white fish — not the small ones as are caught today The fish were frozen and packed in snow to keep, as there were no deep freezers in those days

Paul died in 1938 in the prime of life, just as many big changes were to take place in our country and which would have interested him very much

THE MATT LIIKALA FAMILY

Matt and Matilda Liikala came over from Vaasa, Finland in 1909 and settled in Manyberries, Alberta on a half-section of homestead land. They had six children when they came from Finland — Femmi, Ivar, Hilda, Ike, Bill and Emil. While they lived at Manyberries Toivo was born in 1912 and Ed in 1915, as well as two other boys who died as infants.

Matt Liikala had a small blacksmith shop on his property and did work for everyone around Manyberries. His equipment was an old fanning mill case for a blower and a piece of railroad iron for an anvil. The other tools were all hand made.

In 1924 Matt and Matilda moved to Frontier, Saskatchewan, taking Ike, Ivar, Emil, Toivo and Ed with them. They rented land there and Matt had a blacksmith shop. Toivo and Bill started to learn the trade there at quite an early age. Bill and Toivo also tanned hides and made saddles, bridles, chaps and lariats. There was a family in Leedale, Alberta who had one of these saddles a few years ago. Times were rough during those years, and everyone pitched in and did what he could.

Matt Liikala passed away in 1926 in Saskatchewan, and Emil passed away in 1929. He died of a ruptured appendix, as it wasn't easy to get to a doctor in those days.

In 1934 Matilda Liikala, Bill, Toivo and Ed moved to Sylvan Lake. They lived there for only a few months before buying NE 35-39-3-W5 from the CPR. This land was seven miles north-east of Eckville and they moved there to make their home. Toivo and Bill had a small shop on the farm and did welding and blacksmith work as well as some farming. They also had a sawmill and did custom work for people. They also built at least 15 sawmills for other people.

In 1939 Bill went to work in a shop in town and worked here until 1944. He went into the sawmill business with Charlie Johnson on Reg Whaler's place west of Gilby for a while. Ed and Toivo were on the farm with their mother while Bill was away. Toivo did shop work and Ed did mechanical work.

There was just an old house on the farm when they bought it, so in 1941 they built a new house. Toivo did most of the building himself. In 1949 Toivo and Bill started building a new shop on the farm — a building 32 feet by 62 feet. After it was finished they had a better place to work. The shop wasn't finished until after Bill had gone, so Toivo did most of this building, too.

In 1949 Ed married Violet Johnson and they moved across the road from the home place, and still are living there. They had four sons — Leslie, Richard, Leroy and Russel. None of the boys are married yet, and all are out working.

In 1950 Toivo married Mary MacDonald, who had three children from a previous marriage. The children were Norman, David and Judy, and in 1954 Toivo and Mary had a daughter, Barbara. Norman is married to Jean Paoni and they have four children and reside in Oliver, B.C. David is married to Donna Blair and they have five children and live in Rocky Mountain House. Judy married Maurice Charron and they live in Devon, Alberta. They have two children. Barbara married Raymond Ponto and they live at Worsley, Alberta and have two children.

Bill also was married in 1950 to Hilja Huhtala who had five children from a previous marriage. They had a daughter, Millie, who is married to James Postl and they are now living in Red Deer. The next youngest daughter, Helen, is married to Allan Postl and they live in Eckville. The other three live in Saskatchewan. Another girl, Elaine, lives at the coast. After his marriage Bill moved to Eckville in 1950 and worked for Chester Kasha for about four years. They then moved to Rocky Mountain House where Bill worked for Wally Mollus for a few years, and then they moved to the coast. They came back to Eckville in 1965 and Bill worked in a shop again. He passed away in November of 1975. Hilja now lives in Vancouver.

Toivo and Mary sold the farm in 1961 and bought an acreage at Eckville. Toivo went into partnership with Albert Ojala on a shop and they built up a good business. In 1966 Toivo sold his share of the shop to Albert. He and Mary then sold their property and moved to Oliver, B.C. where they bought an acreage. Toivo worked in a shop in Oliver for a year but then built his own shop on his own property, two miles north of Oliver and is still working in the shop five days a week and still enjoys it.

Femmi Liikala married Henry Kakkinen in Manyberries. Their two children were Toivo and Vivian. Henry Kakkinen passed away and a few years later Femmi and her son Toivo Kakkinen moved to the area northeast of Eckville. Femmi passed away in 1965 and Toivo passed away in 1975. Vivian married Emil Stober and they had three children. They still live in Manyberries.

Hilda married Arthur Bodle and moved to Minnesota, U.S.A. They had four children —

Wilbert, Fred, Vivian and Russel. Both Hilda and Arthur have passed away.

Ivar Lukala married Aino Lahtinen in Frontier, Saskatchewan and they lived there until moving to Port Kells, B.C. Ivar passed away in the early 1940's. They had two daughters, Wilma an Edna, who are both married and live at the coast. Their mother, Aino, is still living there.

Ike married Celia Jutha in 1929 in Medicine Hat, then moved to Minnesota, U.S.A. and from there to Laurel, Montana where they still reside. Ike was a railroad engineer for 26 years. They have a daughter, Malda, who is married and lives in Dickinson, North Dakota, U.S.A., and a daughter, Lillian, who is married and lives in Libby, Montana, U.S.A.

Mrs. Matilda Lukala was a midwife while living in the Manyberries area, and helped to bring many babies into the world. She passed away at Eckville in the mid-1950's.

LUKALA, WILLIAM AND HILJA

Bill was born on September 4, 1904. Hilja was born on April 29, 1910 at Manyberries. In 1935 Bill, his mother and two brothers, Toivo and Ed moved to the Eckville district, purchasing the NE 1-40-3-W5. This quarter was formerly owned by the Harold Flanky family.

Bill was a blacksmith by trade, a very good one I'm told), so he opened a shop on the farm. The neighborhood farmers could always rely on Bill to repair their machinery.

In 1950, Bill and Hilja (Michelson) Mustala were married. They were blessed with three daughters, Elaine, Helen and Millie. The girls took their schooling in Vancouver, Rocky Mountain House, and Eckville. This is where Bill worked in a blacksmith shop.

Elaine is Mrs. Tadosuuk of Red Deer, Alberta. Helen is now Mrs. Allen Postl. She owns Helen's Beauty Shop in Eckville. Millie, Mrs. Jim Postl, is also a hairdresser.

Bill passed away in 1975 at the age of 71 years, and is buried in the Eckville Cemetery. Hilja resides in Vancouver, B.C.

LUOMALA HISTORY — By Anne Parkkari

John Emil Luomala, was born in Teuva, Vaasanlavi, Suomi (Finland) in 1880. At the age of 21 years he was converted to Christ in a Salvation Army meeting and came to North America in 1901. He settled in Quincy, Massachusetts, U.S.A. from where his brother also came.

First he worked in a granite rock-cutting and polishing firm. In 1905 he entered Lay College in Quincy, Massachusetts for three years to prepare for the ministry of the Gospel. His first pastorate was in Thomaston, Maine, U.S.A., with preaching points also in Longcove, Maine and Cambridge, Massachusetts. In 1910 he made a preaching tour that took him across the country to Winlock, Washington State, U.S.A. In 1911 he came back by Toronto, Ont. and remained to Pastor the Finnish congregation. He was ordained in the Knox Presbyterian College in 1914.

Alma Konni was born in Kearle, Suomi in 1875 and in the turn of the century came to Canada along with many relatives. They were nearly all tailors by occupation. A cousin, Adiel Saaremaki, was Finnish Consul for many years. Alma attended the Finnish College in Hancock, Michigan, U.S.A. for about one term in 1909. About 14 years later we learned that our neighbor, Mrs. Mary Hoglund, had also attended the same college a year or so earlier and her picture was in the College history book. She was then Mary Anderson. Alma went back to Finland to start a match factory, which failed, so she returned to Toronto in 1912, just missing passage on the Titanic.

John Luomala and Alma Konni met and were married in July, 1912. A daughter was born in September, 1913, Anne Elizabeth. Another daughter, Ina Johanna, was born on March 13, 19

In 1917 we moved to Troy, New Hampshire, U.S.A. where Father pastored the Congregational Church among the Finnish people. Milford was also included and it was there that son, John Rufus, was born on May 4, 1917.

On July 19, 1919 we came to Alberta, Canada to Eckville, where Father accepted the pastoral duties among the Finnish Presbyterians in Kuusamo, Brightview and Manyberries. Young Peoples Hall, three miles east of Eckville, was the building used for services. We first arrived at Reikki's home for a few days. Many were the happy visits that we had there, along with some thrilling rides we had in Esther's car. This was an open car so some rides were cold. We also enjoyed listening to Sadie playing the piano. One piece, particularly, which was 'In the Sweet Bye and Bye' with variations.

Afterwards we were at Toivonen's and for some reason, Mother and we children walked the half-mile to the parsonage that was located two miles east of Eckville. It seemed like a long, long country half-mile for us, this first view of our new home. We often went to Toivonens for sauna and we had so much fun. Mrs. Lempi Toivonen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Maki, and the Viitalas were friends we visited often. In fact the first birthday present of a box of chocolates I remember getting was from Mrs. Maki and she rode horseback four and one-half miles to buy it. It was my seventh birthday.

In 1921 Father bought 13 lots in Sylvan Lake thinking to build and move closer to a school for the girls. But we lived with August Staudinger's that winter and were close to school as it was almost behind the school. However, when spring holidays came, we moved back to the parsonage and were taken the three miles to Salma school and then later drove a single horse and cutter. At this time the piano was sold to Martha Isaacson. Mother had taught me the notes when I was seven. My sister and I had also learned to read and write Finnish before we learned any English at school. We used to enjoy our visits to the Nick

Isaacsons, too, for there were children our age particularly Helen Mary and Isaac They had a wooden horse swing we enjoyed, as well as the lake They were a hard-working family, hauling wood for fire wood and selling it in Sylvan Lake They also raised acres of potatoes for sale I remember that tragic night when Mrs Isaacson the mother, was taken by ambulance to the hospital where she died, leaving Mary and Isaac the youngest children, only four and two years old. Then Martha came from Finland a fine looking lady and married Nick and mothered the family of four that were still home

In 1923 Father bought a quarter section of very hilly and muskeg-covered land from a Moro family who went to Russia So in the spring, at a very muddy time, we moved. Father drove one team with a load and I drove another team and load behind him along a trail that wound around trees and steep hills and muskegs It was an unforgettable and frightful experience for me to see the horses claw and struggle so desperately to pull the load up such muddy and steep hills Also, the road tilted so steeply that it seemed as though we would be dumped, but we never were This move to the farm was an unforgettable experience for all of us. The home was a one-room log cabin which was old Garter snakes were everywhere one even curling around a flower pot on the windowsill and falling down the wall between the logs and the beaver board that was our kitchen corner The following year we had pigs running loose and that is when the snakes disappeared, with only occasionally one seen in the raspberry patches we earnestly picked every summer We also picked wild strawberries, high bush cranberries and blueberries some years Sometimes some of us got a ride to pick low-bush cranberries west of Rocky Mountain House. My sister and I always got the cows home going with bare feet all summer From a section of C P R land with heavy bush and a section of school land. Also we all were hard at work at haying time, making hay out of the slough

That first summer we moved onto the farm Father was sorely tried. At a very rainy time Father was flat on his back with lumbago. During the heaviest rain all our five horses ran away. My sister and I tried to look for them, but the forests were too strange and fearful for us to venture very far Father started looking for them when he was still not well, but we never found them. He still tried to preach but the farm took much time and energy, so this part of his life became a now-and-then thing for the rest of his life

After struggling with steep hills he thought he'd like a farm that was level and nearly open and so he purchased the quarter section that Saima school was on. So we were again going to Saima school after two years at Estonian school At this time we boarded the school teacher Miss Atsinger for one term We girls were the janitors then. Miss Atsinger went to school early and usually made the fire. Very nice! In the meantime Mr and Mrs. Ensign were renting and living on our hilly farm and their nephew Ray helped father clear some brush. However after two years Father gave up this farm and we moved back to the hills So we were going to Estonian school again

This time we didn't go into the log house, as Father bought and moved a newer log house from Mr Kandelen. This was moved from across the road from Saimi school onto the same knoll on which we used to live. Father made an upstairs on it and soon moved a bathhouse on the north side for a kitchen, and still later a log addition to the west side, for another bedroom. So as the family was growing so was the house and eventually we had a lot of room

It was about this time that radios were coming into the homes so Father bought a two-piece Westinghouse radio so we could listen to William Aberhart every Sunday afternoon. Mr and Mrs Nelson and Eunice Wells came often to hear him our place In 1929 Father sent Anne to the Bible Institute, which was now two years old, for one term. Ernest Manning was one of the teachers. Ina took grade ten in Eckville first riding horseback and then she boarded at Mr and Mrs Hopkins' She finished high school in Dickson

The winter of 1930 and 1931 was an open, mild and snowless winter Then in March it was hot and sultry The sky was red with clouds and smoke from forest fires west of Rocky Mountain House, so the sunshine was like a full eclipse At five o clock one afternoon a very fierce wind suddenly came up so you couldn't see any distance for dust and straw flying It turned into snow and snow fell for many days, making the month of March a real winter month. The following summer there was no wild fruit to pick

In 1933 Anne and Andrew Parkkari were married and living west of Innisfail in the Gordon school district. Then in 1935 they moved onto Mr and Mrs. Peter Nelson's quarter section which they had purchased a year earlier. The farm location is SE 12-40-3-W5. Their son, Andrew Douglas, was born in October, 1937. In January 1945, their daughter, Nancy Ann was born.

In the fall of 1945 Mr. Lachlan Maclean began services in the neighborhood and the following year the church known as Sunshine Gospel Mission was built. In the spring of 1949 we attended church at Eckville in Covlin's home by the Church of the Nazarene, and a year later helped build that church in Eckville. The first pastor there was Russell Quantz, and two other brothers have also pastored there. We attended church there for 20 years.

Around this time brother Jack and friends Charlie and Art Bott and Gloria Lapp were heard on CKRD radio, singing western songs and hymns once a week for a year.

In 1939 there was a young minister, Alex Koski who came now and then to hold church services among the Finnish people and about this time also was a young lady, Jenny Ecola, who held services. There were other ministers for shorter periods of time.

Alex at first walked, then he got places with a bicycle and then by horseback. Eventually he graduated to an open car of antique vintage. Jenny Ecola graduated from the Camrose Lutheran College in 1940.

In October of 1956 Father was hospitalized and was there for two weeks before passing away on November 9. Four years later, in March, Mother passed away in 1961. Three years later Andrew passed away very suddenly on October 9, 1964. Anne sold the farm in 1972 moving to Sylvan Lake in May of 1973.

Ina and her husband, Art Lochrem, live at Eagle Hill, 18 miles west of Olds, and Jack and his wife, Barbara, live at Trout Creek Summerland, B.C.

MacKENZIE, EDDON AND KATE — by [illegible]

We were farming in the East Coulee district during the very dry years and our crops were very poor, so we decided to move to the Eckville district. On May 10, 1936 Simon, myself and our two small sons crossed on the ferry at East Coulee (we had waited two weeks for the ice to go). We loaded all our belongings in a big truck and started on our journey. There were only dirt trails at that time and it was very dark when we reached the Estonian School. The road was very wet from the spring runoff and we got stuck. We had to walk the rest of the way, carrying what bedding we needed and the two boys between us and the truck driver. It was quite a shock the next morning to see the sun shining through every crack in the walls of the shack that was to be our home. With the aid of our good friend, Joe [illegible] we got tar paper and lining for the inside and by fall we were very snug and ready for winter.

For the first while, it was very lonesome for me. I had never lived in the bush and had never been very far from home. One afternoon a knock came at the door and there stood two little girls. They greeted us and told us their names were Phyllis Palm (now Erickson) and Sylvia Mickelson. They said they just dropped in on their way home from school to welcome us to their district. It made us feel very welcome indeed. In a short while we got to know our closer neighbors and came to enjoy their wonderful [illegible] baths. It seemed everyone had one, as there was no plumbing in those days. At that time our neighbors were: the Lappe, Tolonens, Stenvigs, Newmans, Jack Wuori, Hoglunds, Luomalas, Parkkaris, Langers, Moos, Pontos, Palms, John Lepisto, Scowens, Andy Harvilow and August Piuso, s.

We were very busy as there were only 25 [illegible] cleared on our quarter. Simon, with the help of the boys and myself, cleared a lot by hand. He would grub the roots and fell the trees, cut the branches, which we would pile and then burn. These were good years, and we eventually added a girl and a boy to our family. The children all went to the Estonian School and after Grade 8, they were bused to Eckville. Simon was a blacksmith by trade and was able to make an [illegible] sharpening plow shares and axes. Money was [illegible] came the war and Simon was gone for five long years. I stayed on the farm and with the help of our good neighbors, and with the sewing circle to help pass the time, we managed. We rented out the farm land but continued to milk cows and raise pigs. After the war things continued to be tough, but we were able to get a better house and more land, and raised our family until they were ready to be on their own

Duncan married Shirley Emmett and they have three children. They are now living in Calgary

Margie married Noel Stevenson. They have a boy and a girl, and are living just outside Red Deer

Bill and Dave took over the home place, and we are semi-retired, enjoying camping and fishing out west every chance we get We really have seen changes from 1936 to 1977 We now have paved roads, plumbing in all the houses, phones, two stores to buy groceries in Eckville, a hardware, drug store and the hope of a new hospital with there already being a lovely lodge for the senior citizens. All in all, Eckville has been a good place to live and raise a family

MACKIE, GABRIEL

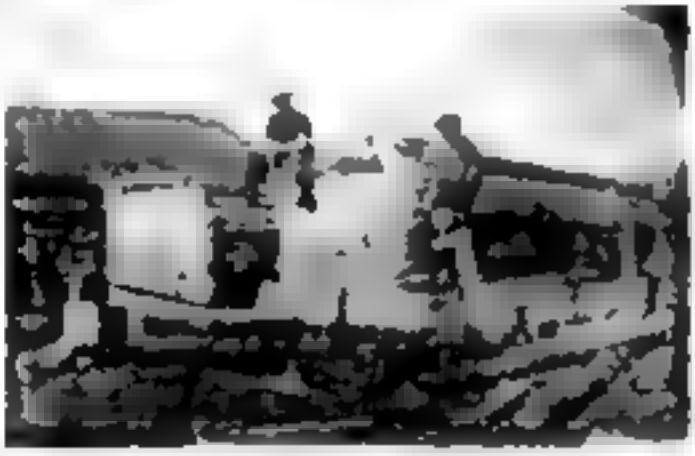
In 1905, Mr Gabriel Mackie arrived in Eckville from Butte Montana and after building a log cabin sent for his wife, daughter Katherine Lempi (who later married Pete Tolvanen) and infant son Bill They homesteaded on a farm four and one half miles northeast of Eckville in an area that was quite hilly, with lots of trees, and some sloughs Therefore, grain farming was limited and the main source of income came from dairy livestock, poultry and eggs. There was a good crop of hay from the marshlands bordering the sloughs and the wooded area made excellent pastures

Building of roads in this area was quite a problem especially near the sloughs, and the only way to keep vehicles from sinking out of sight was to build a road bed and then lay small logs across this and cover it with a shallow layer of soil This type of road was called corduroy

Bill was a proud owner of a new Model T Ford in the mid 1920's, Driving in that area was limited to dry weather only, because if it rained, it was impossible to get up the numerous hills and through the marshland areas

Bill also built his own radio set which was battery operated and had a loud speaker and was one of the very few residents to have one Consequently, Saturday evening was a good opportunity for the neighbors and friends to come over for a sauna, visit, and partake of coffee and goodies and listen to the unbelievable wonder of the radio. To the amusement of all it was able to bring in stations as far away as Salt Lake City (KSL) Denver (KOM) and Mexico on occasions

Gabriel Mackie Family Daughter Lempi Katherine Mackie Tolvanen Father Mackie and small daughter



Reino and Bill Mackie hauling one of logs

Another son Reino was born on the homestead in 1907 Both Mr and Mrs. Gabriel Mackie passed away in 1927 and Bill and Reino continued the farming operation Bill later decided to work as a carpenter until the early 1940's when he moved to Vancouver Island B.C. He later moved to Vancouver where he retired and still resides

Reino continued farming until the 1940's when he made the decision to sell the farm to Mr and Mrs. Mike Raaman and then moved to Vancouver While there, he married Flo Mitzner and they later retired to Vancouver where Reino passed away in 1973. Flo still resides in Vancouver

MADSEN, BOB AND HAZEL — by Hazel [illegible]

We bought the Gilby Store in June 1974 and sold in September 1977 to go farming northeast of Rimbey

After Bob had worked 18 years for the city of Calgary, 11 as foreman we acquired a quarter section north of Leslieville in 1966 and farmed for five years

We have three girls which includes a set of twins. They are Pauline married to Neil Godlonton, who is with Calgary Power at Rimbey Their children are Travis, Troy and Karen. Charlotte is married to Lyle Attwood. They and their children, Brent and Trisha, live in Calgary Louise Schultheas also lives in Calgary

Standing alone on a country road was the Gilby Store. From this stemmed the friendly helpful and appreciated attitude of those who shopped there. Something only found in a rural

The most pleasing thing that comes to mind are the visits from people coming to the store They didn't rush in, buy something and rush out but would take a few minutes to chat with us Then there were the times there would be a meeting at Gilby Hall. Some early arrivals would gather, in the store, to wait for the hall to open. Winter would find them standing over the floor register to get warm. Often, when folks had visitors they would take time to bring them to the store and introduce them to us. Tourists, who stopped to shop, would always come to see us when in the vicinity There wasn't a day passed but the store was filled with laughter caused by someone's amusing anecdotes and experiences

[illegible] thought the world of We saw them as babies and by the time we left most of them were tall enough to show their beaming faces over the counter I've lost count of the number of babies I've had the pleasure of weighing on the scales. We were always pleased to give each new baby born a box of Pampers which was a delight to the mothers

Gilby Store was a gas station selling gas, bulk oil and propane. It was also a general store selling groceries, drugs, hardware and miscellaneous clothing We introduced novelties and T-shirts with 'GILBY' and a picture of an oil pump printed on them. These proved popular and we were told of a T-shirt being seen in Japan

The joy and pleasure we experienced the short while we ran Gilby Store, no words can explain

MATTEUS, ADAM AND ANNA — by Erna Doig, a Daughter

Adam and Anna Matteus were early pioneers of the Eckville district. Their lives began in Estonia, a small country on the Baltic Sea. The closest city was Tartu

Anna's father, a government forest warden was clubbed and robbed while delivering a payroll. His team of horses turned the shay around on their own, and brought him home. He recovered consciousness, but never recovered from the blow. This left Maria Sonnotar a widow with five daughters and a son. Although she received a small government grant she was not able to raise all the children at home, and Anna was raised by foster parents. Because of her heritage she was entitled to four winters of schooling, and thus learned to read and write. That was a status that very few women hoped to attain in those times.

Adam was the oldest son of a land owner and was in line to inherit the land. He also was able to read and write. He had met Anna and decided she was to be his wife, so lost no time in courting and winning her hand. At 17 years of age Anna was married to Adam and began her married life in his crowded family home, a home that sheltered five other families. The land, about 12 acres, had every inch under cultivation to keep food on the table. Anna found it hard to adjust to this crowded life. She was a tiny woman, only four feet ten inches tall, but she was very courageous and determined not to let anything in life put her down.

At the turn of the century, on December 26, 1900, their first son was born. He was named August and two years later, on September 23, his brother Elmer was born. Adam had to leave his bride to finish two years of military service in Russia. This training was compulsory and there was no way to avoid it. Rumors of Russia preparing for war were the deciding factor in Adam's decision to immigrate to Canada. His military training would certainly require him to fight for Russia, and, as a peaceful farmer, he chose to take his family to the new land of plenty that his friend, Henry Kingsep, had chosen. Mr. Kingsep's glowing letters assured him that in Canada he could acquire a quarter section of free land from the government and that by making the improvements required would, in time, gain full title to the land with no cash payment involved.

In 1905 Adam, his wife and family, along with his sister Leene and her husband, August Piboo ,a, and their daughter Hilda made the ocean crossing. The sea was rough, there was sea sickness, poor food, overcrowding, lack of sanitation, and numerous quarrels and much bickering amongst the many nationals aboard. Still, the ocean voyage was something to live forever in their memories. Above all, land was the most welcome sight.

Setting foot on Canadian soil was a boost to their spirits and their hopes ran high as they crossed the vast continent by train to Red Deer. That was the terminal, the end of the steel. They were fascinated by the vast tracts of empty land, so different from Estonia, where a small plot was like a pot of gold.

The last 45 miles to Henry Kingsep's homestead was traveled in a hired ox cart. The new immigrants wondered how the driver could find his way, but he wound around forests of cottonwood and aspen, where here and there a wheel track showed. There were no roads.

Their first winter in Canada was spent with their friend. In the spring Adam found what he believed to be a suitable homestead. It turned out to be northeast of Gilby, but there was no Gilby there at that time. After making a makeshift shelter they spaded up enough land to have an ample garden. In that fresh, rich soil their garden responded well. By always working together they managed to dig a cellar where the vegetables could be stored for the winter.

On part of the homestead there were spruce and tamaracks and they cut down enough of the bigger timbers to build themselves a one-room cabin before winter set in again. The cabin had a sod roof and earthen floor and the logs were caulked with moss and clay. A stove was made of rocks, which were plastered with clay. This was used for cooking, heating and baking. A heavy table and a few benches were shaped from logs. Also the beds were shaped from logs and the pieces were held together with wooden dowels. The mattress bags were filled and stuffed plump with dried, fresh hay. To Adam and Anna this was luxury — a home of their own! It had taken work from the first gray streaks of dawn to the last sliver of light in the evening to accomplish the task, but they felt like a king and a queen.

In one corner sat a big barrel of sauerkraut, in the cellar enough root vegetables to put them through perhaps until the new potatoes came in next summer, some dried wild berries, and plenty of wild meat. Rabbits were so numerous they were easily snared along their runways. Grouse roosted in trees around the cabin and just after twilight, with a long pole, they could be knocked down and killed. Their meat was even more delicious than that of the domesticated chicken. Prairie chickens were even plumper and nicer eating but they were difficult to get, as they were more flighty, although they all had very little fear of man.

The most annoying creatures were the coyotes. There were so many of them it seemed like the forests around the cabin were filled with them. When they started howling at night they were weird and frightening. These slinky creatures stole one of Anna's three chickens from right under her nose. These three chickens and one rooster she was guarding almost with her life. She outwitted the coyotes by keeping the chickens within the rising walls of the cabin while it was being built. Even when the family moved in, the chickens had one corner of the cabin until they finished the coop, a dugout in a bluff shored with logs and made warm and coyote-proof. This was finished the first summer. For her efforts, Anna had twenty new chickens, which meant eggs on the table and some left over to sell.

That summer Adam made three trips on foot to Red Deer, each time bringing back a 100 pound bag of flour, dried prunes, and leaf tobacco on his back. Anna was annoyed that he wasted packing space with his leaf tobacco, but there was man from Estonia and, since Adam enjoyed his smoking, she forgave him

That winter, even in the deep snow, they cleared an acre of land. In the spring they dug it up with spades and sowed it to rye. After the garden was sown Adam went to Banff to work on a canal. Anna, with the two boys, gathered in a wood pile large enough to do for the coming winter, tended the garden, and raised more chickens.

Anna was afraid of the roving bands of Indians. Her contact with them came much later when she had a cow and was milking. Three little brown faces were watching her from behind a bush. She gave them a bucket of milk, and they vanished like comets. Next time they came back with a bucket of berries in exchange for milk. The Indians never harmed her.

In the fall Anna harvested the rye, cutting it down with a hand scythe and binding it with straw into small sheaves. When the sheaves were dry and cured, she pounded the kernels out. She removed the chaff by holding a basket of grain high over her head and shaking it out in small amounts. The wind blew away the chaff and the clean kernels fell on a bed sheet, then gathered up to use. The yield was good, but the work was horrendous!

Adam returned from work in Banff with a team of oxen and a two-wheeled cart, also a metal plow share. Now instead of just hand tools and human muscle, there was oxen power, a promise for a faster move forward on the farm.

As the number of animals increased, so did the family, with the following additions. Linda, born November 7, 1907, Felix, born in November, 1909. Erna, born in April 1911. Arnold, born July 22, 1912, Herbert, born on June 13, 1916, and on April 22, 1922 a son, Robert. All these births took place without a doctor.

With more mouths to feed and the need for hay for the livestock, in 1910 Adam purchased a quarter section of land with the Medicine River flowing and winding through it. Another house was built — this time a three-room log dwelling with two rooms for living and the third for storage and a pantry. A slab-board floor and shingle roof — this provided a house that did the family until after World War I.

It was an early and accepted custom that anyone could claim a hay meadow on unoccupied land by cutting the first swath of hay around it. Henry Kinna, living just down the river from Adam, had cut a swath around every meadow. Cutting was done by hand with a scythe and Henry couldn't cut all the hay he had claimed. This made Adam angry, so he bought the land even though it meant two places to work and the farms were two miles apart as the crow flies.

For Anna this division was a strain that sapped her health. Carting the little ones back and forth between the two properties and leaving the older children to fend for themselves throughout the day meant both hardship and heartache. There were still no roads, no real bridges, just the raw wilderness and the rich soil waiting to be broken and cultivated.

The Estonian immigrants settled mainly along the banks of the Medicine River Valley. It was a very close-knit, co-operative settlement, and, working hand in hand, their accomplishments were many. Despite the struggle to survive, education was a top priority. Carl Langer donated the land for the first school from his centrally located farmland. With collective efforts the schoolhouse was built — a large classroom complete with cloak rooms and a teacher's room. Homemade desks and a wood and coal heater were installed and a water fountain that had to be filled each day from the hand pump in the schoolyard. So intense was the interest in education that a pact was made that each family should try to educate one child as a teacher. Their efforts in this commitment were outstanding. Six of the founding families did produce a teaching member, among them August, the first born son of Adam and Anna.

The next co-operative effort was the pioneer Estonian Hall. This was to become the centre for social events.

At Christmas time an ale was brewed from dried bread crumbs, sugar, raisins, and other ingredients. Every family brought something, baking of all sorts, and a must was the glazed braided bread and huge rings of boiled blood sausages. Some small gifts and apples were passed out by Santa to all the children. These were all great luxuries.

At Easter egg boxing was the custom. The person with the hardest-shelled egg who broke the most eggs was the winner. This was done with beautifully decorated eggs.

After August became a teacher he changed the Bible name of Matteus from the Estonian spelling to Matthews, the English spelling. After that the growing family became known as the Matthews family.

Besides teaching, August tuned pianos and taught singing to the school children. Among his activities he had two prize-winning stories accepted by "True Story", a MacFadden

Elmer was inventive. He made a water wheel on the river with a long drive shaft that turned his mother's washing machine. He built a phonograph that earned him the nickname of Mr. Edison". He also made his own radio when radios first came into the country. His biggest community service was the barbed wire phone system he installed.

All of the Matthews family were ill in the epidemic of 1918, but there were no deaths in the family.

In 1920 August and Elmer went to Nordegg to work in a lumber camp. Pooling their earnings from this along with their father's, the new and permanent home was built. A full basement two storey structure was finished in time for Robert to be born in. In 1922. He was the last child in the family of eight children, and this home served all of the family until they left home.

Anna's mother still in Estonia lived to the ripe old age of 96 years, outliving all of her family with the exception of Anna. Anna had hoped to bring her to Canada, but there was never the money to spare. Anna, worn out with work, was laid to rest at the age of 56 years, in the Gilby cemetery.

Adam remained a widower and sold the home farm to his son Arnold. He lived out his remaining years with his youngest son, Robert, and his family in Eckville. At the age of 78 years Adam was laid to rest beside his wife in the Gilby cemetery where so many of the brave and courageous pioneers rest.

MEMORIES OF THE PIONEER ESTONIAN SCHOOL — by Mrs. John M. Tipman

The Estonian School, in the Municipal District of Lacombe, came into existence because of the need of the children of the majority of the Estonian-speaking pioneers who had settled by the Medicine River. Their older children were already nearing their teens and had had no schooling whatever, as there had been no school close by. So, in order to have their children educated and learn the language of Canada, that is English, a school had to be built. A suitable spot was selected in the middle of the community and a school was built in 1910. It was an oblong frame building of lumber, painted blue-gray on the inside and the outside. The school room area was on the east side lengthwise, and the three anterooms, and entrance door were on the west side of the building. The outside door led into the central anteroom and the girls' cloakroom was on the left of this and the boys' cloakroom on the right. But, alas! The boys' cloakroom became the bed-sitting room of the teachers for the first few years. The pioneer homes were too small to provide a "room" suitable for the teacher. He slept and lived at the school and had his meals at the home of a nearby farmer, Mr. Stenvig.

Maybe it is not amiss, at this point, to mention that an additional room was added to the north end of the building in 1920 to form a two-roomed school. Here grades seven to ten were taught for a few years. Later these higher-grade children were taken by school van to Eckville High.

The school room was furnished by wooden homemade double desks, the desk tops were painted black and the seats yellow. The desk tops contained two inkwells — one for each pupil — and below it was a compartment for books. The first heater was a long barrel-like affair, lengthwise on the floor and capable of burning three-foot-long spruce logs. Later on an upright school furnace, with a round metal shield was provided for the school. A one-pail water fountain, with a push-button tap, provided drinking water. This was a delight to us children. Everyone, whether thirsty or not, wanted to push the button and drink the spurting water. The blackboards were just that — boards painted black, with a trough for chalk.

The majority of the children who started their schooling here were children of the Estonian pioneers — hence the name, "Estonian School". Those attending were the Koots, the Kinnas, the Kingseps, the Langers, the Matteus, (later spelled Matthews), the Moros, the Moos', the Postis, the Pihoojas, and Raabis' — all of Estonian lineage. There were two families of Norwegians, the Stenvigs and the Gilbertsons, one family of English, the Dekkers; and also one family of Finns, the Hills.

The first couple of years there was school only during the four summer months, due to the scarcity of qualified teachers. Only University students were available as teachers during the summer months. Later some of the University time passed on, the full ten-month school year was established

The first children who arrived at the Estonian School were bare-foot boys and girls, fresh for their new adventure in life. It was a wonderful adventure as new friendships were formed where no companions had been available before. It did not matter that they couldn't speak with each other, they could hold hands and run and point to a flower, grass or tree, and each would say it in their own language, then each would repeat the other's word and laugh. What a wonderful feeling, just to have someone of another language to share his feelings with you.

It was said that teachers were hard to find for a pioneer school where the children did not know a word of English. Who would like to grapple with the extra problem of the language barrier in teaching? But the first teachers we did get to teach the Estonian school were wonderful. They were resourceful, patient, and had a sense of humour and were very understanding of us.

For our first day of our school we carried only our "lard pail" lunch bucket, a slate, and a slate pencil. The teacher was a tall young man wearing a "suit" and the whitest of white shirts, topped with a red colored tie. His hair was parted on one side and neatly combed. His outward appearance had an electrifying effect on every boy because from that day forward they became conscious that they, too, had hair. Strenuous efforts were made by them to comb their unruly locks into place just like the teacher's, and to be clean like him. To us girls he was from a different world and we wondered if we would ever be part of this outside world.

School days, school days, the golden rule days, taught to the tune of a hickory stick." It seemed that this rule did not apply in this early Estonian school. There was only one rule: Learn English during school hours and on the play ground. We left the room quietly without asking permission, if nature requested, but hurried back so as to miss nothing. Thirst was quenched at the fountain. We lacked the words for asking permission. None of the children ever its appearance except as a "pointer" for words or numbers. The days for us were "Golden".

Now to the actual teaching and learning. Believe it or not, our very first text book was the Eaton Catalogue, and a very good text book it was for that purpose. It had words and pictures of people, clothes, rooms with furniture, curtains, dishes, clocks, horses, harness, sleighs and wagons, houses, barns, and paints. All words and pictures were eagerly absorbed by our receptive minds and repetition etched it permanently there. The whole school repeated each word in unison and then singly. Finally back to our seats to draw on our slates the object and to write the correctly spelled word beside it. The slates were perfect for such work as errors could easily be corrected. Our vocabulary grew by leaps and bounds — it was thrilling to know how many words we learned in a day.

The sentence-building came later and this was more difficult. Our teacher made us act out [illegible]. For example, the child would go and sit on a chair and say "I am sitting on a chair." This acting out each sentence was fun. If some of the children didn't understand the English word, for example "open", the teacher asked for the Estonian word for it. He repeated the word "lahti" after the pupil. His accent often made us laugh and he laughed with us, too. Thus a kinship of understanding and mutual respect grew between teacher and pupil. After sentence building we progressed to the Alexander Readers and then we were on our way.

To further expand our vocabulary the early teachers took the whole school on excursions to the woods, meadows and lakesides. Here we learned to recognize the different types of trees and learn their names. The meadows provided a profusion of wild flowers of every shape, size and color and each with a pretty name. By the lakeside the wild birds were bountiful. We found woodpeckers, red winged blackbirds, robins, snipes, and hawks. The school room possessed a chart, in beautiful colors, of the common wild birds of Alberta. This chart was scrutinized thoroughly after each field trip and the book of wild flowers was examined with care. These we saw, but also a deep respect for plant and animal life.

During the first years our teachers were young men. Then we had a "Lady Teacher". This was a surprise and honor to us. We girls admired her to no end. We aspired to owning with pleats, that opened so beautifully as she

When she taught us girls "hair care" and presented each one of us with a length of red ribbon for our hair we felt we had risen in self respect. Last but not least, we aspired to have a knowledge like hers. But the boys went one step further than us girls, and this irked us because we hadn't thought of it before. They washed their bare feet at the pump before coming into class. We asked the boys why they did this. The reply was, "No one goes before a lady with dusty feet." Believe it or not, we girls were not to be outdone by the boys. We asked the boys to pump water so we too, could wash our faces and bare feet before we entered the school room. There were no towels in the school in those days, so all of us boys and girls dried our wet feet by standing on a poplar log like birds in a row, and let the wind do the work. Cold water and wind caused chapping of the hands and feet but this condition was easily remedied by applying "sweet sour cream" sparingly on our sores every evening. This treatment stung, but who cared? Fresh unsalted butter rubbed on our hands also kept them soft.

The winter months brought the added problem of something hot for lunch. The teacher solved the problem of hot drink by providing hot water and the children were to bring their "tea". Bought tea was hard to get but the teacher was surprised to learn how many different native teas we had. There was camomile and caraway tea made from dried wild seeds of these plants, mint tea, made from dried wild mint leaves and raspberry tea made from the wild raspberry plant. All of these teas were very tasty, but caraway tea became the favorite.

One of the teachers taught us to play checkers during the cold weather, as blackboard games used up too much chalk. Soon the schoolroom boasted of handmade checkerboards of stiff brown building paper, marked by the right colored squares -- the checkermen were colored stiff paper squares, or buttons. This game was really enjoyed by older and younger children alike. After a sitting game like this there followed a fast game of "Pussy Wants A Corner", with the school-room windows open. Or if there was untrodden snow outside, a fast game of "Fox and Geese" was played.

The teachers not only followed the school curriculum but aroused our interest in other fields, such as love of classical literature during our story hours, interest in travel, by telling about their travels or stories about countries they read about. They taught us patriotic, Christmas, Easter and Folk songs to foster our love of singing. We learned how the debate system was used in Parliament, and we often debated on topics familiar to us. Group games in which all participated taught us the importance of fair play, and honor was the aim.

Thus, in six years these Estonian school children had learned to speak English, had covered their eight years of schooling, and were ready to write grade VIII examinations in Red Deer. Some left school without obtaining a diploma, but from this first crop of pioneer children emerged teachers, storekeepers, and flour and lumber millers. Even a baker and a lady doctor had received a partial year's training in the Estonian School.

MICKELSON, AUGUST

August Mickelson was born in Madan, North Dakota, U.S.A. of Finnish parents. At an early age he moved to Manyberries, Alberta with his parents, Matt and Katrina and family in 1910.

In 1920, August was united in marriage to Lempi Luopa, for a short time living in the Manyberries District.

August and Lempi moved to the Eckville District in 1926, buying the John Ness homestead, NE 7-40-2-W5. Their family consisted of Frances, Albert, Ella, John, Sylvia, George, Marvin (deceased), Alan and Nita.

Lempi passed away in the spring of 1947 and is buried in the Eckville Cemetery. August lives on his home in Eckville, and is enjoying his retirement.

CASSIMER MOOS FAMILY

Cassimer Moos emigrated from Switzerland to Montana U.S.A. in 1893. In 1906 he made the trip to Canada with horse and wagon, settling on NW¼ 13-38-2-W5 northeast of Eckville.

Mrs. Lily Molkov emigrated from Estonia as a widow with her two-year-old son, Fred, to live with her sister Mrs. Perler in 1908. Mrs. Perler lived north of Eckville. The following year Cassimer and Lily were married, and in 1910 a son, Hans, was born to them.

They later purchased and moved to NE 4-40-3-W5, which remained their home for many years. Cassimer worked very hard clearing land by hand and working on the railroad with his team of horses. In 1912, when the first Co-operative was formed, he was one of the first directors.

Life gradually became easier. The coming of the telephones in 1917 made life in the country more pleasant. By 1920 they were able to buy their first car -- a 490 Chevrolet touring car. About 1923 Cassimer bought his first tractor. This was a Fordson, which he obtained from a farmer living on the McCreight place. Three years later a gas-powered Rumley threshing machine was purchased in Calgary. These machines helped to make farming easier, so, in 1918 SE-3-40-3-W5 was added to the farm. A few years later the E½ of 33-39-3-W5 was bought.

from the C P R. In 1918 a new house was built and this home is still being used.

Raising sheep was a way of life for the Moos family and there was the wool to card and knitting and quilting to be done. In those days settlers had to go to Red Deer and Lacombe to a doctor or dentist and for the necessary shopping. Since Cassimer had a team of horses, he was able to make the trip in one day. He often gave a lift to neighbors who needed to go, or did some shopping for them.

The boys attended school at Estonian School and as their mother boarded several of the teachers, their attendance was usually very good. Some of these teachers were Miss Benedictson, Mrs. Priestly, Mr. Smith, Mr. Li[illegible]e and Mr. J. M. McDonald. In 1923 Mr. and Mrs. Moos chose a sister for the boys. Her name was Elsie.

These were the years when everyone was a hunter, and Lily tells of the boys using a shotgun on a mouse which they saw crossing the kitchen floor. Entertainment was of the kind that people could make for themselves. Drama clubs were organized, and their productions were shown at various schools and halls. The annual Christmas concert was the highlight of the year in each community, and everyone, from baby to Grandma attended or took part in it. Mrs. Moos often sang "I Love a Little Cottage" and "Smiling Through" to the accompaniment of Miss Benedictson. Elsie took piano lessons from this teacher and Freddie took violin lessons from a Mr. Warbeton. Estonian gatherings, which sometimes lasted as long as a week, were held in the early summer. Each summer they visited a different district, such as Gilby, Stettler, Barons, Peace River, etc. Even the Saturday night steam baths were an occasion for visiting.

In 1930 Fred married Mary Beliecka and moved to his farm one-half mile south of the home place. They had two sons, Donald and Leonard, and a daughter, Jennine. Fred later moved to Eckville for retirement, and passed away there on April 13, 1973.

Elsie married Toimi Tolonen on April 19, 1937

Cassimer Moos with daughter-in-law Mary and his horses and they lived on his farm three miles east. They have a son, Rodney, and a daughter, Deloyce.

Hans carried on with the family farm, adding another quarter in 1929. In 1933 he and Nora Takkinen were married, and they have two sons, Clarence and Edward, and a daughter, Dianna. Hans was able to buy a larger threshing machine, with an Allis Chalmers powering it. For several years he did custom threshing, and the season sometimes lasted as long as forty days. He had purchased a new Ford V-8 car to take his bride on their honeymoon.

A rubber tired tractor was soon added to the farming equipment, and in 1936 he bought a haystacker, which helped to make the job of putting up hay a little easier. It was in this year too that the new barn was built. It was hard to hire men to work on the farms during the war years, so often girls were hired to do the housework in order that the wives could help with the outside farm work. Grain combines first appeared in the district in 1939, a Case pull-type machine for Hans and Masseys for Pete Moro and Harry Thomas.

When the electricity came to Eckville in 1942 Hans bought a 32-volt Delco power plant from Oswald Umarl. This made life on the farm much brighter", and the installation of running water and indoor plumbing a year or so later further helped to make life more pleasant and con[illegible]

Highlights over these busy years were the arrival of Hans and Nora's three children, Clarence in 1934, Edward in 1935, and Dianna in 1938. "All work and no play" was not the rule in the Moos household. Hans and Nora both took part in curling, square dancing, drama clubs, hunting, and blue-berry picking. Hans spent 15 years, from 1959 until 1974, as councillor, first for the M.D. and then for the County of Lacombe. As the family grew up, more land was bought (N½

7-40-W2) and in 1955, when Clarence married Maira Korhonen, the young couple made their home at this location, since Clarence had decided to follow in his father's footsteps and be a farmer. However, they lived with the folks for almost two years, before they were able to build their own house. They have a son, Jerry, and a daughter, Lorraine.

Eddie married Shirley Raabis in 1958 although at the time, he was working on oil rigs. He later came home and started farming in partnership with his dad. A trailer was moved into the yard for their living accommodations. They have five children — Lane, Derek, Sandra, Brenda, and Wesley. The boys are now old enough to help their father a great deal on the farm.

Dianna was married to Keith Misner in 1959 and they moved to Keith's farm located in the Bingley, Alberta area. Their three children are Darrell, Delores, and Donald. Keith lost his life in an accident in 1967. Dianna and the children then moved back home to live with her parents.

In 1963 Hans and Nora built a new house on the farm. They enjoyed living in it until 1971, at which time they bought a house in Eckville and retired there. Retirement for Nora has meant work in her yard and garden, and the curling season keeps her especially busy. The Friendship Club, TOPS, and Hospital Auxiliary activities all get a share of her time. She is a regular visitor at the Eckville Manor House. Hans spends a lot of time at the farm, and sometimes gets in some fishing and hunting. He and Nora usually make at least one trip each summer to B.C. to get fruit while it is in season there. And thus they spend their "retirement".

MOOS, FREDRICK JOHN (MALKOV) — by Rose Henrickson

Fred came to Canada as a small boy with his widowed mother in 1909 at two years of age. They lived with an aunt, Mrs. Perler, until the time his mother married Cassimer Moos. After her marriage they moved to the N.E. ¼ 4-40-3-W5. He grew up on the farm with a brother, Hans, and a sister, Elsie, and farmed with his parents until his marriage to Mary Betukka in 1930. He then moved to farm the E ½ 33-39-3-W5.

In 1933 Fred and Mary had a son, Donald, and in 1935 another son, Leonard, was born, followed by a daughter, Jennine, in 1937.

While farming Fred also operated a trucking business, hauling grain, fuel from Turner Valley, railroad ties to Rocky Mountain House during the winter months, and many other things. Later he moved to Eckville where he held the position of agent for the Searle Elevator for a number of years. After leaving the elevator he took over well drilling from Kerch Bros. and drilled wells in Eckville and the surrounding district. In 1946 he returned to the farm, with his two sons and a housekeeper, Rose Henrickson, and her sma nephew, Perry. While farming he opened and operated the United Farmers of Alberta Service station, along with the Case farm machinery dealership. He worked part-time for Eckville Mutua. Telephones then became a steam engineer at the Bowden Institution until 1969. At his time he had a heart attack, and was unable to work after that.

The farm was rented out for some years. He moved to Eckville in May 1970 to Grannie Moos former home, which Rose Henrickson still occupies. The farm was sold in 197.

Fred passed away on April 3, 1973, leaving to mourn his loss sons, Don of Edmonton and Leonard of Red Deer, his daughter, Jennine, and nephew, Perry of Red Deer, and Rose of Eckville.

Don married Evelyn Hohnstein and their children are Kelvin, Donna and Janice. Leonard married Freda Nelson, who have four children — two daughters, Arlene and Joyce, and two sons, Ralph and Donald. Jennine married Bud Armstrong. They have three daughters — Debra, Danet, and Dalleen. Later she married George Johanson and they have one son, Bret.

MORO, JOHN — by Edward Moro

My parents, John and Anna Moro were part of the first pioneers in the Eckville district.

My father, mother and three children, Peter, eight, Amanda, six, and Edward, four, arrived in Canada from Estonia in 1905. We came to Red Deer by train. From there we traveled by horse and wagon along trails as there were no roads. We settled on a homestead about five miles northwest from the present location of the Eckville village.

We were fortunate that my uncle — Karl Moro — had come to Canada two years ahead of us so we were able to stay with him and his family until our father got our one room loghouse built. To start with living was very primitive. We had a dirt floor, sod for a roof which was not rain-proof. Since there was no source of income, father went to work for the C.P.R. west of Calgary. In the meantime, we had to do with what was available. There was an abundance of fish in the river, also rabbits and prairie chickens in the bush. The only groceries we used to get from the store were — sugar, salt, flour and soap. We also had a cow and a garden plot.

When father returned he was able to buy oxen and other equipment to clear the land. The clearing of the land was hard work and we all had to pitch in. When a few acres were cleared, the breaking was done with the oxen. Also any traveling and hauling was done with the oxen. It took several days to make a trip to Red Deer and back.

In 1912 we were able to build our first three bedroom house. In 1914 when the 1st World War began times were still hard. However, by 1918 farmers had horses and cattle, more land was cleared and we were able to grow more grain. Grain prices had improved. Milking cows was also a good source of income. Milk was hauled to the local cheese factory. By that time many farmers were able to buy their first automobiles. As far as schools were concerned, most of the pioneers' children had to walk many miles to a country school in any kind of weather.

Our social life was quite lively. We used to get together at Sam and Henry Kiesa's farm. An Estonian society was started by the group. We also had a library.

At present, my wife and I are retired and live in Summerland, British Columbia.

Peter bought the N 27-40-3-W5 from his Uncle Karl and the NW 26-40-3-W5, Hudson Bay Land. The Peter Moro family lived on the NW 26 until their retirement to Eckville.

MOTTUS, GUSTAV (1888-1977)

One of the early pioneers of the Eckville-Gilby area, Gustav Mottus in 1910 came by boat to New York City at the age of 21 years from Semerpallo, near Verro, Estonia. He left behind in Estonia his mother Mav Sark Mottus, (his father, Peter Mottus had passed away), sister Katherine and brothers John, Jacob and Paul.

Gustav, or Gust or Gus, as he was known to his friends, said that the ship was an old wooden one, and very crowded, and how he and another immigrant, Hugo Mottus (no relation) would spend the nights capturing the rats and throwing them overboard.

After working in New York State for a few months, he, along with Hugo, the friend he met on the boat, came to Canada to work on an Estonian farm west of Gilby. They wanted to get off at Lacombe but it was not until the train had already reached south Edmonton that they realized they had gone too far! Nothing to do but walk back the 75 miles! They followed the railway tracks, and slept in the ditches at night.

After working on the farm west of Gilby, Gus worked for the town of Red Deer digging ditches for the sewer lines. He thought nothing of walking along rough trails out from Red Deer to Eckville to visit friends, mainly a young lady named Linda Saar Kingsep, and back to Red Deer, a distance of 45 miles, each way.

Gus's brothers, Jacob and Paul, and sister Katherine came from Estonia to join him and together they homesteaded in Risula, about six miles west of Gilby. They cleared the land by hand, because the land was very hilly; they raised wheat where possible on the flat plateaus. There was a beautiful brook at the back of the house with watercress and lady's slipper growing on the banks. A sauna was built beside the brook to take advantage of the fresh, clear, running water.

Gus was never to see his mother and his brother again.

In 1917 Gust married the young lady he had been visiting in the Eckville area. Linda was also from the Estonian community in the area. Their son Edward Rudolph (Rudy) was born there in Risula the following year.

Around that time Gust purchased from the C.P.R. a quarter section of land NW 23-40-3-5 at the other end of the Medicine Valley, about eight miles to the east. He built a log house (which was added to in stages), and in 1923 twin daughters Emma and Elsie, were born there. Grandmother Kingsep was the midwife and the three pound babies were placed in the oven of the wood stove to keep warm.

Gus's brother Paul and sister Katherine (Katy) remained on the Risula homestead. His brother Jacob, was killed on the homestead by a grinding wheel which flew loose while he was sharpening his ax.

On the C.P.R. quarter section Gust now made his home. He cleared the land by hand and with horses. It was gently rolling land and Gust raised wheat, getting something like 32c a bushel. He had five horses to pull the plough, disc, harrow, binder, etc., and the horses were taken care of by Gust with great devotion.

Linda would milk cows and sell thick cream at a little over $2 a big can, and raise and sell strawberries and raspberries.

Preparing the land for the seed grain in the spring would require walking behind the 10 foot wide, horse pulled, harrow — dusty, tiring work in the cold March winds, when there were about 200 acres to criss-cross by foot.

As with other pioneers, Gust had to be very inventive in his farm repair work. He had a blacksmith shop, which was used often for all sorts of ingenious repairs to the farm machinery.

Travelling in summer would be by Model T, a very stylish one with curtains, over dirt roads, which caused much aggravation by becoming muddy when it rained.

In the winter travel was by a team of horses hitched to a big sleigh. Gus would heat a nice big rock in the oven for an hour or two, then wrap it in blankets and put it in the sleigh to keep feet warm. There would be a cushion of straw covered with blankets to sit on. Coming home from a late visit or dance in the Estonian or Gilby Community halls, the stars and the Northern Lights would be very bright and you could hear the crunch of crisp snow under the runners of the sleigh.

Social Credit was the big new political party with Premier Aberhart and then Premier Manning. The party was to remain in power for 35 years, so there was a young generation of Albertans who had known no other political party in power.

In the 1950's Gus and Linda left the farm and lived in the town of Eckville, leaving their son, Rudy, to take care of the farm.

When Linda passed away in 1967, Gus lived in a Senior Citizen's Home in Rocky Mountain House and then moved to one in Red Deer. He was very happy in these homes and lived in great comfort until he passed away in 1977.

MOTTUS, RUDY EDWARD — by Myrtle Patapoff

On March 11, 1919, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Mottus had a baby son — Rudy. They were living on a farm north of Withrow at that time. Later on when Rudy was six years old they moved to the NW 23-40-3W5 in the Gilby district. Rudy along with his twin sisters Elsie and Emma took all his schooling at the Estonian School. He stayed on the family farm and helped his dad farm. Rudy trained in the Army at Red Deer in November and December of 1936. He did not go into service overseas as his dad was in poor health and he was needed at home.

February 16, 1939, Rudy was married to Myrtle Solberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Solberg of Bentley. They lived on the farm with his parents until Mr. and Mrs. Mottus retired to live in Eckville.

Rudy worked at the Eckville Hospital from 1956 to 1964 as their maintenance man. He also was on the supervisory committee for the Eckville District Credit Union for three years. He served on the Estonian school board in the late 1940s.

Five children were born — Arnold now married to Vera Kind and living in Red Deer, has a son Robert and a daughter Kathy; Jean is married to Joe Maki and they live at Hespero. They have two children, a son Stephen and a daughter Lori. Helen is married to Les Davenport. They live in Calgary and have two children, a son Ryan and a daughter Joanne. Cheryl and Angela at home.

Rudy passed away very suddenly on October 2, 1965.

On July 3, 1966 I married Bill Patapoff — born April 17, 1925 at Coaldale, Alberta. He served overseas in the army for four years. He is a head operator at the Gilby Texaco Gas Plant. Bill had five children. Valerie is married to Norman Anderson. They live at Bentley and have two children, Brant and Troy. Debbie at home. Susan is married to Richard Merrifield. They live at Fox Creek and have two children, Jason and Sherri. Nancy deceased October 19, 1976. Douglas lives at Sangudo, Alberta.

JAMES AND MARGARET NELSON — by Leona Tisk, (A Daughter)

The depression, years of dryness, and hail for three successive years forced many families to leave home, farm, and friends for more promising areas. Such were the reasons for Jim, Margaret and their four children, Donald, Douglas, Dean and Leona, coming from Stettler to the Gilby area in the fall of 1938. Jim worked for a few years for his brother-in-law, Carl Westergard, at the Gilby store. He also worked in logging camps during winter months to supplement the family income. Margaret taught at the Medicine Valley School from 1939 to 1942.

About this time they purchased the Kiuna Neuman quarter-section (SE 23-40-3-W5), which has been "home" ever since. Mom taught at the years of quilting bees, making packages for soldiers and so on. I don't remember the work — just the fun of visiting and having friends come to see us. Because there was no church near on Friday afternoons, Mrs. Mackenzie, Granny Hoglund, Faye Hoglund and mom had Sunday School in the Estonian School.

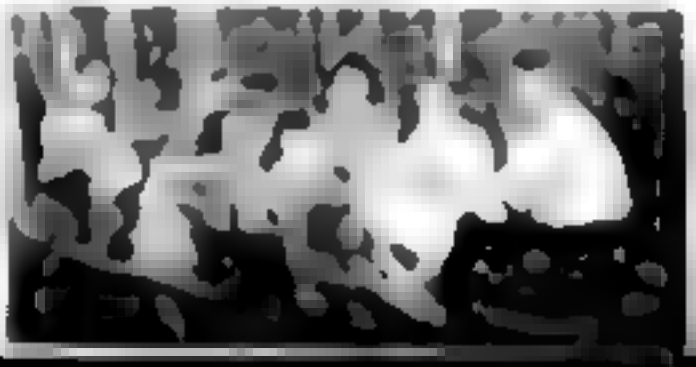
In September of 1946, mom took over the Grade five to eight class at Dickson. Don and Doug were now in high school and Dickson offered grades one to 12, and a teacherage. By this time David and I had helped to round out our family to a happy half-dozen. Each weekend, holiday and summer found us back at Eckville helping dad on our farm and taking a part in the community we called "home." One of the most important areas of our involvement was the Sunshine Gospel Mission, just one and a half miles south of our home, where Mr. L. Macleas met with people of the community in a service each Sunday afternoon. The Christmas concerts and summer picnics were truly memorable events, involving much planning and organizing.



I'm sure. I remember how nicely everyone was dressed, how excited and happy they were, and, of course, the scrumptious food, candy bags and

Home was always a place for friends- baseball games followed by corn feasts, or skiing or tobogganing parties in the winter. Chiefly, however, our neighbours made our area a good one to put our roots down. Our beloved mom passed away on April 14, 1956 and is buried in the Gilby Cemetery.

Dad remains on the home quarter. He has retired from farming and hunting, but keeps busy tending his house and yard, fishing and visiting. Don is a member of the RCMP. He married Eunice Petersen of Dickson. They have three children Brian, Brenda and Bruce and are presently stationed at Yorkton, Saskatchewan. Doug is an aeronautic engineer. He married Bernice Thorkman, daughter of Charles and Sylvia Thorkman of Eckville, and has three children Phillip, Timothy and Kelly. They live in Calgary, Alberta.

Dean is a Major in the Canadian Armed Forces. He married Joyce Sherwood from Unity, Saskatchewan. They have three children Darlene, James and Deanna and are now stationed at Ottawa, Ontario.

Leorna is a registered nurse. She married Dale Cave, originally from the Stauffer area. They have four children Carl, Lorna, Wesley, Grant and live at Eckville.

Lorna received her B.Ed. from the University of Alberta and teaches in Eckville. She married Verral Tink, originally from Lesliеville. They have two children Garry and Gregory and live at Gilby.

David works for Bell Telephones and lives in Hanover, Ontario. He married Nancy Groh of Barrie, Ontario and has two children Daniel and [redacted].

BILL PALM SR. FAMILY

William and Irene Palm were married September 2, 1924 in Red Deer, Alberta. Irene was the former Irene Johanson, the fourth daughter of Eric and Anna Johanson of Bentley. They set up their first home on the Leukonia farm, which was sold to Gust Juuti in a short time. That fall they moved to Palm Bay, on the north end of Sylvan Lake. This was their home for the next one and a half years. Their first son Harold, was born here in 1925.

In 1926 the family moved to the C.P.R. land known later as the Brattberg home, in the Boyle district. During the next three years the family increased to include Leo, born in 1926; Phyllis born in 1927; and Thelma, born in 1929. At this time, Bill started a small sawmill, using a stationary engine. Then, by borrowing $50 from Fred Erickson with an agreement to repay this by doing grinding in return, Bill acquired a Moline tractor from Hans Rangen. This had a five-horse-power Fairbanks Morse upright engine. Bill now operated a larger scale sawmill. Rough spruce and poplar lumber sold for $10 a thousand.

The spring of 1930 was the next move to the present Rodney Tolonen farm, SE 18-40-2-W5. Over the next few years Bill cleared and broke all the acres of land on these three quarters. The family helped by picking roots. While Bill and Irene lived at Palm Bay they had Everitt Makela build them a log house, marked each log, moved these to their new location and then reconstructed their house in its original way. The house was of open construction, with no partitions. The ceiling and floor were made of green lumber purchased from Carl Hilstad. This shrunk, and they eventually were five boards short. An owl even found its way in but couldn't find its way out. The floor was the first ship-lap floor around the neighborhood. The roofing was of birch bark. This curled, then leaked. roof had to be shingled by Elmer K[redacted] Belaka. The steambath or sauna, was built by Ilo Maki. Saturday nights were traditional gatherings of family and friends for a bath, visiting and coffee. Everyone made their own entertainment. The log home of the Palms was the centre for several dances with music supplied by John Luoma on the accordion and Arvied Thorkman on the violin. The Palm family had now increased by two more members. Jack was born in 1931 and Ron was born in 1933. Harold died on March 23, 1937 a victim of pneumonia.

In 1937 Bill again got into the sawmill business. Prices were cheaper. Second grade lumber sold for $6 a thousand, top grade for $10 a thousand, and slabs for one cent apiece. It was not unusual to saw slabs into wood for three days straight. These would resemble a big straw pile. A one-ton truck load of slabs sold for $10. The Eckville Co-op and Eckville Creamery were two of the Palms' best customers. Bill Jr. born in 1937 and Betty, born in 1939, now completed the family of Bill and Irene Palm.

In 1941 a new barn was built on the Palm farm by Arvi Niemela. This was celebrated by holding a barn dance, which also was a wedding dance for Art and Betty Johanson. To pay Arvi for his services of building the barn, Bill traded him a 1928 Chrysler car, and in the bargain Bill got a Model T Ford to boot. The Model T was traded to Walter Hoglund and Ray Meyers in order to get the barn painted.

In 1947 the new house was built by Nestor Lindquist and Larry Saari, from lumber sawed by Bill. Bill Liikala planed some of the lumber. The old house was sold to Emil Wester Frizzell s, of Red Deer, moved it to Sylvan Lake where it now stands. A housewarming was held by the neighbors and the family was presented with a purse of money.

During these years, the Palm family was engaged in mixed farming. One sideline was the use of the Hart Parr for grading the municipal roads. The outfit included Bill Palm on the Hart Parr pulling the grader operated by Fred Ponto.

Bill's lifetime and interests centred around machinery and trading. Back in 1918, a company was formed. Its members included Leukoma, Henry Johnson, Oscar Karjala and John Palm. Together they purchased a Stanley Jones thresher. Later, when this company broke up, John Palm took the separator, Leukoma the engine, Johnson the truck and Karjala received cash. Bill bought this unit from his dad. This machine, the first in the district, was hand-fed, [illegible] it was pulled around by horses [illegible] carrier on it. The stationary [illegible] was a nine-horse power.

e next improvement was a wooden separator purchased for the price of $30 from Ulick of Bendey. Arvi Niemela and Bill Palm sawed birch lumber and rebuilt the frame of this machine. This was used for many years to thresh the crop as well as threshing for the neighbors. This separator was later sold to Liikala Brothers. During this time, farmers paid for the service of threshing by the number of bushels threshed. Charges were three cents a bushel for oats, four cents a bushel for barley and six cents a bushel for wheat. Wages paid were $4 a day for a man and team. The farmer was expected to feed all the men and horses while the outfit threshed at his place. The ladies competed to see who could put on the best meals.

In 1947 Bill acquired a steel separator. His men at threshing time included neighbors Tolonen, Lapp, McKenzie, Hoglund, Parkkari, J. Wuori, Art Johanson, Frank Johnson, Mac McDougall, Luopa, Liikala, G. Erickson and Yacooshth. Threshing was not all work. Often the evenings turned into a whist game at Lapps. Later this separator was sold to Leo Palm of Rimbey, after being used on the Condor farm.

The combine was purchased in 1952 from Chester Kasha. Later it was sold to Richard Korger. The combine brought a new easier w[illegible] of harvesting, but also did away with threshing, which had been an exciting, eventful part of each [illegible].

Bill and Irene Palm were surprised by a gathering of their family and friends on their 25th wedding anniversary in 1948. They were presented with a set of silverware and a purse of [illegible].

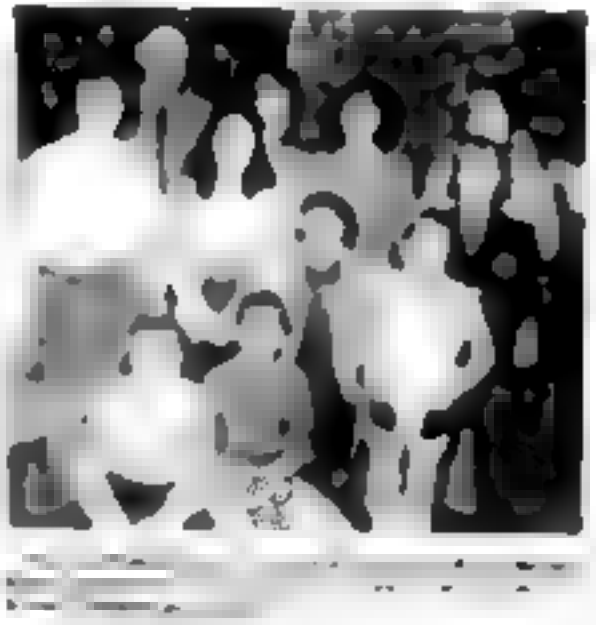
Bill served a term as secretary on the school board of the Estonian School. This schoo. provided the early education of most of the Palm children.

Irene was a busy wife and mother during the years of farming. She helped with root picking, making, as well as gardening and fixing up a beautiful yard. Irene was one of the faithfu. members of the sewing circle, which was o[illegible] ganized in the fall of 1936. Anna Parkkari and Hulda Wester organized the neighborhood ladies into a social afternoon of visiting. This group continued to meet until about 1976.

In the spring of 1954 the family farm was sold to Richard Korger, of Nebraska, U.S.A. The family moved to their new farm three miles west of Condor, adjacent to No. 11 highway. This was the E 3-39-5-W5. Again 200 acres of this half sec tion had to be broken. An auction sale was held in 1971, the farm sold, and Bill and Irene moved to an acreage at Condor corner.

Bill and Irene's 50th wedding anniversary was celebrated in 1974. A family dinner was held at Phyllis and Gordon Erickson's home. A program and dance followed at the Eckville Lions Hall. Music was supplied by their neighbors, the Psikias.

Bill's 70th birthday anniversary was honored by a family party at the home of Marv and Laurel Nielsen. Bill received a leather armchair. Another party was held at the Nielsen home for Irene's 70th birthday. She received a purse of [illegible].



Bill and Irene's children are all married. They have 34 grandchildren and several great grandchildren. They are presently enjoying their retirement at Condor where their activities include gardening, keeping up their yard, visiting and playing bingo.

PALM, LEO AND RUTH

Leo Palm and Ruth Wright were married in January, 1950 and lived on the Alex Johnson place in the Estonian District. Leo was the son of Irene and Bill Palm. Ruth came from Lacombe to teach the Estonian School for the year 1949-[illegible].

Their daughter, Jocelyn, was born October 28, 1950. A second daughter, Barbara, was born four years later, on September 13, 1954.

While living in the district, Ruth taught piano lessons in her home and in Eckville.

In May, 1955, the family moved to a farm in the Forshee area, southeast of Rimbey, where they still live.

PELTONEN, ELI – by Kate MacKenzie

Eli Peltonen came to the Manyberries district from Kurikka, Finland in 1925. He worked for the C.P.R. in Medicine Hat. In 1929 he bought a farm at Manyberries. He sent for his wife and two small sons, Levi and Wayne and they farmed with horses and milked cows. The depression years were on and it was very hard to make a living, so in the early forties Eli moved his family to the original Palm home at the north end of Sylvan Lake. In 1944 he purchased the Jack Wour farm, seven and one-half miles northeast of Eckville. Levi and Wayne worked in the bush during the winter and during the summer they worked for different farmers, also putting in a crop on their own land.

Levi married Francis Sweet (Michelson). They lived in Eckville and both worked at the hospital, he as caretaker and she as cook. Wayne remained on the farm with his mother and father. They were good neighbors and were always willing to lend a helping hand. Mr. Peltonen was a very well educated man and wrote many articles for the church papers in Finland. He was a very religious man and attended the Sunshine Gospel Mission until his passing. Mrs. Peltonen, Levi and Wayne have also passed away. They were good neighbors and are sadly missed by the whole district.

Mr. Peltonen

PERLER, PETER AND FAMILY

Peter Perler and his wife, Elizabeth, with their six year old daughter, Lydia, immigrated to Canada in 1903 from the city of Tartu, Estonia, Europe. They settled in the Medicine Valley district north of Eckville, later known as the Estonian district. At this time there were no roads and only about two or three families isolated in the dense bush in the area.

Mr. Perler took a homestead deed on NE 6-40-3-W5, built a crude shack, having a dirt floor to start. Then he left his wife and daughter and went out seeking work. He worked on the railroad construction at Kananaskis, pushing a cement wheel barrow, which was not easy for a man from the city who had been a school teacher and owned a hotel and a small knitting business. Due to great stories of free land and freedom, Mr. Perler had succumbed to the urge to come to [illegible].

Once here with his family he had no money left, nor could he earn enough to go back to his homeland. His wife tore all her nice city clothes to shreds in the bramble bushes. She was naturally very unhappy but had to make the best of it. They did not have much to eat in those days—a sack of flour, very few staples and what wild game, such as wild birds and rabbits, that were around. Many a time they had Indians come to the door begging for flour or something to eat, which scared Mrs. Perler and her daughter very much, especially when they were left alone. At one time Mrs. Perler had shot a rabbit and had it cooked, ready to eat, when an Indian came to the door and pointed at the rabbit. She gladly and hurriedly let him have it.

Lydia grew up very much alone, playing with colored stones in nearby creeks. A few years later a school was built a few miles north west of the present site of Eckville, so she was able to attend by walking about four miles through the brush and timber. She later married Paul Langer, who also had immigrated to Canada from Estonia and settled on the SW 10-40-3-W5. Peter Perler then sold his land to his brother-in-law, Cassimer Moog, which land is still owned and farmed by the Moog family. He and his wife then went to live with their daughter and her husband, Paul, who by now had built a comfortable home. Mrs. Perler passed away in 1918 and Mr. Perler in 1945.

Later, as the community grew, both Paul and Lydia Langer were active in community affairs. Lydia belonged to the U.F.W.A. and also was a member of the Estonian Ladies Club. She and her very good friend, Mrs Aaron Hoglund, sang duets at local functions. One of their very popular duets was "Whispering Hope"

Lydia and Paul had three daughters, Erna, Alma Alfeen) Hazel, and a son Felix, who died very young Paul passed away in 1926. Lydia after having raised her family, sold the farm—the SE 16-40-3-W5 to William McKenzie and the home quarter SW 10-40-3-W5, to Volley Soerd, who farmed it for a few years and then sold it to Paul Langer's grand nephew Kenneth Langer Lydia then moved to the town of Eckville where she built a new home and lived until her health gave out and after being hospitalized for about two years died in June. 1975

PIHOOJA FAMILY

Mr and Mrs. August Pihooja and their eight-month-old daughter Hilda, arrived in Canada from Estonia in January, 1905. After reaching Eckville they stayed a year with Henry Kingsep and family, whom they knew, and who had come to Canada a few years before they did

When Mr Pihooja got his homestead he and his wife built a one-room log house with a sod roof In those days rain sometimes fell for many days, and they had to catch the drips in pails The only thing they had to buy was a window and lumber for the door and floor The cracks in the wall were filled with clay and all was whitewashed with lime. They lived in this house for two years then built a big five-roomed log house

In 1907 Lilly was born and Albert was born in 1909. There was no hospital or doctor close, so a midwife was called

Mr Pihooja worked on the railroad where he made $1 a day and 50 cents was taken off it for room and board. When spring came he bought a team of horses and a sulky plow and got some land ploughed and seeded. As years passed more and more land was cleared and bigger implements were bought. Then they bought another quarter of land from Mr Dekker, who moved to the States. In 1914, with Mr Soderlund as the carpenter, they built a big house from British

A few dances were held in that house and the money that was raised from that was to buy lumber to build the Estonian Hall. The hall was all built by volunteer work en they bought a third and a fourth quarter In the fall when their crop was threshed Mr Pihooja would be out with the threshing crew and Mrs. Pihooja would do the fall ploughing

As years passed they bought their own tractor and threshing machine. Hilda went to college in Edmonton and worked in Edmonton and was married to Goldsmith Baisley. They went to Spirit River and farmed there for many years before moving to Edmonton

Lilly moved to Red Deer and Albert sold the farm and they moved to Calgary

PONTO, AUBREY AND FRED — by Aubrey Ponto

It was in 1932 that we moved to a farm north east of Eckville, a young married couple with two small children. The roads were terrible – to the east a muskeg and beyond, steep hills with a wagon road winding along the side of them

In those first years our neighbors were the Hoglunds, Luomala, Wuoris, Mickelsons, Johnsons, Johansons, Palms and Westers. Then our bachelor neighbors were Andy Harvelow, Alex Johnson, and Nels Aarstad

Because there were no fences at that time both Fred and I walked for miles, hunting for horses and cows I made a little wooden fence with which to confine our three-year-old boy and the baby was left in her crib

During the first two summers and one winter we lived in a one-roomed shack on what is now the Clarence Moos farm. I'm sure it was the coldest place in the country, having been built years before from green lumber It had apparently harbored many bed bugs at one time but, fortunately, the cold had got the best of them

Fred cut logs and had lumber made and dry piled. In the summer of 1934 we built a house with two rooms and pantry It was a happy day for us when we moved onto our own land and into our new clean little house

We milked six to eight cows, but cream was worth so little that we quit separating and fed the milk to the pigs. When the pigs were ready for market they were only worth three of four dollars. Later when the prices improved, we started to sell cream again. This brought us enough to buy groceries, with sometimes a little left over to spend for clothes.

Neighbors gathered together to put in Fred Ponto's crop

The years passed and five more children arrived to bless our home. Fred and I worked very hard, but, while we had little of material wealth, we never went hungry. This was due in part to my husband's hunting and trapping through the winter months. Gradually land was broken and fences were built. We had what you might call a "mixed farm", trying at different times to raise horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, chickens, turkeys, ducks, and geese. At one time we even had a family of coyote pups which were pelted in the fall.

In 1971 we sold out and moved to Sylvan Lake where we are now living and keeping busy and happy. The little boy I spoke of is now almost forty-eight years old. He is a deaf mute, but helped us in many ways on the farm and now works in Calgary. Many Eckville people will remember Ralph Ponto.

THE AUGUST POSTI FAMILY — by Mrs. Anna Tipman

Mr August Posti, his wife Emillie Milli and their two small children, Hugo and Anna, came to Canada in 1902. They had been living in Estonia on his father's farm who owned his small holding.' This tract of land was too small to be divided among his sons, so August Posti not wanting to work and live on a Baltic Baron Estate decided to come to Canada where free [illegible] to be had.

[illegible]d in Estonia was mostly owned by [illegible]e German Baltic Barons. The Estonian people were either vassals or slaves who worked and lived on these estates, producing wealth for the barons and getting a bare living in return. They had no freedom to move from estate to estate, or even to go to a village unless permission was granted by the lord of the manor.

In 1863 passport freedom was given to the common people of Estonia, now they could move from place to place. This freedom did not help them economically, as the land still belonged to the barons. But in 1865 land reform came into existence. The land was divided into small unit holdings and the Estonian people could either rent or buy these "unit holdings". Those who were fortunate enough to be able to buy this land felt free and independent, although land taxes were quite high. They worked their land according to best cultivation procedures known at the time. By the time August Posti was of the age to farm "land holdings" had become scarce, so he decided to look for farm land elsewhere. The newspapers advertised that in Canada 160 acres of land was available for $10. for "immigrant settlers", subject to three years spent making such improvements as building a house, clearing and cultivating 15 acres of land and fencing the homestead. August Posti and his wife decided to face the hardships of pioneering and come to Canada with their family.

The Postis went first to Finland and from there by small ship to Liverpool, England. From here, with other immigrants, they crossed the Atlantic Ocean in a "cattle ship", which had been cleaned and white-washed to transport human cargo. They took the Canadian Pacific Railway from Montreal to Red Deer and from there they went to Sylvan Lake, Alberta. At Sylvan Lake they were met by Kingsepa, Walters and Kasks, who had arrived earlier.

August Posti started to look for free homestead land. He chose the SW 16-40-3 W5 because it had the Medicine River running through it, abounding in fish — pike and suckers. There were spruce trees growing on it, providing logs for his house, and the pea-vine grew three feet high in the river valley, providing rich nutritious hay for his stock. They had brought with them sturdy home-made cloth, garden seeds, such as cabbages, turnips, carrots, beets and potatoes, which provided their first food when planted in virgin garden soil. They also brought flax and hemp seed. These plants provided the fibre from which Mr Posti made rope.

Money was a scarce commodity, much needed for buying machinery, cows, oxen or horses. August Posti worked helping to build the Canadian Pacific Railroad from Calgary west during the winter months. Milli Posti kept the home fires burning, spending her time looking after the cows, pigs and hens. She carded and spun wool to knit mitts, stockings and vests for the family. She churned and salted butter, money from butter sales was used to buy sugar, salt, white flour and fresh and dried fruit or even as payments for machinery. The cows were milked three times a day, as cattle food was so plentiful that the cows would arrive home in the middle of the day and "bawl" to be milked.

After proving up on the homestead, August cleared and cultivated more land. He sowed by hand broadcasting the rye, barley, oats and flax. These were harvested by means of a sickle sheaved by hand and threshed by a flail. The whole family joined in the harvesting operation later more up-to-date machinery was used

The August Posti family increased to four boys and two girls, namely, Hugo, Anna, Olga, Karl, Henry and Rudolph. Of the original family of eight only three are living as of May 1977 Mrs. John M. Tipman (Anna) of Stettler, Mrs Alex B. Mottus Olga of Eckville and Mr Karl Posti of Gilby. All these are living on farms

August and Milli Posti were very conscientious parents and were kind to their children They believed in the equality of sexes: both boys and girls had to know how to do outside farm tasks or inside household duties. The girls were taught to milk, feed cattle, clean barns, rake hay stook grain drive oxen or horses, chop fire wood and, of course, do all the myriad household duties. The boys had to know how to sew on buttons, mend a tear in work clothes, sew on a patch, or even iron a shirt. They had to know how to clean fish rabbits or wild game for cooking and even how to cook it We, as children, found these chores challenging, and felt the pride of accomplishment We joined with our parents in planting gardens, weeding, and later, harvesting Every task on the farm was shared

Money to buy "boughten" toys was scarce but who cared! We made our own toys: cows horses, pigs, hens and other things were cut out of double layers of birch bark, which provided four legs to enable the animals to stand. Often a whole farm of animals was produced. The home was marked out on the dirt, into as many rooms as the heart desired. Barns were produced the same way, and stocked. Our imagination did the rest! But our greatest interest was in the great outdoors. We had to know and observe the wonders of nature such as. How and where all the birds built their nests, raised and fed their young; the "courting dances" of the prairie chickens and wood partridges the life cycles of frogs, bugs, and mosquitoes in the ponds, how the small fish grew in the river Ant hills had to be supervised for "war parties" between different tribes. Of the animals, the muskrats and beavers provided the most interest Many hours were spent watching them build their homes and filling their pantries. Our parents taught us not to harm, molest or destroy any wild bird, beast flower or vegetation — all were sacred and had a useful purpose in life

August Posti was a great believer in community work He realized that enterprises done co-operatively took the least output from each individual and produced the greatest good individually to the greatest number of people The first project with which he helped was the building of the Estonian School, where a great deal of volunteer work was done by him and others He wanted all the children to be educated, realizing the value of education due to the meagre education he himself had acquired

The building of the Estonian Hall was another community project The first neighborhood meetings had been held in the Posti's living room. Here agriculture problems were discussed, such as grain varieties, methods of tilling, marketing of crops and, of course, politics Community singing was enjoyed. Physical training was provided by a "trapeze" hanging from ceiling beams. People came to realize that a building bigger than the homes was needed for all these community activities Plans were made to build a hall with a stage and a library August was one of the key men in planning and erecting the Estonian Hall. He also was the first librarian

The threshing of grain was a big problem to these early pioneers. Twenty-six farmers banded together and bought a threshing machine run by a steam engine. This portable outfit was moved by horses from farm to farm. Thus a grain-threshing society was formed. August was a member and almost in the centre of the threshing run. His son Hugo later acquired steam engineer's papers to run the outfit A wheat pool for marketing grain was formed; a co-operative store was organized; a municipal hospital was built, with August Posti being a firm supporter of all of these projects

August passed away in 1943 and his wife Milli in 1945. Both were buried in the Gilby cemetery

RAABIS, CHARLIE

Charlie Raabis came to Canada from Estonia in the early 1900's with his wife, Leena, their infant daughter Helen and Leena's mother, Marie Poder, and settled on a homestead by Medicine River in the Gilby district

A few years later Leena was struck by lightning during a severe thunderstorm while walking home from the hay field carrying a grass

Olga Kinna came to Canada as a young girl in 1903, from Woru, Estonia with her parents John and Marie Kinna, her brothers Fritz, Arthur and Ernest and a sister Minnie. They, too, settled on a homestead on the banks of the Medicine River and five miles north of the present site of Eckville

The nearest town was Red Deer Roads were mere trails so it took about three days to make a trip on foot to Red Deer for groceries Money was scarce so Olga went to work for Robert Gaetz in Red Deer for $6 a month. She didn't know a word of English but the Gaetz were wonderful people and they got along very well with sign language

In 1906, she married Charlie Raabis and took over the care of little Helen

Charlie worked for several years as carpenter on the C.P.R. while Olga looked after the farm and the children. When they were able to buy a team of oxen, Charlie quit the railroad work and started clearing land to make a few small fields of oats and barley and a garden

Around 1910, the Estonian School was built and in 1918 the Estonian Hall. Charlie was the carpenter for both these community projects. He also helped John Kinna built the first flour mill in the community

As the community grew a cemetery became necessary, so Charlie and Olga donated a few acres of their homestead to serve as cemetery About a dozen people lie buried there

Eventually horses replaced oxen for field work and fields became bigger as more land was cleared and broke The important day of the year was when the threshing crew came to thresh the little bit of grain each farmer had stacked near the log barn so that the straw would serve as both food and shelter for the stock during the cold winters

Charlie also helped Grandpa Kinna build the first brush cutter in the community This was pulled by six horses and enabled land to be cleared much faster than could be done with an axe In time the horses were replaced by a trac

Charlie was a very community minded person and he and Olga both sang in the Estonian choir Charlie also served many years as trustee and secretary-treasurer on the school board and as a member of the Board of Directors for the Eckville Co-op Association

When Charlie passed away in 1944, after a lenghty illness, Olga moved to Eckville to take care of her mother and father After they were gone, she stayed in Eckville and spent most of her spare time in oil painting. This hobby kept her happily occupied for many years. She managed to paint a picture for each one of her seven children as well as for most of her grandchildren before her passing in the later summer of 1976

Besides Helen, who passed away at the age of 10, Charlie and Olga had seven children, the first one being a daughter, Saime. Many a time Mother had to leave the baby alone while she walked for miles through the bush looking for the cows at milking time One cow always had a bell hung around her neck so when they were feeding the bell could be heard for quite a distance and thus make finding them a lot easier

Saime got most of her education at the Estonian school which was a two-mile walk morning and night. Her first teacher was Mr Egon. Later she walked seven miles morning and night to finish her education in the Eckville high school where Mr Ludwig was a very capable teacher She attended normal school in Camrose and started her teaching career at the Outlet school a few miles north of Bentley where she taught grades one to eight She married a farmer by the name of Art Molhus and raised two children Charlie and Donna

The second daughter Hilja, also received her education at the Estonian school. When she quit school dad put her in charge of the cow milking usually having as many as eight to 12 cows to milk by hand morning and night. This had to be done exactly the same time every day. Of course, we had to have some fun too, so we would squirt milk at the little pigs that were rooting around among the cows until they learned to lap it up as fast as it came at them. Whoever said pigs were stupid did not know what they were talking about because one little pig waited until he found a cow lying down and then helped himself to all the milk he could suck

After milking, the milk was strained and run through a cream separator with the cream coming out of one spout and the skim milk out of the other The skim milk was fed to the calves, pigs and chickens and a part of it was always made into cottage cheese The cream was soured and churned into butter and the rest saved in a can until there was enough to take to the creamery in Eckville and sold

Hilja married Nick Kalev, who was well known for his musical talents. He was an accomplished trumpet player, directed the choir and was a member of a dance orchestra. He passed away suddenly in 1951 and left his wife and two children, Walter 15 and Edna 13, to farm the quarter section on the Medicine Hill

Carl also went to the Estonian school but quit when he was of age and stayed home to help with the farming. Later he worked for the Moro brothers in their flour mill in Eckville. He then married Ethel Peterson and went farming in the Bentley district. They had five children: Norman, Carol, Alfred (Alfy), Patricia and James.

Mary too, started her education in the Estonian school and attended high school in Eckville walking there with her sister, Salme. She meant to complete her high school in Red Deer but a distraction came in the form of a happy-go-lucky cowboy farmer by the name of Fred Bardenhagen, and school no longer seemed important. Mary and Fred were married on July 13, 1933 and, like in the fairy stories, lived happily ever after.

Arthur went to work as a clerk in the Co-op store in Eckville under the management of Oswald Ulmari, at the age of 16. At that time, the Co-op store was located in the building we now know as the bakery. Arthur learned to play the violin at an early age as did his younger brother Waldo, and together they entertained the rest of the family with violin duets.

Some years later Arthur took up saxophone playing and also piano, while Waldo chose the trumpet and guitar. They provided the music for dances for many years, Arthur's wife, Myrtle playing the piano for them. Arthur's favorite sport was baseball and he, as well as his older brother Carl pitched many a game. Arthur and Myrtle raised a family of three children: Kaye, Marion and David.

They operated a small general store in Withrow for a time but gave it up to manage the Co-op store in Stettler. Art finally decided to go into business for himself and bought the Rainbow Cabins and Trailer Court at Sylvan Lake and, together with Myrtle, developed it into a very thriving operation. They eventually sold out and retired to Calgary.

Waldo married Myrtle Greenman and settled on the home place when Dad was no longer able to manage it due to illness.

Waldo and Myrtle were both very musical so naturally raised a musical family of four. Their daughter, Shirley, is married to Eddie Moos and though she sews and cares for their family of five children, Lane, Derek, Brenda, Sandra and Wesley, she takes time to sing at various socials.

[illegible] instruments, but the saxophone seemed to be his favorite. He went to Red Deer to work and become manager of the body shop for Festival Ford. He married Susan Whittaker and they have three daughters, Leslie and Lana (twins) and Pamela.

Wendy is married to Sid Scheifele and they live in Medicine Hat with their infant son, Tyler.

Debbie is married to Gordon Brown of Fairview and they have two children, Jody and Janis. They recently moved to Hines Creek where Gordon runs an oil dealership for the I.F.A.

Waldo and Myrtle sold their farmland NW 16-40-3-W5 to Walter Andrew, keeping eight acres including the buildings and in 1964 moved to Fair view where. In partnership with Dorothy Forsell, they bought the "Pinky" coin wash which they operated very successfully for ten years, then sold it and moved back to their home in the Gilby area.

Bill Sibelin, an old family friend, also lives in a trailer in Waldo's yard.

For the last three years, Waldo and Myrtle have been working as custodians at the Eckville High School.

Clara, nicknamed Bill, when very young and still known by that name, went to Vancouver when in her teens, took a hairdressing course and went to work on a luxury liner, the Prince George, as a hairdresser, barber and beautician. There she met and married the chief steward, Vic Bremner. Their family consisted of two children, Judy and Allan.

RANGEN MR. AND MRS. ALBERT T — by John Rangen and Mrs. Trygve Rangen

Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Rangen, along with their sons Trygve and Hans, moved from Maddock, North Dakota, U.S.A. in 1905, and settled in the Gilby area. Dad filed on a homestead, NE 28-40-3-W5, and bought a quarter of C.P.R. land for seven dollars an acre. A year or two later he paid $11 per acre for another C.P.R. quarter, so he then owned S. 27-41-3-W5, as well as his homestead.

Dad and Mother shipped a carload of settlers effects and a team of horses to the end of the railroad at Lacombe. (The railroad did not get as far as Bonnyville until 1918 or 1919.) Their belongings had to be moved from Lacombe to the homestead by horses and wagons. The family stayed with a neighbor, Pete Pederson, until our own house was built.

There was a scarcity of horses throughout the country at that time, so Dad started raising horses to sell. His horse herd at one time numbered between 50 and 60 head. He became well-known for his horses, and during the first World War people came from far and near to buy them. As there were very few fences in those days, we often had to ride many miles, for days at a time, to locate the horse herd and bring them home to the corral.

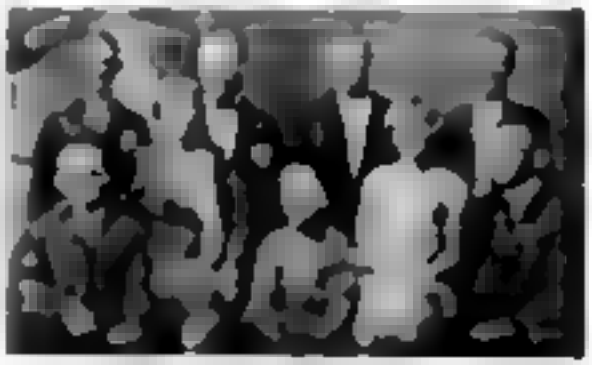
Dad also raised cattle and had some pigs. The first water well we had was dug by hand, and we got the water from the well by the "rope and bucket" method.

Due to his extensive experience with caring for livestock, Dad became known as the veterinarian of the district, and was often called upon by neighbors who needed help with sick cattle or horses. Dad also had a feed grinder which was powered by a horse walking around in a circle, thus causing the mill to grind the grain. He did a lot of feed grinding for the neighbors.

Dad was a good blacksmith, and spent many hours over the years shoeing horses and sharpening plow shares for himself and his neighbors. In 1912, when the local Co-operative Association was formed, Albert was active in its organization and became one of the first direc-

Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Rangen. Trygve and Hans were born in the United States, then four more boys and two girls were born while the family lived at Gilby. Carl was born in 1906 and John (whose original name was Ingvald) was born in 1908. In 1909 Mother and the four boys went on a trip to Stangvanger, Norway, to visit her parents, and Karsten was born while they were there. They traveled to and from Norway by boat, and it took about two weeks to go one way. Trygve said he remembers when they came back they were all sea-sick most of the time. Mother's cousin, Nils Aarstad, came back with them, so she had some help with the children.

Carol (who was originally named Caroline) was born in 1912. Ansen (originally named Julie) was born in 1913 and Alfred (originally named Sakarias) was born in 1915.



Rangen Family. Back: Karsten, Carl, John, Hans. Front: Mr. Rangen, Caroline, Alfred, Nelle, Trygve.

The children first attended the Estonian School and later went to the Andrew School, as Dad owned land in that district. On one warm sunny morning the children went barefoot to school, but had to come home in the snow!

Doctors and hospitals were far away in those days, but we were fortunate in having a nice neighbor with a Model T Ford who took Mother to the hospital in Lacombe when she was ill. Mother passed away in 1918 and is buried in the Gilby Cemetery.

After Mother's death Dad did a wonderful job of looking after eight children. The oldest one 15 years and the youngest only three years old! He got help from some of the neighbor women, but he would bake bread, churn butter, and do the laundry for the family. We children all had our own saddle horses, so we eight rode horseback or drove a horse on a two-wheeled cart to school. Dad's cooking kept us well and happy, so we never stayed home from school on account of being sick.

In a book (a diary) that Dad used to write in, we find this notation: "In 1910 he started spring work on the 14th of March and on the 2nd of June a foot of snow covered the ground. On June 22 there was a bad hailstorm and frost and again on the 24th of July. ' That must not have been a very good year'

Dad built a house and barn in 1913. The barn was finished in 1914, and that barn is still standing in good shape today. Only half of the house was built. There was a big kitchen, a bedroom and a pantry downstairs, and an upstairs, with a veranda along the north side of the house. The rest of the house was supposed to be on the south side, but his other half was never built. Dad hauled all the lumber from McPherson's mill which was northwest past Leedale some place. Since it would take two days to make a trip, Dad used four horses so he could haul bigger loads. Karl Soderland, who lived someplace north of Sylvan Lake, was the carpenter who built it. He would stay the week and then walk home for the weekends. The rooms were finished with grooved lumber, which was varnished.

In 1912 when the local Co-operative Association was formed, Albert was active in its organization and became one of the first directors. After the death of Mrs. Rangen in 1918, about 1922 or 1924, Albert had an auction sale and went to the United States for a year or so, taking Alfred with him. Carol and Alisen went to stay with Alfred Haarstad at Bentley. He came back about 1925 and bought land at Leafland, north of the Leslievile district. Karsten, Alfred and the girls lived there with him. Dad was mailman for a few years, hauling the mail from Leslievile to Carlos. In 1942 he bought a house in New Westminster, B.C. where he lived for a few years before coming back to live with Alfred. Albert passed away in the Eckville hospital in 1945.

Hans married Margaret Belt, and they had five children.

Carl (deceased) married Audrey Evernden and they had three children.

John married Clara Reirson, and they had two children. They are now living in Eckville.

Karsten is unmarried, and lives at Sylvan Lake.

Carol deceased married Floyd Fitzgerald, and they had four children.

Alisen married Leagh Vayle. They had three children.

Alfred is single, and lives in Summerland, B.C.

Trygve married Mable Solberg of Bentley. They had five children. Trygvie passed away in 1974 and is buried in the Gilby cemetery.

RANGEN, TRYGVE — by Mabel Rangen

In 1919 Trygve went down to Loverna to work for Chris Torgesen on a farm and in 1920 on his return home riding Old Bess, he had an unfortunate experience. On the first day of the trip he stopped to stay overnight at a farmhouse near Stettler. Being very tired, he slept so soundly that he did not hear the man of the house when he came into the room and took all the money that Trygve had in his purse, leaving just a bit of change that was in his pocket. In the morning Trygve was going to pay for his lodging, but the man said that it was free. He obviously did not want Trygve to look in his purse! After riding on for a considerable distance Trygve stopped to have some dinner and upon looking into his purse, found what had happened. Of course it was too far for him to ride back to the farmhouse and he wouldn't have been able to prove that his money had been stolen even if he had gone back.

This experience did not discourage him from going back to Loverna and in 1921 he worked for another man there. This time he had enough money to buy a yellow car (a "bug"), and his trip home in the car was uneventful.

After that he worked for Alfred Haarstad at Bentley for a while. Then in 1923 and 1924 he attended the Institute of Technology and Art in Calgary. He took a mechanical and special tractor course at Hemphill Trade School in Calgary. The course cost one hundred dollars for which he paid sixty dollars in cash and worked the rest out for fifty cents an hour. He stayed at a boarding house as there were no dorms in those days. After finishing his course he was not able to get a job anywhere so in 1925 Trygve, Carl and John bought their dad's farm. The three brothers operated the farm together for a while then Trygve bought out the shares of the others.

Trygve and I, Mabel Solberg) were married on September 8, 1927 in Sylvan Lake. Trygve and Hans came down to our place in Trygve's truck, a Model T with the top and side curtains taken off. After getting to our place Trygve took my dad's car, which did have the top and side curtains! Hans was our best man and Ethel Andrew was bridesmaid. There had been many days of rain all that fall and our wedding day was no exception. There were no gravelled roads at that time and the roads were so muddy that we had a hard time getting back to Dad's. We were so late that the guests had enjoyed the reception without us. Even though we got home all wet and muddy we joined in the festivities and danced until morning

After my marriage I came to my new home in Medicine Valley to start a new life which was quite different for me. I was the oldest girl in my family and at home I had been used to cooking baking, and washing for my parents and my nine sisters and five brothers. Trygve had two of his brothers staying with him but it was quite a change indeed to be cooking for four people instead of seventeen!

Trygve did all of his farming with horses. He was a horse-lover like his dad and had learned to ride and work with horses when he was quite young. He used to ride for many miles looking for the horses on the ranch. He said one could always tell which way the horses had gone by the direction that the wind was blowing. There were no fences in those days, so the horses could go where they pleased. He said he remembered one time he was out looking for the horses and they had wandered so far that it took him a long time. Coming home he met his mother out looking for him as she thought he had become lost.

Trygve had two cows and I had brought two cows when I came, having got one from my grandmother and one from my dad. These were the beginning of our herd of cattle.

Quite a lot of land had been broke on the farm so we soon had to start harvest. Pete Moro had a threshing rig so he was the first one to thresh after I came to the farm.

In 1930 we were hailed out so there was very little grain to sell. We milked a few cows and sold cream and eggs. Butterfat was ten cents a pound and eggs ten cents a dozen, so you see we didn't have very much money. Trygve would butcher a steer and take it to Sestrap's Store in Eckville so we could buy what groceries we had to have — we never bought bread or butter!

Trygve got his first tractor in about 1933. It was a Fordson, with steel wheels and lugs on the back wheels. In 1934 or 1935 he had Robert and Alfred Klinna come to brush and break up a swamp which was on part of the farm. After we got it worked down we seeded it into hay for pasture. We had quite a few horses and cattle by then, so needed extra pasture. Trygve continued the family tradition of raising horses which he would sell at the Lacombe horse sale. This sale was always held in March and one year there had been a bad snow storm at just the time of the sale. The road east of our place was all drifted in but Trygve got the horses over to Fred Moos'. Fred had a big truck to haul horses but when he was turning onto highway 11 the truck upset. Of course the horses all got out but none of them were hurt by the mishap. By the time they got the horses loaded again and got to Lacombe the sale was over so Trygve had to take just what the buyers offered for them. He lost money on that load.

After a time Carl moved to his own farm and Hans went to Calgary to take a barber course. When Hans finished his course he got married and Trygve and I were alone with our family.

In 1930 we had had our first son, Melvin followed by Allen, who was born in 1932. In the spring of 1946 we decided to build a new house as Roy had been born in 1937, Glenn in 1940 and Joyce in 1942. We had already built a garage so we used it for our kitchen and we slept in the granaries. We tore down the old house so the new one could be built on the same spot. George Cummings and three of his brothers were the carpenters. Fred Moos was there with four men clearing and brushing 70 acres of timber, and they worked in shifts. There were many men to cook for and I found this to be quite a chore, living in the garage, with everything being so unhandy.

We had a pressure system put in the new house, — being one of the first farmers in the area to do this. We had a 32-volt lighting plant because Calgary Power had not yet come to the district. We had installed the phone in 1930, and Calgary Power did come in September, 1951. Trygve, Pete Moro and Albert Hansen were some of the ones who worked to get Calgary Power in, and they worked on the building of the lines.

After a time Trygve bought a bigger tractor and he and my dad bought a threshing machine. In the fall they would go out threshing in the Bentley and Lockhart districts for about six weeks each fall. In addition Trygve did custom breaking and wood-sawing and would grind feed for neighbors. Like his dad, Trygve was a good blacksmith which encouraged neighbors to come to him to get their plow s[illegible]. Whenever a neighbor had a sic[illegible] come to Trygve for assistance as he was almost like a veterinarian. In fact he was handy at most everything — the neighbors even came for hair [illegible].

In 1948 Trygve bought his first combine and then in 1950 he got a Massey self-propelled machine, one of the first of these machines in the district. He and the boys were expanding their farming operations and felt that they needed the most modern machinery. At one time they were farming 12 quarters.

Gradually our family grew up and, except for Glenn, left home. Melvin got married in 1954 to Lyla Leahy. They have four children: Laurence, Monica, Darcey and Elaine. They live in Edmonton. Allen was married in 1956. He and his wife have three children — Debbie, Dale and Jody. They live in Red Deer. Roy married Janet Tipman in 1964 and their two children are Charlene and Russel. They live in Calgary. Glenn was married to Avril McNiel in 1961 and his children are Randy and Eldon. They live on the Rangen farm — being the third generation of Rangens to live there! Glen bought a little house from Lenoard Beddoes and moved it onto the home farm. He and his family lived in this house until 1967. Glenn had bought the Robert Kingsep farm, so we traded our farm for that place. Trygve and I moved onto that place in 1967 and Glenn bought our east quarter.

Joyce lives on a farm near Kimberley.

In 1970 Trygve and I went on a month-long trip to Norway. It was a nice enjoyable trip. Trygve saw the place where they had stayed when they were there on a visit. He had many cousins there and one uncle still living. The cousins were surprised that he remembered their places. He even remembered the names of the horses.

Between 1970 and 1974 we went to British Columbia every summer and had many other enjoyable trips together. In 1974 we again went to Norway for a visit. We had been there for only three days when Trygve passed away with a heart attack. Our trip was a tour which was to require a month's time, so I had a lot of trouble to get back home and to get Trygve's body home again. He was buried in the Gilby cemetery.

I am now living alone on our farm, which is located on N.E. 9-40-3-W5.

MIKAEL AND AILI RAUMAN

Mikael Rauman was born February 15, 1903 in Senajoki, Finland. Aili Ylinen was born January 26, 1904 in Illmajoki, Finland. Mike and Aili were married in 1923 in their native Finland.

Being a carpenter by trade, Mike, searching for greener pastures, decided that Canada sounded like a wonderful place. Leaving Aili, Jussi, and Kaisu behind, he left for Canada in 1925. He made his home with his uncle, Gabriel Maki, and his family northeast of Eckville, Alberta. Good carpenters were in great demand in the early years, just as they are today. Mike helped build homes and other buildings wherever needed, and even made a coffin or two, which were almost always homemade at that time.

In 1926, Aili and family arrived in Canada to join Mike. They farmed for a short period of time, and during the winter Mike worked in the logging camps. The family discontinued farming in 1935, and bought a house in Eckville from Oswald Umarl. This is where their son Arne was born on August 1, 1936. Money being scarce, Mike did carpenter work for Dr. Palmer for services rendered at the birth of their son, Arne.

Dr. Palmer informed Mike that his fee would be a bit higher than he had quoted, since he had had to use instruments. Quick-witted Mike, though, wasn't going to be born swoggled out of his wages, and made it quite clear that his job required instruments, too. Needless to say, they decided to compromise and split the difference.

When the Finnish-Russian War broke out, Mike was ready to help protect his "mother land", so, in 1939, he sailed for Finland. He spent seven months in service, returning home when peace was declared.

After arriving home Mike decided to buy the SW 2-40-3-W5 from William and Raino Maki who had moved to Vancouver, B.C. For 26 years Mike and Aili lived here and farmed, but then sold their farm to Ray and Phyllis Myers, and bought a home in Eckville where both are enjoying their Son, Jussi (John) is married to Marjorie Lingren (Post), and they reside in Vancouver B.C.

Kaisu (Katie) is married to Rudolph Saari youngest son of John and Aina Saari. They have three children. Alice (Mrs. Jim Stearns), Irene (Mrs. Bruce Broad) of Red Deer, and Kenneth, who resides at home and helps his father farm.

Arne is presently employed in Red Deer.

SAMBROOKE, ALLAN AND DAISY — by Hazel Sambrooke

Allan was educated at the Estonian School and helped his father (Dick) mix mortar and did many odd jobs. After a short term with the R.C.A.F. he was medically discharged and returned to the transportation business, where he became a long-haul trucker, hauling pre-fab and mobile homes to all parts of Canada and the United States.

In July 1956 Allan married Daisy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holland and the widow of Henry Heikkila. They first made their home in Bentley, later moving to Sylvan Lake and then to Calgary.

Lenard, Larry and Sandra are now married and Daisy is the proud grandmother of three. Their son Brian is attending SAIT. After a severe heart attack Allan passed away. He was buried in Queens Park Cemetery, Calgary, on March 12, 1974.

SAMBROOKE, ARNOLD (DICK) AND VIVIAN — by Hazel Sambrooke

Have times changed? Arnold Sambrooke was an adventuresome lad, like many a boy of today. Arnold was born in 1883 and grew up in Staffordshire England. He attended an English boys School and can well remember many a caning the head master gave for misdemeanors. Before he was 16 years of age he bid his father and mother, Samuel and Emma Sambrooke farewell and lied about his age to enlist in the Calvary Company of the Boer War Forces who were ready to sail for South Africa. 1899-1902.

Many a tale could be related about his time in Africa, but hungry, flea-bitten and in rags, he returned to London, England, only to see a brochure of Canada. This haunted him for weeks until he had persuaded a friend to join him and then they were off to Canada in 1902. They worked in Eastern Canada, returning to England in the fall, only to return to Canada with his brother Samuel (Tim) in the spring of 1903.

[redacted] as everyone called him, was [redacted] rumbling down on the town site of Frank. The men of the neighboring town came to help rescue any survivors and free the trapped miners, who later walked to safety on their own, above where the men were digging for them. Dick by now had learned the plastering and stucco trade, and did many of the buildings in this area. He had started to stucco in Fernie, B.C. in 1908 when a fire broke out fanned by a high wind that leveled the town. All this didn't discourage him, and he moved on to Central Alberta. He worked from Red Deer until he became interested in a Bentley alden

Dick and Tim settled on homesteads northeast of Gilby NW 2-41 3-W5 in 1909. This area was then called "Green Feed Valley" because everything froze there before it could be harvested. Many a Saturday night was spent playing cards with St John and William O'Neil, two brothers who were noted for their hospitality fun and gaiety. Clarence Dameron was the auctioneer for their community "box socials". When anyone needed help, George and Leonard Beddoes were always there.

Dick had another brother William, who came to Canada and settled in the Bassano area. William later built a monoplane – in 1926. Dick's sister Minnie (Mrs. J. Jones) settled in Van

In 1915 Dick married Vivian May Osgoode who was born in 1893, the daughter of Elijah and Lenora Osgoode of Bentley, and then relocated on another farm two miles south, SW26-40-3-W5. Here he was able to purchase more land from the C.P.R. adjoining his land, at the foot of Medicine Hill. Dick worked in the lumber camp during the winter and improved his farm during the summer months. Vivian was an excellent cook and helped cook for the lumber jacks at the Jabez McPherson mill in the Carlos area northeast of Rocky Mountain House. She was a truly fine homemaker and their hospitality was well known throughout the area. Dick and Vivian spent many a happy evening with John and Mary Kurzman, Carl and Mavel Thomas, George and Leonard Beddoes and their wives, as well as the O'Neil brothers, just to mention a few.

Dick served on the Estonian School Board from 1926-1935 and was in charge of the roads in the district under councillor George Fraser and secretary Harold Hopkins, at Bentley before they moved the offices to Lacombe. The farmers in the area were allowed to work out their taxes by doing road work.

One hotly contested issue was the centralization of the small schools, another was, before teachers' wages could be raised $50, six dollars was given to purchase sports equipment, two bats and two balls.

Two sons were born to Dick and Vivian — Arnold Elijah in 1917 and Allan Jabez in 1922. Dick continued his trade in Central Alberta, selling their farm machinery and retiring in 1945. The land was rented to Rudy and Myrtle Mottus. In 1953 Arnold Elijah purchased the home quarter from his father. Vivian passed away after a lengthy illness, on October 4, 1958. Sometime later Dick married Alice Redmond (nee McPherson), but this marriage soon broke up and he came to live with his son Arnold at Eckville.

Dick was buried on July 17, 1967 in Bentley, with full military honours. He was a life member of the Royal Canadian Legion.

SLADE, ARCHIE AND ETHEL

In the spring of 1950 Archie and Ethel Slade with one-year-old son, Bruce, moved from Na ton onto the Rosenbaum place, the NE 17-40-3 W5, which was purchased from Robert Smith or a new years.

We found a few variants from the prairie living to which we had been accustomed. There was heavier snow fall, and lack of chinooks. Later springs, much more rainfall, heavy morning dew and less wind; the absence of crocuses (which were greatly missed) but the pleasure of finding wild strawberries and raspberries; solving the "caving cellar" mystery (moles) thanks to Cliff Matthews, "If you want beavers to leave your fence posts alone, use spruce, not poplar," (Cliff Matthews). The hospitality of neighbors sharing steam baths, the land clearing and wood-sawing bees, absence of potato bugs, grasshoppers and rocks, not a gopher in sight, quite a contrast to the great number now.

When Bruce and Connie started school crossing the Medicine River to catch the school bus was a problem during high water. Shirley Rasbis rowed them across the river at such times.

In 1956 we bought the "Keesie" quarter, SE 18-40-3-W5, from Victor Kraft after he moved to Whitecourt. We built on this location in 1960.

In 1966 when Ralph, Peggy Pihooja, Betty, John and Helen moved to British Columbia he sold us his half section across the road, N 7-40-36 -

Bruce attended school at Eckville and SAIT and now, with his wife, Linda, lives in Red Deer where he is a welder.

Connie, having received her education in Eckville, Lacombe and Red Deer, is living in Red Deer, where she is a secretary at Michener Centre.

Jim graduated from the Eckville high school in 1976 after having spent a year and a half at Lacombe Vocational in welding.

In 1977-1978 Nigel is attending Grade 11 in Lacombe, where he is enrolled in the

STENVIG, MARTIN AND OLGA

Happy memories, all

SUNSHINE GOSPEL MISSION — by Mrs. Kate Mac[illegible]

Mr Maclean of Red Deer, a lay preacher held two or three services in the "Young Peoples Hall," in 1943. Since most of the people came from the north, it was decided to hold services in the Andrew Parkkari home. since that would be closer Some time later they were held in the Simon Mackenzie home. A large Sunday School was held with Aune Parkkari the Sunday School teacher, while Margaret Nelson. with helpers Audrey Ponto, Kate MacKenzie and Barbara Luomala, looked after the choruses. The adult attendance for the service which followed made it necessary to have a larger building

In 1946. Mr Maclean bought three acres of Government land (NE 1-W5. as well as all the material needed for the building. A nice little church was erected by the volunteer help of the interested men in the district. What a joyous time that was! Men hammering and sawing and the women keeping them supplied with food and coffee! Fifty four chairs, an organ, pulpit, oil furnace hymn books and book cases were all installed in the church. Mr Hoglund added the finishing touches by painting the inside and varnishing the floor How proud we were to have our first service in the new building. Mr Maclean conducted the service and Mrs Maclean asked the blessing on the new church

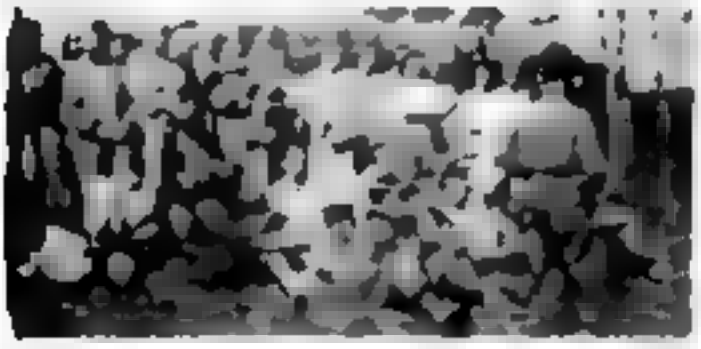
A board of nine trustees was elected, Mr Maclean being the president A Ladies Aid was formed in 1950 Their duties were to look after the church. Baby quilts were made and given to the new arrivals. fruit baskets were made for hospital patients and aid was also given when needed for flood or fire relief The mission Ladies' Aid also sponsored a dear missionary Ruth Ebbers, for many years in Africa They also conducted Vocational Bible School in the mission during the summer Mr Brunner of Red Deer held Vocational Bible School in 1966 in the mission. On July 1. 1950 the Sunshine Gospel Mission was dedicated by Rev D J Firth, Knox



Presbyterian Church, Red Deer. Nearly 100 people were present for the service and the social which followed. The following Sunday, Mrs. Audrey Ponto was elected to be responsible for the Sunday School and Mrs. Mary Hoglund and Emil Viitala for the music - she on the organ and he with his violin. (Mary Hoglund passed away in June 23, 1953.) Mrs. Lyrnie Schultz took over as organist and later Beverly Langer filled in. Mr. E. Viitala passed away November 7, 1968. They were both sadly missed as they were faithful church members. Mr. Maclean, along with his dear wife, faithfully served the mission for 18 years. They came, rain or shine. Mr. Walter Quantz, of Gimlet, filled in for two years when Mr. Maclean had surgery. Mr. Maclean came back and with an exchange program once a month with Rev. Broadway of Lockhart, he was able to serve two more years. In 1965, due to ill health, he asked to be relieved. Mr. Walter Kokot of Leslieville filled in as pastor of the mission. In 1967 Mr. William Hutton served for two years, followed by Mr. Don Friesen, who served until we closed temporarily.

Many happy events took place over the years. Great picnics were held every spring with all the ice cream and pop the children could eat, again supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Maclean. The Christmas concerts were put on in the mission by the church members and, at times, the building couldn't hold all who came. The Three Hills Bible Camp, which the children from the mission attended, went on for many years. Each year Mr. Maclean would have them meet at the church, he would take his truck, drive them to the camp at Gull Lake and take them home when it was over. A very happy event took place when Margie MacKenzie and Noel Stevenson were married in the mission, May 30, 1958. This was the only marriage solemnized in the mission. Mr. Maclean was master of ceremonies and proposed the toast to the bride.

One remembers the lovely prayers by Mrs. Maclean every Sunday and the beautiful Finnish prayers by Mr. Peltonen. One also remembers Mr. Maclean and his Bible, which was so much a part of him, everywhere he went - even when he was working. He and his wife did a great deal of good in the district and encouraged the young people to live according to the Bible teachings. I am sure when they were called home, Mrs. Maclean in 1958 and Mr. Maclean in 1968, the Lord said, "Well done, my good and faithful ser[illegible]."

THE THURBRON FAMILY - by Mrs. Clara Thurbron

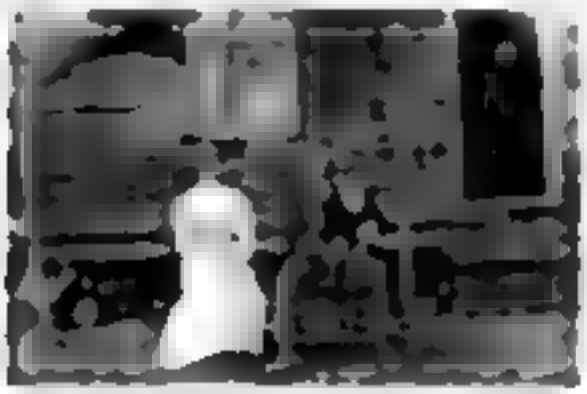
Our Dad, Oscar Thubron, was born in the County of Durham, England. His parents lived in a mining town where they owned a hotel. Dad came to Canada in 1902 and settled on a homestead 17 miles north east of Calgary adjoining land owned by his sister Elizabeth Greig and her husband John.

Mom, formerly Agnes Bullivant, was born in Ripon, Yorkshire, England. Her father was the schoolmaster there and Mom taught school under him for several years. When he retired they came to Canada in 1902 and also took up land north east of Calgary. That was where she met and married Dad.



Dad's brother Alf, came out to Canada in 1909 and went into partnership with Dad, working on the farm and raising pure-bred Red Poll cattle which they took on the show circuit every year taking in all the fairs. After being hailed out and dried out numerous times, they decided it was time to move, and in 1918 they moved to a farm at Gilby where Uncle Alf and my brother Percy lived together until Alf passed away in 1977 at the age of 92 years. Percy continues to live on the

We have many happy memories of growing up at Gilby. This was a little country store built on what was once part of our land and at that time was owned by Mr. Walter and Jim Shorrock. It was a wonderful little store, stocked with everything you could want. The mail used to come three times a week, delivered by team from Eckville. This was quite an event and most of the people would come to the store to get the mail and groceries, but most of all just to visit.

Dad gave the community enough land to build a Hall, so in 1921 the Gilby Hall was built by community effort and is still serving a very useful purpose for all in the district.

Mom was a very active person, always willing to give a helping hand in any way she could. After getting her piano she gave music lessons to several of the young people, and loved to play while everyone sang. She passed away in 1968 after living a full and eventful life.

Uncle Alf and Mr. Gilbertson were instrumental in getting the Medicine Valley Livestock Pool started and Uncle Alf served as manager and secretary for about eight years. He always thought he was one of the last ones to drive down Calgary's eighth avenue with a load of hay for after delivering his hay at the market and starting back, he was stopped and told he couldn't go that way any more as the street was now closed for teams and wagons.

There were just the three of us children — George, Percy, and I. Pat. George was married to Katherine Moe of Langdon. They lived in Red Deer for several years but now reside in Calgary. They have three boys, Bill, Jack and Gary, and six grandchildren. Bill married Honora Brown from Calgary and they have three children, Cheryl, Douglas and Laura. Jack married Elinor Hole from Twin Buttes, Alberta. Their two children are Judy and Brian. Gary married Diana Gilby from Smith Falls, Ontario and they have one boy, Jackie.

Percy stayed and worked the farm when Dad died in 1936. He continues to live there alone since the death of Uncle Alf.

In 1941 I was married to Clare Thomas, who had come to the Benjamin District with his parents in 1934. We continued the farming operations on the Thomas farm until 1957, at which time we moved to Eckville. For the next 18 years Clare was employed, first by Bill Elliott and later by Bob Matthews, until forced into semi-retirement for health reasons in June of

We have three children — Sharon, Ted, and Linda, and four grandchildren — Kathleen, Michael, Jason and Steven. Ted married Claudia White of Ottawa and Linda married Evan Kind of Eckville. All of the children are living in the Eckville area.

TOLONEN, MR. JACOB — by Margaret Jack, his daughter

Jacob Tolonen was born in Pamamo, Finland, in 1887. He emigrated to the United States to Hancock, Michigan in 1907 where he worked in a mine for a year. He then came to Alberta in November of 1908 to settle on a homestead near Enchant. Dad was joined by his brother Edward, in 1910 and they farmed together for two years. In the summer of 1912 dad took a trip to Portland, Oregon, where he met Annie Lethonen. They were married in Taber on September 28, 1912.

Children born to them in Enchant were Toivo, Mary, Hilja, Walfred (Slim), Ann, Jake and Margaret.

In November of 1925 they left Enchant and came to Olds, where they lived on Reed Ranch eleven miles east of Olds for one year, moving to Trochu in November of 1926. Mother died in March, 1927 after giving birth to twin girls Thelma and Doris. The twins were adopted by two local families.

The problems without a mother proved to be many but one incident turned out to be fruitful when Mary, age 12, and just learning to bake bread, made one recipe and ended up with 25 loaves of bread.

The family moved to Eckville in 1932, settling on CPR land, section S.E. 13-40-3-W5, purchased by Toivo.

One type of recreation which Mr Tolonen enjoyed was cross-country skiing, and he won many prizes in skiing competitions. Prizes at that time were gratefully received, for they were groceries or sacks of flour

Jake and Margaret attended Estonian School And spent her school years at Boyle School while living with Mr and Mrs. Victor Matson. Mary, Hilja and Slim worked away from home in their late teens. Toimi worked for one and a half years at the flour mill in Eckville, but after his marriage to Elsie Moos he commenced farming full time and has remained on the same farm near Eckville until the present time. They have two children, Rodney and Deloyce. Mary married Lester Lundberg (deceased) and now lives at Fort Saskatchewan. Her children are Jack and Stanley

Hilja (deceased) married Fred Takkinen who resides in Eckville. They had three children Alice, Lawrence, and Karen

Walfred (Slim) married Fern Greenman They are living at Fort Saskatchewan. Their children are Paula Elaine and Linda

Ann married Percy Thomas, and they are living at Sicamous, British Columbia Their six children are Percy, Philip, Tom, Doug, Harry and Michael

Jake married Agnes Allen and they live at Lacombe. Allen, Robin, Norma and Nancy are their children

Margaret married Robert (Scotty) Jack (deceased). She lives at Lethbridge and her children are Jim, Ken and Lori

Mr Tolonen retired to the town of Eckville about 1950, later moving to the Sylvan Lake Lodge He is now residing in a Nursing Home in Red Deer. He has been blessed with 23 grandchildren and 31 great-grandchildren

TOIMI TOLONEN — by Elsie Tolonen

Toimi came to Eckville in 1932 and purchased the SE 13-40-3-W5. He worked in the Olds and Didsbury areas until 1934, then came back to Eckville to stay and purchased the NE quarter of 13-40-3-W5

In the summer of 1935, he started to work in the Eckville flour mill and continued with that job until late fall of 1936. In 1937 he married Elsie Moos and settled on the farm. There was land to be cleared the first few years and this was all done by hand. Our farming the first few years was done with horses

In 1956, Mr and Mrs. Tolonen bought the NW 18-40-2-W5 from Andy Harvilow We had a few head of cattle, pigs and chickens. Everybody had big gardens. People did a lot of canning of vegetables and also meat, as we had no freezers in those days. People also picked and canned a lot of berries for fruit We went west of Rocky Mountain House, coming home with tubs full of blueberries and cranberries picked with pickers. It was fun as three or four families would go together and of course a picnic lunch was packed to enjoy at noon

We did not own a car the first few years, so usually got a ride with someone who did have a car On one occasion there was a dance at one of the halls, so we went by horse and buggy to my brother's place. Hans Moos, and then went with them in their car to the dance Jake, Toimi's brother was along, too. Then in the wee hours of the morning, coming home with the horses, something came loose on the harness and scared the horses. Immediately we were having a runaway! Jake jumped off, tearing his suit, and found in our ravine the next morning, tangled up in the trees. Toimi and Jake were not hurt but I had my knee in a cast for a few weeks

About a year and a half later a daughter, whom we named Deloyce, was born to us in the Bentley Hospital. The Eckville Hospital did not open until four days later This hospital was in the house that the Roy Saari's live in now Two and a half years later Rodney was born We were so happy that the hard work, even washing clothes by hand, did not bother us

Margaret, Toimi's younger sister was staying with us and going to school. Whenever Toimi's dad and brothers, Slim and Jake, would be out of work they would stay and help us until they found work again

When Slim and Fern were married they stayed with us until they got a place of their own They lived on the Fred Moos farm for one year then bought the NE 5-40-2-W5. I enjoyed Fern's help and the company After a meal we would rush through the dishes, sit down and listen to the soap operas on the radio. We were busy those days, but once in a while we would take the afternoon off and visit neighbors. We usually walked, taking the kiddies in a sleigh in the winter and in a wagon or push cart in the summer One spring we were walking by a slough and heard the frogs really croaking. Rodney was just old enough to talk and he asked, "Mummie, do frogs talk Finn?" He thought this because when Grandpa talked Finn he could not understand him, either.

We had our sewing circle meeting every two weeks, each member taking her turn in having it at her house. We would walk, if close, or get a ride with one of the ladies who had a car. Children were taken to the meetings, too. We still had our meetings until the winter of 1976-77. That year we just never got started.

When Margaret was through school, she found a job. Deloyce, just a little girl about four years old, loved her auntie and hated to see her go. She told her auntie she would let her let the water out of the sink if she would stay home.

Jake was overseas at war where he met Agnes Allen of Edinburgh, Scotland. They were married in Scotland just before the war ended. Jake came home five months ahead of Agnes. They stayed with us for a while until they bought the Lundberg place.

As time went on things got a little easier, as tractors replaced horses and better machinery was bought.

Winters were hard for us in the late 1940's, as Toimi was so sick with asthma that he had to spend most of the winters in bed. Many times I had to call Dr. Coppock out in the middle of the night to attend Toimi. I was lucky to have Toimi's dad here sometimes to help with the chores. As the children grew older we had a lot of help.

After their school days Deloyce took up education, and taught for a few years before she married Robert Burns of the Diamond Valley area.

Rod stayed at home and helped on the farm. He later became interested in cattle and did blood testing in these areas for two and a half years under Doctor Speirs. He married Nancy Morgan of Rocky Mountain House. They lived on what used to be the Bill Palm place. They farm and raise cattle, some of which are purebred Simmentals. They have one daughter, Kathy, who was born in 1969.

VIITALA, JOHN ADULF

John Adulf, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Viitala, married Myrtle Gibson of Weyburn, Saskatchewan in December, 1942.

They farmed the NW 2-40-3-W5, northeast of Eckville for a number of years. This is where their son, Wilfred, was born in 1943.

After farming for a few years John and Myrtle decided this wasn't the life for them, so the family moved to Edmonton.

Myrtle passed away on June 8, 1955 and John on July 1, 1960. Both are buried in the Pleasant View Cemetery in south Edmonton.

Son Wilfred is a member of the Edmonton City Police. Wilfred is married to Wanda Haddwitz of Edmonton and they have three daughters.

VIITALA, MR. AND MRS. JOHN G. — by Ernest [illegible]

In 1914, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Viitala and sons, John, aged 14 and Emil, aged 12, moved from Worcester, Massachusetts, U.S.A. to Alberta. They settled four and a half miles northeast of Eckville on NW 2-40-3-W5. John and his family stayed at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. Maki, while building their own log house.

[illegible]

After his home was completed John went out to work to get his first cow. Later his boys began sawing wood and grinding grain around the country. The wood saw, grinder and gas engine were set on a frame on the sleigh or wagon pulled by a team of horses. That's how they paid for part of their farm implements.

Emil was in threshing crews with Koski's, Thorkman's and Langer's in steam engine days. He also played in the band in the 1920's and 30's. In 1929 Emil married Saima Asunma (nee Rauman), who had come to Alberta from Finland in 1927 with her son Elmer, aged four years. Emil and Ernest, born in 1933. The children took their schooling in the Estonian School.

WERNICK JOHN AND EMMA — by Henry Wenick

In the fall of 1904, Jean Warnick and Emma Jasmin were married and immigrated to Canada in March, 1905. Jean came from a family of three boys and one girl. He carried on the same trade as his father carpentering. After finishing his apprenticeship in Russia, he then formed a partnership with his father. But his desire was to become a farmer which was impossible to do in Estonia on account of such a population. On hearing it was easier in Canada to get started decided to venture, arriving by rail at Red Deer and then by wagon to Gilby staying for the first month with the Carl Langers. At this time he filed on a homestead, now owned by Shorrock Bros.

To make ends meet financially he got a summer job in Calgary as a carpenter on the C.P.R. who were building a bridge over the Bow River. During this time, Emma stayed with the John Rabbis'. In the fall Jean came home to Gilby and built a one-roomed house to do until such time as he could afford better which he did in 1909. In 1910 he received the deed to his homestead and to his surprise found they had changed his name to John Wernick. Rather than go through a lot of red tape to correct it left it that way. A carpenter with tools was really in demand. Some of his extra work was in making coffins and he made many in those early days. He also built the Maasepp's turbine wheel and housing which was the local grist mill at that time.

Carpentering and farming were more than a one man job so decided to do something else. He then put an ad in the Winnipeg Free Press and was soon contacted by Mr. Gates of Summerland, B.C. and a deal was made. His homestead and stock were traded for a ten acre orchard with a house plus implements and a horse named Jerry who also went with the place when sold, later.

On May 24, 1916, John, Emma and a family of four children left Gilby for B.C. going by train to Okanagan Landing and the rest of the way by boat (S.S. Sicamous which is now a museum on the lake shore at Penticton) to Summerland. Here they stayed for four years during which time he built up the orchard and remodelled the house which still stands in Summerland.

In 1920 they decided to return to Estonia, now with five children. John's parents were still in the same house as when he left in 1905. As John was now a Canadian citizen he was not entitled to own land in Estonia. To fill in time he had a machine agency until he could get started on a farm for himself. The three eldest returned to Canada, namely Henry in 1926, Anna in 1927 and Eddie in 1929 leaving two brothers and one sister and their parents in Estonia. John passed away in 1948 at the age of 74 and Emma in 1962 at the age of 80.

On coming to Canada Henry attended Technical School in Calgary taking up Industrial Electrical Engineering. This was during the Depression and not many jobs available of our choosing, so was offered and accepted a motor mechanic's job and stayed at it for over thirty years, over 29 years with Edmonton Motors, until retiring in 1971. During this time he married and raised two boys and one girl and presently has five grandchildren. Henry and his wife are in Edmonton and previous to that lived in the Peace River country.

Anna married soon after arriving in Canada and raised three boys and six girls and now has 22 grandchildren. Anna was widowed some years ago.

Eddie did farming and carpentering in B.C. Here he married and raised two boys and three girls and now has five grandchildren.

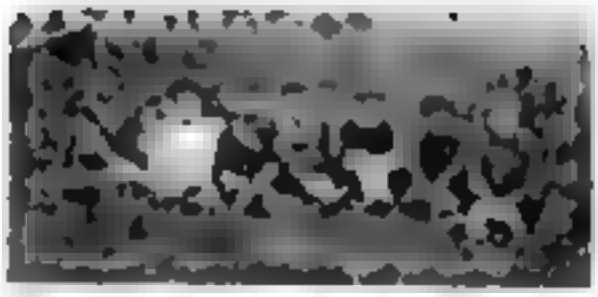
THE GIMLET SCHOOL

When families with children of school age set tle in an area it soon becomes apparent that a school house is needed. A few students from Gimlet had to go all the way to the Leedale school so in 1908, George Meredith as head carpenter with a volunteer crew got timber out and had lumber sawed and they built the Gimlet school on N W 15-41-4-W5. The hardware (nails hinges etc.) was brought from Lacombe and the total cost of the school was $800.00

Original Gimlet School building, built in 1908

The first school board consisted of three members who were Ironsdorf, Mottet and Becker and the first teacher assigned to Gimlet was Mrs Clay Aldridge who started at a salary of $4.00 a day or $840.00 per year Thirteen children started school that first term either walking or riding horseback for miles

Following is a list of teachers that taught at the Gimlet school between the years 1908 and 1954. Mrs. Clay Aldridge, Mr Tennant, Mr Fallis, Mr McLeod, Miss Lillian Sharpe. Mr Trenholm Mrs. Luela Anderson, Miss Milne, Miss Morton Mr E A. Chappell, Mrs Lewis, Miss Hattie Dobbs later Mrs Harry Stears) Miss Geneva Clayton (later Mrs. Jim Baird), Miss Selma Rabbis, Miss Elsie Peterson. Mr Russel Hall Miss Thelma Olson Miss Ruth Hall. Mrs Kathleene Johnson, Mrs. Marsh, Miss Bessie Snyder, Mr Allan Embrey, Mr Eddie Dahms Miss Ruth Holland. Mr Alex Mercer Mr



Vesney, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Stearns, Mrs Mamie Luton. Mrs Louise Jones and Miss Barr

Memorable events for students, teachers, and parents alike were the annual June picnics and the annual Christmas concerts held at the school Everyone in the district brought a picnic lunch and it was all put together and everyone ate together Then they had ball games, races and the local ladies had a concession booth. The wind-up of the big day that everyone looked forward to was the dance. Everyone joined in at these dances, bedding sleeping children in the sand table, on desks or in the corner and usually the last group of people were seen leaving as the dawn was breaking

Then the Christmas concerts were highly an ticipated by the children as the teachers had them memorizing and practising poems, drills, plays and songs from about the first of November for the concert which was held between December 17 to 22. The concert started the evening and kept everyone well entertained for one and a half to two hours, the highlights be ing saved to the very last when the children all lined up and sang "Here Comes Santa Claus and you'd hear the "tinkle tinkle" of his bells and in would come the jolly old fellow and take his place by the beautifully decorated Christmas tree and hand out candy bags and gifts to all the eager children. To end this night of fun, a dance followed with music supplied by a local orchestra

Track meets were a hectic day for teachers and enjoyed immensely by all the students participating, but just as much by those who weren because it was a holiday. For divisional, trackmeets, everyone was loaded in the back of a truck and transported to a central rendezvous.

Then in 1954 came the centralization of several country schools and Gimlet had to close her doors to learning and "bus" the children to Lestevi le. However the school was not lost. The school building was bought by the community in the late 1950's for $400.00 and is now known as the Gimlet Community Center and is still controlled by a very efficient crew of board members. The building is used for numerous community functions and the men of the district have built a fabulous set of rodeo grounds there, which sees a very active ti le rodeo annually on the third Sunday of June.

THE GIMLET SOCIALITE LADIES CLUB — by Ruth Casey

In 1945 we held an organization meeting in the Gimlet school with the purpose of organizing a ladies club in the district. Thus the Gimlet Social Ladies Club was formed, the name being submitted by Miss Vessy, the sister of our school teacher at that time.

Mrs. Gladys Bell was our first president and Violet Brown the secretary. Among the first members of our club were: Laura Chappell, Rosie Wallis, Jean Evernden, Lenora Jodoin, Sally Evernden, Pauline Keim, Selma Dvrland, Fee Mason, Annie Parker, Hattie Pimm, Anne Tkachk, Violet Belt, Dorothy Dalum, Mabel Erwin, Miss Vessey, and Ruth Casey. Our aim was to meet once a month and bring some social activity into the community.

Among our first activities was a play. All of the participants will remember Stuart Chappell's delicious pancakes and Mrs. Browns' apple pie. These were the sort of midnight snacks we demanded while rehearsing' — and I think it's time we put on another play.

Down through the years we have held card parties, bridal showers and our annual fall pot luck suppers. Then there has almost always been a pancake supper in February, the one event when the gents don an apron and "flip the flap jacks."

In 1956 the question arose, what will we do with our old school? So the Community Club was formed, and we bought it to be used as a Community Centre. Ever since then, the people of Gimlet, Leedale, and Medicine Valley have kept it going and it is now used as a Rodeo grounds as well, with an annual rodeo held on the third Sunday in June.

The Gimlet Socialites are still an active ladies club, and the membership to date is as follows: Gail Johnston, Bea Clough, Ruth Neal, Mrs. Margaret Houston, Violet Brown, Trudy Houston, Rose May, Eileen Feddersen, Florence Feddersen, Myrtle Jackson, Hannah Oldford, Marjorie Staudinger, and Ruth Casey.

GIMLET UNITED MISSIONARY CHURCH

When the district was first being settled and for many years thereafter, church services were conducted out of the Gimlet schoolhouse by Christian workers from Didsbury or Christian school teachers and other people who wished to assist.

Then in 1933 a young couple originally from South Dakota, who had just graduated from Mountain View Bible College in Didsbury, were commissioned to full-time service in the Gimlet [illegible]

[illegible] and his wife at the United Missionary Church Mr. and Mrs. Merle Baker

Upon arriving at their mission, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Baker stayed at the John Olson farm while finding and fixing a place to live. They decided on a house owned by Robert Flack which he said they could live in if they thought it livable. So they bought a roll of building paper and proceeded to cover the logs. Interrupted by a loud noise from under the building, they pulled up a floor board to find a family of skunks had first occupancy at that location. But sensing the newcomers intent to stay, Mama skunk packed up her babies and moved on.

The Baker's finished repairing the house and furnished it with orange boxes and other locally acquired chattel. And here they lived for the next four years while making their thirty mile trip each Sunday to their individual appointments of Gimlet Aurora and Washington Heights. This they did by team and buggy. One of the team had a wee colt and being too small to make the trip on his own, they had to let it ride in the wagon for the first few weeks.

Mr. Kenneth Chadbourne gave a corner of land on which a new parsonage could be built and in 1937 the Bakers regretfully moved into the nice new three room house that Mr. Baker had built. After four years the old log shack was still home to them.

Church services, Sunday school and Daily Vacational Bible School were still being held in the Gimlet school. Tent meetings were also held just across from the school. Mr. and Mrs. Baker served Gimlet and their other districts for six years before moving to another field. When Mr. Baker came to Gimlet there were no members of the United Missionary Church but at the termination of their ministry here in 1938 the journal reports a membership of sixteen people.

Rev. and Mrs. Habermehl (Albert and Beulah) succeeded the Bakers at Gimlet and served here from 1939 to 1944. They too had smelly experiences with the little black and white cats that roamed quietly about the neighborhood. One night when Mr. Habermehl was away and Gladys Beckett was staying with Mrs. Habermehl, an uninvited guest caused bedlam in the barn where the chickens stayed. The ladies, neither of which were experienced with a shotgun, proceeded with gun and lantern up the ladder of the barn, and pointing the gun down the feed chute, Gladys pulled the trigger. She was nearly unseated from her perch but there was no Mr. Skunk, only his odor remained to haunt them for months.

Replacing the Habermehls in 1944 and serving until 1946 were Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Neufeld (Ernie and Myna).

During these years spring break-up and summer rains made it very difficult to cross the Gimlet creek to get to the school for church services. So when Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Quantz (Les and Evelyne) took over the ministry here in 1946 it was decided it was a time for a change. Mr. and Mrs. James Houston donated seven acres of land one mile south of the Gimlet school (S.W. 15-11-4-W5) and the parsonage was moved, enlarged and remodelled.

Rev. Quantz and the people of the district then proceeded to erect a church on the site. Les's brother Walter succeeded him in 1950 and it was on Oct. 8 of that year that the Gimlet and Aurora congregations met with Mr. Frey, the District Superintendent and former pastors for the dedication service of the new church.

Mrs. Leinonen, a lovely little lady who lived a mile and a half from the church, very generously donated the big bell that is in the church in hopes she may hear it toll all the way to her place.

Rev. Jim Maconochie pastored at Gimlet from 1951 to 1955. During this period, Jim took time off to go to British Columbia and bring back a bride who was the former Jean Burgess. Jim and Jean were highly respected and the district regretted their leaving when they were called to another field in 1955.

But they were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Walter Quantz. Walter and Elsie) to minister to them until 1959.

Next a big, humerous, slow speaking, wonderful man was appointed to Gimlet in the form of Rev. Earl Archer and he and Mrs. Archer (Katherine) were with us until 1962. During their ministry the parsonage and church were wired for electricity.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Umbach came to Gimlet in 1962 for a two year term followed by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Snyder (Wayne and Vicky) who ministered here for a year.

In 1965 Colin Meikle served Gimlet faithfully while finishing his bible school training. He also took time to acquire a wife (Shirley) while he was here and in 1967 left us in the care of his brother Allan and his wife Gaie.

Gimlet then had Mr. and Mrs. Don Bacon (Don and Grace) minister to them for just one year, and in 1972 Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wilcox came to take over this field. Their pastorship was enjoyed until he was replaced by Mr. Randy Arliss and his wife, Lynn, in 1975, and they are still working this field to date 1978.

BERRY FAMILIES JOHN AND MAGGIE HARRY AND BESSIE BERRY, JACK AND MARGARET (nee BERRY WALLS — by Margaret Walls

My dad and my brother, Harry came from Lancashire, England in 1911 to file on NW and SW 10-41-4-W5 My brother was never robust he had been to River Falls, Massachusetts, U.S.A two years before, and had taken ill. The doctor advised him to either go west or return to England. He returned to England, but was determined to go back to America. He and his chum Jack Mullarkey arranged to go with another couple to Imperial Valley, California but by saving time the parents would not give their consent. Then Harry persuaded his dad to get the address of Frank Lawton who had come to Canada from the same village in England. After exchanging a few letters, Dad and Harry came to Lacombe Alberta chose the land, then went back to Lacombe to file on it and get work on the C.P.R line east of Lacombe Dad was used to hard work, but Harry was not In the fall they came back to the land to put in the required time and start improvements stove, and became too warm to stay in on baking day. They made a bed of hogwire stretched over two by fours, with a mattress of sheets sewed together and stuffed with dried grass. Mother had sent a good supply of wool blankets. They survived the winter, more determined than ever to "prove up" and get the title. Some neighbors from Central Europe had a farming background and looked with disgust on the green Englishmen. In order to learn, Dad and Harry would offer to help others build a barn or dig a well.

The next spring they built a one-roomed shack on Harry's place and dug a well on Dad's quarter. As money was getting scarce, they went to Calgary, where work was plentiful. That winter Dad returned to England to bring Mother and me to Canada the next May. By this time the boom in Calgary was over. Mother had no intention of going to the farm, but the men did go. Mother got work at the Hudson's Bay Store for $10 a week and felt like a millionaire. My first job was baby-sitting for $7 a week. Every cent we could spare went to the homestead.

During the summer, while the men were away working, we got a message that some kid had shot out the windows, lamps and even a can with some money in it. Mother's wool blankets were gone, but found later after the mice had eaten holes in them.

In 1915 my brother married Bessie Curson of Calgary and settled down on the farm. In 1916, because Harry's wife was expecting a baby, Mother came up and persuaded Bessie to go to Calgary to await the arrival. I was not happy at Calgary as Mother was so strict, so Bessie told me to come and stay with Dad and Harry. I came, and soon I was working for Dan Clausen who was running the Gilby store owned by Mike Sestrap. I got $15 a month, but had little to spend as groceries for the homestead came out of it. Mr. and Mrs. Clausen treated me very well, and I went visiting and to parties with them. Mother later gave up her job and came to the farm until spring, when I went back to Calgary with her. We roomed with Mr. and Mrs. Easter who later farmed SW 14-41-4-W5.

Harry and Bessie Berry

Jack and Madge Wells 1918

I met a young soldier, Jack Wails, and we were married in November 1917. Jack was born on December 23 at Darlington County Durham England, and was one of 15 children in the famil

In 1918 Harry and Bessie were farming alone. They had another girl born in September with Mother Mrs. Lawton and Mrs. Dyrland in attendance.

My folks were working in Calgary. In late October when Dad and I came up for a few days, we were surprised to see the train crew wearing masks, as we hadn't heard of the flu. There were six of us staying in the two-roomed shack. Harry and the children came down with the flu, then I got it. We drifted in and out of delirium for several days. Bessie walked over to Norems, a mile and a half away, to send a message to Calgary and get medicine. Mr. Norem met her some distance from the buildings and told her to stop. He threw her a pencil and pad to write her message on. When she threw it back, he read it and put it in a pail of coal oil to kill any germs. Jack came out with medicine and a bottle of liquor, walking most of the way from Eckville. Meanwhile, Dad had got fires started in his house, although it wasn't yet finished, and moved me there.

When Jack saw how ill I was, in addition to being pregnant with my first baby, he arranged for Harry Lowe, who ran the Eckville Hotel, to come for us in his Model T Ford and we went back to Calgary. We would have taken Harry, too, but he was too ill to be moved. Mother, who had come up, got Jack Mullarkey to go for our friend, Mrs. Spencer of Carlos, who was a nurse. Dr. Henry came out from Bentley and said Harry had double pneumonia. On November 23, when Mrs. Spencer had gone home for the day, he passed away after three weeks' illness, at the age of 28 years. Mr. Sjodahl laid him out and Mr. Lawton made the casket that Mother lined with her best crocheted table cloth. He was buried in the Gilby cemetery with Reverend Yeutus of Sylvan Lake as minister.

Jack Mullarkey took over running the farm and Bessie and the children went to Calgary. They had no money, only what clothes they wore. Bessie got a job at Dr. McKid's house. The children were put in a shelter, where Helen, the oldest, later contracted scarlet fever. We took Beatrice, six months old, to our place, where my folks were also living. On January 22 I lost my premature baby girl.

In April 1919 my folks again decided to go to the farm. They gave Jack and me a partnership in return for our paying the mortgage and interest. Jack and I were both working, making about $99 a month. We bought a sorrel team (Topsy and George), a light wagon and harness and some chickens. Dad drove up, while Mother, Mr. and Mrs. Easter and the children came on the train. We sent about $30 a month up to the folks. bought repairs, cows and calves. I often look at young people today and wonder how many would do as we did.

In the fall of 1920 we came to the farm for the harvest. Several bridges were being built, and my husband and Jack Mullarkey got the job of hauling the timbers from Bentley. After several trips they were staying with Jack Farr in the Medicine Hills for the night, when a small colt they had with them kicked Jack, cutting his right eye so it hung on his cheek. Jack Mullarkey borrowed a buggy and, instead of taking him to a doctor, brought him home. I dressed the wound with him screaming with pain, then saddled a horse and rode to Mr. Sjodahls. He took us to Eckville in his Model T Ford. I think we saw a doctor, but nothing could be done, as the tear duct was cut, so I went home. Some boys were had to wear glasses. We were thankful that he could keep the eye.

Mother was constantly mourning my brother, and the children got on her nerves, so we moved into Harry's old shack. Jack was able to ride over to Balances (now Ivan Houston's) to help bale hay for $1 a day and board. I had lots of mice for company, a tom cat and a weasel would come out of the cellar and sit under the stove. I was afraid on a windy day as we had only a tin pipe where the tamarack wood would spark and ignite the creosote that formed, sending flames high into the air. Our roof was only tar paper and could easily have caught fire.

Four years later Bessie remarried, taking the children to Vancouver.

In spite of all the hardships, there were good times, too. At Christmas our friends Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, her brother, Bill Collins, and a young Englishman, Maurice Spires, came from their place, eight miles away, bringing lots of goodies. After chores, the Lawtons came and we were invited to the Chadbourne's, who lived [illegible] the road. They had five children — Anna, Hattie, Ken, Melvin and Eugene. Dad stayed home with the little girls. They had a gramophone with a large horn and Mr. Chadbourne played the violin. I don't think my mother ever enjoyed herself as much, as everyone danced and sang. The Lawtons drove home, but the others stayed. We had a bin of oats in one of our bedrooms, so we made a bed for the men there. Many a party we had at the Easter's. They had a piano that Mabel played and Jack Mullarkey, who had a splendid voice, would sing all the old songs.

In the spring we went back to Calgary where Jack got a job with Crystal Dairies, living in half of a bungalow that his Dad owned. We had to save money before "Little Johnny" came. A week before he was born prematurely, we got the word that Mr. Lawton had died suddenly. I felt as bad as if he had been one of my own family. Granny Lawton and I wrote often after that. While he was living we had spent many evenings dancing around the stove in the middle of the room. Granny would have refreshments ready

Granny Lawton took over the care of Phil and he soon gained weight. Jack was working for Harding Brothers, hauling grain to Eckville for $250 a month which they couldn't pay For his wages he only got a few groceries. an old rifle and a wooden barrel

After Jack got his engineer's papers we spent 11 years working for the provincial government at Fort Saskatchewan. Our daughter Betty was born there in 1931 We cleared the mortgage on the other land, also bought the SE 10-41-4-W5 and the SW 14-41-4-W5. We returned to the farm and farmed until 1957

BROWN, STANLEY AND VIOLET

Stanley Brown was born in Blythe, England in June 1906. His uncle, Joe Brown, immigrated to Canada in 1905 to the Gimlet district and homesteaded the S.W 22-41-4-W5 now owned by Bill Houston

Stanley and his parents came to Halifax Canada, by boat in 1912 and then came west to Lacombe, Alberta, by train. They purchased a team and wagon and continued their journey to Wittenberg (now Leedale) and from there southwest crossing the river twice to reach their destination. At one point they mired down in the muskeg as a lot of the country was wet at that time. After unloading all of their worldly possessions and carrying them to higher ground they finally freed the team and wagon, reloaded and proceeded on to Joe Brown's homestead

They lived in Joe's little log shack until Tom Brown homesteaded the N W 9-41-4-W5. They built the usual luxurious two room log house on this place but hauling all of their water from a spring, nearly a mile from home, was no luxury

In May 1914 a little girl was born into the Brown family and she was named Mabel. Mrs Brown was very sick after the baby was born and passed away in August of the same year with Bright's disease

Tom took Stanley and Mabel and went to Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, to visit his wife's brothers, Tom and Jack Kindred. They stayed there the entire winter and while there, met some friends that were going back to England so Tom sent baby Mabel back to his sister to raise which she did. Mabel married and had one daughter and remained there until her passing in 1975

Stanley and his Dad returned to the farm in the spring of 1915 and bought a team of oxen from Clarence Dameron at Bentley to break the land While his Dad plowed, Stanley had to walk behind in the furrow and tramp the sod that wanted to fall back into the furrow

Stanley attended school at Gimlet where he walked nearly two miles until they could afford a horse for him to ride

In 1921 Joe Brown bought NW 21-41-4-W5 and Tom Brown bought S.E 21-41-4-W5 which were both C.P R quarters

Stanley and his Dad hauled lumber from McPherson's mill about six miles west of their place, which they bought at $10.00 per thousand feet, planed, to build a cottage style house in 92.

This farm was where Stanley spent the next 50 years of his life. He recalled many incidents in the next ten years after moving to section 21 too numerous to mention in this brief history.

One time he and Jack Mullarkey were going to a dance in Lesueville and the snow was drifted so deep in places, they had to unhook the team, lead them over the drifts and push the cutter over by hand. Then going down a long hill, the team spooked and began to run. In order to stop them, Jack pulled them off the road into the deep snow, but in doing so they broke the tongue out of the cutter. They had to go to a farm and borrow a brace and bit, two bolts and an axe and put the tongue back in the cutter. Is that so different from borrowing a jack and a wheel wrench and changing a tire nowadays?

Another time Artie Hollingsworth and Stanley Brown were coming home from a dance at Willesdengreen, both went to sleep and woke up to find the team going 'round and 'round Benson's race track. That's better than going to sleep at the wheel of a car, it would just promptly take you straight into the ditch.

Stanley purchased the N.E. 15-41-4-W5 in 1930 and one afternoon while plowing with six head of horses on a gang plow, Ted Pimm called him over for coffee. A few minutes later Doreen Mason came home from school on a full gallop and when she turned the corner, the clatter of her horses' hooves spooked his team and they took off but luckily he had left the plow in the ground and caught them quickly before they plowed too long a furrow.

In 1938, after courting Violet Hollingsworth for seven years, Stanley and she were united in marriage at the Gimlet parsonage. The first residing minister of the Gimlet United Missionary Church, Rev. Merle Baker performed the marriage and then took the happy couple for a wild Bennett wagon ride behind Harold Misner's Model A Ford, through the hamlet of Leedale and on to the Hollingsworth ranch. Thus started their thirty-one and a half years of married life.

In August 1941, their only child was born in Eckville, Alberta, a daughter which they named Patricia Louise (Patty Lou).

Tom Brown went back to England to visit in 1937 and returned to Canada in 1944. He lived with his family until his passing in 1945.

Joe Brown bought the S.W. 28-41-4-W5 to go with his section 18 quarter where he farmed for many years. Then he had the misfortune of losing his two storey frame home in a fire. He remained on the farm though until he purchased a house in Leedale and lived there until he

In 1963, Stanley and Violet's daughter Patty married Richard Lee Fedirchuck. Over a period of seven years, three daughters were born to them: Bonnita Louise (born in Rocky Mountain House), Pamela Gay (born in Eckville) and Lisa Marie (born in Leduc).

In 1966, Browns built a new three bedroom home on their farm with the average conveniences and this home was an absolute luxury.

Unfortunately a fatal heart attack allowed Stanley to enjoy their new home only until December of 1970. But Violet remained on the farm and in 1974 her daughter and her family moved home to help her farm. They had purchased the S.E. 21-41-4-W5 in 1973 so are farming as well. Patty and Rick's girls attend school at Lesueville and David Thompson High School and so goes the story of the life of Stanley and Violet Brown and their offspring.

Ruth Casey

Howard "Bud" Casey and myself, Ruth Alice Parsons, were united in marriage in August 1941, at the Presbyterian Church in Red Deer.

Bud was born at Carstairs, Alberta, in November 1919, and moved to the Leaftand area with his parents in 1930. I was born in Youngstown, Alberta March 1924, and moved to the Bingley-Carlos area with my family in 1932.

For the first two years we rented the "Leaf and place" E-1-41-5-W5 as Bud's father was away doing carpenter work. However being anxious to start on our own, we built a small house on Bud's C.P.R. - NE-7-41-4-W5. In the spring of 1943 we moved there and settled down to farm and raise a family. Our house was of lumber that was sawed at Lawton's mill. It wasn't very fancy, and of course had no inside plumbing, but was very warm and cosy.

There were no roads. Just a trail through the woods with numerous "bog holes" when it rained, and the snow got very deep in the winter. So our mode of travel was, of course, by horseback, sleigh, or buggy and lumber wagon. Our nearest neighbor on the next quarter south was Lyle Engen, a bachelor.

For a livelihood, we milked a few cows and raised pigs. Bud hauled our cream to Rierson's where the Bluffton cream truck picked it up. Montalberti Brothers owned the store at Bluffton and ran the cream trucks. We could send for anything from pins to kitchen chairs, and they very faithfully filled our orders and brought them out on the next truck.

Our first child, Wade Howard, was born on February 24, 1944, in the small hospital in Eckville — now a residence owned by Mr. and Mrs. Saari. The hospital was so crowded, that another lady and myself stayed at the hotel for almost a week waiting for that stork — Doctor Coppock would take no chances of babies being born out in a snowstorm somewhere along the road.

The morning Wade arrived, there were nine babies in that tiny hospital, and one was bedded down in a dresser drawer.

In January 1945 we bought the SE-20-41-4-W5 from Mrs. Hilda Trenholm, where we still reside. There was a two roomed "shanty" on it, an old straw shed that served as a barn, and approximately 30 acres broken. We moved over the hill into the Gimlet district in the spring of 1945 and began building again.

Our second child, Gail Esther, was born on September 28, 1945. Dr. Coppock had his new hospital by then so they didn't have to put the babies into dresser drawers. During my stay in the hospital there was a heavy snowfall, and as the trees still had most of their leaves, the weight of the snow bent them to the ground.

We were very busy in those years, clearing land and building. Ted Pimm, our good neighbor to the west did our first piece of breaking with his steel wheeled John Deere tractor and breaking plow. Ted always owned a John Deere, and when we heard that "Popping Johnny" start up in the spring, we knew it was soon planting time.

The roads weren't very good in those days - we didn't know what gravel or snowploughs were, so when it was muddy we travelled by tractor and wagon, and a sleigh in the winter when the snow drifted in the roads. The week before Christmas in 1946, Omar Jodoin was on his way to the Leedale store (six and one half miles) with his team and bob-sleigh, so I went along with him to do my Christmas shopping. There were no bright lights nor mobs of people, and Mr. Myers had a very well stocked store, so it was quite a simple task to purchase my gifts and groceries.

The following June we went to the Leedale picnic via tractor and wagon. There was always a very bad mudhole in the road by the Gimlet creek, so we had to travel through the Ken Chadbourne quarter, (now owned by Wade) thru the bush coming out at Clevenger's corner. We picked up some of the neighbors on the way, so we had a wagon load by the time we got to [illegible].

In the spring of 1948 we had enough of tractor travel, so we went to Red Deer and traded our car in on a shiny new jeep. Thus was our mode of travel for awhile, and it was also used as a farm tractor. As long as he lived, John Dyrland probably never forgot the ride he had on the binder behind that jeep.

On July 4, 1949, we were blessed with a new daughter, Beverly Marie. Her paternal grandmother said "at least we have one Yankee in the family" — as July 4th is the United States national hol[illegible].

In the spring of 1953 Bud decided he would like to try something besides farming, so he applied for an assistant district rangers job with the Alberta Forest Service. He was accepted and we sold our machinery, rented the farm to Bud's father and mother, and moved to Cadomin, a ghost mining town 70 miles south of Edson.

Our fourth child, Darryl Roy was born on the 8 of March 1954 in the Mercoal hospital, 20 miles north of Cadomin. There is no town there now as the last time we went through on a fishing trip, the hospital was being taken down - the last of the buildings to be removed — so Darryl's birth place is no longer on the map.

In the spring of 1954 we moved to McLennan in the Peace River area, where Bud served as District Ranger for two years.

In May 1956, he handed in his resignation as a forest officer, and went to work for Northern Alberta Railways for the summer. In August we moved back to our farm, where we have lived [illegible].

A few changes had been made in the district. Gimlet School was now closed and children were being bused to Lesliеville and roads were being upgraded to accomodate the bus routes.

In 1958 we installed Calgary Power but we didn't have the convenience of the telephone un

Our fifth child and the baby of the family Shauna Diane, was born on July 2, 1964. She is now attending Junior High at David Thompson Shauna likes her horses and cats, and our Dalmation dog Bimbo, and seems to be a farmer

In April 1970 Bud again went to work for the Forestry as foreman of the cleanup crew at the Brazeau Dam and Wade looked after the farm This job lasted for two summers, and we came back to farming again. We are now talking of retiring but that time is yet to come

Wade married Bonnie Jean Bardenhagen and now lives a half mile east of us on the NW 16-41-4 W5. He has cattle and horses and farms on a small scale, working part time in the oil patch At present he is employed as tool push in the north. Wade and Bonnie have three boys, Rodger, Roland, and last but not least, Clinton Merle. They are all cowboys

Gail married Glen Johnston. She lives with her family on the southwest corner of our land They have three children Shari, Shannon and Darcy Gail and Glen had the very sad misfortune of losing three children in a car accident in 1968, their oldest daughter Maxine, and two month old twins, Tammy and Timmy. Glen works on construction and is at present working for Rocky Concrete

Beverly married David Lowe, and they live in Calgary, with their two children, daughter Tracy and son Troy, who would like to move their house out to Grampa's farm. Dave owns a winchbed truck and is at present running a crane for a construction company in Calgary

Darryl is still single and works as a derrick hand on the oil rigs. The only thing Darryl really liked about the farm was his pet duck Donna and his border collie "Billy", (given to him by Bill Houston when he was quite small)

Merle Casey was born in Dewitt Iowa U.S.A in 1894 and came to the Crossfield area with his parents in 1906. He helped on the farm there until 1912, when he started farming on his own

Harriet Belle Pierson was born in Gillman Iowa, coming to Canada with her parents in 1910 They settled in the Carstairs district

On June 10, 1916 Merle and Hattie were united in marriage at Crossfield, Alberta. They farmed in the Crossfield, Acme and Carstairs districts until 1931 when they moved to the Leafland district with their three teenaged children — Lyla Agnes and Howard "Bud"

Merle bought the east half of section 1 41 4 W5, and moved the building site to the north side of the south quarter closer to the spring where water was plentiful.

The Leafland school was situated on the south [illegible] corner of this land

In the summer of 1932, Ralph English came up from Crossfield to spend his summer holidays and there he remained to become a foster brother to Bud

Merle raised a few foxes, and Bud and Ralph can well remember spending their summers catching gophers to feed them (in the winter it was rabbits) I believe Lawton's fields were the most popular trapping grounds, as Bud recalls the time when Alec whittled them each a pipe from a willow branch and another incident when they went swimming in the creek with Dick, and someone hid their clothes!

Merle also did custom threshing in the fall. He owned a Red River Special threshing machine and a Rumley oil-pull tractor Then came the war, and in 1940 Merle decided to go to High River to work on the airport as a carpenter From there, he went to Vulcan, working with the Western Air Command's Engineering staff as inspector for the airport being built there, and Hattie moved with him. From Vulcan they moved to Port Hardy, on the far end of Vancouver Island, where he again worked as carpenter at the airport Their living quarters were small, and they were very much away from the world, but Hattie enjoyed the seashore and dug for clams, etc We still have the large snail, abalone and clam shells she brought back with her

From Port Hardy they moved back to Vancouver with the Boeing Aircraft Co. and finally back to their farm in 1944

In 1966 Merle and Hattie again left the farm and moved to Airdrie where he helped build the elementary school. Their next move was to the E P" Ranch at Aiderside, which was owned by the Prince of Wales. Here Merle was employed as a carpenter and bu.. several buildings during the two years he was there. Hattie was happier here as she was able to take her horses with her and could ride "Chubby" over the range whenever she liked.

The next 15 years were spent at Acme where they bought an acreage. They kept several horses, and were active members of the Acme Riding Club until the early 1970's.

In 1974 they sold their acreage and house and moved to the Rockyview Lodge in Crossfield and celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary there in 1976. Now, at ages 82 and 83 years young they are living with their eldest daughter Lyla Allen in Calgary. Merle is still able to do a little fishing and can drive around the city which is quite a feat nowadays.

CHADBOURNE WILLIAM BILL AND DORA
by Alta Chadbourne Brown

William Edward Chadbourne was born January 10, 1882 in Detroit Lakes, Minnesota to Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Chadbourne. My grandparents farmed in that area. When my dad was 14 years old grandma died and they were alone for a period of time until my grandad remarried at which time Dad and his brother Fred, left home to shift for themselves.

When Dad was 20, he married Dora Hundley. Mother was born in McHugh, Minnesota on October 10, 1883. My parents then moved to Harrison, Idaho where Dad went into the lumber business with his brother Fred.

was born September 19, 1905; Kenneth was born February 8, 1908; Hattie was born March 9, 1909; Melvin was born December 27, 1911 and Eugene was born March 29, 1914.

The Chadbourne Family - Alta, Ken, Hattie, Melvin and Eugene

When Eugene was about one year old, my grandad, who had moved to Alberta, wrote my dad to come to Alberta. So Dad and Uncle Fred dissolved partnership and we moved to Alberta in 19 5.

We lived near Bentley for a year but Dad couldn't get a clear title to a quarter of land that he wanted so we came north-west and took up a homestead at Gimlet. We lived there until some time in 1918. There was a log shack on the place which we lived in for several years. It was about 16 x 20 feet and every fall Dad had to plaster the cracks shut. A friend of ours had a similar place and they said if all the cracks had been on one side of the house, there would have been only three walls.

My grandad and stepgrandmother lived in a little 10 x 12 foot shack on Dad's farm. After they left and went back to the U.S.A. in 1917, Dad moved it over to our log house and used it for a bedroom.

My dad nearly always worked away from home. He was very handy and was able to do a variety of jobs fairly well. In 1918, he bought a blacksmith shop and tools and we moved to Gadsby where he did blacksmith work for about a year. During that time, the flu struck. My mother and three brothers were all in the hospital at one time and just before they were ready to come home, Dad and we two girls got the flu. However, we all survived.

In the spring of 1919, my dad and brother Ken came back to the homestead and did some breaking, then we all came back.

Dad used to get up and start breaking land around 3 a.m. and break until 10 or 10:30 a.m. then he would turn the horses loose to graze as they had no feed, also the flies were so bad. He would start breaking again around 3 p.m. and work late.

One winter Dad drove out north-west and filed saws for a sawmill. Then another winter he shot rabbits and squirrels and sold the hides to make a living. We had a few cows and one horse to start with on the homestead. We had no fences so our cows and horses had free range. When Mother went to Gilby for groceries, it would take nearly all day since she had to run down the horse first. She had to drive all the way around "Robin Hood's Barn" to get there with no roads to speak of and so many gates to open on the way. She wouldn't usually get back until late.

My dad was a violinist and occasionally played for dances.

In 1919, we had a lot of snow and in the spring of 1920 there was a lot of water. North of our place about a mile, the creek flat was one big lake.

In about 1923 or 24, Dad got out logs and had them sawed into lumber and built us a frame house with two rooms upstairs and two rooms on the main floor — a bedroom and a room which served as kitchen and living room. I helped Dad shingle the roof. Later Dad built on a lean-to for a kitchen. He put tar paper on the roof to start with and after it got a bit weather beaten, the rain would come through so it was almost as wet inside as out. Dad used to say when it was raining he couldn't fix it and when it wasn't raining it didn't need it. However he did eventually fix it with some roofing.

We children nearly always walked to school. When we did ride, it kept Dad busy repairing our outfit so we could ride as it wasn't new.

I did janitor work at the Gimlet School and got $25. for the year. I gave my sister $5. for helping me, bought my dad a felt hat and my mother a white blouse and still had some left for myself.

Dad became a Christian in about 1934 and Mother was previous to that. They were both baptized and joined the Mennonite Brethren in Christ Church.

In November 1927, my sister, Hattie, was married to Ted Pimm. They had three girls and one boy.

On December 28, 1938 my brother, Melvin was married to Thelma Jackman. They had two girls. Mel was a trucker most of his life. He now lives in Edmonton.

Ken never married and farmed together with Dad until he died, then on his own. Ken is now retired and living in Eckville.

Eugene also never married. He is retired as well, and lives north of Condor.

Dad died on August 18, 1950 and Mother on August 4, 1953.

I, Anna, married Isaac Brown of Buck Creek on April 5, 1940. He was a minister there. We made our home on our homestead at Buck Creek for May and June then moved to my folks for a few months.

When we first went to Buck Creek, we rode about seven miles out from Breton with a friend then walked the other 13 miles. We had only one horse and walked pretty well everywhere we

When we left Buck Creek, we loaded our Bennett wagon with our things and had our calf in the back. Our cow walked behind and I walked also to herd the cow. One of our wheels broke down, so we spent the night at a logging camp and spent nearly the whole next day fixing our outfit and getting ready to go again.

My husband worked at the sawmill out at McDougals for the winter and in April we moved to Berrymoore where Ike preached for two years. We moved several times after that — first to Lindbrook, then in 1945 to Sunnyslope where my husband had grown up. From 1949 to 1953 we lived in Redwater which was then an oil boom town and Ike worked in the oil industry. In 1954 we moved to Linden.

We have four children. Albert was born August 7, 1932, Joyce was born June 11, 1941, Paul was born August 25, 1944, and Jacob was born November 29, 1946.

Albert is married to Kathleen Depage. They have one girl and two boys. Their daughter Verda is married and also has a little girl, making them grandparents and as great-grandparents. Albert and Kay now live in Edmonton where he is employed in the oil industry.

Joyce is married to Dennis Penner. They have a girl and a boy and live in Linden where Dennis is in the agricultural real estate business.

Paul is married to Jaqueline Paquette. They have a girl and a boy and live in Calgary where Paul is a pressure welder.

Jake is unmarried and is presently living in Sydney, Australia where he is teaching Psychology in a university there.

We are retired and living in Linden. Ike keeps busy doing the odd bit of Carpenter work and I do some sewing and other hobbies. We do quite a bit of travelling also and are enjoying our retire-

Mtn. House Annina Harriet (Babe) was born July 27 1924. at home on SE 20-41-4-W5 in the Gimlet district, during one of the worst electrical storms ever There was a houseful of people that stayed overnight after a two day rodeo that Dick and the boys put on. No one knew about the new baby girl until the midwives, Mrs. Sheffield and Mrs Annie Boomer told them all at breakfast the next morning. Babe married Frank George Murray and they had five children, Linda, Dale Randy, Marty and Melodie

Dick and a partner named Donlap took their teams and came to Lethbridge. in 1905. Nina stayed in Hecla, Montana, for awhile until Dick got living accommodations for her and the first two boys

Dick contracted excavating for the deep piers in the construction of the high level bridge at Lethbridge He also supplied the sand and gravel for concrete to build the piers

Dick bought 96 teams of horses from the Dick Earch Ranch near Pincher Creek He also bought wagons, slip scrapers, bull slips, plows. wheel scrapers, tents to house the horses and cook tents Nina did all the cooking for these

Dick also managed the shearing corrals at Sterling, Alberta Here again Nina did the cooking for the men, churning butter and baking bread every day as well

Dick moved his men and horses to Edmonton and worked on the Low Level Bridge until it was completed

In 1918, Dick traded the land at Stettler (Section 23) to Oscar Olson for over 200 head of cattle and trailed them to the Battleford Indian Reservation near Hobbema for winter feeding. In May of 1919 they moved the cattle to Hoadley and that fall on to Leedale to the present Belt and Mannix place, for winter feeding. The winter of 1919 was very hard on cattle because of the deep snow and the severe cold and cattle feed was very scarce. In May of 1919 Nina and the family moved to Hoadley. The grocery store was called Nugent at that time and later they moved to the Potter Creek district.

In 1920 or 1921 Dick bought land in Gimlet district (SE 20-41-4-W5). Dick, True and Ellis cut logs north of Jimmy Smith's in the Lampman Valley to build a four room house. This was the home place for many years and many memories still exist of experiences there. Every Sunday there was a rodeo and people came from all over to watch the young riders perform and to enjoy the day. Friends came and would spend the week-end visiting at Hollingsworth's. Berry picking was a great pastime and a lot of the women and children spent the afternoon looking for berries while the men took in the rodeo and the day often wound up with a dance. Fiddles, guitars, banjos and mouth harps were plentiful at that time.

In 1921 Dick and Ellis took two, four horse teams to Nordegg to haul logs and mine props for the coal mine there. In 1925 Nina took the three girls to Anaconda, Montana as her mother, Mrs. Quillet was very sick and passed away. They came back in the spring of 1927 to what was called the Jacobs place, one and a half miles west of Leedale. In the fall of 1927 they moved to Lacombe and Dick worked for Abe Parker and Mrs. Graham and the children attended the Canyon school. Then in February 1928 they moved to the Labell place, one half mile west of Leedale where Gilbert Hollingworth now lives. In April of 1928 they moved to the Sam Easter place one mile east of the Gimlet school. The following fall they moved to Sylvan Lake where Dick had a Jersey dairy. Then in 1929 they moved back to Gimlet to the Roy Whitley place one mile north of the Gimlet school. That fall they moved back to the old home place, SE 20-41-4-W5.

In 1931, Dick bought land in the Aurora district. This was the north half of 31-41-4-W5. The family moved there in the spring of 1933. Dick ran sheep and cattle there for many years with his boys Stanley and Artie. Ellis and True had gone back to the United States to work and live. Dick and the boys also held rodeos at this place. Evy and Babe finished their schooling at Aurora.

Dick finally sold this land, the Moosehorn ranch, to Lee May from Saskatchewan in the fall of 1956 and then made his home with his daughter Violet Brown until he passed away in October 1964. His son True had predeceased him in February 1947. His loving wife Nina passed away in July 1952, a granddaughter Fay in February 1953. His son Stanley on November 1 1966, and his wife Adaline (Babe) passed away in September 1969. A son-in-law (Thomas) Stanley Brown passed away in December 1970. Dick and Nina's youngest daughter Babe passed away in September 1978.

So ends an era in the lives of two wonderful people and their family.

HOUSTON, JAMES

James Houston, a Scottish blacksmith, came to Alberta in 1925. He worked in several towns until he acquired a shop of his own in Bentley.

James, however, wanted to farm. In 1926, he bought the E 15-41-W5, the NE-10-41-W5 and the SW 15-41-W5. This land is located in the Gimlet district.

He worked at blacksmithing for several years, while the land was rented. During this time, James worked at his shop in Bentley.

A younger brother, Dan, from Scotland arrived to help with getting the farm project started.

This land is still in the family and has been added to as time and money allowed.

In 1929, James and Margaret Stevenson from Scotland were married. They continued farming for 38 years. Six children came to bless this marriage. Two of the sons are farming, William on land we later acquired and Ivan on the home place.

Newton married Margaret Ostberg. They have four children, Douglas, Linda, Keith and [illegible].

Pamela married Jack Wild. They have three children, Jackie, Reginald and Roderick.

William married Lorraine Biswanger. They have four children, Susan, Shelley, Sherry and Scott.

Thomas married Ruby-Lee Madden. They have two boys, Timothy and Brett. Ivan married

Trudy Maki and have three children, Krister Tyler and Pamela

Morris lost his life in May 1971

ames and Margaret moved to Eckville in 968. James passed away in June 1970. Margaret continues to live in their home in Eckville

HOUSTON, WILLIAM (BILL) AND LORRAINE

Since history has to start somewhere, lets go back to January 1956. Lorraine Biswanger, the oldest daughter of Lawrence and Marie was attending school at Lesliieville from her parents home at W chrow. Bill Houston was farming with his Dad, "Scotty" Houston. Bill is the third son of Mr and Mrs James Houston. He was born at home on the farm (SE-15-41-4-w5) and obtained his schooling at Gimlet, Eckville and Red Deer

Fate or a "skating party" brought these two together and thus began a five and a half year period of going together which resulted in the inevitable marriage

But during that time, in 1957 Bill started a mini-milk route in which he picked up cans in the Gimlet area and hauled them to Withrow where they were put on the bigger truck of Roy Tubbs who then delivered them to C A D P Condenserv in Red Deer

In 1956, after graduating from the David Thompson High School, Lorraine entered Calgary General Hospital School of Nursing

By 1960 Bill s milk route had expanded and he had purchased a larger truck of his own to haul to C A D P Condenserv in Red Deer As the unloading time was 9 30 a.m. he still had most of the day for farming

Then 1961 was a very eventful year April 15 Bill broke his leg as the result of a riding accident. Dodge Lawton said, "Bill was doing fine until he broke his leg, then Lorraine caught him On July 3, 1961 they were married at the Withrow Gospel Mission by Rev. Louis Peskett

In September Lorraine completed her nursing education, in those days known as "training", and after three years with one day off a week, one month holidays per year, and a monthly allowance of $10, one became "trained in many ways. It certainly was a happy day when the news arrived that Lorraine had passed the R N exams

In 1962 Bill sold the milk truck and route to Ivan (Bill s brother and bought the rest of section 22 from Bill's dad. He already owned the southeast quarter and started dairy farming on his own These newly acquired quarters were known for their previous owners as the north east quarter was the Mottet place the southeast quarter was the Chappell place the west half was the Perry place

The Thyssen quarter SE-27-41-4-w5) was added to complete the present farm in 1970. Nineteen sixty-two also saw the start of their family when on August 20 Susan Lorraine arrived. Then on February 8, 1967, Shelley Grace made her arrival in the world followed by Sherry Lynn on August 27, 1968 and finally on September 3 970. Scott William, a boy at last

In 1960 they sold their dairy herd and went "beef" where their real interests were, besides this being a less demanding form of making a liv

Their hobby has always been horses and in earlier years they competed in the Rocky Light Horse Association

When the rodeo arena was built at Gimlet in 1967 Bill helped with the stock until 1969 when Rodney Tolonen, Dan Dyriand and Houstons bought the rodeo stock and started the Gimlet Rodeo Co. That hobby has grown into a much larger business with amateur rodeos through out Central A berta from Bowden to Whitecourt

Being horse lovers, everyone in the family had to have a horse and of course the kids had a pony which was bought for Susan and was handed down the line as each child outgrew her Their kids pony (Honey) had two colts that turned out to be the right size for pony chuck wagon horses, so in 1973 they bought two more to drive on the pole and used the two pets for the lead team and they were in the chuckwagon business

The highlight of the racing was in 1976 when they sent the lead team to Gilbert Hollingsworth to take to Medicine Hat and run on a chariot. In four days of racing against 66 other teams from Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia they finished in top place and brought home a beautiful trophy

In the fall of 1975, they started to build their dream home" and although at the time of writing they are not completely finished it is very nearly done

JACKSON, WILLIAM (BILL) AND MYRTLE

William John (Bill) Jackson was born in Bromly, Kent, England on March 28, 1911. His father was killed in World War I and Bill with his mother came to Canada in the early 1920's. They eventually lived on a homestead west of Rocky Mountain House. Later they moved into Rocky where Bill carried on a dray business. He later drove for Greyhound, then had its own trucking business.

Myrtle Wynder Jackson was born in Cardston, Alberta on September 15, 1920. She spent her early years in Beazer and Hillspring, Alberta. She attended Normal School at Calgary in 1939-1940.

Bill and Myrtle farmed in the Hillspring area for several years, then in 1964 they bought the land that they now own in the Gimlet area. The Bar Anchor Seven, W½ 10-41-4-W5, and SE 10-41-4-W5. This land was formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Berry then by Jack Walls and later by Alvin Snow. The first three homes ever built on this place still stand.

Myrtle taught Grade 5 in Rimbey from January through June of 1967. Then she transferred to the Lesueville School where she taught for a number of years.

By a former marriage Bill had five children, William, Lillian, Arthur, Robert and James. One son Bob married Barbara Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, former residents of this area.

Bill and Myrtle have as children Shelley and Perry. Shelley graduated from David Thompson School and has since worked for Parkland Savings and Credit Union. Shelley along with a loan manager opened the new Credit Union in Rimbey August 1976. Bill had his leg broken severly in two places when blowing up a split rim tire in 1972, so they have both retired, still maintaining their farming interests and doing some travelling.

KELM, ROBERT (BOB) AND PAULINE

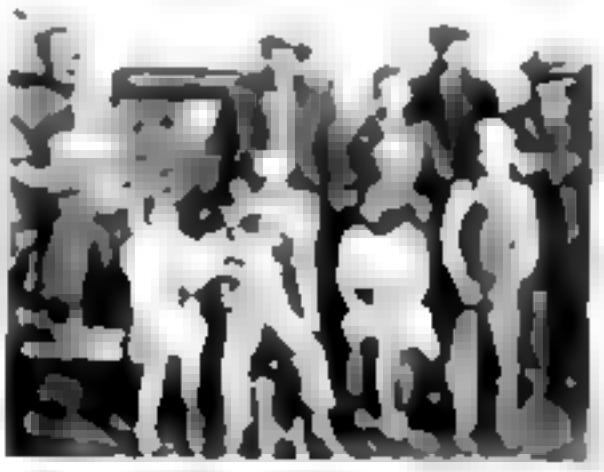
Along with many other oldtimers from this area, Bob and Pauline Kelm were both born in the United States and immigrated to Canada.

Bob was born in Hutchinson, Minnesota on July 25, 1886. After working in Minneapolis from the age of 14, Bob came to Alsask, Saskatchewan with a syndicate known as "The Big Four Company" in 1914. He then took up a homestead in Loverna about 1918, where he farmed until he came to Rimbey in 1926.

Pauline Belt was born in Iowa on April 23, 1906, and came to Lacombe with her family in 1907. They moved to their homestead west of Leedale (Wittenberg) in 1910. In 1916, the Belts bought a farm and moved to the Gimlet district where Pauline took her schooling. In 1929, Pauline opened her own hairdressing shop in Peabody's Boarding House (Agar's in Rimbey). Her hairstyles were so becoming that she attracted the attention of Bob Kelm, who also boarded there. They were married in 1930, and after living in Rimbey for one year, they moved to the Anton homestead in Leedale.

The Kelms had five children. Raymond married Erma Rauhala and lives in Rimbey. Myrtle married Ed Schwartz and lives in Abbotsford, B.C. as does Art, who married Lana Melenchuk. Doreen and her husband, Wayne McBean, live in Calgary. Doris and her husband, Adrian Rieff, reside in the Lavesta district.



Ray Kelm.

During their first years of farming, Pauline recalls paying $50 per head for cattle, and a year later, they traded a cow for a $15 grinder. The pigs they bought for $4 were sold for $4.50 in the fall.

Because of the poor roads and heavy snow falls, the old Model A was often parked from December until April, and horse and sleigh rides became popular. The spring floods allowed rafting to become an innovative means of transportation.

A joyful reunion took place in 1951, when after 40 years, Bob's brother and sisters and their families from the States visited the Kelms.

The Kelms retired to British Columbia in 1952. Their farm is now owned by their oldest son, Ray. Robert passed away in March, 1969.

Pauline is very interested in handicrafts. She enjoys seeing all her old friends on visits to Alberta.

LANGE, WM. ARTHUR AND FAMILY

Wm. Arthur Lange was born 1857 in Iowa. His wife Lucy was born 1866 in Iowa. Fred Arthur their son was born 1892.

Wm. Lange bought the homestead of Frank Benjamins the NW 30-41-3 W5 in 1910. A post card dated 1910 of Kate Baum's mentions Mr. Lange helping her son Link Boyer dig a root cellar and another card later on tells of Mr. Lange helping

Link shingle an addition he was building onto the home. It is not known how long the Langes lived on this farm but in 1918 Frank Johnsman bought the farm and Wm and Lucy were living back in Iowa then. Fred Lange married Nora Withers in 1913 and they had two children Ruth born in 1914 and Wm. in 1916. Fred and Nora returned to Decorah Iowa about 1918

Wm. Arthur Lange passed away in 1945 and Lucy in 1944. Fred passed away in 1961 and Nora is in a "Care Centre" in Independance Iowa and is 83 years of age

Much of this information was received from Ruth Lange Wallac

LEINONEN JOHN AND HILJA
WALIMAKI, ISAAC, DONALD, ALLI

Mrs Hilja Leinonen came from Butte, Montana, to the Gimlet district in April of 1930, with her husband John and two of her three children from her first marriage Donald was age 15 and Alli age 12 and they also brought with them John's son Alfred, from his first marriage Hilja's oldest son Isaac, was at this time, working as a carpenter in California Alfred drove all the way to Alberta in a 1928 Chrysler which was later traded for some breaking they had done on some of their land

They came to live on a C.P.R. quarter of land the NE 21-41-4-W5, which John Leinonen had homesteaded in 1915 He broke 65 acres and only farmed it for one year, as his first crop was hailed out 100% He then moved back to Butte hoping to save enough money for a new start While in Butte, his first wife passed away and he later met and married Hilja Walima

When they first came here they lived with Mr Mottet for a month or so, while preparing a place to live. A temporary home was made from two granaries, which were attached to

For the Finnish people, the "Sauna", or steam bath, is a very essential part of living, so as soon as the home was completed, a sauna was built At first the neighbors were a little dubious about the customs of the sauna but it later on became a Saturday night ritual for the neighbors to come for a bath, and visit over a cup of coffee

The move to the farm proved to be a real hardship for Mrs. Leinonen as she could not speak, read nor write the English language She was very lonely as there were no Finnish speaking people for miles around. She began learning English by speaking Finn to the children and they replied in English. In fact a neighbor made the remark that it was a funny family that had moved in. The mother speaks Finn but the children speak English. Also her only friend Mrs Clara Lalone coached her and many happy hours were spent together

However this new found friendship was very short lived as Mrs. Lalone passed away suddenly As the years progressed, she did learn to speak and read the English language, and is now a very avid reader She now subscribes to a Calgary daily newspaper, and particularly enjoys reading anything pertaining to politics

John Leinonen passed away exactly one year to the day he arrived. He died from Miners Consumption. Alfred went back to Butte, soon after his father passed away

Again Mrs. Leinonen was faced with a real hardship as she tried to run the farm with the help of her two children. They cleaned the land by hand, her and Donald chopping the trees and brush and Alli helping to pile what she could Hilja's main worry was how she would ever get the crop in that spring. To her surprise one morning a group of neighbors bringing their own machinery and horses, prepared the land and put in the crop It was at that time that she realized what wonderful neighbors she had, and that she was really among friends

In 1932 she wrote to her son Isaac asking him to come and help on the farm and he came that fall. Things were then a little easier with Isaac sharing the load. But these were the depression years and Hilja and her family, along with everyone else at that time, faced very difficult times Besides working long hard hours for very little money, they suffered from hail, frost and very long cold winters. These were the years when a horse rake could be bought for $35, a binder for $135, coffee was three pounds for 90¢ and butter was 25¢ a pound

Donald and Alli went to the Gimlet school and their first teacher was Miss Hattie Dobbs, now Mrs. Stears She was a soft hearted, kind teacher and many of her pupils still cherish the memories of their schooldays with Miss Dobbs as their teacher

Their second teacher was Miss Clayton, now Mrs Baird She also had a soft spot in her heart for her students Knowing that some of them wanted to further their education but could not afford to go anywhere for schooling, she taught grades 10 and 11, though grade 9 was all that was required of her

Ash left the farm to go to work and finally settled in Calgary There she met and married Roy Danilowich and they have one daughter Sharon She married Jim Donnelly from Calgary and they have three daughters. Trol is 16. Corinne is 15 and Shauna is 13 and their family now lives in Victoria, B.C

Donald and Isaac never married and they still live on the farm with their mother

As times got better their first tractor was purchased in 1947 Some years later Isaac bought a quarter of land from "Dad" Elliot. (SW 21-41-4 W5) Then the boys bought a half section from John Dyrland. SW 21-41-4-W5) and the NW 28-41 4-W5. They also bought a 1931 Model A Ford for $135. This little Ford with the rumble seat found a soft spot in the hearts of Mrs. Leinonen and the boys. Not only because it brought happier times with fishing trips, berry picking and picnics but [illegible] lives so many times For instance, one time when accompanied by a group of neighbors, in their vehicles, they went on a fishing trip to Buck Lake. With Isaac driving and Peter Danilowich as his passenger they led the procession in the "little Ford" They came up over a hill to discover a creek at the bottom [illegible] minus the bridge. There were only two skids across the deep ravine. Peter, bracing himself grabbed for the brake handle, only to have Isaac inform him.

"here is no brake!" Isaac steered on to the skids and reached the other side safely to find the little Ford had crossed with one set of wheels on the skid and just the hubs on the other side had rode across on that skid. The only color in Peter's face was two dark spots that were his eyes. He looked like he had seen a ghost

On another occasion, again accompanied by a group in vehicles, they went on a berry picking trip to the Open Creek area. It was raining hard on the way home and all the cars kept getting stuck. Finally it was getting late and so dark they decided to park their vehicles and sleep in their cars for the night. The next morning when Isaac and Donald walked around, they discovered the little Ford had saved their lives again The two wheels on one side were on the very edge of a steep hill, and any slight push would have sent it rolling down! In fact Isaac was mighty nervous about getting in to start it up to slowly ease it onto the road

On one more occasion on another berry picking trip in the Faraway area, they came to a very sharp bend, and immediately approached a bridge where planks had been piled on one side to keep cows from crossing. Having no chance to stop, and likely having no brakes, they hit the pile of planks and the little Ford just neatly slid the planks across the bridge in front of it and crossed to safety

The little Ford was retired after years of faithful service. For many years, antique car dealers came offering to buy it but Mrs. Leinonen refused to part with it. Finally, as she had no where to keep the car under cover, and it was getting weather beaten, she finally sold it for $125

When first moving to the Gimlet district, Mrs Leinonen busied herself with a hobby of growing flowers. This hobby has only flourished over the years. Now at the age of 94, she still works diligently in her beautiful flower gardens. Her well kept yard of flowers, shrubs, and fruit trees attract the eye of many passers by with its color and beauty

At the age of 79, she hosted a birthday party for all her friends and neighbors and continued to have a party every fifth year as she says a party every year would only make her grow too old too fast. In 1978 she will be celebrating her 95th birthday and with God willing she will be hosting another party for her family and all her many friends.

To add to the meagre income of the farm the Waumaki brothers were fortunate to have a producing oilwell drilled on their home quarter in 1962 and another well drilled on SE 30-41-4-W5 in 1977.

McELROY — OWEN LELAND AND BUELAH BLANCHE, NW 26-41-4W5 — written by D[illegible]

Owen McElroy Sr. was born in Kankakee Illinois on May 6, 1893. His wife Buelah was born in Shelbyville, Illinois on June 3, 1893. They were married on December 25, 1913 and moved to Canada with their two sons Warren and Owen Jr. from Hillsborough, North Dakota in the spring of 1927. They settled on a farm east of Red Deer and while they lived there Elwin, Robert and Richard [illegible]

In the spring of 1938 they moved to the Leedale district and rented the land where Mr. and Mrs. White had lived for three years. Henry Phatchuk is now living on this place. In March 1942 they moved to the SW 26-41-4W5 which they purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nugent were living there at the time. Both parcels of land are now owned by the Leedale Hutterite Brethern.

That summer was a busy one with crop, fencing, and moving, the fall came quickly and things had to be organized for winter. They milked cows, shipped cream, kept quite a few pigs and a small flock of sheep. Mother raised a lot of chickens, geese and turkeys and grew a [illegible] garden. She did a lot of canning, was a wonderful cook and was always busy in her spare time with her knitting, crocheting and needle work.

The children attended Benjamin School and then Gimlet School after they moved.

Dad had a threshing machine and did threshing in the district every fall. He was a well experienced operator as he had helped thresh in his early years when they used steam engines to run the threshing machine. He enjoyed reminiscing about the work, the men and the old [illegible]

Dad enjoyed big game hunting and fishing and took a lot of pride in his many guns and marksmanship. He was deeply interested in livestock as he had grown up on his fathers' farm where they kept registered cattle and horses. He learned at an early age, how to select the best animals and how to groom them for the show rings as they entered many of them in the Chicago World Fair where they received many prizes and ribbons.

During World War II their eldest son Warren joined the United States Army. He saw action in Attu and Kiska in the Japanese Theatre of war and also in Germany during the battle of the bulge. Owen Jr. joined the R.C.A.F. and spent two and one half years in the service. He volunteered for active duty in the Pacific but peace was declared before his departure.

As the younger members of the family finished school they found jobs and so were away from home.

The McElroy Family in the fall of 1946. Warren (U.S. Army) Elwin, Mrs. Buelah McElroy, Owen Jr. (R.C.A.F.), Mr. Owen McElroy and Richard and Robert in front.

Mr. and Mrs. McElroy were well respected in the community. Mother was a member of the Leedale W.I. and also the Gimlet Ladies' Club. She enjoyed her home and family and was a devoted wife and mother. She was raised in a Christian home and became an active member in the United Church that she and Dad belonged to in Leedale. In 1952 her health began to fail. The family held a reunion in May 1955 and she passed away in September, 1955 after a lengthy illness.

Dad McElroy lived by himself after her death, doing his own farming and chores until ill health forced him to sell the land. He was 88 years old when he bought a little house and retired to Rimbey in 1969. He had a cheery disposition and was well liked by every one that knew him. He kept active and passed away suddenly on January 30, 1973 at the age of 94 [illegible]

The family is living in various places. Warren and his wife Betty have now retired and live on an acreage in Missouri. They have a son Bill and a daughter Donna and four grandchildren

Owen Junior and wife Doris live on their farm north of Leedale. They have two sons John and Gary and two daughters Helen and Barbara. The girls are married and there are four grandchildren

Ellen and Jack live in California. They both worked for Airlines for years but now have other employment. They have no family

Robert and wife Marie live at Valleyview where they have a farm and she is teaching school. Bob worked for Imperial Oil for several years before he bought the farm. They have one

Richard and his wife Patricia live in Lacombe. He works at the Shell Station and she teaches school. They have a son Gregory and a daughter Susan

Every day that passes becomes history. The years go quickly and with the passing of time our pioneers who worked hard to open up the country, becomes history also

Mr. and Mrs. McElroy were laid to rest in the Mount Auburn Cemetery in Rimbey.

The family holds many happy memories of these two special pioneers.

MOTTET, CHARLES EDWARD AND OLINE [illegible]
N.E. 36-41-4-W.5

Charles Edward Mottet and Oline Irma Liengne were married in Orvin, Switzerland and in April 1882 sailed for America. They crossed the ocean on a new ship, it's first voyage. There were three days of stormy weather at the start. Something broke on the vessel, and they were taken out of their way. Some of the passengers received bruises and broken bones during the storm. For five days all of the sailors were busy on deck, on the fifth day some cleaned the cabins. The ship ran out of drinking water, they tried to distill ocean water but it tasted salty. It took 21 days to cross, when they reached New Upon arrival they stayed with the Villard family, also from Orvin, in Kansas for two years. Irma did housework and sewing for her board and also did washing for neighbors until they saved enough money to rent a farm of their own. Hopes of raising hogs for market ended when six sows were killed by lightning, so after two years went west and homesteaded in Scott County, Kansas. After losing three crops to drought, they left for Missouri. They rented three different farms during their 17 years in Missouri and did very well.

THE LIFE OF THE MOTTET FAMILY AS I REMEMBER IT — by Lucy (Mottet, (Moore Gregson, May, 1977

My parents left Missouri in 1905 because my Dad was fed up with working all day in the heat and could not sleep nights as they were too hot.

They travelled by train to Alberta, to me, a five year old girl going to the rest room on the train was really something out of this world, as that time outdoor privies were all people had. Their first year was spent at Bentley, Alberta, where they rented what is now Lord and Lady Gordon's farm. Adele and Ada were married so did not go along. Emma died of Typhoid fever in 1904 at the age of 16. All the others came to Alberta, oldest to youngest were, Rosa, Julia, Charles, Frank, Eva, Esther, Lucy, George and Willis. Willis died at Bentley at the age of six months in April 1906. Rosa told me I screamed when his coffin was lowered in the grave and had to be taken away. This I do not remember as an extremely high fever a while later blanked out my memory, later George and I were playing and he

he would die as blood ran out of his mouth and down his front, after a week on liquids he was O.K. Apparently that year Dad scouted around and found a place he homesteaded on south of Wittenberg, now Leedale. Charles helped build a log granary and a log shed for our stock, then we moved into the granary where we lived until a frame house was built, at this time Julia and Charles returned to Missouri where both were married soon after.

After we Mottets arrived there were enough kids for a school, that's when the Gimlet school was built. When it was completed I started school. I am sure I was seven years old by then and Esther and George also went to school. Esther had most of her schooling in Missouri. No matter how often Dad dragged two logs to make a trail for us kids to school, it would soon snow and blow it full. If I remember correctly we did not have school part of the winters at first. There was no high school near so none of us went as the folks didn't have extra money for us to rent a room elsewhere, in fact we did well to enough to eat while clearing land of brush for fields, we kids all had to help with that plus chores too.

On January 23, 1908 Albert was born on the homestead south of Wittenberg. How I loved that baby, he was such a happy child and grew fast. He also took his schooling at Gimlet, beginning at the age of five, and recalls one day during noon hour the children heard something howl off in the bush. The older ones decided to investigate and all went into the bush to find the "coyote". It kept howling and they kept following until they heard the school bell ringing. All the bigger kids ran for the school leaving Albert behind. Suddenly the howl came again and as his hair raised up on end, he realized he was being followed. At that moment Jeanette Heisdorf appeared, grabbed his hand and they both flew back to the school yard. It was not class time but the teacher, Russel Hall, had also heard the animal, a wolf, and realizing what the children were up to had called them back

How the coyotes did howl at night in a circle around our buildings! Poor Spot, our dog, sat at the door and barked all night. They would have killed her had she left the house. they were so large as there were many snow shoe rabbits to feed on. Once they were so plentiful we kids killed six rabbits one night with clubs, giving us good meat for a few meals

By 1908 the folks had cows, horses and chickens and bad luck too. They lost two horses and later some cattle which ate wild parsnip also many chickens were lost to the coyotes. Mother made butter which was traded for groceries in [illegible]

Dad's first oat field was so tall one could barely see the horses ears above it when he was cutting it with the binder

Dad often said July was the only month he had never seen any snow flakes so our garden was hardy stuff and how it did grow and such good flavor, rutabagas so sweet and big. Mother made moo-apple butter which fooled many

The homestead was 160 acres and later Dad bought another 160 east of it which was good land [illegible]

ROSA born April 8th, 1885, married Arthur Willis April 8th, 1913 and lived on Arthurs homestead (NW 4-42-3-W5) three and one-half miles east of Wittenberg until the "mid twenties" when they moved to Washington. They had six children, May, Earl and Ruby born in [illegible]ada, Harold, Frank and Donald born in Everett, Washington where they made their home. Arthur is gone but Rosa resides in a nursing home in Everett

FRANK, born October 29th, 1892, married Alice Willis December 24th, 1913. He sold his homestead SE 18 41 3 W5 and moved to Youngstown, Alberta. They had three children Mildred, Ray and Loyd. Frank died of appendicitis December 8th, 1921. Alice, 84, is living in the Rimoka Lodge at Ponoka, Alberta

EVA, born November 11th 1885, married R J Russell Hall on June 5th, 1913. He was teaching school at Gimlet at the time. In January 1920 they moved to California. LeRoy and George were born on their homestead west of Gimlet two and one-half miles NW 20-41-4-W5 Aileen and Evelyn in California. Eva died May 14th 1953 of a cerebral hemorrhage and Russell died in Ontario in the late 1960's

ESTHER, born January 13th, 1887, married Harley Belt on June 24th, 1915. Their life and family are mentioned elsewhere

LUCY born July 29th, 1901, married Claude Moore July 2nd, 1917 at Lacombe, Alberta, and made their home on the Jaggard quarter (SE 34 41-4-W5) southwest of Wittenberg for two years before moving to Oregon. Their greatest problem while here was getting water from the spring on the Medicine River for it was down a hill from the house. When the path was dry it wasn't too bad but when wet or icy it took great skill to get a full pail of water to it's destination. A son Orville was born to them June 13th, 1919 and a daughter Osa was born in the U.S.A. Claude died in July 1957 at Moorehead, Minn., Lucy remarried and is widowed. She resides in Lebannon, Oregon

GEORGE, born February 3rd, 1903, took his schooling at Gimlet. He is a bachelor and owns a farm east of High River, Alberta

ALBERT, born January 23rd, 1908, on the homestead south of Wittenberg took his schooling at Gimlet. He is a bachelor and after ranching several years at Bottrel, Alberta has now retired to Mirror. His greatest interest being antiques, he has a beautiful collection of lamps and guns

C Edward Mottet died August 12th, 1944 after a short illness

O Irma Mottet died April 26th 1945 after a lengthy illness

MULLARKY, JOHN AND MARGARET

Jack was raised in Lancashire, England, coming out in 1912 to work in the cotton mills at Falls River Mass U.S.A. He made his way west working in the mines and later in Calgary

Jack Mackenzie

In 1914 he filed on NE 16-41-4 W5. He usually worked on the prairies in summer and lumber camps in winter, only spending the required time on the homestead which he was slowly improving.

He enjoyed company, never turning down a chance of a dinner and a day of visiting. Being interested in young people enjoying themselves Jack often took a sleigh load of them to dances.

One night a group from Medicine Valley had gone to a dance at Leslieville. At midnight it was announced that the orchestra would play an hour longer than usual as the Medicine Valley folks were late arriving. Jack having a splendid baritone voice had entertained during the supper hour.

In 1925 he began corresponding with Mary Kerr in Ireland, who was a friend of Mr. and Mrs. Graydon, recent arrivals from there. When they decided to get married and he had sent her the fare but she was unable to come. Her mother was ill and being a nurse was needed there. Her sister, Margaret, came instead and they were married that summer. Mary later came to Canada and spent some time in the area.

Margaret was a hard working woman. Together they built a new house on the NW 15-41-4-W5, which he had bought. The house burned down one night while they were doing chores. Later they sold to Omar Jodoin and bought land south of Eckville where they lived until he died in 1948. Margaret and Mary lived in Eckville until they returned to Ireland a year later.

NUGENT FRANK AND MINNIE — written by Norma I. Ruberg

My father Frank A. Nugent, was born in Buffalo Minnesota in 1892. His father owned a farm near town and was the sheriff of Buffalo County. He provided the building to house the courthouse and first jail, a building which is still in use today. Dad often told us interesting stories of his youth, like the time a notorious outlaw, Cole Younger, of the Jesse James Gang, was being held prisoner and dad shook hands with him.

When my father left school he went to work, as a cowhand, on a ranch near Cathmere, North Dakota. He later filed on a homestead in the same district.

In 1896 my mother Minnie M. McAllister was born in Becher, Ontario (near Wallaceburg), and was raised on a farm with her five brothers and one sister. She also relates childhood incidents usually about some mischief she had been up to.

When mom was 16 years old, she travelled west to Cathmere, North Dakota to spend some time on a ranch owned by her aunt and it was here she met a tall, dark cowboy who was first attracted by her long ringlets and love of good horses. My mom and dad were married in Fairview, Montana on May 17, 1916.

Frank and Minnie Nugent

They lived on the homestead until July of 1918 when they shipped, by immigrant car, to Lacombe, then transferred their belongings to a wagon and trailed the livestock to their destination at Gilby.

After eight years in this district they moved to a Hudson's Bay quarter in the Leedale Valley two miles south of Leedale on the Medicine River formerly known as the Middlekoop place.

It was here where they raised their family, a place of which we all have many fond memories. We recall both good and bad years on the farm, but the work and hard times are forgotten when we reminisce about pleasant events. Many lasting friendships were made during those years when life progressed at a slower pace. Times when listening to Major Bowes, playing 78's on the old gramophone or playing cards with friends and neighbors was first rate entertainment.

On mail day there was the Family Herald Western Producer and Free Press Weekly to keep us posted on farm prices and affairs, recipes, poems and fiction. Reading was done in the evening from pages lighted by a coal oil lamp

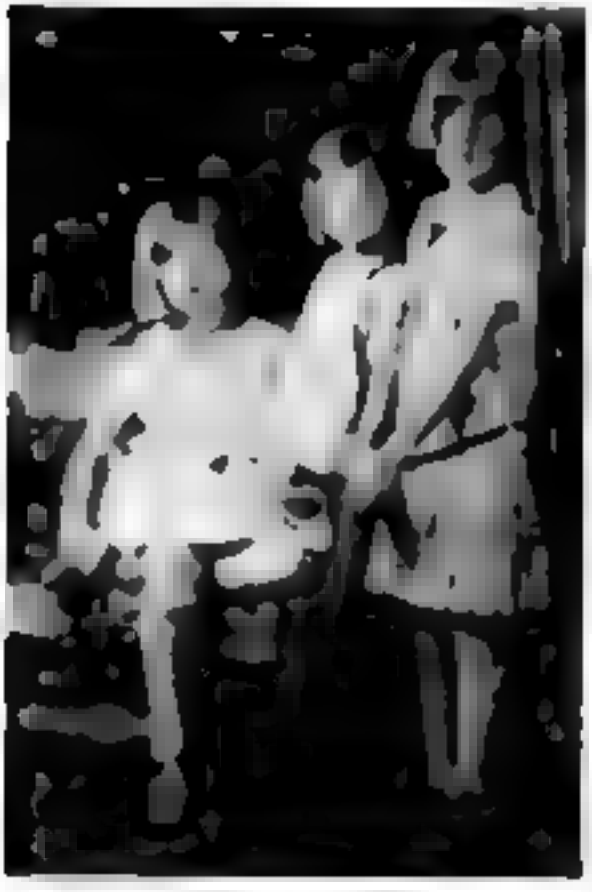
The Medicine River provided us with a swimming hole. It looks a little shallow and muddy now but when we were kids it was as inviting as any swimming pool. In the winter it was a skating rink, sometimes after much shovelling, but the skating parties and wiener roasts were lots of fun

Our house was a bit chilly in winter but there was always a supply of good tamarack wood which was hauled from the Aurora area. With the help of Harley Belt who owned the sawing outfit, and a crew of neighbors a large wood pile was put up in preparation for cold days ahead

Winter was a time to fill the ice house with cooling cream and making ice cream. I can mighty tasty treat. Cranking the freezer handle a tedious task, and I remember waiting eagerly for that first sample from the ladle

We always looked forward to the periodic visits from the Rawleigh and Watkin's salesmen who replenished our supply of extracts, spices medicines, etc. and often to spend the night

It took faith, courage and ingenuity to carry on in the 1930's. Conveniences were few but fortunately, we never suffered for the essentials



Farmers, it seemed, had a definite advantage with things such as freshly churned butter for our home made bread, milk, eggs and vegetables from the garden. Salt pork from the brine barrel was an old standby, other substitutes were prairie chicken, jackfish speared through the ice and even the odd jack rabbit

My parents butchered animals and delivered meat from farm to farm in the summer time. This service was appreciated especially during threshing. The hamburger sold for 10¢ a pound. The job of opening gates sometimes fell on me - a chore which I was never too thrilled with

Dad served the community as a self made veterinarian. He had a few instruments and a love for animals and was often called upon to help treat a sick cow or float a horses teeth. The standard charge was one dollar, regardless of time spent, and when he was paid he'd hand the money to Mom and say "here's another sack of sugar"

Our family hauled fuel from Eckville, by wagon, to the first gas pump in Leedale, owned and operated by my aunt and uncle, Loretta and Hugh Lindsay. They also had a store and post of

Dad also hauled lumber to Eckville by team and sleigh from the Varty sawmill at Faraway

Lucille's first driving experience was when she decided to take our McLaughlin Buick for a spin. She drove out the lane negotiated the turn without stopping but mowed down six fence posts on the return trip

Loretta enjoyed racing her pony. On one occasion she looked back to see how the other contestants were doing, fell off her horse and lost the

Mom was quite a cowgirl herself. One day the green-broke horse which she was riding decided to lie down in a slough. The horse won that round, but what he didn't know was that his stubbornness was no match for mom's determination and that she would persevere until it was clear that she was the boss

We attended the Gimlet public school and later Leedale High. Say what they like, country schools were okay in my opinion. The teachers were nice — Hattie Dobbs, Geneva Clayton Elsie Petersen, Selma Raabis, Thelma Olsen and Isabel Hood to mention a few. They tried hard to cope with 30 kids ranging in age from six to 16, in Grades 1 to 8

Christmas programs and picnics were always special events and the dances after these affairs were a place where young and old were welcome. The school house also doubled as a Sunday School and church on Sundays

About Halloween, can anyone reading this article recall how Scotty Houston's horses mysteriously got into the pound keeper's corral at Stanley Brown's one crisp moonlight night of

Dad had been in the U.S. Marines in the First World War and in 1941 he enlisted in the

R.C.A.F. so we left the farm to live in Calgary while dad was in the armed forces.

O. L. McElroy bought the old farm, and it is presently owned by the Leedale Hutterite.

In 1946, after the war, mom and dad returned to the Gilby area where they farmed and raised registered Appaloosa horses. With them came Johnnie and Ronnie Graham, two lovable young fellows who made their home with us for several years. Ronnie was killed in a construction accident in Calgary at the age of 18 years. Johnnie lives at the West Coast and comes back to visit from time to time.

Virginia, affectionately known as Bridget, won the Rocky Stampede Queen Contest in 1957. She represented Eckville and was sponsored by the High School Student's Union.

Mom managed the Gilby Store from 1956 to 1962. Then in 1963 our parents purchased land near Rocky Mountain House and the following year retired to town where Mother still lives. Dad passed away in April of 1972.

They had five daughters. Vera, the eldest, died at the age of two years.

Lucille, Mrs. Harold Lemieux, lives on a farm west of Rimbey. They have six daughters — Joyce, Fay, Carol, Wendy, Cindy and Gale.

Loretta married Eddy Aske. They had two sons — Wayne and Garry, (Garry deceased in 1961). They live on a farm east of Rocky Mountain House and Loretta is the Accountant at the Hospital.

Ileene, Mrs. Ingmar Hulberg lives on a farm too. We have one son, Wendell, and two daughters Lynda and Lynn. I am a health record analyst at the Rocky Hospital.

Virginia, Mrs. Roger Teiz lives in Ottawa with her family of two daughters and one son — JoAnn, Brenda and Edward. Virginia is an insurance underwriter.

Mom enjoys her 13 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren. Her hobbies bring her much happiness, and many of her hand made articles beautify her comfortable home and the homes of her family and friends. She enjoys plants and flowers and takes special pride in raising gorgeous roses.

The "welcome mat" is still out at the Nugent home, and mom is always pleased when old friends come to call.

OUELETTE, PETE AND LELAH JOHNSON AND FAMILY

Peter Ouelette was born in St. Albert, Alberta on March 31, 1896, the son of Peter George Ouelette (originally from Quebec) and Eugenie (La Pierre) Ouelette, of St. Albert.

The first year of his parent's marriage in 1890 and 1891 his father was on a "river drive" from northwest of Edmonton down to "Walter's sawmill" on the Edmonton river-flats. That year he made $3,000. Later he worked at his trade of carpentry, on some of the first buildings at St. Albert.

In 1896 his father left for the Yukon gold fields. He soon returned with news that he thought he'd found a "strike". Next year, in 1898 he returned to Dawson City, where he contracted typhoid-fever and died. A priest was sent down to break the news to Pete's mother. He handed her over her husband's watch and clothes, regretfully saying there was no money because they had used it to give him a "good burial". Pete's mother was left with four small children.

When Pete was four years old his mother met and married Alphonse Jenette, and they moved to his home at Hay Lakes, east of Leduc, Alberta. Two sets of twins and three other children were born here, making a family of 11. Of these Pete has still living two half-sisters, Alice of Edmonton and Almena Angel of Beaverlodge, also a brother Joe Ouelette of Edmonton.

On October 23, 1917 at Leduc, Alberta, Pete married Miss Lelah Johnson of Hay Lakes, daughter of a pioneer American family.

Lelah's grandparents on both sides of her family were pioneers of U.S.A. Her mother, Amelia Ostenburg was born and raised in Wisconsin, where her family had lived for generations. Lelah's grandfather, Frederick Ostenburg fought in the Boer War. Instead of being issued a name tag, soldiers were tattoed on the arm. Lelah's father, Orrin Johnson, was born in Missouri, the son of a British immigrant family who arrived on the Mayflower. Lelahs grandfather Isaac Johnson was a Deacon of their Presbyterian Church. The family farmed and raised sheep, until an epidemic wiped them out. After this misfortune Isaac Johnson drove by wagon to Johnstown, North Dakota where he and his wife and oldest daughter, a school teacher, filed on three homesteads. The boys worked the land while their parents built a log home. It was a very hard year with no ready cash but the first crop was good and from then on they were

Isaac Johnson had six children Orrin George, Charlie, Emily Hattie, and Nettie Orrin took his own farm and in 1888 married a neighbor girl, Amelia Ostenburg. They moved to Inkster North Dakota. They had 10 children Lelah and her twin sister Lilah were born in Inkster on February 1897

In 1899 her parents Orrin and Amelia Johnson moved to Bow Bells, North Dakota where they had opened a store It was spring and a measle epidemic was at its worst. The doctor thought it was scarlet fever and by the time Mr Johnson found another doctor from a neighboring town all the children were ill. They buried three of their little girls in one week. Lelah's twin sister Lilah two years. Bessie six years and Ina seven years Mrs Ouelette was only two but can still remember the doctor coming and saving the life of her brother Ray when he was nearly gone The measles also claimed the life of a young neighbor girl who had been helping Mrs Johnson. Lelah's parents later aquired a good farm, but Orrin gambled by buying wheat options (shares) on the stock market and lost much money

In the fall of 1906 Orrin and Amelia Johnson, with their family of six. Homer, Fred, Roy, Addie, Lelah and Eva, left Bow Bells, N.D and came to Alberta. In the first year they built a hotel at Hardisty It was a very bad winter and a heater had to be kept going all night to dry the plaster The hotel was finished in 1907 and they held an "Opening Dance" complete with liquor license. It was 30 degrees farenheit people came from 30 miles away by open sleigh Lelah was eight or nine years old and remembers that she was allowed to stay up to watch the dancing Her father was an expert violinist and he and friends played till daylight

In 1918 Johnsons sold the hotel and moved to Wetaskiwin where they opened a store on the east side of main street Here the children attended school Lelah had been in the second reader in N.D but had to begin again in the first reader In 1914 Johnsons moved to Edson Alberta to open another grocery store. Lelah attended Alberta Business College in Edmonton and returned to keep books for her father The Grand Trunk Railway went through town and Mrs Johnson had a good business. Settlers from Grande Prairie. 160 miles off, came for their yearly supplies. They travelled together with one covered sleigh carrying a stove and one team consisting of a horse and a cow so they were supplied with milk Grande Prairie settlers raised big wheat crops in those days but there was no railroad and water was at 1400 feet with no available well drilling machinery When the Grand Trunk Railway left town Mr Johnson closed his business. The family moved onto their homestead at Roseavar while Orrin and son Fred went seeking a new home in the Hay Lakes area In 1914 the Johnson Bros bought a homestead there

In 1918 a year after Lelah's marriage to Pete Ouelette, he joined the Canadian Army In 1919 he returned from England and resumed farming. After this the Johnson family moved again to their farm on the S 18-41-3-W5 in the Medicine Valley. They aquired a large farm and also raised sheep on section seven They also owned

In 1926 Lelah and Pete decided to come to the Medicine Valley Lelah and their two baby girls, Marjorie, two years, and Florence, an infant, came by train from Leduc. Pete followed by wagon with their boushold effects, taking three weeks They settled in the Scroggy place W 12-41 4-W5 near the Medicine River a short distance from the Johnson Bros. Here they raised their family of six children Marjorie, Florence, Lawrence, Chester Donald and Eileen. They attended the Medicine Valley School. In 1933 their house burned to the ground. luckily it was not winter. They all escaped but only managed to save the table. the cream separator which Pete tore from the floor and the telephone, which they yanked off the wall. Also saved from burning was a lit le blue trunk which contained their family documents. All summer they lived in a crowded bunkhouse but by fall of the same year they had built a new two storey frame house. The house had not been finished yet but was cosy and large enough for a big jolly family

Pete was a good violin player having taught himself to play as a 13 year old boy His first violin was a Premium which his sister acquired through selling garden seeds. He remembers that he broke a lot of strings learning but by 15 years of age he could play quite well. All Pete's life he has been a popular musician at house parties and country dances. Mrs. Ouelette crocheted beautiful lace gifts for her family and friends. In 1942 and 1943 Pete and Lelah moved to a farm just a mile north of their home. SE 14-41-4-W5 The Jones Place). Eileen, Chester and Donald finished their schooling at the Gimlet School

In 1963 and 1964 they built a lovely new modern home Five years later they sold their land to the Hutterite Brethern of the Leedale Colony and moved their house to Rocky Mountain House where they now reside. In October of 1977 the children and the community gathered at the Gimlet Community Center to honor Pete and Lelah on their 59th Wedding Anniversary There followed a real old wedding dance with local musicians and Pete playing his old time fiddle

Lelah's father, Orrin Johnson passed away in 1934 and his mother 10 years later in 1944 Homer and Roy Johnson sold their farm retiring in B.C Fred Johnson remained in the Eckville area. He passed away quite suddenly in 1972 Roy died in 1977 Homer still lives at Burnaby, B.C. near his sister Mrs. Eva Jewell, Addie

(Mrs Burt) passed away in the 1970's and was buried at the Gimby Cemetery In 1972 Pete and Lelah lost their second son, Chester, quite suddenly when he passed away at home at the age of 43 years He left many friends

Of their remaining five children, Marjorie [illegible]s in B.C She trained as a hair dresser Florence married Rex Payne from Lethbridge They live in Calgary and have one son Peter 13 years of age Lawrence married Annette Laurie of Mensig. They live at High River where Lawrence is employed at a gas plant They have five sons Eileen married Harry Skoreiko of Leedale They live in Calgary and have three daughters Donald is at home with his parents

Pete and Lelah are in quite good health and make welcome their many friends who drop in to visit

There are at this time six grandsons and three granddaughters, also they are the proud great great-grandparents of four children

PIMM, THEODORE AND HATTIE

Ted and Hattie Pimm moved to the Gimli district to a C P R. quarter (S.E. 19-41-4-W5 In the summer of 1932

To make an extra dollar Ted cut tamarack posts and firewood,. He delivered the wood to Rimbey for $2 50 a cord, all ricked up. He also put his mules to work and did custom breaking for three years. His lead mule kept him on his toes as he would haul off and kick the driver if he wasn t the first one unhitched. Hattie used to ride one of the mules to the neighbors for eggs and on several occasions the old mule would put his head down and off over the front would go Hattie and the eggs and then the mule would trot off home, leaving Hattie to walk

In the spring of 1927, Ted and some other men helped Mr Wiltse move the Daniel Lalone house from S.W 25-41-4-w5 to northwest of Leedale The house had been built on a small knoll surrounded by muskeg It was large for those days, being 24' x 36' of lath and plaster construction so it was decided to cut it in half using a cross cut saw Then eight head of mules and eight head of horses were used to skid the house the 12 miles or more. It was a slow process as they had to cut a trail as they went along

Ted also purchased the N W 17-41-4-w5 originally homesteaded by Buchanan. He broke 20 acres of land here for a total cash cost of 10c He used a five horse team on a 16 breaking plow and it cost him 10¢ for a can of grease to keep the trucks from squeaking

Ted recalled the big fire of 1931, which burned south and west of them. It had been an open winter with hardly any snow. That particular day Ted had hauled a load of wheat to Rimbey and there was a terrific high wind Joe Brown, an uncle of Stanley Brown was cutting wood in the bush and got caught in the line of fire His wagon was burned up and his horses were singed but the fire burned around him and went on

Ted and Hattie sold their land to Cliff Staudinger and moved to Rimbey in the spring of 1973. Their family of three daughters live in Rimbey Blackfalds and Calgary and their son Art lives in Swan Hills

Ted is an avid golfer and curler according to the season and spends a lot of time visiting old friends at the local auction mart Hattie still has a steady hand for the fancy work that she enjoys doing So they are thoroughly enjoying their retirement from the farm but they harbour many fond memories of the Gimlet area and their life there

STAUDINGER, HELGE AND MARJORIE — by Marjorie Staudinger
S.W 19-41-4-5

It was a balmy day in May, 1962, when I picked up the mail at the end of the driveway and took it along to the old homestead for Helge to read while he ate the dinner I had packed. He always read the classified ads first "I wonder what kind of land this would be he queried showing me an ad for three quarters of land north of Lesliеville. Examining the ad I conduced, 'It's pasture we need. It would surely grow grass, if nothing else." Little did we dream that acquiring this land would produce much more than grass in the following yea[illegible] troduced us to a whole new community [illegible] we'd never even heard of Gimlet before a scarce 40 miles away We gained a host of new friends. Neighbors made us feel at home and helped us in so many ways when we were constantly finding ourselves in need of something we either couldn't or didn't bring with us They gave us permission to use the phone or pick up milk even if they were ou

It was in May 1969 when fire swept through It started somewhere southwest of us. We were not here that Tuesday morning when a hot dry wind picked up the smouldering embers of an old brush fire, raced across Stanley Brown s and into Clifford's "Waramaki Quarter". Ted Pimm phoned us at Marianne to tell us that the fire was moving fast and our tractors were in danger No one present had operated diesel motors and they couldn't get them started. Not being familiar with forest fires, we wondered how a fire could burn on freshly cleared land but we believed his report and came as fast as we could. If it hadn t been for Dave Lowe coming along much before we got here our tractors would have burned. He moved them to safety in the nick of time Then came the long, grueling afternoon as a number of men fought the fire along the road that runs kitycorner through Cliff's. If it couldn't be stopped there, there was no telling how far west it could go. It did jump the road into our southwest quarter, crossing only the corner and within a few hours had burned itself out nearly 20 miles to the northwest We were lucky to have neighbors who literally knocked themselves out in a situation where we'd have been quite helpless to even know what to do

The land was virtually wild when we got it Only a small piece had once been cleared or had gone back to trees. Fire had gone through a couple of times before but that was also treed over again. For the first years it was a new and exciting place to roam, throughout the wooded hills and dales, and to picnic with family and friends from far and near

Then came the blueberry years. Hattie Pimm had told us that if we got more rain the blueberries would literally cover the ground. It was hard to believe in the first years when it was quite dry but when the wet years came we knew what she meant For several years this trend continued. I asked everyone I could to come and pick and we had hordes of friends crawling all over the place and I picked all I could myself We still left millions of them for the birds

Progress must take its toll and as Helge cleared a little more land each year blueberry patches became fields and pasture Then came years of less rainfall again and lastly, more cattle to trample what was left so now even we must find blueberries further afield

We had no thoughts of living here when we bought the land but it wasn't long after that we walked from the road into the trees where our house now stands It was so lovely and especially the birch were beautiful. As I stood transfix Helge asked, "are you thinking the same thing that I am?" and I answered, "That this would be a beautiful place to build a home First we built the little cottage which was much more comfy than the granary Helge had batched in for several summers, whenever he came out here to work I didn't have much time to spend here but enjoyed a few days off and on. It was the summer of 1969 when we started building our house and we moved into it in January 1970

We turned the home place at Marianne over to three unmarried sons. That first summer their youngest sister kept house for them but after her marriage in November they were on their own Mom and Dad had "flown the coop." Richard has since married. Russell and Harvey still bach

In 1967 Cliff bought the N.W 18-41-4-5 from Ike and Don Walimaki. In 1973 he bought Ted Pimm's place, the S.E. of 19 and N.W of 17 At the time, he was working in Calgary with Melchin. Now, dividing his time between this and his brother's at Marianne. he farms his land

As I write It's just eight years since we came here to live and it seems our sojourn at Gimlet is almost over Our youngest son George and his wife Beth with their two little girls, Rebecca and Rachel arrived in March 1977 and whenever we can sufficiently ready a new home on the old homestead west of Sylvan Lake, they will take over the farming here Our ties with Gimlet will remain fast and we are happy that some of the family will continue to live and farm in the dis

by Nada Trenholme

Nathaniel is of English and Scottish descent. His father and mother first came to Prince Edward Island lived there for a number of years and then moved to Watertown, South Dakota

Nate, as his friends alway called him and his twin sister Mabel were born there. When the twins were ready to start school a married brother was moving to Canada and since their mother had recently died the family moved with [illegible]

With several wagons joined in a wagon train they left South Dakota late in 1907 and arrived in Carstairs in 1908. The twins started school there Later Nate went to live with his sister Mae and husband. They lived on a homestead at Sunnyslope. He went to school at Burnside School

During the First World War Mae and her husband moved to Victoria where there was work in the ship yards building the ships used in the war Nate, too, worked in the ship yards until after the war The family then moved to Omak, Washington where he worked making boxes for packing fruit during the day and cleaned the flumes in the orchard at night. He decided to return to Sunnyslope and landed in Didsbury which was as far as he could go by train The hotel was full and he was not allowed to sit in the lobby all night so he decided to walk. Since the walk was 20 miles he thought he'd spend the time learning to smoke. He bought himself a pipe and some tobacco and set out A few miles out he became so ill it was difficult for him to continue the journey. This cured him of smoking for the rest of his life

When he arrived he found his brother and family about to move to Sprucefield in Northern Alberta as homesteads were available and his sons were old enough to have a homestead Nate joined them taking out a homestead and they all worked together

I was born and raised in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. When Nate was on a visit to see a friend in Saskatchewan, we met and in 1926 were married. We were married in Warspite and had our wedding dance in Sprucefield

We lived on a rented farm until the birth of our first daughter Eva, when we bought a quarter of land near Edmonton. It was fairly expensive land for that time and what with sawflies 25 cent per bushel grain and being hailed out it was difficult to meet the payments and we were forced to sell it again. We then moved to Manyberries. There was a policy by which we could rent government land for three cents per acre The country was so dry the grain would only grow four to six inches tall. After a terrible dust storm and the wind blowing rolls of tumble weed all over it there was nothing left for winter feed Russian thistle was cut for feed and our belts were pulled in to the last notch. The following year we followed the harvest working our way north. I had to have an operation and Eva was hospitalized with whooping cough. By the time our doctor and hospital bills were paid our summer wages were nearly gone We got a job operating a dray line in Northern Alberta but the town was so small there wasn't enough business to make a living. After the birth of our second daughter Lillian, we returned to Sunnyslope Shortly after we arrived Nate became ill and he too had to have his appendix removed Again there were the doctor bills and hospital bills Through the years all of our children as well as ourselves had our appendix removed

In the meantime we found a place to live on a farm with a widow and her two sons. We could help on the farm and keep our cattle there. I milked four cows and fed out a few yearlings When Nate was well enough he took a team and a sleigh and went to a lake 350 miles to the north bought a sleigh box full of fish and sold them all the way home This took until spring We pooled the money we had made and found we had enough to make a payment of a farm

In 1936 Nate went to a real estate agent and found a quarter at Leedale This was the N W 26-41-4-W 5. The agent said this quarter had a good house and a nice barn. 50 acres broken and the rest in light brush. We had to take his word for this, and hope that he was an honest man because we didn't have extra money to see it

We packed all our possessions in a covered wagon, tied the bull to the wagon and driving the cattle we started out When we were in the Wainborne area a terrible storm came up and our cattle became difficult to manage so we asked a farmer by the name of Taylor if we could put our cattle in a pen They not only took in our cattle but us too and we stayed in their house for three days. They knew nothing about us and still were willing to take us in and wouldn't take any payment for their kindness

Our two girls didn't seem to mind the trip and took the whole thing in their stride, running behind, riding on the wagon or riding on the tamest of the cows. There was also an element of excitement as Nate loved bull fights and everytime a farmers bull would break through the fence ours would be turned loose and they were allowed to fight until he could break them up and tie ours up so we could be on our way

When we arrived at the farm we found there was no access road and the only way to get to it was through Mr Nugent's pasture There was less than 30 acres broken. the house was built out of four by six laid one on top of the other and the walls and roof were covered with tar paper held in place with slabs. The only dry place when it rained was under the kitchen table because there was an oilcloth on the table. The walls would shift every so often and I would pound them back in place with an axe The good barn was a straw shed, the well was dry and the only good thing was a river running through the farm where we got water for washing and the cattle. We hauled our house water from Sherman's. Eva had to go through two gates and Nugent's pasture to get to Gimlet School which was three and one half miles away. Nate built little ladders at the gates so she could climb on her old horse. We were only here three days when the river flooded its banks and we saw a nice horse floating down the river with a saddle on his back. We never heard anything of the rider What a sick feeling I had knowing the children had a choice of two gates and a pasture with a bull in or fording the river to get to school

ment but there was nothing we could do but make the best of it as we had very little money and had to live through the winter until we could sell cream.

We were in need of seed in the spring but couldn't afford it. Mr Tarrbano, who owned the Leedale store told us that Claude Challand had seed so Nate went to him, explaining his financial situation and Claude gave him the seed without even asking him when he could pay for it. Neighbors like this are never forgotten. Other neighbors we had on this farm were Nugents, Betts, Wilkes, Shermans and Thysons. They too tried to help smooth our way.

Our first real meeting with the people of Gimlet was at a good old fashioned picnic. You know the kind, lots of home cooking, home made ice cream and prizes for all the children whether they won or not.

Our eldest son Glen was born on this farm.

In 1939 we bought the N.W. 27-41-4-W 5 from the Canadian Pacific Railway. Jim Baird had lived on it before. It was closer to school, a good road went by the farm, the well was very good and the house was quite good for those years. We were really pleased with this farm. Nate worked in the sawmills every winter and I stayed on the farm taking care of the animals and the children.

During these lonely winters we loved to read but there was a real scarcity of books. I heard that canceled books could be obtained from the Edmonton public library for a small sum of money so I sent for some. For two dollars I received a large box so I ordered more and loaned them out to others who, like myself, didn't have too much entertainment. I joined the Women's Institute and got books for them which were kept in Leedale at Edna Varly's to be loaned out. Later they were kept by Mrs. B. Robinson in the post office. I also served on the Gimlet school board, also a member of the Gimlet sewing circle and was president of the Leedale Catholic Ladies club at the time the church was built in Leedale. This was accomplished by the labours of many hard

What with Nate working in the mills and me on the farm we were able to buy another quarter of land west of the Gimlet school. We purchased it from the 'Sunset Home' at Bawlf. It had belonged to Charlie Augustine who died in this home. Ted Pimm moved on the farm further west and each person along the fence line gave one rod from each side so a road could be made so their children could go to the Gimlet School. This was not a road allowance so the road was built by the men themselves.

We later sold this quarter to Bud Casey and bought the N.E. 27-41-4-W 5 which was directly east of our home quarter and owned by Mrs. Lindsay, the postmistress in Leedale. This quarter had the river running through it also so I kept quite a few geese. Occasionally an overanxious hunter had goose for dinner.

Nate loved to trade horses and bought wild ones from the Indians at Nordegg for trading horses. When I think of some of the horses we've had I wonder who got the worst deal, he or his victim. At least he always kept a good team which were trained for skid horses and worked with him in the mill.

During the summer he drove to Rimbey with the team to sell the pigs. He would come home fairly late, singing to pass the time and the children would wait for the sound of his voice to run out to meet him. He also had a weakness for the lonely of the world and often when he came home from the mill he would bring some lonely bachelor who had no where to go and he would stay with us until he found some summer work.

Our youngest son Allen was born in 1946 and went to Gimlet School as did all the children. He took his high school at David Thompson School.

A calamity befell our family when Nat lost his eye in a ploughing accident and again our neighbors came in to lend a helping hand and to check on the family while I stayed in Edmonton with him.

We later sold the farm and moved to Vernon British Columbia. We later took the farm back but I stayed in B.C. as Glen was in High School and would have had to board away from home. I returned to the farm after he graduated and we stayed there until Nate had a hunting accident which resulted in the loss of part of his foot. We then sold the farm and bought a house in Rimbey where we still live. Many of our old neighbors are also retired in Rimbey so we see many familiar faces.

Our four children are married. Eva and her husband, Gus Makofka have two children and live at Bluffton. Lillian and her husband, Gus LeDuc have five children and live at Aldersyde. Glen and his wife, Lois have two children and live in Edmonton, and Allen and his wife, Terry have two children and live in Italy.

WARNEKE, JOHN AND ESTHER — written by Esther Warneke

John and I (nee Esther Sundby) were married at Athabaska on July 13, 1941. We have two children, a son, Lorne born at Athabaska on November 18, 1942, and a daughter, Diane, born at Eckville, February 27, 1949.

John was with the R.C.C. [redacted] World War II serving for five and one half years. Three and one half of those years were spent overseas. During that time we lived at various places — Brandon and Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Kingston, Ontario. During John's absence, Lorne and I lived at Medicine Hat, Alta. When John returned from overseas, after the war was over, we moved to Calgary. It was while there we decided to go farming. After looking at various places, we chose to live at Leedale acquiring the quarter known as the old Bradshaw place. It was situated one half mile east and two miles south of the Hamlet of Leedale. It was at the crossroads, and the corner was soon called "Johnnie's Corner" for three Johnnies lived across from one another all veterans of the war

We arrived there from Calgary in April of 1947 in time for the spring thaw. We soon discovered what the roads were like Having only a car, — for we hadn't yet bought any farm machinery or horses, — we couldn't drive out again for at least two weeks All four roads were impassable. John had to hike to the Leedale store, with pack on his back, to get groceries several times.

There was an old creamery situated on John Playfair's, across the road from us John bought it, and from the salvages, we built new granaries and a pump house. We still have the pump house, which we moved to our present home site, in the Eckville area near Condor

One of the worse blizzards that I can recall occurred the night before our daughter was born It left all the roads blocked from fence post to fence post With the aid of Doc Coppock, good neighbors, our horses, jeep, tractors and trucks and an all day session, we arrived in Eckville [illegible] and turned around after despite the experiences

The curling rink at Leedale was built by the community effort. We are proud that John assisted in that We enjoyed many years of curling there

We lived in the old house that was on the farm, supposedly to have been built around 1905, until 1959. Then we built our new home We also bought two more quarters of land, one previously owned by Ted Everaden, and the other by Wilbert Burgoyne

Lorne and Diane started their school years at Gimlet, attending there until the schools were consolidated in 1956. They were then bused to Eckville, where they graduated. Lorne went on to the University of Edmonton receiving his M D degree, and F.R.C.P degree. He now has his practice in Edmonton. Diane has been doing accounting and secretarial work in Edmonton and at the time of writing is attending Grant MacEwan College to become a social worker

In 1970, our neighbors sold their farms to the Hutterites. The following year, after a tough decision, we finally did the same. We greatly enjoyed our years at Leedale

WILTSE, C LYNN AND HOOPER FAMILIES

In the year 1906, C Lynn Wiltse after several weeks travel, due to the large influx of immigrants into Alberta arrived by immigrant car at Stettler from DesMoines, Iowa. From there he went southeast of Gadsby where he located a homestead, later known as the Hill Top the buildings were located on a knoll

Lynn was followed by his father and mother Charles L. and Anna Wiltse and several other members of the Wiltse family In 1906 Charles L Wiltse located a homestead one mile south of the Hill Top He then moved to Stettler where he was in the cattle business for several years before returning to the U S.A

[illegible]

Harrison Wiltse located a homestead in the same area. He married Mabel Bobidoux at Halkirk, where he ran a butcher shop He was also in the cattle business at Halkirk and [illegible]

In 1908 Lynn Wiltse and Daisy Hoopfer, a daughter of another pioneer family Albert L and Alice J Hoopfer, were married

In 1910 Lynn Wiltse and his brother, Fred Wiltse moved east to the new town of Consort Here they engaged in the freight business, and also built and operated a large livery stable and Studebaker buggy and wagon agency Their freight wagons moved two lumber yards from Castor to Consort along with many other supplies for the new town. They also drove many new settlers out in their buggies to locate homesteads in the Consort and Monitor area

With the advent of the automobile Lynn and Fred sold their livery business and put teams to work building the new railroad into the area Later Fred Wiltse who had married Daisy Watson acquired the Ford car agency also a mer cantile store in Consort, which are still operated by his sons', Harold and Arthur Wiltse

Lynn Wiltse took up a purchase homestead in the Monitor area which he farmed before selling and moving back to the Gadsby area in 1917 During the time he farmed in the Gadsby area he served on the school board, also as a deputy sheriff

In 1921 Lynn Wiltse moved to the Leedale area, west of Lacombe, with six children, Edwin, Charles, Lyle Marion, Evelyn and Clare Another son, Harrison (Hal), remained in the Gadsby area with his uncle, Harrison. Hal Wiltse aught at the Big Knife School in school years 1940-41 and 41-42. The Lynn Wiltse family moved to a farm known as the Balance place, where they lived in the original log homestead house until 1924. At that time Lynn moved a two story frame house that had been built by Garner Wiltse on a half section west of the home site. This house was moved with horses and wagons Another son, Fred, was born that year

In 1921 Garner Wiltse who had been farming in the Gadsby area moved to the Leedale area with his wife Elsie Lesinger Wiltse. They moved onto the west half of the Balance place where they farmed until the following year, at that time they traded farms with Jack Anker for a place north west of Leedale. He farmed this place until 1925 when he passed away leaving his wife and five children, Ruth, Marie, Helen, Loretta and Pearl

Jack Anker bought the place north west of Leedale in 1921 He had moved west from Monitor where he had homesteaded. He also drove livery teams for Lynn Wiltse when the town of Consort was being built

Also in 1921 Jim Anderson moved to the Leedale area from the Monitor area where he had homesteaded. He bought a place in the section east of the Balance place Jim brought with him his wife Mina and three of his four children Florence, Lela and Helen. A fourth daughter Gail, remained at Consort where she married Art Redel Lela Anderson taught at the Gimlet School in 1922 and 23 school year

During the time Lynn Wiltse farmed the Balance land he hired an Indian tribe to clear land for him. They moved the whole tribe with their teepees and horses onto the place and the squaws and children slashed and piled the brush while the bucks sat in the shade and watched There were many acres cleared in this way in those days. Many of these Indians could speak no English. If they happened to come by at meal time they would come in unannounced, sit down at the table and wait until food was set before them, most of them used their fingers for eating they would then leave with no more than a grunt In the fall of the year they received a large steer as part of their pay They took the steer down to the river bank where a large band of neighboring Indians had gathered They then stoned the steer to death and cooked it They feasted all night until all the meat was gone

In 1926 Lynn Wiltse moved his family to the Garner Wiltse farm northwest of Leedale In the fall of 1926 Lynn Wiltse, Charles Wiltse, Ted Pimm, Dewey Simmons and Tom Simmons went hunting west of Leedale and returned with four moose They were brought in whole with the hide on and in the cold weather were frozen solid Lynn moved his moose into the house beside the air tight heater where it lay for several days, being turned occasionally, before it thawed out enough to skin and cut up

In the spring of 1927 Lynn Wiltse moved a house, 24 x 36 and one and one half stories, from six miles southwest of his place. The house was first sawed in two by Charles Wiltse and Grover Simpkins, and then loaded on a front bob sled and timber, one half at a time. A right of way was slashed across country, and the snow had to be tramped by the men across a swamp so it would freeze enough to carry the horses and house There were 12 head of horses and four head of mules used to pull the house. Those help ing on the moving besides Lynn Wiltse, were Edwin Wiltse, Ted Pimm, Dewey Simmons, Charles Wiltse and Grover Simpkins. That spring a basement was dug and a foundation poured with gravel dug from the bottom of the Medicine River, by horses and slip. The house was moved onto the new foundation that summer. One of the features of the new house was running water. The house was so positioned with the well below one corner of the kitchen [illegible] tea kettle from a pitcher pump and run set it on [illegible] below weather to thaw the pump to get a drink. Lynn also started construction on a large log barn at this time. While in the Leedale area Lynn Wiltse served on the school board as well as serving on the Municipal Council as a [illegible].

In 1928 Lynn Wiltse traded for a farm in Oregon U.S.A. with a Mr. Polyzik, and moved to it in the fall, thus ending 22 years of pioneering in Alberta.

Albert L. and Alice J. Hoopfer and children William, Daisy, Marion and Dewey, moved to the Gadsby area from Bismark, North Dakota in 1906. Albert and William (Bill) Hoopfer took up adjoining homesteads in the area southeast of Gadsby.

In 1911 William Hoopfer took up a purchase homestead south of Monitor. In 1921 Bill married Florence Leister. He farmed in the Monitor district until 1937 when he moved his wife and three children, Jean, Doreen and Hallie to a farm he purchased west of Red Deer.

Marion Hoopfer married Ross Currie in 1917. They farmed in the Gadsby area until 1921 when they moved to a farm at Monitor. In 1936 the Currie's moved to a farm at Red Deer. They had seven children, Jack, Bob, Alice, Ross, Lorne, Glenn and Francis.

Dewey Hoopfer took over William and Albert Hoopfer's homesteads at Gadsby. In 1921 Dewey Hoopfer married Jessie Ellis. In 1925 and 1926 Dewey farmed in the Leedale area with his father, Albert Hoopfer. He then went back to the Gadsby farm. Dewey and Jessie Hoopfer had six children, William, Laurie, Alice, Verna, Jim and [illegible].

In 1921 Albert and Alice Hoopfer moved to a farm three miles south east of Leedale where they farmed until 1930, when they moved back to Gadsby.

ALBERTA — by Louis DeMontmorency, Condor, Alberta

I've travelled all over the country
And scarcely owned more than my coat
For years I've worked in the timber
But still I was always broke
Proceeding that hundreds grow poor
I made up my mind to try farming.
The only proceeds that are sure
So packing my trinkets together
It gave me quite a thrill
I boarded a train for Alberta
For a town that's called Eckville
Arriving flat broke in midwinter
The ground was all covered with snow
And if I'm not badly mistaken, it
Must have been forty below
As I looked on my prospects so gleaming
The tears trickled down o'er my face
And I felt that all of my travels
Had brought me to the jumping off place
I bought a quarter section of prairie
And I settled down to hard toil
For years I worked and I labored
With the rocks and the tough prairie soil
And I tried to get out of the country
But poverty forced me to stay,
Until I became an old settler
Then nothing could drive me away
And since I am used to the climate
Also those cold winds that blow
To find a place more happy
I don't know where I would go
And if you should long for excitement
The wild world to explore
You can get a free passage to Europe
That's where the great cannons do roar
We have the Jap and the Dago
Also the Russian Bear
And if you don't like their company
You can go see old Nasser

[redacted]

I remember when they broke these acres broad and bare Seagulls soaring behind the plough in the air
The day they sowed the sky was sunny and bright
The first green blades turned toward the light
I remember the many stooks upon
Alberta's history
When the threshers came to thresh
the ripened grain
Farmers returned to the fields fall work complete
Alberta is the land of forests
minerals and wheat
I remember pioneers, built roads bridges, airports and factories Pioneers made Alberta what it is today
Through change and adversity shaped its destiny
Alberta's gift is in the land
Sunned and watered by an unseen Hand.

ANDERSON, ANTON OSCAR

Anton Anderson was born at Woodville Wisconsin, U.S.A. on November 6, 1885. He came to Canada with his parents, one brother and three sisters, in the spring of 1910, and settled on a farm in the Millet district. He married the former Ethel Blize in 1925.

Ethel Blize was born at Dixie, Washington, U.S.A. on December 27 1902, and came to Canada in July, 1908 with her parents and younger brother, also settling in the Millet district.

After their marriage they farmed the Anderson home place following the retirement of his parents. During the following years, five children were born to them.

In 1946, they purchased the Reino Sipplia farm, NE 14-38-4-W5, three miles south of Hespero, and moved there in April of that year. In 1953 they purchased the adjacent SE 14-38-4-W5 from Pat Hoven.

Anton was a friendly, kindly man and was a friend to all his neighbors. He loved the outdoors, hunting and fishing, and kept bees for a time. Ethel was a member of the Hespero Community Club, and the Diamond Valley Mission. Tragedy occurred in the family in July, 1961, when Anton passed away after being trampled by a bull on the farm. Ethel now makes her home in Sylvan ..

Hazel, their first child, was born on February 22, 1926. She married William Cordon, and they live at Eckville. Edith was born on September 2, 1927 and married Arthur Thomas. They live in the Hespero district. Jean, born November 15, 1929, married Raymond McCrady, and lives in Brooks. Clarence was born on June 27, 1931. He married the former Florence Campbell, and lives at Sylvan Lake. Owen (Bud) was born October 21, 1932. He married the former Eva Hope and lives at Kamloops, B.C.

ELI ANDERSON FAMILY — by Magda Anderson

Eli Anderson came to Red Deer from Iowa, U.S.A. in 1906. He worked in the sawmill and quarry while sizing up homesteads. After looking at land near Wainwright and Lochearn, he chose the northeast quarter of section 9-38-4-W5, which is six and one-half miles west of Eckville. Mrs. Anderson and the four children, Lena, Archie, Arla and Norman came in October, 1907. They spent the year 1908 in Red Deer and moved out to the homestead in 1909. Mr. Anderson freighted supplies out from Red Deer before the Alberta Central Railway was built in 1912. Members of the Anderson family got their mail at Lesieville, Pilcox, Hespero, Condor, Withrow and now Rural Route 4 out of Eckville, and we've resided at the same location all this time.

Mrs. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Rasmus, homesteaded the SW9 — and her brother the NE quarter of section 9. Her sister married George Jayes, who had homesteaded the SE of section 9.

Lena Anderson married Jacob Odland and resided in the Bingley area. Their children were ... rence, Luke, Nellie, Beulah and Eunice. Mrs. Odlund died in 1964, and by 1977 the three eldest children have passed away. Eunice (Mrs. William Gardner) lives in the Rimbey area. Their children are Wilma, Helen and Thomas. Beulah (Mrs. Charles Phillips) lives in Drumheller. She and her husband have nine Archie remained a bachelor and farmed the home place until he passed away in 1974. Arla Anderson married George Lee and lives southeast of Evarts. Their children are Charles, Nina and Gertie.

Norman Anderson married Magda Wold and farmed near the home place. Their children are Glenda (Mrs. Robert Wacher), who has three children, Cathy, Steven and Vicki; Norman Jr. who passed away in infancy, and Marjorie (Mrs. Vern Harbourne), who has two sons, Kevin and Shane. Norman passed away in January, 1973. Eli Anderson farmed a section of land with good buildings, at the time of his death in 1938. He was a member of the Shady Lane School Board for many years. Mrs. Anderson was very hard of hearing and read everything for amusement. She was an excellent cook — her home-made bread was a specialty. She passed away in 1939. In less than two years, we lost three Andersons from our corner.

ARNOLD, CHARLIE

My father, sister and I came out from Wiltshire, England in 1913. My mother was unable to immigrate as she had TB and remained behind in a sanatorium for treatment. My sister Winnie stayed at Pilot Mound with relatives and Dad and I came out to Lesieville. I stayed with my cousins, Harry Arnold. Dad went on to British Columbia. I worked for my cousins and stayed on their farm for one and a half years. I then went out to Huxley to work at various jobs for about two years.

Later, I came back to Lesieville as Dad had come back to Alberta and bought a farm. Dad and I farmed together for about three years. Then, I decided to work out again, working around Rocky Mountain House in mills hauling logs.

Then in 1923, I lived in Condor, working at various jobs, mills, and threshing. I always worked on threshing outfits and did so for about 50 years. Last threshing I helped with was in 1976 for Cliff Morrison.

In 1923, Condor was very small, just a few families lived there — Clarence Fitch, the Eastmans, Scott Hastie were some of them. Later, there were Wardens, Meeres, Clements.

In 1931, I took a lease on the quarter NE 35-38-5-W5 and built a small house where I continued to farm and work out a bit. I recall the times when you would get stuck on No. 11 Highway with a wagon and four horses hauling hay from the Bill Cruickshank place. I worked on the road from Leslieville to Highway 11 in 1932.

Local young people, Martin Resetz, Norman Eastman, Earl Doyle, Myers, Maxwells, and others would go by team and sleigh to dances. The music was supplied by local talent. Lunch supplied by ladies.

We held card parties in local homes. Some were John Simons, Bices, Bartons, Blairs, Mitchells, Hewitts. These were held during the winter, also dances in the homes which often lasted until daylight.

The young people visited a local moonshiner to pick up their supply to add a little cheer to their evening.

My mother passed away in England in 1918. My father passed away in July, 1947 in Cranbrook, B.C.

I still reside on the NE 35-38-5-W5.

AVERY, ALBERT

Albert Edward (Bert) Avery, born March 17, 1887, at North Nibley, Gloucestershire, England, came to Ontario in 1906 and to the Condor district in 1910. He homesteaded in the Northup area. During World War I he enlisted in the army in the 89th Battalion and served overseas in England and France. While in England, he married Eleanor (Nellie) Bullock and then returned to his farm at Condor. It was two years before Nellie was able to join him here. Their son, David, was born in 1921. Bert's brother, Walter, lived and worked with them at that time.

Bert was a member of the Red Deer Salvation Army, a school board trustee for 18 years, the returning officer for the M.D. of Raven for 20 years and was one of the first trustees for the Eckville hospital.

Tragedy struck the Avery home, when Nellie died in 1922 and David died in 1930. The little Avery log cabin still stands to this day and can be seen from the Stauffer road.

Bert (known to many as Uncle Bert) moved to Condor as post master from 1938 to 1962. He was well-known throughout the district as clerk for Clyde Stauffer's auction sales. He served in the Second World War in the Reserve Army. He had a life membership in the B.P.O. Elks. At most Christmas concerts in the district schools, Uncle Bert was a familiar figure dressed in red with a white beard. He was a friend to all and many parties were held in the back of the post office. After retiring from the post office, Bert lived with his "adopted daughter" Mary and her husband, Tom Raubis, in Red Deer. He later resided in the Red Deer Nursing Home and spent his [illegible] and aspiration to all.

BICE, HARRY VEALE [illegible]

Harry was born in Cornwall, England and came to Canada as a young adult. When the war broke out in 1914 he joined the army and spent four years in England and Europe. After discharge at the end of the war, he returned to Canada and took up farming in the Condor district [illegible].

In March 1920 he married Annie Rutherford. They had four children, two boys and two girls. Francis contracted rheumatic fever and passed away in 1932 at the age of 11 years. Victor only lived a few days after birth in 1922. The two girls both live in Salmon Arm, B.C. Jean married Gerald Layden of Lacombe in 1948. They have four children, Garnett, Larry, Donna, and Dianne. June married Joe Buresh of Evergreen district in 1944. They have three children, Shannon, Beverly and Gordon.

Annie Bice is well and enjoys life in Rutland,

B.C. where they moved in 1953. Harry passed away in March 1962 in Vancouver's Shaughnessy Hospital. He was a good farmer, always enjoyed working on the land and with his animals. When he was so ill he said 'If I can't work, I really don't want to live.

BIRCE, ALLAN AND PEARL

Pearl and Allan Birce came west from Essex County, Ontario about 1906. The settled first in Southern Alberta near Retlaw. After several extremely dry years on their homestead there, they decided to move to Condor. The move took place in early November, 1933. Mr. Birce brought the cattle, horses and machinery to Condor by C.P.R. Mrs. Birce and the six children — Edna, Ethel, Mildred, Verna, Jean and Walter — came by train later. The train trip north took three days, with nights spent at Blackie and Calgary. Mr. Birce bought the SE 20-38-4-W5. The land was purchased from Fred Nachtmann and now became the home of the Birces. The family couldn't move into the house until spring so spent the winter with Mr. Birce's mother and brother Bill. Early in the spring the Birce family moved into the log house on the farm. Mr. Nachtmann had built a little shack on the farm for himself.

The farm was nearly all bush so the family started clearing land in the spring. A few acres were cleared and broke each year. The clearing was done by axe, with horses used to skid the trees off the land. The first machine clearing was done by Ed Skocdopole with a D 8 cat. The trees which were cleared from the land were used for firewood. Once the land was cleared, it had to be broke with horses and a breaking plow. Later on machines were hired to break the land too. The firewood in the early days was cut with a cross cut saw. The Birce family cut logs to provide lumber for a barn and later a house. The Blacks had a portable mill and came to the Birce farm during the winter and following spring to mill the logs into lumber.

The Birce family soon became engaged in mixed farming on their farm. They grew grain as well as milked cows, raised chickens, pigs and, of course, horses. Mr. Birce and the girls walked many miles picking wild fruit such as strawberries, raspberries, saskatoons and blueberries. Most of the other neighborhood folk also took advantage of nature's harvest to add to the larder.

The children attended school at Daisy Nook. Each day the children had to walk two and a half miles each way to school. Their first teacher was Miss Betty Baldwin. Grades one to 12 were taught in the one room school. The school students and their families took turns doing the janitor work for one month periods. The janitor work included starting the fire each day, hauling the firewood and water, sweeping the floor and, once a month, scrubbing. The salary for all this work was $5 a month. The janitor had to go to school early enough to start the fires and thaw out everything in the winter time. Since there was no coal to bank the fire at night, it took quite a while to get the school warm in the morning. Later teachers at Daisy Nook included Mr. Inkster, Mr. Clarke and Mrs. Hilda Anderson. The highlight of each school year was the annual Christmas concert. Every student took part in the concert which ended with a visit from Santa Claus and candy bags for everyone. The concert provided a grand opportunity to catch up on visiting with the neighbors. In the summer, the school students enjoyed ball games. As well, the girls spent many sunny noon hours playing pen knife, skipping and playing hopscotch. In the winter, the ice rink provided hours of enjoyment.

The Birce family enjoyed the friendship of their early neighbors. Some of these were the Douchnoskis, Krests, Martin Resetz and his mother, Barteskos and many others. On Sunday afternoons, it was a common sight to see their yard full of young people playing games, especially ball games.

The early farm families in the Condor district had to be very self-sufficient. They had big gardens, their own farm-grown meat, milk and eggs. They picked wild fruit for jam and [illegible] and porridge. Groceries were bought from the [illegible] store-keepers. Mail came into Condor three times a week by train. Cattle were driven to the railway station. Pigs were hauled to town by wagon or sleigh. All the children have fond memories of Bert Avery (Uncle Bert) who was [illegible].

The roads in the Condor area were terrible in the spring during break up. Since there was no gravel on the roads, each spring the roads became a sea of mud. The snow was not plowed from the roads during the winter, which made the problem worse each spring when the snow melted. In the spring of 1940, when the roads were at their worst, Ethel Birce took very ill. One of the family members walked three and a half miles to the nearest phone so that the doctor at Eckville could be phoned. However, the doctor hesitated to come to the farm as the roads were certainly near impassible. After phoning Doctor Greenaway at Rocky Mountain House however the family received good news. He would come. Miraculously, the doctor arrived at the farm by [illegible]. Ethel was taken to the hospital at Rocky Mountain House. She had pneumonia and, since there was no drugs or antibiotics, she passed away at the age of 20 years.

The years went by and the girls left home for [illegible] jobs. Walter continued to farm with his dad. Mr. Birce took sick a few years later and passed away in May 1951. A few years later Mrs. Birce and Walter left the farm, first going to a ferry job and later to Calgary. Mrs. Birce passed away in 1966, following a lengthy illness.

The following is a history of the six Birce children. Ethel died in 1940; Edna married Bill Brodie and lives in Ponoka. They have two daughters, Janice (Mrs. Stewart) who lives in Calgary and has two children, Keith and Marcia and Shannon (Mrs. Tom Foster) who lives at Rocky Mountain House and has one daughter, Robbie. Mildred married Bud Taylor. She now lives at Viking. Mr. Taylor died in 1972. The Taylors have one son, Phillip, who resides in Edmonton with his wife, Rose. Verna married Charlie Bradshaw and they live at Condor. They have four children, Shirley (Mrs. Dennis Frisky) lives at Rocky Mountain House. Sharon (Mrs. Fred Blair) lives at Condor. Ken married Fern Biswanger. They have one daughter, Diane. Ken and family reside at Condor. Leslie lives at Condor and farms with his dad. Jean is married to Tom Campbell and lives in Calgary. Walter married Irene Pelley and lives in Calgary with their four children, Allan, John, Robert and Debbie.

Looking back over the years, it becomes evident that the early days were definately difficult, but happy days. People were certainly friendly then and seemed to have more time to be neighborly.

[redacted]

In 1906 Mr. and Mrs. Allen Blair Sr. accompanied by some of their children and Homer Stockwell and family travelled from Guelph, Ontario to settle in the Condor district. Homer's wife was the former Jenny Blair.

George Blair married Delphine Fitch from Alhambra district). In 1941 George and Dale joined the Calgary Tanks Regiment and served overseas. George was captured and held prisoner for four years. On his return George and wife moved to Ladysmith, B.C. where they later had two children, Gordon and Brenda. George [redacted] in 1973 passed away at an early age from appendicitis.

Dave Blair married Esther Mast (a former school teacher) and they resided in the Condor area for several years. Dave was a veteran of the 1st World War and known all over the district as a horse buyer.

William Blair married Mary Lisk (an early Condor resident) and they had two children, Wallace and Winnifred. They later moved to Vancouver where William was a butcher.

Lillian Blair married Charles Smith and they resided in the Alhambra district. They had one daughter, Lillian.

Allen Blair Sr. was very well known for his skill with an axe, and he taught several local men in the proper use of the axe.

Allen Blair, Jr. was known for his physical fitness and a hike to Red Deer in one day was not unusual for him. On the return trip he would be laden with supplies and if he needed a rest, Evarts was the usual resting stop.

BONK, MARTIN — Freda Elson

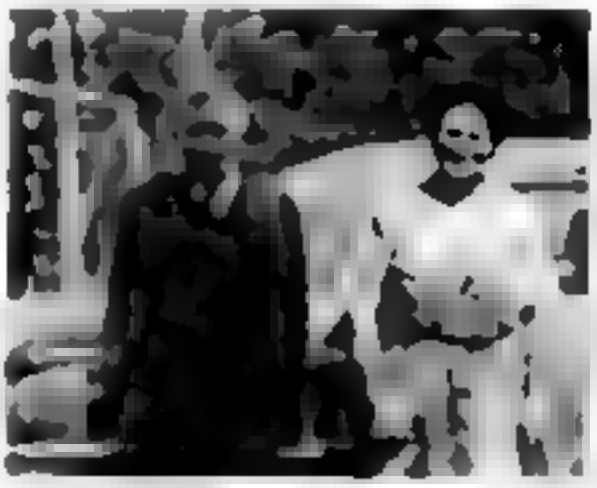
Martin and Susan Bonk immigrated to Calgary from Luxemburg in 1907 with their daughter, Elizabeth, who was four years old. Martin was a blacksmith by trade so worked in Calgary, Exshaw, and Golden, B.C. until 1909.

Mrs. Bonk had a hard time with the language so in 1913 they got a homestead in the Evergreen area. They lived there a few years, then sold their place and moved to a farm at Hespero where their daughter went to the Shady Lane



[redacted]

School. In 1914 they moved to Leslieville where Martin had a blacksmith shop. The farmers from all around brought their horses to be shod Elizabeth went to Calgary and stayed with her aunt and uncle, Mr and Mrs Edward Dams, and continued her schooling

Then, on July 1, 1919, she married Oscar Oastrom of Hespero, and they lived on his homestead. The Bonks sold their blacksmith shop in Leslieville, and bought one in Hespero so moved there and resumed blacksmithing for a year In 1928, they had an auction sale and sold their property and moved to Calgary where they bought a rooming house They resided there until Mr Bonk passed away on Nov 6, 1955, at the age of 88 years Mrs. Bonk sold the big house and lived in a small home until her passing in Sept 15, 1964, age 84 years. BRADSHAW, ALFRED AND REBECCA

Mr and Mrs. Alfred Bradshaw emigrated from Liverpool, England, to Canada in March of 1911 After landing in Halifax, they travelled by train to Edmonton. In April of 1911, they went to Bassano, Alberta. Mr and Mrs Bradshaw brought with them their three children Alfred aged four, Percy aged two and Ethel aged 11 months. Florence was born in March 1912. In 1913, the family moved to a homestead near Pandora While at the homestead, two sons were born, Charles in 1916 and Bill in 1918. The Bradshaws lived in this area until the dust bowl of the 1930's. In 1937, they decided to sell their farm and moved to the Condor area. Mr and Mrs. Bradshaw and their sons Charlie and Bill purchased a farm south of Condor. This land, the

Since the half section of land was almost entirely bush, the first winter was spent clearing the land by hand. Some brush cutting was also done by Ed Skoodopole The cut trees were often sold to residents of Condor to use as firewood The first crops on the new land were oats. As well, the Bradshaws raised pigs The whole family participated in this venture, with Mrs. Bradshaw taking over as nurse maid whenever a sow could not care for all of her piglets. She would feed the little pigs with a baby bottle

Mr Bradshaw and sons used a Hart Parr tractor to do their farming. They brought this tractor with them from the prairie. In the winter many days were spent doing custom grinding of grain for the neighbors. While the men were busy on the land Mrs Bradshaw was involved in work around her home and in community work For many years, she belonged to the Condor Mission Circle. She was never too busy to help anyone in distress. In her home, the kettle was always on in readiness for a cup of tea and friendly chat Mrs Bradshaw always raised a wonderful garden. As well, she was very interested in her flower garden and her houseplants

When the harvest was completed each fall the young men of the district would go hunting in the west country. This was not just a holiday but an opportunity to provide meat for the winter The men would drive from Condor to Moose Basin with horses and wagons. They would live in tents. On one hunting trip, Charlie recalls how a black bear frightened one of the horses to death. Myron Lawrence had to walk to Condor for another horse In 1941 Charlie, Bill, Percy, Alf and some friends were hunting antelope near Brooks. While hunting Bill was accidently shot to death. After Bill's death, Percy moved from the prairie to farm in the Condor District

BRADSHAW, PERCY AND EVELYN — by Barbara Crawford

Dad was born in England in 1906 and came to Canada with his parents in 1911. His younger life was spent in the Hulton and Pandora area in southeastern Alberta which at that time was very well settled with homesteaders on nearly every quarter.

As a young man, dad worked for farmers and ranchers in the area. He also participated in boxing, trapping, breaking horses and hunting.

In 1932 he married Evelyn Houghton. She was born in 1914 in Bassano, Alberta and spent 10 years of her early life moving to different parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan as her father was a railroad man. They returned to the Hulton area in 1925 where she met my father.

They farmed through the drought years of the 30's and dad supplemented their income by working out and trapping. In 1934 their son Brad was born followed by a daughter May in 1938.

In 1942 after the tragic death of dad's brother Billy, they moved to Condor where my grandparents were farming. They purchased the S½ 30-38-4-W5 from my grandparents. For 10 years they lived in a log house. Times were hard at first but they made ends meet by milking cows. Extra income was made by selling loads of cord wood. Work was hard but there were good times as well. Ball games, picnics, visiting with neighbors, card parties and berry picking. Undoubtedly dad will be remembered for his square dance calling, auctioning pies and boxes at the socials, and his recitations.

A third child Barbara, was born in 1951 followed by a sister Charlotte in 1954.

During the early 50's dad worked on oil rigs throughout Alberta. In the later 50's he started driving school bus and continued to do so until his death in 1975.

My mother still continues to make her home on the original farm quarter. She keeps very busy with her gardening and outside work and enjoys travelling.

Bud worked as an oilfield welder for 10 years before taking up farming on the SE 19-38-4-W5. He married Edna Leahy and they have five children — Theresa, Kathy, John, Gordon and [illegible].

[illegible] is a registered nurse. She completed her training at the Holy Cross Hospital in Calgary. She married Bert Mason and they are presently living in Wetaskiwin. They have four children — Kelly, Donna, Dwayne and Gary.

Barbara worked as a secretary and dental assistant. She married Rod Crawford and they presently live at Condor. They have one son — Blake.

Charlotte attended Olds Agricultural College, enrolled in a business course. She is presently residing and working in Red Deer.

CHILD OF THE THIRTIES

Child of the Thirties
Hard work and play
Cut that wood
For a winter day
Haul that water
From a neighbors well
A stoneboat and horse
And we kids as well
Sit on the Plough
By your father's side
Your faithful horses
Give you a ride
Run in the furrow
Bare foot and free
Cool black earth
And a mouse or three
Walk in the grain
So very tall
Swim in the river
No clothes at all
Down to the creek
In the spring time flood
Set sail your cargo
With your feet in the mud
Child of the thirties
Happy and free
I can hardly believe
It really was me

Shirley Warden Reaman

My husband [illegible] the coal oil lamp
Smiling softly
As if remembering other days
As the flame surged into life
I was totally unprepared
For the sudden wave of nostalgia
That swept away my adulthood
Leaving me vulnerable to a memory
A prairie shack
[illegible]
An old cook stove
An air tight heater
A coal-oil lamp
And a gentle mother to light our childhood

CIRCLE OF LOVE

Love is a fine thing
Speaketh it loud or soft
Much of joy does it bring love
Bright as a diamond ring
Clear as a lovely song

Waiting for one to sing
Only life can it bring
As a Branch from a dove
Circling offering love
To the parents of my parents
And their parents too
To my Father and my Mother
The childhood that I knew
To my children and their children
The future and the past
Love has drawn this circle
That will last and last and last

W. E. COLE FAMILY — by Mr. Elmer Cole

My parents, William Cole and Mary Cole (nee Bell) were born in Ontario. They were married in 1901 and later moved to Manitoba. They lived at Rapid City where my sister, Hazel, was born in 1906, then they moved to Rivers, where I, Elmer, was born in 1908.

In 1911 my parents came West to the Loma district north of Vulcan. My brother Bert, was born here in 1912. My father worked on the farm for John Kerr and also for Alec Mitchell. In 1914 we moved to the Clarence Davis farm, eight miles west and one mile south of Champion where dad worked until 1917, when he rented a farm across the road and farmed there until 1928, when he sold out and moved into Champion. My brother Arnold was born on the farm in 1919. All the family received their schooling at Harper, Hiawatha, Fireguard and Champion High School.

My parents were having a struggle to get along so I left school and went to work for farmers in the area. It did not cost much to live in those days, but money was scarce, as wages were poor and it was almost impossible to find work for the winter. After harvest was completed around Champion in 1932, dad and I went north to Olds and got a job threshing for ten days. From here we went on to Eckville to visit my sister Hazel who was married to Robert Jarvis, and operating an elevator at Eckville. While here I found a job on a farm for the winter, and I never went back to Champion for 23 years. My folks moved to Eckville in December 1932.

Houses were not plentiful, but our neighbor John Cordon, let us live in a vacant house on his farm at Hespero. I worked the following summer for Dewey Nielson, at Benalto. The wages were twenty-five dollars per month.

In January 1934 I purchased a quarter section of land from the CPR. This was on a sort of homestead deal, but not quite so good. I was to improve the bush quarter but after four years I also had to pay for it on a long-term agreement. Here we lived for the next 37 years. My wife, Ina (nee Currie), and I were married in those depression years and raised a family of five healthy children. They are: Yvonne, now Mrs. Ken Deal, of Medicine Hat. They have four children - Fred, Doug, Janet and Rhonda. Bernice, now Mrs. Glen Stamp, has three children, Richard, Violet and Coleen. Violet, our third oldest child, was killed accidentally in 1945, at the age of nine years. Moira, now Mrs. Eric Mannerfeldt of Sylvan Lake, has five children, David, Joyce, Ina, Jimmie and Wade. Our only son Ian, married to Phyllis Beach, has two boys, Timothy and Benjamin. He lives on the original quarter that I purchased from the CPR.

In 1952 I commenced buying grain for the Searle Grain Co. at Muntaw, Alberta and later was transferred to Alhambra, where I operated the elevator for 16 years until it was closed on September 1, 1970. Three years later I was eligible to receive my pension.

When I look back upon these depression years, it makes me wonder how we ever made it. We never had much money, but never once thought of going on welfare. We made the best of what we had, and never went hungry. We enjoyed many good times at dances, ball games and celebrations of various kinds. We also attended church regularly at Hespero. I guess work, perseverance, and keeping out of debt

My father passed away in November, 1942, and my mother in 1955. Both my parents are buried in Hespero cemetery. Brother Bert also passed away at Vegreville in 1967.

CONDOR LIGHT HORSE ASSOCIATION — by Violet Safron

The Club was organized in 1952 and originally was called the Rocky Mountain Light Horse Association. The president and organizer was Allen R. Paisen of Condor, who, with his family lived one mile west of the Condor corner and owned a saddle shop along No. 11 Highway. He rebuilt saddles and other leather articles and had many of his hand-tooled leather articles for sale along with other horsemen's supplies. Violet (Cordon) Safron was elected the Secretary Treasurer.

Later the Club was renamed the Condor Light Horse Association. Abe Littau became the president, Max Bott the vice-president, and Violet Safron the secretary-treasurer.

Abe Littau and Violet Safron trained the group to do a musical ride, for which the Benalto Agricultural Society paid $50 per year to the club to perform the ceremony in front of the grand stand, as part of the entertainment at the Benalto Stampede. The club held gymkhanas and musical ride practice on property which Carl Kendze fenced off and donated to them. Annie Cordon often supplied a hot lunch to the hard riding group.

Plans for a log cabin were drawn up by the John Kasparsons family. Members of the club cut and peeled the logs to build a club house, but over the years interest in the club died, so the logs were later sold. The land was returned to Carl Kendze, with many thanks for its use. The money remaining in the club treasury was donated to the Crippled Children's Fund.

CONDOR WOMEN'S INSTITUTE — by Magda [illegible]

On April 21, 1921, 27 women met at the home of Mrs. George Gledhill to organize the Hespero Condor Branch of the Women's Institute. Mrs. Gledhill chaired the meeting and Mrs. Crummy recorded the notes for the election of officers. Mrs. E. MacDonnell became the first president, Mrs. E. Crummy Jr. the first vice-president and Mrs. Gledhill was elected as the first secretary-treasurer. Directors were Mrs. A. K. Blair, Mrs. W. J. Clement and Mrs. Joe Nelson.

Mrs. Rogers, Alberta Women's Institute secretary, visited this new branch at their third meeting. Mrs. Joe Nelson was the first member to attend an Alberta W. I. Convention.

The 27 charter members lived in an area extending from north of Hespero to the Lesliieville Highway. In the horse-and-buggy days it was too far to travel to meetings, and at the annual meeting on December 21, 1921 they decided to form two institute branches.

Mrs. R. McFaul was the first president of the Condor Women's Institute. At one meeting in 1921 a member told about pioneer times in our area for entertainment.

Their motto "For Home and Country" was kept in mind throughout their many endeavours. In war time the ladies prepared dirty bags, contributed milk for Britain, did knitting for the Red Cross, had some clothing drives, entertained in honor of war brides and welcomed new citizens.

In the community they helped pay for the hall piano, financed the building of the first kitchen, bought cups, chairs, stage curtains and gas lamps for the hall. More recently they contributed towards getting new cupboards in the new kitchen. They've also made donations to the local hospital.

To raise money they had dances, box socials, shadow socials, put on plays, catered at farm sales, held raffles and had bazaars and suppers. They are very grateful to the community for their support in all their efforts. In recent years this support is reflected in the success of the [illegible] collections in our area under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Bradshaw.

On one occasion the W. I. supplied the lumber for the picnic booth on the playgrounds. Bob Hewitt received two cans of tobacco and a hammer handle for doing the carpenter work. Something for the local schools has always been included in W. I. work. Drinking urns, first aid kits, school ground equipment, magazines [illegible] and sugar for lunches, motor and pump for the skating rink are some of the things provided. More recently, achievement trophies to the Con[illegible] School, contest prizes and bingo prizes have been provided.

The ladies have not forgotten themselves. The regular monthly meetings, handicraft teas, [illegible]ferences and conventions are times of learning and fellowship.

Some amusing incidents I found in the minutes are. The ladies were going to entertain their husbands by taking them out to supper on a trial basis. Some lunches at meetings were "satisfying", others were "adequate", many were "lovely".

When Bert Avery retired as postmaster at [illegible] building and lot. They sold it, some years later to Ken and Judy Leer.

The 1977 executive are: president, Mrs. Tom Wyzykoski, vice president, Mrs. Roy Tubbs, secretary, Mrs. Charles Bradshaw, treasurer, Mrs. Dan Eidt. Other members are: Anna MacDonald, Hughena Ellis, Pearl van der Meer, Anna Nelson, Mrs. John Meek, Mrs. Angus, Mrs. Wendell Frazier, and Magda Anderson.

The Condor Womens' Institute has carried on through the years without a break, for 56 years. That must be something of a record.

CROUCH, WALTER

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crouch and family came to the Condor district from Essex, England in 1930. They lived on "Jolly Farm" in the Evergreen area. They later moved to the town of Condor where Mr. Crouch was assistant post master and the agent for the Provincial Treasury Branch.

Walter Crouch was born in Wadworth England, in 1881. Before coming to Canada, he worked as a chartered accountant in London.

Clara Crouch was born in 1885, near London, England. She served in World War I in the women's army corps.

The Crouch family were very musical and entertained many people with their talent both vocally and instrumentally.

Mr. Crouch had his own orchestra and played at many dances in the Condor and Eckville districts. While on the farm, the Crouch girls Daisy, Grace and Ivy dressed in men's bib work overalls could be seen driving a team of horses to town.

After moving to Condor, the Crouches continued to be active in community affairs. Mrs. Crouch served the Condor United Mission Church as organist for 25 years. She also taught Sunday School, was secretary-treasurer of the church board and led a Young Peoples group for many years. Mrs. Crouch was active in the Red Cross. She boarded many school teachers and at one time operated a restaurant in Condor.

The district was saddened by the passing of Mr. Crouch in 1960 and Mrs. Crouch after a lengthy illness in 1964.

The family of Walter Crouch:

Dorothy returned to England with her husband, Stanley Grant. They have three children Iris, Ivy and Malcolm and seven grandchildren.

THE HISTORY OF THE EDGAR FAMILY

The first we know of the Edgar family two soldiers, Edgar and McKee, who fought with William, Prince of Orange, in Ireland in 1690, were given grants of land in Northern Ireland Here they lived for many years and their families intermarried many different time.

Samuel Edgar, who married Miss Margaret McKee, immigrated to America in 1860 with his children, Margaret, who married Stephen Scott and Mary who married Alphonso Kilbourn, and Robert McKee, who married Miss Isabella Rebecca Bullied

Samuel Edgar with his family arrived in Peterboro, Ontario after spending two months on the voyage in a sailboat W R. Edgar still has their grub box that they packed their food in on the ship. Samuel Edgar and his family went north of Peterboro to a little village called Apsley and took up homesteads there. It was a wild country and covered with heavy bush and of course Robert McKee, being young, soon became efficient with an axe, as lumbering was the major industry at that time. He was also a great hunter and found plenty of game in this new country He was hired by the government to supply the road-builders with deer meat. They were building a new road that was called the Monk Road and ran north of Peterboro

In 1870 during the first Riel Rebellion Edgar volunteered to go with Colonel Wolseley, who came with 500 British Troops to quell the uprising. He was one of the Voyageurs who manned the boats up the Great Lakes to Fort Garry where Winnipeg stands today R. M. Edgar knew the late George Bealty very well, as he was also in the first Riel Rebellion. Upon returning home he continued on his homestead until his family of four boys and three girls were grown up. He then decided there were more opportunities for his family in the new country on the Prairies. He moved with his family to Manitoba in 1896 and they farmed there until 1903, but he still wished to take his family further west

One day a young man, Joe Forster, called at our home and told us he was making his way out to his mother father, and family west of Red Deer My father R. M. Edgar, asked him if he would write and let us know what it was like around Snake Lake, which is now Sylvan Lake He later wrote to my father and described the country and said that there were still lots of homesteads to be had

Father and mother decided they would move again, so in March, 1903 R. M. Edgar and his family moved to Red Deer He rented a house near the Old Immigration Hall and not far from the Great West Hotel while he and R. H. Edgar his son, would go out through the west country looking for homesteads They went west of the Medicine River and chose homesteads near where Hespero is today As the land was not thrown open for homesteading they had to squat on this land. This meant putting up shacks to show that it was occupied. The land they chose was the E-36-38-4-W5. They had to make the first road as they were the farthest west settlers at that time. There was plenty of hard work getting our logs for a house, barn and other buildings, plus clearing and breaking the new land for crops and gardens. When the rest of the family arrived at the homesteads around the first of May, a prairie or brush fire had started northwest of the homesteads and was raging down towards our buildings, hay and feed. My father R. M. Edgar, and myself, W R. Edgar were fighting fire and were nearly exhausted when the rest of the family arrived. We all fought fire until well into the night, to save our buildings and some pasture land for our cows and horses

That summer, and for the next few years, there was a great influx of settlers, coming to the Condor, Leslieville and Alhambra districts. Pitcox was our first post office. It was opened up in 1905 by Macdonnell brothers and Frank Pearce It was located near where Hespero is today and was, I believe, the first post office west of the Medicine River Our nearest post office before Pitcox was opened, was Evarts Post Office which was about 12 miles away

R. M. Edgar, R. H. and W R., along with their teams, worked in a lumber camp during the winter of 1903-1904. It was south of where Condor is today and was known as the Red Deer Lumber Company W E Payne, R. C Brumpton, and others formed the Company Jim McCackney was the walking boss. Charles Bremmer was he foreman, and Rube Gee and Dad Weatherby freighted in our provisions. The wages there were a dollar per day and board, and a dollar per day for team and feed. A good many of the settlers took advantage of this work. The company took out over 2,000,000 feet of lumber The logs had to be driven down the Horseguard Into the Medicine River then into the Red Deer River and to their saw mill at Red Deer It took a good part of the summer of 1904 to move the logs to the mill at Red Deer This company operated for only one year, as it was too expensive to bring the logs so far

R H. Edgar and W R. worked on a survey the summer of 1904 out where Rocky Mountain House is today There were no settlers out that far at that time It was a wilderness. We found that it was necessary to take any work that was offered us to keep the pot boiling and clothes to wear R. H. worked on a road survey in 1905 and W R worked on the same survey in 1906. Many boys from around Red Deer worked on these sur years and in 1910 R M. Edgar was appointed forest ranger in the Clearwater Forest Reserve I believe he was the first man to hold this position. By this time the Alberta Central Railway had received a franchise to build a railroad from

Nordegg The farmers and settlers were given the opportunity to work with their teams and equipment on this railroad. This was one of the first booms that Red Deer and the west country had seen

The declaration of war with Germany and her

ture. A good many of the boys, who had been raised and lived then on the homesteads volunteered to go and fight for their country and the Motherland. In 1916 W R. Edgar enlisted in the 187th Battalion and was transferred to the 50th Battalion in France. He was seriously wounded on August 19, 1918, near Amiens S. M Edgar enlisted in the 7th Battalion and was also seriously wounded, having his left hand taken off

R M. Edgar was married in 1915 to Miss Veda Beeson. They had three boys, W H . L. M. and R. M. and one daughter, Velda, who is now Mrs Ronald Scott and lives in Red Deer R. H. and his boys had built a good farm in the Hespero district, but R. H. and his wife decided they would rather live near Red Deer In 1927 they bought the Woodsworth farm and have extended their holdings to about 3,000 acres. L. M. is on the Sam Blakley farm, R. FLETCHER, CALVIN

Cal Fletcher, born in Kansas, U.S.A. on May 25, 1893, came to Alberta in 1914 from Seattle Washington. He worked throught the threshing at Castor Alberta. Following the threshing season he came to Eckville by C.P.R. where he was met by J. Kemila, the village mail-hauler. He spent some time visiting the Lewis Weeks family then, when he was about to go back to the States, he was offered a job in the Co-op Store by Mr Rogers, the manager of the store. He accepted this offer and worked in the store until spring. By this time he had decided to join the service, but as he had not seen his mother for five years, he thought he owed it to her to go back home to enlist since Canada and the United States were fighting on the same side.

After serving in the Navy and Naval Aviation he came back to Canada in the fall of 1919 with the intention of going into partnership with Mr Rogers. They were unable to make a satisfactory deal, so he was "jack of all trades" around town helping in all the stores and businesses except the blacksmith shop, which was then owned by Mr McHattie.

Finally Cal went to work for Mike Sestrap where he was employed for five years. He was married during that time to Mae McNeil. Mae was one of eight children, six boys and two girls. The family resided in the Bluebell district. Her father Hugh McNeil was secretary-treasurer of the school for a number of years. Four of the McNeil boys are now deceased—Herbert and Leonard in 1967, Gilbert in 1972 and Everett in 1975.

The Fletchers were active in the affairs of the village. Cal took time off from Sestraps to "work for the Lord", as it was called. He helped move the village. Everyone in town had a hand in the moving. Eckville was a lively place those days, and Mr Fletcher was in on most of the sports. A dance or boxing match could be gotten up on very short notice. Music for the dances was played by Mrs. Clausen and Carl Koots and wood and lights for the hall were donated.

In 1924 the Fletchers left Eckville and Cal went to work for Jerry McDonell, in the store at Hespero, where he worked for 21 years. He then moved to British Columbia, where he bought a store and retired after he and Mae had operated it for 10 years. They are now living in Surrey, B.C.

The Fletchers had three children. Marjorie married John Sutela and is now living with her youngest daughter, Susanna, on the farm south of Hespero. Her eldest son, Calvin, lives at Ivan Lake and has two children—Tracy and Cory. Shirley lives in Lacombe and has two sons, Kelly and Michael Kendell. Byron is married and living in Red Deer.

Kenneth lives in Aldergrove, B.C. and is a dairy inspector for Safeway milk shippers. He and Anne have a son, Robert.

Hazel lives in Burnaby B.C. and is married to Maurice Illerbrun. They have three children—Barbara, Marilyn and Cheryl. Maurice works in the logging industry.

FOOTHILLS 4-H PONY CLUB — by Violet Safron

The Foothills 4-H Pony Club was organized in 1964, being one of the first 4-H Pony Clubs in Alberta. Gordon Ross was District Agriculturist in Rocky Mountain House, and he helped to get the Club off the ground as no one had any idea of what it would entail. The first practice and meeting was held at Stan Marcineks, at Condor. The following officers were elected: Violet Safron, Leader, Douglas Ball of Benalto, Assistant Leader, and the Senior Committee Members were Mrs. George Boles, Rocky Mountain House; Stan Marcinek, Condor; Norman and Marie Guenther, Alhambra, Roy Tubbs and Bill McKellar, Condor; and Harry Safron, Don Ross, Ewart McDonald and Mary Cunningham (nee Storms), Eckvile.

Violet Safron and Doug Ball attended a 4-H Leader's Conference in Edmonton in which all change ideas and to draw up a guide for 4-H Pony Clubs.

For the first few years the club members would take a trail ride into the mountains. Don Ross, Ewart McDonald and Roy Tubbs were trail guides, Marie Guenther and Bill McKellar were chief cooks, Harry Safron, Norman Guenther and Lloyd David were camp attendants, Zina Huss was dishwasher and Polly Ross was the "Tea Bag Lady" the name she received because she was the only one who had brought tea bags — only four. She managed to save the bags by putting them on the clothes line to dry for re-use. Mrs. McKellar got to stay home and milk the cows. Jeanette Pruden Dyrland, James and Rodger Kinders, Johnny Brutinsmas and Wayne McTighe were evaluators.

Willis and Doris McGonigal, Searle grain elevator agent at Hespero and later at Eckville helped organize many of the youth activities in the area.

Ball and a lot of support from the parents, trained 16 riders to do the musical ride which was performed at the Benalto Fair and at the Eckville Rodeo.

In 1969 the first 4-H Inter-Club Competitions were held in the Eckvile Arena, with the Gluby Club and Foothills Club competing. Businessmen from Eckville donated travelling trophies and also a small trophy for the winner to keep. Later

!lub competitions

In 1969 the Lloyd David, Robert Robin, Mary (Storms) Cunningham and Harry Safron families all competed in the 4-H Rally at Lazy A Stables at Penhold. Each competitor from the club displayed a collection of ribbons at the end of a very successful day

In 1970 the club members attended the 4-H rally at Olds, again making a good representation in the winners' circle. On the way to the show, Lloyd David managed to tip the unpinned box off the three-ton truck, dumping four show horses into the ditch. They phoned ahead to Olds to delay the horse show, re-organized the truck hauled one horse to the vets and continued on to Olds to compete in the show, winning several ribbons. Nell Bott's horse needed a few stitches so he stayed behind, while Karen and Geraid David and Yvonne Robin's horses continued on, a bit shook-up, but competed successfully

Also in 1970, the Club members, assisted by several parents, painted the tool sheds, posts, signs and whatever needed painting, plus a few members' faces and hands, which didn't need painting, at the Hespero, Eckville and Evergreen Cemeteries. The paint was donated by the United Grain Growers.

In 1971 a Five-Year Leadership Certificate was received by Violet Safron

The first 4-H Jamboree in the West Central Region was held at Wetaskiwin, July 25 and 26 1975. This fun-oriented wind-up activity for clubs and indivtduals involved in 4-H was hosted by the Wetaskiwin Chamber of Commerce, and was attended by the Cunningham, Glen Kleeberger Jack Saari, Harry Safron and Jim Smith families. A similar affair was attended by the Club in 1976 in Camrose and 1977 will see the Jamboree in Rimbey

In 1976, the Club members and their families toured the well-known Spruce Meadows, in Calgary, and enjoyed a two-day Trail Ride along the Cline River

Several members attended the Public Speaking Workshops at Ponoka and Condor

In 1977 Five-Year Leadership Certificates were received by Mary Cunningham, Selma Saari, Elsie Smith and Jim Smith. Ten-Year Leadership Certificates were received by Violet Safron and Harry Safron.

On May 7 1977 the Club members and several parents eagerly participated in the Highway Clean-Up, sponsored by the Alberta government and cleaned 10 miles of Highway 11 from the Benalto Corner on west

To wind up the 1977 year the Achievement Day took place on July 13 at the Eckville Arena, with Inter-Club following on July 15. The Awards Night concluded another successful year

MR. AND MRS. ED FRENCH — Information given by their daughter, Hazel Barrett

Mr. and Mrs. Ed French and three daughters, along with Mr. and Mrs. Kirk and son arrived in Red Deer from Colorado, U.S.A. in 1902. This is the story as told by the second oldest daughter Hazel

Father homesteaded at what is now Condor in 1904, and moved the family to the homestead Our first post office was in father's home, until he built a store. Mr. Emberley a neighbor, and father gave land for a railroad siding. This was a very important railway for the settlers in this new country — the Alberta Central Railway. I remember the men working on the grade, and also when the first train came through

It seems that it was 1906 when Prairie Rose School was built. It was a one-room school where nine grades were taught. Our first teacher, Mr. Dodson, was a kind man and was well liked. Miss Forsythe came next. Some others were Miss Phillips, Miss Kellaway Miss Patterson Mrs. A. Holt), Miss Meston (Mrs. Frank Patterson), Gertrude Reilly Mrs. Robert Shaw), Ray McDougal and Earl Sully. These are some of the teachers that I remember — doubtless there were others

Some of the old-timers that come to mind are Emberly's Stockwell's, Stroud's, Blair's, McDonnell's, Raudebaugh's, Patterson's, Eastman's, Hewitt's, Rutherford's, Reilly's, Barton's, Leask's, Simon's, Hart's, Wright's and Harry Bice

Father was a kind person and was always ready to help his neighbors. Mother was always busy and efficient. We were by now a large family and all very happy and busy. Father sold the store and farm in 1920, and we moved to Washington State, U.S.A.

Father and mother are both gone now, but it is wonderful that eight of us are still living and can get together quite often. Mother predeceased father by a few years, and Bertha, Effie and Ernest have also passed on

THE ELWOOD FRENCH FAMILY
By Alys A. French

Elwood was born in Grandview Manitoba where he lived until moving to Drumheller in 1929. In the fall of 1931 he came to the Shady Lane district with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George French, and three sisters, Alice, Merle and Joy. His father had purchased a half section of raw land from the C.P.R. This was about a mile north and across the road from the school

The first winter they lived in a house across the road from their property which belonged to Oscar Oastrom. Elwood and his father cut logs in the bush near Bingley and had them made into lumber at Ralph Evans' sawmill. The following spring they used this lumber to build a house

In 1935 Elwood and I were married. I was the former Alys Maurer daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Maurer of Clive. I had taught the Shady Lane school for the three previous years during which time I boarded with Mrs. Alice Campbell. We moved north of the Horseguard River. There be and his father farmed together until his parents moved to Didsbury in 1942 and he took over the farm

Elwood spent long hours working on the land and doing chores but found time to play softball and do some fishing. These being part of the depression years, most recreation and entertainment was in the district or close to it. While we were here three daughter, Doreen, Carole, and Audrey were born. I was also during this time that I spent three more years teaching, one and a half years at Wolfe school and the same amount at Shady Lane

Having decided to discontinue farming, we left this district in October 1948, and moved to Didsbury. Elwood started doing carpenter work and after erecting one house there, went to work in the Drumheller district. The girls and I remained in Didsbury until the summer of 1949 when we joined Elwood. In the summer of 1951 we bought our present home in Drumheller

Elwood has recently retired after having worked for Holmen Construction Company for over 25 years. Both of us enjoy gardening, working with flowers and in the yard in general. I spent nine years doing substitute teaching here in the Drumheller Valley and during the last five or six years have devoted a great deal of time to various crafts — bead work, chenille and feather crafts, ceramics, needlework and other things

As Verlayne was born in Drumheller we now have four daughters. Doreen is Mrs. Donald Ross, has three children — Kim, Lori and Susan and the five live in Lethbridge. Carole is married to Robert Anderson and they are living in Michigan, U.S.A. with their son Perry and adopted Korean daughter, Tanya. Audrey lives in Calgary and Verlayne, her husband, Arvin Hoperaft, and son Shane have recently left Whitecourt to take up residence in Calgary

We have many fond memories of our years spent in the Shady Lane district. On occasion we are privileged to be in that vicinity. We enjoy visiting with friends and former neighbors, hearing about and seeing the progress of the people and just relaxing in that part of Alberta which provides such beauty of nature

THE GEORGE FRID FAMILY

At the turn of the century, western Canada and particularly Alberta was a beehive of activity. People from Europe, Asia, the British Isles and the United States swarmed here to take up homesteads. In Hamilton, Ontario, Alfred Frid too, had heard of the $10 homesteads that one could file for so full of hope and enthusiasm, he and his two teen-aged sons, George and Ernest took the train to Central Alberta

On March 15, 1905 they arrived in Red Deer. The following day they bought three teams of horses and three sleighs and set off for the Diamond Valley area. It was here they rented a small shack on SE 17 38-3-W5, the quarter that the Diamond Valley cemetery is now located on. Three days later Alfred, George and Ernest Frid were hauling lumber from the Petteffer Lumber Mills, west of Evergreen, in to Red Deer. It is interesting to note that in 1906 they hauled the last load of lumber by sleigh on the 15th of May

During the summer months George took many different jobs. He worked for MacIntyre Ranches at High River, helped put in the basement for the new Hudson's Bay store in Calgary, worked on the Alberta Central Railroad west of Alhambra, and at a sawmill in Fernie, B.C. Gradually he put aside a little bit of money and in 1908 he filed on a homestead two miles north of Condor

In 1908 Alfred Frid filed on NW 19-38-3-W5, which is presently owned by Alfred's grandson and George's son, John Frid. In 1912 Alfred Frid who wasn't cut out to be a farmer decided to take his family back to Hamilton. George and Stanley decided that they would stay on the farm and give it another try. George and his father traded homesteads, and George moved to NE 19-38-3-W5, which was adjoining his brother Stanley's quarter. Alfred later sold the land he traded with George to Sam Barton. After he had sold the land, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Frid, Ernest, Norman and Beatrice returned to Hamilton

On October 29, 1912 George married his childhood sweetheart Elizabeth Clutton, from Hamilton, and they started farming in earnest. The 12 acres of land which was mainly plowed by a walking plow was gradually increased. With Stan and George sharing their machinery costs and expenses, it wasn't too long before they were able to buy a P & O Sulky plow and a hay mower. They always used Bill Whittle's hayrake — there was a lot of machinery swapping in those days

Credit must be given to the young bride who soon learned to bake bread, milk cows, raise chickens and turkeys, and can wild fruit. Blueberries and saskatoons were abundant. She also looked after her beautiful flower garden, a hobby she pursued throughout the years. The years were lean, and at times George shot partridge and rabbits, which were plentiful, and these made a tasty addition to the meals. George often said if it hadn't been for the wild fruit, partridge and hope, they would have given up farming. Mrs. Frid was exceptionally capable. She always had her housework done so when George needed her for piling brush or burning it, shocking, stacking bundles or hay, or later on to run the binder, or just doing the chores, she was always there

Their son John was born in August, 1913 and Lila was born in 1915

Nineteen sixteen was a great year for the Frids, for now they were able to communicate with their friends and relatives via the telephone. The exchange was at Ericksons. There were many happy occasions, church services held in private homes, community picnics, berry picking, ball games, swimming, horseshoe

George Frid plowing the virgin soil

pitching or friendly visits with neighbors and relatives. They of course had no TV's in that era but they bought their first radio in 1925

In 1922 George bought his first car, a second hand Model T Ford, for the sum of $125. This was a source of great pleasure for the family for they would now be able to get to Red Deer in less than two and a half hours — a distance of 30 miles

In October 1924 George joined the Knights of Pythias Lodge in Eckville and held a continuous membership until he passed away in 1975

In 1929 George bought a brand new tractor a John Deere — for $1,040. He now had three quarters of land, and John was more than willing to run the new tractor

George Frid was president of the Mutual Telephone Association of Eckville for several trophies in the "Save the Soil Campaign" in 1949 Through the years he had seen many changes, especially in home improvements and farming methods from the coal-oil lamp and the scrub board to electric lights and automatic washers and driers, and from the horse-operated threshing machines to our present day com

Mrs. Frid passed away in February 1965: their daughter Ella married James Tullock and they lived in the Diamond Valley district. They had three daughters — Evangeline, Jean Hammond) and Susan (Krest). Ella passed away in 1943. George passed away in 1975. They are buried in the Hespero cemetery

We salute Mr and Mrs. Frid and the people of the "Pioneer Era", we respect the many hardships they endured and we thank them for the pathways they paved for future generations Truly these pioneers left us a legacy and a heritage of which we can well be proud

JOHN ALFRED FRID FAMILY — by John Frid

I was born on my parents' farm, NW 19-36-3-W5, on August 28, 1913; the first child of George and Elizabeth Frid. Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Whittle were with mother when I arrived: my father had gone to Innisfail (to the nearest doctor) to get the doctor, but by the time they arrived home I was already in the picture and trying out my lungs. My sister Ella was born April 5, 1915, with the same two ladies in attendance

We children had the usual good times and problems of the small children. I started school in 1920 after the Easter holidays. The three and seemed such a long way from home. My first teacher was Miss Imus, she later married Alf Rasmussen, a neighbor of ours. My second teacher, Miss Uchecta, was the younger sister of the first Japanese girl born in Canada. My sister started school in 1922, and we rode double on an old sway-backed mare named Jess. Now old Jess had a very bad habit of shying at everything that moved, consequently we kids were always looking for fallen trees, stumps or fences to be able to get on her again. I think she really enjoyed dismounting us because she seemed to have that certain glint in her eyes whenever she unloaded

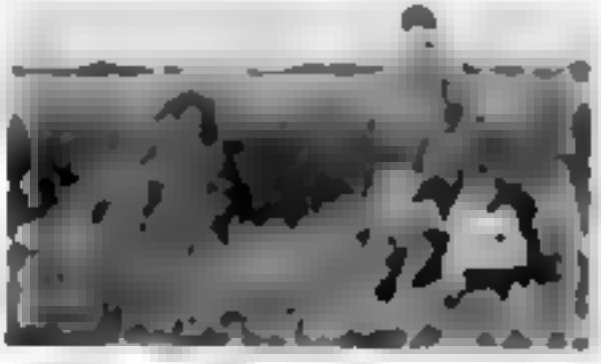
I earned my first money in the fall of 1923. I [illegible] to get the sum of 10 cents a night to bring in the neighbour's cows from the pasture and put them in the corral. Here I was, only 10 years old, and I was rich! I earned the huge sum of $6.10. I forget what I spent my money on, but I do remember buying a pair of spring skates, the kind that clamp on a pair of heavy boots



[illegible]

I continued school until 1928, when I passed my Grade Eight exams. I had hopes of going to Olds Agricultural College in 1930. However the Depression and hail storms dashed those plans, so I stayed on the farm with my dad. I would go out with the threshing crew each fall, and in this way I made enough money to carry me through until the next harvest. Dad and I would also go out to do custom breaking for the neighbours, using our tractor. We got $4. per acre and on a good day barring break-downs, we could break six acres

In the winter of 1936-1938 we decided we would log out our west timber stand, as we needed lumber to do some building. We bought a sawmill and set it up. That spring we sawed about 60,000 feet of lumber I was going with Annie Hollander and we were making plans to be married in the fall of 1941 The lumber would come in handy for building a house and other buildings we would need

Dad and I did not have much experience in carpentry but "where there's a will, there's a way" and in the spring we started building my house. By fault and error we went along, learning as we progressed, and by fall we had the house partially finished. Through the years we replaced every building on the farm, with Dad and me doing the carpentry work. We feel justifiably proud to think that we have one of the finer farmsteads in the district

Annie and I got married on November 19 [illegible]

Annie writes I was born Annie Antonette Hollander on May 13, 1917 daughter of Joseph and Antonette Hollander, who immigrated from Bohemia Czechoslovakia to the U.S.A. in 1905 and came from Fernie, B.C. to their homestead two miles south of Gaetz school in 1909 I was their fifth child, sister Mary was the eldest, then Joseph, Helen, Millan, me and Josephine We all attended Gaetz school I started school after Easter in 1924 with Mr August Matthews as my first teacher I finished Grade 10 in 1933 with Mrs. Jonas Anderson as my teacher

In the fall of 1934 I went to work as a clerk for Von's Store in Alhambra. I worked for Mr von Hollen until the fall of 1939. When I started working I got the wonderful wage of $10. plus room and board per month. Through the months my wages increased until I was earning $22.50. In the fall of 1939 I was offered a position with Lawrence Ltd. in Red Deer for $10 a week and I took it. Unfortunately I had not taken into consideration my room and board, which was $17 50 per month so this was not much of a promotion!

When John and I were married we started our life together with very little money, and, although the house was new it was far from being finished on the inside We had a few pots and pans, no furniture to speak of, and a big wood pile outside the door We had to haul or carry water from across the road for three years, until we could afford to have a well drilled I remember how lonesome I was the first year and how happy I was when John would come in from the field. I'd run out to meet him — with two water pails. It seemed as though the water can was always empty

Our house had been built in a grain field grass around the house just plowed ground and a sea of mud when it rained. We summer fallowed our future house yard in 1942. In the spring of 1943 we started to plant trees and seeded some grass. Every evening after the chores were done John would dig a half dozen or eight holes for the trees: then we would go across the road for a barrel or two of water for the trees The next day I would take a spade and the wheelbarrow and go over to the Moyles farm which was just across the road and south of our place. The Moyles family had left several years prior to this and there was no one living there, but they surely had lovely little spruce trees back in the bush. I planted over 60 spruce trees that year We hauled water whenever it was dry and had to replace only one tree Looking back today, we are glad we did this, and, although we have added several hundred more trees in the years that came we still think that those little spruce trees were the loveliest

John's sister Ella died in 1943, leaving behind three little girls. Susan was only four months old and she came to live with us. Now we had a baby in our home In June, 1944 our son Kenneth arrived on the scene, and in July, 1948 our daughter Frances joined us In the fall of 1948 Susan's father who by then had remained, took Susan home with him. She had to start school and become one of the family Susan returned in 1957 and stayed with us until 1961 when she married Robert Krest. They live in Blackfalds and have two children, Brian and Annette

Kenneth is married and has a family of three boys They live across the road from us. Frances married Roy Lapp in 1967 and they live in Sherwood Park, east of Edmonton

John continues with his story I joined the Knights of Pythias Lodge in May, 1933. In 1949 I had the honor of being elected to a chair in the Grand Lodge of Alberta, and in 1957 was elected as Grand Chancellor of Alberta. In 1966 I represented Alberta at Supreme Sessions in Indianapolis, Indiana, and again in 1968 at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania I am a present member of Success Lodge No. 33 Innisfail Annie joined the Pythian Sisters Peace Temple No. 8 Innisfail in 1965. She is a Past Chief and also a member of Grand Temple

We have both been involved in all community activities such as Fish and Game Association, Unifarm, Hall and Cemetery Boards, Ladies Aid, and our Baptist Church We both love fishing, camping and the great outdoors

We have had a very good life here on the farm, especially now that we only grain farm We hope to continue farming as long as our health will permit us to do so, then someone else can take over We are thankful that we have been given the privilege to live in a country where freedom still reigns, and hope that we have been an asset to our community and our country

HESPERO-ECKVILLE AIRPORT — NE 36-36-5-W5

The Hespero-Eckville Airport came into existence in 1945. The dirt work was done with a 60 Caterpillar and a pull-type grader

The first aircraft stationed there was a Fairchild 24 C F -AZT on November 13, 1953

In 1959 the air strip was upgraded to meet government standards for registration. It was registered under Waskasoo Aviation Ltd. for several years. Due to the fact the Penhold Air Base was military, only this air strip was used as the Red Deer air strip for training students

Mr. Pat Johnson, of Red Deer, was the instructor The planes used for training students were an Ercope. Aronka, Tri-pacer

Runway lights were installed in the fall of 1976 and completed in the spring of 1977

HESPERO COMMUNITY HALL

Among the first halls in the Eckville district to be built was the Hespero Community Hall. A number of young men returned from the war with an incentive to build a place for social gatherings and community get-togethers, such as were found in the British and European communities.

On December 15, 1922 the Hespero Industrial Society was formed in order to comply with the government regulations before a license could be issued for a public community hall. The first five trustees of the Society were Robert H Edgar, John W Lawson, George A. Frid, Joseph Nelson and Douglas Snider, and the secretary treasurer was Gerry MacDonnell The original hall ,which burned down in 1937 was built just north of the present one

Several men started construction. and planned a box social for the grand opening night in the first part of 1924 However. when the day arrived the flr flooring material had not yet arrived, but as luck would have it. the train arrived at 4 00 p.m. with the much-needed material. With the help of 30 men, the floor was laid and the box social and dance was in full swing by 9 00 p.m. the same night It is understood that some of the highest priced boxes sold for $50 — almost like spending $100 today. There must have been some hungry men, pretty girls or too much moonshine! The orchestra was Harold Bone's of Red Deer and Pat Murphy was the auctioneer

Each year an annual dance was held to commemorate the hall. Before the hall was built the people of the community would gather in the back of the Hespero store, but with no heat there the need for a new building was urgent The hall was used for many functions, and in 1937 as it was being heated for a church service it became overheated and was destroyed by fire

A meeting was held at the Hespero store on December 11, 1937 to consider rebuilding Another meeting was held in the first part of 19 and the final go-ahead was given by the members to construct another hall. A piece of land was donated by Gerry Macdonnell and construction began with Elno Lind the contractor A noted feature in the hall is a moosehead hanging on the north wall, which was donated by Carl Barhan. The Society bought a piano from one of the Macdonnell girls. also card tables were purchased. It is known that as many as 36 tables were filled when card parties were held. Where are our card players today?

In the early records of the hall it is shown that they had enough interested people to maintain ladies' and mens' entertainment committees lunch committees, an auditor was elected. as well as the usual slate of officers

Annual dances are still being held, as well as wedding dances, showers, turkeys suppers, card parties and Christmas and Halloween parties For those people who knew what it was like to go to the outdoor "johns" in those days, these are being replaced by indoor facilities. These renovations were carried out in 1977

The names of some of those who served on the hall board and as members include the Macdonnell family, Mr and Mrs A Threadgold, Mr and Mrs. C. J Fletcher, the Hartley family Mr Curtis Grant Mr O. J Miller, Mrs. A. Cordon, Miss B Baldwin. Mr A. Spearing. Mr and Mrs Jim Tulloch the Elmer Coles', the Stan McCreights', George Currie, Mrs. Nora McCuish, Jack and Nelmi Torsti, and more recent members include Kults. Peltikanens. Maki Kelms Dares, Pat,as Gordons. Kangas', Syrens. Strems, Lahti and Lind, and many more too numerous to mention. This is an example of many people supporting their community hall We hope the spirit continues today'

Mr Sedric Peltikanen served for a great number of years as janitor, something like 22 years. also Ronnie Kult as hall manager in the more recent years of operation. Their dedication is most appreciated. We also are grateful to those who carried on before us to keep a place for our children to use when they grew up

HESPERO LADIES' AID

The first recorded minutes of the Hespero Ladies' Aid are dated December 9. 1937 The membership at that date included, Mrs. J. C Hartley Mrs. G. H. Macdonnell, Mrs. C. Gant Mrs. J Spence. Mrs. D Snider Mrs. C. Fletcher Mrs W Edgar Mrs. W Whittle, and Mrs. C Schumeman. Thus the Hespero Ladies Aid came to an end after many years of friendship, meetings and assistance with many worth while cause. The last recorded minutes are dated May 7, 1875.

HESPERO PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

In 1937 Rev. Campbell, who was stationed at Eckville, conducted church services, which were held in the Hespero Community Hall. The hall was destroyed by fire and services were discontinued.

In 1938, plans were laid for the erection of a church building and a very successful, every person visitation was made to solicit funds. The late Elmo Lind, a local carpenter with the aid of volunteers erected the building on the property donated by G. H. Macdonnell. The board of managers consisted of William Edgar, Reginald Tisdale and Robin Hartley. Mrs. G. H. Macdonnell was the organist and she was assisted by Mrs. Douglas Snider.

A congregational meeting was held February 1940, and a board of managers elected, consisting of: Mr. James Spence, Mr. Douglas Snider, Mr. Elmer Cole and Reginald Tisdale.

The ministers during the years were: Mr. Fraser, Miss Ruby Walker, Rev. McGregor, Rev. D. L. Crocker, Rev. Coles, Rev. A. F. Howich, Rev. Kingsley King, Rev. Glen Marsh, Rev. A. L. Sutherland, Mr. Ken Grant, Rev. Peter Walter, Rev. Sheldon McKenzie, Miss Iris Ford, Rev. B. S. Hartley, Rev. K. G. Knight, Rev. Bob Burton and Rev. Sidney Chang.

In 1945 a church manse was purchased for $6000. Mrs. Ruth Logan organized a choir which was an asset to the church. The first wedding performed in the church was between Miss Mary Brown and Mr. Harry Medin, which was performed by Rev. R. A. Sinclair. On Sunday, November 24, 1968 the 20th anniversary was celebrated.

In 1972-73 many members had moved away and the attendance became so small that the Church congregation amalgamated with Eckville. The building was sold and moved to [illegible].

HORNBY WILLIAM AND ROSELLA

William and Rosella Hornby came to Canada from England in about 1910 and settled in the Naleby area with their two daughters Miriam aged eight and Una aged five. Their son Jack was born three years later

After many years of hardships and drought on the prairie, Mr Hornby and family moved to the Condor district in approximately 1933 about one mile west of Condor corner and one and a half miles south. By this time their daughter Miriam had married Robert Lindsay and they were on their own

The Hornbys moved into a log cabin in the middle of their quarter Being close to a road was no major concern the roads were only muddy trails

The cabin was one large room and the bedrooms were in the attic They made their living there as most others did they had a few pigs and milked cows

However they didn't stay long in the old log cabin, infested with mice and the cracks filled with old rags to try to keep out the cold winds Spring came in March that year and the crops were put in early with horses. By May a big snowstorm arrived, dumping large amounts of wet snow on everything. Their next house, a bungalow was built at the edge of their quarter by Mr Hornby and his son-in-law Robert Lindsay. Next came a large high barn and upon its completion Bob danced the Highland Fling on the top of the roof much to the consternation of the womenfolk

Mr Hornby was a gardener at heart and upon his retirement in 1942, when he sold his farm to his son-in-law he gardened to his heart's content on a small acreage on the same farm About this time their daughter Una, went out to work, first at Hespero, then on to Red Deer where she has kept house for various people since

After a few years on the acreage, Mr and Mrs Hornby moved their house to an acreage in the town of Condor Here Mrs. Hornby was very active in their church Mission Circle Group Over the years she had taught Sunday School at Northup School and again when they moved to town. Mr Hornby was very crippled with arthritis and this was their main reason for moving to the Twilight Cottages in Red Deer where they resided until their passing, William in 1957 and Rosella in 1967

Their son Jack Hornby married Elizabeth Betty) Munro and lived on the present Herb von Hollen farm during their early married life Jack was in the Army during the war but never made it overseas because of a hand injury sustained earlier Their son, Howard was born while they lived in the Condor area

KAIKKONEN, PAUL

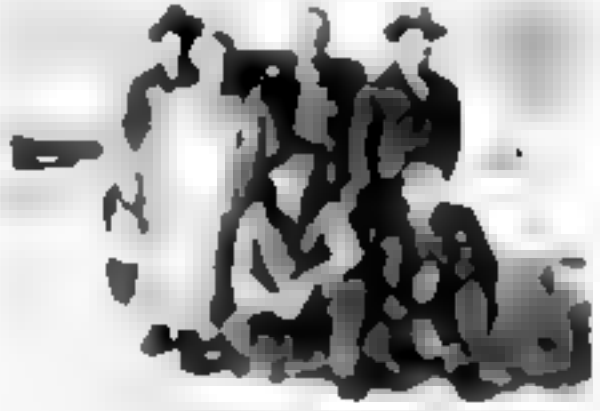
Paul Kaikkonen Sr. of Hespero, Alberta, N.1 30-4-W5, was born in Finland on June 21, 1883. He immigrated to the United States of America in the early 1900's, where he obtained employment in a coal mine at Sand Coulee, Montana. He made a trip back to his homeland in the year 1905. He spent a year there, then returned to Sand Coulee where he worked in the coal mines until he got hurt in 1907. Upon recovering from his injuries he met and married Anna Katia Waisanen, who also had immigrated to Sand Coulee from Finland. She operated a boarding house with her sister, Lia Holm. A daughter, Lydia, was born on December 3, 1911, and one son, Charlie, on February 11, 1913, while they were living in Sand Coulee.

In the meantime Paul Sr. had read about homestead land being sold in Alberta, Canada 160 acres for $10. In 1912, he and his brother-in-law Everet Saarela came to Red Deer, Alberta looking for land. The land office in Red Deer sent them out west to Condor and Leslieville to look over some homesteads that were available. Paul Kaikkonen filed on a homestead one-half mile west of the Condor Post Office and store that was operated by a family by the name of A. French. Everet Saarela filed on a homestead eight and one-half miles north of Condor, on top of a hill past the Blueberry Valley School. Paul Kaikkonen's other brother-in-law, Matt Uitto and wife, were already settled at Blueberry Valley School District at the time, so they stayed with them while looking for land.

In July of 1913, Paul Kaikkonen and family, Everet Saarela and family, along with Frank Holm and family, loaded their goods into a railroad boxcar and shipped them to Red Deer as the Canadian Pacific Railroad was not completed yet. The three families drove out from Red Deer to their homesteads by horse and wagon which they had brought along with them.

The railroad was completed to Condor and on to Rocky Mountain House in the fall of 1913. The C.N.R. was already in at the time, past Eckville and Leslieville and to Nordegg.

Later on, after building a house and barn at Condor (which are still standing), Paul Kaikkonen and Everet Saarela went working at the coal mines at Saunders Creek and Alexo, Alberta. Four more children were born at Condor — Lily on September 11, 1914, Paul Jr. on January 1, 1916, Willie on March 26, 1917, and Eddie on August 28, 1918. Then Nielo was born on October 15, 1926 at Hespero, Alberta.



In 1919 Paul Kaikkonen Sr. bought land at Hespero and moved his family there in the spring of 1921, where they have farmed ever since.

In 1932 Lydia married Abet Jarvis of Sylvan

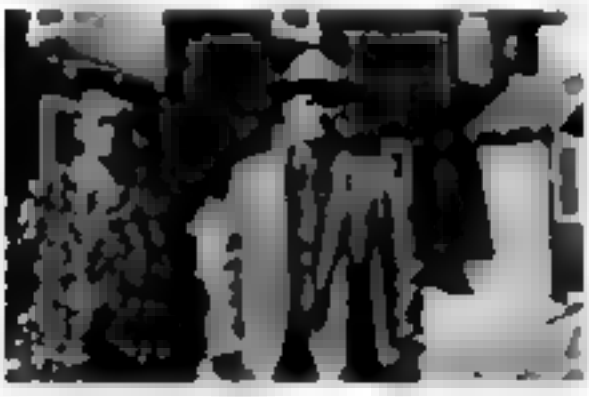
Lake. His parents, Andrew and Sandra Jarvin, had also emigrated from Finland to Almy now known as Evanston, Wyoming, U.S.A. They later filed on a homestead in the Bingley District, north of Rocky Mountain House, Alberta in 1913, and later moved to Sylvan Lake. Abel worked as a mechanic and welder for Joe Untinen in the Lakeview Garage in Sylvan Lake for 21 years before moving to the Queen Charlotte Islands in 1957 to work as a welder. From here he moved to Vancouver Island. Lydia and Abel are now retired in Port Alberni, B.C. They have one son George, and a daughter, Eileen.

George has a son, Andrew, and a daughter Anne Maria, and they live in Vancouver, B.C. Eileen married Roy Darling in 1953, and they have a son, Robert Norman, and a daughter Gale. Eileen and Roy are owner and operator of the Sylvan Lake Steam Bath which was built by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson in 1967. Charles Anderson has since passed away.

Charlie Kaikkonen has operated his own Service Station on Highway 11, on the Hespero Corner known as "Charlie's Service" since 1960 and on February 14, 1977 he married Donna Rowbotham of Sylvan Lake.

Lily married Bruno Kuli in 1935. They had one daughter, Anna, who married Jerry Cumming. They have three sons and one daughter. Jerry died in 1971. Anna and family are living in Port Alberni, B.C.

Paul married Grace Hall in 1946, and took over the family farm. Four sons were born to them before Paul passed away of a heart condition in 1959. The sons are Elmo, James, Albert and John. Grace still lives on the farm with her boys.



Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kaikkonen

Willie married Mary Simpson. They have a family of one daughter, Linda, and two sons, Dale and Glen. Willie is a welder by trade, and they all live in Port Alberni, B.C.

Eddie remained single and lives on his own farm two miles from Hespero.

Niels lives in Windsor, Ontario and works in a wheel factory there. He has one son, Nicky. His wife passed away in 1964.

Mrs. Anna Kaikkonen passed away in June, 1960 at the age of 75 years. Paul Kaikkonen Sr. passed away June 16, 1975 and was buried on his birthday, June 21, at the age of 90 years.

THE KANGAS FAMILY – by Wayne Kangas

After arriving from Kauhavalla, Finland, Matt and Amelia Kangas and their family lived in Eveleth, Minnesota, U.S.A. where Matt worked in the open pit iron ore mines. Approximately five years later, about 1908 or 1910, they came to Canada, and settled in the Hespero district which was called Pilcox until the railroad was built through there in about 1913. Arriving also at about the same time from Eveleth were Henry Pietikainen, John Suteia, Walter Maki, John Pykalainen, Ore and Henry Makela, and Jack Tuhkanen and families.

Matt, (who passed away in 1918), and Amelia, (who passed away in 1938), had five children. Ida married Howard O'Brien, and lives in Santa Rosa, California, with her only daughter Mildred, and her husband, Roy.

Richard passed away in 1961.

Gust married Irja and lived in Sparta, Minnesota, U.S.A. Their four children were Donald, Mildred, Robert, and Dennis. Gust passed away in 1968.

Annie was born in 1901 and passed away in 1974. She had married Jim Krest, and they had three sons, Albert, George and Robert. They farmed in the Hespero district.

Hilja married Dean Reeser and they live in Petaluma, California.

Richard Kangas married Selma Ropafelt in about 1913. A wedding dance was planned for the evening to celebrate the marriage, when a fire gedy occurred. In the afternoon, Salma's father was going to get provisions for a lunch for the dance, when the team of horses he was driving ran away and the wagon in which he was riding overturned. When the wreck was found, Mr Ropsfelt was dead.

Richard and Salma bought Wilf Horner's homestead. (In 1977 Mr Horner is still living in the Senior Citizens' Home in Lacombe.) Richard and Salma had four children — John, Hilja, Wayne and Elsie.

John, who passed away in 1970, had married Vieno Salo. He served in Canada and overseas with the Sherbrooke Fusiliers in World War II. They had two sons, John Lorne and Robert Wayne. Lorne has his Bachelor of Commerce degree and lives in Leduc with his wife, Glenda, and their four children, Shelley, Vincent, Jeina and Nathan. Robert also has his Bachelor of Commerce degree and lives in Calgary with his wife, Ann, and their two daughters.

Hilja married Ike Raappana, and lives in Sonora, California. They have three daughters, Lillian, Diane and Ellen. Lillian lives and works in Modesto, California. Diane has her Bachelor of Arts degree and lives in Sonora, California with her husband, Terry Hunt, and their two sons, Forrest and Derek. Ellen has twin boys, Gary and Jerry, and lives in northern California with her husband, Carl Kruger.

Wayne married Ann Docken and they live in Red Deer. He served in the army for one year in Canada with the Canadian Scottish Regiment, Victoria, B.C.) He obtained a Coal Miners leave in 1943, and he and Ann moved to Alexo, Alberta, where they lived for 12 years until the mines closed down. The family moved to Red Deer in 1955, where Wayne was a steam engineer, and later was Chief Engineer with the Central Alberta Dairy Pool until his retirement in 1976. Wayne and Ann have two children, Wayne John and Sharon Ann. Wayne Jr. has his Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Engineering degrees, and is a Design Engineer with Texaco Canada Ltd. He lives in Edmonton with his wife, Lynn, and daughter Margaret. Sharon has her Bachelor of Education degree, and lives with her husband, Alan Cooper, and their daughter Shara in Red Deer.

Elsie married Wilfred Koski and lives in Eckville. She is the cook at the Senior Citizens' Home in Eckville.

Richard and Salma's four children attended Daisy Nook School and Wayne remembers the teachers that he had. Mrs. Larsen, Miss Duffy, Miss Uchida, Mr Stuart Meeres, Miss Lougheed, Mr Pawly, Mr Lougheed, Mr Jones, Miss Hilda Lawrence (who married and the next year was Mrs. Anderson), Miss Herman and Miss Baldwin. Mr Gibson was inspector of schools. Since many of the children in this district spoke only Finnish at home, and knew little English when they started to school, the teachers must have had a more difficult time than usual with their beginners.

Roads were almost non-existent, even though the road allowances were there. Some of the holes never did dry up from one year to the next. The children walked to school on nice days, and rode horseback when the weather was poor. There were eight grades in Daisy Nook, and with 35 to 40 students each year, the seats were always full.

The Christmas concerts and the annual school picnics at the end of June were the highlights of the year. Mr. G. Frid was always a very able chairman, as was Mr. W. Edgar as Santa Claus. There seemed to be much more community life throughout the hard times and before than there is now. There were always get-togethers for skating parties, ball games, dances and other activities. Dances were very popular, with one in either Hespero, Evergreen or Condor every week. Often 10 to 20 people would get into a sleigh box pulled by horses, and go to a dance. Some of the immediate neighbors were: to the south — Maidits, Sieberts, Martinsons, and Cernys, to the west — Wyzikoskis, Kubics, Linds, J. Maki's, J. Krests and W. White; to the east — Greenwalts, Ole Andersons, J. Laitinens and A. Bottons.

Wayne says "... the hard times were not as bad as some people make out. It took very little money to live, and everyone was equal because no one had much money. Wartime rationing didn't affect anyone, for most of our food was raised at home. It was easy to get meat from farmers if one didn't raise their own, and purple gas wasn't rationed. There was plenty of tea, but maybe not enough coffee for the Scandinavians that had settled in this area!"

There was no question of money exchanging hands in payment for work. There was a reciprocal work code: one farmer would help another and he would return the work.

Richard Kangas farmed in the Hespero district until his retirement to Ladysmith on Vancouver Island in 1948. Part of the district was covered with bush timber, spruce, pine, poplar and some big tamarack, as was all of the west country. No district history would be complete without mention of the bigger sawmills that moved in about the same time as the first settlers. They were known by the names of their owners: F. Petterpher, Tibadow, Kerch and Bromling, Ebis, Stockwell, Evans Brothers, as well as numerous smaller mills. Some sawdust and slab piles can still be seen at the old settings. Many original roads were opened by them, and the homesteaders, (nearly all of them), worked for the sawmill outfits in the off-season, as ready cash was hard to come by from any other source.

Long gone is the steam whistle, the saw and carriage whine, along with the dust of the grain threshing machines.

As this account is written according to the memories of people still living, any small discrepancies in names and items will have to be

JACK KELM FAMILY — by Mrs. Kelm

Jack Kelm's parents, the John Kelms emigrated to Canada from Karlsruh, Russia in 1906 and took up a homestead at Duck Lake, Saskatchewan in 1907. In 1911 the Kelms moved to Medicine Hat, Alberta, where they bought a dairy farm on Dunmore Hill. After receiving his schooling at Elizabeth School in Medicine Hat Jack worked at the candy factory and at a brick factory. In 1919 the family moved back to Saskatchewan and located at Rosthern. Jack was gifted with the ability to "witch" for water so he was of considerable help to his father in the well-digging business which they established at Rosthern. In 1923 they moved to Empress, which is on the Saskatchewan-Alberta border and here they bought and operated a livery stable until moving to Calgary in 1927. In Calgary Jack worked in Spiller's Flour Mill.

Mable Gabriel's parents came to Canada from Karlsruh, Russia and farmed in the Saltberfeld district, near Waldheim Saskatchewan. Mabel's mother was a victim of the flu in 1918 and her father passed away as a result of the dreaded epidemic in 1919 leaving seven children Mable being the eldest of them. Mrs. Gabriel was only 27 years old when she died, and Mr. Gabriel was 37 years old when he died.

After a time Mable went to Calgary, where she found work at the Holy Cross Hospital. While she was working there she married Jack Kelm, whom she had known at Rosthern. Jack added to his income by playing his button accordion at dances. From an uncle, Jack, learned to play many pieces that the uncle had learned from hearing the gypsies play in Russia. (Many of these pieces I have never heard anyone else play.) Jack had only to hear a tune played once or twice and he was able to play it perfectly by

In 1934 we purchased a piece of land from the Canadian Pacific Railroad, for eight hundred dollars, which turned out to be a high price, as it turned out to be a rough, rocky, slough-covered farm. This was in the Willow Dale district southeast of Red Deer. Jack left Calgary with a team of horses pulling a wagon with a rack in April in order to build a small shack before taking the family to our new home. This took many days, as he had to first find out where his land was located. Then he had to cut a road through two miles of timber since he was the first to settle in this particular area.

In May 15 Jack came back to Calgary to get me and our three small children. What a trip that was, to our new home! Our youngest child, Phyllis, who was one year old at the time, was in a cast because of a broken hip resulting from a fall from her high chair. Our possessions were loaded onto the rack and covered over with an old tent in such a way that the family was able to ride and sleep on top of the household goods. We left Calgary on May 18 for our five-day trip to the farm. At one point we missed Phyllis, who, we thought, had been sleeping at the back of the rack. However it turned out that she had fallen out of the wagon and was nowhere in sight. It was impossible to turn the rack around on the road so I had to walk back, about three-fourths of a mile, until I found her sitting on the road, crying loudly but unhurt. It was quite a task for me to carry her back to the wagon, as well as causing a delay in our travels.

On the third day of our trip we stopped at a farm with the hope of being able to water our horses there. However, the farmer wasn't able to give us any water because he was having to haul water for his own livestock. He told Jack that he had been unable to find water on his farm even though at one time there had been a running spring on the land. Jack said, "Do you mind if I try to find water for you?" The man was delighted with this idea, and immediately took Jack in his car to a place where they could get a willow branch. This must have been some distance away, because they were gone at least half an hour. After their return Jack did find a slight indication of water near their house but he thought that a well there would not yield sufficient water for their needs. Jack followed the vein of water for some distance until he found a real strong indication of water — he was hardly able to hold the willow in his hands! (This location turned out to be the spring that had formerly been used on the farm.) The farmer was so grateful that he gave us some oat bundles for the horses and a big box of food for ourselves. This somewhat lessened my annoyance at being left with the children, sitting on the wagon for so long, and not even knowing at the time what was causing the delay. We never did find out the man's name although he learned that our name was Kelm and that we were moving from Calgary. Quite a while after this we heard that he had phoned Jack's father in Calgary, wanting to know where we had moved, as he wanted to give Jack some money for his help in getting the water on the farm. However, we never did see him again.

At about 5:30 in the evening of the last day of our trip to the farm we stopped at a farm which was about eight miles from our new location. This was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Towers (parents of Gordon Towers, who, at that time, was just a boy). Jack asked to buy some grain for the horses. Mr. Towers had no grain but he gave us a quantity of oat bundles for the horses. In reply to his question as to how we were fixed for food ourselves I replied, "I've got some flour — I'll make some pancakes for us." After hearing this, Mr. Towers went into the house and came out with a large box containing bread, butter, bacon, eggs, potatoes and a gallon of fresh milk. Another example of how kind people were in those days!

We started our venture in farming with one cow, 25 chicks, a wagon with rack, two horses and a plow. Those were tough years, and if it had not been for Jack's accordion we would not have made it. Jack played for dances, birthday anniversary celebrations, amateur programs, and whatever else required a musician. He would often walk nine to ten miles with his accordion. Sometimes he would get only seventy-five cents for his evening's work, but other times it would be as much as three dollars, which was good money in those days. He also worked for various farmers in the community in return for feed and seed.

In April of 1941 Jack joined the Calgary 14th Army Tanks and in June he left for overseas. The children and I stayed on the farm until 194 when Jack got his honorable discharge because of health reasons. We remained on the farm after his return until 1945. In September of that year Jack had got a farm one mile east of Hespero, Alberta, through the Veteran's Land Act. It was the Norman Bunch farm located on the N W ¼ 6-36-3-W5th. Jack attended the Bunch sale in November and agreed at that time that Norman and his mother could remain on the farm for the winter. However, we got a call saying that Norman had found a place in Red Deer, and were moving right away.

Since we wished to move as soon as possible Jack went at once to see the Ted Pixley Trucking Company about moving us to Hespero. He was informed that the trucks would be busy for a week or two, so we thought that there would be plenty of time for packing. However, on December 2 we got word that the trucks would be here the next day to move us. We spent all night packing. Yeast had been set for bread, and that had to be baked. The girls were set to churning the accumulation of cream into butter while Jack and Lyle gathered up the cows and calves and penned up the pigs and crated the chickens. When the trucks arrived at nine o'clock in the morning the stove was still hot from baking and I had also made a dish called Grandma's Dumplings. This was Potatoes covered with bread dough dumplings.

In the flurry of getting everything loaded no one ever thought about getting me and the children to Red Deer to take the train to Hespero, so we were all divided among the trucks. We left for Hespero with the trucks at about three o'clock in the afternoon, arriving there about six thirty. It was a lovely warm evening, with the water running off the roof and a soft wind blowing to welcome us to our new home. The men put up the stove first, while the children found some old boards to burn. We got the boxes of food from the truck and I soon had a meal ready, including the potatoes and dumplings that we had not had time to eat that morning! Of course everyone was ravenously hungry as well as tired, and it was not until the next day that we started to get some order out of cha-.

In 1946 we decided to tear down what had been a chicken coop. When we tore the floor up we discovered a small cellar under it. There were two eight-gallon cream cans and some other cans, along with basins and sealers, jam cans, and a lot of tubing or pipes. We wondered what it was, at first, Jack thought it looked like a still for making liquor. We didn't keep it, as we thought we might be blamed for having used it, but we often wondered who had lived there and operated the still, and when "moonshine" business had been carried on.

Jack and I had a family of six children. When the oldest, Delores, was old enough to start school we lived five miles from the Willow Dale School, so I helped her through the grade one course at home by means of the material sent out by the Correspondence School of the Department of Education in Edmonton. As the other children became old enough for school they all attended the Willow Dale school until we came to Hespero and then they went to the Blue Bell School. After the rural schools were discontinued they were bused for one year to Condor and then finished their schooling in Eckville after the bus routes were changed.

Delores married Clarence Torsti and they have two children, Lorrie Ann and Douglas John. They live at Fort St. John, British Columbia.

Lyle joined the Navy in 1953 and is still with the Navy. He is now a 1st Officer. He lives in Victoria, British Columbia, and has never married.

Phyllis married Nick Sherba. They had three children — Debbie, Lynda and Nick Jr. Nick passed away in July of 1967. Phyllis now is married to Steven Tomak and they live in Calgary.

Joan married Dick Feys of Rocky Mountain House. They have one daughter, Rhonda, and live in Blackfalds, Alberta.

Darlene married Chuck Moore and has one son, Carter James. She lives at Calgary.

Dorothy married David Ewing of Big Valley. Their two children are Calmont and Christene. They live at Irricana, Alberta.

In 1970 Jack and I sold our farm to Bert Ojala and moved to a home which we had bought in Eckville. We were enjoying our retirement here when, on March 6, 1974 Jack passed away suddenly as a result of a heart attack. I have continued to live in my home in Eckville and keep busy with the many activities of the Eckville and District Friendship Club, of which I have been an officer, and with the Eckville Hospital Auxiliary. I have done some travelling including a trip to Hawaii and one to the southern United States and into Mexico. In the summer time I enjoy spending my spare time working in my garden.

KENDZE, CARL

Carl Kendze was born in Stuttgart, Germany and came to Canada at the age of 11 with his parents, Julius and Olga. They settled near Margo, Saskatchewan, where they purchased a farm. Carl continued his education in a small country school (May School). There were only seven children enrolled at this time, one of the girls later became his wife.

After finishing school, Carl helped with the farming at home, as well as working out for the neighbors. In the fall he joined the local threshing crews to save money for a down payment on a half-section of bush land which he purchased in 1937.

In 1936 he married Adela Eiola. Adela was born on the homestead of her parents, Rudolf and Wanda, eight miles north of Margo, Sask. After the wedding Carl and Adela (Dell) moved into their newly built log cabin and began clearing land to raise grain and pasture some dairy cattle. They lived here from 1938-1947. During that time they had three children, Deanna Margaret, Kenneth Ronald and Marlene Alvera. Deanna and Kenneth started their education at Robertson School which was situated on their land.

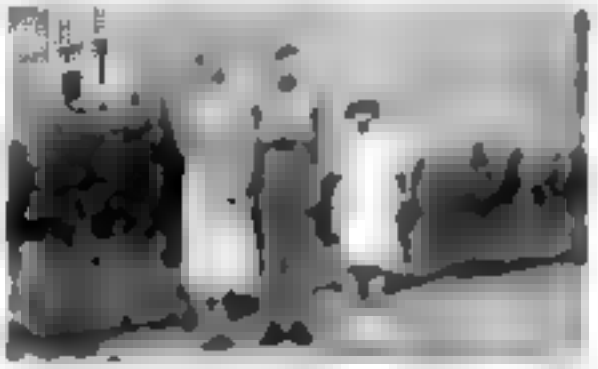
In 1947 they decided to go West — a yearning Carl had always had as a boy. They sold their farm and cattle, shipped their machinery and belongings by freight (under the settlers effect program) packed their one-ton truck, and set out for Alberta. Arriving at Condor, Alberta, October 27, 1947 they purchased the former Harry Bice farm, Sec. 4-39-4-W5 and moved into their home March 15, 1948. The old house saw many good times, and in 1963 a new bungalow went up beside it, and the old house went down the road.

Since Ken returned to take over the farming operations, Carl and Dell purchased a trailer and are living on NW 33-38-4-W5 where the old Halfway House once stood. This building was run by Mr. and Mrs. Bell and supplied overnight lodging for freighters, on the Red Deer to Rocky route and shelter for their horses.

The children attended Prairie Rose School in Condor (this school was later replaced by Condor Elementary School) and completed their Grade 12 education at the David Thompson High School built on Highway 11.

Deanna, after completing a year semester at the Red Deer Composite High School, enrolled at the University of Alberta School Hospital and received her R.N. degree in September, 1961. She worked for a year at the University Hospital after graduation then went to St. Mary's Hospital in New Westminster, B.C., there she met Ralph Bergman, and they were married in 1963. Ralph is presently a school principal. They're settled in Delta, B.C., and they have two children, Christine (age 12) and Grant (age 10).

Marlene, after completing a semester at Red Deer Composite High School, enrolled at the Key Secretarial School of Business Education, and graduated in 1963. She worked in Edmonton for Trader's Finance Company and was later sent to Dawson Creek as branch accountant. On her return to Edmonton, Marlene met Gerald Beattie and they were married in December, 1975. Gerry is the President and owner of Beattie Contractors Ltd., working on road and oilfield construction in the Arctic, Alberta, and B.C. They now make their home in Edmonton after living one year in Inuvik, N.W.T.



Carl and Dell still help their son with the farming operations when the busy seasons roll around, but they enjoy semi-retirement now that they have time to enjoy camping, travelling, playing cards, and dancing. Carl also frequents the auction markets — one of his favorite pastimes. Carl passed away February of 1978.

KENDZE, KENNETH RONALD

Ken, only son of Carl and Adela Kendze, was born in Wadena, Saskatchewan, March 22, 1941.

Throughout his schooling he enjoyed and participated in most sports. After completing high school, he enrolled at the Southern Alberta School of Technology in Calgary and graduated in Design Drafting in 1962.

Drafting took him to designing pulp mills in Vancouver, B.C. fertilizer plants in Trail, B.C. and industrial piping in Edmonton. While living with three buddies in a high-rise apartment in Edmonton, he and his friends persuaded the caretaker to rent the apartment next to them to some girl tenants! He did just that and that's where he met Joanne McAdam, whom he later married in April, 1968.

Joanne is a graduate nurse from the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton, and had never even visited a farm until she met Ken. She enjoys country life, and loves to continually shock her city friends with all her new found knowledge.

When Ken and his Dad first formed their partnership — Diamond K Farms was chosen as the farm name. Ken purchased three quarters of land of his own, and he and his family now live on the home quarter.

Ken and Joanne have three girls — Pamela Anne (December, 1970), Heather June, 1973, and Brenda Marie (May 1975. They're kept busy with the children's activities, their various club and board meetings, curling, swimming and traveling.

KULT HENRY

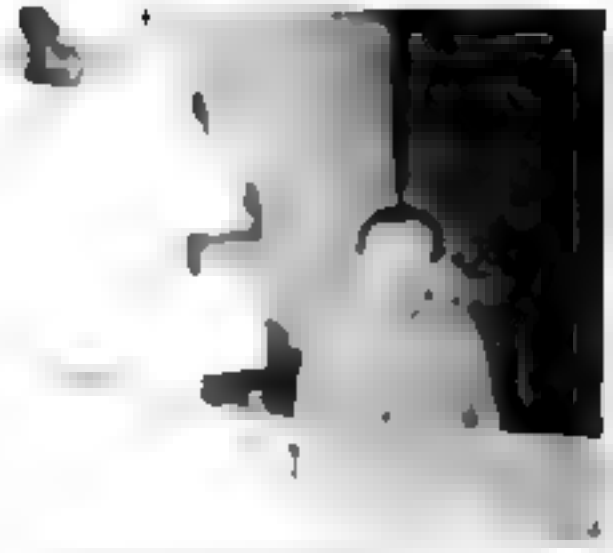
At the age of 26 years, Henry Kultala immigrated to the U.S.A. from Oululanni, Finland. During the spring of 1904, he left the U.S.A. and came to Alberta, where he filed for a homestead on May 26 of the same year. It was during this time that he changed the name to Kult, dropping the Finnish "ala". The original homestead was the N.W. 20-38-3-W5, which is presently owned by Mr. William McDonell, northwest of Eckville.

It was his desire to return to the United States where he became a citizen on September 19, 1904. He worked in the copper mines at Butte, Montana, and a few years later returned to his homestead.

On January 10, 1910 at Red Deer he married Caroline Wetelainen and settled on the homestead. Caroline was born in Savo, British County, South Dakota on November 17, 1890, and came to the Kuusamo district in the first part of 1900 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wetelainen. The Wetelainens had to remain in Red Deer until spring as the Red Deer river was too high to cross.

As many pioneers from Rocky Mountain House and Leslieville areas had to travel to Red Deer for supplies, the Kult's became well known for a resting place where the horses were fed and watered as well as the drivers. Caroline was an ardent cook and always had lots of homemade bread and goodies for anyone who stopped.

Three boys and two girls were born on the homestead, Bruno, Emil, Arthur, Lily and Edna.



Henry was very fond of horses and always had a great number of them which was a very successful venture for him. While Henry was away horse trading, Caroline kept the home fires burning, milking cows as well as doing the other necessary outdoor duties. She also made clothes for the family needs — not using any patterns. It did not take her very long to create a new frock for one of the girls.

During these years a lot of sickness and epidemics took some lives of this family. Arthur who was born in 1914 died in 1918 at a very tender age, and Lily who was born in 1916, died the following year.

In 1918 they sold the homestead, had an auction sale and moved on the outskirts of Eckville. Although jobs were not plentiful, Henry kept busy doing handy-man jobs, and they always had roomers or boarders at their house. The boys were not interested in continuing school so it was the decision of Henry to return to farming. A friend of Henry's had left a quarter of land two miles north of Hespero for him, so in the spring of 1926 the family moved to the farm. Additions to the family while in Eckville were a set of twins, Albert and Walter in 1919, the latter dying one year later. Elvie was born in 1921, William in 1923 and Elsie in 1926.

Mary and Hannah were born after they moved to the farm at Hespero. The Kults bought three more quarters of land, built a new house and a barn. Although Henry had acquired Miner's Consumption Disease which caused poor health, he always had great ambitions. Their first car was a 1925 Chevrolet and he also became partners, with a nearby neighbor purchasing an engine and threshing machine. A Wallis tractor was purchased to replace some of the work horses.

Henry died on May 10, 1931 at the age of 51 and left a wife and nine children ranging in age from a baby to the oldest who was 20. Caroline remained on the farm with her family continuing with her excellent home life, and saw all her children marry and leave home to make their own livelihoods. Bruno continued to carry on the farming along with the capable assistance of his mother and his sister Hannah, as well as other members of the family coming over to lend a hand. Caroline died on May 17 1969 at the age of 78 years. Henry and Caroline are buried in the Hespero Cemetery.

The home farm was sold to Gerald Roy of Prince George, B.C. by Bruno on October 14 1970.

Most of the Kult families today live around the Hespero district. Bill at Leslieville, Bruno retired to Ruth, B.C., Mary still at Comox Vancouver Island however her husband has been transferred to Winnipeg for two years so she may be there at press time. Edna is in Edmonton and Hannah, at time of writing is in Edmonton. The only grandchildren living out of the province of Alberta are Albert's eldest son Leslie who lives at Maple Ridge, B.C. his daughter Linda lives at Spruce Lake, Saskatchewan. Bruno's daughter Anna and her family live at Port Alberni, B.C., and Mary's eldest daughter is living in Victoria, B.C.

LAURENCE, A. B.

In the year of 1931, the Laurence family moved to Condor from Carndiff, Saskatchewan living on the SE 31-38-4-W5. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Laurence had two sons and one daughter Wesley, Myron and Ruth.

Wes lives in Edmonton with his wife Fern. They have one son, Virgil, who lives in Edmonton with his wife and four children. Ruth, lives in Summerland, B.C. with her husband, Gordon and two sons. Ruth is Mrs. Gordon McDermott.

Mr. A. B. Laurence had a saw mill in the early years. He also did a lot of big game hunting. In the year of 1934, A. B., sons and daughter went out west big game hunting where they were stranded for five weeks. Since then, there are two creeks north of Jack Fish Lake that are named Ruth Creek and Laurence Creek.

The youngest son, Myron, and his father continued farming. The mother had passed away in 1936 at the age of 56 years. One of the many jobs Myron enjoyed was threshing. The crew consisted of friends and neighbors. Dudley Frith owned the threshing machine and some of the fellows working on it were the Marcenik Bros. Bradshaw Bros. Pete Lagore, Sam Clement and others. The men often threshed for 20 to 30 days.

Mr. Laurence sold the farm, later moving to Ontario, where he enjoyed fairly good health until 1974 when he passed away.

In 1946, Myron married Margaret Knorr. Along with farming, he did various jobs, trucking, hauling milk, grain and lumber. In 1952, they left the Condor district and moved to Dovercourt where they lived for about three years, later moving to Sylvan Lake where they still reside. Myron and Margaret have a family of four, three sons and one daughter. Leonard lives in Sylvan Lake with his wife, Margaret and two sons and two daughters. Raymond and his wife Lynn have two sons and two daughters, Ron and his wife Pat have three children. Lois lives in Edmonton with her husband Hugh McPherson. no family. Myron still has a great love for horses so manages to keep some on his acreage at Sylvan Lake. Hockey and ball are very favorite sports. The three sons are also hockey fans and are al...

THE GEORGE LEE STORY

George Lee was born in Yorkshire, England September 3, 1882. He left England March 26 1906 and sailed to Canada, coming to Bolton, Ontario, where he worked for two years before travelling out to Innisfail, Alberta.

In 1906 George went to Pitcox (Hespero) and took up a homestead, the N.W. 15-29-W5 three and one-half miles north west of Pitcox, where Alfred Oastrom's home is now. The name Pitcox was later changed to Hespero.

George went to Rochester, Minnesota and worked on the farm Dr. Charles Mayo of the famous Mayo Clinic for two years. He then returned to his homestead at Hespero and farmed there for several years.

George remembers well the times when the pioneers had to go to Red Deer for their supplies using a team of horses and a sleigh or wagon. The trip took three days — one day to travel from Hespero to Red Deer — one day to rest the horses and the third day to return home. In summer the prairie trails were difficult to travel on as there were many sloughs and swamps to cross.

On September 6, 1924 George married Arla Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Anderson of Hespero. Arla was born in LeGrand, Iowa U.S.A. and came to Red Deer with her family in October 1907 and to Hespero in the spring of 1909.

In 1925 George traded his homestead for a quarter section in the Evarts district. George and Arla went to Nordegg to work for the winter.

of 1925 and moved to Evarts in the spring of 1926 where they still reside

They had a family of three, Gertrude, the oldest is employed by the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Calgary Juanita, Mrs. Ernest Vitana is a Certified Nursing Aide, living in Eckville: Charles farms in the Evarts district

LIND, OSCAR AND MARIA JOSEPHINE

Oscar Lind was born July 25, 1885 in Hollola Finland. He immigrated to New York in 1904 There he met Maria Josephine Sund who was born December 26, 1894, in Helsinki Finland She immigrated to New York arriving in November 1909 They were united in marriage in New York on February 21, 1910

Close friends had left New York and homesteaded in the Evergreen district Their letters persuaded Oscar and Fiina to visit Canada

It was June 23, 1913, when Linds arrived at Evergreen to visit Mr and Mrs. John Laine Their homestead, W-16-38-4-W5, is now owned by Frank Dobia That summer the two families lived in a one roomed shack. Later in 1913 Mr and Mrs. Lind took a homestead in the Hespero district. It was an open winter and very warm on December 26, 1913, when they moved to live in a small shack someone previously built on this land

Mrs Lind worked in a hospital while in New York Soon she was very busy acting as midwife Many babies in this district were born with Mrs Lind's assistance Day and night and in all kinds of weather she travelled whenever her help was needed She vividly remembers running through the woods in the dark to deliver a baby Sometimes in the winter she would ride horseback, behind the father, through deep snow and drifts

In New York on December 26, 1911, their only child died at birth

Mr and Mrs. Lind adopted Elno in 1917 Oscar Lind passed away on February 13, 1960 He is buried in the Hespero Cemetery. Mrs Fiina Lind still lives on the farm in the Hespero district

LINDSAY, ROBERT AND MIRIAM

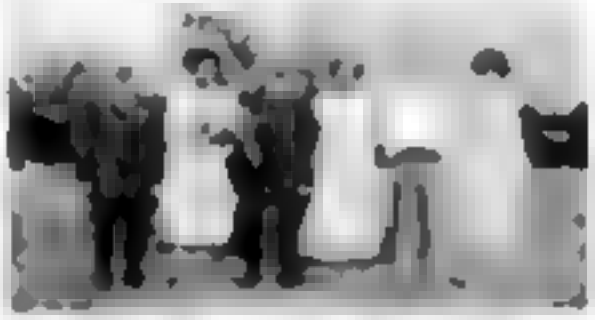
Robert Lindsay came to Canada from Aberdeenshire, Scotland at the age of 21. He married Miriam Hornby in 1927 and they resided in the Nateby-Gem, Alberta area until 1932 when they moved to the Evergreen area the former Jack Wicks farm Their son Robert was one year old at the time. A short time later they moved to the Condor area settling on a Hudson's Bay quarter directly west of the Herb von Hollen home, with their son Robert and a daughter Rosella

How well I (Rosella) remember the old farm buildings with their corduroy floors and straw roofs that leaked with every rain and the discouraging years when the hailstorms hit Mom's concern was always how she would have enough money to buy underwear for us children for school. Mom would ride horseback to town for groceries or Dad would hitch up the team and take the cream and eggs

Threshing time was a big event in those days Dad would go as spike pitcher for the Dudley Frith rig He worked for him for a few years and later with the Herb von Hollen rig The appetites and amount of food prepared and consumed when it was our turn was something again



Northup was our school district and the old one room school with a large round stove at one end stood on a piece of J Poland Senior's farm – approximately one half mile east of the Stauffer road, and two miles south of number 11 highway A new school was built about 1938 or 1940 The teachers during those years were as follows — Miss Nicholichuk Mrs. G. M Proud Erickson Miss Marion Tolefson, Mrs Anderson (von Hollen) and Mr Bill Kirsch. Dad always took an active part in our year end picnics. This was an exciting time of homemade ice cream and our first taste of watermelon. There was something for everyone at these picnics like the hog calling contest won by Jim Poland Senior and the husband calling contest won by Mom

Christmas concerts were another highlight during those years. Days and many hours were spent in preparation for the big night As the parents would bundle their children in cutters and sleds and head for the school. Bert Avery the Condor post master, was Santa Claus for many years. Sunday School and church were held regularly in the school with Mrs Munro and Mrs. Hornby as two of the regular teachers Mr Gygor and Mr Glover were two of the ministers who came regularly during those years

In 1942 Dad took over the farm from William Hornby and we moved the two and one-half miles east and north to his farm the present G. Adrian farm). There was no moving van — just the horsedrawn wagon heaped full of furniture and belongings Even the cat jumped on the last load, afraid he would be left behind and lumbering. By this time the old barn Dad had helped Grandad Hornby build was starting to lean, so he, with the help of our neighbors Terry Mulrooney, spent a couple of winters logging our bush. He also spent a couple of winters in Nordegg working for the mining company in the sawmill area to raise enough money to finish paying for the farm.

Dad never did own a car and if he had he wouldn't have been able to drive it very often on the muddy roads in the spring or the high snow drifts in the winter, that even horses had to fight to get through. The low areas of the road were corduroyed with wood but often came near washing out in the wet years. Winters were long and cold but Dad always kept a year's supply of wood ahead for the stove and heater. The good old oven was the place to toast your feet on a cold

PLUMBING — unheard of. Outdoor biffies cold and draughty but well supplied with last season's catalogue.

WATER SUPPLY — At first drawn from a well by bucket by means of rope and pulley, later by pump from a drilled well.

LIGHT — Coal oil lamps gradually replaced with an Aladdin lamp placed in the middle of the table.

LAUNDRY — Washing Machine — first a scrub board and a tub replaced by a hand pushed washing machine. Dryer — the clothes line — one out and one in. Iron — Sad-iron — heated on the stove and did a surprisingly good job.

HEATING — A large cook stove in the kitchen heated by wood only complete with warming closet on top (a wonderful place for drying eggshells for re-cycling back to the hens) and a large reservoir at the side of the fire box for heating water.

An airtight heater that gobbled wood, kept one end of the front room warm. It was nothing to have ice on the water pail on the wash stand on a cold morning.

About 1948 a new Massey 22 tractor replaced the horses for farm work. It also served as the family car complete with trailer behind. In 1958 Dad sold the farm to Fred Adrian and moved to the Condor corner directly across from the store. Here he kept busy with his garden and helping the neighbors at haying and harvest time. He passed away in July, 1965 at the age of 78. Following his death mother sold the property and moved to Red Deer, later to Jasper and back to Red Deer, housekeeping for various people. In January of 1977 she retired and resided in the Eckville Manor House until August of the same year, when she moved to the West Park Nursing Home in Red Deer, where she presently resides.

Robert Lindsay Junior took his schooling at the Northup School and following Grade nine he spent a few winters in the bush camp west of Rocky Mountain House. Following this, he left home to work at Scott Fruit in Red Deer for several years. He now operates concessions in Red Deer. He married Helen Grove in 1954. They have two sons — Clare and Brian, both working in Red Deer.

Rosella Lindsay took her early schooling at Northup and High School at Condor. She boarded in Condor with her Aunt and Uncle — the J. Hornby's — the first year and by 1950 the school bus ran for the first time in this area. It took a wide area — Northup, Stauffer, Evergreen, Gaetz and Daisy Nook. The driver was Dean McCarrol. Following High School she attended the Composite High in Red Deer and after working for awhile at the Bank of Montreal went to Berean Bible College in Calgary then on to Nurses Training at the Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary.

She came to nurse at the Eckville Hospital in 1961 and has been there full or part time ever since with the exception of two years spent in Jasper. She married Albert Ojala formerly of Rocky Mountain House, in 1965. For the past seven years they have resided on their farm (the former J. Kelm's) one mile east and one-half mile north of Hespero corner, where Albert is in the farming and welding business. They have one son, Ken, now 11, and attending the Eckville School.

LIPKA, THE PIONEER FAMILY — by William Lipka

Our dad and mother, August and Auguste Lipka, came to Canada from Germany on November 28, 1906, with their four children, Ernest, Emily, Caroline, and William, and settled in the Crowsnest Pass, Alberta. I, William, was two years old when I crossed the ocean. We lived at Bellevue, where Dad worked in the coal mines until 1910, when Dad decided to go farming.

He took up a homestead on the SE 33-37-4-W5 in the Evergreen district. There were no roads, only trails through heavy bush when the family moved to the homestead. We lived in a two-room log house that Dad built. The floor was only one-ply lumber, and the knots would fall out of the boards. There were numerous garter snakes in those days, and often snakes would go underneath the floor into the cellar. They would sometimes stick their heads through the knot holes in the floor and we would see them looking at us.

Times were very hard, and often wild rabbits and prairie chickens were our main food. Dad still had to work in the mines for a few years, and from the homestead he would walk along the railroad track to Nordegg. This kept the family living and also provided some money so we could buy a couple of cows and other things to get started farming. Dad bought two oxen and a mower machine. The mower wouldn't work when he tried to cut hay with the oxen, but when he later bought two horses to use, he found out that the trouble had been that the oxen were too slow in pulling the machine.

Through the years four more children were born — Minnie, Adolph, Henry and Annie. We took our schooling in Knowledge and Gaetz schools, although we older ones received very little education because of helping at home, difficulty of getting to school and the hard times to get teachers.

As we boys grew up, Dad bought more land nearby. In the summer we were busy clearing land and breaking horses. In winter making logs and sawing lumber. We operated our own saw mill, starting with a twelve-horsepower stationary engine and later buying a tractor which we also used with the threshing machine we bought to do our own threshing as well as some custom threshing.

Now the family starts leaving home. Ernest married Mary Hollander and they lived in Evergreen on the SE 31-37-4-W5. The Knowledge School was on their place. Their two children were Helen and Albert. Ernest's first wife passed away in 1943. In 1947 he married Mary

Mogilenka from Fernie B.C. and had two girls Judith and Linda Ann. Due to ill health he sold the farm and they moved to Eckville, where Ernest died in 1974. In 1969 Judith married Malcolm Thomson of Gilbert Plains, Manitoba where they now live with their two boys, Chad and Travis. Linda Ann married Harland Lutz son of Art Lutz, in 1976, thus uniting two old-time families. They now reside outside of Eckville

Emily married Tom Howard in Vancouver and they are now living in Chilliwack, B.C. They have one son, Jim

Caroline married Otto Edl son of an Evergreen pioneer) and had two children — Louise and George She now lives in Calgary

Minnie married Steve Hunford from Markerville They lived on the SW 3-36-4-W5 and had two children Isabel and Jonas. Minnie died in 1936 leaving Steve alone to bring up the two children

Adolph married Charlotte Marzinzik, and heir three children were Eric Richard and Leslie. They lived on the SE 34-37-4-W5 which they sold in 1946 when they moved to Kelowna B.C to live

Annie married Henry Benecke and they had two girls — Elaine and Brenda They lived on the SE 2-36-4-W5, but sold their farm in 1972 and retired to Red Deer

In the year 1928, I, William, bought a half section of school land E½-11-37-W5, in the New Hill District and started farming on my own In 1930 I bought a new 22-inch breaking plow from Jerry MacDonnell He owned a store at Hespero and also was a machinery dealer I started breaking land for him with a 30 x 35 Rumely tractor turning under brush and trees fifteen to twenty feet high, at $5 per acre

I built a home in 1933 and the following year I married Mary Szymanek I borrowed money to get married this was during depression years and there was no such thing as going on a honeymoon. During that time I found it very difficult to meet the payments on my land. We sold two year-old steers for $17 per head, market pigs around $3 per head, and five-gallon cans of cream for $1.50. I sold a carload of wheat at 20 cents a bushel. It was hard to make ends meet

We had one son, Rudolph, born in 1938. We sold our land at New Hill in 1947 and bought the E ½ 34-37-4-W5 in the Evergreen district from Frank Popeck, where we are now living

In 1965 Rudolph married Elaine Felti. They have two boys – Allan and Kerry. I am at the age of retiring, my son Rudolph plans to continue farming

THE MACDONNELL FAMILY AND HESPERO

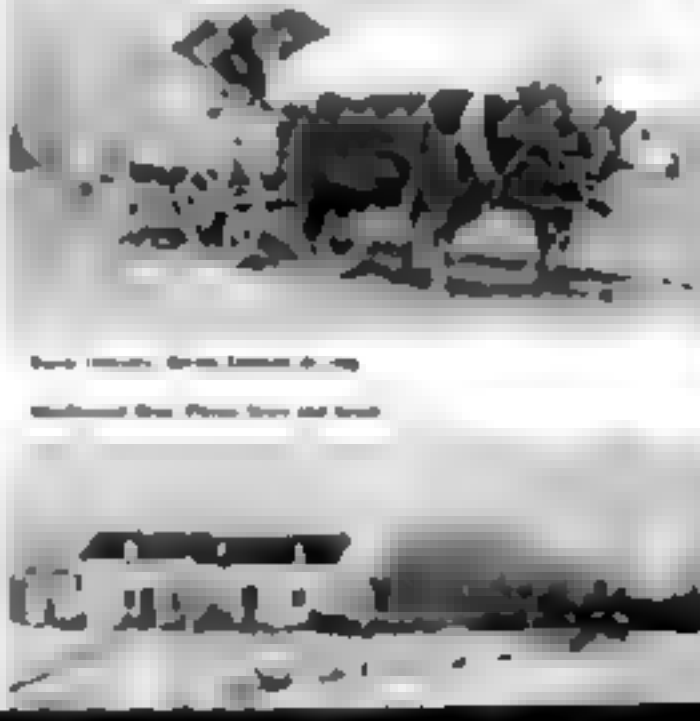
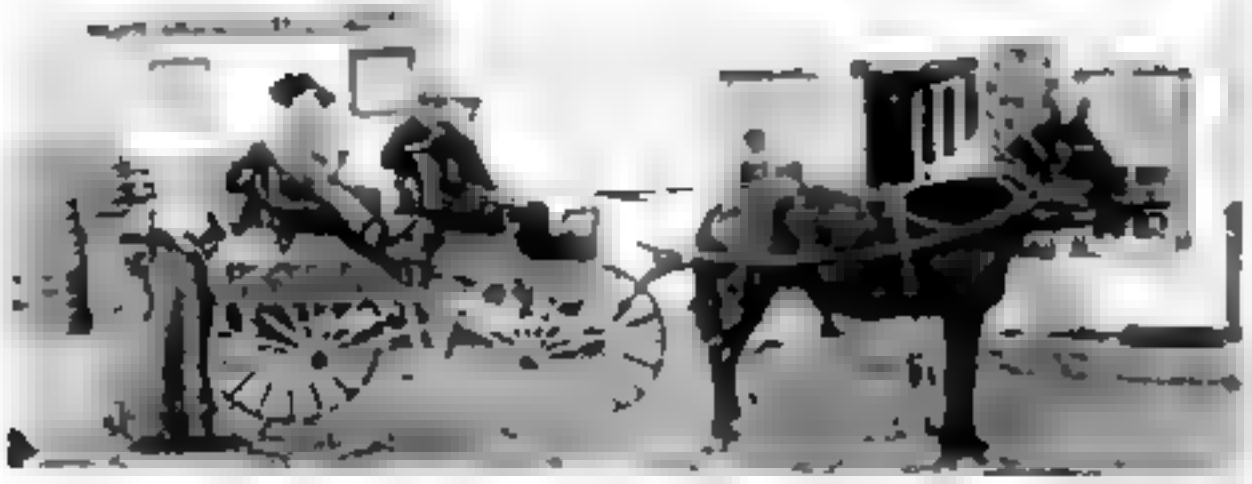
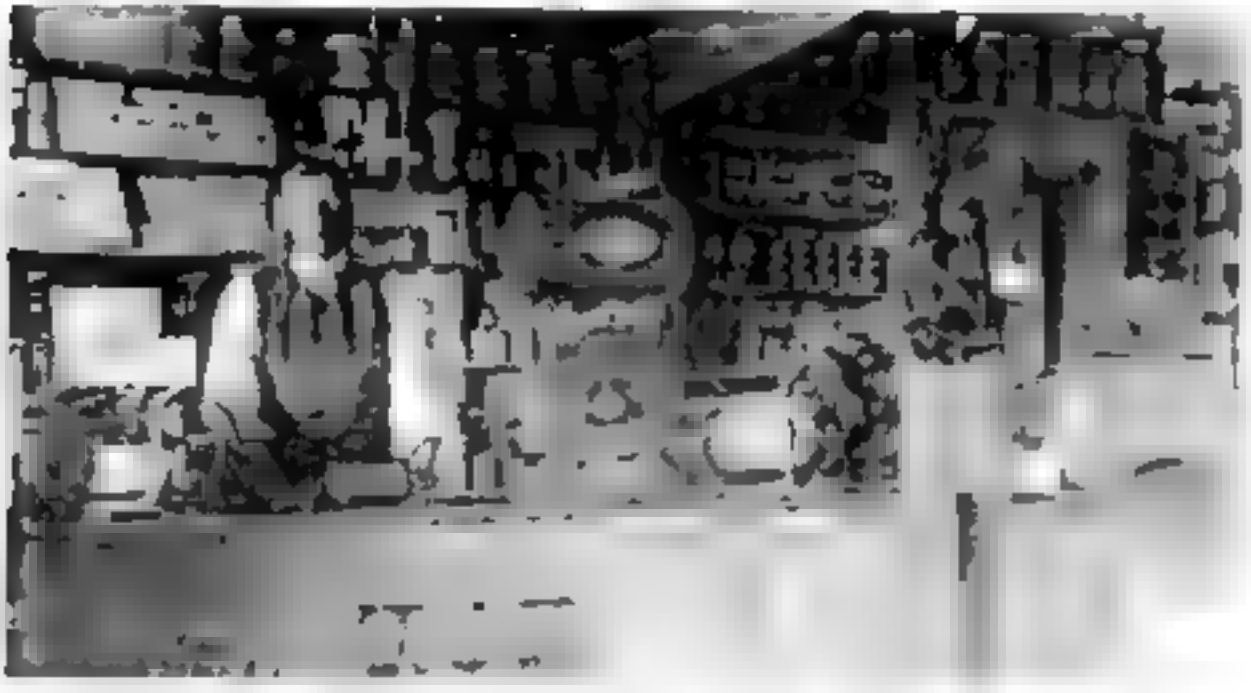
George Henry (Gerry) Macdonnell was born in 1881 at "Pitcox" Dunbar Scotland. Later, the family moved to London, England, where Gerry finished his education at Dulwich College. After serving in the South African War and spending some time on the London Stock Exchange, he came out to this country with his brother James [illegible] homesteaded west of what is now Hespero. A few years later the brothers and the late Frank Pearce opened a general store on Jock's homestead and named it "Pitcox" after their old home in Scotland Mr Pearce withdrew from the firm a few years later

Pitcox Post Office opened, in the store, on April 15, 1909, with G. H. Macdonnell as postmaster, receiving the mail on a semi-weekly basis via Mr A. C. Foster who had the contract to haul the mail from Red Deer At this time everything for the store was "freighted" by wagon from Red Deer by way of the Burnt Lake Trail.

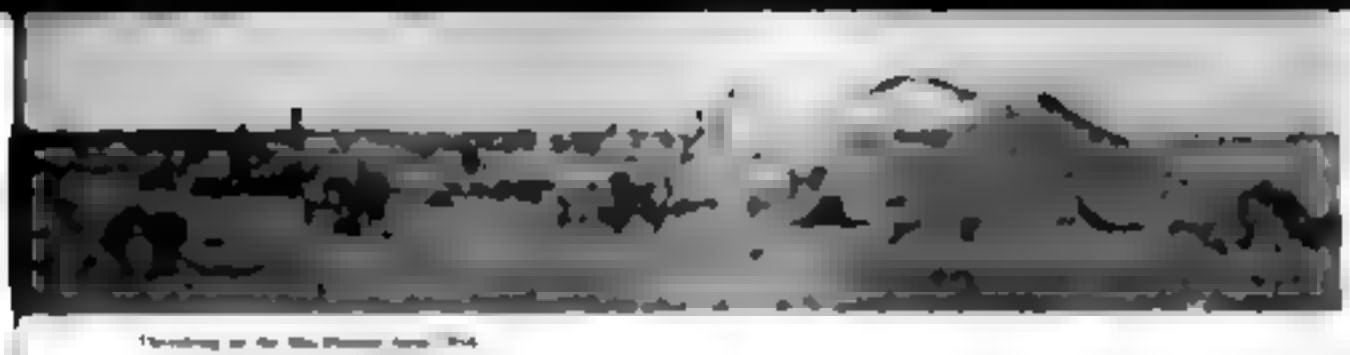






With the coming of the Alberta Central Railway in the spring of 1914, the Macdonnell brothers decided to build closer to the railroad. Business was carried on at Pitcox until the new store was completed. The store opened in 1916 with a dance in the warehouse to which people came from miles around in buggies, democrats and wagons. Instead of Pitcox, the railway named the new hamlet "Hespero". Jock Macdonnell and his wife lived above the store and Jock ran the store until his death in 1918, when the flu epidemic was at its height.

Now the freight came out on the train and it was just a short haul from the station to the store. After Jock's death, Gerry and his wife moved to the store and Gerry ran it successfully until he retired in 1946 due to ill health. He was postmaster, Justice of the Peace, Registrar of Births, Marriages and Deaths. He was one of the earliest agents of both the Cockshutt Plow Company and Imperial Oil Limited in Central Alberta. He also farmed several quarters and in the earlier years ran a considerable number of stock. During the World War II he worked hard on the Victory Loan Drives. He gave generously to any enterprise for the good of the community.



the Hespero Church and the Hespero Hall were erected largely due to his efforts. For more than 20 years, Gerry took an active part in the work of the Masonic Order in Red Deer. Gerry died at Hespero on December 29, 1947, at the age of 66.

Family

Mrs. Emily Macdonnell, the boys' mother, came out from London, England, to be with her sons, and lived in the Pitcox house adjoining the store. She was well known in Red Deer. She belonged to the I.O.D.E. and took a great interest in world affairs. Her hobby on the farm was raising baby chicks and she usually had chicks earlier than most people. Her cook, Emma Evans, came from London with her and cooked for the men on the farm. Emma later married Mr. Dave Cloninger and they lived at Pitcox.

George Henry (Gerry) Macdonnell married Lily Walker in 1913. Lily was the youngest daughter of Mrs. A. B. Walker who had come out from Edinburgh, Scotland, with her three daughters to join her four sons and settle in the Evarts district in 1906. Gerry and Lily made their home on the farm at Pitcox. They had three daughters, Bunty, Marjorie and Geraldine. Bunty and Marjorie were born at Pitcox and Geraldine (Dean) at Hespero. On this latter occasion, Dr. Richard Parsons came the 30 miles from Red Deer on a blizzard night in October. In those days it was not uncommon for Dr. Parsons to come out in all kinds of weather whenever he was needed. The Macdonnell girls took their schooling at St. Joseph's Convent in Red Deer. They got home once a month by train and on these journeys Laura and Norma Norton looked after them as far as Benalto. As roads improved and school restrictions relaxed, they got home more frequently by car or Sorensen's Bus.

Bunty Macdonnell married Ralph Nelson at Hespero, Alberta, October 14, 1940. They made their home in Banff where Ralph owned and operated the Magnet Meat Market. Ralph was active in the Masonic Lodge, the Kinsmen's Club, curling and worked untiringly for the erection of the Banff Recreational Centre. He died March 24, 1968, at Banff. Bunty still lives at Banff.

Marjorie Macdonnell, after three years service in the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. married Rev. Earl F. Smith at Halifax, N.S. August 21, 1945. They have resided in different Presbyterian Presbyteries in Eastern Canada and now Earl is minister at Park Lawn Presbyterian Church, Islington, Ontario. They have two children. Michael Dean Macdonnell Smith born 1948, married Eleanor Ford in 1971 at Whitby, Ontario. Dean now has a teaching position in British Columbia. Marjorie Lou (Louee) Smith, born 1950, married Michael Barati at Brockville, Ontario and lives in Mississauga, Ontario. They have two children. Mark Jonathon Barati, born 1971, and Michele Anne Barati born 1974.

Dean Macdonnell married Norman S. Toseland at Banff October 11, 1952. They lived in Calgary and have two daughters. Evelyn Dorothy (Lynn) Toseland born 1955, married Bob C. Hartog in 1975 at Calgary where they reside. Geraldine Susan (Gerry) Toseland born 1959 in Regina, Sask., living at home in Calgary.

Mrs. Lily Macdonnell married John Watson of Evarts, November 7, 1952. Mr. Watson passed away April 23, 1975. Lily now resides at Banff.

James A. W. (Jock) Macdonnell married Hattie I. Walker in 1909 at Evarts, Alta. Hattie had come out from Edinburgh, Scotland with her mother, Mrs. A. B. Walker and the family to the Evarts district in 1906. Hattie was the eldest sister of Lily (Walker) Macdonnell. Jock and Hattie lived at the Pitcox store until 1916 when they moved to Hespero and lived above the store. They had two daughters, Freida Bell and Grace Emily both born at Pitcox. Jock died in the flu epidemic of 1918 at the age of 36. He was well liked in the store and will be remembered for his kindness and gentility. He played the mandolin and in the early days played the violin at dances. Hattie and her daughters lived in Red Deer until moving to Liverpool, England. In 1939, she returned to Canada living in Victoria, B.C. and later at Red Deer, Alta. Hattie died in Red Deer at the home of her sister Mrs. Annie Wright on May 24, 1959 at the age of 73.

Freida Bell Macdonnell married Bert Sangster in London, England in 1938 and lives at Carshalton Beeches, Surrey England. They have two children, Andrew and Margaret. Andrew is married and has three children. Margaret teaches school in the south of England.

[redacted] Knott of Edgerton, Alberta. They have two children, Sheila and David. Sheila married Fred Calvert of Wainwright, Alberta. They have two children. David, who's interest is in cattle, lives on the family farm.

Events

During the First World War the Red Deer Red Cross Society sent out sewing to be done, pyjamas, hospital gowns, etc. Lily Macdonnell and other ladies in the district would gather at each others homes for an afternoon of sewing, each travelling by buggy and taking her own hand sewing machine along.

In the spring of 1921, there was an epidemic of measles. Mrs. Joe Nelson, Miss Sophie Lund, Miss Florence Sininger, Bunty and Marjorie were all ill. They were taken to the Macdonnell's former home on the farm where Mrs. Hanson and Lily Macdonnell nursed them. After everyone was better the whole house was completely fumigated. To give Lily a rest, Mrs. Emily (Granny) Macdonnell took Bunty and Marjorie to the Pitcox house, where she had continued to live. They had only been there a couple of days when a soot-filled chimney started a fire. Over at Hespero the Macdonnells were alerted by a man yelling "fire". Gerry searched the store, then finally looked out the window and saw the old Pitcox house and store in flames. He immediately saddled a horse and rode the half mile to Pitcox and was thankful to find his mother and girls safe. He tried to help Mr. McDougall, the hired man, control the blaze but this was hopeless and the frame building burned to the ground in no time. Meanwhile, Lily and Laura Giselman ran over from the store, (wading through the swollen creek) to find Granny Macdonnell and girls sitting on a sofa outside the hen house, bundled in winter coats over their night attire. This sofa and one drawer of linen were the only things saved. Granny Macdonnell lost everything, she moved into Gerry's house on the farm but she never really recovered from the shock and loss. She died in March 1922 at the age of 72.

It was many years before church services were held regularly at Hespero. At one time, services were held in the Macdonnell dining room above the store. Rev. Alexander of the Anglican Church came in a buggy from Rocky Mountain House to hold these services. At another period church services were held in a small building used to collect cream cans ready for shipment on the train. At this time wooden planks resting on nail kegs acted as pews for the congregation. Fortunately, this arrangement was temporary.

and eventually services were held in the Hespero hall. For many years, student ministers served the community. On September 29, 1936, a small Presbyterian Church was dedicated. It had been built by residents of the area. Mr. Campbell was the Presbyterian Minister at that time, living at Erkville, Alta. For years there was quite an active congregation but times have changed and people have moved and now the church has been moved to the Innisfail Historical Museum.

The Hespero Hall was built in the 1920's and was the hub of community activity, being used for dances, church services, political meetings, picture shows, sewing classes, weddings and funerals.

Picture shows were looked forward to with great anticipation. Mr. Jake Heintz would come with his silent movies. Unfortunately, his equipment frequently broke down and the audience was left in suspense, in the dark, while he went outside to start up his generator again. At times like these the backless wooden benches became almost unbearable. "Felix the Cat" was the comic strip, surely the whispers of "Mummy what does it say?" must have driven the adults wild. The first "talkie" was a real event.

Two of the many outstanding events held in the hall were the Annual Dance held in November and a Masquerade dance held on St. Patrick's Day. On both these occasions people came from all the surrounding communities and for the masquerade most came in costume. It was also the era of the Box Social and the Three-Act Play, with very good local talent, was always looked forward to. Music for the bigger dances was supplied by Ernest Kinna's Orchestra or Harold Bones' Orchestra from Red Deer. May 12, 1937, was the coronation of King George VI. This great occasion was celebrated at Hespero with a big fireworks display and dance. The Hespero Hall was filled to capacity and a great time was had by all. The hall burned down in the spring of 1938 and was immediately replaced, the men of the community doing the construction.

Macdonnell Bros. General Store was sold to Lorne Gordon in 1946 and eventually burned down in 1953. Through the years many people worked in the store and the house, names slip the memory but a few we can remember, 1918 Maggie Robertson worked in the house during the flu epidemic, Lottie Lund who died of the flu in 1918; Joe Nelson, Sophie Lund, Laura Wiseliman, Florence Sininger, Helja Wuori, Bert Spearing, Fred ?? Coupland Currie. We will always remember Hilma Sutela beating her delicious chocolate cakes and the many years Jennie Currie spent with us. Mr. Cal Fletcher will be well remembered for more than 20 years serving in the store.

In the Pitcox days dry goods travellers came from Winnipeg with trunks of samples. They drove to country points in a democrat and stayed overnight, usually with the store-keeper's family. They came every spring and fall with samples of the next season's goods.

MARTINSON, HANS PETER

My dad was born April 21, 1886, in Milford Iowa, U.S.A. only son of Andrew J. Martinson and has four sisters. The year of 1912, he decided to come to Alberta, Canada, and get a homestead. His father got home prepared to start out for a new adventure with machinery and household supplies, four mules and two horses. He had two boxcar loads. His youngest sister, Alma, age 16, decided at the last moment that she was coming too. They arrived in Medicine Hat and homesteaded 15 miles from Suffield, Alberta. A four-room house, barn, chicken house and granaries were built. In 1913, he sent for his childhood girl friend, Geneva Alice Shilling. She arrived with her belongings in Medicine Hat, September 16. They were married the same day. Dad had driven to Medicine Hat 30 miles away, to meet mother and to their new home they went. Their first hardship was to get water. Dad dug many wells, nearly 100 feet deep, but at last got one that was good, one and a half miles from home, in a low spot. This meant hauling water, which they did. They always had a few milk cows, chickens and pigs. Though Dad farmed many acres, there was never enough moisture to have good crops. There was always feed. Every fall he took his team and rack to Saskatchewan for the harvest season. The best crop was received in 1916. Dad and Uncle Jason worked at any job they could find.

His sister stayed with them for several years before going to work in Medicine Hat. She married a young man from Brooks.

In August, 1914, their first daughter, Evelyn arrived.

Grandad Martinson came to visit his son in the spring of 1915. He liked the country but thought the family should look for a better farm. As new neighbors were moving in all the time, Dad decided to stay. Drier years resulted in less crop and poorer gardens.

Another daughter, Merybe, arrived in July 1917.

By 1920, there was scarcely enough feed for the increased number of livestock. Dad found work, though it meant he was away from home.

In 1921 another daughter, Alice, was born.

Dad journeyed to Red Deer to try to find land with a better water supply. Here, he was told there was land for sale 35 miles west. He arrived in Hespero and borrowed a saddle horse to look around. At the Hespero store he learned of land for sale five miles south. Phil Laybourne and John Wyzkoski owned the E 11-36-4-W5 and wished to sell it. After checking it over, Dad found the NE quarter was mostly brush with about 20 acres bare. The SE quarter had some good timber with the rest mostly brush. A short distance from the road, which was only a cut line, was a flowing spot of water. He decided this had to be his new home. He made a down payment and returned home.

He wrote his dad that he had found a half section of land with lots of timber for lumber, good soil and water. Grandad sent the balance of the money and we owned the land by January, 1922.

That spring, Dad put his prairie crop in. He loaded his horses and machinery and headed northwest. He broke a piece of land, built a four room log shed and dug a well, only 26 feet deep with lots of water. In the fall he returned south to take off the crop. We salvaged all the lumber from barn, granaries, shed and house. We even took the fences. We arrived at Hespero on April 6, 1923, accompanied by a young neighbour fellow.

Phil Laybourne and several others met us with sleighs and horses, to move my mother, two sisters and the household effects. Dad, Henry and I rode our saddle horses to drive the cattle and horses to our new home.

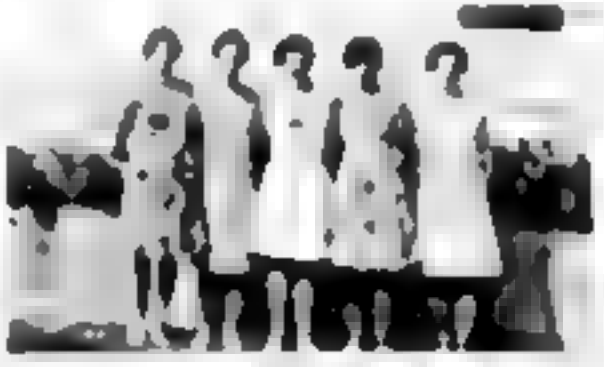
It was no different from the prairie. It was all closed in with bush. There was no place to have a horse race. We could not see our neighbor's buildings but we had lots of water and fire wood. It was only two miles to Gaetz school.

Dad started clearing and breaking land. He cut lumber during the winter. There was a good sawmill, owned by August Lipka and Sons, only seven miles from home.

That summer we had a good garden, grain and lots of wild fruit such as raspberries, saskatoons, cranberries and choke cherries for jelly. We had good neighbors to visit and everyone helped each other. The years seemed to fly by with a good living. Dad did custom work with his grinder and sawing outfits. Farmers worked with horses and slips, building roads to help pay taxes.

Another daughter, Virginia, arrived in November, 1924. The NW of 11 was leased for pasture in 1925. He pastured cattle for his neighbors and was able to milk some of them. The fall of 1926 was very wet, with nearly 100 acres of grain to be harvested. A stationery engine was installed on the binder to run the canvas, and skids were placed under the bull wheel. Eight horses were needed for each four-hour shift. Thus, Dad's grain and some of the neighbor's was harvested. The motor remained on the binder for several years when heavy crops prove[illegible]

In November, 1926, another sister, Ruth, arrived.



We had visits from former neighbors from the prairie. Dry weather and no crops forced some to leave. However, many of them thought it was too wet here and went farther south. Others bought land nearby.

We had a well drilled 46 feet deep, which proved to be a flowing well.

On returning from school in March 1928, our dad proudly announced the arrival of a son, Floyd George Andrew, named for his grandfathers.

Dad bought a stationery hay baler. He did custom work, and his winters were spent away from home baling hay. A Model A Ford car and two-wheel trailer was purchased. It now became my job to supply Dad with baler wire, gas and oil.

Our new barn was completed in 1930. Grandad Martinson visited and enjoyed our new home. He saw us breaking land with 12 horses. Dad raised horses and broke young ones for his neighbors. He never owned a tractor.

Another son, Melvin, was born in April 1931.

Melvin and Floyd Martinson

Dad received a Government order to bale hay, straw and greenfeed for the dried-out areas of Saskatchewan. He was away from home from February till May. I seeded 120 acres of crop with four horses on the seed drill, followed by four horses on the packer.

Dad returned to Milford, Iowa, for a visit, his first since leaving in 1912. A lover of rodeos and horse racing, we had a farm rodeo, complete with ball games, at our farm each summer.

In the fall of 1933, we lost our home by fire. A new home was started in the spring. We had just moved into it at harvest time, when we lost our crop by hail. Fields were under water and buildings were damaged.

On September 4, 1934, Dad passed away at 44 years of age, leaving Mother with seven children. Evelyn was then married to William Phelps and had one daughter, Marie.

In 1939 Mother had a sale and sold the farm. She moved to Saskatchewan where she married Andrew Holm. They had one daughter, Ruby, now Mrs. Peter Chernawsky, she has eight [illegible].

Mother passed away April 8, 1975, at 82 years. Stepdad, Andrew Holm, passed away July 22, 1975, at 80 years of age.

Merle Martinson passed away from cancer in 1971.

Alice, Mrs. Fred Birdsell of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, has five sons.

Virginia, Mrs. Tom Hudson, of Summerland, B.C., has four children.

Ruth, Mrs. John Bourne of Penhold has five children.

Floyd married Yvonne Greenwood and they have four children.

Melvin (deceased in 1979) married Marion Sands and had three children.

[illegible]

Matt Mattson came from Finland in 1926. He travelled the country from coast to coast for a few years and then settled in the Eckville area.

In 1929, Aino Nisulla came from Finland and they were married the following year, living at Antti Bell[illegible]kka's for a year. After that moved to Mr. Ahola's homestead which they rented for nine years. In that time, fall of 1934, we had moved to Richard Kangas' place for one year. Then we moved back to Mr. Ahola's place.

Oscar and Helen started school in the Evergreen District. The name of the school was Knowlege. We had four and a half miles to school. It was closer to cut across the swamp and bush where Matt marked the trees, so we wouldn't get lost and it was about two miles [illegible].

Matt liked horses and would trade them for a better or worse one. And maybe there was a dollar or two in it. And besides that, he farmed and had a few head of cattle.

We had a lot of good neighbors. There was always a helping hand when necessary. Matt and Aino had six children who were born here.

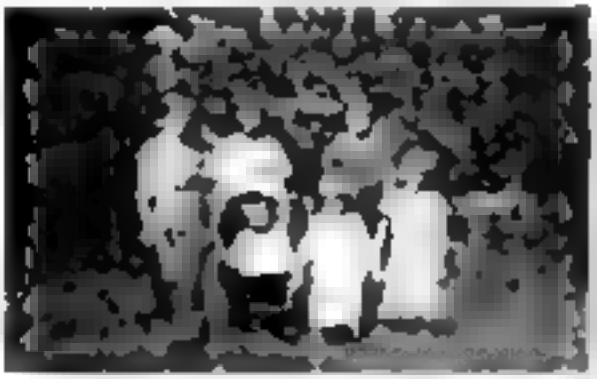
In 1940 we moved to Brightview District and made their home on the NE 22-45-26W5. Larry Lahti had moved us there. Elsie was born here.

Oscar is single, residing on the farm.

Helen married Viaho Havanka, and they live at Falun. They have three children.

Violet married Ken Kaiser and they live west of Wetaskiwin on a farm. They have two children.

Paul married Maryann Scholze and live in Edmonton. They have three children.



Three tall girls are Margot's. Oscar, Paul, Violet and Helen Mattson

Lily was born in Eckville in 1937, deceased in 1938

Edna married Melvin Havanka. They have four children. Edna deceased in 1963. The children live in Edmonton

Elsie married Gus Stephan. They live on a farm west and south of Wetaskiwin and have two children

Matt Mattson passed away in 1961 at the age of 56. Mrs. Mattson lives on the farm with Oscar

THE McCULSH AND McCREIGHT FAMILY

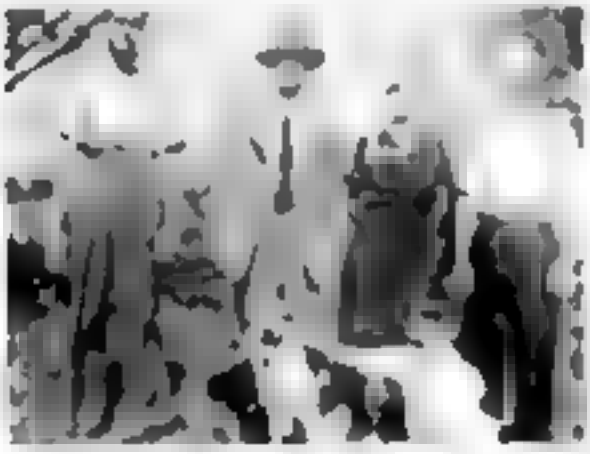
Mrs. Minnie McCulsh was born and grew up in northern Ireland. Her family consisted of a son by her first marriage, Stanley McCreight born in Manitoba, and a daughter and son by her second marriage, Nora and Bill McCulsh, both born at Hanna, Alberta. Mrs. McCulsh lost her first husband at Hanna in a drowning accident. Her second husband also died at Hanna four years before she came to Eckville. The family moved from the Hanna area to Eckville during the winter of 1937-1938, to the farm previously owned by R. H. Edgar of Red Deer. This farm is located one mile east of Hespero on the south side and adjoining No. 11 Highway



Bill McCulsh, Andy Murdoch, Mrs. McCulsh, Stan McCreight and Murray Trim.

Only about half the land was under cultivation, so the first few years were devoted to clearing the land and breaking it on the balance of the farm. Besides growing grain they raised cattle and hogs and milked quite a few cows. When farm labor became scarce after the war, they discontinued milking, and a few years later sold their livestock and went into grain farming exclusively. About this time, also, they made the switch from the older way of harvesting to the modern method which did not require the extra help necessary with the threshing machine. In 1957 they began harvesting with a combine, as did many others about the same time.

The immediate neighbors living on adjoining farms in those early years and who have since passed on were: Mr. and Mrs. Doug Snider, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Spence, Alex Ross, Mr. and Mrs. William Cole, O. J. Miller, John Cordon, George Currie, Carl Barhan and Jock Morton (who lived together at that time) and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Saarela, who had the Hespero Service Station.

Many changes took place during the time that the McCulsh and McCreight family lived at Eckville, some of the most noticeable being the amount of land that was cleared and brought under cultivation. The roads were greatly improved: nearly all were gravelled and some of the most important ones were paved. The rural schools were phased out during the middle 50's in favor of centralization, and the children were taken by bus to a consolidated school in a central location. The municipalities were also phased out in favor of the County System about this [illegible] was possibly the most important event. Rural electrification in that district was completed and put into service by the spring of 1949. The arrival of the direct dialing telephone system with the buried cable in March, 1967, was a great improvement over the old style. The organization of a gas co-op was the next thing to benefit the district. The work on the pipeline was started in the fall of 1971, and early in the new year many farms were using natural gas.

In 1946, Nora McCulsh married Jim Hartley, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hartley of Hespero. Jim served overseas with the Canadian Artillery during the war, and returned home in 1946. They had one son, Jamie. The family lived at Hespero until 1958 when they moved to Calgary, where Jim died 10 years later. Nora Hartley and her son still reside in Calgary.

Mrs. Minnie McCulsh, who lived to a good old age, passed away in the spring of 1967, and was buried in Red Deer.

Stan McCreight married Betty DeLong formerly of Lacombe, in 1966, and they have two children Joan and Bob

Bill McCuish and Stan McCreight operated their farms as a partnership under the name of McCuish and McCreight during their entire time at Eckville Stan McCreight sold his farm to Dr R. L Hay of Rocky Mountain House in the fall of 1972, and moved with his wife and family to Calgary where they still reside. Bill McCuish sold his farm the same fall to Ralph Bruinsma and also moved to Calgary where he resides with his sister Mrs. Nora Hartley and her son

McKELLAR, WILLIAM D. AND BEULAH

William (Bill) Duncan McKellar was born at Glencoe, Ontario, December 29, 1910, the second son of Neil J and Gertrude McKellar (Little) He came west to Jenner, Alberta with his parents in 1917 where they farmed until 1925 when they moved to Turner Valley and bought a section of land south-west of town. His mother died in 1925 and is buried in Jenner His sister Flora married Elmer Musgrove in 1925 and stayed in Jenner She is at present living in Brooks, Alberta His brother Andrew, returned to Glencoe and in 1935 was killed while riding a bicycle. His younger brother Alex, married Edna Steen in 1933 and they live at Drayton Valley, Alberta. In September, 1934, Bill married Beulah Mae Steen, second daughter of Carl and Florence Steen of Turner Valley They lived at Turner Valley until 1937 when their house burned and they lost everything they owned

Royalties in south Turner Valley was just starting as a town then and they built a new house there. Bill worked for Brown, Moyer, and Brown. In 1940 he went to work for Dominion Drilling on their rigs and worked under Ralph Bintnings until 1943, at which time they moved back to Royalties. At this time they were getting tired of moving every few months — they had lived at Patricia, New Brigden, Chinook, Taber and Cardston sometimes moving twice to some of these towns, to be nearer to where the rig worked In 1943 having saved enough to make a payment on a farm, they picked Condor, as the soil looked good even though it was raining hard that day and the road to the farm was impassable. They bought the S.E. 36-38-5-W5 which was Bob Blair's homestead. The road from the west country to Red Deer had at one time gone right through the quarter and could still be seen at that time

They continued to live at Royalties until 1946 when they moved to the farm which had been rented to Clayton Galarneau. Mrs. Galarneau is the former Ethel Bradshaw. However as there were only 72 acres cleared since they were farming with horses when the Leduc Oil Field started Bill went back to Oil Work in the fall of 1947 The family moved there in January of 1948. Bill got a job with Cody Spencer and worked for General Petroleums as Lease Crew Supervisor sometimes involving over 150 men. He was also in charge of crews trying to bring the Wild Well Atlantic No. 3 under control

All this time they were getting more land cleared on the farm and had bought some machinery including a tractor The power had also come to the district and in April, 1952, they moved back to the farm. They bought seven head of Registered Ayrshire cows and a bred of Yorkshire sow Over the years these increased until they were milking 35 cows. They also sold hatching eggs to Red Deer

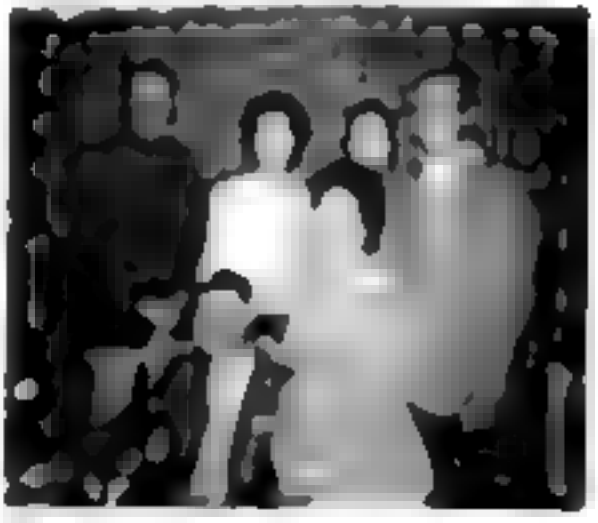
In 1972 they sold the milk cows and bought more beef cattle Then in 1976 they sold most of these and now only have eight head of cattle and three horses left. The farm is rented and they are taking life easier

While in the oilfields Bill worked at various jobs, including fresno work working on the pipe ing them down, splicing cables and doing all the jobs drilling an oil well involves

Since coming to the farm, he has been active with the 4H groups and was leader of the Condor Grain Club and the Evergreen Dairy Club He is active in the Elks Club and has held several offices, including Exalted Ruler He is also active in the Presbyterian Church. His hobbies now are learning to play the electric organ and barbecuing when the occasion arises

Beulah has had a busy life raising their family and helping Bill in all phases of farming. She is also active in the Royal Purple Lodge and has held several offices including Honored Royal Lady and District Deputy Her hobbies are knitting and crocheting and they both love gardening and raising flowers and have a big yard to look after

They have raised four children — Gertrude (Trudie) who was born in Calgary, September 4 1935. She married Carl (Bud) Gefle of Eckville 1955. They have four children — Michael, Tim



Connie and Donna. They live at their farm near [redacted]

Dale was born in Calgary, June 5, 1937. He married Carol Ann Westaway of Turner Valley in 1955. They have three children — Cherie, Donald and Wendy. Dale is a Staff Sargeant in the Calgary City Police.

Robert was born in Cardston, November 21, 1942. He married Sharon O'Handley of Eckville in 1962. They had two sons, Robbie and Mark. He is divorced and remarried. He and Carrolle have a little girl, Johanna Jean, or J J as she is usually called. They live at Abbotsford and Bob works for the Co-op Feed Company as a salesman.

Barbara was born in Edmonton, May 2, 1950. She married Fred Fedorick in 1974. They live at Kamloops, B.C. and have a little girl, Tara Lynn, born May 7, 1976.

MR. AND MRS. HORACE AND EMILY, AND [redacted]

Mr. Horace Meeres was born January 3, 1870 in England, the son of a prominent physician, Dr. Edward Meeres of Melksham, Wiltshire County. He was educated in a private school at Plymouth and at age 14 years apprenticed on sailing ships. On one voyage, after sailing around the Cape of Good Hope to India and the China coast, his ship was captured by pirates. He made his way to Canada in 1887 and after spending some time employed on railroad construction in Saskatchewan he came to Alberta and helped construct the Calgary Edmonton railway in 1890.

While working in Calgary for the city water system he married Emily Hornett on January 31, 1894. Emily was the eldest daughter of Sarah and Leonard Hornett of Kingsley, Oxfordshire, England, who had brought their three children to Canada in September, 1890. They later homesteaded in the Hill End district east of Penhold, Alberta. Mr. and Mrs. Meeres also left Calgary and homesteaded in the same area.

In order to make progress, like so many pioneers, the Meeres's had to seek employment to supplement the income from the homestead. Mr. Meeres was qualified as a steam engineer and was employed in that capacity on a steam boat on the Kootenay Lakes, and in the summer of 1897 in a lumber camp on the Little Red Deer River, where Mrs. Meeres also was employed, as a cook.

By 1904 schooling had become a necessity for their six children, so they sold the homestead and moved to Red Deer where Mr. Meeres was employed as an engineer at the Red Deer Brick Company and later with Bawtinheimer and Sons lumber mill. Also in 1904 Mr. Meeres was elected to take charge of the first Volunteer Fire Brigade in Red Deer. During his tenure as fire chief he rigged up a contrivance whereby the horses could be harnessed very quickly. This helped to increase the efficiency of the fire department so that they gained the distinction of keeping the fire losses in Red Deer the lowest of any place in Western Canada. The brigade's football team won provincial championships from 1908 to 1915. Their brass band was in much demand, as it was the nearest thing to culture in Central Alberta. Both Mr. and Mrs. Meeres had played in the Salvation Army Band in Calgary and after moving to Red Deer Mr. Meeres instructed the brass section of the newly-formed Cadet Drum and Bugle Band in 1914. Mrs. Meeres raised a large vegetable garden, and her flower garden produced many prize-winning exhibits.

Canada went to war in 1914, and Ray, the eldest son, enlisted with "C" Squadron and went overseas in January 1915 with the 12th Canadian Mounted Rifles. He was wounded twice — once at the capture of Vimy Ridge and later in the Battle of the Somme. After a long hospitalization he was discharged and sent home. Taking leave from the fire brigade, Horace Meeres went to officer's training school in Calgary and in 1916 resigned as fire chief and went to England as a captain in the 187th in charge of "D" Company. Horace also was wounded at the capture of Vimy Ridge. After a leave, he was sent back to France and was promoted to the rank of Major before returning home. In 1919 he was appointed Inspector of the Soldier Settlement Board. The second son, Edwin (Ted) enlisted and went to France with the 50th Battalion in 1916.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Meeres moved to the Condor district in October, 1919, bringing with them six of their children. Stewart, Milly, Rosie, May, Dorothy and Alberta. Wilfred and Ethel had died in infancy in Red Deer. The winter of 1919-1920 was a long, hard winter. Feed was scarce in the Condor area, and many farmers were paying $10 a sleigh load for straw to keep their livestock until spring. Mr. Meeres hauled straw from Bill Cruikshank's farm west of Condor village, but, in spite of all they could do, 24 of his cattle died before spring. Another trial of that winter was having no well. Drinking water had to be hauled from a neighbor's well and Mrs. Meeres had to melt snow for washing clothes. One night the upstairs part of the house caught fire, and Mr. and Mrs. Meeres, along with a neighbor, Mr. Bell, fought the fire with snow and melted snow, while the children huddled outside wrapped in blankets, trying to keep from freezing. They managed to get the fire out, but the house was badly damaged.

In 1927 Mr. Meeres sold the farm and moved to the village of Condor where he built a store in 1929, and in the same year was appointed a justice of the peace. The family lived over the store until 1936, when they purchased the Pratley house. Mrs. Meeres was elected president of the Condor W.I. in 1927 and again in 1928. Mr. Meeres was elected president of the Condor Social Credit group, politics coming naturally to him since in the 18th century there were 17 Meeres in the British House of Commons. Mr. Meeres brought the Atlas Lumber Company to Condor in 1938, it being then known as the Condor Cash and Carry Hardwareteria. In November of 1938 he was elected president of the Red Deer Social Credit organization and was also president of the Eckville Hospital Board. Mrs. Meeres was also interested in politics, and travelled with her husband to meetings in various towns of the area. They both took an active part in the Condor community for many years, and both were members of the Central Alberta Pioneers and Old Timers Association having a life membership. Mrs. Meeres was a life-time member of the Women's Institute and took a great interest in its affairs.

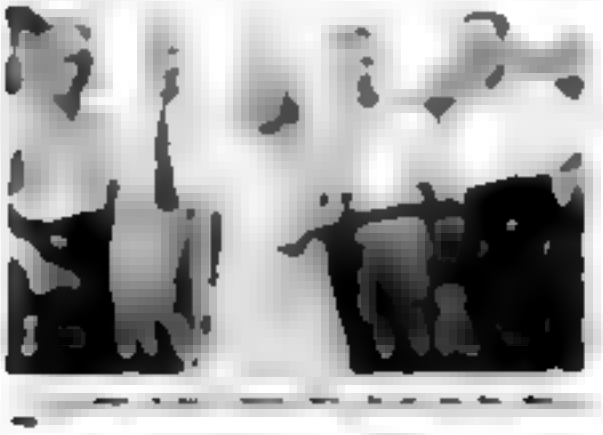
Mrs. Meeres died in January 1952 and Mr. Meeres in September of the same year. Mrs. Meeres was 75 years of age, and her husband was 82 years old. Their funeral services were conducted by the Reverend J. C. Gardiner in Gaetz Memorial United Church and they are buried in the Red Deer Cemetery.

Stewart Meeres, the third oldest son, helped clear and get under cultivation much of the farm. He obtained his first class teacher's certificate at the normal college at Camrose and in 1927-1928 he taught and was principal at the two-roomed Leslieville school. One morning while driving to school after a heavy rain his car slipped on the muddy roads and went over the bank at the top of a hill where the road wound down to the Horseguard river. Stewart managed to put a coat over his head as the car rolled over and over and managed to escape serious injury. He walked on to Leslieville and carried on with his duties. He had earlier taught at Shady Lane, Prairie Rose and Daisy Nook schools. While teaching at Daisy Nook he organized a hockey team, and while cutting curved willows to use as hockey sticks he suffered a bad axe cut to his foot. This required attention by the district nurse, Mrs. Eastman. In 1929 Stewart taught school at Nordegg and continued teaching in various other places throughout Alberta. The second World War interrupted his teaching career as he served with the R C A F. In eastern Canada, becoming a flight lieutenant. In 1929 he was married to Ida Wylie of Benalto. They have two sons and several grandchildren. They are presently living in Red Deer.



Ray Meeres joined the family on the farm in 1920. Tractors were being brought into the area at that time and he was much in demand to help neighbors get their machines running. In the fall of 1920 he ran the tractor for Mr. Bob Blair's threshing machine while Mr. Bob Prendergast ran the thresher. Ray tells of scouring the district for chains strong enough for the tractor to pull the thresher across ditches and through muddy fields as they went from farm to farm to thresh the grain. Ray married Hilda Carlson of the Delburne district in 1925. He then moved back to Red Deer where he was employed with Gifford Electric and was later a partner in Meeres Hall Electric. Mr. and Mrs. Meeres continue to live in Red Deer. They have five children, a number of grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Theresa Meeres, the oldest of the girls, stayed at the farm at Condor for only a short period of time. She was appointed secretary of the Women's Canadian Club and served as secretary for Gates Manufacturing Company and for a time was on the staff of the Northern Crown Bank in Red Deer. She spent some time with the Salvation Army in Winnipeg and attained the rank of Captain. In 1927 she moved to Edmonton and was employed as a bookkeeper for the Legislature. In September 1936 she married Don Thomson, private secretary to James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture. The couple moved to Ottawa when Mr. Thomson became secretary for Mr. Prudham, M P, and Theresa became secretary for Canadian Author's Association and also was secretary for two authors, Duncan Campbell Scott and Mrs. Madge McBeth. In 1967 Theresa and Don went to England to give a joint recital of their books of poetry at the British Poetry Society in London. Theresa helped Don with the research for his books "Men and Meridians", the history of pioneer map making in Canada, which was published in 1969, and a book on the story of early aviation in Canada. Theresa has had much of her own writing published in Canadian magazines while she also served as President for the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Authors' Association. The Ryerson Press used some of the Thomson's poetry in the book on the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway called "The Royal Tour" published in Toronto in 1939. Theresa and her husband had a joint book of poetry published in 1974, the same year she died at the age of 80 years. They had no children.

The second son, Ted, spent only some of his vacation periods helping on the farm at Condor. As an employee of the Imperial Bank of Canada, he was moved to several points in Alberta and Saskatchewan, working his way up until he became a manager, first in Saskatchewan and later in Red Deer. He married Miss Marjory Ramsey of Edmonton in 1934. They enjoyed winter sports and photographing wild life. One day near Jasper while getting a picture of a bear just leaving its winter den, the bear, hungry and cross, took after Ted. Ted made good use of his legs and got away, even hanging onto his camera. Ted retired in 1963 and has since worked in the Red Deer and district archives. He won the Citizen of the Year award for his work in 1975. He was one of the members of the Silver Blades who was presented with a plaque for finishing the distance in the Kinsmen Skatathon in 1976. In his 80th year Ted still skates once a week. His book "The Homesteads that Nurtured a City", will be published in 1978. Mrs. Meeres died in 1969, after having been a faithful worker with the Canadian Red Cross and with their church, for most of her lifetime. Ted continues to live in his home in Red Deer, still writing, gardening, and fishing.

eldest daughter married Norman Eastman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eastman, who came to the Condor district in 1910. Norman was a veteran of the first World War. Milly and Norman farmed in the Northup district south-west of Condor until 1925, when they sold out and moved to Calgary. Milly then became a hairdresser. They have two children, eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild. They live at Jaques Lodge, in Calgary.

Rosie Meeres helped on the farm and attended school at Daisy Nook and Prairie Rose. She later helped her father in the store and post office. In 1931 she married Roy Warden of Condor. They farmed for some years before moving to the village of Condor. Rosie was a member of the Condor Women's Mission Circle. She died in the Red Deer Hospital on February 21, 1955. She and Roy had seven children.

May Meeres worked in the Condor post office for several years. She married Max Gray, a grain buyer at Condor in 1936, and they moved to Viking in 1938. There May ran a flower shop and Max worked for Viking Gas Company until he joined the armed forces in 1940 and went overseas. They later sold their house in Viking and moved to Calgary in 1963. Later they operated a flower business for several years in Camrose, and May also worked in the craft centre. She took many prizes throughout the years at fairs and exhibitions for her work with leather craft, ceramics, fancy work, flower making and weaving. In 1971 she won a silver trophy for the most outstanding rug in Design for Living exhibition during Klondike Days in Edmonton. Several of her wall hangings are on the walls of the Parliament building in Edmonton. May at present teaches weaving in the Camrose area. Max Gray died March 14, 1977. They had three children, eight grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Dorothy Meeres, the second to the youngest daughter, took her high school and musical training in Edmonton, where she stayed with her sister Theresa. She married Herb Stockwell in 1934. He and his father were operating a sawmill at Arbutus and other points in that area. They moved to the coast of British Columbia in 1935 where they continued in the lumbering business living in various places before settling in Sechelt, B.C. Dorothy put her musical training to good use, working with Girl Guides and senior citizens. After leaving the logging industry Herb drove a bus on the Vancouver run. They have three children and seven grandchildren.

Alberta, the youngest Meeres girl, married Cecil Prendergast of Condor in 1934. Cecil worked as a sawyer in the lumber mills west of Rocky Mountain House. After farming for a while at Condor they ran a dairy at Sylvan Lake in 1938-1939 and lived for a while at Sechelt, B.C. before Cecil joined the army in 1942. In 1952 they moved to Calgary where they built a house and here Cecil worked in the building trade and for the Carpenter's Union. Upon his retirement in 1975 they moved to Sylvan Lake and built a house in Norglenwold Village, where they live at present. They have five children and eight

MITCHELL, ARCHIE

Archie and Elizabeth Mitchell, with their son, Andrew, nine, and daughter, May, two and one half, arrived at Condor, in April, 1929. They emigrated from Hamilton, Lanarkshire, Scotland.

We arrived by train and were welcomed to the area by Chief McDonald. We were then taken by a neighbor by team and wagon to our future farm home, about a mile east and a mile south of the Condor corner.

Our first neighbors were the Rogers, Crowthers, Drivers, Murphys and Jim Tobin. Several years later Mrs. Murphy was taken ill but would not enter hospital, the only place she would go was to our place so Mom could look after her. She died in our home and the funeral was held in our front room, with her friends standing in the kitchen and some outside as they could not all get in the house.

A few months later another daughter, Etta was born, and then in 1935, daughter, Joan, was born.

As children, we attended Prairie Rose School and our first teacher was Miss Johannson, who still lives in the Red Deer area. Our mother along with the other ladies of the district, used to put on plays, dances and box socials to raise money for Christmas treats that were given to all the children at our Christmas concert. We used to practice for about two weeks to get ready for these concerts, and that night Santa arrived and handed out the goodies to all the young.

We lived on this farm until about 1942, the farm was rented and Mom and the girls moved into Condor. Andrew and Dad ,oined the Calgary Tank Corps in 1941. Dad was later discharged due to his health, but Andrew went overseas with his regiment. Dad took a job at the Penhold Air Base, and we moved to Red Deer around 1943. Dad held this job until the war ended. The farm was then sold and we moved to our home on 54 street. Dad then worked for Mr. Bettenson of Bettenson Cartage until his retirement.

On Andrew's return from the army, he worked in Red Deer and married in 1948. He had a family of five, twin daughters, a son and two other daughters. All his family but one daughter are married and have children of their own. Andrew was a captain with the Red Deer Fire Department for many years before his sudden death in 1975. His widow still lives in Red Deer.

May worked in Eaton's store for many years before her marriage to Archie Allan in 1958. They have three boys and all live in Red Deer.

Etta worked at Gaetz-Cornett before her marriage to Albin Anderson, they have one daughter and three sons and make their home at Ferintosh about 70 miles north of here.

Mom passed away in 1955, just after planning a holiday to her family in Scotland.

Joan, the youngest, worked in Eaton's and in 1970 married Sandy Wilson. They have one son and farm in the area.

Dad still lives in the family home on 54 street and keeps in fairly good health. He is in his 79 year and enjoys planting his flowers and looking after his yard in the summer.

[illegible], CLIFFORD

I was born in Simcoe County, Ontario. As a baby I was taken to Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan. I had my schooling there and when I was 15 my mother and step-father moved to Alberta. They settled on a rental farm in the Condor area in [illegible].

When we first arrived in the Condor area there was only dirt roads, not too many people went to Red Deer. Where the springs are along the highway between Eckville corner and Benalto, we had to drive on planks to get through. In 1929, Walter Syren and I worked on a road crew hauling brush and dirt to make, what is now, the highway passable for the few cars to go to Red Deer.

In 1944, I was married to Lola Ray of the Leduc area. We lived in North Vancouver where our oldest daughter, Betty, was born. We came back to the Condor area and rented land where Carl Kendze now lives. From there, we also rented the farm Jim Bolt has now before buying land and settling where we live now. Our other children were all born in this area and had their schooling here. Some of them have left the area such as Betty and Henry Housen and three children at Alix, Tom and Judy Morrison and five children on the farm with us. Mary and Ron Ames and four children at Rocky Mountain House and Nola Massey at Freeport, Texas.

I can sure see a lot of changes since first arriving in the Condor area.

OSTROM, OSCAR

Oscar Ostrom was born in Lekvattnet, state of Varmland, Sweden, on April 11, 1887. He immigrated to Canada at the age of 19 years, in May, 1906. He landed in Red Deer and stayed with a cousin who had come from Sweden to Canada a few years earlier. It was through the encouragement of his cousin that Oscar came to Canada. After coming to Red Deer, he and Eli Anderson worked at the Red Deer quarry for a time. In 1907 he came to the W throw area and took up a homestead, SW 22-39-4-W5. He lived

Grant Main, Sonnt McPeat and Oscar Ostrom

here for a while then, finding it hard to make ends meet decided to go to the lumber camps at Fernie, B.C. for the winter, to make a grub stake In the summertime he came back to his homestead and built himself a shack and began to clear his land. After settling here he started hauling freight for the MacdonnelI Bros., from Red Deer to Pitrox, now Hespero. In 1917 he bought another quarter just west of his homestead land

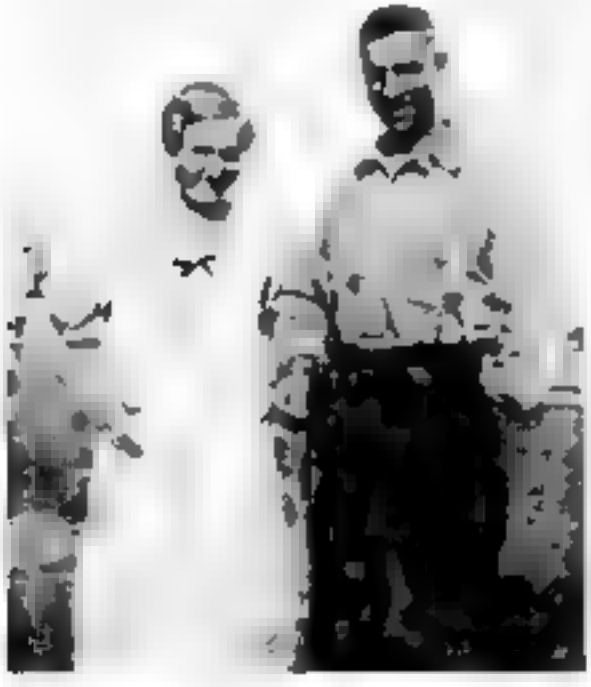
Finding it lonesome, he found himself a wife, being married to Alice Bonk on July 1, 1919 She lived in Leslieville, so they went by wagon from Leslieville to Pitrox and from there took the train to Red Deer. After their marriage they came back to the homestead and Oscar resumed farming

On October 11, 1919 they lost all their year s crop through a fire caused by a spark from a steam engine. The engine was being run by Earl and Ralph Evans who were threshing the crop. A large new granary which had been built by Hugh Murphy was also lost in the fire. Having lost their crop and feed for the livestock, they had to get feed from somewhere. Henry Molander, of Eckville and good friends and neighbors of the Wood Lake area gave them enough straw to carry them over the winter

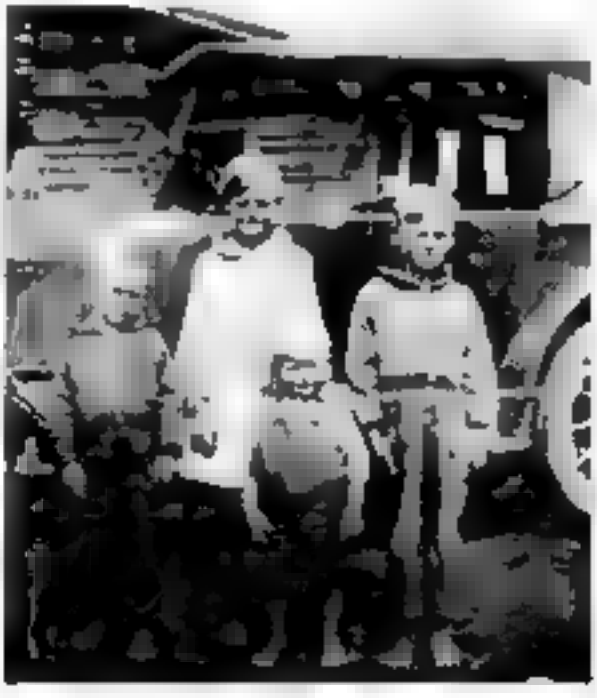
The following spring, they decided to ren. out their land, and had an auction sale on March 11 1920 They then went to Kandahar Saskatchewan, where Oscar and his brother-in law Andrew Pearson, farmed two sections of wheat land. At tha. time the country was very dry, and the crops were very poor, yielding seven bushels to the acre. The dust storms and some tornadoes were terrible. While they were there, their oldest child, a daughter was born in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan They named the baby. Freda

Finally Oscar and Andrew decided that it was no use staying on this farm any longer, and gave up the land. Oscar and his family came to Wetaskiwin and Andrew Pearson and his family returned to Sweden.

While Oscar and Alice were living in Wetaskiwin, their oldest son, Ernest was born



Alice and Oscar Ostrom



Freda, Ernie, Alfred and Donald Ostrom

However, they soon decided to move back to their homestead where they resumed farming. In 1929 they bought the NW 11 38-4-W5 from Dave Cloniger in the Hespero area. They began farming on a larger scale, raising hogs and cattle as well as grain, so required more land. As time went on, Oscar kept on farming and buying more land. His two sons were still on the farm and were helping him with the farming.

Oscar served for some time as a school trustee on the Shady Lane School Board — from 1929 to 1938. The Shady Lane School had been built in 1912 by Mr. Stockwell of Condor, Alberta. There were only four pupils attending at that time — Lucy Lowblaw, Norman Anderson, Arla Anderson, and Alice Bonk. The land that this school was built on was donated by Mr. Grant Hicks, now owned by Stanley Kauppi.

Oscar and Alice had seven children, four daughters and three sons. Mrs. Freda Elson lives in Calgary, Mrs. Joan Kaprich in Lethbridge, Mrs. Lillian James in Calgary, and Huda is at home. Ernest and Alfred work on the home farm and Donald of Edmonton, works for the Department of Highways.

After his retirement in 1955 Oscar made a trip to his homeland, Sweden, for a visit. On January 10, 1957 at the age of 68 years, he passed away of a heart attack. He is buried in the Hespero [illegible].

The Gastrom brothers, Ernest and Alfred, have continued with the farming, accumulating more land and more cattle. In their earlier days they had done a lot of brush-cutting and breaking land for people around the country. Now Alfred is doing road construction work during the summer months with their Caterpillar tractor.

They are also very handy at carpenter work and both have built their own homes as well as a number of other buildings on the farm.

Ernest is married and lives on the former Bill Buckle place. Alfred is married and lives on the former George Lee farm.

Mrs. Gastrom continues to make her home on the farm.

PICKERING, GARY AND NELLIE

Gary Lee Pickering was born May 6, 1945, second son of William and Louise Pickering of the Durham district, eight miles south of Bentley, Alberta. Gary had all his education at Bentley schools. A year following their marriage Gary and Nellie returned to Alberta. They first made their home in Sylvan Lake and Gary worked for Western Stockyards in Red Deer. Lou Anne Mabel was born October 7, 1971 and Nadine Cheryl was born December 12, 1972.

When the farm was sold, they bought a mobile home and settled in Withrow. Gary works for Mike Shippelt Trucking. The children attend the Leslieville school. Gary has always been active in sports, hockey, football, fastball and now the pony chuckwagons. Nellie found life here very different from Thompson but has adjusted and now enjoys living in this [illegible].

PIONEER LADY —Dedicated to my parents Roy and Rosie Warden— by Shirley (Warden) Beaman

On Thursday, January 5, 1978, my sister Treena and I visited Mrs. Annie Clement at the Pines Lodge in Red Deer. A first meeting for all of us. She gave us a poem our Grandmother Emily Meeres, had written in honor of Mrs. Clements parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barton. It was on the occasion of their 60th Wedding Anniversary.

To keep in family tradition, I wrote this poem in honor of Mrs. Clement and to all pioneer ladies mentioned in this book who have given us so much. We of this generation say "thank you."

PIONEER LADY

I met you for the first time
In the autumn of your life
And you have known fulfillment
As a mother, friend and wife
For even as we chatted
And you talked of joy and strife
I felt a certain magnitude
A quality of life
And its not found in tangibles
But in sacrificial giving
Faithful to the daily tasks
The joy of really living
Your life it wasn't easy
But nothing worthwhile is
But its only when we're tested
That one really learns to live
Over sixty years of marriage
Is what was granted you
A "gift of time" together
That is granted very few
You have bathed a tiny infant
And kissed away a tear
Cleaned and sewed and sighed and laughed
For those you love so dear
I don't know about tomorrow
Or why some things have been
But this I know for certain
Today I met a queen

He was married to Mary Elizabeth (Amy) Hart, a daughter of Fred Hart, a pioneer Leslieville settler on November 28, 1935. They farmed the old home place at Condor until 1949, when they moved to Red Deer where Jack was employed as a steam engineer at the Alberta Dairy Pool Plant until retirement. They had one son Fred, and one daughter Mrs. Marie Kerr of Toronto. They still live on Highway 2A several miles north of Red Deer.

F. Cecil Prendergast was born on April 5, 1910, at Warren, Ontario and came west with his parents in 1919. He attended Haultain School in Calgary for nine months and completed his schooling at Condor. He spent his early years working in logging camps and as a sawyer in lumber mills in winter and on local farms in summer. He played soft ball with local teams and football with Red Deer in the Central Alberta League in 1930. He married Alberta Meeres on April 28, 1934, and they lived on a farm one half mile west of Condor for some years before moving to Sylvan Lake where they operated the Sylvan Lake Dairy until the beginning of 1940. After spending a year on the west coast, Cecil enlisted with Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers in 1942 and attained the rank of sergeant. During his five years of military service Alberta remained in Condor with their three small children. In 1952, they moved to Calgary where they lived for 23 years, Cecil being employed as a carpenter, foreman and building superintendent during that time until retiring in 1975. They now live in Norglenwold, Sylvan Lake.

Their eldest son, Herbert lives at Half Moon Bay, Sylvan Lake, on an acreage and is a construction worker. He has four children, two boys and two girls. Their second son, Clark, lives in Red Deer and teaches at the Red Deer College and has two sons. Their eldest daughter Mrs. June Smithson lives on a farm north of Rimbey and has one son and one daughter. Their second daughter, Mrs. Kathy Bergan, is attending University in California and their adopted daughter, Shelly lives in Red Deer and works at Michener Centre.

PYKALAINEN, JOHN AND FAMILY

John (Juhani) was born in 1862 in Kurkijoki Karjala, Finland to Pekka and Katrina Pykalainen. They owned a small farm and a few domestic animals. This part of Finland was later to become Russian territory after the war of 1939-40

John immigrated to the United States at the turn of the century, later he returned to Finland where he was united in marriage to Serafiina Tirkkonen. In 1909 John and Serafiina left their homeland for America, making their home in Biwabik, Minnesota, U.S.A. Here their daughter Alma was born on New Year's Eve, 1910

Interested in the free land offered in Alberta, he joined a number of his friends and filed on a homestead in the Alhambra-Condor area. In this group were the Oscar Hillman family, the John Suteins, Matt Kangas and the Jacob Tuhkanens. A daughter, Selma, arrived on a cold stormy March 26, 1913 in a little two roomed cabin on the homestead: a baby sister for Alma.

In 1946 retiring was a must as John and Serafiina faced failing health so they held an auction sale and retired to Sylvan Lake. Serafiina passed away in 1960 and John passed away in 1970 at the age of 96 years.

Alma married James Young and they lived in Vancouver, Wakeman Sound and Soimona, British Columbia.

Selma married Andy Murray of the Diamond Valley district and they reside in Sylvan Lake, Alberta.

SAARI, JACK

Jack Saari, youngest son of Joseph and Elvira Saari was born December 1936 on the family farm SW 33-38-4-W5 which he purchased from his parents. In October 1959 he married Selma Murto. They have four children. Brenda born July 26, 1960 is in Grade 12; Carol, born July 11, 1962 is in Grade 10; Donald, born November 18, 1964 is in Grade 8 and Gerald, born September 12, 1967 is in Grade 5. All the children attend school at Eckville. The family have been active in 4-H work.

SAARI, JOSEPH

Joseph Saari, third son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Saari, was born March 19, 1888 near Humpila, Finland. He left his father's farm to immigrate to America in 1906, after his brother John sent him the fare. He joined his brother Walter's farming operation near Butte, Montana, and spent a few years farming, mining and lumbering. This was followed by three years' employment in building the Hudson's Bay railway. In 1915, after the railway work was completed, he travelled west to secure a homestead beside that of his brother John, in the Bingley district. He met Elvira Torsti that summer, just prior to her assumption of housekeeping duties in Edmonton.

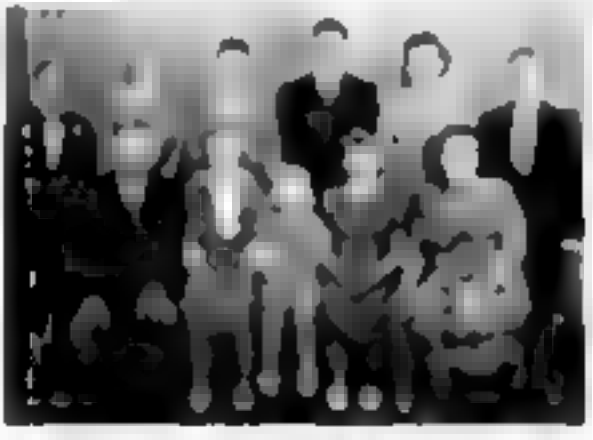
Elvira's parents had homesteaded near Bingley in 1910 and had sent fare to the 15-year old Elvira and her sister Hilda, enabling them to travel to Canada in July 1912. Elvira then went to work for the John Saari family as a mother's helper in 1913, while attending school at Golden Heights under Mr. McDonald, but soon left by way of the newly completed railway to work for a lawyer in Red Deer for $12 a month. Her subsequent employment in Edmonton was interrupted by marriage to Joseph Saari, and then terminated by the birth of their first baby, Juanita in 1917. Mother and daughter joined father in Drumheller where he continued as a miner for another year while Elvira ran a mine laundry.

They built their first home on their homestead in plenty of time for the arrival of daughter Elvi in April of 1919. This was followed by the purchase of three quarters of C.P.R. land north of Hespero in 1920, the beginning of the farming operation assumed by son Jack and his family when Elvira and Joe retired in 1959.

As pioneers on the farm overlooking the Horsegaard River they built a log barn, a house, which was later added to many times, and other buildings, while hand-clearing for cereal crops and dairy cattle.

In common with other pioneers of the time the Saari family grew their own vegetables, made their own cloth and clothing, grew and manufactured much of their own food while maintaining an active part in the community. Joe was a member of the Alberta Wheat Pool, a community road foreman, and Elvira was a charter member of the Hespero Ladies' Aid.

Another daughter, Aivi, was born in 1921 followed by a son, Eugene, in December 1923. Both the amount of land free of trees and the size of the family increased over the years. Edna was born in 1926, Jack in 1930, Miriam in 1932, Sylvia in 1934 and Violet in 1939. All the children learned to speak English after starting school and hold dear many memories of the teachers and classmates of Shady Lane School. Some of these classmates might be interested to know that



Juanita married Alex Linden and raised two sons and one daughter and lived in Edmonton prior to moving to Half Moon Bay near Sylvan Lake in 1977. Elvi now lives in Barons, her daughter Diana married to Frank Gwozdz, lives near Eckville and her son Benjamin lives in Calgary. Aivi became Mrs. Henry Nuumi in 1946 and lived on a farm near Picture Butte until they retired in 1976, still in the process of raising a family of five. Three girls, Maryanne, Ivy Marlene and two boys, Hal and Boyd. Eugene now residing in Prince George, has a son Matt. Edna now Mrs. Alexandropoulos, has five children and four grandchildren. Jack, married to Selma Murto, is raising his two boys and two girls on the farm near Hespero. Miriam, now Mrs. Elno Portin lives near Sylvan Lake, and has raised two sons, Wesley and Gary. Sylvia now resides in Red Deer and has two children and one grandchild. Violet, now Mrs. John Lilvam, has two daughters, Lilsa and Melanie.

Joe and Elvira celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary in 1966 and continued to live in their own home in Sylvan Lake until Joe passed away in March 1972 at the age of 84 years. In 1974 Elvira moved to Sherwood Park, where she currently resides with her daughter Violet and family.

SCHOFER, HENRY CONRAD AND ANNA — by Marian Schofer

Henry (Hank) C. Schofer was born in Moline Illinois U.S.A. the eldest of three sons and a daughter of Joseph and Katarina Schofer. He married Anna Mary Schaefer in Kansas City Missouri U.S.A. in 1913. During the early years of their marriage they moved many times — to Florida, to Canada, and then back to Kansas City, Missouri. Henry worked at such jobs as baker, street car operator, bricklayer, and as a fireman on the railroad.

In 1921 Henry and Anna moved to Canada for the second time and took up farming in the Margo area of Saskatchewan. The spring of 1949 found them moving again, to the Condor district of Alberta. Here they purchased the Walter and Bert Avery farm, where they continued to live until they retired from active farming in 1956.

They have two children. Dorothy Anna was born in Wauchula, Florida and married Albert Eric Hornfelt of Margo, Saskatchewan. Their son Harold was born in Kansas City, Missouri and came to Condor with his parents. He continues to farm the same land.

In 1960 Hank and Anna moved to Creston, B.C. for their retirement. Anna passed away on March 28, 1965, and Henry died on April 6, 1968. Both are buried in the cemetery at Creston, B.C.

SCHOFER, HAROLD JOSEPH — by Marian Schofer

Harold was born in Kansas City, Missouri, U.S.A. He came to Canada with his parents in 1921. They settled in Margo, Saskatchewan, where Harold attended school and later started farming with his father. He moved to the Condor district at the same time his parents did, and purchased an adjoining quarter section of land.

Harold Schofer and Marian Elizabeth Charles of Lesheville were married in 1955. Their four children are Dennis, who is presently working in Red Deer, Gary, Sharon and Vern, who attend school in Condor or at the David Thompson High School.

Harold is musically inclined and has been known to "make the rafters ring" on a rainy day or snowy winter's night with his accordion, sometimes being joined by son Gary on the banjo.

Marian worked for five years at the Lesheville Mercantile after attending school in Lesheville, and has been employed at the Eckville and District Savings and Credit Union for the past 11 years. They live in the Condor district, where Harold carries on his farming operations.

SHADY LANE SCHOOL No. 3005 — by Magda Anderson

At a meeting of the newly formed board of the Shady Lane School District No. 2905, held on September 13, 1912, it was moved by Jacob Kult and seconded by Archie Douglas that they borrow $800 to build and equip a school. This sum was later raised to $1000. The south-east corner of section 15-39-4-W5 was donated by Gram Hicks, a homesteader, to be the school grounds.

The first board meeting held in the building was dated December 1913. School opened in September, 1913 and Miss Flocelia Johnston (Mrs. Barban) was the first teacher. The following were the first students: Leland and Keitha Tweed (Mrs. Fred Bott), Archie, Norman and Arla Anderson (Mrs. George Lee), Daniel Bott, Art and Lucy Lawson (Mrs. Ted Loblaw). It is said that Mrs. Lawson named the school "Shady Lane" because of the trees surrounding the school and the trail going by the school. Shady Lane was closed for a while in 1917. The pupils went to the country location of Prairie Rose. In the 30's, enrolment was up to 40 or more pupils.

The Shady Lane School building was moved to the Condor Elementary school grounds in 1954, where it was used as a classroom for a short time. It is now a storehouse. Mrs. Florence Bodmer was the last teacher who taught in the building. Magda Anderson was the last teacher at the country location.

The usual improvements were made to the school and grounds. A barn, well, teacherage, new fence, chimney replacement, cement foun-

Throughout the years the school was the centre of the social life of the area. Christmas concerts, dances, picnics, church services and political meetings were held there. It was also used as a polling station.

Years ago Shady Lane won a contest in school ground beautification. Some spruce trees planted then are all that is left to mark the site of the school.

Some of the teachers who taught at Shady Lane School were: Miss Flocelia Johnston, Mrs. Barhan, Mrs. Edgar, Mrs. Brown, Miss Jones, Miss Tucker, Miss Ena Paul, Miss Mason, Miss Foss, Miss Cairns, Miss Anna Liner (Mrs. Andy Crawford), Mr. Tipman, Miss Cameron, Miss Rose Nielson, Miss Gertrude Hagerman (Mrs. Ewart MacDonald), Miss Nellie Saville, Miss Bretzka, Stewart Meeres, Miss Maggie Dams (Mrs. Briggs), Miss Hazel Johnston (Mrs. W. Prendergast), Miss Alys Maurer (Mrs. Elwood French), Miss Nettie Jean Phillips, Miss Magda Wold (Mrs. Norman Anderson), Mr. Kirsch. Apologies are extended to any who may have been missed.

The pupils in the last class at the country location were: Stanley Marian, Elmo and Eileen Kauppi, Marjorie Anderson, Donna Bott, Leslie Kult, Frank Kult, Fred Smith, Peter and Edward Duncan. It is not known for sure whether or not Gordon Shea was one of the pupils in the last class.

Charles Henry Skocdopole, the eldest child of John and Marie Skocodopole, was born at Osceola, Oklahoma, U.S.A. on June 15, 1904. His parents were Czechoslovakian immigrants, his father having come to the U.S.A. as a child and his mother as a young woman. Marie was unhappy with the Oklahoma climate, so they decided to immigrate once again, this time to Canada, when Charles was nine months old.

They arrived by train at Blackfalds and lived for a short time at Bullocksville, a hamlet between Haynes and Adx. From there they moved to Botha where John filed on a homestead NE 16-38-18-W4, which is still in the Skocdopole family, now belonging to Charles' youngest brother, Emil.

Charles attended school near the farm for six years but was more interested in the building of machines to help with the farming than he was in school. When he was 16 years old the automobile was just coming into its own and he decided to attend the Sweeney Automobile School in Kansas City, Missouri, U.S.A. When he returned he worked for a time as a mechanic in Ernie Snyder's garage in Botha and also ran the projector in the local movie theatre.

Land-clearing being one of the tougher jobs of the homesteaders, he decided there was a mechanical way to do it, and the "Brush Hog" was created. The Brush Hog was built by Charles and his dad in their own shop. It was a V type brush cutter mounted on a 15-30 McCormick Deering tractor. It proved a very successful machine, clearing much of their own land as well as their neighbors' land. In 1928 a 60 Caterpillar was purchased with a V brush cutter manufactured in Calgary mounted on it. From then on a commerical operation was set up by Charles and his brother Ed and the brush clearing moved west. In the fall of 1929 they were on the north side of Sylvan Lake straight in line with the main-

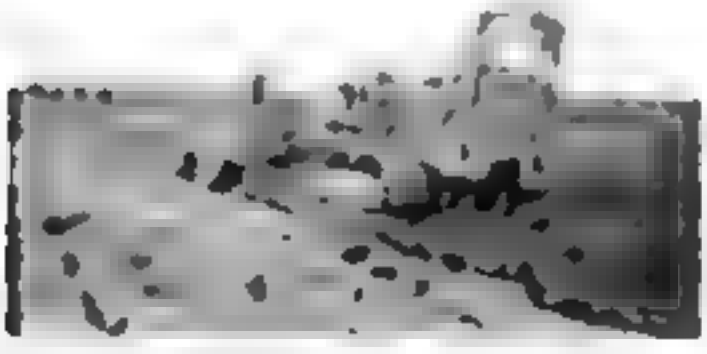
That November Charles, his two brothers and several others went moose hunting at Goose Lake, northwest of Barrhead. While they were there the Athabasca River ferry crossing froze over and everyone except Charles and Bill McChesney crossed the river in a basket to return home. Charles stayed to take the truck home when the river froze hard enough to cross, and Bill didn't want to go in the basket.

While they were waiting they went to work at the Pink Abernathy Mill where Mildred Strand, his future wife, was working as a cook's helper. They were married the following March 3, 1938 and then went to Botha for about a year. These being depression years, they decided to return to the north to the sawmills for work, working in the Abernathy and Tom Wolfinger mills. Charles mostly hauled lumber to Westlock and Edmonton. Roads were almost non-existent and he often had to load and unload his lumber several times per trip when the truck became stuck. While in this area their four children were born, one dying in infancy.

There were no schools near the sawmills, so when Ronald, their eldest son, was ready for school they had to return to Botha and Charles went back to land clearing, which had been carried on by his brother Edward.

On November 15, 1941 the family moved to their present location, NE 26-38-4-W5, having purchased the farm from Phillip Lloyd Cole and his son Ogden. It was fortunate it was a mild winter that year as the house was very poor. It consisted of a kitchen and living room on the ground floor and two bedrooms upstairs, these being heated by a hole in the ceiling above a heater in the living room. It was one of the first wooden frame houses built in the area and one could see through the walls in many places. Every size of board had been used. Some had been hewed by an axe, and the building was lined with Norwegian newspapers of 1904 vintage, that is, where the mice hadn't chewed them up. Everything was crawling with bedbugs, but

Mildred did away with them by papering the whole house and then calcimining everything green. The green color came from the Paris Green poison added to the calcimine. The house was repaired so as to become liveable and a bedroom and porch were added. The family lived in that house until 1954, when they built their present home. Charles soon added a repair shop to the building site and continued clearing land, repair work and farming



When Ronald finished school he went to work for Charles on the brush cutters during the summer months. The local oil boom was in full swing and Ron decided to make a year-round operation with the Cats, and went to work clearing for seismic lines in the winter of 1953. In 1954 Charles purchased another Cat - a D-6, and the year-round seismic clearing operation began. When Glenn finished school a partnership was set up between the four family members and a few years later the business was incorporated to become Skocdopole Construction Ltd. Charles was never actively involved with the oil operations, but looked after the business at home and the machine shop. The company has expanded the machine shop to become fully equipped and many a neighbor knows he can get emergency repair work done at any time when Charles is home.

In 1973 Charles gave up his share of the company to his two sons and son-in-law and semi retired. He and Mildred spend their winters in Victoria, B.C. where they enjoy ocean fishing.

Charles has always been interested in the progress of his community and was an early advocate for rural electrification and rural gas. He was a director on the R E A. from its beginning in 1947 and the gas Co-op from its beginning. When the Raven Municipality became a Local Improvement District in 1957 Charles was elected to the first advisory board for the L.I.D., and has remained on the board as the local representative to the present time.

Charles and Mildred have three children. Ronald Charles married the former Carol Kangas, daughter of Urho and Letty Kangas of Evergreen. They have three children, Clifford, Pamela and Patricia.

Gayle Elsie is married to Ralph English, son of Melvin and Ivy English of Calgary. They have three children — Rodney in Edmonton, Dale in Eckville and Dianne, wife of Bradley Forsythe of Rocky Mountain House.

Glenn Lyle is married to Fern Catherine Thorkman, youngest daughter of Charles and Sylvia Thorkman of Eckville. They have four children — Steven, Susan, Carla Jean and Gerald.

SMITH, JAMES — by James Smith

James Smith was born in 1915 at Irvine, Alberta. At the age of six years the family moved to the Alex Staudinger farm at Benalto, where we lived for three years. Like most farm people our parents had very little money, so when any of the family could, they would get a job. In 1927 at the age of nine years, I was lucky enough to work for Mr. Tom Britton, milking cows and putting up hay, at a wage of $5 per month. That summer was one of the happiest that I remember as Mr. Britton sang or joked every day. Sometimes on weekends we put some cattle or horses in the corral and had our own small rodeo.

In 1927 our family moved two miles east of Benalto where we stayed until 1938. I remember it was every boy's ambition to get out with the threshing crew. At the age of 14 years I went for 28 days. Threshing was a hard job, but a lot of fun, too.

A quarter section of land was bought in 1938 north of Eckville where my brother John and I spent the summer, living in a granary. While staying there we summer fallowed the land. In the evenings Olva Elson, Charlie Kasper, and Frank Zaleski came down to swim in the river or play cards. Saturday evening was steam bath night at our good neighbours' the Elsons or the

In the following years the six boys in the family bought a half section of land from George and John Crisdle two miles west of Eckville. Here we farmed until 1946, and were known as "The Smith Brothers". The house on this farm was close to the railroad and on the days when the trains went by we often counted the men riding the box cars looking for work. One day I counted 34 fellows on the cars. While farming there I remember two winters spent hauling cordwood with horses to the Eckville creamery to keep the boilers going. In 1943 we took on the job of hauling gravel for the foundation of the Eckville Hospital. John Makl and Curtis Broesling also had teams working on this job.

During the fall of 1947 the Smith Brothers partnership was dissolved, so I moved to the NW 12-39-4-W5, north of Hespero, where my family and I still farm.

Elsie Gerbatch was born in Brawlaw, Germany, in the eastern zone of what is now a part of Poland. This area was occupied by the Russians after the war. After some hazardous attempts Elsie escaped to the west in 1950. Her brother-in-law, who had immigrated to Calgary in May 1950, arranged for Elsie to come along with his wife and family to Calgary. After she had worked out for three years I was fortunate enough to meet Elsie and on May 1, 1953 we were married. In 1965 my uncle, James Smith, retired from the Bank of Montreal to come west from Toronto and live on our farm. He stayed with us until his passing.

Elsie and I have four sons and one daughter Fred, Stephen, Ralph, Linda and Gordon. Fred moved to Calgary, after graduating from the Calgary School of Technology, to work for Atco Industries. On May 3, 1969 Fred married Lynne Carlson, and they have two boys, Colin James and Mark Andrew.

Stephen farms in the Eckville area in partnership with his brother Ralph. He married Mary Ann Waisanen on August 9, 1975. Ralph married Joan Staniforth July 24, 1976. They have a son Gerald William.

Linda is in her second year at the University of Calgary. She hopes to become a teacher. Gordon, our youngest son, attends the Eckville High

The first year on their homestead they had one cow and a team of oxen. On one trip that Waino made to Sylvan Lake with his team of oxen to get seed grain, he fell asleep coming home by Benalto in the afternoon. When he woke up he was at Pitcox now Hemperol in the night the moon was shining, one ox was standing up and the other one was lying down chewing his cud. He arrived home the next morning, travel was somewhat slower then

What would you think of walking to Red Deer? Well, Waino did, to file on his homestead! He recalls walking many trips with a bundle of bedding and clothing on his back to brush camps looking for work west of Rocky Mountain House. One winter he snared rabbits to bring in a few cents. One hundred rabbits were sold to Adams Store at Alhambra for two and a half cents [illegible]

Waino and his wife, Alma, reside on their farm, N E 19-38 4-W5, at Condor. They celebrated their Diamond Wedding Anniversary on August 12, 1973. In 1978 they will be celebrating 65 years of living together

TAYLOR, LEROY

I was born in Bowden in the year of 1925, April 9. My father moved to Condor in October, 1934 where he lived until 1964, farming all the time. Mr. Baker lived to the north of us, Mr. Black to the west, Mr. Warden to the south, Mr. Melnyk to the east. I went to school at Condor and Prairie Rose.

It was very cold in the winters. In those days the kettle on the stove would freeze at night. We had a few foxes and mink for a while, then just milk cows after that.

My mother passed away on May 5, 1953 while on the farm. My dad passed away on December 25, 1976. He was living in Sylvan Lake at the time and was 87 years old.

There were four of us in the family, three sisters and I was the only boy. One sister passed away in June, 1967.

THE TWEED FAMILY — by Lenard Tweed

My father, Knud Tweed, with his brothers, sisters and their mother came from Norway and settled near Montour, Iowa. His father died in Norway and is buried there. Little is known of their background.

My mother, Rachel Rasmus, came from Norway with her parents, George and Caroline Rasmus, sister Nellie and brother Benedict in about 1867. They settled in LeGrand, Iowa, and the children attended school there. Grandpa worked in a stone quarry about a mile away. My mother married Knud Tweed and went to live on the farm about three miles from LeGrand. My mother was left a widow in 1908. We stayed on the farm for three years and then had a farm sale, buying a home in LeGrand in 1912. Shortly after we moved, her son Clifford died and, since Mother's family — parents, brother and sister Nellie, and Ell Anderson — had all come to Alberta to homestead, she was left the only one of her family in Iowa. Her parents wanted her to come to Alberta to stay for the winter, which we did. That winter she met and became engaged to George Jayes, which meant we would be coming to Alberta to make our home. We went back to Iowa in February 1913 and then made plans to return to Alberta that fall. We sold our home and shipped our household belongings by box-car. It [illegible] several neighbors went to Red Deer by wagon to bring us our belongings. We settled in a house nearby and my sister Keitha and I went to Shady Lane School that had been built that summer. That swelled the enrollment to eight. The same school housed 45 pupils many years later when Alys Maurer taught all eight grades.

Early in the spring of 1914, my mother and George Jayes drove to Red Deer and were married. A short time later we moved to the cosy little home he made for us. It was not finished but it had three nice windows, a shingled roof, one large room and bedrooms upstairs.

George enjoyed working with an axe — either cutting fire-wood or hewing logs. He served on Shady Lane school board. This quarter section was on the same section where all Mother's relatives lived, and she enjoyed being near her family, but only for a short time, as we moved to Castor on an open half section in the fall of 1915. I attended Arthurdal School north of Fleet until 1918 when my schooling was terminated because of the flu epidemic, the schools being closed for a time. Later, because of the dry years on the prairie, we moved back to the homestead here. My mother always enjoyed looking after chickens. They built a hen house for 100 hens. Dick Schouten lived across the road on the Frank Buckle homestead and bought produce to send to the coal mines in Nordegg. He gave them an extra two-and-a-half cents a dozen as he knew he could guarantee fresh eggs to his special customers living there. So when a 12 dozen crate was filled, George carried it to Dick and received cash every time.

In 1926 I went back to Iowa and worked on a farm there. While there I met my future wife Grace O'Neal. I returned to Alberta, rented a farm in the Marianne district and two years later went back to Iowa and was married (1929). We came to Alberta to farm in the Condor district. While I was away Mother passed away of pneumonia. Having cooked in a lumber camp in California, George was quite capable of looking after their three children. Gladys, the eldest, was 14 and Elmer Bud and Nellie younger all going to Shady Lane School. Four months after mother's passing, George, too, passed away. He took sick and died quite suddenly of pneumonia. The three young folks then made their home with Grace and me. They lived with us until they were old enough to go out on their own. Gladys married Johnnie Rasmussen and Nellie married Richard Rasmussen. Johnnie's nephew Elmer served in World War II.

We had three sons — Myron, born 1930, and twins, Vernon and Virgil, born 1934. Our home is the former Otto Neigard land that they bought from the Hudson's Bay Co. and is a half mile north of Condor, where the boys went to school.

Grace passed away in 1942 from a heart condition brought on by rheumatic fever. She lived for her family, her home, and her church. She is buried in Leslieville cemetery where my mother and step-father are also buried.

Myron took Grade 11 and 12 at Didsbury there being no high school in Condor. After graduation he went to Bible School there and also studied music. Later he went to Cascade College in Portland Oregon, where he met Pauline Pethcord, who was also studying music. They were married in Portland. Myron has made music his profession and after studying in several places received his Doctor's Degree in California. He teaches music in Point Loma College in San Diego, California. He is also minister of music at the Rancho Bernardo Community Church in Rancho Bernardo. They have two sons and two daughters. Randy finished high school and is studying music. Robin has finished high school this past year. Greg and Heather are both in school. The family gave a concert at Condor last September.

Vernon and Virgil took their schooling in Condor and attended Bible School in Didsbury. Vernon married Jean Vincent of the Red Deer Pine Lake area. He worked in Woodward's down-town store in Edmonton, then went to the new store in North Edmonton. He was later transferred to Calgary where he was in charge of sporting goods and toys. While in Calgary he was sent to eastern Canada and New York to buy toys for the store. Later while in the Vancouver store he was sent to foreign countries to buy toys for Woodward's. He is now back at Edmonton's downtown store, where he is merchandise manager for hard goods. They have three children, Karen, Dale and Roger.

Virgil married Joy Paul from Red Deer Hill area in Saskatchewan. He worked for the Government of Alberta in Edmonton and was later transferred to Calgary where he is with the personnel Dept. of the provincial government. They have two children, Jill and Darrell.

VERN EDLEN, TED

We came to the Condor area in 1945 at which time hog raising was our main hobby. At this time, we were handling around 250 hogs and as time went on we got up to 425. Well, nearly everything got to smell and look like hogs, so after some of our debts were paid the hog situation got smaller and smaller until we had a quantity that we were able to handle properly. At two different stages, we nearly lost our new barn plus our piggery dive-up, so at this point we quit the idea of having sows coming in in the winter months and this, naturally, cut the work problem in half. As time went on, the pigs were all disposed of, and we went into cattle. This was a kind of easing off somewhat in logging as age was beginning to tell, plus the fact that by now our seven children were all on their own, five married and two working out (six boys and one girl was our family).

The scrap hobby resulted in much popularity for the boss, as he made a 'tractor' fence with 100 units in a line-up across the middle of the field and everyone who went by made a practice of stopping into see this fence. News of the fence reached to many parts of Alberta, as well as right across Canada. We even had a writer stop in from New York who said he was going to publish a book with Ted's name and hobby mentioned. We never did see the book but some friends of ours told us they read an article about the tractor fence in a book he read from a library which drew a lot of people looking for car parts and this is still in existence today in 1977.

Lillian, his wife, has a hobby all her own and that is looking after and running a bottle depot on this farm. She got to know a lot of new people in this manner and is widely known as well. I also raise a large garden to help out some of my children who live in the city where garden space is very limited. For an extra help to my fellow friends, I also raise bedding plants, which seem to gain popularity as time goes on. I made my own greenhouse, starting on a small scale for my own use but within three short years I found it necessary to build another greenhouse larger, in size to accommodate my many new-made friends' needs. I still have another hobby which takes care of the long winter months and that is skinning coyotes for those who can't master this art. Even this adds to the pleasure it gives you to see the surprised look on the faces of the coyote hunters when they "can't believe that a coyote so badly shot and mangled up" can look so good when the job on it is all completed.

Well, all in all, if I have any spare time left, I like to read my Bible, for it is from there that I get my strength and inspiration to keep going. Now don't get the idea wrong, that I don't have any time left over, for that is not so. I have already worn out my first Bible and found it necessary to buy a larger print book as my eyes are getting a little bit old for the smaller print especially for evening reading

Well, this is about all of my interests, except that we have a wonderful bunch of very good neighbors and friends, always there when you need them

WARDEN, ROBERT

Robert William (Roy) was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, December 3, 1899. He was the youngest of three boys. The two older children, Jim and Dick, died at a young age, leaving Roy as an only child

In 1906 his parents, Robert William and Anna Warden left Scotland. Roy would be seven at the time. They sailed to New Zealand and finally to Vancouver where the family lived until 1914. The Wardens then moved east, settling in Carmangay, Alberta. In 1919, along with Mr. Warden's brother Archie, they purchased a quarter section of land a half mile north and one mile west of Condor.

Mr. Warden was very well thought of by his neighbors and friends. He spoke with a fine Scottish burr. He rolled his R's and when he spoke his son's name, it came out "Rie". He never smoked cigarettes and never swore.

Mr. and Mrs. Warden were original homesteaders. Both had very fine qualities and high standards. They both attended the small church in Condor regularly. Mrs. Warden played the organ for many years.

Mr. Warden died in 1923, just before Christmas. Mrs. Warden was very musical and sang many Scottish songs which her son Roy passed on to his children and we sang them many times. Mrs. Warden was an active member of the W.I. and the Mission Circle.

In August of 1934, Mrs. Warden married Jack Shaw. It is noted in the minutes of the W.I. of October 11, 1934 that M. Best and Mrs. Barton had bought them a chair. They lived first in the house next to the Condor hall until Jack Shaw built their own home across the road. Mr. Shaw with Bert Avery also built and operated a store which they later sold to Mr. Wallace Clement. Mr. Shaw died in 1946 and Mrs. Shaw (Warden) in 1948.

Roy Warden married Mona Prendergast November 11, 1920. They had two sons William Robert (Bill) and Richard Wellington (Dick). Mona died on February 2, 1924 and their two sons were raised by their two respective grandmothers, Mrs. Predergast taking Dick and Mrs. Warden raising Bill. Both boys went to war. Dick in the air force and Bill in the army. Dick became an instructor pilot and was killed while on a training mission over Cairo, Egypt, in 1944.

Bill married an English war bride, Mary Geale. Mary died in 1968 with cancer. They had two sons Bob and Barry. Bill lives on the island in Comox, B. C. In 1931, Roy married Rosie Meeres. They had seven children: Horace, Shirley, Elsie, Bruce, Ted, Treena and Shelley.

Our parents, Roy and Rosie, lived on the original homestead until 1947 when they sold it to Bill Lougheed. The short while we lived on the farm was filled with many, many events. Some good, some bad, but all having their place in the building of our lives.

Mom and Dad were very unique people. Dad loved sports and was a fine athelete. His ball playing ability was well known throughout the west country. Both Mom and Dad were very musical. Dad played by ear and struck many a merry tune on the violin. Mom played the guitar and piano. They both enjoyed reading and telling us stories of their youth. Dad was especially fond of talking about Vancouver and Scotland.

Perhaps it can be best summed up by the following poem which Dad often repeated and wrote in Treena's diary.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said
This is my own, my native land

Robt. Burns

and Mom wrote "Shirley's"

Be good sweet maid
And let these who will be clever
Do noble deeds
Not dream them all day long
And you will find
Your life will be
One grand sweet song

Mom died February 19, 1955. Dad died June 6 [illegible].

One outstanding event was when our brother Horace, drank some lye. He was in the hospital and nursing homes for over five years. I remember Mom telling me that at least three times they were (she and Dad) asked to go to Edmonton to say good-bye to him that he survived each time and is still going strong today. He was either two or three years old at the time.

The fall of 1925 was very wet. A small creek on Dad's land had flooded its banks. Frank and George Barton were coming to thresh. Dad never got anyone else. It took four teams of horses to pull the grain separator across the creek. The water was up to the horses bellies.

In 1936, Condor won the Alberta Fastball Championship. Dad was the pitcher and his son, Bill, was also on the team. He was also a pitcher. They never used gloves except for the catcher and first baseman. Dad's son, Bruce, was and still is an outstanding ball player and has batted many a home-run for his team. He, Bruce, also liked to play pranks and was a ring leader of such things as turning off the main switch at the school when they (the Condor people) were watching a National Film Board presentation. He and his buddies would then run and hide from the wrath of their elders. Our Dad told us many adventures about pranks the young men played at Halloween. One was when they dismantled a wagon and carried it piece by piece up into a hay [illegible] and put it all together again, to the amazement of the farmer.

Our brother. Ted, inherited the love of sports from his father He was and still is a good hockey player I can remember him writing into the radio station in Red Deer and telling them he wanted to be a goalie like Turk Broda, who was the star for the Toronto Maple Leafs He never attained this status, however that is what dreams are made of

BARWICK, JOHN NE 32-42-4-W5

John (Jack) Barwick first came to the Mount View district in 1909, and homesteaded what is now the Youb farm. He had immigrated to Canada with his boyhood friend Jerry Bell from their home near Sandringham, Norfolk England. They had worked their way west from Winnipeg and Mr Bell settled on the quarter adjoining the one Dad had chosen. Dad built a small cabin on the farm and cleared some land then later went to Southern Alberta where he obtained work in a stone quarry near Nobleford. It was there he met our mother, Mary Sybil Nicolson from Stornoway Scotland who had come over to visit her sister. They were married at Lethbridge in 1911, then moved to Believue, in the Crows Nest Pass, where Dad worked as a miner and their eldest daughter Babs was born.

Dad joined the army in 1914 when the first World War began, and served overseas for four years mainly in France and Belgium. After his return, they moved back up to the farm in 1919. They had shipped their livestock and household goods by railroad to Lacombe which was the end of the line at that time.

From there, Dad drove a wagon hitched to four half-broken broncs and loaded with the furniture, chickens and one sow, while Mother walked behind herding the cattle. The trip took three days and she often told us the story of being so tired she could not walk another step on the last night of the trip, so they camped at what was later known as the Malone place, although they were only about a mile and a half from what was to be their home for the next 25 years.

It was so cold during that first winter that new born calves had to be brought into the cabin so that they wouldn't freeze to death and Dad said he went to Rimbey with the sleighs on May 24, 1920, as there was still so much snow.

Dad was very active in community affairs and worked very hard to get a school established at Mount View as the nearest ones at that time were Wiesden Green and Leedale. We did not have a very large school population at any time during the early years but we were certainly very proud of ourselves the years we won the award for physical training at the Spring Festival in Rimbey about 1932 or 33 when our total student body numbered nine. Mr Vic Winter was teaching at that time.

Some of those who were going to school during the early 30's will never forget having to get up at five o'clock in the morning to ride horseback to Rimbey (about 14 miles) to be in our seats at the Rimbey High School by nine so that we could write our high school departmental exams. We were not allowed to write them in our own school at that time, and as the road to Rimbey was usually a sea of mud during the June rains, it was impassable for anything ex

My sisters, Kathleen (Mrs. Earl Heyland) of Claresholm, Babs (Mrs. I. Anderson) of Monarch and myself Jessie (Mrs. J. Caddy) of Red Deer, all attended Mount View, Babs for only a couple of years, I for all my school life, and Kate for several years although she was attending Meadow Vale also, for a year or so after it was built.

Dad was a justice of the peace for the district for many years and court was sometimes held in our home. During those times, my sisters and I were sent to the bedroom, with stern instructions to be quiet and not to disturb the proceedings although we usually managed to peek out occasionally.

Mother will always be remembered for her quiet kindness to her neighbors and for her generosity in lending her beloved books to anyone who shared her love of reading. She was also very fond of animals and almost every four legged creature on the farm had a name and would come to her whenever she called. Some of them were real characters!

Mr. and Mrs. Barwick sold the farm in 1945 to Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Moore and moved to North Red Deer. Dad spent his retirement years at his favorite hobby of gardening and his flowers were admired by all who knew him and won some gardening awards. He was active until his death in 1970 at the age of 89. Mother passed away in 1972.

BAUER EMANUEL

The Emanuel Bauer's moved to the Meadow Vale district in March 1935 with a family of 10 children. Emanuel worked in sawmills, then he built his own sawmill and sawed fire wood and lumber. He sawed some of the lumber for the Meadow Vale school. Five children of Emanuel and Maria Bauer went to the Meadow Vale school, Len, Gilbert, Herb, Albert and Norma. Emanuel helped built on the school. Emanuel and some of the neighbors went together and sawed lumber to built on the school. He also helped built on the roads and bridges with his team of horses. The roads and bridges would wash out.

He would use his horses to pull stumps out. Emanuel also cleared land by hand and with his team. Now easy with a brand new D 8 Cat. He also helped with threshing and haying in the area, and did some carpenter work. He also made shingles and people would come and buy them. He did a lot of blacksmith work and was kind of a vet for he would go and file the horses' teeth in the area.

When Emanuel and Maria moved in 1935 they stayed in Lesleville for a month while Emanuel was building their home. Mr. Denning, Ed Bauer and Emanuel went to Dave Adams for lumber to build their homes.

Emanuel did some farming with their retirement in 1969. Then they lived at the Twilight Lodge in Red Deer until 1966 when Emanuel passed away. Maria now lives with her son Art.

THE BEIERBACH FAMILY

Herb and Kay Beierbach bought a quarter of land from Ragnvold Caspersen in September of 1943 and moved on it in June of 44. As Herb was in the forces, Kay lived there alone until after the war, looking after the farm and teaching Mount View School. They bought the Ernest Jacobson place through the V.L.A. in February of 1947. In December of 1946 they were joined by baby Glen and in June of 1948 by baby Leslie.

Since then Kay taught at Bluffton and at Rimbey as Home Economics Instructor. Herb drove the mail route for the west for three years and worked occasionally in garages in Rimbey.

Presently, Glen owns the Caspersen place but lives with his parents. Leslie with his wife and Kyle three years, and Lana, two years, live in a house on an acreage at home and is employed as autobody mechanic in Rimbey. Herb and Kay plan retirement on their farm, Herb enjoying fishing.

BELL, J. J.

Mr. J. J. Bell came from Norfolk, England, along with Jack Barwick in 1906 or 1907, he took a homestead in the district now known as Meadow Vale. Mr. Bell worked out quite a bit, worked on railroads, also in a stone quarry.

He married Annie Ethel Wager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wager in 1915 and settled down to farming, and in a year or so gave up the homestead and moved to a farm south east, the NW 32-42-4-W5 where they farmed for many years and raised their family. This farm was later sold to his grandson, Douglas Ecker. Mr. and Mrs. Bell moved to the Wimbledon Green district where they lived their remaining years.

Mr. Bell served on the municipal council for a time and took an interest in the affairs of the district. He loved the outdoors along with hunting and fishing, and was a game warden for many years.

Mr. Bell passed away in September 1964 at the age of 84 years and Mrs. Bell joined him in November 1965 at 70 years of age.

There are five children in the family, Jessie (Mrs. William C. Thompson) of Rimbey, Violet (Mrs. Herman Ecker) of Bluffton, Lillian (Mrs. Ron Maser) of Bluffton. Donald married Bernice Simmons and they reside at Rimbey, and Gordon married Ruby Mann and they reside at Bluffton.

BENSON, LEO — by Norman Benson

In 1906, Leo Benson came from Glenwood, Minnesota and homesteaded the NW 16-42-4-W5, being five miles north west of Leedale, which at that time was known as Wittenburg. There were very few settlers in the valley at that time and supplies were brought in from Lacombe generally twice a year, in the spring and fall. One of the main items was a gallon of alcohol which was used for medicine. Very little was ever used for social events.

Leo Benson 1906 ready to wrestle

A friend came up from Glenwood the following year and homesteaded the SE-16-42-4-W5. His name was Frank Hallett. The two were trained wrestlers and they travelled to different towns in Alberta taking on all comers. The Grand Trunk Railroad was being built in northern Alberta at that time and they found plenty of stiff competition among the railroad workers.

Frank Hallett sold his homestead to Josephine (Grandma Simmons and went back to Minneapolis where he joined the City Police Force. While trying to apprehend some men who had just robbed a bank, he was shot and killed.

In 1907 Norman and Harold Chinneck, with their sister, Geraldine, came from Detroit, Michigan and took homesteads in what is now called the Midland district. Norman homesteaded the farm now owned by Harold Lemieux. Harold took the place now owned by Floris Looy. The new Wittenburg school was built that year and Geraldine Chinneck was one of the pupils. The teacher was a Mr. Craig. In 1908, she was married to Leo Benson in Lacombe and after a honeymoon in Banff and Calgary, returned to the homestead.

Life was always a challenge in those early days, being no doctor closer than Lacombe. Gramma Simmons was a practical nurse and was always there when the need arose. Many families owed a great deal to this wonderful person.

The Bensons raised a large family, there being eleven children, Lloyd, the first born, then Gilman, Claude, Verna, Elmo, Melvin, Cora, Norman, Jesse, Stella and Gordon. Only Verna, Melvin, Norman, Jesse and Stella are left, the rest of the family have been taken by illness and accidents. Leo Benson passed away in 1947, his widow in 1974.

Mrs. Geraldine Benson with her son, Norman

There were many happy events that took place on the Benson farm, and many sad ones too. One of the happy times would have to be the Benson Stampede. It was the usual bronc riding steer riding, etc., but the highlight would have to be the ladies democrat race. The team of horses had to be harnessed then hooked to the democrat and then make the half mile track in as fast a time as possible. Mrs. Frank Nugent could win this race with no trouble. It was said she could put a lot of men to shame getting that team harnessed and on the track. There was always a big bowery dance at night. If anyone doesn't know what a bowery dance is, it's a platform only, with the sky for a roof. Bing's orchestra supplied the music. That being Bing Engebretson. This all took place on the land later owned by Jim Lukoes, just across the road from Benson's farm.

It was hard to keep horses in the early days as there was so much wet land around. They would get swamp fever and that was the end of them. The best team that was ever on the Benson farm was a team of matched sorrels bought in Lacombe for $600, and they only lasted two months before getting the disease and dying. That was a hard knock as $600 was a lot of money in those days. There were a lot of horses that came and went on the Benson farm. Two of the toughest had to be Nancy and Fly. Nancy, a roan and Fly, a jet black, traded from an Indian by the name of Yellowface. They were the toughest cayuses you ever saw. Both branded — on right hip. They carried nearly all the kids to school in Leedale. There used to be quite an encampment of Indians living across the road. Some of the young people used to come over every day. One girl about 14 or 15 used to come over and run up and down the stairs in our house. My how she could laugh. I guess it was quite a novelty in those days for them to see stairs. Her name was Annie Strawberry, daughter of John Strawberry.

In 1929, Benson's started sawmilling in the Medicine Lake area. The mill was a mile north of Medicine Lake where you turn to go down to the lake. The mill sat there in that same location until 1943. To see the country around there now you would never believe the beautiful timber that was there, back during the 30's. A terrible fire in 1941 all but wiped it out. Nearly all the early settlers are gone now. It's too bad we couldn't have gotten their first hand impressions of the early days. It would have made a most interesting and enjoyable reading to have it all on paper.

BOLL, HERMAN

Herman Boll came from Germany, then to the U.S.A. in the early 1900's, then to Alberta in 1907 and homesteaded the SE 34-42-4-W5. He farmed with oxen, then with horses.

BOWELL, HAROLD AND OLIVE

We arrived in Canada from England in 1929 and worked for a farmer in Condor for three years, and in the spring of 1932 we moved out to the Mount View district and we settled on a quarter section NW 27-42-4-W5 across the road from the Mount View School. Bing Engebretson who was married to my wife's sister Vera and who lived in that district advised us that it would be a good start for us. We bought the land from the C.P.R. it was a raw quarter so we had lots of work to do to get established. My wife's brother Reg Tisdale came to the district and bought a quarter section so we worked together which was better for us and him also.

We traded a cow for a house and the neighbors came with a team each and hauled it two miles to our place. Bill Thompson, Ed Hobeck, Bing and Reg did the team work, it was hard work. We soon realized what fine and friendly neighbors we had, always willing to help in any way they could. We now had a house and other buildings and our two boys, Bert and Len were now going to school, which was across the road and felt we were well established. In 1934 our third son, Ken, was born in April and we had to take my wife Olive, to the hospital in Rimbey, eleven miles away and the roads were terrible, never thought we could make it but through the efforts of Bill Thompson we finally made it also to Mr. H. Lindsay of Leedale and to Mrs. V. Winter the school teacher's wife who went along for my wife's sake.

By now, in 1934, we had our first crop, grain stock we had, the first ten hogs we shipped we got $34 for them so we didn't have too much to spend on things. The kids used to hunt for crow and magpie eggs to get a few cents, also gopher tails, they could make two tails out of one but Mr. A. Bird, the Municipal secretary finally caught up with them, good detective work on his part.

Many good times they had in Mount View School. They had dances, basket socials and always a good Christmas concert. It didn't cost much, the ladies always took cakes and sandwiches, a small collection was made for the coffee and music, Bing, Ed Brown and Claude Brown, Ross McKinnon and others usually

was on the school board with Sandy Thompson and Jerry Boll for several years, I was also the secretary for this. I got $25 a year. I remember the time when Social Credit got into power, Mr. W. S. Thompson was the returning officer for the district west of Rimbey and I was the poll clerk. Mr. Thompson was a very strong Conservative and when the ballots were counted, except for a few, every one had voted S.C. Mr. Thompson was not too happy about it and I was very glad to get back home. We have many happy memories of the Mount View district and friends out there. In 1945 we moved to Red Deer. Olive, my wife, was very close to her parents and as they were getting on in years she felt she would like to be with them in Red Deer. We go out west occasionally but there are not many old timers left.

Olive and I are not young any more and it is nice that we can look back and recall all the happy times we had during the time we spent out west of Rimbey. There were times when sorrow struck the district either by accident or natural causes and it seemed like a member of the family had departed as everyone in the district and neighborhood paid their last respects.

BROWN, EDWIN

Edwin Brown was born at Buffalo, New York, U.S.A. on January 30, 1898. He came west with his parents, Kervin and Teany Brown, also three brothers and two sisters in 1908. They settled near Red Deer, Alberta, where his father had a dairy farm for a few years, then they moved to Burdett, in Southern Alberta.

My parents, Abraham and Annie Huff with two small sons, travelled from Utah, U.S.A. by covered wagon to Spring Coulee, then in the North West Territories. This was in the fall of 1901. The trip took six weeks.

My sister, Eva, was born at Spring Coulee on October 26, 1903. Later they moved to Magrath, Alta., where I was born on November 28, 1905, soon after the province of Alberta was formed. In the fall of 1907 we moved to a homestead at Burdett. My brothers both married and moved to the U.S.A. They have both passed on.

Ed served overseas during World War I as did his brother, Claude. A younger brother, Eugene Hank, served overseas in World War II.

My sister, Eva, and Claude Brown were married October 26, 1920. His brother, Ed and I were married September 30, 1924. We lived in Calgary from January 1925 until September 1931. Two sons were born there — Leroy on July 20, 1925 and Norman on July 26, 1929.

At this time there were many unemployed men. Ed was working for the city, hauling gravel with a team of horses and a dump wagon. He was to have two weeks' work, then two weeks off which quite often turned into six weeks off work.

Ed and Annie Brown - 1924

It was then he decided to take a homestead. Land for homesteading was closed in many places. At this time the nearest available was west of Rimbey. He made a trip with Gordon Koenig and Walter Waddilelow to look at homestead land. He filed on the NE-1-43-5-W5 in July 1931. Later, land south of us was opened for homesteading and many new settlers moved in.

In September 1931, we shipped by railway four horses, bundles for feed, furniture, a dog and cat from Calgary to Rimbey. Ed travelled with the car. The boys and I left two or three days later. Ed had only got as far as Lacombe, so he met us there. We came on the same train to Rimbey. A passenger car was hooked onto the end of the freight train.

We were able to get an old log cabin to live in, on Jim Strachan's land. No one had lived in it for years so we had to do a lot of work to make it warm enough for winter. With lots of good wood, a cook-stove and air-tight heater we were quite comfortable.

It was lonely at first, but new people were moving in rapidly. Many house parties were held and we attended many entertainments at Willesden Green and Mount View Schools.

My parents, along with Claude and Eva Brown and five children, shipped from Taber to Rimbey the fall of 1931. They lived northeast of Rimbey for awhile. In March of 1932 my parents came to live with us. During the winter the men built a log cabin on our land, which we moved into in June 1932. Our third son, Lloyd, was born at Rimbey hospital on September 26, 1932.

We moved into our two-story log house in 1933. My parents lived in the little cabin until the death of her husband when she came to live with us. She made her home with us until her passing on September 5, 1951.

A Rabbit Hunt. L. to R: Two Calgary men, Ed Brown and Andy Leraand. About 1931.

There was no school near. Children received lessons by correspondence. There were quite a number of school-age children. In 1935 meetings were held to organize a school district. Ed had filed on the SE-1-43-5-W5 in July 1933, a Soldier's grant quarter. He offered land for a school site. The site was chosen for a school on the southeast corner of this land. A number of names were suggested for the name of the school. The one chosen by the Department of Education was Meadow Vale. Incidentally this was the name suggested by Ed. He donated the land for the school, also for a Cemetery on this quarter.

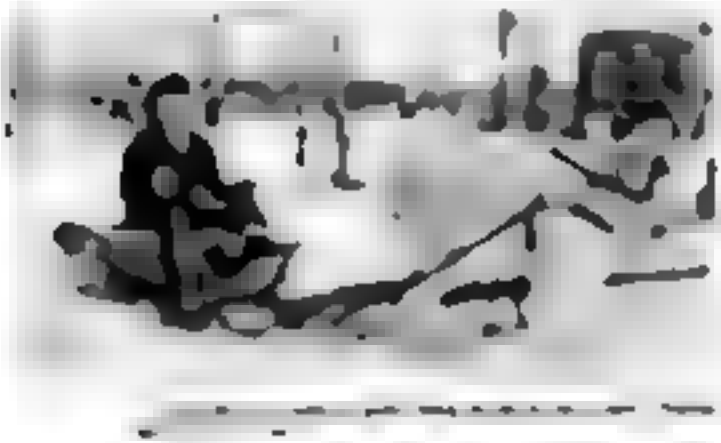
Many men from the district took a team of horses, sleigh, food and bedding and went to Adam's Mill, where they donated their time to cut logs, help saw them into lumber and haul it to the school site. Mr. Adams received a share of the lumber.

The school was built mostly by donation work. Andy Leraand was the head carpenter. He also built the school desks. Later Andy married one of our local school teachers, Miss Veiletta Hackett.

Ladies of the district organized the Meadow Vale Ladies' Club. We raised money in various ways to help with the building of the school. Many dances were held at the Ed Bohlender home. After the Second World War started in 1939 our club was disbanded and a Red Cross Group was organized with Mrs. W. J. McKinnon president. The ladies did a lot of knitting and also made quilts for the Red Cross. After the war the Meadow Vale Ladies' Club was re-organized.

The school opened in October 1936. Mrs. Alex Huberdeau was the teacher. There were 25 pupils. Many good times were held there. Picnics, dances and of course the annual Christmas concert, in which every child took part. This was followed by a visit from Santa and a dance later. People attended from miles around. For a few years we held a social evening at the school house, once a month. These consisted of a program followed by lunch and dancing. Ed and Claude played music, at many places, sometimes with others. In later years Ed and son's played quite often.

Ed cut rails and posts to bring in a little money. He also sold rabbits, when they were much in demand by the fox-farmers for feed. He worked for the Municipality for a couple of seasons with Alton Snyder and Stewart McDonald. Doing road work, he was also the



The Willesden Green Post Office was moved from Dorsey Clayton's to our place in March 1943. It was 1947 before it was closed when the main route was extended.

About 1934 or 35 Claude and Eva Brown and children Hilda, Grace, Viola, Rex, Wayne and Neva moved near Meadow Vale school. Another son, Jay, was born there in October 1936. In April of 1937 several of the children were stricken with Scarlet Fever and little Neva died on May 4, 1937. She was almost five years old.

In July of 1937 the family moved to the Peace River country, where another son, Allen was born. At the time of this writing Claude and Eva are living at Edmonton. Some of their family are nearby. They have 23 grandchildren and 25 great-grandchildren.

The years passed quickly. Our sons were growing up and going out to work. Leroy came home, one time, with a pair of buck goats, for his younger brother, Lloyd. Harness was made for them and they were hitched to a small bob-sleigh. Sometimes they were used for hauling wood or just for fun with friends. They didn't like to leave home. Lloyd would lead them down the road about a quarter of a mile, turn them around and jump in the sleigh. They would head for home at a great speed.

Leroy and Evelyn Robinson were married April 10, 1947. They lived on the SE-1-43-5-W5 for a short time, then moved to various places where Leroy was employed. Their home is near Barrhead. Leroy has been employed by Home Oil Company for many years. He works at Swan Hills. Their family consisted of five girls and one boy. Lois (Mrs. Kenneth Erickson) Edmonton, Barbara (Mrs. Bob Jackson) Duncan, B.C., Opal (died an infant in 1952), Lorraine (Mrs. Jack Johannson) Edmonton, Melody (Mrs. Danny Fraser) Swan Hills, Leland of Swan Hills and Thelma, at home.

Norman and Mary Kneeland were married October 5, 1950. They have two daughters and three sons. Vivian, Elaine, Steve, Gordon and Barry, also five granddaughters.

LAST WEST M.D. 431, S.E. 32-40-4-W5 — by Mrs. [illegible]

The municipal district of Last West, No. 431 has not existed as such for years, but in the 30's and 40's it covered a large territory, and my husband, Alf Bird, as secretary-treasurer looked after the books, taxes and such business, and his office was a busy place. Sometimes into the small hours of morning, by the light of a coal oil lamp. He took great pride in his sets of books and they were models of neatness and accuracy

The office was a tiny log building, which has been built on his homestead and moved, and one wall still had the magazine covers, calendar scenes, cartoons and poems pasted to those curling logs during long evening "on the homestead."

There was no office so far from a telephone or a bank. It was seven miles to the former and a good sixteen to Rimbey and the bank. Often the roads made getting there impossible for days. Those were times when the black tin box that held tax money was secreted in the house attic and I remember how uneasy we felt about it. Uneasy? I was scared to death! Eventually the roads were dug out or dried up to where getting through became possible again.

There were two mail days per week, which meant a trip to the line of mailboxes by the road to wait for hours sometimes while the mailman fought the roads. Sometimes bonfires were lit for warmth and cheer, and since almost everyone got their mail at that spot, it could become the social event of the week, and occasionally old arguments waxed hotter than the poor little fire. And, of course, someone always came to the office during those mail waiting times. Many were entertained and coffeed by the old kitchen stove sometimes with their feet in the oven, while I stepped over them.

There was a lot of mail, some of it addressed to Lost West and Last Post and even Last Gasp. Some of it was very entertaining, as that of one writer who felt aggrieved and who advised the entire council to "tie a rope around your neck, and put a rock on it and jump-it in the river."

Anything could happen and usually did. One time a strange old fellow who kept strictly to himself appeared at the office with a pig on a rope. His next-to-no English made it hard for him to get across his plan for applying the pig toward his taxes. When he was finally convinced it wouldn't be good business he and the pig trotted back down the trail. Later, Alf learned he had meant to impound the animal but a neighbour had given him a better idea.

There were also the little extras, like settling up for bounty gopher tails and magpie eggs. many a youngster made his spending money from them. Sometimes it would be a tobacco or jam tin full of the lot, mixed, broken eggs and all, and each was supposed to be accounted for and destroyed. This bounty lasted for only a certain time each year, but while it lasted it seemed almost everyone got in on it and there were dire reports of some who split gopher tails, or even removed them and then let the animals go. The get-rich-quicks are always among us!

Municipal council meetings, once a month meant a long day often slushing by team through mud or snowdrifts the 12 miles to Lavesta schoolhouse, and business always went hours beyond the expected time. People went here for miles, with real and imagined grievances, and some for entertainment, hard to come by in those times. Alf was often hard put to keep order throughout. Council meeting days sometimes found me in charge of the gopher tail and magpie egg detail. The less said the better!

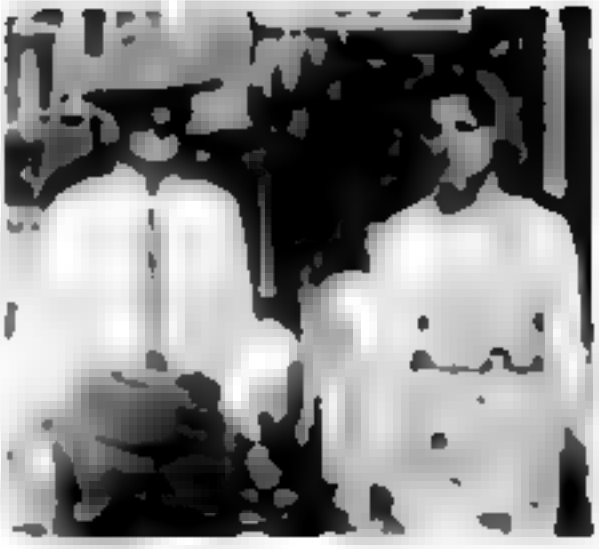
I remember a little circle of kids and myself sorting out" by the woodpile being approached by a "Mountie" who had come to see Alf about something. The office was usually where one started a quest. He observed this strange country game for a bit before we saw him, then politely asked, "Is your daddy home?" I was mortified.

Once Alf walked in from the mailboxes and said "Here's a present for you — A couple dollars worth of gopher tails I just bought." Bounty time had ended, which I reminded him but these kids were at the gate, and they were so young, and so crushed to think they had lost out, so Alf bought them on his own, and in those days two dollars amounted to something. I think all who knew him would say this was typical of Alf Bird.

Without Alf here to set me right I cannot tell you the proper location of the Last West office then, but I'm sure someone can add a footnote with that information. After we left in late 1943 the office was moved and later still the old municipal district of Last West became part of the county of Ponoka, I believe.

The little log office building later burned.

Alfred Bird was one of the many who came to Canada from Britain. In his case from Yorkshire, England. He used to tell of his first job after he left Montreal. It was on a small farm in Quebec where he was promised eight dollars per month. After a gruelling month of 18 to 20 hours a day — and Alf was never a farmer - he decided to quit. The boss was not able to pay him so much cash, so he had to settle for two dollars and fifty cents in currency, an ancient swallow-tailed coat and a gold watch-chain! Certainly something to write home about when he got back to Montreal.



He enlisted in the army first World War, in Winnipeg. It was after his return from overseas that he took up a homestead west of Rimbey where he spent winters and the time he had free from his job as gatekeeper at Banff National Park, during the tourist seasons. He left that job to become secretary-treasurer of Last West M.D. In 1943 he took on the job of secretary-treasurer of the Lacombe Municipal Hospital, retiring to Edmonton 20 years later where he died in September, 1975.

We have three children. Marvin married and has two boys, Neva married and has a boy and a girl, and Alfred, married and has three girls.

James Lukocs left his homeland of Sayta Maria Romania, as a young man of 24 in 1928 leaving his mother, father two brothers and a sister to come to Canada. James arrived at St Johns, by boat then travelled by train to Calgary Here he worked his way to Olds cutting brush with an axe by hand to earn some money then on to Taber to the sugarbeet fields Here he met Giezella Kish, a nice Rumanian girl, they were married and decided farming was the life for them

This brings Giezela and James Lukocs to their farm, a (C P R ) quarter the NE 13 42 4 W5 in 1932 at Leedale The land was all timber There were about four acres that Leo Benson had cleared where the people of the district had put on rodeos for their own pleasure

James set on, to build a little log house, barn, and granary He cleared the land of trees by hand, digging around the roots of the trees, taking away the soil, leaving them for the wind to blow over, then proceeded to clear and break this land with his team of horses

For living money James cut fire wood. He could be seen going to Rimbey or Lockhart on

The year 1938 came and brought sadness to James. Illness and death came to Giezella. She passed away in the Rimbey hospital in November. James lived on at the farm with his three small children to care for.

In the year 1943, James purchased the quarter, SW 15-42-4-W5, from Mr. Frank Fox who had homesteaded this land. James moved his family from the little log house to the newer two story frame home on the Fox farm. The children attended the Leedale school.

MEMORIES OF CAROLE BUTLIN

My father and mother, Mr Joseph and Catherine Stanton, and my uncle and aunt, John and Elizabeth Wilmer came from England to Canada in June 1906

My father settled on a homestead north west of Wittenburg, now called Leedale His land was the NW 32-42-4-W5

[redacted] post office at that time. We lived eight miles from the store by the roads in those days. 1906-07 was a terrible winter we had calves frozen to death in the barn. My father had no idea of farming he was a soldier for 25 years, most of his time spent in India

My uncle settled on the adjoining homestead so we were close together

In November, just after our log home was finished, one morning it was 40 below and our home was burned to the ground. We lost most of our things and my mother and brother and myself walked and ran three quarters of a mile in deep snow to my uncle's in our nighties and stocking feet We blamed our big tom cat for scratching the hay that was on the sod roof close to the stove pipe chimney as he had climbed on the roof Then the next month my uncle's log shack burned down but most of their things were saved

The neighbors were all young men who had also filed on homesteads. They helped my father build another shack. One large room of logs and we divided it off after we moved in. Mr Jerry Bell, Mr Andy Swanson, Mr Jack Barwick and Mr Jenson, my mother baked bread for these boys every week There was only one lady close to us besides my auntie, that was Mrs. Bert Crandon. Her husband used to work away in the mines in the winter time. Lots of young men would come out and file on homesteads, but would only stay a year or so, they couldn't make [redacted]

My father had three pensions from England or we could have never stayed either

I remember Mr Barwick was cutting bush on a road allowance when the axe slipped and cut through his boot and toes He crawled two miles to our home for help. My father and Mr Swanson travelled all night to get him into Lacombe Hospital. They put a mattress on the floor of the wagon box for him to lie on and changed teams at Bentley Mr Williams had a boarding house and livery barn at Bentley so he lent my father a team of horses so he could go on without delay The roads at that time were bad and it was 40 miles to Lacombe by wagon trail.

In 1910 my father passed away and in 1911 my auntie passed away In 1912 my mother remarried and we moved to Medicine Valley 15 miles south of Leedale. My step-father was the rural mail carrier from Medicine Valley to Bentley twice a week

[redacted] and it was only a mile from our home

There was a creamery two miles from us run by Mr and Mrs Bradshaw

I have one step-brother living in Calgary 68 years old, and my brother Jack Stanton, retired R.C.M.P Detective. In Vancouver, 76 years old and myself left of our family

We had lots of happy days on that homestead and lots of sad ones

[redacted]

William J (Bill) McKinnon purchased a half section of land two miles north and sixteen miles west of Rimbey in 1933, at which time he was the Canadian Pacific Railway Station Agent at Barons, Alberta He later moved to the C.P.R. Station at Kooluk, one mile south of Eckville, with his wife, Edna, and twin sons, Walter and Jim. His brother, Alfred McKinnon, and the eldest son, Ross, travelled by team and wagon from Barons to the farm in 1933, living in a tent on the wagon en route They bought one team and a saddle horse, and purchased one more horse near Calgary. On arrival at the farm, they had to detour through a neighbor's farm to cross his bridge over the Medicine River as the road had not yet been constructed west of the river They lived in a bunkhouse purchased in Rimbey until a log cabin was constructed before winter

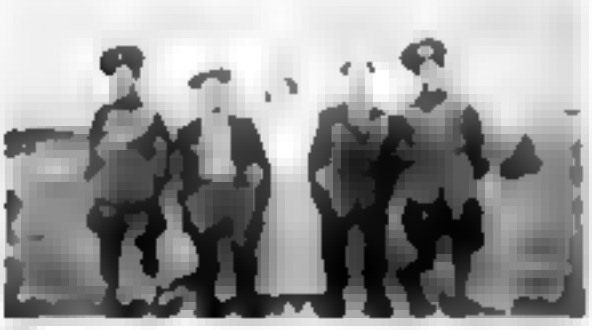
The family commuted from the farm to Barons, and later to Eckville until Bill McKinnon's retirement from the C.P.R. in 1939. Ross lived on the farm through these early years, but his uncle, Alfred, took a homestead four miles north of the McKinnon farm. Walter and Jim went to school in Eckville for several years, then moved to the farm and established a mink ranch and also raised silver fox, on the northeast corner of the farm.

In 1938, Walter and Jim enlisted in the 78th Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery at Red Deer, trained in Edmonton, and were with the first Canadian contingent of forces which went overseas in December 1939. They returned in the spring of 1945, after five and one half years of active duty in the Second World War. Jim had married Irma Shuler six weeks before leaving, and Walter married Claire Shuler on the day he returned from overseas. The twin brothers had been together all of the time they were on duty, except for a short period of Jim's illness, and were fortunate in being able to return home on leave at the same time, by unusual coincidence.



Walter's name had been drawn for leave, but Jim's had not. The ship was twelve hours out to sea on the homeward trip before Walter learned that at the last possible moment, Jim had been rushed onto the ship, taking the place of another soldier who had been too ill to make the journey. So they completed the five and a half years together, and peace was declared before they were required to go back into action. Jim and Irma moved to Red Deer soon after his return. Walter stayed on the farm for one year, during which time he built up the mink farm again. Then he and Claire also moved to Red Deer.

Ross worked with his father on the farm, where they raised Black Angus cattle, and some sheep. In the early years he played violin for many of the neighborhood dances and house parties, playing at times with various members of the Brown family, Carl Ruff, and others of the community who provided entertainment. For several years his orchestra, the "Swamp Angels", consisting of Ross, Jim, Walter, David Shuler and Mary Alice Shuler, played in the area. In 1939 he married Mary Alice Shuler and built a house on the quarter of land lying directly east of the Shuler farm. They remained in the area until February 1947, when they moved to Red Deer where Ross was employed by the Central Alberta Dairy Pool in the Condensery department.

Bill and Edna McKinnon owned the farm for sixteen years, and were active community members while they were in the area. With the assistance of their sons, his brother Alfred, several men who worked for them, and Edna's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Saunders, they built it up into a prosperous farm. Edna was active in the local branch of the Red Cross during the war years, and assisted in other community ventures, as well as carrying on her farm duties, and keeping a few of the mink from her son's fur farm during the years they were overseas. The McKinnons sold out and moved to an acreage west of Red Deer in 1949.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders, Edna McKinnon's parents, bought a quarter section of land two miles east and one half mile south of the McKinnon farm, after having helped on the McKinnon farm for several years. They built a house and lived there until his death in 1941. Mrs. Saunders returned to Manitoba for a time, then retired to Red Deer with Bill and Edna McKinnon.

CLYDE AND ANNIE MISNER

In early 1914 Clyde Misner along with a number of others, left Fosston, Minnesota to arrive in Harlem, Montana. After reaching Harlem, they crossed the Canadian border and homesteaded the south half of 22-1-20 in the Frontier Sask. district where they built a shack.

In the last week of July 1914 he and his companions decided to work their way back to their families in Fosston, Minnesota. With team and rack they hayed and harvested along the [illegible] arriving in Fosston approximately three months

In 1915 they again left Fenston to arrive on the prairies where they decided to settle. His wife Annie, and two children, Ernest and Lester came to join Clyde. Four more children, Chester Mildred, Glen and Victor were later born in this a

Because of the long droughts in 1934, Clyde and Lester travelled to Rimbey where they bought their farm NW 33-42-4-W5) In the spring of 1936 Clyde returned to Frontier to move his family They journeyed by Model T and after two days travelling, arrived at their new home. Their cattle, machinery and personal belongings arrived by Canadian Pacific Rail

Later this same year Annie Misner passed away Twelve later in 1948 Clyde Misner passed away. Ernest died in Calgary in 1955. Later, in 1972, Lester passed away in Burnaby, B.C

Chester and Glen Misner are presently living in Calgary Mildred is living east of Rimbey and Victor is still farming the home quarter west of Rimbey

MISNER, VICTOR AND EDNA

In the spring of 1948 the marriage of Victor Misner to Edna Richardson marked the beginning of a new family and its own personal history

Following their marriage, the Misners moved to Rimbey where they stayed with relatives and built their first home, which consisted of only two rooms. After the birth of their first son, Marvin, they left their home and went to live at the J. Jones' mill where Victor worked for approximately three years. During this time their second son, Calvin, was born

In the spring of 1951 they returned to their home, but as a result of a hail storm that destroyed all their crops, they were forced to move again — this time to Innisfail, where Victor was employed as a labourer on the Bowden Institute. About a year later they returned, with their two sons, to their home and moved their house to their own farm which Victor's father had purchased in 1934 By this time, two more sons had joined the family — Bob and Ron

The family also lived in the Drayton Valley district where work was found in the oil fields

Returning to their farm near Rimbey, they resumed farming until 1966. The addition of two more children another son David, and a daughter, Elaine, completed the Misner family

In July of 1966, an auction sale was held all livestock, machinery, and some personal possessions were sold and the family moved west to Surrey B.C A year later they returned to the farm, this time to stay

In 1975 a family crisis arose On a routine medical examination, doctors found abnormalities in Calvin's kidney function. Extensive tests and time showed the need for a kidney transplant The family underwent tests in hopes that one of them would prove to be a suitable donor Test results indicated that Ron was the best choice The transplant was successfully performed in July of 1975 and both donor and recipient are now, two years later, able to lead relatively normal lives

At the time of this writing only two of the Misner children are married — Marvin, living near Rimbey, has two children, and Ron, living near Eckville with one child

NICKLE, STAN AND FAMILY — by Mary Saunders

On April 1, 1939 Stan Nickle accompanied by a former trapping partner, Charlie Perry moved Stan's worldly belongings in two 1929 Chevrolet cars to the former Bing Engebretson homestead NW 6-43-4 W5. They proceeded to make the one room log house liveable for Stan's wife, Mary and their one year old daughter Betty to arrive two weeks later.

While on NW 6, Stan worked for the County running cat building roads. Actually, it was the Municipal District of East West at that time. He also went trapping on his registered trap line bordering on the Banff Park boundary. Because he was this type of rustler, his increasing family was well provided for and he soon had title to this quarter of land.

By the summer of 1946 the family consisted of five children — Betty, Gail, Jim, Doris, and Ken. In August of that year we moved to NW 31-42-4 W5 which my dad, Ray Newton, had bought from Bill McKinnon. We rented it from him until buying it in the fall of 1956. Stan no longer worked out but devoted full time to mixed farming raising grain, cattle and pigs.

The family was completed in May 1953 when Norma was born.

Betty married Eric Gray of Leedale. Eric works as heavy equipment operator and welder for Revelstoke. They also farm in the Carlos district. They had four children — Linda, Darlene, David and Tina. They lost Darlene at the age of fourteen and a half in a car accident.

Gail married Murray Rathwell of the Willesden Green District. Murray has worked for Calgary Power and heavy equipment operator for the county. He is presently working for Amerada and farms in the Meadowvale district. Gail has taught for several years in Rimbey. They have two daughters — Sheila and [illegible].

Jim is a heavy duty mechanic. He is employed by R. Angus of Lethbridge. He married Sharon Hoag of Rimbey. They live at Coaldale, Alberta. They have two children — Leanne and Stanley.

Doris married Jim Booth, a plumber from Rimbey. Jim has worked several years for the government at Nordegg and Camrose. They live at New Norway. They have three daughters — Barbara, Carolyn, and Catherine.

Ken is a pressure welder. He married Donna Ervin of the Aurora district. They live at Fort Saskatchewan and he commutes to Edmonton where he is employed. They have two sons — Rodney and Randy.

Both boys worked as heavy equipment operators building roads in the far north.

Norma married Rodney Hamula, an electrician from Calmar. They live at Rocky Mountain House where Rod is employed by Sparrow Electric. They have two children, Michael and Mar[illegible].

In November 1971 Stan lost his life in a tragic hunting accident.

In the spring of 1972, Mary rented the farm and had an auction sale of the machinery. Later the farm was sold to Ronald and Shirley Dyck.

Mary moved to Rimbey and worked at the Rimbey Auxiliary Hospital for five years. She bought a home there and still resides there.

In November 1975 Mary married Bill Saunders of Rimbey, formerly of the Willesden Green District.

The family all inherited their dad's grit and are all determined to make good homes for their [illegible].

THE PIKE FAMILY

Frank Pike was born on the family farm in the Lockart district where the old home still stands. His parents Frank and Josephine Pike were from Nebraska, U.S.A., having moved there in 1901. They raised a family of seven children, Frank being the tallest of the lot.

Marjorie Withers was born in the Medicine Valley district just a few minutes before brother Bill arrived. There were two other sisters and one more brother to complete the household. Her parents William A. and Harriet Withers had moved from Kings County, Nova Scotia in 1906. Later moving to the Beaconsfield district in about 1930 or 31 to what is now known as the Aibach farm.

Frank and Marjorie, as years went by, met and decided to tie the knot in 1930. In 1931, they homesteaded on the SW 23-42-5-W5, and built their home there. Those were lean years and Frank brought home the bacon by cutting posts and selling them, trapping in southern Alberta, stooking and hauling grain and anything that would bring in a few dollars. Much of his time was spent working in the sawmills also. He bought Henry Bishops' mill in 1946 and they moved "lock, stock and barrel" to the Faraway district where they sawmilled for a couple of years, then in 1948 or 49, sold the mill to Hulberg [illegible].

Frank was a licensed steam engineer and worked as boilerman in mills and later on in the oilfields. At one time they lived in Rimbey and Frank worked for Davis Bros. Garage and Marjorie worked in The Downe Inn as cook.

They raised a family of seven children, most of whom still reside in Central Alberta. They moved away several times but always came back to the "Homestead". Most of the moves were made to get schooling for the family as the Beaconsfield School which had been located on their place, had been closed down some years [illegible].

Their home on the farm was a popular stopping place for the people travelling to and from the Faraway district, as there was always an extra plate or two for the table and a place to feed the horses. Later on when motor vehicles became the mode of transportation, if that broke down. Frank soon had it fixed up for you and you went happily on your way.

Marjorie could make up a mean batch of biscuits, and a meal in a hurry and then they would proceed to whip the pants off their visitors at whist or euchre.

In 1973, they sold the farm and retired to Rocky Mountain House. Frank still does a little carpentry but just as a hobby now to pass the time, and Marjorie has taken up bowling. They enjoy travelling short distances, but two or three times a year they drive up to the Peace River area where two of the girls and their families live.

The boys learned a wealth of information from "PA" in mechanics and sawmilling.

That wasn't all they learned either, they were full of pranks. Once when the folks were away to Red Deer for a day everyone got their heads together and decided to pull a few tricks on them. They came up with what they thought was a good idea. They got a lot of string and a cowbell and set up an intricate system controlled from an upstairs window. There was a string attached to a piece of wood to resemble a knock on the door, another to slam the yard gate and one to ring the cow bell. The folks got home and retired for the night, so then the strings started to work, out of bed came Frank but there was no one at the door so he went back to bed. Knock, knock, again no one, so after a few more gate slammings and cow bell ringings he lost his cool and grabbed the shotgun. Thinking of the tractor facing the house, the kids decided to "fess" up while the tractor still had a radiator.

Then there was the time they stuffed a suit of Stanfields and hung them in the outer biffy but decided to tell Ma so she wouldn't get too scared but stood peering out the window when Pa made a bee-line down the path and opened the door and pulled back his arm to punch the "character" occupying the "one-holer".

PERKINS — WILFRED AND FLORENCE

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Perkins came to Canada from England after World War I. Mr. Perkins was a war veteran and they settled on the SE 22-42-4-W5 where they farmed for several years.

He was the first secretary of the Mount View school. His salary was three to five dollars a year and most of his writing paper was the backs of old calenders.

They had one son, William.

In 1935 they sold out and moved to Victoria, B.C. where they have lived until passing.

Mrs. Perkins who was born in Birmingham, England, died in 1950.

William lives in Esquimalt, B.C.

RAMBLINGS — by Amelia Thompson, Ben (Urbano) Teriotti

On May 6, 1906, Ben (Urbano) Teriotti and Nina Caterina Ratsone were united in marriage in Valduggia, Italy. After the birth of a stillborn child, Mrs. Teriotti was in very poor health.

One year later Ben came to the United States with some cousins. He worked in the coal mines in Burke, Idaho and Coeur d'Alene, first as a miner, then as a machinist. Later he was joined by his wife and in 1910 moved to the Leedale district then known as Wittenburg, store and post office, operated by Mr. Paul Brodersen and his family.

The Teriotti's homesteaded on the NW 12-42-5 W5, but bought a quarter of South African Scrip which proved to be muskeg and part of Lake 18 with no dry land to build a house on. Then the SW 18-42-4-W5 was purchased and here a log cabin [illegible] house was built with a tar paper roof. A terrific hailstorm came along and turned said roof into a sieve-like apparatus and shingles were purchased and quickly nailed on between showers. Later a frame house was built and is now occupied by Percy Sirois and family.

A daughter, Amelia, was born in 1911 and a son in 1918 passed away at birth.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Teriotti with daughter Amelia

The nearest railway station at the time was Lacombe and the only transportation was [illegible] team and wagon. The trip took at least two days and sometimes three days.

In 1949 Ben suffered a stroke and he was no longer able to farm. In the early 1950's he and his wife moved into a small house east of the creamery in Rumbey. Allan Gregg now owns the house.

Mrs. Teriotti passed away Nov. 6, 1964. Mr. Teriotti then lived with his daughter and son-in-law Sandy and Amelia Thompson, where Amelia still lives, until his passing July 8, 1969, just 12 days before his 90th birthday. They were a very friendly couple and very well liked by all.

BEACONSFIELD

While the Terlotti's still lived on the farm a school district Beaconsfield School District number 3828) was formed by school inspector F G. Buchanan. Ben became secretary-treasurer of the district School opened on May 16th, 1920 with eight pupils — seven girls and one boy A permit teacher (grade nine student was in charge of the class. The school was held in a little log shack where a young newly married couple named Walter Barker had lived for a short time SW 23-42-5-W5 The floor had lovely wide cracks in it where our pencils (often helped by a toe. When teacher wasn't looking' easily slipped down into the cellar just a hole). When no more pencils were available the cellar door was opened and the pencils retrieved. and the "fun' started all over again. It was such a good excuse not to work because no one could work without a [illegible]

School ran for four months and I don't know whether the district ran out of money or the teacher. Mark Mann, had to return to classes but the school closed. It was reopened the following spring with another permit teacher Dudley F Pegreen in charge. School remained open for five months this time, then as most of the pupils moved away it was closed permanently

The pupils came from varying distances one fifteen years old girl rode a pony On the first day of school, May 16th, 1920 the snow was up to the horse's belly when it was tied up in front of the school. This was the year of the long hard winter when snow came on the 1st of October 1919 and remained until the following spring of 1920

Many cattle died that year and many calves died with goitre Feed was terribly scarce, a high price had to be paid for it and it had to be hauled from long distances with a team and rack. The crops in 1920 were very heavy and good which made up for the terrible winter

The Patterson girls also came to Beaconsfield school and lived near where John Makofka now lives. Jessie Patterson later became Mrs. Russel MacLean — sister-in-law to Mrs. Jack Beatty and had three sons — Clifford, Eddie and Don Jessie's two sisters were Christina (Tina) and Elizabeth 'Lizzie) A baby boy died at about one year of age and is buried at Leedale cemetery Their dad's name was Robert but was known as Bob. These people were Scottish

Two of Henry and Laura Chabolt's daughters Erneatine and Annette also attended Beaconsfield school. Ernestine married Joe O'Hara and had five girls. She passed away twenty-two or more years ago and Joe passed away in 1968. Annette married Albert Kemmis and had a family of four boys and four girls. Her husband died in 1973, and she resides in Rumbey

Roy attended the school in 1920 and Howard attended in 1921. They were the sons of Ephraim Everts whose wife was Hazel Lampman. The valley over the hills to the west of Leedale is called Lampman's Valley in her dad's honour

Mildred still owns the farm she and Thomas bought in 1936. It is now rented out, but when she has the occasion to visit it she remembers fondly, incidents of the early years. For example the time she saw Tom who was breaking land with an old John Deere, get off the tractor so mad at being stuck again, that he took off his hat threw it on the ground and tramped on it Or the time Raymond gathered the eggs, as he did everyday put them in his breeche's pockets and then decided to jump on old Charlie, their faithful horse to take him back to the house when he arrived the egg yolks were dripping down to his [illegible]

THE SHULER AND STEWART FAMILY — by Mrs E. Roberta Stewart

During the depression or 'Dirty Thirties' many people from the prairies moved to the north country and the bush, where they could grow a garden and raise feed for their animals It rained there. Joe Stewart was one of these For three years he had been engaged to Roberta the oldest Shuler girl and never any money to get married. In 1933 he went looking for land. He found the Crandle place which had been standing idle for a number of years. According to the old timers the Crandles had a fight while building the new log house and she took the two kids and went back to Ontario. Where he went I don't know He had turned the place over to her One winter some folks by the name of Broadbent lived there But now it was empty Joe bought it On New Year's Eve he and Roberta were married and the next spring, May 24, 1934, they moved to the place. Her father Robert Shuler went with them to help

In order to get free freight from the government they had to ship to Eckville and trek everything from there. Mr Shuler went with the cars to look after the animals and Roberta (Bert) and Joe took a load in a truck

Kenneth, the youngest Shuler boy came out in August to help make hay. In October Mr. Shuler went back and got the rest of his things and to bring Mrs. Shuler and the three girls Mary Alice, Claire, and Irma. The older boys stayed to work in the salt mine at Alsask.

Those early days were hard but we were happy and enjoyed it all. The neighbors were wonderful and helpful too. There was free wood for the cutting out in the swamps, rails and fence posts. Rain to grow a garden and hay and wild fruit in the bush. Joe went out to work in harvest and to the saw mill in winter. Joe took a homestead north and a bit west of the Cadman place. Then he turned the Crandle place over to Mr. Shuler, who paid out on it.

Larry was born December 1935 and in 1936 his father was killed as a result of an accident at Adam's mill. Bertie and Larry stayed with her folks on the farm until they sold it in 1949. That winter she spent in Alix and the next June moved to Red Deer with her folks where they had bought a little place to retire.

Kenneth died January 23, 1936.

Mr. Shuler passed on in 1959 just three months short of 80 years old. Mrs. Shuler passed on in 1965, just nine and one-half months over 81 years.

Roberts Stewart still lives on the Red Deer place. Larry married and has bought a farm one mile north of the Aurora school.

While in retirement many of the old neighbors from Meadow Vale came to call on them. One afternoon after some of them had called and gone, Mr. Shuler went into the living room to read his paper. Pretty soon Mrs. finished washing her cups and saucers and she too went in there to sit in her rocking chair. The sun was shining in through her plants in the west window making shadowy pictures on her arm and then reaching over to the foot stool where Mr. had his feet propped up, while he read his paper. She sat in silence for a while then said, "You know those people back there at the farm were a pretty good bunch, don't you know."

"Yes, you'd have to go a long way to find any better, that's for sure," he answered.

"It reminds me of the song that was so popular about the time we moved down here."

"What song?"

"Oh, you know, 'Those Dear Hearts and Gentle People, That Live And Love in my Home Town.' I don't know who wrote it, but it sure describes it and it has such a haunting melody."

"...hat's right. It does. Say isn't that what ... the radio right now?"

They listened for a while then Mr. Shuler picked up his paper to read and Mrs. Shuler began thinking of all the neighborhoods they had lived in, but in particular the one they had recently left, Meadow Vale.

Their home was situated on the west branch of the Medicine River. They called it a river even though you could step across it where it came out of the Medicine Lake. Down by their house it was wider and as crooked as it could be, winding back and forth. Some of the loops almost touching before it turned back again. The school kids had lots of fun there and occasionally caught a small jack fish in it. It wasn't a very big river to be sure but in the spring run off or a heavy rain fall it would go on the rampage, causing a bit of excitement and also spread out all over. It was like that when the men wanted to build Meadow Vale school. They had gone to the bush in the winter time, cut the logs, hauled them to the mill to be sawed for half. The women at home did their share too. They held bazaars and so forth to raise the money for the hardware, windows and doors. Now they didn't know how to get it across to where the school was to be built, and the lumber was already piled, ready waiting.

Mr. Shuler being the chairman suggested they bring it to his place and float it across. So that is what was done. They made a raft of the shingles and doors, piled the other stuff on that, tied ropes to it and then pushed it out as far as they could wade. They then threw the ropes to the ones on the other side in the water. Thus they guided it across the river and didn't end up down river with the bridge that went out. So the school was built. Its purpose, a community centre, as well as a school.

Through her reverie she heard the strains, "They read the Good Book from Fri till Monday." That's how the weekend goes.

At first there were no church services. Then one spring during the break-up, Carl Ruff's baby took very sick. He was a beautiful, blue-eyed blonde and eight months old. They had to take him 19 miles to town to the doctor. The roads were terrible. They went part way in a bobsleigh. Then at Bell's they borrowed a wagon to go the rest of the way.

The baby died on the way in. In fact, as they crossed our meadow we saw the father get down under the blankets with the mother and baby. We knew that it was all over. They had to go the rest of the way to town to get the death certificate from the doctor. They brought him back and buried him in a little cemetery just west of the school. The casket was made by a neighbor. The minister came out from town. The flowers were all hand made but just as beautiful as any you could buy.

That started the people thinking so they asked the minister if he would hold services in the school. There was no real road past the Shuler's place, only a trail past, and across the swamp. If the weather was dry he could go all the way in the car but if not, he came to the Shuler's and Mr. Shuler took him over with the team and wagon. Later the men got together and laid logs for a corduroy road on the road allowance. Later on, they sanded the road into Rumbey, so in wet weather they could get in with out so much trouble.

If the minister couldn't come him- ...

would send some one else. One Sunday as usual when he couldn't come he sent a man who happened to be the shoemaker in town. He was a Scotchman and one of the finest men you'd want to meet. This particular Sunday was a hot day in August, in the afternoon. Someone had left the window open the night before and the school was full of those big, green headed horse flies. This man had his mouth opened wide as it would go, being a small one to begin with, and in popped one of those horse flies while he was singing. There sure was some sputtering and spitting for a few minutes. The younger girls nearly died laughing and trying not to. They didn't want him to see them laughing at him, or to laugh in church.

From time to time there were different ministers from different denominations who came to hold services in the school. Denomination doesn't count as long as they preach and live what the Bible says. Only one ever lived right in the neighborhood and even he had to leave after a while as he didn't get enough support to live and keep his family. People forget that the preacher has to be paid if he is going to serve them.

For a long time we didn't have any service until Cyril Brewer came up from Leedale. He was from the Free Methodist Church. He was a big man, with a greeting for all he met. He came rain or shine. If he couldn't get through with the car he came on horseback like the circuit riders of

I got a dream I'll build there one day, with picket fence and rambling rose."

I will remember the day that I and the younger girls arrived there. Lloyd, our second son, drove us across country in a car from the dried out prairies. Rob, Bertie and Joe had gone in the spring and we came in the fall. They had done some fixing but it was still a very desolate looking place. The next summer Bertie and I had vines growing over the house and gardens full of flowers, many of them given by neighbors, which made them more valuable. Rob and Bertie had planted spruce trees in the yard and Joe made a fence and went to the bush and got a tree in a spiral shape to grace the top of the turnstyle gate out front.

December 1, 1935, my first grandson was born, the snow was already three feet deep. On January 23, Kenneth, our youngest son died. He had gone out west and north with his friend, Wally Reynolds, to trap for the winter. He took appendicitis. Wally ran seven miles to get a team to take him to Adam's mill to get a car to take him in to Rimbey, another 50 miles. It was an old open model car and by the time they got him to the hospital he was so cold they put him in a bath tub of warm water for five hours before they operated. The appendix had burst. He lived three days and was gone.

David, our third son, came to stay with us that winter. Later he went away to work and when the war started he joined the navy, as did Lloyd.

Leroy, the oldest son, only came to visit but never live there. He was too old for the army so he joined the reserve police force.

Bertie's husband, Joe, was killed at the mill in 1936, she then stayed on with us and raised sheep.

"I feel so welcome each time that I return that my happy heart keeps laughing like a clown."

Many of the neighbors were new comers too. It wasn't long till everyone knew everyone else and we had lots of enjoyment visiting and hearing the tales from the old timers.

Then we had a social get-together every month and chose up sides, with a chairman, to put on a program. Each side taking turns. Some of those programs were better than what we get now from professionals on TV. There were the Brown's with their music, Mrs. Brown and Willie Thompson with singing, Jerry Bell with his step dance or jig as we used to call it. The others all did their share too, in plays, songs recitations, or what have you. If they didn't they had to pay a

...any are the scenes that passed before her eyes as she sat in her rocking chair with the setting sun shining through on her arm.

When sorrow struck the neighbors were all there to help, maybe only a smile or a hand shake or the offer of a scone. But it all meant so much.

Ethel and Rob (Bobbie and Bobbe) Shuler cutting Golden Wedding cake

When we left there to retire, many are the letters we got from them wishing we were back here and on our golden wedding anniversay so many of them came all the way down here to wish us well.

Is it any wonder that we forget the bad and remember the good in — "Those dear hearts and gentle people that live and love in my home town

The strains of the music had long since died away and something more modern was on the radio, but Mrs Shuler didn't hear it Her mind was still back with her friends of yesteryear The sun had set now and only the rosy glow of the sun set enveloped them as she sat in her rocking chair and he read his paper

THOMPSON, WILLIAM C. STORY

My parents and I came to Calgary, Alberta in 1912 from Bowness on Windermere, England. I was two years old.

Mother ran a rooming house and dad worked on ranches and mines.

In 1918 and 1919 my father homesteaded the NW 28-42-4-W5, where I still live with my son Jerry, making third generation on this farm.

When my parents came, they shipped their belongings to Kootuk (Eckville) by rail. From then on by way on trail only — by Gilby and Leedale.

I received most of my schooling at Leedale five and one-half miles horseback. My first teacher was Mrs. C. D. Aldridge and my last was Mr. Jones. One day in the spring he said to the class, 'Let us do something we may be remembered by!' His idea was to plant two rows of trees, spruce and pine, and with the aid of Mr. R. R. Hayward and Mr. Rene Durand, they were brought and planted. Each of the bigger children had two trees he or she had to water each day until they were well started. Mr. E. Solberg has made the old school into a nice home and the trees are quite tall and much cherished by the old pupils.

There are a few memos I would like to mention — The first threshing machine I ever saw was on our farm. It belonged to William Perodgo of Lavesta, it was mounted on two wagons, the separator was all wood, and it was fed part of a bundle at a time. It was run by a 12 horse stationary engine. It took all day to thresh 100 bushels.

In the 30's I took 12 fat pigs to Rimbey on two sleighs. — trailed one sleigh, — and I received $36 for the lot. They were $1.50 per hundredweight at that time.

The Thompson William C. Florence, and William C. Jr. in their Alberta, prior to England 1911.

Willy Thompson, on his saddle pony, crossing the narrows of Medicine Lake.

My father had a share of ups and downs when he started to homestead. He bought three cows and a big team of Clyde horses. In the spring of 1920 two cows drowned in a beaver dam — and one horse rolled in the barn and couldn't get up, so he died too.

In the early days the Indians held sun-dances in our area, one was about a mile from home — we could hear the drums away into the night. They usually built a shelter of trees and branches. They would gather from many tribes for a week before the dance and the dance would last about a week. They had many horses with them as that was the only way of travel — they usually had many dogs too I understand they did a lot of horse trading as well.

My dad passed away in 1948 and Mother in 1952

I married Jessie Bell in 1938 We have three sons and one daughter

Bill is married and lives in Toronto

erry is married and lives on the home farm

Allan lives in Edmonton and Dianne works in Fort Nelson

TYNDALL, EUGENE AND CARRIE — by Howard Tyndall

Mother and Dad were both born at Fosston Minnesota, United States of America. Dad's people moved to Cudworth, Saskatchewan in 1903. In 1917 they bought land and moved to Chotoka, Alberta

Mother's folks (Fred and Hattie Park) came up to the Nanton area in 1904 and homesteaded in the foothill west of town. They later traded for land at Stavely. Grandma and Grandpa Park lived the rest of their lives on this section of land

Mom and Dad were married at Calgary on December 15th 1920. I was born in the Cow-town on November 27th, 1924 and later finished my grade nine at Beaver Valley school at Stavely Grade ten by correspondence and my school days were over

We arrived in Rimbey in a wet spring snow storm on March 11th, 1942 and settled in the Mount View district, seven miles northwest of Leedale on the North half of 19-42-4 W5

We came from Stavely (70 miles south of Calgary) in a beat-up Model A Ford with a little two-wheeled trailer with household effects behind. A cattle car and a settler's effects car came in on the Peanut behind an old steam locomotive. Our cattle looked pretty sad in the snow in the stock yards. Later Dad and I took them up Rimbey's main street out to strawpiles at Tarrabain's farm just north of town. (The snow was gone when we left the Porcupine Hills)

That first summer at Mount View was a busy one for the Tyndalls. A house was started some land was cleared and sheds were put up

We stacked over one hundred ton of hay for Jack Barwick for one-quarter share to get feed for the stock for the winter Dad and I then went up to Fred Wager's farm and hayed till it snowed in October I was so sick of haying I wished we were back on the prairies.

We left the Mount View district in 1958 and bought a farm at Homeglen northeast of Rimbey. Dad died in 1966 and Mom passed away in 1967 after a long illness

While we lived at Mount View I built a water well drilling rig to drill a well at the barn. Thirty three years later I am still drilling wells in the Leedale - Rimbey area. Tyndall drilling is now the oldest drilling business in this area. A modern cable-tool rig had been added and there had been many changes in this trade.

My wife, Carole, and I were married in Lacombe in 1959 and still live on the old farm at Homeglen. Carole is the daughter of George Doe† and Cora Allison of Rimbey We were blessed with three girls Dallas married Russell Adams and has one son Darrell† Lila and Dixie are still at home

I have many memories and many good friends from the early years out west, there was a community spirit then that is missing now. I wish we had it back.

WITTENBURG — LEEDALE — research by Carrol Mannix

In 1902, ABRAHAM LINCOLN (LINK) BOYER from Valparaiso, Indiana and GERRY GUY FARROW from Mitchell, South Dakota came to the Medicine River Valley. They cut a trail from the Fred Schrader homestead south of Rumbey, to the Boyer homestead SE 36-41-4-W5, one and one half miles east, one mile south of Leedale. They thought they had found wonderful cattle and horse range — but — the valley soon settled with homesteaders.

JAMES EVERT started a store in 1906 with his son, EPHRAIM EVERT'S home, and later built a large store one half mile south, on the town line, SW 2-42-4-W5. This he ran until 1912 when he sold to MRS. JOHN LEE and sons FRANCIS AND WILLIAM. Mr and Mrs. Evert then moved to Washington. William (Bill) Lee ran the store and a livery stable until 1916 when he went to W W 1. MR. AND MRS. MARQUIS LAFE FRIZZELL ran the business awhile during the war years then MR. AND MRS. HENRY JACOBS ran it until Bill took it over again after the war. MR. FEENEY was a clerk and butcher for Bill after the war. About this time Brodersens closed his store and the post office was moved to Lee's store. About 1925 the store was operated by MR. BEATTY of Rimbey and managed by RUSSELL MAC LEAN (Russell married Jessie Patterson.) PETER EMIL WEGREEN ran the livery barn and eating place.

Mail and groceries were brought to Wittenburg from Lacombe, with some mail from Rimbey, unless you resided in Township 41, then your mail may have come from Eckville by team and wagon driven by JOHN KEMILA, until May 1, 1923 when it was all changed to Rimbey. RALPH JACOBS held the contract from May 1, 1923 to May 31, 1927.

In late 1920's Mr Lee sold his business to MR AND MRS. HUGH LINDSAY. They ran both the store and post office until they closed the store and moved the post office across the street. They continued to run the post office until 1952 when they retired to Calgary.

In 1907, the Wittenburg School was built and that saw the first Christmas entertainment in the valley. Mr Craig was the first teacher. The students were: GERALDINE CHINNECK (Mrs Leo Beeson), ANNE SHOUPE (Mrs. Dave Evert), PHENA SHOUPE (Mrs. Mert Chailand) AMANDA BRODERSEN (Mrs Robert McKenzie) BILL BRODERSEN ERNIE AND DAVID EVERT OLA MEREDITH (Mrs. Chas. Andrew) JOE AND RUSSELL MEREDITH MR WASHBURN'S children and one child of MR BECKER'S walked six miles from the Gimlet district to attend school. School taxes were $10 per quarter and paid directly to the school board. A teacher's salary in 1915 was $525 plus room and board, which was supplied by anyone who could put them up for a month or two or a whole term. The teachers at Wittenburg (Leedale) were:

Mr A. B. Craig 1907-08 Mr Fahs, 1909: Mr Nicholson, 1913, Mr F. R. The school was closed and the children bused to Rimbey in 1958. Prior to the closing of the school there were many meetings to try and get a centralized school here. No agreement could be made between the three school districts involved the County of Ponoka the County of Lacombe and the Local Improvement District so the idea was soon dropped and our children sent off in different directions to school. The school and property was sold to MR AND MRS ELWIN SOLDERS who have turned it into a lovely home

Also in 1907 a company was formed, headed by MR BRADSHAW, which built and opened the Wittenburg Creamery It was located on Mr Bradshaw's, one half mile east and two miles south of Wittenburg. This business, managed by MR LIGHT produced butter and cheese until it closed in 1914

Doctors were very difficult to get in the early years, for DR. HYNES had to come from Lacombe (40 miles by team, and later DR BYERS SR by horse and cart from Rimbey (15 miles) There was a lot of pneumonia those early days

Amusement and recreation were provided by picnics, dancing, ball games, horse racing and lots of visiting. If anyone wanted to visit outside the district and did not have their own transportation they often caught a ride to town with the mail carrier then went by stagecoach or if from Lacombe, by train

In 1917 the people changed the name of the hamlet from Wittenburg to Leedale in honour of Bill Lee

In 1920's, MR. BEELEY a J P operated a Barber Shop, was a clerk for Bill Lee and also ran the first blacksmith shop in Leedale

MR BISHOP had a barber shop and was also a Chiropractor in the 1930's

A blacksmith shop was opened by HARRY FARTHING in the late 1920's. It was later ran by JACK BOOTH and CARL ASKE bought it in 1937 ALBERT ADAMS ran the business for Mr Aske about 1944-45, then ERIC MASUCH had it until the early 50's. EARL GRAY operated a blacksmith from his private garage from the mid 50's to the early 60's

There was a cemetery staked out in the hamlet in the early 1900's but the land was too low and wet so was abandoned. When the road was rebuilt about 1961 it was discovered that one person had been buried there. A skeleton was lifted out with the dirt by an earth moving machine, being operated by Gilbert Hollingsworth. At first it was believed it was an Indian grave but after an investigation by the R C M P it was discovered a cemetery had been started there

In 1921 the Bradshaw Cemetery Association was formed, with A. L. BOYER, Chairman and W H LEE, Sec.-treas. The cemetery was then registered with the Government of Alberta. It had been used prior to this time and records show the first buried there was Howard Bernard Belt, child of Mr and Mrs. H. B. Belt, age one year eight months, November 5, 1915

In 1921 the Women's Institute was organized with MRS MARGARET (LOUIS) EATON as president There were 30 members. It continued until about 1945

TRENHOLM president, ERNISTINE O'HARA sec.-treas MRS. PHIL MC TIGHE vice-pres with 16 members It continued until the closing of the Church

The Mormon Church was started by the ARCHER and HANCHER families and services were held in the community until the mid 1940's

GEORGE YOUNG held the first United Church service December 12 1934 at the JOHNSMAN home. He also started a Sunday School and Young Peoples Services over the years were held in the hall, the old store building the Mormon Church and in 1962 the Free Methodist Church was purchased and moved to Leedale A Women's Auxiliary to the United Church ran for several years but was discon

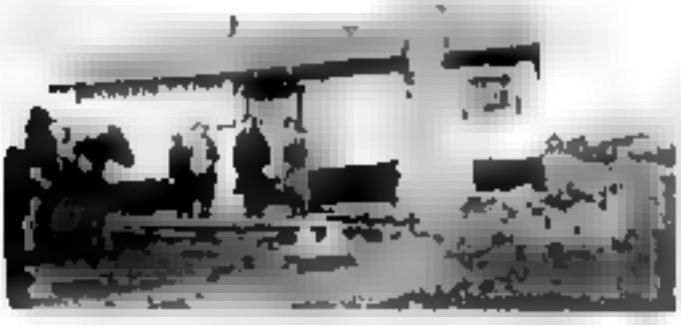
"AUNT" LOU CHALLAND operated a cafe and confectionary shop called the "Bargain Store" out of a building on the Rostad place in the mid 1920's. MRS. HASS ran a cafe from part of the old Lee store in the late 1930's. MRS. MYERS served dinners and ran a coffee counter in the back of their store in the late 30's and 40's.



The "Bargain Store" which was run by Lou Challand

In 1926-27, the Leedale Hall was built. Shares were sold at $10 a piece. MR. LOUIS GUTH was contracted to do the building. Lumber was hauled in from VARTY'S MILL, rock was hauled from the land being cleared in the district to be cemented in for the foundation and in 1927 it was ready for use. Whole families came for the opening — the music (it is believed) was supplied by BING ENGEBRETSON and JENNIE WITHERS — there was still a debt to be paid off so the men were charged one dollar for the evening but the women and children were admitted free. The ladies supplied the lunch.

ROE HANCHER, MAY TAYLOR and CECIL SLIM PEARSON also had orchestras which supplied music for many dances those early years. ALMA ERITSLAND held the first Christmas concert in the hall in 1928 and put on the next five. There is still a concert held in the hall every Christmas, marking 50 years in 1978. Silent Movies were shown in the hall for a few years when it was first opened and movies were shown there again by JOE STEEN, in the early 1950's for a short time. A new hardwood floor was put down in the 1960's when the GLEN TAYLOR FAMILY orchestra was making good use of the hall.

About 1931, FRANK TARRABAIN built a new store, east of the old one, which he ran until selling to DAN MYERS in 1936. DAN MYERS JR. sold to PAUL BORTH in 1966 and it was closed and renovated into a house in 1975.

HERBERT VARTY operated a lumber yard and gas business which was open from 1936 to 1940.

Shortly after DAN MYERS came in 1936 to operate the store, he started a lumber mill. IVAN ADAMS ran this for him for several years.

Plans to build a curling rink began with the forming of the Booster Club and in 1951 with HAROLD MASON, president and BUD PARKS. secretary, building began. Ice was put in the rink in 1952 and the young people of the community had much fun skating. The first curling game was played in it in 1953

[illegible] SONG

These are the words to a song which Myrtle Jacobs sang at nearly all of the community gatherings in the Leedale area in the early 1900's. It is not known who wrote it

Away up north in Alberta
Where the coyotes howl and sing
Where it rains and hails all summer
And you can not raise a thing

I took up a homestead in Alberta
Forty miles from the C.P.R.
You couldn't raise nothing but Jack Pines
On the mountains so steep and high
In the valleys there's nothing but muskegs
That never never go dry

LEEDALE W.I. (WOMEN'S INSTITUTE)
The Spinsters Convention

The past efforts of the Leedale W.I. have met with unqualified success, and the "Spinsters Convention" held on April 6 was no exception. The hall was crowded when the curtain rose and from start to finish the interest of the audience never flagged. Mrs. F. W. Hancher led the community singing, following which she gave a short talk ending with the story of the painting of the Madonna.

The opening of the "convention" was a signal for hilarity for there gathered fussy old maids garbed in garments fashioned in days gone by with their cats, dogs, and birds. During the meeting the ladies discussed their chances of matrimony, sang plaintive songs of love, recited poems of despair and listened to the debate on dress reform. Among other items one spinster explained the rules of the Cottage Hotel, Pimbey and we feel sure that the managemnet will be keenly interested in these rules.

Just at the close of the meeting, hopes were revived in the hearts of the forlorn spinsters by the arrival of a "dandy" professor and his assistant. The professor declared he could rejuvenate his clients and give them their heart's desire. Needless to say, the ladies were intrigued, and the "remodeler" was set up for skinny old maids with cracked voices appeared as dainty little vocalists, fat old maids were changed into little elocutionists, fairies and even butterflies. One spinster desired to become a man, but was informed that it would take two ordinary females to make a man, so another spinster joined her and lo! there emerged a man.

Once or twice things went wrong, for one spinster would not be separated from her dog, whereas the Professor washed his hands of the consequences and the poor dog emerges as a string of weiners. Another old maid, who counted the years as "Just twenty," was the despair of the professor, but eventually she entered the remodeler only to emerge in pieces. The most ancient spinster desired to become an angel, but the machine wasn't built to meet her years, and no change was made in her appearance, to her great disgust.

Despite these accidents the professor and his machine were very popular, and "hope sprang eternal in the old maids' breasts."

The show was followed by a dance to Rudy's music, and a cake, donated by Mrs. Hancher was raffled and won by Mrs. Oliver Salmon.

LEEDALE AMATEUR PERFORMANCE GOOD 1936

The members of the Leedale Women's Institute sponsored an amateur contest and program in the Leedale Community Hall on November 19 that was well attended and a success in every way

The contestants were catered in three divisions from 1 to 10, 10 to 16 and from 16 to 90 years of age. Winners of the first division were Edith Lee first, recitation, Caroline Eaglesfield second, a song, and Marie Baldridge third with a reading In the 10 to 16 class Mary Ralston of Rimbey was awarded first with a tap dance number Floyd Kraft with a vocal solo and Victor Kraft with a vocal solo. In the adult division the honors were so equally divided that the judges were unable to make an award, but special mention was made of Mrs. C Baldridge and Bill Lee in their artistic rendering of "School Days" The lady as the "Queen in Calico", did the vocalizing while Bill hove down hard on his harmonica. This number brought rounds of applause, as did two short skits done by members of the Institute. The first of these was a scene laid in the waiting room of Dr Kill-em-off's office where Mrs Dupres as "Nurse", was very attractive in a regulation uniform and where Mesdames Broderson, F Lee, K Wiltse, C. Pearson, M Pierson and C Baldridge swapped recitals of their aches and pains, until the arrival of a smartly dressed (Mildred Hobson), diverted their attention from their numerous symptoms to the current sale of hats and gowns at the Myers store at Leedale

In the second skit, Mrs Frank Hancher well known to all Leedale theatre goers as an actress of outstanding ability was undoubtedly the hit of the evening in her role of dancing master Mesdames Trendholm, T Chalkand and C Baldridge -- three pupils seeking instructions in the terpsichorean art, proved comedians of the highest order Miss Mary Ralston, in a brief but charming dance number completely captivated the hearts of her audience as well as that of the dapper young dancing master

Cecil Pearson in the capacity of 'Major

Bowes was all that could be desired and wielded the gong with such diplomacy that the victims actually liked it.

Members of the Leedale Women's Institute, of which Mrs. Wm. Broderson is president, and Mrs. Kenneth Wiltse secretary, served midnight supper and furthered the entertainment of the assembly by providing a dance orchestra under the leadership of Bert Archer of Edmonton, and dancing continued until the hours of early morning.

Miss Blanche Wallace, teacher at Benjamin school, J. Hembury of the Rimbey High School staff, and Mrs. A. E. MacDonald of Rimbey acted as judges in the amateur contest.

Rasmus Murray, employed at Leo Benson's sawmill, was winner of the beautiful woollen quilt in a draw that was made during the supper hour. The quilt was made by the Leedale W.I. and the funds derived from its sale go into the treasury.

LEEDALE, JUNE 1941

For many years the Indians in this central area had a Rain Dance in the spring. For a week before the ceremonial dance the Indians passed through Leedale in great numbers. Their destination was a pretty, secluded valley 10 miles west of Leedale.

John Strawberry — an Indian who died at [illegible] years.

Most of them drove a team and wagon and many were leading horses. There were always two or three dogs and sometimes more with each wagon. The squaws and the children sat on the floor of the wagon box. Many stopped at the store to get a few supplies which usually included tobacco, baking powder, flour, matches and a yard of brightly colored material. They would hang the cloth on the limbs of the trees which surrounded the encampment and dancing area.

If the dance was meant to bring rain it certainly accomplished its purpose, as it usually rained the whole week of the dance.

BUSH FIRES

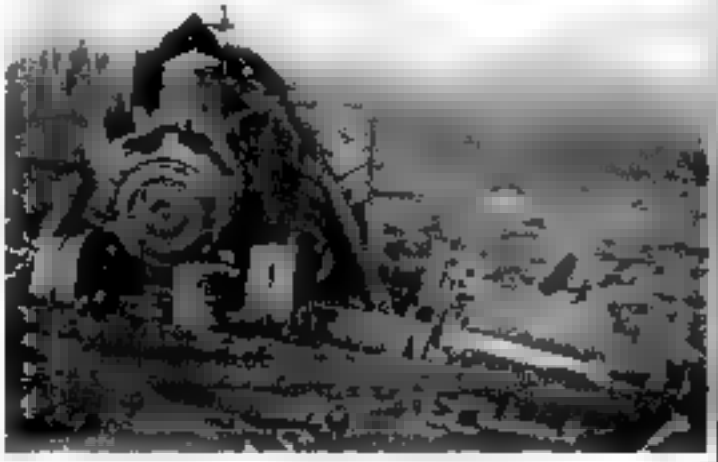
Every spring we live in fear of bush and grass fires. Years ago there was very little equipment that was very effective in controlling the dreaded fires.

Many settlers lost their homes and belongings in the raging fires which were fanned by strong winds in the tinder dry bush.

In 1937 Mrs. Lapeare saved her home from the flames although the barn, chicken house and wood pile burned.

In April 1941 Dick Hollingsworth, and S. A. Lyons narrowly escaped losing their buildings and fire fighters were out for several nights trying to protect homes and granaries.

Eight foot high log pile at McTighe Mill burned to ground — April 1941.



McTighe Saw Mill — April 1941 — Note: Wheels matted down to act flat on bottom.

That same month a raging bush fire swept into the McTighe Saw Mill 25 miles west of Leedale and burned the mill and log pile. Several families were living at the sight and they lost all their belongings. Mr Earl Johnson was badly burned Hundreds of men were ordered out by the Government to fight the fire

On April 29, Mr Skully's body was found where he had burned to death when he tried to escape the fire

Rain came on May 2, and everyone heaved a sigh of relief but on May 23, the fire again raged through the timber and claimed H. Varty's Mill and Mr. Beaman's buildings. Rain came again on the 25th

In 1968 there were many fire losses. The whole country was a glow at night and many farm buildings were burned. Mr and Mrs. M Simmons lost their barn from sparks which came from burning spruce a half-mile away

It was moved by Johnny Jones and seconded by Burns Kilpatrick that curling fees be $6 for men and $3 for women and school kids.

"UNEXPLAINED — by Iris Coulter, Craven, Saskatchewan (from the Western Weekly Supplement — January 2, 1968

This story is unexplained and something we never got to the bottom of, as it happened about fifty-five years ago, when I was only a small child, but I still remember it

It was the year 1907, and my father had homesteaded near Wittenburg, now known as Leedale. We were living in a two-roomed log shack. Our family consisted of my parents brother and myself

It was in early June, and it had rained for several days. My brother and I were sitting by the window looking out, when we saw a man emerge from the tall timber nearby and pass within a rod of the window He was tall and wearing a black felt hat We called our mother and the three of us watched him as he walked down the pathway leading to the half open door of the hen house and disappeared into the building

We kept on watching to see him come out, as in those days homesteads were lonely places [illegible] more, my mother called to dad who was dozing on the bed, and told him that a man had gone into the hen house. The small dog had seen him, as it began to bark

Dad got up and walked to the hen house, but no one was in there. There was only one door to the hen house and if the man had come out we would have seen him. He then looked to see if there were any tracks in the mud but there were none We all went out and looked for tracks, but couldn't see any Dad accused the three of us with having too much imagination

A month later, in the early evening of a hot July day mother and I were standing at the door when our attention was drawn by our small dog letting out a couple of loud barks. We looked and there coming through the tall timber was this same man, who again walked within a rod of us and disappeared into the hen house as before

We were frightened as Dad was away and my young brother had gone down to the end of the field to bring the cow home. The dog kept up a steady barking. We watched to see if the man came out, but there was no sign of him. Mother was worried as my brother had to pass by the side of the hen house on his way back with the [illegible]

Shortly I saw my brother coming chasing the cow ahead of him, and he raced into the hen [illegible] cow's watering pail was kept in the hen house He came out again quite unconcerned, and when we questioned him, he was surprised, as he had [illegible]

Several weeks later a far-away neighbor was visiting us during the afternoon when the same thing happened again. The dog barked and we were all amazed to see the strange man appear then vanish into the hen house So we all put on a brave front and walked down to the hen house immediately and glanced in every corner of the small structure, but there wasn't a sign of anyone This has always remained a mystery

If it had been only one person who had seen it we could have put it down to hallucination, but the first time there were three of us, the second time two of us, and the third time four of us one being an outsider

This remains to this day unexplained Mother had told the story to different people later on, after we had left the homestead, and settled in Saskatchewan but each had a different theory

One elderly lady who had lived near that part of the country at the turn of the century told us later that she had heard several men had been murdered there in the early days Bones had been found on the Edward Dirkson farm four miles away in 1904, but were identified as Indian bones

The above story is true but unexplained

RECOLLECTIONS by Elva Visger Rice

was born in the winter of 1925 in what is now the Rimbey Auxiliary Hospital. At the time, my folks (Lyle and Zerola Visger) lived on the Rostad place nine miles west of Rimbey, in a log house which is still on the property as far as I know

It was in the depth of a hard winter and my Father rode horseback in to see my Mother and , with the snow up to the horse s belly Our hired girl at that time was Evelyn Wegreen, who looked after my sister Alberta and brother Robert at home

Later we moved to the Manley Cumberland place near Leedale where Nora was born. Next to the Coverdale place in the Simon district, and then to the Aldridge place a half mile west of Pierson s

Dale Joan and Bonnie were born while we lived there. One winter while we lived there, it was so mild on my birthday on January 19, that we sat in the shade and made ice cream. I remember we used to pump the horse trough full with a sort of tread mill with a horse going in a wide circle Sometimes the cows tails would get caught in the turning pipe and of course they would come to a slow stop. The last move was made to the old home place which was two miles east of Brown's corner My folks lived there for nearly 30 years. I well remember that move, as I was nine years old Alberta and Robert went ahead on horseback with the cattle and horses The rest of us came in the wagon, driving the mules. Si and Jim. Bonnie was six months old in the crib at the back of the wagon. As we drove past Brown s I remember Mrs. Brown came out to wish us well

The old log house we moved into holds many a memory. As Ellen Hayward used to say, "If those logs could talk" When the walls got dingy we just pasted a new edition of the 'Family Herald" over it. There seemed to be a lot of young people around in those days. No phones, but word seemed to get around quickly about an upcoming tobogganing party. My sister Nora and Harvey Simmons, even went so far as to get married. There were lots of other short time

I took Grades 1 to 8 at Leedale plus three years at Leedale High School in the old Lee store I kept those two barrel stoves going and split those huge blocks of wood, but I loved it Alberta and I lived in a borrowed thresher's bunk house on the school yard Other girls did likewise The third year I lived with Beatrice Brown and Mildred Walker in a warm granary that Mr Brown made

In the winter those trips home for the weekend were something else, but Robert with a team and sleigh was our trusty chauffeur until Bill Lee s hired man, Charles Moore, caught Alberta s eye Then we would come back with him on Sunday night, as the Moore's lived neighbor to us

It was fun living next to such a big family with kids our ages. Everybody was in the same boat in those days. The name of the boat was "Poverty" I'm still in one of the lifeboats but who cares? We don't have everything we want but we have everything we need Remember when?

1. Miss Erlisland took us for a hike and warned "don't go in the river" but of course the Grade II girls had to try it
2. We spent our noon hours drowning out gophers to make a few cents from the tails
3. When Norman Benson's horse reared up and fell over backwards but Norman crawled out okay
4. We met the Benson boys on the way to school and were happy to announce to them that our baby sister Bonnie had arrived during the night but they surprised us with the same announcement that their baby brother Gordon had arrived
5. Miss Erlisland came to school with the firm decision, "No more talking in school, or you'll get the strap," I was second in line and bawled at noon hour
6. When Beatrice and I sat in a double desk at the back of the row Gordon Baldridge went to the water fountain, collected a hand full of flies off the window sill and put them down Beatrice s neck

7. Miss Evans tried to teach us to chew each mouthful 32 times and when noon hour was over we were still eating
8. Our skinny old horse Charlie, part Clyde, could beat any horse in the school
9. When an airplane lit beside the hall on sports day
10. When the Visger's drove their topless Model T with the kids behind in the meat house
11. We had measles and we had to bake the valentines before sending them to school
12. When every child at school had a nickname, everything from wall eyes, goose eggs, cave donkey chin and egg nose

I was married to John Rure in May 1949 and we farmed about 16 miles east of Red Deer near the school I supervised. Our four children Fay Eddy, Wendy and Danny were born while we lived there. We moved to Armstrong, B.C. in 1965 where we live now. In 1967 we acquired three foster children Darlene, Glen, and Grace Felex from a nearby reserve, so now we have a family of seven. We also have two granddaughters. John works in the logging business.

ADAMS, DOREEN AND ALBERT

Doreen and Albert Adams and three sons, Vernon, Leonard and Kenny moved into Leedale in about 1944 from the Faraway district where they had farmed and Albert had worked in the sawmills during the winter months. He worked for a time in Carl Aske's blacksmith shop but left that in about a year to go to work in road construction in the summer.

While there they added a daughter, Betty Anne, to their family. Doreen and family remained in Leedale for a time but when Albert returned to the mills for winter work they moved back to the Faraway district. While there, over the years three more sons, Lee, Neil and Albert Duane, were born.

Albert continued to work in construction in summer and mills in the winter until the fall of 1950, when he started firing boilers on oil rigs. He passed away while on the job at Coronation in November of 1950. Doreen and family continued on living in the Faraway district.

In 1957, she and Gordon Pike were united in matrimony in Red Deer. To them two more daughters, Holly and Janet, were born. They reside in the district and continue to farm and Gordon has been employed by Amerada Minerals Corporation of Canada Ltd. for the past [illegible].

Most of the family still reside in points in Alberta with the exception of the oldest son who lives at McBride, B.C.

[illegible]

Clay Aldridge came to Alberta from Iowa, U.S.A. in 1906 and settled on a farm about three miles north of Leedale. In the fall of 1909 he returned to the U.S. and in November married Nettie Galey, who at that time was teaching school there. They returned to the farm early in 1910 shortly after their arrival Mrs. Aldridge was asked to teach at the Gimlet School.

Their first child was born in November 1910.

Mrs. Aldridge was called to fill in at various times whenever a full time teacher was unavailable.

A second child Walter was born in September 1914. The family moved to Edmonton in the fall of 1928.

Clay passed away in 1968. Mrs. Aldridge is still living and will celebrate her 96th birthday in July 197[illegible].

The sons married in Edmonton where Charlie still resides. Walter was killed in a car accident in 1952.

ARDPOD, FRANK

Mr. Ardpod, with 11 other young men, left Santa Maurla, Romania for Canada in 1928 leaving his wife and family behind he was in search of the wealth offered in the New World (or so the ads said). James Lukocs was one of his fellow travelers as far as Canada. They did not meet again until about 1935 when Mr. Ardpod purchased the NW 6-42-4-W5, about one and one half miles west of Mr. Lukocs. This was a C.P.R. quarter and had been farmed by Lyn Wiese and his hired man, Ted Pimm and later owned by Mr. Polynik prior to Mr. Ardpod so had about 50 acres broke on it. It is believed someone had lived on the quarter earlier, for there was a dug [illegible] here, but no definite information could be found. Alfred Straarup also farmed the land.

Mr. Ardpod was a section man for the C.P.R. so did not farm the land himself. He did build a log house and planned to bring his family over but his wife died in Hungary so he did no more with the farm. The Depew (or Depue) family rented the buildings for a short time after Mr. Ardpod left.

He sold the farm to Charlie Repas, moved to Calgary, where he remarried and lived the rest of his life.

[illegible]

Early in the year of 1937 Carl H. Aske and son Clarence, came to Leedale from Madel and purchased the blacksmith shop from Harry Farthing. They lived in the back of the shop until Mrs. Aske and the younger children joined them in the spring.

[illegible]

They soon bought a house that is still in Leedale. Many folks will remember, in the Aske home, the coffee pot was always on the stove and everyone was always welcome.

After many years of hard blacksmith work Carl Aske retired in 1951 and they moved to Rumbey.

Mrs. Aske passed away February, 1953 and Mr. Aske in November of 1955.

Their family is as follows:

Hilda Moonen lives in Kamloops, B.C.

Clarence and wife, Rosie, live in Flatbush, Alberta where he is retired.

Johnny Aske passed away at Nojack, Alberta in July 1962.

Mabel Ervin resides at Clairmont, Alberta.

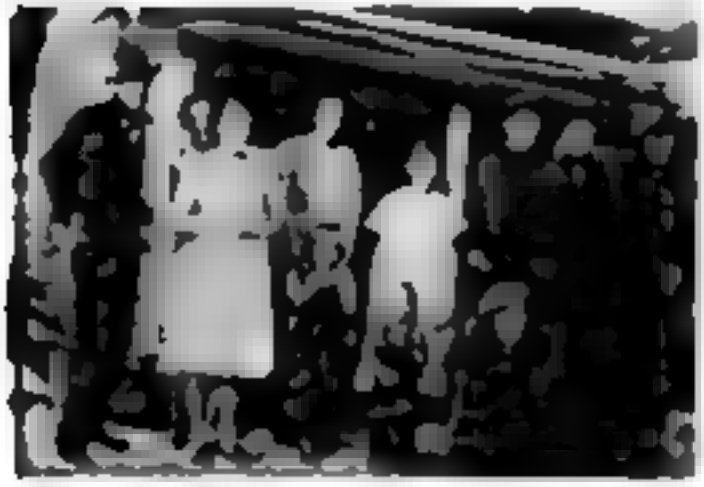
Melvin Aske passed away in Edmonton, October 1972.

Eddy Aske and wife, Loretta, live in Rocky Mountain House.

Josephine Royan resides in Rimbey.

Hazel and Jimmy Varty live 29 miles west of Rimbey at Faraway.

Violet and Gordon Belt reside in Red Deer.



[illegible]

MR. AND MRS. MAURICE BEAUGRAND

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Beaugrand came to the Leedale district in about 1910, homesteading on Open Creek. They later bought a Canadian Pacific Railway quarter one and one-half miles west of Leedale where they resided until 1946 when they sold to Edward Belt. Mrs. Beaugrand is buried in Rimbey. Maurice retired to Whiterock, B.C. where he lived until his passing.

They had one son, John, who received his schooling at Leedale and now resides in British Columbia.

JOHN BECK

John Beck was born in Kendellville, Indiana on August 2nd, 1870, and as a young man he worked in North Dakota and Washington. He came to Canada in 1905 and took a homestead which was the NW 14-42-4-W 5.

He was a hard working man, a good neighbor and friend. He sold the farm to O. McElroy in 1947. He bought C. H. Aske's house in Leedale and moved in 1948.

He spent the last year with old friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Brown and passed away January 12th, 1952.

BELT GORDON LESLIE — [illegible] Lumber Boom-hardier

Son of Esther and Harley Belt, born April 13, 1920. Education at Gimlet and Leedale Schools 1926-1934. Worked on the family farm 'til joining the Canadian Army in October 1941 serving with the 112 Battery sixth Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment R.C.A. second Canadian Armed Corps, under the command of Lieutenant-general Guy Simmons in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany returning to Canada to be discharged in Calgary in November 1945.

I married Violet Aske December 24, 1941, we have four children, Delores Hatala, Fort Smith, Northwest Territories; Leslie of Red Deer; Marlin of Rumbey, and Lydia Ann Cooper of Red Deer.

BELT, HARLEY J.

I left New Hartford, Iowa, where I was born August 14, 1892, travelling through St. Paul Minneapolis to Winnipeg, then on to Lacombe by train, arriving near the end of July, 1912. This route was travelled by many early settlers, for the sooner they reached Canada, the cheaper it was for them to travel. Homestead rates for travelling by train in Canada was one cent per mile. Upon reaching Lacombe, I was met by my older brother, Verne, who lived there at the time, and he drove me by team and buggy, to our eldest brother, Burley's homestead which was west of Wittenburg near the Gimlet Creek. Leaving Lacombe early in the morning, we travelled by road and trail, stopping at Willits, four miles east of Wittenburg for dinner. This was where I first met the Willits. Like all pioneer homes their house was always open for tired, hungry travelers. The road east from Wittenburg was new at this time.

We visited a few days with Burley and his family, then returned to Lacombe where I worked for the town that summer putting in streets and sidewalks.

That fall, having earned enough money to buy a team and wagon, I went to my father's homestead on the Red Deer River at Haynes. There I finished breaking the land that my father, Isaac Ruphas Belt, had started to break.

when proving up his homestead in 1901. He never completed what he started, for he was murdered 4 November 1902 by Ernest Cashell, one of the 'most wanted' men at that time. Verne had thought he would take over father's homestead but decided against it, and sold it the spring of '13. I worked on a threshing outfit at Haynes that fall, then returned to Wittenburg to spend the winter with Burley.

Burley purchased the first threshing rig to be owned in the valley the fall of 1912. Upon returning from Hayes I ran this for him threshing throughout the country. Bundles were put up in stacks and threshing went on into winter then. The machine itself had a 40 horse engine, was hand fed with a straw carrier. Many a morning it balked at the idea of starting, especially when it was 40 below. Besides threshing, this engine was used to saw wood, and grind feed for many a neighbor. I recall threshing one winter as far north as Bargins, north of Willesden Green, west through Freitags, south to Salmons and Lawtons as well as several in the valley; Mottet's, Hancher's, Challand's and Brown's. I returned to Lacombe the spring of '13 and worked there until haying season began. Burley and I rented the Everts' quarter and taking the hay from it was the first farming I did in the area for myself.

Sundays were a day of rest and relaxation. Ball games and pony races were enjoyed by all spectators and participants alike. There were no churches so all Christian teachings were taught at home by the parents. Neighbors often called for a visit on Sunday. Picnics were also enjoyable. They were held at various places. The ones that come to mind were at Bradshaw's, Sherman's, and on the school section. Even, if at no other time of year, there was always a picnic on July 1. We played ball, usually inviting a team out from Rumbey, had horse races and other races for the kids, men and "fat" women. A collection was taken up and given out as prizes for the kids' races. Everyone took lunch, salads, sandwiches, etc. and some brought their homemade wines and moonshine. After the hall was built in 1927 most of the community gatherings were held there or at the school.

One evening, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sherman, Manda Brodersen and I were on our way to a dance at Laroses and stopped on the way at Russ and Eva Hall's (west of the Gimlet school two and one-half miles). Eva's sister, Esther Mottet was there that evening so we took her along to the dance, "being the beginning of the end". I took her to the next dance at Brodersen's and from then on there has been no one else. We were married June 24, 1915, at Esther's parents home south of Wittenburg. Rev. C. D. McDonald came from the Leaf Land area to perform the ceremony. Our witnesses were R. J. Russell Hall and H. B. Belt. Guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Damron, Arthur and Ned, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. R. Hall, Mrs. E. Withers, Mr. H. B. G. Withers, C. L. Withers, Fred and Nora

After a two week honeymoon to Pleasant Valley we settled on Burley's south quarter where I broke 30 acres with four horses and a 16 inch breaking plow That fall Esther stayed with my sister and her family, Lena and George Johnston in the Aurora District while I was threshing We lived in many different places over the first 15 years of marriage but always in the Wittenburg (Leedale, after 1918) area. The Hank Nelson place in 1916, and Simmon's 1917-20 three miles north-west, the C.P.R. quarter one and one-half west in '20 and the section one and one-half miles north in 29 and 30. In the spring of 1931 we bought the NE 34-41-4 W5 and the NW 35 41-4-W5, known as the Clifford or Gee place, and lived there until retiring to the Lodge in Rimbey in 1972

Esther and I watched a small village grow in those early 1900's. The post office and store were there when Esther came in 1906, but after came the creamery, school, livery stable, blacksmith shop. barber shop, the new store, lumber yard hall. high school and much later the curling rink Business flourished during the 30's and 40's, not only due to the many farmers in the area but to the lumber mills in the west Then during the 50's and 60's, with faster transportation and better roads another great change hit the country. The cry was for improvement by centralizing The Calgary Power came into the country, the cry for gas and oil was heard, telephones were installed, and small country schools were closed and the children bussed to town. By mid 1975 the hamlet of Wittenburg) Leedale was a ghost town, with only the hall and curling rink remaining of what once was a very busy little place

Like most farmers in the area we learned early that to make a "go of it" in this area one had to run a mixed farm and work hard at it By raising hogs and cattle for market or trade and our own use, mixed grains and hay for feed chickens for eggs and meat and raising a large garden to feed the family, we came through the early years, the hungry thirties and the war years of rationing perhaps better than most, for we were never hungry or cold. Heat was provided by wood burning stoves Much land was cleared of trees which were sawed, then split for cook stoves or left in blocks for the furnace Meat was canned or home cured. Vegetables and wild fruits were home canned The wild raspberries strawberries and saskatoons were delicious by themselves or mixed with rhubarb Blueberries were plentiful, choke cherries made wonderful pancake syrup and cranberries made the chicken and turkey a little better We built an ice house. which was filled with blocks of ice from the Medicine River every spring. This kept the milk and cream cool. and was used as the refrigerator is today Butter was made from the cream, and cottage cheese from the milk

By 1936 we managed to save enough money to build a new home. A two-storey with full basement for less than $2,000. The older boys logged, and Varty's sawed the lumber for the house Clem Baldridge was the carpenter Some prices were: 675 bricks $18.90; cement 90 cents per bag, ten test $55.00 per 1,000; 25 lbs. 2½" coated nails $1.75; doors. 2'6 x 6'6", $3.25 windows 12" x 24" $1 75 each. We had running water by pumping water into a tank situated in the attic. The sewer was put in when the house was built Water was heated in a tank beside the cook stove by pipes running into the lining of the fire box We also had a 32 volt light plant which supplied us with light The bathroom was put in in 1943 making it one of the first modern homes in the Leedale Valley

The war years were anxious times for many Edward, Dallas, and Gordon, our three older sons, were all in the service, only Edward and Gordon returning. F/O Belt D. E. J23877 570 Sqdrn. R.A.F R.C.A.F Overseas was reported missing in action on July 29, 1944. this being confirmed July 31, 1946. He is buried, with the members of his crew in Orleans, France

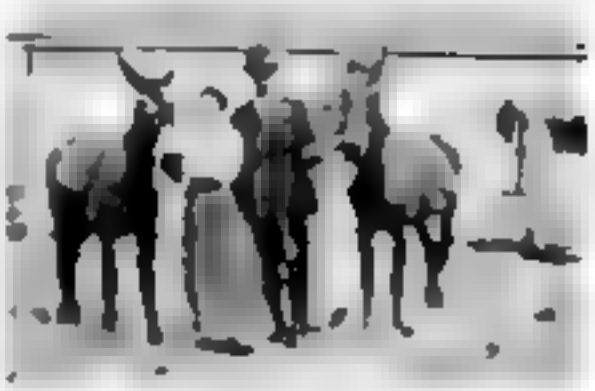
He and his wife Bertha were married in Lincoln, Nebraska where he had his printing shop. Times grew bad so they took up a farm out in Kansas and lived there for eight years. Paul was a pioneer and decided Canada was a new country so he would go north

In 1904 he homesteaded 42 miles northwest of Lacombe, beside the Medicine River where he named his home Wittenburg after his childhood home in north Germany just 30 miles south of the Danish border near the small town of Bredestedt in the province of Schleswig Holstein

Two children, Wilbarn and Amanda were born in Nebraska, a third child Anna was born in Lacombe, the first baby to be delivered by young Dr Hynes

A large dining and living room were built onto the existing early three-room home with a bedroom and dance hall above. The dining room became a store and post office His wife, Bertha, was postmistress for eight years



Paul drove to Bentley, 25 miles, twice a week to deliver mail and bring mail back along with groceries, hardware, etc. Saturday night was a big night, people of the community came to get their mail and buy groceries. Small Anna left to her own devices, liked looking at the funnies, fell asleep on the mail bags.

The hall above was used for community dances, usually Saturday nights. Oleg Englebrit son played the violin.

Later Bill Brodersen drove the wagon or sleigh to Bentley for the mail and groceries. Many times it was necessary to go to Lacombe for things needed. It was very cold in winter. Foot warmers were a necessity on those long trips.

Paul was a good blacksmith, horses had to be shod, runners made for sleighs, etc. etc. He and son Bill, ran a herd of cattle and later built up a registered herd of Herefords.

Bertha Brodersen and daughter Amanda cooked many meals for people who came out looking for land and who often stayed overnight. Paul drove them around the country looking for land to file claims on. He also served as a commissioner and signed documents for people.

PAUL BRODERSEN — by Amanda S MacKenzie-Fuddison nee Brodersen

My father Paul Brodersen, was born in Denmark and my mother, Bertha Klement, was born in Austria, Hungary. They were married in Lincoln, Nebraska, U.S.A., April 27, 1893 and from this union three children were born. My brother William (Bill) and I were born in Lincoln, Nebraska and my sister, Anna Christine, was born in Lacombe, Alberta.

My father was a printer and Clerk of the Court in Lincoln. From there the four of us moved to Jennings, Kansas, where father farmed and mother set type for sale bills and wedding invitations on their printing press. From Kansas the four of us came to Lacombe in 1903. Father came by rail with settlers' effects and mother, brother Bill and I came by train later. We lived on a rented farm near Lacombe for one year while we children attended the Milton School. My father helped Mr. Butterfield and Mr. Skinner to set up The Lacombe Globe which is an interesting newspaper today. From Lacombe we moved to Medicine Valley where father took up a homestead, NW 2-42-4-W5, and also purchased the following C.P.R. land, NW 1-42-4-W5 and NE 3-42-4-W5. Father built our home near the Medicine Valley River on NW 2 where he farmed and raised Purebred Hereford cattle. He also started the first post office and store in 1907, mother was his assistant postmistress and clerk, and named the farm, post office and store "Wittenburg" after father's ancestral home in Denmark. In 1918 the name Wittenburg was changed to Leedale. However down through the years I still visit my old home, the house is still standing as well as some of the other buildings. All the above land has been sold to the Tkacik Brothers. And the name "Wittenburg" (in prominent letters) is on a signpost as you enter their yard. There is always a friendly welcome when my sister and I visit the Tkacik's.

My father passed away June 19, 1929 and mother on December 1, 1959. My brother, Bill, farmed and raised purebred Hereford cattle on the NE 25-41-3-W5. Bill sold the farm and moved to Rimbey in 1957. He passed away February 23, 1970 at the age of 76 years. His wife Florence lives in a convalescent home in Wetaskiwin, Alta. My sister Mrs. Bruce (Anna) Thirsk of Surrey, B.C. and myself are the only survivors left.

BROWN, OSCAR AND BERTHA, SE 14-42-4-W5

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Brown moved to the Leedale community in April, 1933. They bought the SE 14-42-4-W5 from Jimmy Jackson.

Oscar Brown was in the Rimbey area for the first time when he was 12 years old. He came with his father Andrew J. Brown from North Dakota in the summer of 1900 and lived near the Forshee area. His father left him alone there and went back to North Dakota to bring the rest of the family. Oscar was alone for two months, having his dog for company, baking his own bread, catching fish, snaring partridges and rabbits to eat in his father's absence. He recalled having a horse rancher, Mr. Reed, for a neighbor. Mr. Reed rode over to visit him about twice a week, perhaps to keep an eye on him. When the family came, they stayed about two months and then all returned to North Dakota because Mrs. Brown Sr. didn't like the bush country.

Mrs. and Mr. Oscar Brown had three daughters. Floy (Mrs. Glenn Challand) of Rimbey, Beatrice (Mrs. Orris Challand) of Rocky Mountain House, and Marjorie (Mrs. Leroy Johnston) also of Rocky Mountain House.

Their belongings were shipped by train to Rimbey and moved out to the farm with four head of horses on a wagon. Mrs. Brown and Floy herded the three milk cows on foot.

Mr. Brown broke 30 acres of land the first year with horses. The first three years they lived at Leedale they were either hailed out or got froze out. This made for a real hardship on top of just moving to the new community.

Oscar returned to Pincher Creek area each year for the first few years to thresh. Mrs. Brown and the girls ran the farm while he was away.

The money he made there would help with the operating expenses for the following year.

Mrs. Brown's hobbies for the years were milking cows, raising foxes and turkeys.

The Brown's were active in the Free Methodist Church. Mrs. Brown was the Sunday School Superintendent for a number of years. Many of the former children who attended Sunday school still recall the great times they had at the Easter parties Mrs. Brown would have for them.

In 1948-1950 they built a new house and in 1963 they sold the farm to Mr and Mrs. Art Frayn and moved to Rocky Mountain House During this time Mr Brown became involved with the great sport of curling and curled in many bonspiels in Leedale and Rocky Mountain House

Mr and Mrs. Brown celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary in February 1969

HONORED ON 60th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

In October of 1972 they moved to the Parkland Manor in Rimbey where they lived until their passing. Mr Brown passed away in October 1973 and Mrs Brown in December 1975

MR. AND MRS. JOHN B. BRUN, NE 15-42-4-W5 — by T Hanna

My parents came to Canada from Christiania now Oslo Norway in the later 1880's. My dad came first to Minnesota and later my mother and five children came across by sailing ship. They left Minnesota and settled about 50 miles north of Regina at Govan, Saskatchewan where the last four children were born. When I was five years old (in 1915) we moved to southern Saskatchewan just one-half mile from the Montana border a nice but barren land covered with bleached buffalo bones, lots of antelope and luscious green grass, no drought then)

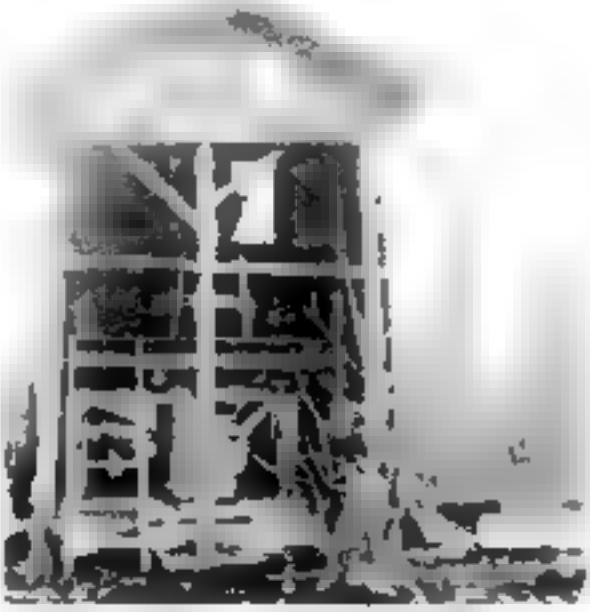
During the "hungry thirties" my parents, Mr and Mrs Brun my brother Floyd and niece Virginia Bengston came to the Mount View district from Frontier, Saskatchewan. They came in a Model A Ford to this beautiful country which seemed like a paradise after leaving the "dust dunes" in Saskatchewan

They got an acreage 13 miles west of Rimbey by the bridge crossing the Medicine River

Dad built a log house and blacksmith shop there but they lived there for one year They then purchased the Lou Eaton place (NE 15-42-4-W5) which was two and one-half miles north of Leedale

They moved the log buildings and settled



Mr John Brun's flour mill. He brought the grinding rocks, one from Montana and the other from Saskatchewan.

down to farm in 1935. He did blacksmith work for the surrounding district for a number of years

While he lived there he had a flour mill which he made out of two huge rocks. One rock he got in Montana and the other one on the Saskatchewan side. The rocks were about three feet across and one and a half feet thick, with a six inch hole in the centre. I always held the chisel for dad while he was carving them out. It was a long tedious and vibrating job I must say

One rock was put on top of the other. The mill was powered by a Model T Ford engine and as the top rock spun around the wheat was ground into flour, fine or coarse, whichever one desired

When my parents came to Alberta they had to leave the rocks in Saskatchewan, but Russel Stewart and my brother Floyd went back with a half ton truck to bring them up. It was such an immense weight for the narrow tires, that the tires kept popping like popcorn, so they unloaded one rock on the other side of Calgary and made the rest of the way O.K. Later Russel and Verona went down and brought the other rock home. The mill is now in Stan Reynolds' Museum in Wetaskiwin, Alberta.

Dad made his own roof shakes by hand. He was also a great woodsman and fisherman and slashed out many roads (still used) in British Columbia in the 1920's. Dad died in 1941, age 78 years, with many of his hobbies unfinished. My parents were very hospitable people and always had a house full of company.

My mother and brother sold the farm to Cleland Price and moved into Rimbey. My mother died in 1956 at the age of 86 years, still humorous and contented.

We miss them both very much.

BUCKNELL, TOM

Tom Bucknell moved onto the "Lee" place coming from Lockhart about 1934. That winter his house burned and he died from burns received in that fire. Pete Fraser noticed the house was burning and went to investigate. He carried Tom the one-half mile to his home. The weather and bad roads prevented Pete from taking him to the hospital for about a week. Lucy Robinson cared for Tom as best she could during that time, but the burns were so bad he lived only about another week after reaching hospital.

BURNS, WADE AND SUE

Mr. and Mrs. Burns bought the SE 23-42-4-W5 from Cody Bengston and moved to the district with their son Eddie and daughter Shannon in December 1974 from Louis Creek, B.C.

Besides his farming duties Wade works at Parkland Motors, Chev Olds dealer in Rimbey as parts man and mechanic. He is interested in all sports and enjoys the position of pitcher in the Rimbey baseball team.

Sue works at the Rimbey Livestock auction on sale days and is a licensed AI Technican and bonded Livestock Dealer.

Eddie and Shannon attend the Rimbey school. Eddie plays hockey and is very interested in hunting and trapping. Shannon is enjoying skating lessons this year.

The Chaland brothers, Terry, Clarence, Merton and Claude, came from Iowa to Canada in 1905.

They arrived at Lacombe and remained in that area for two years before venturing to the Leedale area, known then as Wittenburg. They all took homesteads.

Terry, who was married to the former Lou Archer in Iowa, homesteaded the NE 36-41-4-W5 in 1907. They had no children of their own, but later helped raise Thelma and Gilbert, children of Clarence Chaland. Aunt Lou died in 1945. Terry sold them, and moved to Rimbey.

Clarence homesteaded the NW ¼ 32-41-3-W5 in 1907. He built a log house there in 1906, and later married Florence Norris of Baltimore, Maryland in 1909. Clarence lived there for 46 years when his son, Gilbert, took over the farm. It was later sold to Orris Chaland in 1948.

Merton Chaland homesteaded the SE 2-42-4 W5th in 1907, the quarter on which the Leedale store was later located. He lived there about three years before moving to Bentley.

Claude Chaland homesteaded the NE 2-42-4 W5 also in 1907. In 1908 he married Lillie Shoupe. To this union were born five children, Yola, Lela, Orris, Glenn, and Alma. Yola married Alva Hancher, farmed for several years south east of Leedale and now resides at Vernon, B.C. Lela married John Scott of Calgary. Orris married Beatrice Brown of Leedale, and farmed a few years east of the store before moving to Rocky Mountain House. Glenn married Beatrice's sister, Floy, and they farmed south and west of Leedale before moving to a farm south of

Terry Challand - Terry Challand passed away on November 21, 1977, at the age of 104 years. A popular long-time resident of the Rimbey town and district Mr Challand enjoyed life to the full.

He was born in Iowa, the oldest of a family of seven, on February 3, 1873 and came to Canada in 1905, to the Lacombe district. He returned to the USA in 1907 and returned with his bride Louisinda Archer. They proved up a homestead in the Leedale area, southwest of Rimbey where he farmed until 1950 when he moved to Rimbey. He kept an interest in farming and even helped with some of the work on the farm in his 95th year.

He entered the Rimbey Auxiliary Hospital in 1969 where he resided until his death. Funeral services were held on Thursday November 24.

Rimbey. Alma married Edward Belt also of Leedale. They also farmed west of the store before moving to Red Deer.

Claude and Lillie drove by team and wagon for three summers to Bassano-Brooks area from 1910 to 1913 to work at road building with horses and scrapers. They hauled building material from Lacombe by team and wagon to build their first good house in 1918. They recall many hard times, doing roadwork to help pay land taxes etc , raising hogs and horses, and milking cows to make a living. They farmed, adding land to their original until 1965 when they sold the farm to Russel Stewart and moved to Rimbey where they still reside.

CHIBRI, PETER AND LILLIAN

We moved to Leedale from Neilburg Saskatchewan on October 17, 1938. We arrived by freight train bringing two cows, two calves four horses and some machinery. We purchased a farm from Mr. Cuttler, which was known as the old La Belle place. Before we could move into our house. Ernest Lee had to first remove the grain that was stored there. Therefore, for two weeks we stayed with Pete's sister and brother in-law Alex and Mary Skorelko.

That fall we started digging our water well by hand. The last 10 feet we hit solid sandstone rock and used dynamite, hammer and chisel and finally struck water at 35 feet. Our crop the next year froze and we threshed with sleighs. Being from Saskatchewan we brought Thatcher seed wheat, but that was the first and last time, as we found out Leedale didn't compare with Saskatchewan. Our first baby Edward, was born on March 22 1940 at the Rimbey Hospital which is, now, a Nursing Home

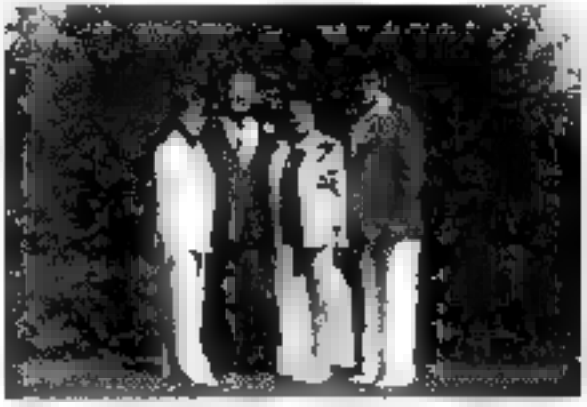
That same year Pete's brother-in-law and sister Nick and Helen Sulak from Edson, purchased Patahnuik place. In the fall of 1941 we had a sale to raise enough funds to make a down payment on the land we purchased northeast of Rimbey We rented Sulak place for a year then moved to our new home on April Fool's Day of 1943. There was so much snow that there were deep banks on each side of the road. As we turned the corner to make the last half-mile home, the horses and sleigh kept on going and the rack with our belongings was left hanging on the snowbank

On February 22, 1944 our second baby, Deanna, was born.



Chiltz family Deanna, Peter, Lillian and Edward

We are semi-retired living on the same farm north-east of Rimbey Edward married Mildred Jonsen, have two children and is Bank Manager of the Treasury Branch in Castor Alberta. Deanna married to Charles Montalbetti have two children and are living in Edmonton.

CHINU

Mr Chinu, a bachelor came from France, first to the Aurora district, then bought a raw Canadian Pacific Railway quarter, NE 33-41-4-W5, about 1919 He sold to A. E Westlake about 1921 and returned to France

HAROLD CUMBERLAND, NW 23-42-5-W5

Harold Cumberland was born in 1890, in the Wallace Township, Perth County near Listowel Ontario to Wellington and Hester Cumberland He moved to Portage la Prairie, Manitoba in 1907

He convinced his parents to sell and move west in 1911, and he moved on to Saskatchewan in 1911

He married Mae Greer in 1913, in Moose Jaw then brought his bride west to the homestead his father had filed on for him, NW 23-42-5-W5.

However, because of its remoteness and his love for the prairies, Harold and Mae stayed only until 1916, and returned to the Tunford farm.

He kept up the taxes on the homestead until the "dirty thirties

They raised nine children. Harold died in Rimbey in 1972. He was predeceased by his wife in 1967

JAMES D. CUMBERLAND — by Mildred (Cumberland) Parker

My father, James D Cumberland, came west from Listowel Ontario in March, 1912 He had bought the S.W 36-41-4-W.5 from a Mr Dahl, in the Medicine Valley Post Office, "Wittenburg" store and dance hall operated by Mr Brodersen.

Dad and my elder half brother, Elwyn (Casey) had moved out in February, 1912 with furniture and some farm implements. Mother and we three younger children, Mildred, Nelson and Arthur came a month later Dad met us in Lacombe with a wagon, spent the night at Bentley at a Stopping House and spent the next day getting to Wittenburg. Turned west at about the present hamlet of Forshee. There was really no road — moved trees out of our trail and forded creeks

Dad had moved west for health reasons. He had been plagued with boils while in the east His doctor advised him that a change in climate might be beneficial. It did! Then there were the dreams one being that the railroad had surveyed through the valley

A sister was added with the birth of Alberta

There was the Wittenburg school where I rode my Indian saddle pony to in the summer months Sometimes there would not be a teacher and I would attend Gimlet or Benjamin Schools

Dad's first quarter was very good soil and not as low as surrounding ones. Recall him throwing his hat out in the grain fields if it came to rest on top of the oats - good crop

Grain and cattle were moved to Kootuk. It was a great day for me when dad or my half brother would take me along. Then I had a chance to feast my eyes on goodies in Sestrap's store in Eckville. Cattle were driven in a herd by cowboys to be loaded on cars at Kootuk

In 1919 dad enlarged his land holdings and also bought the first car in the valley, a new Model T We had a car that would last the rest of our lives! Corduroy roads were being laid otherwise the Model T could not get very far Many a time horses, wagon, and saddle -- horses would sink into the mire almost out of sight

My parents lived at Leedale until dad's passing August 24, 1938. Mother then sold the farm to John Archer in 1939. She passed away November 12th 1969

My parents were buried in Bradshaw cemetery but when the Hutterites took over the valley the family had the bodies moved to Red Deer

Surviving are three children, Hildred Parker Nelson Cumberland, and Alberta Baird.

MANLEY AND NITA CUMBERLAND SW 13-42-4-W5

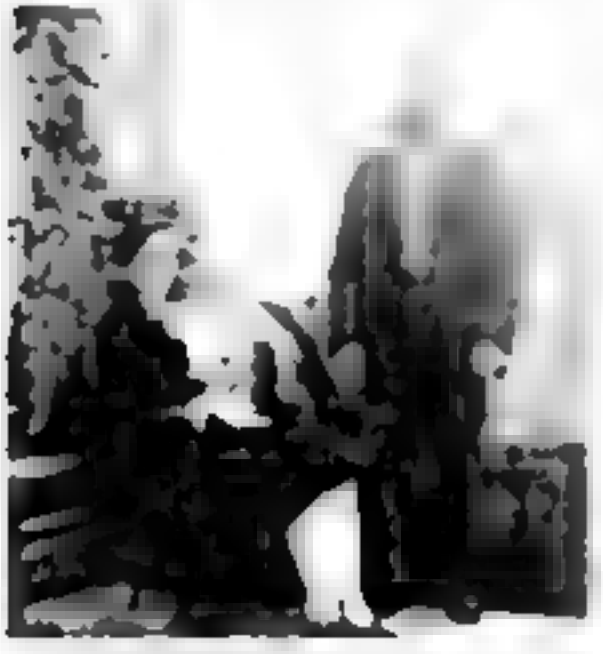
Manley was born in 1891, near Listowel, Ontario and moved west with his family, the Welly Cumberlands in 191.



In 1928, he married the former Nita Nicholson, who was born in Dobbington, Ontario in 1896 and came west with her parents Reverend and Mrs. Sam Nicholson. They homesteaded in the Spruceville area in 1901 Nita went to the Camrose Normal School and taught school at Morningside, Spruceville, Chapel and Athabaska. She was clerking at the Nu-Way store in Rimbey when she met Manley

Manley and his father operated the dray in Rimbey for many years, but the coming of the "Ford" truck made draying an unprofitable business, so Manley, Nita and small son Harley moved back to the family farm in 1934. These were the hungry thirties and things were tough The land which had been rented before that to the Vagers was the SW 24-42-4-W5 and the SW 12

Nita played the piano at church and was one of the very few women who could drive a car Her neighbor Mrs. Brown could also drive and they quite often drove into Rimbey to shop in the summer The roads were nothing like they are now but were two black tracks, a pair of ruts, and lots of mudholes. In winter they were almost impassable, as the roads were seldom ploughed free of snow in those days

Olaf Norem did threshing in the valley. and other neighbors were Mr and Mrs. Kruger, who lived on the quarter north Cyril Brewer, Oliver Jacobs, Harry Robb, Jack Brandon and Lester [illegible]

After 16 years on the farm the land was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Frowd, and in 1944, Manley Nita and Harley moved to a farm one mile west of Gull Lake, where Harley still resides. Manley passed away on March 16, 1964 and Nita on May [illegible]

WELLINGTON AND [illegible] CUMBERLAND, SW 24-42-4-W5, 1911 — by Muriel Stevens

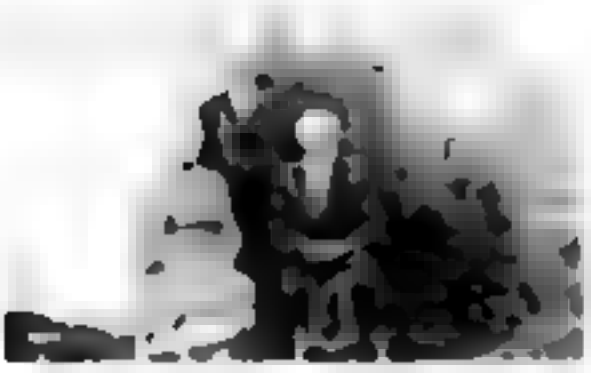
Wellington Harris Cumberland was born in Listowel Ontario, March 18, 1863 and died in Rimbey, Alberta in 1954 at the age of 91 years His father, Joseph Cumberland had arrived in Listowel from Tyrowne County Ireland, in 1864 when he was eight years of age It was here that his mother Rebecca Chamney was born in 1839

Wellington married Hester Anne Grothier of Listowel in 1887 They had three children. Harold, Manley and Florence

In 1911, Welly Cumberland and his family left their 12 room red brick house on the town line in Listowel to make the trek west, because their son Harold had decided the west was the only place to be

Wellington took the advice of an old friend, Mr Fallis, to buy land on the rail line which was to run near his homestead the SW 24-42-4-W5 and through his farm which was the SW 12-42-4-W5

In 1910, the surveyor stakes were in evidence to prove its certainty The land was flat and clear as a fire had swept through this area some years previously However, the rail line did not materialize



Wellington and Hester Cumberland and Mrs. Lush

Snow and frost plagued the Wittenburg valley and crops were very poor. In 1914, when the war broke out, Florence, their daughter remembered canning wild fruit without sugar, of shooting partridge and prairie chicken with her pearl handled 22 pistols, in order to supply meat for the table.

It was not uncommon to ride the range in search of their cattle. She also recounted how, at a dance at the Paul Broderson farm, a bullet sped up from the room below, luckily hitting no one.

Their two-roomed log house seemed a far cry from the lovely big home in the east. However this home was the scene of many good times. It was here the ministers often stayed when they drove out from Rimbey to conduct services as Welly and Hester were very active in church work.

In 1930, Florence married Robert Watts of Rimbey, where she resided until her death in [illegible].

In 1923, Welly, Hester and son Manley moved to Rimbey where the menfolk operated the dray between the station and the town. In those days they used to use horses and always prided themselves on the shining harness, the big Scotch collars and the sleek, groomed teams.

In 1938 Mr. and Mrs. Cumberland celebrated their 50th anniversary with a host of friends and relatives.

DAHL, LINDIS

Lindis Dahl, son of Ernest F. Dahl of the Gimlet district, served in W.W. I, then purchased the SW 11-42-4-W5, the quarter the Leedale Public School was located on.

He married Lenore Baird of the Gimlet district and they had one son. The boy was about 12 years old when he and his mother moved to United States.

Lindis stayed and later married Evelin Wegreen. They sold and moved to British Columbia in the late 1920's.

Lindis had two sisters. Delia and Mrs. Ora Archer.

After Lindis died Evelin married Cliff Anderson and presently lives at Canby, Oregon.

DEFILLIPPI, DOMINIQUE

Mr. and Mrs. Defillippi was the original owners of the SE 23-42-4-W5. They also bought the NE 23-42-3-W5 and the NE of 14 formerly owned by C. D. Aldridge in about 1930.

Having lived in Edmonton, the farm did not appeal to Mrs. Defillippi so she never moved to the farm but did come occassional for weekends with their two sons Philip and Raymond.

The boys usually spent the summer holidays on the farm with their dad, when there was much work to be done. Dominique did a lot of breaking and brushing while he was there and always kept a hired man to work and do the cooking.

Alec Jarbeau, Tommy Fuyarchuk, and Charlie Sorenson were some who worked for him.

In 1941 he sold the land to Harold and Grace Mason who also came from Edmonton and Defillippi went to the city.

After farming for many years Masons moved into Rimbey and the land was rented to Soren Hansen, Cliff Budd, and Dale Hatala and then sold to Cody Bengston who in turn sold it to Wade Burns the present owner.

DYAR, MR. AND MRS.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyar homesteaded the NW 24-42-4-W5, one half mile east, four miles north of Wittenburg in about 1908. It is believed his name was John ('Jack').

Mrs. Dyar had an article published in Rod and Gun in Canada in April, 1910.

It is not known how many children they had but their son Edward Thomas 'Bunny' was very ill one fall (about 1914) with pneumonia and before over it, had an appendicitis attack. He was under the care of Drs. from Lacombe and was nursed by Mrs. Harriet Baum Johnsma several weeks before regaining his health. It is believed Esther Mottet (Belt) worked for Mr. and Mrs. Dyar at this same time.

The Dyars moved from the district about [illegible].

EASTBURN

Sanford Walker Eastburn came with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Eastburn, from Creston, Iowa, to homestead the north half of 10-42-4-W5 in 1905. He was councillor for Local Improvement District number 431 in 1914 and Reeve in 1915. Walker married a Lampman girl and they had two or three girls and a son when they sold to Peter Mulbeck and O. B. Moore in about 1919.

This land is now owned by Ralph Armstrong.

FAREWELL FOR MR. AND MRS. L. A. EATON – N.E. 11-42-4-W.5 — taken from Pioneer scrap book

Mr. and Mrs. Lou A. Eaton and son, who have been residents of the Leedale district for a number of years, left today (Thursday) for Muskegon, Michigan where they intend to make their home. Mr. Eaton's auction sale on Monday was a great success and he was well satisfied with the result. Mr Eaton will go on raising [illegible] purpose. He specialized in onions before coming to Alberta and thinks there is real money in the business and his friends here hope his expectations will be realized.

Note: Mrs. L. Margaret) Eaton was one of the early teachers at the Leedale School, 1921. She was also the first president of the Leedale Women's Institute.

ERVIN, SAMUEL AND MABEL

In March 1933, just married a few months over a year, we got a hayrack, all enclosed for a living caboose, on a set of sleighs. With all our worldly possessions, including two canary birds, two cats, and a little dog, we left Leduc, travelling south and west to our destination, Leedale. By making it to the country school yards for night camping, we were provided with shelter in the school barns for our horses and were able to get water for our use.

It was cold and the snow was deep, different times we would have to jump out and hang onto one side of our caboose to keep it from tipping over to get over the deep snow drifts. With a small air tight heater and little cook stove, we were warm and snug inside. Our last night we camped in Leedale Hall yard, next day ending our trek west and two miles south, on the farm later known as Tom Mason's farm.

With the help of my dad, Grandpa Aske, and Sam's brothers, we shovelled off the snow and started our mansion, which consisted of one room, serving as kitchen, dining room, bedroom etc. Inside was finished by hanging newspapers, and white washed with a white powder substance from out west in the muskeg. By mixing this powder with water or milk and adding a bit of dye it made a beautiful finish. Our house was ready to move into, and just to think this was our first home and our very own. How happy we were! By this time it was time for a few acres of crop and garden. We were then joined by a very good friend of ours, no other than Seth Weiss. Needless to say he was a very welcome guest spending time with us off and on until his pass[illegible]

In February the stork spotted our happy little abode and dropped off a 1934 model baby girl, featuring free squealing, economical feeding, streamlined body, water cooled exhaust and changeable seat covers. By this time we were sort of growing out of our wee house, so we moved a bit further west to help an old gent, Mr Cox. We also bettered our housing and had out buildings too. This place is now owned by Dot Carroll.

What with farming, milking cows, raising [illegible] posts of tamarack from the swamps, leaving just before daylight in the winter time and getting back long after dark, with only a frozen sandwich for lunch.

In August we received another stork visit, a 1936 model, a little boy, much to our pleasure, and again in November 1938, the same make as the first one. By this time we decided, being as there was no trade in on the older models, we would have to move so Mr Stork couldn't find us. We moved out to Mr McTighe's lumber mill in the fall of 1940. In the spring of 1941, we lost all our belongings including our milk cow, dog, cat, etc., in a forest fire, so we moved back into the Leedale district to try farming again. In September 1941 our lives were saddened by God calling our little Kenneth home.

[illegible]

We finally ended up buying the farm one mile east of Leedale, which was known as the Baldridge farm. The winters once again found us in the lumber camps owned by John Jones and run by our good friend, Henry Thachuk. I cooked in the cook house and Sam hauled logs with his team of blacks. We always moved back to the farm in the spring.

In March 1950, we had a little helper arrive, Dwayne, bed roll and all, a very welcome addition to our little circle.

Later we stayed on the farm. In 1967 Sam went to join wee Kenneth. Thus closes our chapter as things didn't seem to have much meaning after [illegible]

Looking back at so many happy memories and our sad ones, our many wonderful relatives, friends, and neighbors, I still have many things to thank God for and Leedale will always be home.

EVERT, JAMES AND LAVINE

James Evert was born in Ontario in 1861, his wife Lavine Jarbo was also born in Ontario in 1867. They were married in the year 1884, and shortly after they moved to Forest River, North Dakota, where they farmed for some years. At this location here were five children born to this family, namely, Earnest Effie, Mabel, David and Myrtle.

In 1903, they were on the move again, this time for Alberta. They worked their way along settling on a farm seven miles west and one and one-half miles south of Rimbey which they later traded for a threshing outfit and moved west to Wittenburg (Leedale). They were the first to homestead west of the Medicine River

We all attended Wittenburg — Leedale School, walking the mile plus every morning and evening. In my memories, we all had a happy childhood making our own fun and laughter in work and play

The fall of 1912 we lost our home and personal belongings to fire. A new home was built in late winter. The lumber was bought and hauled by team and sleigh. This proved very difficult for the winter was cold and the snow was deep

In 1918, when the first World War broke out, I remember going to our little post office for the mail and hearing the people talk about the war. It sure was a scary thought for us children

With no radio or T.V. we all looked forward to getting the few newspapers that came. The Family Herald, Weekly Star and Free Press, and a catalogue or two. We sure looked forward to Christmas, New Year's and also the picnics

While residing at Leedale, Bob was a regular contributor to the three day Lacombe Horse Sale held every year in March. He had brought a fairly large herd of horses with him from New Brigden and continued to do a lot of farming with horses for several years

HOUGAARD, PETER

I was born in Denmark January 30, 1905 and came to Canada in 1928 to Kelsey, Alberta where I worked on a farm for one year. I came to Ellscott in 1930, working in the sawmill for one dollar a day. 'Lots of work, not much to eat.

In the spring of 1931, eight of us took up homesteads, only two of us staying. We broke up 30 acres for me and the same for my neighbor. I had a fairly big tractor, a Twin City, at that time. This homestead was located four and one-half miles from the town of Ellscott. I never did farm the place, rented it out for 16 years. In 1947 my wife, Ruby and I started to settle down on the homestead. We had a bunch of cattle, 80 pigs, but no water so we sold to Paul Lebanky.

When we arrived at Leedale and saw the river we bought that quarter of land. We were there four years then bought a quarter section three miles north of Rimbey. We have also lived four miles south of Ponoka and on an acreage south of Rimbey, which is now owned by Alfred Young. We presently live in Ponoka.

We have two children. Gordon and his wife, Linda (nee Walters), live at Irricana, and Judy, Mrs. Merle Sebry, of Ponoka.

JACKMAN, CECIL AND MARY - written by Myrtle Hooper

It was in the summer of 1934 that Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Jackman and family of four girls Thelma, Myrtle, Jean and Bernice arrived in the Leedale district.

After a great deal of thought Dad gave up the land he was renting at Blackie and filed on a homestead north of the Aurora school. They loaded all their belongings on wagons and along with three other families said "Good Bye" to the prairies.

It was a long weary trip but everyone seemed to stand it quite well. For the kids it was lots of fun and excitement, but I'm sure it was quite different for the folks. Dad never did prove up on the homestead but instead moved over north of Leedale so we girls could start school that fall.

Dad worked on Tom Cumming's threshing outfit that fall and Mother cooked for the threshers. I remember our good neighbors giving us vegetables from their gardens. That winter Dad cut posts and hauled them to [illegible].

We attended church at the Leedale School. Rev. Brewer was the pastor.

The next summer we moved to Olaf Norem's place and went to Benjamin School. That fall Thelma was stricken with polio and spent nine months in the University Hospital in Edmonton.

In 1937 Dad started working for Scotty Houston in the Gimlet district. We then went to the Gimlet School and also attended church there. Rev. Baker was the pastor.

In 1939 Thelma married Melvin Chadbourne. They have lived in Edmonton for a number of years. They have two daughters and seven [illegible].

That same year Jean married Ted Evernden. They have lived in Victoria for several years. They have four sons, four daughters, and nine [illegible].

Myrtle married Stuart Hooper of Didsbury in 1943. They have lived on a farm there ever since. They have two sons, two daughters and six grandchildren.

Bernice married Ellis Humphrey in 1951. To them were born three sons and one daughter.

They were living in Courtenay, B.C. when Ellis passed away in 1976. Bernice now has two grandchildren.

In 1940 Mr. and Mrs. Jackman moved to the Bingley District and from there bought a home in Rocky Mountain House. They sold their home in 1970 and moved to Didsbury where they have been ever since.

Mrs. Jackman is now 82 and still has a keen mind and a good sense of humor. She suffered a stroke six years ago and has been confined to the Auxiliary Hospital since then. She enjoys the occasional outing with her family.

Mr. Jackman is now 86 and lives by himself in a suite. He has his meals at the hospital with Mother. He still drives his own car around town. He enjoys the odd game of pool and spends much of his time visiting with old timers.

They expect to celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary on May 1, 1978.

JACKSON, JAMES AND BESSIE

James Jackson Sr. was born in Toronto, Ontario in the year 1865. His wife, the former Bessie Gardiner was born not far from London, Ontario in the year 1878.

Shortly after their marriage they moved to Fosston, Minnesota, where their daughter Margaret was born on November 28, 1898 and a son, James Jr. on May 30, 1901.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson filed for homestead the SE 14-42-4-W5 two miles north of Wittenberg, now Leedale, in 1906 and came to Canada from the United States on April 6, 1907.

They lived on the homestead for many years where they built a log house and other buildings. They experienced many hard times as pioneers did.

Following Mr. Jackson's death the farm was sold to Oscar and Bertha Brown in 1933. Jimmy, Maggie and Mrs. Jackson then moved to his land which was the NE 13-42-3-W5. He also owned the NE of 12.

Maggie married Tom Kelly and lived in Lacombe. She still resides there in the Park Motel.

Jimmy and his wife Zelma, formerly of Yorkton, Saskatchewan, sold the land to Jack Cruickshank in 1940, after his mother passed away.

This land is now owned by Mrs. Lamberton and the old homestead is owned by Mr. and Mrs. [illegible].

JACOBS, MR. AND MRS. R. J. — by Mrs. Emily Prowse

My grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Jacobs bought the Leedale Store either in 1916 or 1915 from a Mr. Bill Lee for whom Leedale was named. This store was what they called "Half Way House." They were built for travellers who needed a place to stay. There was a large store warehouse, large kitchen, dining room and living quarters on the main floor. The travellers could always get a meal there — whether it be breakfast, lunch, supper or midnight snack. My grandmother was always ready to prepare food. Remember it was not like now. There was no refrigerator, deep freeze or propane stove. Ice was cut every winter and put in an ice house to store meat. Upstairs there was a large dance floor, over the store with several bedrooms on the side. There the weary travelers could get a good night's rest.

There was a large barn or livery stable for the traveller's buggy or wagon and his horse or horses. Feed for the horses was always ready in the barn and many nights there would be five to ten teams spending the night.

LEE, FRANK

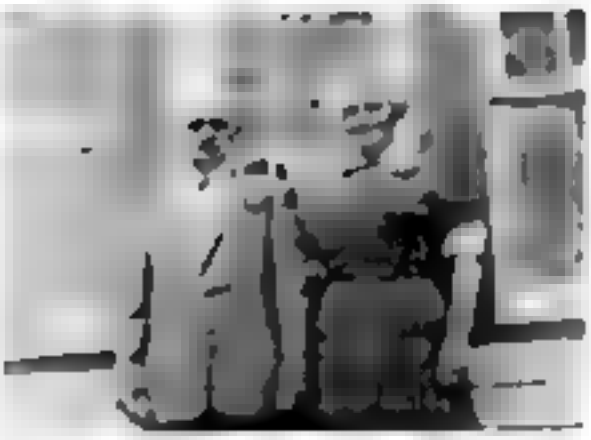
Frank Lee was born in Shropshire, England, May 24, 1882 his wife, Mabel (Everts Lee was born in Grand Forks, South Dakota, November 20, 1894. They both immigrated to Alberta with their parents around 1900. Frank to the Gilby district, and Mabel to the Leedale district, which was called Wittenburg at that time. Mabel's parents ran a store at Wittenburg until 1910 when they sold it to Frank and his mother Later Frank's brother, Bill, ran it. At that time Wittenburg was changed to Leedale

Frank and Mabel were married May 27, 1911, at Bentley, Alta. They left in 1912 to go to the United States and lived there for a few years



They then moved to the Drumheller district until 1936 when they returned to Leedale and bought the William Gardner homestead. In 1951 they sold out and moved to Rimbey, residing there until their passing. Frank passed away in September 1958, and Mabel passed away in March 1966.

There were seven children born to this marriage. Earnest of Pendryl, John, Lavina and Florence, of Wetaskiwin, Rosetta, of Buck Lake, and Frances, of Airdrie. Lillian died at birth and is buried in the Leedale Cemetery.

HISTORY OF THE WILLIAM HENRY LEE FAMILY — by his daughter, Edith M. Price

Mr. William Lee with his mother, Mrs. John Lee and brother Frank arrived in Wittenburg in 1912, and purchased the local store, which was previously owned by James Everts. The store was enlarged and Mrs. Lee took in boarders and served meals — the top floor of the store served as the local dance hall.

After the First World War broke out William Lee joined the 50th Battalion, Artillery Division in Calgary in 1915. In 1917 he went overseas, and was wounded in France. He returned to Wittenburg in 1918, and continued to run the store. Then the name of Wittenburg was changed to Leedale in his honour. Bill Lee ran the Post Office until around 1925, selling out to Hugh Lindsay.

Around 1926 Bill Lee bought a farm just north of Leedale, and on January 25th, 1928 married Margaret McNab. A daughter, Edith May was born in the farm house on September 24th, 1929, and the delivery was attended by Dr. Byers, who came out from Rimbey and Mrs. Sarah Lush acted as nurse.

They continued farming through the 1930's raising sheep, cattle and poultry. product prices were so low in those days — can remember them taking a twelve dozen crate of eggs to Rimbey — got $.60 for them, which bought a child's straw hat at Rolston's store.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee were active in community and church affairs. Mr. Lee helped build the Leedale Hall in 1927 and was secretary of the hall board for several years. He was also the notary public in the community, and looked after the business of the Leedale cemetery, besides helping with elections, etc. Margaret Lee was a member of the Leedale Women's Institute for many years, and also the Ladies Aid, which was connected with the United Church.

William and Margaret Lee and daughter Edith ... taken at home ...

Their daughter Edith started school at Leedale Public School in 1935. Mr. Art Hembray was the teacher at that time. After grade seven she went to the high school, which was held in Bill Lee's old store building in the village of Leedale.

In July of 1943 Bill and Margaret Lee held an auction on their farm, and moved to Victoria, B.C. They bought a home at 3951 Blenkinsop Road in Victoria. On March 11th, 1946 Bill Lee died suddenly of a heart attack. Margaret Lee and her daughter, Edith continued to live at the home and Mrs. Lee resided there until her death on September 19, 19..

Her daughter married John Price of Salt Spring Island on February 14, 1953. They have three daughters, Patricia born in 1957 who now resides in Calgary, Teresa born in 1960 and Irene born in 1961, who are still living at home located at 1660 North Dairy Road, Victoria, British ...

MANNIX, RUSSEL LEE AND CARROL MAXINE

I, (Lee) was born September 6, 1937 in Rimbey and lived in the Aurora district on the SE 2-42-5-W5, until the spring of 1942 when I moved with my parents, Mr and Mrs. Joe Mannix, to Sylvan Lake. We moved to Sylvan Lake so us kids wouldn't have so far to walk to school. I took all my schooling in Sylvan.

In 1951 my dad, brother Dale, and myself came back to the farm at Aurora. After I finished school in 1953, I helped Dad with the farm and worked with several Seismograph drilling com[illegible]es, covering most of Alberta and part of the Northwest Territories.

We did our haying with horses, cutting raking and stacking. We used a bucking pole to stack at first, then got modern and used an overshot stacker and sweep.

In 1961 Dad and I sold the farm to Lawrence May and I went to work for Dr. Spiers, blood testing cows. Rodney Tolonen and I tested cows from Eckville south to Caroline, north to Rimbey and as far west as there were cattle to be done.

On May 18, 1962 I married Carrol Belt of the Leedale district.

Carrol Maxine, "after thought" of Mr and Mrs. Harley Belt, was born in Rimbey on December 24, 1939 and has lived most of her life in the Leedale area. She took her schooling at Leedale, Gimlet and Rimbey, attending Gimlet in 1950-51 and Rimbey in 1954-55. Getting to and from school was difficult at times. Most springs it was a real ordeal for those living west of the Medicine River. The river would flood over the road and at one place the river was so close to the Dingle Creek they would run together, causing fast water, making it difficult for a saddle pony to stay on its feet. Many times during the flood time the children had to go west then north over the bridge at Pete Fraser's, then east and south to get to school, making it four or five miles further. Winters were bad also, for the roads were seldom snow plowed until the drifts were so deep the horses couldn't get through. One winter about 1950, the snow was so deep that when the road was cleared with crawler tractors the children riding horses back tried to see over the snow banks by standing up on their horses and couldn't, it was so high.

The big event of the day was after school, to race to Mr. Myer's store for a five cent chocolate bar or if one was very rich that day a 12 cent bottle of pop. The horses became so well trained you ended up at the store even on days when you didn't intend to

After completing her schooling, Carrol worked for Algar Agencies in Rimbey until marrying in 1962

We took up farming on the Sherman or Griffin quarter, raising cows, pigs, horses and "kids" In 1965 we formed a partnership, Belt-Mannix with Vernon Belt and moved to the Belt farm Leedale Valley Ranch. We farm the land by modern technique, with a bit of "days gone by" come winter when the cattle are fed their hay and straw from a sleigh pulled by a team of horses. An annual event occurs Christmas night when the Mannix and Tkacik Bros families get together for an old fashioned hay ride and carol festival.

We have four children Vernita, attending Red Deer College Dallas in High School Wade in Junior High and Carrie in Elementary at Rimbey

The Mannix Family Left, Carrie, Dallas, Wade, Vernon and Carrol

HAROLD AND GRACE MASON, SE 23-42-4-W5

We came to the Leedale district in June of 1941 from Edmonton, Alberta

We bought the Deslippi place

There was a lot of brushing to be done and Buster Adams came in with his big "Cat" to do some for us

One spring when Dan Myers Jr was hauling cream, the roads were so bad past our place that he used four head of horses and a tractor to pull a hay rack to carry the cream into Rimbey

Don Kilpatrick built our house the first summer we were there

Harold and Oscar Brown thought it would be a good idea to have a curling rink in Leedale, so they talked to the neighbors and helped to organize a work crew to build it

Harley Belt donated the land to put it on and the following winter they were curling

We had lots of fun. I remember one time when a bonspiel was on, it was 40 below zero but everyone still turned out

Irma, our eldest daughter, went to school at Midland. The first winter it was so cold and so much snow that we boarded her at Alice and Joe Lester's. She married Ed Cross and they live in Edmonton. They have three daughters, all married and seven grandchildren

Helen also went to Midland, later to Leedale and finally to Rimbey after the bus took the kids to Rimbey. She is married to Raymond Durand from Leedale They have five children and own the Esso Service Station in Rimbey

Judy was born in Rimbey and attended school in Midland, Leedale and Rimbey too. She married Ron Rolfsen from Lesliеville They now live in Oyama, B.C. and have four children

Harold and I moved into Rimbey in 1967 Harold passed away January 7 1977

OWEN JOHN AND DORIS BELLE McELROY — written by D. McElroy

N½, 13-42-4-W5 & N W 14-42-4-W 5 & S.E. 23-42-4-W 5

We may not need an introduction to most of you but just for these records I will give a few introductory facts

I was born four miles south of Rimbey on my Grandfather Coverdale's farm and came to the Leedale district with my parents Paul and Marie Pierson, at the age of four years. My two sisters were Dorotha, nine, and Lila two years It was the spring of 1927

My husband, Owen, or better known to everyone as Junior was born in Hillsborough North Dakota in 1921 and came to Canada with his parents, Owen and Beulah McElroy and brother Warren in 1927 They farmed east of Red Deer a few years before they moved to Leedale in the spring of 1936. Ellen, Robert and Richard had then arrived to complete the family

Junior helped his dad with the farming and threshing outfit in the fall. He also worked at Benson's mill, drove truck for Vernon Archer, and hauled lumber from Varly's and Jones' mills. In 1941 he worked for Dan Myers, driving the cream route, and hauling groceries for the store

One fall he drove a team and wagon in threshing time, pitching bundles all day for $1.00 a day He has always enjoyed hunting and has rarely missed going Big Game hunting in the fall

I (Doris) received all my education at the Leedale school and attended Leedale High School in 1936-39 We rode to school unless it was too cold and then the parents took turns driving us in a sleigh or cutter In November 1938 I went to work at the Leedale General Store where Mr and Mrs. Myers had a thriving business. I received $10.00 a month, board and room to start and after I had worked a year I got a raise to $.30 a day. I was hired to clerk but also helped Mrs. Myers in the restaurant and done the chores if the men were busy. They handled a lot of lumber in exchange for groceries for the many sawmills which were operating west of Faraway. There were no store hours so the trucks would stop anytime of the day or night.

After Junior joined the Royal Canadian Air force, we were married and in the two and one half years he was in the service he was stationed at Pearce, Alberta, Fort St. John, B.C. Greenwood, Nova Scotia and Penfield Ridge, New Brunswick. Our eldest daughter, Helen Alberta, was born in the spring of 1944 and it was in that same year that we purchased the S.W. 13 — from Jim Thomson and we have lived here ever since.

Junior was honorably discharged in January 1946. Our first home was a two room log house. The floors were bare and I used a wood and coal cook stove. We had no running water, indoor plumbing or electricity. We carried the wood and water in and the ashes out. The coal oil lamps after they were trimmed and filled, served us well. The house was no mansion, but it was cozy and warm and held many happy memories.

We both worked hard to clear the land and get it into production, and with Junior's ability to do his own mechanical work, the welding and repairs, it saved a lot of time and money.

We had a lot of rain in the spring of '46. Roads which had no gravel were seas of mud, deep holes and ruts. On June 16th, misfortune struck when Junior was pulling a neighbor out of a mud hole with his 15-30 tractor. It reared up over backwards, pinning him underneath and breaking his leg. After a six week stay in the Bentley Hospital, he was able to come home.

It happened to be the day that the neighbors had organized a bee to put up our sixty acres of hay. Altogether 17 men were responsible for operating the nine mowers, three rakes and several tractors, sweeps and stackers. We were so happy with a job well done, and it proved a real spirit of neighborliness.

The leg was still giving problems so Junior went to Edmonton in January 1947 for therapy and an operation. After a five month stay he was able to come home in May. Our dads put the crop in that spring.

Times were hard but when looking back through our records we were amused at the prices. You could buy coffee for 49¢ a pound, eggs 30¢ a dozen, bread 10¢ a loaf, lard 16¢ a pound; coal oil 30¢ a gallon, five pounds macaroni 45¢, corn 18¢ a can, butter 43¢ a pound, 25 pounds chick starter $1.15, 49 pounds flour $1.45; Gas was $9.50 for a 45 gallon drum.

We sold bundles for 7¢ each, straw for $1.00 a load, Barley was 85¢ per bushel, Oats 63½¢ per bushel, we paid $90.00 for a good milk cow, our drivers license was $1.00 and radio license $2.00.

In 1946 we bought the N.W. 14 — from John Beck for $3,000.00. By this time we had a few milk cows, pigs and chickens so we were pretty well self-supporting.

Our second daughter, Barbara Elaine, was born in August 1948. With Junior working on the threshing rig it was quite an interesting fall trying to do chores with a wee baby.

In 1950 Junior bought a three ton truck and did

Junior's father Owen L. McElroy passed away in January 1973 at the age of 84 years

Last spring we sold a half section to Dolman Bros. and we are now planning to take it a bit ...

Time has passed quickly and progress has brought many changes. We have been richly blessed with a healthy family and very fortunate to have so many fine friends and neighbors

PETER MULLBACK

Peter Mullback came from Sweden to Boston Mass. U.S.A when a young lad he met and married Hilma Hylen who had also emigrated from Sweden shortly after Two children, a son Richard and a daughter Martha, were born to them while residing there. In 1912 they stopped in Edmonton on their way to a homestead at Buck Lake where another daughter, Fern, was born After making the required improvements on the homestead, they moved to Rimbey and then Bentley, where their last child, Chester was born. In 1919 they moved to a farm located two and a half miles north west of Leedale, where they engaged in mixed farming

Due to the lack of a conveniently located high school the Mullbacks moved to a dairy farm just three miles south of Edmonton in 1928

Peter passed away in 1936 after a lengthy bout with pneumonia which culminated in a blood clot Hilma passed away in 1975, in her 93rd year

The sons and daughters all married and are living in the Edmonton area. Martha was widowed in 1966

DANIEL JOHN MYERS FAMILY

Mr Dan John Myers was born July 11, 1880 Mrs. Mary Dolly) Myers was born November 9, 1887 Both were born in Kansas, U.S.A

They were married October 12, 1907, and lived in the State of Kansas for several years, where their first three girls, Stella, Margaret, and Beatrice, were born Then they moved to Saskatchewan while the girls were very young They lived or homesteaded on a farm about three miles from the Montana Border and 13 miles from a small town called Frontier While there they had a son, Daniel John Myers Jr and two girls, Leona and Bertha

Mr Myers farmed and raised horses. The 1930's were hard years, and in 1936 the weather was so hot there wasn't going to be any crops and the grass was burned to a crisp, so there was no feed for all the horses we had, which was around 75 head Many farmers were beginning to give up and move to Alberta. Mr and Mrs. Myers headed out to look for a place to buy where we could move. Within about four days they were in the Leedale area looking for friends who had left Saskatchewan, they stopped at the little country store to ask if they knew where they lived. Frank Tarrabain was the owner and said he wanted to sell the store and the quarter of land it was on. After talking awhile, he asked if Mr. Myers would be interested in trading his horses for the

Dad said, "Well, it had always been his dream to go into business."

Mr. Tarrabain came back to Saskatchewan with them and they made the deal, so everything except some furniture and personal things was sold and the horses were shipped to Lacombe, Alta., to be sold. The three oldest girls were married, so there was just Dan 18, Leona 16, and Bertha 14. Leona and I (Bertha) rode in the back of the truck all the way to Leedale. When we arrived at Leedale, there was only the Post Office run by Hugh Lindsay and the store and Community Hall. This was August 14, 1936. When we arrived, we were going to sleep upstairs above the store. It was a mess, as there were hides of animals there, anyway we straightened a bit and made the beds. We did not get much sleep that night as the bed bugs decided to have a feed. Early the next morning the mattresses had to be burned. Cleaning was the order of the day. Mr. Myers was downstairs while mother handed Leona and me a pail of lye water and scrub brush. We were down on our knees scrubbing the floor when all of a sudden Leona upset the lye water and it ran through the ceiling of the store.

My dad yelled out, "What the heck is going on up there."

We looked around the corner of the stairs, and there stood a bald-headed man rubbing his head and groaning. Needless to say, we girls thought it was a big joke. But my dad was very angry at us and embarrassed as it was his first customer and not a very happy one. His name was Mr. Hayward.

Dad's business began to grow, and people brought butter, cattle, pigs, eggs, fence posts and lumber to trade and buy groceries. We also had a large trade with the Indians for a few years. They brought in animal skins and leather beaded jackets, moccasins, gloves and mitts of all sizes, which we bought and sold mainly to the men who worked at the mills which were 25 miles from us. Not many people had cars at that time so they were glad to have a country General Store. Mother had decided to start a restaurant at the back of the store and we sold meals for 25 cents, and had beds over in the house and charged 35 cents a night. Dad started a cream route, and we had kept two or three horses, so I used to hitch up the buggy and go out and gather up the cream from all the close in customers while dad took the truck and went out to the Aurora area. We took orders for groceries and their cream, and then delivered the empty cans and groceries the next day. The first winter it was so cold, the thermometer broke at 80 below. We all worked very hard and had a good business and many friends. The store was open seven days a week for many years. Mr. Myers was road councillor for several years, and had the store until he became too ill to run it. It was sold to his son, Dan Myers Jr. in 1964.

Mr. and Mrs. Myers celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary at the Leedale hall in 1957.

Dan Myers married Valeria Buck, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Chatland of Leedale. Bertha Myers married John Fraser of Lockhart Dec. 3, 1939, and Leona married Ivan Adams of Rimbey. Leona died in 1962.

Mr. and Mrs. Myers moved to Bentley and bought a home in March 1964. Mr. D. J. Myers Sr. died May 24, 1965 and Mrs. D. J. Myers died July 11, 1965.

Bertha's husband died Sept. 27, 1967. Beatrice Myers) Skogen died May 9, 1967.

Those surviving are: Margaret of California, [redacted] Dan of Edmonton, Bertha of Haney, B.C., many grandchildren and great [redacted]

(Written by Mrs. Bertha Kern, youngest of the Myers' Family.)

MYERS, DANIEL JR. — Information from Tributaries of the Blindman

Dan, born in Frontier, Saskatchewan, came to Leedale with his parents in 1936 to help them operate the store business they had purchased from Frank Tarrabain.

Myers's Store not only served the farmers of the area but supplied groceries for the sawmills several miles west of them. These orders were usually filled at night after regular hours taking several hours to fill. Dan hauled groceries from Edmonton until 194[illegible] when he joined the Army. He returned to Leedale in 1944 to join his wife the former Valera Buck.

In 1949 they purchased the Dreitza place in the Lavesta district where they lived for three years. They then moved to Wainwright where Valera died in 1954. Dan worked several years in Calgary, Red Deer and Edmonton. He returned to Leedale and ran the store for about one and one half years prior to selling to Paul Borth in '96.

They had four children, Lorraine, Dianne Faye and Douglas

NE 9-42-4-W5 — by John and Sylvia Walters

The NE 9 was homesteaded in 1907 by Mark Lampman. In 1910 Hank Nelson bought this farm and his brother, Arvid, farmed the SW 16. Hank left for California about 1918. In 1921 Jack Anchor had the farm.

[illegible]

Garner Wiltse bought the farm in 1923. In 1925 Lyn Wiltse purchased the quarter from his brother, Garner. In 1926 Lyn traded an old Model T Ford for the house owned by Mrs. LaLone. The house was a lath and plaster house, and was a very fine house indeed. In early spring February or March, the house was moved. Grover Simpkins and Charles Wiltse sawed the house in two pieces and raised it up. Ted Pimm, Dewey Simmons, Lyn Wiltse and his two young boys, Ed and Charles, helped with the moving. It was put on skids with one skid on a sleigh. They used four mules and 12 horses to move the house. It took two days to move one-half of the house the six mile cross country route. They crossed the swamp and Gimlet Creek. When they stopped to rest the horses and mules, the skids would freeze in the snow. Ed and Charles would have to loosen the skids so that the horses could advance once more. Finally the house reached its final destination. The following summer the house was put on a cement foundation. Charles and Ed Wiltse also hauled gravel out of the Medicine River for the cement.

To celebrate the moving of such a fine house a dance was held. This was just the first of many happy occasions the house was to know.

Lyn Wiltse also began the log barn that was here for many years. His sons, Charles and Ed cut and skidded the logs from Medicine Lake. The lumber for the joists came from Lake Eigh teen. The carpenter who built the barn was an expert. The logs were dove-tailed and it was a well built barn. The next owner, Polynik, completed the building of the barn. This barn was used until 1964, when it was accidentally burned to the ground.

In the fall of 1928 Lyn Wiltse once again decided to move. He was a bit of a horse trader. He traded farms with Polynik from Shedd, Oregon. They traded land, stock, and household effects sight unseen. Mrs. Wiltse often regretted leaving some of her dishes.

Nineteen twenty-nine was the beginning of hard times. Dried out crops would be lucky to yield 10 bushels to the acre. Polynik rented the farm out to Manowich. Later he sold it to William Sulak. Peter Chibri also rented the farm for one year.

[illegible]

Tustan and Alice Jevne bought the farm from William Sulak on March 8, 1946. When they first came to look at the farm, they had to walk through the snow to get to the buildings. A fellow who was hauling feed told them it would not be a good place to purchase, as the only thing that could be grown was greenfeed. However Tustan and Alice did not take his advice and found that although there were lean times, it was a good place to raise their family. In 1947 the Jevne's planted the shelterbelt that now beautifies the [illegible].

In 1952 the Medicine River flooded. In order to cross it, Tustan piled lumber in the wagon. From this precarious perch Alice held onto her babies and watched the logs and debris float by.

The roads were noted for being impassable. One instance was the occasion of John and Marie Tkachik's wedding. As Judy was the flower girl it was imperative that they be on time. The Jevne family left at seven in the morning and arrived in Leedale at noon in time for the wedding. As the five miles to Leedale were impassable, they had to travel all the way to Rimbey and then back on the Leedale road. Often the truck had to be left on the main road and the family would either ride the tractor or walk home. However poor roads didn't keep neighbors from visiting in those days. The Jevne's were always noted for their wonderful hospitality.

[illegible]

Henry Walters purchased the farm in 1965. After being home to Butch and Sandra Walters in 1965 and Tom and Elaine Walters in 1966 it became our first home in July of 1967. Once again the old house rang with cheery voices. The walls whispered their secrets. A house with atmosphere, it had known sad and happy times. We enjoyed sharing our humble home with friends and relatives who came often.

Now the old house stands vacant once again. With the help of our wonderful neighbors we erected a new home. Although Leedale, known as the "Greenfeed Valley" may often be short of good crops, the people are its main asset. There is always a helping hand to be found. Good neighbors and genuine friendships prevail. We plan on raising our family here and hope that once they leave to discover the world, they will always cherish the memories of growing up in the Leedale Valley.

NE 34-41-4-W5
S. D. Clifford

S. D. Clifford homesteaded the NE 34 — building a log house and a frame barn about 1910. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford had one girl, Mrs. Ed Gerlinger. They remained here until about 1918.

Robert Lee (Dick or Grampy) Hollingsworth

Dick Hollingsworth came to the valley to the Clifford place, now owned by Vernon Belt, in the fall of 1919, bringing with him a large herd of cattle expecting to let them rustle for their feed as they had on the prairies from which they came. The winter of 1919-1920 proved to be one of the longest and hardest of this country's history with the snow coming early and deep, and staying long after spring should have come.

Despite the efforts of Mr. Hollingsworth to get feed for his animals, he lost nearly all of his cattle. He hauled hay from east of Lacombe, a 40-plus mile trip one way, and south of Red Deer, a 30 mile trip one way, in his attempt to feed his starving animals. The bones of the animals remain yet today, piled in a draw on the Belt farm, just a reminder of some of the problems the early settlers had in this area.

Dick wasn't the only one to loose cattle that winter. There were very few, if any, that were able to bring their stock through. Many who thought they "had it made" when spring finally did arrive lost their animals when they went onto grass, for they had been starved so long they couldn't stand the feed.

A more complete story of the Hollingsworth can be found elsewhere in this book.

W. H. Wills

W. H. Wills lived on the Clifford place the winter of 1920-1921. He moved from here to Rimbey in the spring of 1921 to open a photography shop.

OLSEN, JOHN G. AND B. OLI

John and Oli Olsen came to Wittenburg from Blaine, Wash. in 1905 to homestead the W 34-41-4-W5. Their mother came with them and stayed until John married, then returned to Washington. Oli passed away about 1910.

John, born December 5, 1884, at Racine, Wash. married Hulda Jacobson of Wittenburg, in 1914. They made their home on the farm, raising their two daughters Ellen and Thelma. In 1942 they sold their farm to Glen Challand and moved to Edmonton. In 1946 they moved to Vancouver, B.C. where Ellen and Thelma still reside.

This scripture, which was read at Mr. Olsen's funeral describes him very well.

A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God always." (Acts 10:2)

PAUL LYLE AND CLARA MARIE PIERSON (1927 1948, N.W. 13-23-4-W 5) — by Clara M. Pierson

My husband and I were both born in the United States.

Paul was born in Lake Gage, Indiana, January 28, 1893 and came to Canada with his mother and step-father Homer and Etta Reed in 1915. They settled in the Lockhart Valley.

I was born in Stark, Kansas on November 14, 1893 and came to Canada with my parents, Alfred and Rosetta Belle Coverdale in 1903. Dad filed on a homestead north of town but we never lived on it. We lived in a shack on the D. H. Pinco place. Dad then bought a Canadian Pacific Railway quarter four miles south of Rimbey or Kansas Ridge at that time. We moved there when the house was built.

Paul and I were married in July, 1918. We farmed north of town for a while and it was there that our eldest daughter, Dorothea Mae, was born in May, 1919. We later moved to the old Coverdale home place where Doris Belle was born in April, 1923 and Lila Marie in April, 1925.

We farmed there until the spring of 1927 when we moved to the Leedale District We bought a Canadian Pacific Railway quarter for $10 an acre with ten years to pay Paul had built a little shack and covered it with tar paper to live in for the summer so we had to store most of our furniture and other belongings in a neighbor's barn until our house was built A few days later the barn burned to the ground so we lost all our things. It was heartbreaking but couldn't be helped. I'll never forget how bad the mosquitoes were that summer and how cramped we were in the little shack

We managed to get some breaking done that year but we were anxious to get our house started Paul hauled the lumber from Lacombe and I helped with the carpentering. I could pound nails pretty good in those days. In fact I won a nail pounding contest when I was a girl, against T A Iddings in Rimbey We didn't get the house finished that fall but moved into it before winter

We lived as many other pioneer families did with no modern conveniences or power machinery We had a few milk cows, pigs and chickens, so we had our milk, eggs and butter which meant a lot

Paul spent many a hot, sultry day driving the horses on the breaking plow, fighting horse flys and mosquitoes We both worked hard, grubbing and pulling the big trees and plowing down the small ones. The brush was all piled by hand and then burned as it was readied for the plow Paul walked many miles behind the harrows trying to level it before the crop was seeded and finally made a harrow cart so he could ride

I remember well the wash days, long and tiresome. We hauled water from the neighbors or carried it from the rain barrel. It was heated on the cookstove in wash boilers. I had an old hand operated washing machine but did a lot of the wash in the tub with the wash board. After they were rinsed in bluing, starched and hung out to dry, they were gathered in, sprinkled and ironed with the old sad irons

I did most of my little girls' sewing, baked bread, milked cows and grew a big garden. I canned a lot of vegetables and the rest were stored in the root cellar When the wild berries were ready, we would pack a picnic lunch and drive with team and wagon to a good berry patch and pick all day When we got home and the chores were done, we would sit by the dimly lit kerosene lamp and clean berries so they could be canned come morning

Paul liked to hunt and fish. Every fall he went Big Game hunting and usually came home with the winter a supply of wild game. I canned some in jars and the rest hung outside where it stayed frozen. There were quite a few grouse, prairie chicken, squirrel and rabbit at that time and when the meat supply dwindled they made a fine meal

Times were really hard during the depression years. Little was accomplished, as everyone knows who experienced the hungry thirties Everything was cheap in comparison to what it is today but there was no money to buy with

Most of our groceries were got in exchange for fresh farm produce. I churned butter and got 15¢ a pound and eggs were 12¢ per dozen, but it all helped to buy the essentials

Paul finally traded for a 1928 Chev car We couldn't afford to run it very often, but we did use it for special occasions

In 1932 Paul was hauling lumber from Varty's mill with a four horse team and wagon The wagon overturned due to a wash in the road and he broke his arm He was laid up for quite a while with that

Dorothea scalded her leg when she was about 14 years old. We finally got a $10 a month assistance from the Municipality to buy the medication she needed as the Doctor said she could stay at home Paul worked the next summer with his team and fresno, moving dirt and building road, until the debt was paid up

Every spring I did papering and house cleaning. I did sewing and knit many pairs of socks and mitts with the knitting machine in the

I could operate most of the farm machinery and in the fall I drove the horses on the binder and cut the crop while Paul did the stooking I always helped him stack the hay and greenfeed bundles. He worked on the threshing rig in the fall, sometimes with the team and rack and other years he helped run the separator

In 1940 we filed on a homestead 20 miles west in the Faraway District It cost us $10 and we had to prove up on it. That is, break ten acres a year and spend two months a year on it. Every spring we would load up enough supplies to do month and with a four horse team and wagon head for the homestead. We broke 25 acres built a shack and small barn and in 1943 sold it for

Our big outing for the year was the Leedale Celebration. The whole community gathered at the hall grounds to play ball, horse shoe, run foot races etc They had a booth and sold hot dogs, coffee, pop, ice cream, etc. We would spend the day, go home and do chores and then go back to the dance at night.

We really enjoyed the Christmas concerts too. Several families would get together and with team and sleigh drive for miles to see the children perform. The drive in the cold crisp air with sleigh bells jingling and the horse's feet squeaking in the cold will never be forgotten.

We hired a man for the winter through the Government plan where the government paid $5 a month and we paid $5 a month board and room. They helped get firewood up, cut posts, cut ice for the ice house and helped with chores.

Paul was a kind and friendly man, well liked by everyone. He was a hall board member and a school trustee. He acted as Game Guardian and was a license vendor for years.

I was a member of the Leedale Women's Institute and took part in many money-making plays.

Dorothea attended the Symonds school before we moved and then the girls rode horseback two and one-half miles to Leedale school.

Paul and Mary Plumb's 40th Anniversary. Seated: daughters Lila, Doris and Dorothea, about 1948.

In 1957 we sold the farm to R. Stuart and bought an acreage at Lesliеville. We kind of semi-retired and took it a bit easier. In March 1961 Paul suffered a stroke and passed away in Rocky Mountain House Hospital. I rented the land for a while and then sold the acreage in 1972 and moved back to Rimbey.

The girls are all living quite close. Dorothea and Charles live at Lesliеville. Doris and Junior on a farm that joins the old farmstead, and Lila and Steve live in Edmonton. I have 17 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren. I will be 84 years old this fall, do my own housework and enjoy many social functions. I keep myself busy with crocheting and knitting.

We worked hard the years we lived at Leedale, but we were young and healthy. I have many happy memories with family and friends while we were there.

JOHN AND MARY PLUMB — E. ½ 23-42-4-W5

My husband, Jack, was born at Blackfalds and I, Mary Jane Graves, was born at Lacombe. We lived at the coast where our five children were born near Victoria, British Columbia. They are Bob, Pam, Beverly, Billy and Audrey and all married now.

We moved to the farm west of Rimbey after Jack's brother, Tom passed away in 1959. We spent the summers there and in the fall went back to Victoria. The days we spent on the farm were the happiest days of our lives.

John Plumb on tractor, spring 1960.

Being born in the city the children were used to all the conveniences but on our Leedale farm we had no electricity, no radio, a small cabin with coal oil lamps and outhouse.

The neighbor's children from Victoria came to visit and thought pumping water by hand was the greatest. Wanted their dad to get a pump and take it home.

A couple of teenagers who came to Leedale to visit thought it was great until we had a big hail-storm. In Victoria thunder and lightning is so rare most people don't know what it is. The boys thought for sure the end had come and went back to Victoria the next day.

In June 1962 we sold the farm to Elwood and Dorothy Young and my husband, Jack, passed away that same year.

I believe the greatest inspiration came from the people. The way the farmers got together to help each other. Everyone seemed to know everyone and had a genuine concern for each other and their families. We found our neighbors were so friendly and helpful. We felt welcome and wanted from the start.

We learned first hand that an abundance of material things do not make happiness, but freedom and good people do.

THOMAS HENRY PLUMB

RANGEN, AUDREY EVERNDEN

Audrey daughter of Mr and Mrs. Howard Evernden, was born Sept 15, 1916

My father, who decided far away pastures looked greener went to California in 1924 where he [illegible]

In January, 1925 my mother and four of us children moved seven miles west of Leedale where my mother kept house for Mr Wilson Cox

Mr Cox was a well-to-do man at that time he had several quarters of land at Leedale and also in the Bentley district, and he had a good-sized herd of cattle My sister Strousie, enjoyed riding horseback so a pony was bought for her She lost this pony when it was kicked by another horse and had to be destroyed, so another was bought so Strousie could round up the cattle once in a while to see how many had been lost to coyotes, wolves or rustlers Those days the cattle roamed all the land that wasn't needed to grain or hay

There used to be just a trail called Varty Mill Road west from Leedale so in 1930-31 the farmers got together with horses and scrapers and built a road as far west as Aurora. In 1950 the oil wells began to come in so the road was built on west to join the Bingley road. The road south to Lesliteville had been widened and graveled

In 1928 my father returned for Strousie, Lois and me. He took me to Edmonton, then sent me on to Gajahad, Lois stayed with our grandparents in Lacombe and Strousie returned to California with father where she still resides

I returned to the Leedale area in 1929 with my sister and brother-in-law. Velma and Harold Misner, where I lived until 1938, except for four winters 1935-38 when I went to Didsbury Bible School

In 1941 I married Mr Carl Rangen and we lived on his farm, eight miles north of Eckville until 1971. We have three sons; Irving, Ross and Albert and a foster daughter Cheryl

After Carl passed away Oct 19, 1971, I moved to Vancouver B.C. where I still reside

JOSEPH CLEMENT RAUDEBAUGH

Joseph Raudebaugh was born in the United States in 1893. He came to Canada in 1911 and was a veteran of the First World War 1914-1918

He came to the Rimbey district in 1921 and lived in Leedale with his wife and family from about 1940 on. They had eight children, Leo Elmer, Alvin, Robert, Irene, Edna, Pearl and Edith

He passed away in 1961 at the age of 78 years

[illegible]

In 1924, Mr Abel Repas left his home in Matronovak, Hungary, coming to the coal mining town of Taber, Alberta. He worked for three years there, then moved to Hillcrest, where his wife, Mary and three eldest children, Helen, Vidor and Charlie joined him from the old country Two more sons were born here, Joe and Ernie Helen was married in 1932 to Joe Berze, who also worked in the mines. They have two sons, Joe Jr and Zoltan, and live in the Forshee district.

In 1933 they left the coal mines to begin farming at Leedale, purchasing the SW-9-42-4-W5. He brought with him the newest car to the district, a 1930 Essex Super Six. With few roads and money scarce it was not driven much and was eventually sold. Travel was done with horses for many years before he acquired another motor vehicle a farm truck.

There was lots of work to be done. The first winter was spent cleaning the seed grain by hand, the children helping when they got home from school. It was slow, tedious work and took [illegible].

The language spoken at home was their native Hungarian, though the children soon learned English and spoke this between themselves. Mrs. Repas spoke little English, though was able to communicate to others who came to visit. There were other Hungarian families in the district with whom she often visited. She was known as a kind warm hearted person by those who remember her. She passed away July 9, 1963 at the age of 61 years.

Their young son, Joe died in 1941 at the age of 16. Their second daughter Violet, was born after coming to the farm. She was the only one of the family to gain a high school education and went on to train as a Certified Nursing Aide.

The Repas children attended the one room Leedale School, walking a distance of three and one-half miles, morning and afternoon. If the river was low enough they could wade it and go across country, cutting one and one-half miles from their walk.

The family milked a few Shorthorn cows until the mid 40's shipping cream to Bluffton via Monalbetti's cream truck. The truck also brought needed groceries on the return route. Trips to the town of Rimbey, some 15 miles away were seldom made. Mail came to the post office at Leedale and the general store there provided the necessities as well as machinery repairs.

As the years went on Mr. Repas acquired more land, four quarters in all. He owned a threshing machine to harvest his crops which were, barley, wheat, oats and some rye.

Neighbors helped with the harvesting, hauling bundles and had their own crops threshed in return. Few wages were paid or received at that time. Mrs. Repas' old country cooking was much appreciated at meal time. The harvesting lasting nearly two weeks at times.

Berries were usually plentiful, and many were picked and canned for winter. Blueberries, saskatoons and chokeberries from which they also made wines.

Vidor left home to join the army as the Second World War raged across Europe. He served with the Princess Patricia, driving a truck with supplies. Upon his return from the war he married Dorothy Golley and settled down to farm the SE-17-42-4-W5, which was the former Herman Lowe place. They have four children and farmed until 1973 when they sold the land and moved to an acreage near Red Deer.

Charlie left home at the age of 15, working at various jobs in Alberta and British Columbia before returning to farming. He married Marion Owen from the Willesden Green district and bought the SW-8-42-4-W5 from Tom Lloyd. They have four children.

Ernie farmed with his dad for a few years, then he married Myrtle Lawson, from the Meadow Vale district. He purchased the NE-7-42-4-W5, one of the quarters his dad owned, and they make their home there. They have five children. In 1974 when the home place was sold, Ernie purchased two more quarters, thus keeping the land in the Repas name.

Violet married Elmer Solberg, also of the Leedale district. They are living in St. Albert and have five children.

Mr. Repas, at the age of 82, is presently residing in the Rimbey Auxiliary Hospital, his health and memory are both quite good for his age.

ROSTAD, [illegible]

Mr. Rostad settled first on what now is the Giesbrecht place, then moved to the NE 35-41-4-W5, building a house on the west side of the quarter across the fence, east from where the Leedale Hall now sets. Being a very wet quarter it was not broke up until about 1940, by Dan Myers, shortly before he sold it to Edgar Robin[illegible].

Mr. Rostad also built the barns for Terry Chalsand and Munbacks.

The Rostad children attended the Leedale School in 1916 or 1917.

Mrs. Terry Lou, Chalsand ran a "Bargain Store" which was located on this land while Mr. Rostad owned it.

ROYAN

In December of 1937, George and Josephine Royan moved to Leedale where Edwin, Gena and Carl were born.

On returning home after the war, George went into partnership in the blacksmith with his father-in-law, Carl Aske, until November, 1950 when the Royans moved into Rimbey.

That same month Bob was born and two and one-half years later Annamae was born.

SIMPKINS, MRS. GROVER (MARGARET) — by Margaret Simpkins

I came to Canada in 1906, as a child, with my parents, Mrs and Mrs. Bill Gardiner My father and uncle, Tom Gardiner came the year before and built a little sod roof shack and plowed up a small garden patch. We came up by train, known as a settler's car, which was filled with cattle horses and machinery We got to the town of Lacombe on June 6, 1906. It rained all that summer and our little shack leaked every time it rained. The next year my father broke 40 acres of land which we put into wheat It froze in the bloosom so father cut it for feed. Those early years it froze every month of the year, but we lived good. We had all the wild meat we needed and all the rivers and lakes were full of fish Father was a good hunter and trapper Every little pond was full of rats, they were a good price On our way to school one morning we saw several lynx up a tree which my father came and shot. As the years went by the country changed for the better

It was in 1920 when I met my husband, Grover He also heard of the free land up in Canada and he came from Helena, Montana in 1919. We lived at Leedale until 1933, when again we heard of the Peace River country, the land of milk and honey, which proved to be so true. We liked the country and the people

When we lived at Leedale I remember hauling oats to Eckville for four cents a bushel in 1926.

We had four children when we set out for the Peace country and we wished we had come 20 years before. The worst draw-back to this country then was no one had water wells and it was a long haul from the Smoky River I remember melting snow for 25 head of cattle

Then World War II came which took many of our boys and the country was left short handed It also claimed the lives of our two boys, Riley and Michel but that is the way life is, some good, some bad

My husband passed away in 1958 after a short illness. I now make my home with my two boys, Willard and Ben. Our daughter lives in Edmonton and son, Alvin and family live in Red Deer We have had a good life in this Peace country, I have had my good health. What more could one wish for?

JOHNNY AND VALENT TKACIK

Johnny and Valent and their families are living on the old Bill Broderson place N W 2-42-4 W5 at Leedale, which they purchased in 1947. The house, built in 1903 was once the Wittenburg store, post office and dance hall. It is still standing and has become a landmark for many of the early settlers who come back to visit. We have spent many enjoyable afternoons reliving the history of Wittenburg with them. In 1969 we imported our first simmental heifer from Switzerland and we named our place Wittenburg Simmental Ranch

Before settling in Leedale, Johnny and Valent worked for many different farmers during the summer. In the winters they worked in the saw mills. Lawton Brothers, McTighes, Johnny Jones, Clarence Eadie and Earl Gray were some mills they worked at

Valent was in the armed forces from 1944 1946. Johnny hauled cream for D. J. Myers for a number of years. He also made many trips to Calgary with cattle and brought groceries back for the store

Johnny and Marie Ervin were married in 1955. They have four children. Beverley — working in Edmonton after completing an executive secretarial course at N.A.I.T. Patty, Mavis and Gary at home

Valent married Orva Olson in 1957 and they have four children. Valerie — taking ladies hairstyling at N.A.I.T. in Edmonton, Gwen, Bradley, and Kristine at home

JOSEPH AND ELIZABETH TKACIK

In 1928 Joseph Tkacik immigrated to Canada from Senglar Czechoslovakia. He worked around Eckville with the Johnson Bros. and Leo Valeski. He started working for Mr. Bill Broderson in 1930 at the home place and at Lockhart for $15 a month plus room and board. At this time 15 people lived there. Joe often told of the time he was hauling hay from Lockhart to Leedale and upset the load 12 times due to the deep snow and drifts

Another story that was told about Joe was his last driving experience. Joe drove Elizabeth and Mrs. Withers to a picnic at Gimlet. The trip was uneventful on the way down. On the way home the two ladies did a bit of back seat driving which upset Joe. Consequently he drove through the gate without opening it. To my knowledge this was the last time Joe drove a car

Mrs. Tkacik, Elizabeth, Agnes and Valent arrived at the home place at Leedale in March of 1933. Valent's second day in Canada proved disastrous when he became enthused about the horses and had his thumb smashed between the end of the wagon tongue and a post. Mrs. Johnsman stitched the thumb up for him. It was difficult for Mrs. Tkacik as she did not understand English, but being a very good cook and seamstress managed very well

Mr. O. B. Moore hired Joe in 1937 and until 1940 the family lived in Benjamin, Andrews and Mountain View districts. The highlight of this five year period was July 20, 1938 when Frank and Johnny arrived from Czechoslovakia. The family was once again united. Their joy was dimmed a little the second day when a terrible hailstorm struck the district

In 1940 they bought a place south of Gimlet and settled in to their own home on the quarter NW 3-41-4-W5. Valent, Liz, and Agnes attended the Gimlet school. The Broderson place NW 2-42

4 W5. was rented by Joe in 1935, Vasent and John ay bought it in 1947

Joe and Elizabeth lived on this place until 1956 when hey retired to Red Deer The welcome mat was always out and many people enjoyed their hospitality They were both avid gardeners and had beau iful flowers. Two of Elizabeth's brothers visited Canada, John in 1965 and Carl in 1968

The last mass celebrated in the Catholic Church at Leedale was Joe and Elizabeth's Golden Wedding Anniversary where they renewed their wedding vows. This was held September 2nd, 1968

WASHKEVICH, KONON AND ELIZABETH

Mr Konon Washkevich came to Canada in 1928 from the province of Grodno which was under Polish rule then. His family lived in the municipality of Kobrin and the nearest village was Laskowo. The nationality of the people was called Byelorussian. After working at various laboring jobs for several years, Mr Washkevich came to Rimbey by way of C.P R. freight train in the early spring of 1934. A friend, Sam Zaichuck lived on the SE 15-42-4-W5 (The land was later owned by Russel Stewart and then by a miner from Nordegg.) Later until about 1964, the land was owned by Cleland Price. When Mr Zaichuck tried to sell this land in 1936, he was not able to obtain $50 for the quarter section

Mr Washkevich and a friend, Steve Zaetz, started walking to the Zaichuck place. They were going by way of the 'Midland Road' and when they came by Mr Lyle Yager's place he was in the process of building a log barn. At the time Yagers lived one-half mile east and three miles north of Leedale. They followed that road straight west across the swamp to where Zaichuck's lived. Mr Washkevich lived at Sam s for three weeks while making arrangements to purchase the NW-15-42-4-W5, which is one mile west and one mile north of Sam's. This land was first owned by Bob Fox, then Joe Miklas and then Joe Klepadlo from whom Mr Washkevich bought it. The road came from the south, turned west past Sam's place. the same route it still takes), and ended at the place Mr Washkevich chose From there to the north the road was only a trail. There was no bridge over the small creek that crossed the trail, so in order to be able to get to the road, which now runs straight west of Rimbey Mr Washkevich built the first bridge that crossed the creek in the summer of 1934. In order to build the bridge, he obtained two heavy beams that were left over from a bridge that was built over the Medicine River west of where Jim Cukoos now lives. (At that time Frank Fox

mr Washkevich then laid poplar logs and this was the 'bridge'

As soon as Mr Washkevich obtained the property, he started building on it. All the buildings were of logs, the house was a kitchen, bedroom and pantry, had a roof of slabs and each time it rained, it was little drier inside than it had been outside! There was also a small log barn and a chicken house There was a hand dug well on the property which Mr Washkevich later dug deeper to a depth of 40 feet. He changed the water-drawing mechanism to a crank and pail on the end of a rope which served until a pump was installed about 12 years later

The first spring Mr. Washkevich purchased two horses from Mr Bowman who lived on the present George Patterson place, and one from Earl Rimbey, who lived where the Rimbey Transport is now located. He purchased a sulky plow from Joe Klepadlo, who then lived on the present Armstrong place. That spring Mr Washkevich attended a farm sale near Gilby and bought a cow and calf for $22 50; a horse for $40 and a set of harrows. A 16 run disc drill was bought later To seed the first crop a drill was borrowed from William Polanuk, who then lived where John Walters now lives. After Polanuks left there, the land was owned for a short time by

[illegible]namod Sullak (a brother-in-law of Mr Skorieko's). The Skorieko family owned the present Armstrong land for many years. After Polanuk sold his land, it was bought by Mr Tustan Jevne and family and then the Walters family

Mr Washkevich planted wheat, oats and barley on the 40 acres that was then cultivated land. The crops grew very well, but frosts came early and often, and many times the crops ended up as just cattle feed. A binder was borrowed from Mr Polanuk to cut the first crop and from Mr Mike Zaetz the second year There was a family named Guth, who lived where Burns Kilpatrick now lives, and a binder was bought from them for $50

When the men arrived at Sam s place, Steve Zaetz stayed only a couple days, then returned to Bowden and came back within a short time with Steve's brother Mike, his wife Sylvia (who was Mrs. Washkevich's sister) and their two daughters, Mary and Annie. They all moved into the house with Mr Washkevich and then worked on their house on the present Hamilton place moving there about a month later That summer the men all spent many hours clearing bush and breaking land with horses

In October of 1934, Mrs. Washkevich and son, Michael arrived at their new home in Canada. At the time Mike was nine years old. When she was shown all the land that made up a quarter section of land, it was very hard for Mrs. Washkevich to believe that they could possibly own all that property Back in the homeland the parcels of land had been divided up into very small lots

Each winter Mr Washkevich spent any spare minutes brushing land by hand. The first land breaking he did with horses and a one furrow plow He did about ten acres this way. The next piece of breaking was done by some of the Benson family at a cost of four dollars per acre, then in later years by Mr Bill Ainsworth who lived with the Harley Belt family and used a tractor that was owned by Mr O. B. Moore Mr Moore was well known throughout the area for helping many people obtain credit, land, machinery, stock or any other transactions necessary

The Mount View school was located to the north of the Washkevich farm about three miles and also a school was located near Leedale on the acreage presently owned by Mr and Mrs. Edwin Solberg Mike attended school at Leedale and his first teacher was Mr John Hambry To get to school, most of the children walked, but a few rode horses or had a buggy to ride in and drove a horse (if one could be found that would

In September, 1935 a daughter, Mary, was born. Mrs. Washkevich s sister Mrs. Zaetz attended as mid-wife but Dr John Byers, a well known practitioner in the Rimbey and Ponoka areas, who was then practising in Rimbey, had to be called At that time telephones were not common, so Mr Washkevich went to Polanuk s place and he had an old cat with which he drove Mr Washkevich to Leedale where Mrs. Lindsay, who then ran the post office, had a telephone. Dr Byers then came by car He practised in Rimbey until going into the services in World War II

Future births, Nena, in November 1937 and Peter in January 1940, were attended by Mrs Zaetz only Nadia was born in the hospital in Rimbey (presently auxiliary hospital) with the doctor in charge then being Dr Beugas. For quite a good many years there was no dentist in

The first land payment was to be cash (including all back taxes) Payment of $150 went to Joe Mikias to cover payment owed by Joe Klepadlo and a $40. commission to Klepadlo The first payment to the C.P R. was $150. (one one-third of the crop as payments, taking about eight or ten years to pay for the land. During these years and on into the Depression years there was not money to pay taxes with, so the men worked for the municipality (which was the form of government then) at road building and brushing of road allowances. The councillor at the time was Mr Hayward, father of Bob Hayward

In about 1936 or 37, five cows were obtained from Mr Jack Beatty, who was a hardware store owner in Rimbey Mr Beatty was very good about giving much needed credit to help the people and there were many people who obtained cattle to start a herd in this way. The method of repayment was that for each cow received, you had to raise a steer up to the age of two and one-half years and fatten it for him. There was no definite time period set for this, just an agreement that this would be as soon as possible

During the depression years many products were in short supply so rationing was put into practise. Major items involved were gas, coffee, tea, sugar and nylons which were rationed

A team and wagon was the only mode of travel for many years There was a hall, store and post office in Leedale and there were occasional dances held there and at the school house. School concerts were a very popular form of community entertainment and were eagerly season's entertainment Spring picnics, usually held at the end of the school term were a popular annual get-together each year also, and everyone from near and far attended, regardless of whether or not their children attended the school or even if they had no children at all. Visits between friends were fairly often as the hardy folk travelled a good many miles for the pleasure of a visit. Such visits always produced an abundance of good home cooked foods — meats, coffee and especially the white breads (Occasionally there were also the products of a homemade 'still.') To ones who had come from a country where meals were hardly ever used and white breads were not known (their breads were usually made of home ground wheat,) these foods were considered a grand feast The Washkevich family and their friends were of the Orthodox faith and the only church of this faith in this area is still located in the Springdale community northeast of Rimbey, and although this was a great distance to travel in those days, the families did attend occasionally and especially for any religious occasions within their faith, or weddings or christenings

Mr Washkevich purchased the first family auto about 1943, from Gilman Benson. It was a used Hudson Terraplane and the price was $700 cash. The first tractor was purchased in February 1945 a Massey Harris on steel wheels It had taken many months of negotiating as due to the wartime steel shortage a permit was needed to be able to get a tractor The cost of that first tractor was $1,400 In order to qualify for a permit a farmer was required to have about 200 acres of cultivated land, so extra acreage was rented from some other people who paid Mr Zaetz the sum of $600. to cover the cost of improvements and then took over the remaining C.P.R. lease Mr and Mrs. Hallin and daughter Karin lived there until about 1953

The family friend. Mr Steve Zaetz, was married in about 1939 in the church at Springdale presently St Mary's Convent). A wedding party followed at the Mike Zaetz farm where a record player was used for dancing music. From there the party then travelled to the bride's home at Alhambra, hiring Mr Louis Robinson with his truck to drive them as no one had a car yet Mr Robinson was in the business of buying furs seneca root also copper, bronze, etc He also did small hauling jobs for people for many years

Mike finished his Grade 9 schooling in Leedale (which was then a High School but that part was closed after only two years in existence Mary and Nena took their public school up to Grade 9) at Mount View, then Mary went to Red Deer to take Grade 10 and 11 Nena took up to Grade 11 in Rimbey, then she went to Red Deer Composite High for her Grade 12. Pete completed his schooling with Grade 9 at Mount View and Nadia, her high school in Red Deer

The family are all married now Mary (Mrs. Gordon Leblanc) has two children and lives in Montreal. Nena (Mrs. John Rowat) has five children and lives at Forest, Ontario, near Sarnia. Nadia (Mrs. John Papp) has four children and lives in Vancouver Pete married Sandra Cummings, they have three children and are presently living on the site where Mr Washkevich first began his farming operation Mike married Nettie Osatiuk, they have four children and until October, 1978 they farmed the land on which the old Leedale school was situated, moving from there to Red Deer that fall.

Mr Washkevich farmed the property for many years, later acquiring two more quarters of land, sold the property to son Pete in 1969 and retired to the town of Rimbey where they still live

WASHKEVICH, MICHAEL

I came to Canada with my mother in 1936 to the farm my father had purchased north of Leedale. At the time I was nine years old. I do not remember too many details of the early years there as I was too young. From the time I was about 12 or 13 years old, I helped my father with the farm work, helping with the land clear ng by hand. When the cattle herd had increased we used to let them pasture along the road sides and on property that was not yet fenced. This was called "open range." As soon as I got home from school, it was my job to go and get the cows sometimes walking many miles to find them

I took my Grade 9 at the Leedale High School which was closed the following year. Then stayed home to help my father with the farm work. I bought my farm, one mile north of Leedale, in 1946 from Mr. Frank Fox. Before him the proper ty was owned by Mr. Claude Challand who farmed the land and lived on the quarter section to the southeast of it. This is presently owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harrison. The small house on the property was rented to Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Lush.

My first crop on the farm was seeded the spring of 1947. I lived at home until 1953, getting the use of my father's machinery to farm mine while helping with his farming. For many years our crops were threshed on a custom basis or ex change help basis by Mr. McElroy Sr. or Mr. Oscar Brown and later the Zkacik Bros.

Even though many of the roads were much improved by this time, the road between my farm and my father's farm was impassable every spring. There was many a time an un suspecting traveler had to be pulled from the mud holes with horses or a tractor.

The one-roomed school, which was located on the corner of my farm, was closed about 1960, and it was not until then that the road was graded up and gravelled for the school buses.

There was mail route service for many years even before I bought my place. The route wa driven by various people, a Mr. Thompson who lived near Rimbey, then Herb Beierbach and after I moved to my farm, Cleland Price, and ater the Giesbrecht family. Because of the poor roads in the early years this job involved many hours of hard travel and struggle with mud, crossing by way of fields and backtracking many extra miles.

In 1955 I married Nettie Osatiuk and we settled on my farm. Our children Irene, born in 1956, Ann, born in 1957, Olga, born in 1958, and Debbie, born in 1970 were all born in Rimbey and the older girls attended school in Rimbey travelling by bus until they completed their high school years. Debbie began her schooling in Rimbey also, but only went there two months until we moved to Red Deer at the end of October 1976.

Mr. Wegreen also hauled mail, groceries, etc. In 1927 they left the district, moving to Portland, Oregon.

Walter returned to Alberta about 1931. After serving three and one-half years in the army he moved to Red Deer where he still resides. Walter married Dora Parsons from Westlock. [redacted] knives, taking orders for sharpening discs which was done by his partner Clarence Aske He did not start his team in the usual manner but with a get out of town As well as his little team he also had a big grey team but didn't use them very often

Seth was well read and could discuss any subject

FIFTY-FOUR YEARS OF RODEO

In 1966, at the age of 89 years, Frank Whitford of Leedale was looking forward to attending the Calgary Stampede for the 54th time. Though he has ridden in the parade since, he actually did ride in competition in the saddle bronc event in the first stampede held in 1912. It was his last time in that competition for he broke his hip, and it bothered him too much to ride broncs after that. His love for horses and riding never left him for he was still riding occasionally in his 90th year.

The son of a French half-breed mother and a Scots half-breed father, Frank followed his father and became a first-rate ranch hand. He came to Alberta with his father, Philip Whitford, who was active in the Riel Rebellion and assisted the Royal Northwest Mounted Police in their duties.

Frank worked on ranches around Morley for some time, receiving $35 per month. He knew

Mr. and Mrs. Whitford at home in Leedale, 1961

Rev. John McDougall, for he was the minister and also taught at Morley at that time

Frank first came to Leedale in the fall of 1930. The next spring he rented the Miles' farm, put in a small crop and was hailed out. This happened two years in a row so he left but returned in 1938 to homestead 13 miles west of Leedale

In 1951 he bought Mr Aske's house in Leedale and lived there until he was admitted to the Auxiliary Hospital in Rimbey in 1968

Frank Whitford was born December 2, 1876 and passed away November 12, 1970 at the age of 93 years, 11 months and 10 days

THOMAS M. WILSON

Thomas M Wilson lived on the NW 24-42-4-W5 now owned by Mr Abe Giesbrecht in 1931-32

He was born on June 15, 1874 at Timble Great [illegible] county in England. He was the son of an Imperial Army officer and served with the First Canadian Labor Battalion in the Great War where he was badly gassed and honorably discharged

Tom came to Canada in 1921 and lived in this area for some time before he filed on a homestead in 1932 and moved 20 miles west of Leedale and to the frontier district of Squaw Hills

He built a cabin in the true pioneer manner and also managed to break a few acres of land

Leedale was his closest town and he thought nothing of setting out on foot to get his supply of groceries and the mail

Early in 1935 Mr Wilson received word that he had inherited $11,500 from a relative in England and decided to return to the Old Country So it was, that on March 6, 1935 he and his faithful little dog, which was his constant companion, walked the long trail into Leedale for supplies

It was a cold and snowy day and on his return trip he stopped and had supper with a friend six miles west of Leedale After a brief stay he undertook to walk the remaining 16 miles

Apparently he was seized with a sudden heart attack and his frozen body was found the next day about one-and-one-half miles from his home with his faithful little dog standing on guard

Dr Byers, Coroner, and C P Fordham R.C.M.P. investigated and declared no inquest necessary

Mr Wilson's body, wrapped in a blanket, was taken to Rimbey on the top of a truck load of lumber driven by Mr Varty The little dog icicles frozen to her mouth, was still by her master's side

A family who read the tragic story in the paper in eastern Canada wanted the little dog and it was shipped to them

And so ended the life of still another true pioneer who worked hard for so little

Mr Wilson's only relative in Canada was a brother, Bramley Wilson in Extension, B.C

Thomas Wilson, who was 61 years old was said to rest in the soldier's plot in Mount Auburn Cemetery in Rimbey on Sunday March 17 1935

Funeral services were arranged by the Rimbey Branch of the Canadian Legion

JUDGE NOT

Pray don't find fault with the man that ..mps,
Or stumbles along the road,
Unless you have worn the shoes he wears
Or struggled beneath his load.
There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt,
Though hidden away from view
Or the burden he bears, placed on your back
Might cause you to stumble, too.

Don't sneer at the man who's down today
Unless you have felt the blow
That caused his fall, or felt his shame
That only the fallen know
You may be strong, but still the blows,
That were his, if dealt to you
In the selfsame way, at the selfsame time
Might cause you to stagger too

Don't be too harsh with the man who sins
Or pelt him with words or stones,
Unless you are sure—yea, double sure,
That you have no sins of your own.
For you know, perhaps, if the tempter's voice
Should whisper as soft to you
As it did to him when he went astray
Would cause you to falter, too.

BROOKS, HARRY AND ADA

Harry and I Ada Wingate met in Eckville in 1944 I was employed at the bake shop working for the late Ernest Jackson who owned and operated it

Harry was one of the many truck drivers at that time at Eckville and one who took his coffee breaks at the Co-op lunch counter where most everyone else took theirs

It was there I was introduced to Harry and noticed he was a real tease and flirt with the girls that worked at the counter There were many young single girls working in Eckville at that time so I didn't expect I would ever have a chance to be dated by him even though I hoped

One evening Harry was asked if he could take a team of young people to Elspeth to play ball. To my surprise Harry asked if I'd like to go too. and I accepted

Harry was a busy truck driver along with the other truckers. He hauled everything from machines to people and I was employed at the store working for Mike Sestrap. One afternoon early that summer Harry came in and asked me for our second date Before that I figured he wasn't too interested. After that dates were more

Harry had Bruce Burns hired to help him. It was a rule that close deliveries were made in the evening then they could each take a girl with them One evening Harry asked me if I'd like to go with him. They were hauling a piece of machinery for a farmer at Sylvan Lake so I accepted. That night Bruce started to laug when asked what was so funny he let the cat ou [illegible] n order to decide which girls they [illegible] e they'd flip a coin and that night he was to take another girl and then he asked me. I think that ended the flipping of coins! Anyhow the dates became more regular and we were married in November of 1945

After our marriage we rented Harry and Mary Medin's house and lived there for five years. It was there our three eldest children were born and Harry got started in the saw mill business

He bought his first portable mill setting it up on the home place of his mother's, Mrs. Signe Brooks, doing sawing for some of the neighbors who came out and helped him. He also set his mill on the Charlie Snyder's farm and sawed there

In 1950 we bought a home in Lesliieville from John and Ruth Buckta. We moved October 20 that same year

While living at Diamond Valley Harry had rented the farm of his mother and dad. Harry's father passed away in December, 1947 at the age of 89

Harry farmed for about eight years along with bush work in the winter

Harry traded his small mill in on a bigger one and sawed for two months north of Wolf Creek for Knut Sunde

He worked two winters for August Moro at Jack Fish In the spring of 1952 when Harry and his brother Allan were moving out, the lights on the truck went out and they ended upside down in the ditch The tractor which they were hauling rolled back up on its wheels. The only tragedy was that the battery acid had eaten the seat of their pants! That fall of 1952 several men formed the Albert Creek Lumber Company They were Walt Hoglund, Ray Meyers, Art Johanson, Bill Palm (Sr.) and Harry Brooks. They hired Josie Kanis her husband Louie and daughter Marguerite to cook and bull cook

In the early part of 1954 Harry went up to Lac La Biche to help work in a mill. His stay there was very short In fact he beat a letter home that he wrote me by a week as the mill started to fly apart in all directions

In 1955 Harry bought Cliff Brierly a saw mill and camp. He sawed two years west of Sunchild then two years at Sylvester Lake and Doctor Lake south and west of the Sunchild. Jean Burdenhagen was then hired as cook as Josie's health failed her

Harry sawed two years north of the Nordegg up the Sunchild four years on the Wa Wa [illegible] ears at Rapid Creek, one year in Rocky Mountain House and two years at Rough Creek

He had hired many of the farmers from different areas, Rimbey, Bentley Sylvan Lake [illegible] House, Alhambra, Leslieville and other points including Indians from North Battleford Saskatchewan

We have seven children who have all attended the Elementary school in Leslieville and six who have graduated from David Thompson High Our three oldest daughters, Esther Leanne and Elaine have also graduated from Berean Bible College in Calgary Our next two daughters Carol and Judy are now attending Berean Coleen our youngest is taking Grade 11 at David Thompson High

Most of our daughters went to camp as campers under Youth for Christ, the older ones also were workers as well as counsellors at Frontier Lodge at Nordegg. Esther's and Leanne's husbands also worked there before they were married

Esther worked for awhile at Youth for Christ office in Red Deer. also worked for Social Development at Westfield in Edmonton

Esther and Leanne spent two months one summer working at Circle C Ranch in Delevan New York under Wes Aarum

Esther (Mrs Dave Thomas lives at Stettler Dave is the principal at Gadsby Elementary and Junior High School. They have two sons, Wa [illegible] and Dallas

Leanne (Mrs. Lyell Smith) lives at Leslieville they have a son Shane and a daughter Jamie. At the present time Lyell is employed at the Revelstoke sawmill for the winter months and then trucks in the summer which is a new project for him. They have settled on a farm having bought the old Lauttamus

Charlie and his wife Juliann (Enslen) live north of Lesliеville having bought an acreage on his father's farm and built a new home there. Charlie is a truck driver hauls gravel and sand in the summer months and usually hauled lumber in the winter months for his dad and also helped with other jobs at the mill when short handed. Charlie is an active member in the Church. He belonged to the Boy Scouts when he was in school as well as the Cub Pack. Charlie and Julie have a girl and a boy, Melody and Marty.

Elaine worked at Reitmans in Red Deer from the time of her graduation from Berean Bible College until her marriage to Warren Bumber of Edmonton. She is employed for Aitrans of Canada and Warren is at present selling air planes. He took his pilot's training and instructing course at the Flying Club in Edmonton.

After residing in Lesliеville for 25 years, we bought a mobile home and moved out to the farm, formerly that of the late George Cummerford, a mile north of Lesliеville and have resided here for the past two years.

N.B. Ada Brooks has written the family story, and we conclude it with a poem she wrote. Ada is well known for her many poems, composed to commemorate birthdays, wedding anniversaries and farewells, and recited at the celebration of these events.

[illegible]

A tiny seed from the very beginning
Was created by God, and not to go sinning
Watered and nourished by his love
Tenderly watched by the Father above

While this seed grew to a tender stage
In crept the weeds with the enemies rage
Choking the growth of this tender plant
Interrupting the progress for which it was

Straying away from the straight narrow road
Being enticed from the Father's Abode,
Drifting on and heeding no warning
Of what lies ahead for another new morning

This plant became all twisted and bent
Unable to feed from God's nourishment
The vines of weeds entangled its life
Only crushing, crippling and causing it strife

Left all alone, blinded and low
Unable to care and unable to go —
Struggling along in a miserable state
Searching for help but almost too late

Then alas came a stranger loving and kind,
To assist this sick creature so out of its mind
And opened the sin blinded eyes to see
All hope is in Jesus, He sets us free

This is for All dear sisters and brothers
Take refuge in Jesus and telling all others
Flee from the powers of darkness today,
Cling only to Jesus while still you may

While the day of grace is still at hand
Hearken Ye, all to the Lord's Command
Only one life twill soon be past,
Only what's done for Christ will last"

Matthew 11 28-30 and John 3 16-17

BROOKS, JAMES

James Brooks of Irish and English origin was born in Tilsonburry, Ontario March 25, 1906. He went to Moosomin, Saskatchewan where he lived with relatives. He worked and operated the steam plant in the Robin Hood Flour Mills at Moose Jaw. James also lived at Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, with relatives. It was there when working on a threshing machine that he got a barley beard in his right eye and lost the sight in it.

In 1911 he moved to the Diamond Valley district and took a homestead the NW 7-26-3-W5 which was too rocky for farming, although he did do some breaking on it, and built a log house there. He sold it to Frank Page who later sold it

James Brooks was known as a good neighbor always willing to help in time of need. He always enjoyed cutting the neighbor's children's hair and had always cut the Caton boys' hair. After Claude Caton got older he started cutting hair. To return a good deed he was giving Mr. Brooks a shave and a hair cut. Mr. Brooks always had a moustache but Claude didn't give any consideration to that and ended up cutting half of it off. Well, a decision had to be made either wear half of one or none at all."

James bought another quarter section from John Simons the NE 6-26-3-W5 where he lived and farmed.

It was there he met Oscar Anderson whom he worked with for sometime and then farmed the place for Mrs. Anderson after the death of her husband Oscar.

BUREAU, MR. AND MRS. EDMOND AND FAMILY — (by Mattie Martin

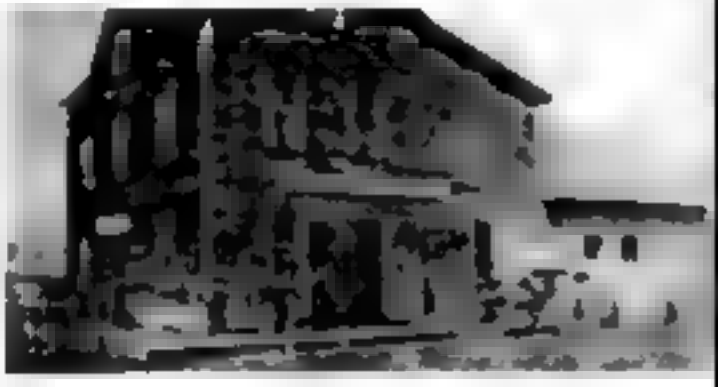
Many times the name of Mr Bureau has been mentioned but nothing about his family. Mr Bureau was born in France but moved to the United States as a young man and studied to become a civil engineer His profession took him to different countries and he spent some time in China as well as France and the States before he came to Canada. He was a good natured man and was liked by everyone. In France he was married to Madeline Brunner who had formerly been married to Count Brunner and she had one little daughter named Isabel who was with them when they came to Leslieville Then another daughter was born in this country named Odette and before they left our district a son was born named Pierre — all nice children. Mr Bureau spoke perfect English but the others had to learn it, so when they first came to Red Deer Mrs Archie McKinnon undertook the job of teaching them English and they remained good friends ever after Mr Bureau saw the necessity for a store to help the new settlers so hired a friend of his, a Mr Galot (Galow), to come and start building. Also helping with the building was a young man from Sylvan Lake named Jules Armeneau. Soon, a fairly large building was erected the front part being used as a store and the rest for the family dwelling. A few years were spent there and then they sold to Messers Campbell and McKinnon and went back to France Mr Bureau, although being a Roman Catholic donated the land on the corner of his place for the log church to be built, where services were held for many years. In 1907 he applied for a post office and thus the Leslieville post office came into being



The first store in Leslieville built by Mr. Edmond Bureau — later bought by McKinnons.

CLAUSS, PETER — by Dianna Clauss

Peter Clauss immigrated to Canada from Germany in 1956. His first work was in the Brooks district where he worked on a farm for $25 a month plus room and board. When he had learned enough English to get by he moved to Medicine Hat and started work at the brick yards until they burned down

He met Dianna Reidlinger from Medicine Hat and they were married in 1962. Peter worked for Good Year Tire for the next few years

The couple were looking around for land and in 1966 they found a quarter north of Lesliеville They bought the SW 1 41-5 from Henry Stelfox but they didn't move out to the farm until the spring of 1971

That year was a wet year and there was just a trail of clay for a road so they usually ended up parking the truck at Centerview Hall and walking the mile home, carting groceries, and little Dennis Karl 8 years old at the time walked to Centerview Hall to catch the school bus and home again in evening. By next school year a new road was built and the bus came to the gate During this time both worked out part time and s[illegible]de n 1973 Peter and Dianna bought the E½ 2-41-5 from Semeen Ahrameen. In 1977 they have started to build a new house on the NE quarter of his land and have had the electricity and gas put in. THE CRAWFORDS, (JAKE AND BOB)

John Mowbray Crawford (Jake) was born in 1872 in the shire of Peebles in Scotland. He was looking for a land of opportunity in 1904 when he left Peebles where he had been employed in the gas-works, and crossed the ocean to Canada His wife, Margaret had died leaving him with two small children Robert who was six years of age and Grace, two years younger They were left in Scotland with their grandparents while their father journeyed to Brookdale Manitoba, where he found employment on a farm

Jake remarried and a second daughter, Jean had been born in Canada, when he returned to Scotland two years later to take his two older children to Canada also. After his return to Brookdale he moved his family a few miles away to Moore Park, where he had been offered an increase in wages to manage another farm. His income was now $75 a month for eight months of the year and $40 a month for the four winter

His second wife died in childbirth when their tiny third daughter Ellen was born, weighing only one and one-half pounds. Her bassinet was a shoe box lined with cotton-batting and somehow miraculously she survived. Jake advertised for a housekeeper and Miss Henderson arrived from Toronto to care for the family, remaining with them until 1912.

A hired man who had worked with Jake on the farm, moved to Alberta and sent word back, urging him to also take advantage of the opportunity to own his own land through the Homestead Act which would allow him to occupy and improve a quarter section. If he met his obligations within the prescribed time limit, he would receive the title to that quarter and he could acquire another quarter nearby, by paying $3 an acre to purchase it. This was called a pre-emption. The Crawford family moved to Manyberries, laid claim to a homestead and eventually acquired a pre-emption as well.

After Bob completed his education, he assisted his father on the farm during the summer months and hauled coal from the mines to Lethbridge in the winter. He served in the army during World War I and remembers having to carry dead bodies out of the tents when the 'flu was rampant in 1918.

Bob met his future wife, Hilda Adams, at a Valentine Dance in Lethbridge, in 1919, after his discharge from the army. Her parents, Annie Elizabeth and William Albert Adams, had left Yorkshire, England, in 1911. William, born in 1879, was the eldest of 12 children and had started working in the coal mines at the tender age of 10 years to help support the large family. After he was married, he worked to obtain the papers which allowed him to become a pit boss in the mines. He became very ill and they debated whether to emigrate to Australia or Canada. A younger brother Tom had moved to Canada and made his home in Lethbridge, Alberta, so they decided to follow him and crossed the ocean with their four children, Hilda, eight years of age and her three younger brothers, Bryan, Billie, and Stephen. There had been a suspected case of smallpox on board the ship so they were quarantined on St. Croix Island for 18 days before being allowed to enter Canada and to continue on their journey by train to Lethbridge.

Hilda's father first obtained employment with the John Deere Company for a wage of twenty five cents an hour. Later he moved his family to Diamond City where he received better wages as a pit boss in the coal mine. He augmented his income by transporting travellers on their way to and from Lethbridge, across the Belly River in a rowboat, charging 25 cents per person. He bought a farm in 1917 and then two cows for which he paid $125. Prices had risen during World War I. Hilda's mother became noted for her butter which she sculpted into delicate flower petals for her customers. Later they moved into Coalhurst where William received an increase in wages as a haulage boss in the coal mine. Hilda's youngest brother Bobby, was born in 1918. She remembers well the "flu" epidemic of 1918-1919 when she assisted in nursing the many victims and then came very close to death herself.

Bob and Hilda were married on May 24, 1921

Manyberries. Her parents bought a farm near Bluffton and moved north to it in the same year. Bob and Hilda's first son, Bryan, was born in 1922 and his brother Larry in 1924.

The crops in the area had been very poor, year after year, because of drought and the government offered the farmers free transportation if they wished to move off their homesteads to a new location. One day in 1924, the Watkins salesman told Bob that he also would be a good salesman and urged him to apply for a territory which was available, bounded by Innisfail on the south, Lacombe on the north and as far west as he wanted to go. He submitted his application and was accepted. The last thing that he did before moving out was to pay his taxes in order that he would be allowed to move his buildings and equipment.

He drove his ponies pulling the medicine wagon from Manyberries to Bluffton a distance of 350 miles. Hilda followed by train with Bryan two years of age, and Larry, a baby only two weeks old.

They had considered living in Eckville but the McTavish family who had been neighbours in Coalhurst, had purchased land northeast of

Leslieville so the Crawfords rented a house in Leslieville from Bill Barron until the house was built which stood where John's Park and Oil and Gas Ltd. is now located. They sold this house to Joe Mannix and bought the Pool Hall with living quarters, which was situated between the Post Office and the old Butcher Shop on Main Street. Bob continued selling Watkins products until 1932, at first depending upon his ponies to draw the medicine wagon, then horses, which were later replaced by a Model T Ford. He depended upon the hospitality of his customers for lodging while travelling through his large territory. He was told "There's no use going west of Rocky Mountain House. Bob. There's no money out there!" He found this also to be true when he collected taxes for the Municipal Districts of Golden West, Lochearn and Raven during those difficult [illegible]

Bob's father, Jake, decided to relocate also and moved from Manyberries to Leslieville in 1925. He bought the N.W. 13-5-W5 from Clarence Fitch and farmed it until 1942 when he died at the age of 70 years. Miss Henderson moved into a small house which Bob owned in Leslieville and lived there until her death in 1945.

One day in 1932 Bob was offered a dealership [illegible] reminisces, "That was the turning point — it was [illegible]

His business expanded. He was also selling B.A. Oil and Gas, fertilizer, Dodge, Plymouth, Chrysler cars and trucks so the Pool Hall became an office and an addition was built to accommodate the equipment.

The family had also grown and now included two daughters, Margaret, who had been born in 1927 and Patricia in 1935.

Children and adults alike were [illegible] resourceful in those years providing much of their own entertainment. A curling rink was constructed — of straw! There were four hundred guests in attendance at a Farmer's Ball in 1926. Chautauquas were held in the Community Hall. Movies were shown occasionally and the children would adapt some of the incidents to stage a "Great Trek" of their own, assembling all the "kids" baby buggies, carts, bicycles, wagons, etc. — even going so far as to lord the creek or to burn one of their number at the stake! Allan McMeekin was tied to a clothes-line pole, the fire was lit, but everyone became frightened and ran away when the rubber soles on his running shoes began to melt. Luckily his mother saw what was happening and rescued him just in time. One Hallowe'en the C.N.R. train stopped in Leslieville for water. McCallums' outhouse was loaded on a flatcar and transported to Nordegg. A buggy was taken apart, carried over a high board fence, piece by piece, and reassembled in Sam Gormley's backyard which had no gate! A great deal of work was accomplished by threshing crews, wood sawyers, barn raisings, quilting bees but there was always time for relaxation and entertainment after the work was done.

With the advent of World War II, Bryan enlisted in the army and Larry in the air force. Margaret married Bob Manning in 1945 and they have two sons, Stanley and Larry, and one daughter Patricia. Patrick (Doc) Cummerford was born in Ireland, and came to North Dakota, later moving to Potlatch, Idaho. From there he came to Leslieville in 1919, accompanied by his wife and two sons, George and Charles. He took land just north of the present village, which came to be known as the Cummerford Ranch. In Idaho he had practised the profession of veterinary science, and continued this work when he came to Canada. He died in United States in 1926. His wife, known affectionately by everyone as "Grandma Cummerford" continued to live in Leslieville until she passed away.

Besides taking up land, he and his two sons also purchased one of the local stores, the Leslieville Mercantile, which remained in the family until 1968. Charles and his wife Harriet also lived in Leslieville for five years, until his health forced their return to the States. The original store was located one block west of the present site.

Mrs. Effie Cummerford and her son Pat, aged four years, came to Leslieville in 1921, after the death of her husband, Jack, in the United States.

She later married George, who, along with her son Pat, operated the store for many years

DEVEREUX, CYRIL (BID) AND KAY — by Bid

We left Veteran, Alberta in October 1943 After a series of very dry years with dust storms and grasshoppers to put up with, we were looking for greener pastures

We bought the NW 3-40-4-W5 and SE 3-40-4-W5 from Vance McCarthy two and one half miles northwest of Lesslieville. We had an auction sale down there and shipped a mixed car of livestock up here, we left a neighbor lad to accompany the stock and we came here in time to attend the McCarthy sale to pick up some items we would need

Neighbors here were very good to us. the Schiebs, Hainsworths and Barretts had us stay overnights at their places until we got our house in order, the boys were small then, Francis nine and Wayne five, so they were not able to help much

About the time of McCarthy's sale we had heavy wet snow and it turned quite cold, but it soon cleared up and the snow all left and we had very little the rest of the winter Francis started going to school at Campbell just one quarter mile away Mrs. Norman was teaching at the time

For a while Kay and I were very homesick and missed our old friends and neighbors and also the wide open prairie. Our half section here seemed very small., while we had only one quarter of seeded land down there, we had quite a lot of grazing lease, I believe at 2½c per acre and for crop lease we gave one sixth to the "Special Areas" Also in the fall when the crops were in, we had what they call Free Range and could let our stock run out if we wished

As time went on we made new friends and felt more at home here. On the prairie we had only one neighbor less than a mile away, here we had four so didn't feel nearly so isolated

Our first crop here in 1944 was very good. the oats ran over 100 bushels per acre, which helped a lot We were milking seven or eight cows and started raising pigs and keeping some range cows, so we made out not too badly

Francis took Grade 11 and 12 in Red Deer and then took up Air Craft Engineering at Calgary Technical Institute After finishing the three years' course there he worked for AVRO Aircraft in Toronto. He worked on the ill-fated AVRO Arrow and when the Government cancelled the go ahead on it he was offered a job in Quebec City for Defence Reaschevich Establishment where he still works. He is now married and his wife works at the same place

Wayne went through high school in Lesslieville After graduation he took a job with a surveying outfill for a while. then took a heavy equipment operators course in Idaho, U.S.A After graduating there he did cat skinning also had a gravel truck for a while. now he is in the back hoe business and has also taken our farm over He married Jackie Livingston in August 1980. They have three children, Greg 15, Pam 14, and Brad eight years. Jackie is presently employed at David Thompson High School as Librarian.

Kay and I are semi-retired and living on the acreage that Wayne and Jackie had previously on NW 1 10-4-W5.

DOUPE, TOM

The Tom Doupe family rented the Carl Holmes quarter in the Bingley district from 1932 to 1935, then from 1935 to 1944 they lived in the Carlos area.

In 1944 they moved to the Fred Street farm at Leslieville for four years. Then they rented the farm of Ernest Johnson (brother-in-law of Bert Doupe) for another four years before moving to

DURBEN, HENRY AND BRICKLE, CHARLES — (by Mattie Martin

Another couple of "old bachelors" who came in the early years were Henry Durbin and Charles Brickle. They also lived up back of the hill north of town and had brought some settler's effects with them along with a yoke of oxen. They were supposed to work together but like most people who try that, they found out it didn't work so they split up and Brickle was the first to leave. Henry's mother came to stay with him for a while but she too went back to the States. Henry Durbin was a very curious person, always asking questions. In a few minutes of conversation with him he would nearly learn a person's life history. He too got tired of farm life and left the country never to be heard of again.

ENNIS, WILLIAM—Information from Earl Beaven and Florry Bobier

One of the very early pioneers of Township 41 Bill Ennis. filed a homestead claim on June 12 1909, and lived the rest of his life in the north Leslieville area. He homesteaded the S.E. 3-41-5 W 5, the quarter now owned by Dave Trevelyn across the road west of Centerview Hall.

Bill was born near Port Carling, Ontario in 883. He moved west to Manitoba as a young boy. Later he came to Alberta and worked in the Lacombe and Blackfalds area. He got a job at the livery stable in Lacombe. He freighted goods and took people out to look for homesteads. One time he even drove a Mountie out to pick up a law breaker. He joined the army in the first World War, but only got as far as Ireland.

Bill was "quite a ladies man", but remained a bachelor all his life. In the old days he owned a spanking team of drivers, and a nice buggy and cutter and no school teacher ever lacked for a way to get to a dance. He was always there to lend a hand in organizing a picnic or a dance, and he took an active part in school affairs. He called the quadrilles at all the dances for many years. He was a neighbor highly respected and well liked by a

Sometime about 1964 Bill retired to the Westview Lodge in Rocky Mountain House after spending 55 years on his land. In the fall of 1966 he passed away, and a former Washington Heights teacher and friend, Ivy (Greentree) Houchen arranged the funeral, and burial, in a Field of Honour in a Calgary cemetery.

ENSIGN THEODORE (TED) AND MARSHALL — by Mattie Martin

It was possibly about 1907 or 1908 when Ted Ensign came to our district and settled on the land at the foot of the Butte Hill which had been vacated by Mr. Johnny Campbell. With him came a young man named Leigh (Lee) McMillan who also took a quarter near there. They were quite a pair of bachelors, especially Ted, who was noted for his pancakes. Whenever there was a picnic or a party Ted would always offer to make the pancakes and they were good too. He wasn't much of a farmer and used to boast about how he had gone to "Ohio State University". Someone jokingly remarked one time that he had gone in one door and out the other. Be that as it may, Ted was a very likable kind of person and came from a very fine family as we found out after his parents had visited here one summer. They were nice people, the father being a Methodist minister. Ted was a very good tenor singer and was a member of our choir at the little log church for many years, and was always will

Marshall, his younger brother, came out later and lived with Ted on the farm but he did not take too kindly to farm work so didn't stay too long and went back to the States. Ted, however, stayed on, helping to clerk at McKinnon's store for a long time and finally married Miss Julia McKinnon. She passed away not too long after and is buried in the Leslieville cemetery. Several years after, about 1950, Ted was married to Mrs. Jim McCarrol and they lived at Condor and

Niska until his passing a few years ago. Before his marriage he lived for some time with his friends at Withrow — long enough to be jokingly referred to as "Mayor of Withrow" Ted, as he was called was well informed, community spirited and well liked

FENG, R.

R. Raymond Feng, was born January 1885 at Zagrow near Pozun, Mecklenberg, East Germany I understood from my father that the name Fenning was an alteration from Fennigan as my parents were supposed to have come from Ireland

My father was a building contractor and also for awhile Mayor and also in charge of the fire brigade of Zagrow I remember well, a very large church my father had built where I used to sing as a choir boy It had a very large organ and a beautiful picture hanging over the altar which I have heard the Russians took after they occupied East Germany. I attended school in

In May 1912 I immigrated to the U.S.A. to live with my aunts at Scranton, New York Between 1912-1914 I used to go west to work on farms, particularly at harvest time In 1915. I bought a quarter of land near Hertzfield, Wells County in North Dakota. My first crop was mostly flax with some wheat. The same year I volunteered for the army but was turned down on physical grounds

In 1917 I enlisted in the army but was discharged later in the year I then went west to Seattle and found a job riveting in Skinner's Shipyard, until I was laid off due to the slump in ship building after the end of the first war

From Seattle I went to Aberdeen, Washington to work in a logging camp. this was in 1919. I worked on the steam engines. One of these was rated at 3,000 H.P and was built by Washington Iron Works They built six of these engines and then stopped as they were too heavy to move Oliver Salmon and Harry Goldin worked at the same mill.

I owned a small acreage just outside of Aberdeen and built a house on it I had become acquainted with a Mr William Turner who owned a quarter just south of the present Cross Roads Store. (His land is now owned by Russ Parr) Mr Turner told me about Alberta

In 1926 I sold my property and moved to Alberta coming up through Kingsgate. I brought a few pieces of furniture with me, which came by ra

I remember a terrific hail storm that wiped out everything around Leslieville just after I arrived, however, just a mile north there was no

I bought the quarter Jack Leslie now owns. the SW 28-40-5. I plowed 42 acres and broke seven acres the first year, and dug a 40 foot well, just south of the house where Jack lives now This was really good water, but unfortunately, where I dug was on the road allowance and the well was filled in when the road was surveyed

In 1934 I sold the SW 28-40-5 to Paul Hansinger for four very small heifer calves and 400 board feet of 2 x 4 lumber I moved to the W ½ 16-40-5, known as the Moser place. (Henry Moser worked at freighting and building in Billings, Montana) I rented this Moser land for about 10 years, and I also farmed the NW 30-40-5, known as the Carl Holmes place and also the NE 8-40-5 at the same

Around 1943 I bought the SW 22-40-5 and I later bought the NW 22 to make a half section This later quarter was homesteaded by Gordon Tink's father I bought a D 2 "cat" in 1948, it was the first in the district

In 1964 I sold this land to Dennis Anderson although I continued to live there for awhile. In 1967 I bought the land farmed by Gilbert Maitland E ½ 34-41-6. In 1972 I sold this land and

In 1973, I got tired of being retired and bought the NE 4-41-6 where I am farming now I have cleared nearly all of the quarter since I came here

I am now 58 years of age, and keeping quite active, busy and enjoying life

FOURNIER, GEORGE — (by Minnie Martin.

George Fournier was a quiet, nice young man who came from eastern Canada about 1907 or 1908 and took up land on the Blueberry hill. He was just a very young fellow and trying to farm without too much money and machinery was a task he couldn't cope with so he didn't stay too long in the district. He used to come to church and to any picnics or other affairs that were held and we all thought a lot of him but he left after a short stay and went back to his former home

FREYLINGER, PETER AND HELENA FAMILY — by Mrs. Walter McMeekin

Peter Freylinger was born in Esch sur Azette, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg on June 8, 1891 the son of Nicolas Freylinger and Katherine Schmidt

Helena Sassel was born in Esch sur Azette, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg August 3, 1890 the daughter of Michel Sassel and Suzanne Reuter

My parents grew up in Luxembourg where the official languages are French and German while the national language is Luxembourgeois They received their education there

In 1911 Dad immigrated to Canada, at first being employed in Nova Scotia, and a year later came west to Coalhurst, Alberta, where he worked in the coal mines. Mother joined him there a year or so later

In his quest for a farm Dad came to Central Alberta and the Hespero — Evergreen area. In 1919 they bought the former Lawrence Fritch farm SW 18-36-4 W5) and moved there

Dad wanted a bush farm lots of bush the prairies were so barren of trees and windy He got it and spent many years clearing the land and breaking it, to make it suitable for mixed farming The work was done by horses The tractor being used much much later in farming operations

There was an abundance of wild berries, flowers and wildlife right on the farm. Prairie chickens and rabbits were very plentiful This put meat on some pioneers' tables when not much else was available

Roads were built with horses scrapers and lots of "man-power" They were dirt, and in marshy places corduroy with dirt. In the spring some of these became boggy and inundated and the dirt was washed away or the logs sank into the bog, so had to be repaired. In the winter the snow drifts were very high across the roads in places and travel was almost impossible

Travel was by horses, sleighs and cutters in the winter and wagon, democrat or buggy in the summer. Cars were very rare. We rode horseback walked, (some had horses and buggy or sleigh to get to our one room school We lived three miles from Daisy Nook the school we attended Grades 1 to 8 were taught there in the early years and later in the 30's high school One teacher taught all these grades — including the high school

The teachers I remember are Mr Stewart Meeres, my Grade 1 teacher and following him Mr Glenworth Jones, Mr Norman Lougheed Miss Hilda Lawrence (now Mrs. Jonas Anderson), Miss Aileen Hallman and Betty Baldwin (now Mrs Robin Hartley), the last of which I must pay tribute to for helping us all so diligently in our quest for senior matriculation

Box socials and dances nearly always raised funds for our annual Christmas concert and a community picnic always ended the school year

The nearest doctor if there was a resident was Eckville, Rocky Mountain House or Red Deer

Telephones were few, our closest being at Frank Cerny's one and a half miles distant Radios were rare until the 30's when they became more common. The hand wound gramophone was one source of music, a few had these. Coal oil or gas lamps were used for lighting and wood for heating

Holidays such as Christmas and Easter were spent and shared with neighbors, few had relatives near. Neighbors visited each other often and an evening of entertainment was sometimes playing cards, the accordian or other musical instrument the gramophone and [illegible] versing and the serving of lunch and coffee

Most social events were held in the one room school, such as dances, concerts, an occasional silent movie and church services. All partook in these occasions, young and old intermingled They were truly family get-togethers

A community hall was an urgent need. Both [illegible] parents were active in community affairs and participated in every way they could to help in the building and management of the Evergreen Hall

Dad served as a school trustee on the Daisy Nook School Board for many years and was also [illegible] (when road building and repairing took place) at [illegible] time.

Dad was of a serious nature, was an avid reader with a deep passion for learning. He was an interesting conversationalist and loved to recall events of the past. I'm sure his friends and neighbors will recall hearing the tale of the obstinate horse he once owned on the prairies that nothing on earth could move — once it had decided to stop, no matter where, and also of the time when he came to this area in search of and in June, upon looking out of the window in the morning, there was snow on the ground— not much encouragement to a would-be-farmer

Mom was of a jolly, fun loving nature and enjoyed both young and old. Her family home and farm were her life

Both Mom and Dad spoke several languages fluently, but in all the years met only two people with whom they could converse in Luxem bourgeois — Mrs. Bonk, whose husband had the blacksmith shop at Hespero and Mr Matt Hoven, a farmer of the Gaetz district

Burials often took place on the home farm in the early years and so the body of Mr Buchta Sr father of Albert and son-in-law of Mr Frisch, rests on the hills of the farm

During the ensuing years my parents received their citizenship papers and became British subjects. They were proud to be a part of their adopted land

They had three children

a son Michael John of Mission, B.C., born in Esch sur Alzette, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg on September 8, 1910. He is now retired from the logging industry in which he was employed. He married Cora Belle Wright of Keremeos, B.C and they have a family of four, Theodore 'Ted Darlene, Sheila and Chery'

— a daughter Catherine Helena born at Coalhurst, Alberta, January 11 1915 She married Gudbiorn Thorlakson of Markerville, Alberta They lived in Markerville, Evergreen, Benalto and Red Deer He was a cream hauler mechanic, trucker, farmer and school janitor The had three children, Kenneth Peter of Calgary born on November 15, 1940, Donald Clare of Toronto, Ontario, born on March 1, 1947 and Myrna Lois born August 29, 1943, whose untimely passing on December 19, 1952 brought deep sorrow to their lives. Catherine passed away on February 22, 1970. Gudbjorn presently resides in Red Deer

— a daughter (myself) Cecilia Anna (Mrs Walter McGregor McMeekin of Lesliieville born at Coalhurst, Alberta on June 14, 1917 Walter and I lived in Calgary while he served in the Royal Canadian Airforce and after his discharge, moved to Lesliieville where he managed Lesliieville Motors until it changed ownership in 1975 He remains there presently as head mechanic. We are blessed with three sons and three daughters, as recorded in the Walter McMeekin history

Mother passed away on October 14, 1955. A year later Dad sold the farm to Wenzel Kubik (Jim) and moved to the town of Rumbey where he resided until his passing on October 14, 1967

[illegible]

The NW 24-38-5-W5 had been homesteaded by Leslie Reilly in 1906 but as he had received an appointment at the Merchant's Bank in Red Deer he gave up the land and Mr Galot applied for it and got it. As he did not have enough money to build a big house he made a dugout in the side of the hill, cribbed it up nicely inside, and sent for his family

They came and were frustrated when they saw where they had to live but made the best of the situation and soon settled down. There was Mdme. Galot, Jeanne, Angelle and a nice little boy Maurice. Jeanne found employment at Mrs Bureau's, Angelle went to work at Innisfail where she married and Maurice in later years went to Maple Creek and still farms there. This land, after the Galot's left, became the home of the Tom Davenport family

GIBSON THE GORDON FAMILY

Gordon was born in Moose Jaw Saskatchewan. He received his early education in Congress, Saskatchewan. Most of his high school subjects were through correspondence courses. He attended the Fundamental Bible School at Port Coquitlam, British Columbia, and came to this area in 1940 to pastor at the Withrow Gospel Mission. In 1942 he married Freda Bott oldest daughter of Mrs. Keitha and the late Fred Bott of the Withrow area. Freda grew up on the family farm along with her seven brothers and two sisters. She attended the Shady Lane school and also the Fundamental Bible School at Port Coquitlam, B.C. It was during their stay at Withrow on October 4, 1943, that their first daughter, Joy, was born. Together the three of them travelled around in their old 26 Chevrolet even taking their goat along whenever they planned to be away for several days. On one of their trips out west of Rocky Mountain House to pick blueberries, the goat was sitting on the back seat of the car when they boarded the ferry to cross the river. It was the ferryman's job to count each passenger and keep a record of it Well, he even counted the goat as one of the family She was a pet as well as a good source of milk but was also a nuisance at times. While on this trip they slept in a bathhouse on a straw tick There was a window with no glass in it but a slab nailed over it In the early hours of the morning a bear came and looked in the window at them. It was lucky there was a slab over the window As they were leaving for home, it had just rained. They went in the ditch. We pushed the car out but it went in the ditch on the other side This time it had to be jacked out. In spite of all the inconveniences, they took home a lot of blueberries which made the trip worth it.

One experience the Gibson's had while they lived at Withrow will never be forgotten. Freda's brother Dave had taken them to Withrow in a wagon to do some work around the church. At the time the Horseguard River would flood in the spring and flow over both approaches to the bridges. While they were at Withrow the banks of the river had flooded over the road. They started across the water and the wagon box began to float off the wheels and carriage of the wagon and by the time they reached the bridge it was just hanging on by a peg. Rather than taking any chances on crossing over the opposite approach, they decided to leave the wagon along with horses, harness on the bridge and ride the horses back to Withrow as the other approach was deeper and swifter than the one they had just crossed. Dave had to stay with Gordon and Freda until the river went down.

The Gibson's pastored at Withrow and Diamond Valley for a number of years and then moved to New Raven to pastor the Gospel Mission there. It was while they were at New Raven that Gordon decided to teach school. He took his Grade Twelve at Dickson School. It was also at this time on January 19, 1947, that their son, Danny was born. In the fall of that year Gordon attended the University of Alberta to prepare for his teaching. In the spring of 1948 he began teaching at the Medicine Valley school. Their first trip to Medicine Valley was when their brother, Eddie, took them and their belongings in a lumber wagon. Again the Horseguard river was flooded and the water was running over the road but they made it across without any trouble.

In September 1948 they moved to the Wolfe school and lived in the teacherage. During their first winter at Wolfe their means of transportation was a horse named Fanny, loaned to them by the late Garnet McLean and a cutter. Many times they walked to Withrow for the mail or to attend church. Sometimes the snow was very deep and drifts were high. As soon as they could afford it they bought a Model A Ford. They ate lots of prairie chickens and got another friendly goat to supply them with milk and to follow the school children around.

It was in January 1951 that they moved back to the Medicine Valley School. As the school had a very large enrolment his wife helped with his teaching by supervising the lower grades. The highlights of the school year were the ball games, picnics and the Christmas concerts which usually lasted at least two hours. They included dialogues, recitations, drills, songs by the whole school as well as solos and duets. The school was always jampacked for these events.

After leaving Medicine Valley the Gibsons moved to Evarts where Gordon taught for one year. On May 4, 1954, their second daughter Maxine was born. Soon after this happy event took place they moved to Leslieville where they have made their home since.

On May 15, 1958, their third daughter, Carol was born and two years later on February 17, 1961, their second son, Dale was born. Carol graduated from David Thompson High School in June, 1977. She lives in Rocky Mountain House and is a stenographer for the Department of Social Services. Dale is living at home and is attending David Thompson High School. Their daughter, Joy married Allan Brososky of Eckville. GOBLE, JOHNNY — (by Mable Martin)

Johnny was a small boy in stature but with a heart of gold inside him. He was sent out from England, as a lot of others were, to be a helper on a farm so he lived with the McLeans near Lake Megantic and came west with them. Living across from the Hopkins place he became well acquainted with them and later married the oldest daughter, Ethel. He built a little house in Leslieville (which is now the W. I. Hall) and they lived happily there for some time till one day someone whom Ethel liked better came along and she went away with him and left little Johnny. He was very upset so the McKinnon's took him under their wing and he was their faithful friend forever. He joined the army during the first World War and was a bugler. Later he was a drummer in the orchestra that we had in those days but finally he took sick and passed away at the hospital in Rocky Mountain House and is buried in the Leslieville cemetery

HAINSWORTH, THE JOSEPH FAMILY — by Art Hainsworth

Joesph Hainsworth came to Canada from England with his parents when he was seven ars old, in the year 1862. Mary Hogg came from Scotland with her parents in the year 1880 when she was six years old. Both families settled in Manitoba not far from Winnipeg. In those days it took three weeks to cross from Britain to Canada. Most of that time was spent in lower deck as the seas were too rough to allow passengers on upper deck with the type of ships used in those days

They met and were married in Winnipeg on May 1, 1902, spending the next 16 years in Los Angeles U.S.A., where their family increased by two sons and four daughters. In 1918 they returned to Canada, living one year at Red Deer Alberta where Dad worked for Hewson Draying Co. They then rented a farm near Evarts, a small town along the Burnt Lake Trail. This is where I was born in August 1919. The farm they rented was sold and in May, 1920 they moved to a half section farm, SW 10-40-4-W5, SE 9-40-4-W5 five miles north and west of Leslieville which they purchased from Mr. J. M. MacDonald of Eckville. It was formerly homesteaded by Mr. Ted Ensign, an early settler in the district

In the winter my father and oldest brother John took teams and worked in the lumber camps of Fishers and Phoenix while my older brother and sisters cared for the livestock on the farm. In 1921 another son was born, and in 1926 the family was completed by the birth of another daughter

Among my earliest memories of the farm was dad seeding grain by hand from tubs in the back of a wagon and harrowing the grain into the soil with a drag-harrow. This proved to produce very abundant crops. Although in those days with the slow ripening varieties of grain it turned out to be greenfeed more often than grain

In the late 20's a horse powered hay baler was obtained and many carloads of hay were baled throughout the district by my dad and two older brothers. Most of the hay was loaded in boxcars and shipped west to the logging camps or the mines at Nordegg and Arexo

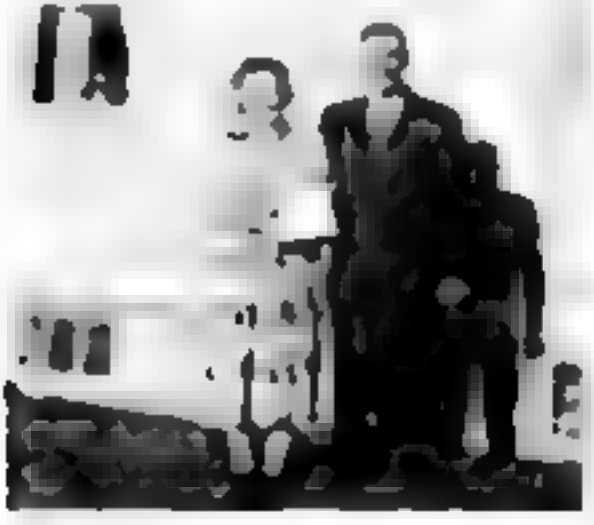
The first threshing I remember was done by a small hand fed separator and a straw carrier instead of a blower This straw had to be forked away from the end of the carrier by hand to prevent it piling up and plugging

Later most of the threshing was done by Mr Card's steam powered separator and a large crew It seemed to me more time was spent moving from one small field to another than it took to thresh them. On occasions the big steam engine would bog down in the many soft mud holes in the district at that time It wasn't long before our close neighbor got a high elevator wooden separator and a Rumely tractor As there were no augers at that time, the grain was elevated to about 16 feet then run down a pipe into the grain bin or wagon

My oldest brother and sister were through school when we moved to the Lesheville district The rest of the family obtained their schooling at the Campbell School which was situated at the foot of the big hill on the present Albert Mottus farm As I remember there was always a Hainsworth to do the janitor work at the school I put in three years at it for the much appreciated salary of $5 a month. Many were the mornings I left before daylight and walked, (or ran the one and one half miles across country to light the fire only to have the teacher come and send the two or three of us who got there home, when the temperature was -40 or -50 Fahrenheit

Dad and Mother celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on the farm in 1952 They also celebrated their 60th anniversary in the Lesteville community hall in 1962 Mother passed away in October of that year at the age of 90 years

In January 1963 I married Verna Doupe of Victoria, B.C Dad lived with us on the farm until



Mr and Mrs. Joe Hainsworth on their 50th Wedding Anniversary, 1952.

his passing in the West Park Nursing Home in April, 1972 at the age of 96

HAMBLETON, WILLIAM AND KATHLEEN HENRY AND JOANNE HAMBLETON, HARRY

William Hambleton known to his friends as "Bill" was born in Leek, Staffordshire England in 1878. He arrived in Canada by boat in 1903. He continued his journey by train until he arrived in Winnipeg Here he joined his brother, Harry who was working as a cabinet maker During the winter months Bill worked at his trade as a bricklayer

In the spring of 1904 the brothers headed west to take up homesteading. Upon arrival in the Alhambra district they settled on the SW 24-39-6-W5. They started out with a team consisting of one ox and one horse. They broke the land with the 'team' and a walking plow The 'team' was also used to fetch supplies from Red Deer each spring, summer and fall. They lived in a one room log house with a sod roof, furnished with a stove, a wooden table, chairs, and beds. The brothers farmed this quarter from 1904 until 914. During this time they suffered through hardships, enjoyed good times and survived through culinary failures and unexpected

Bill and Harry managed to be fair cooks, but at times the cold winters frustrated their best efforts. One winter evening Bill mixed up a batch of bread dough and in order to keep it warm so that it would rise, he proceeded to take it to bed for the night. Upon waking in the morning he discovered that the dough had not risen at all. As the brothers headed out to fetch a load of wood Bill threw the dough out by a fence post, disgusted with his failure. The brothers returned in the afternoon with a sleigh load of wood. when all of a sudden the team took flight. Harry hung on to the frightened team with all his might Bill jumped off prepared to do battle with the critter yard, past the gate, past the lean-to shelter. he stopped all of a sudden and looked -- The varmint wasn't any four-legged critter at all. Lo and behold the bread dough had risen up beside the fence post into a huge ball! Bill swiftly grabbed the dough, stoked up the fire in the cookstove, and sliced the dough into loaves and proceeded to bake the bread for supper

In 1914 with the call of World War I the brothers joined the Canadian Army Bill served for five years and 10 months. During this time he fought in France at Vimy Ridge, in Germany and did duty time in England. While in England, he met and courted Kathleen Swain. They were married in 1919, and a son, William Henry Swain was born on July 26, 1920 Bill was honorably discharged from the army in 1920 and returned to the Alhambra district in December, 1920 with his wife, son and four year old step-daughter

After Bill returned from the War with his family he found he had lost his original homestead as it was reclaimed to meet tax payments. So he rented the NE 12-39-6-W5 where R Olson lives now Here he lived with his family until he could purchase the SW 30-39-5-W5. Then the family lived there in a two-room house which they expanded to a two storey house over the years. They had seven head of Shorthorn cattle but only one cow survived calving after the first

In 1920 Bill started to work for the C P R. on the track from Alhambra west to 56. He worked on this job for four and one half years with Jack Poldit as the section foreman. Other men who worked on the same job were George Farrington and Harry Crabtree George bought the NW 7-39-5-W5. Harry Crabtree was from Yorkshire, England and had three sons, Horace, Arnold and Ervin. Harry farmed the SW 7-39-5-W5 which he later sold to G. Antrim and bought the quarter Clarence Needham now lives on from Bill Phillips. (See Farrington and Watters histories

Henry, Bill's son, attended the Beaver Flat School from 1927 to 1934 The youngsters of the area got a great deal of joy in skating on the creek in winter time but their real favorite sport was heading for the swimming hole after school or on a Sunday afternoon in the summer

In the late 1930's, Henry and Arnold and Ervin Crabtree worked in mills in the bush camps. Arnold made skis with no poles and the boys amused themselves skiing downhill in the moonlight when the day's work was done. Arnold also made snowshoes, tanned hides, and was a taxidermist Ervin took a mail order course in city and radio repairing. Arnold and Ervin in British Columbia. Horace was a fire ranger in the 1930's

Bill broke the land with a team of horses until he acquired a 1936 Allis Chalmers tractor. He raised cattle and purebred Leghorns which he had shipped in from Ontario. However, in 1943 Bill lost 250 chickens when the chicken house caught on fire and burned to the ground. The family's first car was a 1929 Model A Ford bought by Henry in 1937. Lloyd Courtright had shown him how to drive before he bought the car. Henry helped his father farm as well as apprentice as a butcher under Frank Scott from 1946-1947. In 1945 Bill's sister Susan, emigrated from England after retiring from a nursing career during which time she nursed through both World Wars.

In 1947 Henry met Jeanne Heatley, daughter of William Calib and Anne Heatley of Leduc. Jeanne attended Rocky Mountain House School from 1945-1948. She then worked in Spoor's Meat Market. Henry and Jeanne went out together during 1947-1951. During this time they attended shows, and dances at which Henry was the "Caller" for the square dances. On July 20, 1951 Henry and Jeanne were married. They took up residence on his father's farm. In 1956 their first daughter, Tennis was born and their second daughter, Nola arrived in 1960.

THE HANSINGER FAMILY — by Kate (Hansinger) Bystrom

Paul Hansinger and family arrived in Canada in the spring of 1928. Their first home was in Millet, Alberta where he farmed and operated a barbershop and pool hall.

Father was born in a little village in Austria, he married the former Mary Lochmuller in 1919. He served in the First World War and was in the military ranks till coming to Canada.

He had heard of the great country called Canada, and the large amounts of land available. Being eager to seek new adventures and to have some of this new land, he convinced my mother that Canada should be their new home.

On April 1, 1930, the family arrived in the Leslieville district to take up residence on the SW 22-40-5-W5. The move was made by team and wagon, stopping overnight to feed and rest the animals. We stayed with kind and friendly farmers along the way. It was an endurance test as the weather was frequently bad and stormy.

In 1933, the land formerly owned by Mr. DePerrier was purchased and became the family's home. We children took our schooling at the Golden Heights school, which was also the centre of all community activities. The Christmas concerts and annual picnics were the big events of the year.

The hungry thirties were a challenge for survival. Many a load of railroad ties were hewn by hand with the broadaxe by my father. They were then hauled to Rocky Mountain House by team and sleigh in severe winter weather, to get money to buy food and clothing.

Summers were spent by clearing more land, most of it being done by hand. As time went on more land was purchased, one of the quarters being the former Tommy Rolls farm, where my parents live, and have retired. Their present home is a comfortable modern house, built [illegible] the old house and all their belongings. Thus, they turned misfortune to advantage, as they expect to continue living on the farm. Like many old timers, they prefer the country life.

One of the big events in our lives was when father bought a threshing machine. With the help of his sons, many years of fall threshing was done for neighbors. It was always exciting to see the threshing crew move in, and get the grain in the bins, and see the big straw stacks in the fields.

There were four children in the family. Paul Hansinger, Jr. married Beverly Turner of Winnipeg. They live in Vancouver having a family of three children, Greg, Kim, and Pattie.

Peter Hansinger married Marjorie Feyes of Rocky Mountain House. They farm the original home place in the Leslieville district and have a family of two, Cindy and Darlene.

William Hansinger married Feye Moore of Ridgewood. They farm in the Rocky Mountain House area and have one son, Rick.

Catherine Hansinger married Langton Wells of Benalto, having two children, Bruce Wells and Judy Wells. I was widowed and remarried to Edward Bystrom, who is also deceased, and I now make my home in Red Deer.

HART FRED

Fred Hart and his wife, Sarah Ann, and three sons of Thomas Hart immigrated to Canada in 1906, and homesteaded in the Leslieville district the same year.

In 1911 and 1912 he worked as a cook for the crew on the A.C.R. bridge out of Red Deer. He later went to Fairmont Hot Springs and cooked for the C.P.R. returning to Leslieville in 1914.

He was a school trustee for many years at Prairie Rose and Lesllieville Schools. He belonged to the Alberta Wheat Pool for many years

In the early 1920's he helped McKinnon Brothers by providing a democrat or sleigh for a hearse.

In 1924 he built a "turkey fence" eight feet high of pickets and twisted wire. Part of this fence still stands

In 1932, he provided the straw and helped bale it for the first curling rink in Lesllieville. Curling took place in this rink for one year He was an ardent curler for many years

Mrs. Hart belonged to the Condor Women's Institute, driving the many miles with horse and buggy

Mr. and Mrs Hart left Lesllieville to live in Red Deer in 1942. They have three daughters Mrs. Norman L. Beno (May), Rocky Mountain House, Mrs. J. C. Prendergast (Amy), Red Deer and Mrs. Oswald Moore Nellie

HART, THOMAS — as told by Edgar Hart

Thomas Hart my father came from Somerset near Bury, Lancashire in England He lost his wife, my mother, at the age of about 28 or 29 when my youngest brother was born. Within a few months he gave up his good position as Assistant Superintendent of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway in Bury, Lancashire England and came to Canada to start a new life My older brother and my younger and I went to live with his brother Fred and his wife, who had no children at that time That was 1905. The following year they brought us out to Canada in the early spring Dad had ridden a horse from Wapella (Manitoba-Saskatchewan border) across the prairie and finally settled near what was later Lesllieville. He was able to get a quarter section for his brother Fred cornering our quarter

Our first house was a log shack without flooring 12' x 14' This later became half of our chicken house In the summer of 1906 my Uncle Fred and Dad built a house on his quarter which had an upstairs. In 1907 they built a house on Dad's place, then a log barn which turned out to be too small so another log barn was built attached but it had only a flat slab roof covered with straw

We started with a team of oxen with long horns with which we used to go to Red Deer for groceries twice a year a four day trip). The road was considered to be 46 miles at that time

Dad used to go out with a bridge gang as a cook and for a time he went coal mining along the Red Deer River

Having been a widower for several years, Tom Hart married again in 1913 and took the boys home to live with him. He married Cora Donovan of Delburne who was working in Red Deer at that time. From this marriage there were two children, George and Frances

Tom was a fire guardian along the Clearwater and Big Horn west of Rocky Mountain House. He was a game guardian, fish guardian, justice of the peace, official auditor for school district and municipalities. Our house was frequently used as a court house for preliminary trials of a serious nature and game infractions and the like. Dad passed away in 1934 due to ruptured appendix

We had some very cold winters in those days The kind that would take your breath away if you didn't have your mouth covered. In 1906 or 1908 we had a very wet year. In late spring it started raining and continued every day for more than 30 days This along with melting snow flooded the Horseguard Creek to our south and the Lobstick to our north. These creeks joined on our east so we were trapped. We ran short of food. My dad shot a deer with a shotgun after a lot of patient trying. This saved the day for us, but we all got scurvy After some weeks we were able to get 10 pounds of flour as the creeks went down and someone had got some supplies across the Medicine River after losing a couple of teams trying to swim across.

Now follows news of Tom Hart's family — by George Hart

Harold, the eldest son, spent most of his life on ranches before retiring to his home in

Cochrane. He served his country in World War I and was in France. Harold had one daughter Beatrice and one son, Harold. Harold passed away in 197?

Edgar also served in World War I and was also in France. After the war he had his own store in Calgary. He later sold it and worked in the Colonel Belcher hospital in Calgary from which he retired. Edgar had one son, Thomas Fred who is in his own insurance business in Calgary.

George went to school first at Lesliеville, then took ministerial training and attended the Northwest Bap ist Theological College. He married a classmate, Olive Tisdell, of Calgary. In 1942 George served in the forces overseas for three years and eight months. Upon returning from overseas he entered the ministry under the Christian Missionary Alliance and then transferred to the Baptist Union of Western Canada and under them he took further studies at McMaster University. Later he transferred to the United Church taking correspondence to further his arts courses from Queen's University and in his ministry with the United Church he took summer courses to gain another year of Theology.

At school George liked sports, especially basketball and running. He also enjoyed curling, softball and hockey. His wife Olive grows beautiful plants and is artistic and enjoys painting. George and Olive have three children, two boys and one girl, Douglas, David and Lois (Barnes) and six grandchildren, all living in Calgary.

Frances married Bert Lea, a farmer of Three Hills. They farmed there until Bert moved with his family into Calgary in the early 1950's. They had three children, two girls and one son, Joyce, Lois and Raymond. They have 10 grandchildren. Frances was widowed in 1966 and Bert was buried in Calgary.

HEIKKINEN MATT (Leslieville)

Matt Heikkinen, born January 27 1898 and his wife Ida, born March 20, 1900, in Sotkamo, Finland, were married January 25, 1921.

Matt left his wife Ida and two and one half year old son Tauno, to go exploring, not really knowing what was in store for him. He came to Canada from Sotkamo, by ship to the east coast and then by train across Canada to Leslieville. In May 1924 he arrived at Al Spears' farm (which is now Gus Sigles place) and worked for Spears that summer.

That same year in September, his wife Ida and son Tauno came out. They spent the first winter of 1924 and 1925 at the home of Alex Schroderus of Bingley, and Matt worked in lumber camps in the area.

In the spring of 1925 they moved to the coal mining town of Saunders and for about a year they worked for Louis DeMarchis' dairy farm which supplied milk for the town of Saunders. While there another son Alfred (Fred) was born in 1925.

In 1926 they moved back to the Bingley district where they purchased a farm which is now the Jack Shaw farm. They farmed with horses and in the early thirties bought their first car, an old Star.

A daughter Irene was born in 1927 and another son Roy in 1929.

They resided in the Bingley district until 1938 when they moved to the Leafland district to stay. There they built a new home in 1938. In 1944 another daughter Elsa was born. Their location was right on the road extending west from Lacombe (Highway 51) and here Matt opened up a country store and Esso Service Station in 1954 which was very handy for the neighbors around him, and for some it saved a long drive to Leslieville, when roads were not as good as they are now.

Matt Heikkinen was an ardent hunter — got his big game every fall, and also helped get some for his neighbors. The family enjoyed music and Matt played the button accordion. Matt Heikkinen was known for his custom threshing for many years all around the country.

Tauno Heikkinen was married to Thelma McMillan in 1945 and they farmed from 1945 to 1955 on the Eric Randall farm SW 25-40-5-W5. Then Tauno and his younger brother Roy bought Harry Lloyd's Red Head Service Station in Leslieville, and so they were located there for ten years, after which they went back to their farm and built a beautiful new home.

Tauno and Thelma had three girls and one boy. Viola, Sheila, Marie and Wayne.

Viola married Allan Rolfsen and they have two girls, Charlotte and Lori Ann. They live in Leslieville. Viola is a N.A. at the Eckville hospital.

Sheila married Robert Menzies. They have a girl and a boy, Shauna and Robert. They have a farm nearby where they make their home and Bob works in Rocky Mountain House as well.

Marie married Tom Judd and they have three boys, Michael, Bobby and Chad and reside in Langley, B.C. where Marie is a part time nurse.

Wayne is still at home and attending David Thompson High.

As well as operating the Service Station at [illegible] several years.

Tauno passed away tragically on the farm in 1972.

Alfred (Fred), Matt and Ida Heikkinen's second son married Vivian Sorvisto in 1948. Fred purchased SW-36-40-5-W5 and they farmed until 1957 when they took over the store and service station, which they had for 17 years until 1974.

Fred and Vivian had three boys, James, Jerry and Randy.

James (Jim) married Janie Helmer, and they reside west of Rocky Mountain House and have two boys, David and Donald. Jim works as an operator at the Amoco gas plant at Ricinus.

Jerry married Wava Lee Minks and have no children and seem to be the wandering kind, lived at White Court for awhile and are now in Atlin, B.C.

Randy is still at home and going to school.

Irene Heikkinen married Ralph Baker in 1947, they now reside in Winfield, and have three girls and three boys. Margaret, Janet, Betty Anne, Robert, Darrell and Wesley.

Margaret married Laverne Muyres and they have four children. Michael, Shane, Cody and Candace. They later divorced, and Margaret is now married to Gus Vaalstar and they live in the Buster Creek area north of Rocky Mountain House.

Janet married Raymond Becker and they have three girls, Nadine, Carla and Jo-Ann. they live south of Buck Lake and are in the process of building a new home.

Betty Ann married Arnold Engblom and they have two children, Shay Ann and Tyler Jason.

Robert and Darryl are not married and are employed in Red Deer.

Wesley being a few years younger is still at home and going to school. Irene and Ralph were in the dairy business for quite a few years.

Next in Matt Heikkinen's family comes Roy and he is the bachelor of the family.

Ella, the youngest married Curtiss Morton in 1974 and they have two boys, Ryan and Myles. they are living at Codette, Saskatchewan where they farm.

Matt and Ida Heikkinen went back to Finland in 1947 by ship for a visit. Matt Heikkinen was a well-known and highly respected man, and was greatly missed when he passed away in 1961.

Ida lived close by Fred and Vivian for 15 years. She loved to go berry picking when berries used to be plentiful and in no time at all she would have a pail full. She was known all over the country for the beautiful rugs she made on her homemade loom which was built by her brother Eric Korhonen of Eckville. She made hundreds of rugs from discarded clothing cut in strips for friends and neighbors, and they surely missed this service when she could no longer do it.

She moved to the Eckville Manor House in 1976.

HENDRY, CHARLES AND WILLIAM, TAYLOR, DAVID AND STANLEY, ROGER, [illegible]

Known to all as Charlie and Will, the Hendry brothers came west from Newfoundland to Red Deer in the spring of 1909. Their parents had come from Greenock, Scotland in the 1870's and farmed, fished and market gardened in Newfoundland. Charlie and Will got work at the Valley Lumber Company Mill in Red Deer. There they met Dave Taylor who had come from Campbellton, New Brunswick and also worked for the Valley Lumber Company northwest of Leslieville as a millwright.

Dave homesteaded in the Leslieville area in 1907 and so told Charlie and Will of available land near him to homestead. They travelled by team and wagon west from Red Deer and filed on the NW-4-40-4-W5 for Charlie and the NE-5-40-4-W5 for Will.

They continued to work in Red Deer but came out to Dave's homestead and worked from there on their own places to get some land cleared and a log house built on Charlie's land for their mother Isabella Hendry and her two daughters Jessie and Jean, who came from Newfoundland in May of 1911. Mrs. Hendry had been a widow since 1898. They had ten children some of whom were born in Scotland. Jessie was the eldest and Jean the youngest of the family.

During the summer of 1911 all the Hendrys lived with Dave Taylor and his wife on their homestead till their own house was livable. Jean went back to Red Deer and again stayed with Dave and Lizzie in their house which they used when his work was in Red Deer. Jean got a job cooking at the hospital. Margaret Godkin and Cora Hart, who were of the Leslieville area were boarding at Taylor's also. Margaret was going to high school and Cora was helping at the hospital.

Jessie Hendry stayed on the homestead and with her brothers raised some very fine horses. They also had a blacksmith shop and a sawmill. They were a repair depot for folks for miles around and logs were hauled home to build many homesteaders' buildings. The nails and windows

t took two days to make the trip

Jean Hendry went to Edmonton in the fall of 1911 and married John Edward (Ted) Ridges, on November 23. He had come west from Newfoundland with them that spring and was working in Edmonton at electrical wiring

He was born in Calcutta, India where his father was a coach builder and moved to Wolverhampton, England when he was a small boy. There he had grown up and taken a trade of electric wiring, so applied and got his first job on Belle Isle just off the Newfoundland coast. He met Jean Hendry at the Belle Isle Congregational Church where Jean and Jessie both sang in the choir. The Ridges were from a long line of Quakers which was reflected in his way of living. Ted and Jean lived in Edmonton until 1913 when they came back to Lesllieville and took an abandoned homestead, NE5-40-4-W5. It had first been filled on by Tom Hazlett and the log house which he had built on it still stands in fair shape. It was the first home for Ted and Jean. It had a dirt floor. After they got enough land cleared to prove up and own the homestead they cut logs and built a small frame house. As her brothers owned the sawmill across the road, they helped them

Jessie Hendry farmed with her brothers and mother till October 2, 1915 when she married Carl Bransell who also had a homestead located across the road from Dave Taylor, the NW32-40-4 W5. Carl too had come to Canada from Michigan, U.S.A. where his family were. He also worked at the Valley Lumber Company in Red Deer and Dave Taylor also told him of land to homestead. He got his homestead about 1908 and built a log house. Jessie and Carl lived in that house as long as they farmed. They sold in 1948. Their west quarter (Cattle Homestead) was sold to Daniel Taylor in 1946. Their homestead was sold to Allan McMeekin about 1950. Victor Smith now owns it

They had no family. Carl passed away in 1951 and Jessie in 1952. Both are buried in the Lesllieville Cemetery

In 1916 Charlie and Will decided to go back to Newfoundland so Mrs. Hendry went too and stayed with a daughter, Isabelle, there while they looked for work. They jobbed around for two years, lastly working in Askwith, Saskatchewan before returning to the homestead to do sawmill and blacksmith work again

In 1915 Dave Taylor had a brother Stanley with his wife Anna come from Oregon, where he had been engineer on a railroad, wanting a farm. They purchased land from Hopkins SW31-39-4 W5. It had also been Hopkins' homestead

Stanley and Anna lived with Dave and Lizzie for the first year. They brought furniture with them from Oregon and stored it on the old cattle farm across the road west of Carl Bransell, the NE31 39-4-W5. They built a small shack and started the shell of the original house which is still the main house today. Stanley had homesteaded in the Pine Lake area about 1906 and after all these years sold it after he started to farm at Lesllieville. For his price he got his first tractor, an old 22-36 Hart Parr, as a straight across trade of farm for tractor

Dave Taylor joined the services in 1916 and later sold his land to Tom Shaw and his son-in-law Phillip Smith. Neal Smith, a son of theirs still owns and farms the land

Mrs. Hendry passed away in January 1927 and is buried in the Lesllieville Cemetery

Charlie and Will had another sale in 1928 and moved to the Peace River country and got a half section of level land near Whitelaw. At last their dreams came true and they could farm properly, as they said Newfoundland was full of rocks and their land at Lesllieville was full of hills. Each time they came down to visit they would say "Those hills here are still growing!"

Will passed away in 1945 and Charlie in 1956. Both are buried in Berwyn Cemetery

Ted and Jean Ridges remained on the homestead. Four children were born but three passed away as infants. One daughter grew up and took schooling at Blueberry Valley School. In 1946 she married Daniel Taylor, son of Stanley and nephew of Dave Taylor

Ted and Jean have told of walking to church at Lesllieville on Sundays. Jean enjoyed singing and helped out at many school and church functions. Ted enjoyed working with books and held many executive positions on the Blueberry school board

Jean continued her love of gardening which she inherited from her father as he was a trained old country gardener and loved it. She gave much pleasure to her many friends with flowers for weddings, hospitals and funerals over the years. She grew and gave away many trees and plants for neighbors to grow and also many vegetables for needy people to eat. She is now a resident at the Valley Park Manor Nursing Home in Red Deer which is built almost on the location where she lived with Dave and Lizzie Taylor while she worked in the hospital in Red Deer

Their daughter Isabella and husband Daniel Taylor took over the homestead in 1963, cleared the land and now pasture it. The house they built in 1935 still stands and the trees Jean grew from seed are like a forest around her garden spot

Ted passed away in 1967 and is buried in the Lesllieville Cemetery

Stanley and Anna Taylor had two children Daniel who farms the original land and Kathleen who lives in Calgary (Mrs. Douglas McLaughlin). Stanley homesteaded and proved up with cattle the SW7-4-4-W5 and used this land for pasture. He bought the NW6-4-4 W5 from a Mr. Card and the NW31-40-4-W5 from another Hopkins

They took active parts in community affairs curling, Womens Christian Temperance Union and Alberta Wheat Pool. They retired to Calgary in 1946 when they sold to their son Daniel. They were active there also — gardening, carpentry and had boarders. Stanley passed away in 1963 and Anna in 1967. Both are buried in Queen Cemetery in Calgary.

Their daughter has two children. Doug and Letha. Their son has four children: Janette, Sandra, Stanley and David.

The original Dave Taylor when he returned from the services stayed in New Richmond Quebec. He lost his wife fairly soon after, but he lived till 1964. He and his wife are both buried there.

HILBERT, HERBERT WILLIAM AND MARY

In 1906 Bert Hilbert came to the Lesieville area. He homesteaded in 1909 on the NE-35-39-6 W5. He stayed on the homestead in the winter and returned to the prairies in the summer to break saddle horses and ride in roundups.

Bert worked on the C.N.R. grade east of Codner, driving a team of oxen in 1910. Others working with him were Pete Peterson, John Riach and Ted Frodeen. He built a log house on his homestead, shuddling the logs with his saddle horse.

In 1913 Bert met Mary Green who had come over from England in March of that year with her son Barnard, to join her other son, Alec, who was working near Calgary. Bert and Mary married in Calgary in August 1914, and moved to the homestead at Beaver Flat. Their son Ronald was born in October with Mrs. (Gafney) Wilson attending.

Several teachers boarded at their place over the years, including Elizabeth Meston, Enid and Hope McKee. Enid taught at Orus and Hope at Beaver Flat), Victoria McKenzie, Edith Moseley, Marie Lund and Betty Baldwin.

The Hilbert family purchased the SW 13-40-6 W5 from Alf Harvey in 1919 and moved up to "The Ridge". Here they were in the Bingley School District. Bert was chairman of the school board in the early '20s and Tom Ogden was the secretary.

In 1930 the NW-12-40-6 W5 was purchased from the Bennion Estate and is now owned by Ronald's son, Roy, who has built a home there.

Mary Hilbert passed away in February, 1938. Bert continued to live on the farm until the late 1950's, then moved into a house in Rocky Mountain House for a few years. After a heart attack, he moved into Westview Lodge. He spent almost a year in the Red Deer Auxiliary Hospital and died in November 1965.

HILBERT, RONALD AND MILDRED

Ronald Hubert married Mildred McColman from the Crimson Lake district in 1941. They lived on the farm for six years during which time they had a daughter and two sons. In 1947 Ronald began working on highway construction and over the next twenty years the family lived in many places in Alberta including Nordegg, Sylvan Lake, Alder Flats, Father Sangudo, Whitecourt, Cold Lake, Spedden, Killam, Westlock, Innisfail, and Saskatchewan River Crossing. The children attended school in most of these places, but sometimes they were too far from the school so started the term with correspondence lessons returning to Rocky Mountain House in November usually and attending school there for the balance of the term.

In 1960, after graduating from high school in Rocky Mountain House, Maxine left to begin training as a Medical Laboratory Technician at the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton. She graduated from there in 1962 and worked at the University Hospital for a year. Her next job was at the Charles Camsell Hospital and from there the Medical Sciences Building in Edmonton until 1974. Maxine married Joe Coombes in 1967 in Edmonton. They moved to an acreage near Balfour, B.C. three years ago and have since bought a house nearer Nelson where Maxine works at the hospital.

Robert Hilbert began work with the Alberta Forest Service soon after leaving school in 1964. He married Mavis Huhtala in 1967. Mavis was a stenographer at the Town Office in Rocky Mountain House for several years. In 1974 their son Kelly was born at Eckville Hospital. HOGBERG, AXEL, — by Mary Arnold

Axel Hogberg my dad, was born in Karlstadt Vermiland Sweden in 1893 He came to Canada about 1910 where he worked at various things among which were gold and coal mining in British Columbia His older brother Andrew lived near the coast and another brother Charlie lived in the Nelson area

About 1915 Dad came to Alberta and homesteaded the SW 9-40-5-W5. He also bought the NW 4-40-5-W5 from Albert Turton. He then worked in the Nordegg coal mine

In 1923 he married Cecil Elizabeth Rodgers daughter of Mr and Mrs. James Rodgers. They were married at her father's farm in the Beaver Flat district after which they farmed at Leslieville until Dad's death

In 1931 Dad suffered a stroke at home after fighting fire in the Bingley area on a very hot day. This left him in poor health and one hand partially paralyzed. Nevertheless he carried on farming and was a hard worker, harnessing, bridling and hooking up the horses. The snaps and buckles were very hard for him to do up so the family all helped. Mom also worked so very hard and did a lot of outdoor work — milked cows, fed pigs, stacked hay stooked grain, split wood, churned, printed and took butter to town for sale to buy groceries, wool for knitting sweaters and mitts and material to make clothes We always had a big garden which we all helped to weed

Dad had a threshing machine and in the fall he had a crew of men and threshed for the neighbors. He enjoyed going hunting with friends. He was very interested in church work and helped to build the Leslieville church opened about 1939 which later burned down

When we were young I remember us bundled up in the sleigh in winter, wagon or buggy in the summer going to neighbors for church services or people coming to our home. Several families took turns having services in their homes. Being a large family we really had and still have a lot of good times together We, like others, had very few toys. When very young on rainy days we spent a good many hours playing store, taking turns being store keeper and customers. When a few friends came over we had a ball team and played ball. We enjoyed picnics or just paddling in the creek that ran through the homestead quarter

Our family went to the Campbell School. We also enjoyed the Joseph Club held in the different homes. McCarthys, Lister Kayes, Skagens, and ours were some that attended and we were led by Rev and Mrs. Robert Young in the 30s

Dad passed away December 27 1947

JOHNSON, CARL

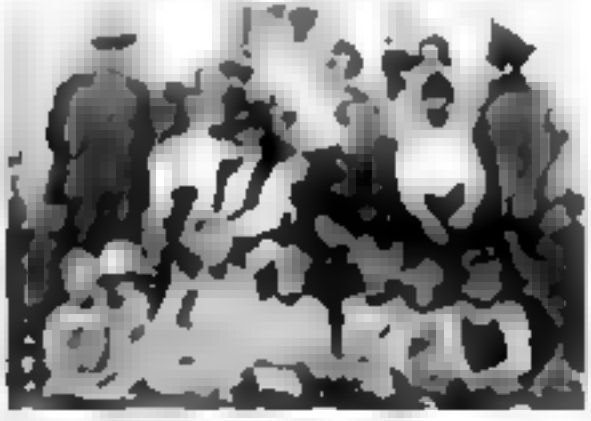
Carl Johnson was born in the Gilby district on November 28 1908. With their father and mother Johann and Annette, Carl has one brother, and three sisters grew up on the family farm, NE 14 40-4-5. His father was born in Sweden and his mother's birthplace was Norway. They were married in Norway in 1902 before coming to Canada.

Carl attended Medicine Valley School. During hard winters the school was closed from Christmas until March and for these years the school stayed open for the summer months. Some of these summers he remembers having to miss school to work on the home farm or for neighbors. They lived mainly on rabbits, Wood Lake fish, prairie chicken, bush partridge, blueberries and saskatoons. For a few years he spent most of his time working at home and around the neighborhood. His mother passed away in 1922 and his father passed away in 1926.



In the spring of 1928 Carl worked near Coronation doing spring work. That fall he drove a team of horses with a hay rack to help with threshing at Delia, Hanna and Three Hills. During the winter of 1928 and 29 he worked in the bush for Tex Small and Frank Davis hauling mining props. He then hauled lumber from mills at Far Away and Wolf Creek, to be used in building the Leedale Hall. He worked at many different jobs on farms west of Bentley and wherever employment was available, until 1934 when he bought his farm east of Gilby, NW 25-40-3-5. For eight years he rented his farm out and worked for Wm.

In the early 40s Carl began farming his own land and also built a saw-mill. He sawed lumber for neighbors as well as for himself. He remembers selling clear 2 x 6 spruce lumber 16 feet long for $50 per 1000. During the 40s and 50s he did much repair work on many kinds of machinery around the neighborhood. He also did at the age of ten from his father. He sharpened many plow shares and shod many horses. He was always a horse dealer, enjoying buying, selling or trading horses.

In 1962 Carl sold his farm to Charlie Walker. In 1963 he rented the A. V. Higgins acreage south of Lesliеville. Here he continued doing his blacksmith work and raised sheep. In 1968 he moved to Les Finkbeiner's farm north of Lesliеville, where he still resides. He keeps busy with chores and blacksmith work and enjoys fishing in his spare time.

Anna, Ernie's mother, was well known for her baking and knitting, and helped make many quilts for the needy, mostly working by hand.

Ernie married Gertie Devenny, a teacher at the Blueberry Valley school.

In the early days, Elmer Salmon and Ernie worked together at clearing land with horses.

One discouraging incident occurred when Ernie had a truck load of steers to go to market. The load was too much for the old Blueberry Creek bridge, and the truck broke through, dumping cattle all over the road and into the water. After getting them to the railroad in Lesliеville, he shipped them, only to get a bill for $6. The price received for the steers did not cover the

The Johnsons had one son, Donald.

Ernie sold the farm and moved to Red Deer. He bought a farm in the Penhold area, which he farmed for several years, though living in Red

The land leased was two miles west of Centerview and two miles east of the Terry property. It belonged to a Calgary man George Clark

The first two winters Loyd worked for Canadian Wells and Keno Construction companies

In April 1969 the Kuehnes bought the farm belonging to Lucille's parents Loyd continued to farm Clarke's land until 1972

LESLIE, JOHN

John and Jessie Leslie were born in Scotland They were married in Aberdeen on May 31, 1912 They sailed for Canada June 1, 1912, accompanying Jessie's family the Robert Smiths of Athambra. They settled in the Athambra district and took up a homestead there

John enlisted in the army in 1915 and served overseas in the First World War He returned home in 1919 bringing scarlet fever with him. He was dreadfully ill but anxious to get home so did not report his illness. Consequently, all the family contracted it. In 1930, they purchased the family farm two and a half miles west of Leslieville and spent their remaining years there. Their first home was a small log house with natural fertilizer chinking the logs. The children attended the old Campbell school and high school in Leslieville. The Leslies had five children

John who married the late Lily Von Hollen and resides in Onoka. They had one son Gerrie who is a Dr of Microbiology in Portland, Oregon.

Edward is an oil driller and married June Dingman. They have four children and live in Edmonton

One daughter Flora, a nurse, married Elmer Tomalty of Red Deer They live on their home farm there They had three children

William, a mechanic in Calgary married Carol Marcinek. They have four children

Leonard still lives on and operates the home farm. He married Jenny Kanuels of Condor They have five children

John was deceased March 1962 and Jessie passed away December 1973. Many humorous and hardship stories have been related of the early years. During the homestead days, John walked from Alhambra to Leslieville to work on the railroad or to the west country to work in the sawmills. Sections of the road were corduroyed with logs across the muskegs and sloughs. In the wet spells, he would walk the fence to get across the worst mire

John and a neighbor made many trips to Red Deer by team and wagon or sleigh to bring in supplies for themselves and the neighbors. They forded the rivers in many instances. The trip took about four days

Wheat was taken to a flour mill in Eckville to be ground into flour or cracked wheat If you were fortunate enough to have aged flour on hand it made good bread but the fresh flour made pretty heavy dough. The neighbors all helped one another and had very little source of revenue They truly lived off the land

LLOYD, HARRY NEWTON

Harry Newton Lloyd (born August 26, 1895 at Eldro Springs, Mass.) and Hattie Augusta Kautz (born January 3, 1901 at Toledo, Ohio) were united in marriage on December 15, 1928 at Chinook, Alberta They lived at Chinook, where Harry's son Paul and Hattie's son John took some of their schooling. Then they lived west of Rocky Mountain House for awhile before coming to Leslieville to farm in 1931 Their home was on the SE 12-40-5-W5. From here Paul and John continued their education at the Blueberry Valley school

Paul went in to the Marines later on and John farmed with his dad in the early years and worked at lumber mills and various jobs

Harry Lloyd was a painter and decorator by trade and supplemented his income doing this He thus became extremely well known and liked in the district — not only at Leslieville, as he painted in schools, hospitals, public buildings as well as in private homes

Around 1959 they bought the Red Head Service Station presently known as John's Parkland Oil and Gas They were in business on it August, 1955 when they sold their business to Tauno and Roy Heikkinen

Hattie and Harry retired to the house presently owned by Mr Bert Wiens, while they were waiting for the completion of their new home in 1967 Here they lived for many years, both being active members in the community Harry con tinued in the painting business as long as his health allowed

In June of 1965 they decided to sell their property due to ill health and move to the Westview Lodge in Rocky Mountain House. Harry had a stroke the day of their sale and passed away the following day, June 20, 1965 in the Rocky Mountain House hospital. Hattie bravely continued with their plans and moved alone to the Westview Lodge. She was fighting cancer, and spent a lot of time in hospital, but she resided in the Lodge, when not ill, until her passing on February 18, 1970.

Their son Paul of Las Vegas, is still in the Marines.

Their son John married Helen McMillan in Lacombe in 1943. They lived on a couple of farms in the area, farming part time and working out and they moved out to the coast for a couple of years. They bought the home farm in 1952 and they continued farming there until 1965, when they moved into Leslieville and rented out the farm. John then had been employed by Arnette and Burgess Pipeline Co. so now worked full time. He was killed in an industrial accident at Edmonton, July 29, 1971. John is survived by his wife Helen of Leslieville, a son Walter and daughter Darlene.

Walter is at Grande Prairie, where he is presently the accountant for the Treasury [illegible].

Darlene and her husband Don Jackson live in Leslieville and have three children. Randy and Dawna McGregor whose father Richard died tragically in an industrial accident on September 16, 1974 – and Rhonda Jackson.

Harry and Hattie Lloyd will always be remembered for their friendliness and good humour — who could forget Harry's hearty laugh? It was so infectious. On the farm they were wonderful neighbours and in business they were great to deal with. Hattie's courage and true Christian spirit through years of illness, left a tremendous example to all of us.

LOWEN, JACK AND MARY — LESLIEVILLE PIONEERS — by Ralph Lowen

Dad, Edgar Thomas Lowen, known to his friends as just E.T. or "Jack", was born in Devonshire, England in 1885, one of a family of five.

While a boy in his homeland, his dreams were to come to Canada to the "Wild West" to be a cowboy. This inspiration came from watching the many Buffalo Bill shows in England. In May of 1906 he landed in Canada alone. His first job was as a farm laborer in Ontario. In 1907 he arrived in Calgary and hired on with the Pat Burns Ranches as a "cowpoke".

Only the summers were spent with Burns — the winters took him north to trapping on his homestead filed near Edmonton. Later, he filed on his second homestead near Leslieville. In order to file his claim on this land, he took a train from Calgary to Red Deer. This took him by way of Snake Lake, known now as Sylvan Lake. It was then surrounded by swampy, marshy land. He had to hang on to the willows and shrubs to make his way around without sinking in the swamp. This same area is now a booming resort.

Jack and May Lowen in Calgary before leaving for homestead in Beaver Flat, 1914.

In Calgary in 1914, he married May Lyons Tarbuck, also from England, and left for the homestead near Leslieville. Their move was made by two boxcars on the railway. They bought a wagon, a team and equipment, three Shorthorn cows, a pig, some furniture and necessary housekeeping and homesteading supplies. While en route, the pig they had bought had piglets, the sow died, but they somehow saved the little pigs. When they arrived at the last stop near Rocky Mountain House, the train man opened the boxcar door and to his surprise saw Mother sitting rocking in her rocking chair which she had bought at the auction before leaving Calgary. From the end of the railway line they went the remainder by team and wagon caravan style. On approaching muskegs, the load was taken across piece by piece, reloaded and continued on to the next muskeg. The determination of our pioneers!

They arrived at the new home, a one room log house which Dad had built previously on a treeless, grassy slope. It was Mother's job to keep the logs chinked with mud. This simple little home was located in the Beaver Flat District No. 1914 on SE-12-40-6-W5. Another log building had to be built to serve as a barn. This was great hay country; the frosts came too late in the spring and too early in the fall for grain.

Their first son was born while they were on the homestead, but he died very young with whooping cough and pneumonia.

In 1917 they sold out and moved to the Horseshoe Canyon area, just west of Drumheller. Mother's sister and husband were already settled here. Dad bought some land here and went into farming and ranching. They raised five sons and three daughters after moving here.

Ken, Ralph, Tom, Jack, Chris, Barbara Gwen, and Betty.

Dad passed away in 1960 and Mother in 1971. Although their stay on the homestead was relatively short, it was a very memorable part of their lives. One neighbor I can remember Dad speaking of was the "Hilbert's" only a few miles away. About 10 years ago we drove to Leslieville and looked up the Hilbert place, now operated by a son. He took us to Dad's homestead and we have kept in touch ever since.

The turn of the Century for Western Canada saw an influx of adventurous people looking for a new way of life. Word spread across Canada that land was available for "homesteading" in Alberta, thus - in 1906 Frank Tyndal and James Malcolm, both employed as ploughmen in Prince Edward Island relayed the message home to [redacted]

William Fairweather Malcolm W F tired of being involved in the Coal Cartage business, made a sudden decision to leave for Canada with his fifth son, David. A story passed through the family relating how Dave, in a hurry to pack his belongings, arose early next morning and picked the newest pair of socks in the house, which belonged to his brother Andrew, hoping that he would not miss them.

W F had 13 children, eight sons and five daughters and two step-sons. His wife Catherine and an infant daughter Bell had passed away early 1900, eventually all but two sons made their way to Canada. John remained in Scotland and Alexander a stone mason had gone to New York city to work building the "skyscrapers".

When David and W F arrived in Edmonton they found it was still a settlement of tents. They went south to the Red Deer area to look for work and started at the Murdock MacDonald place and also worked for the Martins in the Ridgewood area.

W F went west looking for land and early 1905 he took section 31 in township 30 Range 5-5. This was to be the homesteads of three of his sons David, Leonard and James. W F took the N E quarter with the Horseguard Creek running through it. James arrived from the East and he and David went to work at Martins' Mill to the north and got enough material to build a house and barn on the bank of the creek near the beaver dams.

In 1909, Granny (Agnes, W F 's second wife) her son James Lindsay, together with Leonard, Anne and Donald left Glasgow on the Steamship Athenia." Agnes's older son had left before and settled in Montreal.

Granny and the four children stayed at Ridgewood with the MacDonalds until the house was ready to move into. When that day came the story has been related that someone miscalculated the number of stovepipe lengths needed to hook up the kitchen range to the chimney and as it was impossible to get more pipe right away the stove had to be put up on blocks and Granny, being a petite woman, had to stand on packing cases to do the cooking

The first Beaver Flat school was built on the portion of land donated from David's southwest quarter, it was built with logs cut from the northwest quarter which was Len's. Miss Lizzie Martin was the first teacher and she boarded with the Sr Malcolms. Some of the families attending that first school were the Ed Sims, Geo Turtons, Rodgers, Marshall s, Ralvio's, Antilla's and the Smith sisters. Mrs Smith and her two daughters came from England to live with her brother Fred Kirkman and they went back to England in the early 1920's. During the war years 1914-1918 Len, David and James served in the Canadian Army. Andrew served in the Navy Leonard was killed overseas in action and W F donated a bell in memory of his seventh son this bell was installed upon the roof of the new school built only a short distance from the log one which later burnt to the ground in the late 1920's

Most of the family had learned trades in Scotland David was a house painter and paper hanger from time to time he would do some painting etc for neighbors and did the school whenever it needed a new coat of paint, also when Mr G. Meston Sr opened a general store at Oras he painted a sign for it Andrew was a baker and when the survey crew one of whom was Geo. Pearkes) were surveying for the railway to Nordegg. Andrew was a cook for them, about 1912. After the war Andrew and his wife settled in Calgary where they had their own bakery, later in the 40's he worked for Picardy's Susan, the oldest daughter had a boarding house in Calgary, the other girls helped her She married Adam Gorrie a shoemaker and had a store near Andrew's bakery Catherine married Frank Roy and raised three sons, Bruce Leonard, Frank killed in war 1944). Susan and Andrew had no children. Em became Mrs Stephens during the war. her husband was killed overseas and she took up residence in Calgary too. she had three children Catherine, John and Jean. Bill was a saddler and he and his wife Mary and daughter Margaret also made their home in Calgary. James married in Scotland during the war years and finally took his family to farm near Hanna, they had two daughters Violet and Isabell and one son James. Ann the youngest daughter married a railway engineer Herbert Lundy. they had one son, Raymond, and had a farm at Coronation. Ray and his wife Adeline and some of their children live there

When David returned from overseas in 1919 he built a log house on the southeast quarter, In May 1920 Isabella Leonard came out from Scotland and they were married in Calgary They had met in 1915 when she was nursing the wife of James, (David was visiting on leave). Isabella had trained in Edinburgh and Glasgow and nursed in England and Scotland during the war years. Her training was of great value in the years to come on the homestead. She was called upon quite often to deliver the babies of the settlers during the 1920's and 30's. She would often stay 10 days or more with a family taking her own baby with her), and as well as assisting at the delivery she often had to cook meals and do washing and baking for the family while the mother recovered to cope on her own. There was little money and she often received seed grain or potatoes as payment The nearest hospital was at Red Deer, she worked with Dr Somerville from Eckville and later Dr Hill and Dr Greenaway from Rocky Mountain House When the Women s Institute started in the district she gave lectures on Home Nursing and First Aid

W F s youngest son Donald married Ethel Smith niece of Fred Kirkman in 1932. They lived on the Taylor place across the creek. Donald had a new house built his brother Alex came out from New York to lay the foundation and build the chimney. Donald raised purebred Shorthorn cattle and traveled around the country with a purebred horse, he also had a beautiful saddle horse called Spider They had three children Margaret, William and Mary In the late 50's they moved to Red Deer where Donald worked for the school board and in the late 60's they moved to British Columbia. Margaret married Jack Armstrong and they have two children, Patrick and Colleen William lives with Donald and Ethel close by

W F passed away in November 1935 and Agnes in 1940. David and Isabella moved to Red Deer in 1948 and both passed away there. Their only surviving child Aileen lives with her husband Thomas Haime in Victoria. They have three children. David, Arlene and Lorne

W F 's surviving children are Donald Catherine and Anne

Some of the hardships of those years were due to the lack of communications (no phones, radios and no mail delivery) and distances between neighbors would often be half a mile or more, so often one relied on sound and chimney smoke to be sure all was okay with them. The winters were long and bitterly cold (no central heating we often heated bricks in the oven or on top of the coal and wood stove and wrapped them in flannel to heat the beds Often Father or Mother would stay up or take turns keeping the fires stoked up all night There were real cold clear nights when one could hear the trees crackling and see the northern lights dancing across the sky and hear the great horned owl going "to-whit-to-whoo

Some of the tragedies were severe illness and death due to lack of medical help and the time lapse when word did get through to help There were moments of despair when a field of grain would be set back by a late frost or when nearly ready to harvest it would be battered by hail and wind. There were times when all a family's hopes and belongings would be destroyed by fire or a prize animal would die for lack of t -ined help and medicine

There were happy times too, such as wonder ful Christmas concerts with everyone wearing their very best and pretty clothes, eagerly look ing forward to Santa Claus arriving with a gift, a bag of candy and an orange for some it was the only candy or oranges they would get all year The tree would be big and reached to the ceiling the decora ions were mostly made by the teacher and the children and there were wax

ment and never a mishap

Fun times like chicken and bean suppers and dances were held in the school with the desks pushed back to the wall The whole family would come (no baby sitters) and the little ones would be put to sleep on the desk tops The orchestra often consisted of Mrs. Angus Martin at the piano, Johnny Gore on the drums, Frank Scott and Sam Dickson with violins

There were competitive times such as the an nual School Fair at Lesliеville with everyone do ing their finest sewing, baking, and school work such as writing compositions. There was garden produce grown from the free seeds we received in the spring There were sports days and school picnics (the ice cream was delicious)

There was the magic of our first battery radio only to be used on very special occasions such as Texaco News, the funeral of King George V, hockey games and concerts

That momentous occasion when we went to Edmonton by special train to see the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth (the first train ride for most of us

Sunday dinners, Christmases and New Years with friends, such as Mesions and Maconochies, were also special occasions

Harvest time with threshing crews to prepare meals for, the aroma of fresh baked bread, apple pies and roast beef and fresh garden vegetables was a special occasion. The welcome sight of ripe grain and fresh straw and a good yield meant bills would be paid and money enough to carry the family through another year

Some of the teachers who boarded at Dave Malcolm's home were Miss Wade about 1927-28 Miss MacDonald about 1930 and Mr W C McRoberts about 1935-36-37

MASON, WILLIAM J.

I, William Jennings Mason, was born in 1898 at Kokomo, Indiana. My parents were Thomas Jefferson Mason and Martha Mason. I was the oldest of their family of five boys. My brothers were Chester Noel, Alonzo and Tommy.

About 1900 we moved to the Woods county area in eastern Oklahoma. In 1901 we moved to the western part of Oklahoma when it was opened up for homesteading. We went by covered wagon, trailing some cattle and horses We staved there until 1912 then moved to Montana

A rhyme that comes to mind might explain why we left "Hurray for Oklahoma, the land of the free, the home of the grasshopper, the bed bug and flea

A neighbor asked my father Thomas, why he was going so far north. Didn't he know that water would freeze in wells 40 feet deep? Thomas answered, "Hell, I've seen it boil in wells that deep in Oklahoma, so which is worse?"

My father farmed in Montana for a year and a half before deciding to move to Alberta My father mother and my four brothers and I came by train as settlers, at a special rate. We crossed at Portal North Dakota and came to Rocky Mountain House in 1914. The first winter was spent southwest of Crimson Lake. Then we moved to the Leslieville district about 1915, to the NE 19-40-5, land known as the Pete Moser pl Later we moved to the John Young quarter NW 21-40-5 and stayed about five years

During the first War I went to Calgary to join the army but was not called up until the war was almost over, and then my call was cancelled

In 1919 Helen Albertine Seeland and I were married and we moved to where Jack Leslie now farms. (this land was known earlier as the Elliot place). In early 1921 I homesteaded the SE 31-40 5 and moved there shortly afterwards. We raised our family here and are continuing to live on this land having been here now for 56 years. We had seven children. Norman, Vera, Elmer, William Alfred, Andrew, and Mildred

My father brothers and I, played music for dances all around the district, as far east as Condor and west to Rocky Mountain House

I remember working at the McDougal mill for $6 a day The pay was to be taken out in lumber at the end of the winter Some of the men would play poker, betting 2 x 4's and 2 x 6's. The planed lumber was delivered to Rocky Mountain House for $7 a thousand feet

My father lived for a little while on the John [illegible] the SW 24-41-6-W5 around 1922. My father died in August 1924, and my mother passed away 25 years later in 1949

I have a very good orchard which I started about 1935. I raise Battleford, Heyer No. 12 Rescue and Osman apples and crabapples enough for myself and family, and the neighbors around the district. My yard and garden is a very beautiful spot in the spring when all the trees are in blossom. I've only lost one crop due to frost in all the years I've grown fruit in this spot in Alber

McCALLUM, MR AND MRS ROBERT DUNCAN — by Mattie Martin

Robert McCallum was born in Scotland, January 2, 1886 living there until after his father's death, his family moved to Yorkshire where he resided until coming to Canada about 1910. At that time he was a young student minister and was stationed in southern Alberta at Gletchen and Pincher Creek He was sent to Nordegg in 1912 and came to Leslieville in 1915 In his youth he had started to study medicine but ill health prevented him from following that profession but after a while in this west country his health improved. What he had learned at medical school was kept in his head and many a person was helped by him in times of sickness He preached for many years at Leslieville and surrounding district and conducted over 200 funerals during his time He was the postmaster for nearly 40 years and also filled the position as secretary for the municipality for a long time until ill health overtook him and he had to resign from his labors

On April 16, 1916 he was married to Bertha Alice Reilly in Red Deer and they settled down to their married life in a little shack but later built a large house in Leslieville which was used as the post office and their dwelling place until their retirement. They sold their property about 1962 and went to live at the Westview Lodge in Rocky Mountain House. After a stay in hospital in Rocky Mr. McCallum passed away January 27, 1964. Funeral services were held from the Presbyterian Church in Rocky Mountain House, with burial in the Leslieville Cemetery, January

Bertha was a helpmate to Bob in the Post Office all the years that they were employed there and took a great interest in the works of the community, especially the Women's Institute, of which she was a charter member, and the Royal Purple, of which she was a life member. She took great pleasure in curling and knitting and in her younger days was a very fine singer. She remained in Rocky Mountain House for two years after her husband's death, then moved to Red Deer, remaining there until her passing on October 7, 1977. A memorial service was held in Red Deer on the morning of October 12, with a special service by the Elks Lodge and the ladies Purple officiating in the afternoon Elks hall in Leslieville. Burial was in the Leslieville Cemetery.

To this couple was born a daughter, Betty Jean Isabel, who was raised at Leslieville until she married Mr. R. T. Gregson and went to live in Toronto. To them were born four daughters and one son, Marilyn, Sandra, Lynn, and the twins, Robert and Donna. They all live in or close to their parents at Port Bolster, near Lake Simcoe, Ontario. There are six grandchildren.

One could write pages about this person but time will not permit so I will stick to a few details. He was born and brought up in Ontario around London, I think, and whatever possessed him to pick on Leslieville as a homing place never was found out. Early in 1912 he arrived and from that time on he remained here. That particular winter was very cold after the New Year there being no snow until after Christmas and then it turned bitterly cold, something that Percy was not used to.

A man by the name of Oliver Wright (commonly called Ollie) lived down on the road east of Bailey's with his wife and family and his father. He was a man of tremendous proportions but like all fat people liked to be jolly and have fun and we did have many good laughs with him. Well, he took a contract to do some bushwork out near Nordegg that cold winter and hired a bunch of the young fellows around to go out and work for him. Among the lot were Percy McGill, Ted Ensign, Tom Butler, Leaman Patterson and Victor Reilly and maybe others, and Fatty Wright himself. On the way out they stopped for lunch and of course Ted Ensign offered to make the coffee. No water being handy, he scooped up some nice clean snow. Also in that year there were lots of rabbits which had been scampering around and you can imagine what happened to poor Ted when the boys drained their cups. The best part was hearing McGill tell it. It was not too long before he and some of the rest arrived back at Leslieville and there he stayed until his passing. For a long time he was a clerk in McKinnon's store. He had a butcher shop of his own and did well with that. In nearly all the plays we used to put on he had a leading part for he was a good actor. He also was a good poker player as many could testify and was wonderful with figures and had a remarkable memory. He belonged to the Roman Catholic Church, and although he seldom attended a service, was buried from the Catholic Church in Sylvan Lake, Father McDonald conducting. Percy had had pneumonia more than once, finally having a fatal attack.

McLEAN MR. ANDREW — (by Hattie Hastie,

Andrew McLean came from Quebec, near Lake Megantic, to Alberta about 1907, coming out to the Leslieville district and settling on the land about two miles east of there, directly east of the quarter that the Hopkins family lived on said land later being taken over by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Inglis. With Andrew were his mother, a sister, Barbara (who later became Mrs. George Thompson) and a young lad by the name of John Gore.

There was another sister, Lily, who was married to Mr. Norman McDonald and they lived east of that, not too far from Harry Arnold's place. Andy was not a strong man but was a good farmer, having brought with him horses, cattle and machinery. His mother was a very nice person and died a few years later. After Barbara was married he left and not too much was heard of him.

The Norman McDonald's lived for several years on the farm where their children were born, at least some of them. Ronald was the oldest, then Hector (who afterwards married Mona Ball) and Flora, and I think there was a younger girl. There were also two brothers of Norman's who had land farther north but they did not stay too long. Norman worked at Nordegg in the winter. They finally moved to Red Deer where they lived for several years. Mrs. McDonald (Lily) was a fine singer and also did recitations and readings at many gatherings. But I think the McDonalds are all gone now.

McLEOD, ALLAN — submitted by John McLeod

Allan McLeod was born in Prince Edward Island in 1854. His wife Emmine Keennon was born in Makaska County, Askalooca, Idaho, in 1864. They were married in 1890.

They came from Gaston, Oregon, to Alberta in 1906, settling northwest of Leslieville on the SE 34-39-5-5. The family consisted of eight sons, one daughter and Allan's father, Grandpa John McLeod, who was born in 1829, in Scotland. He died in 1936 and is buried in the Leslieville Cemetery. Allan's eldest daughter Minnie remained in Oregon. Allan and Emaline McLeod operated a stopping house for the stage coach, freighters, and for other settlers seeking land, and although there are none of these buildings there now, the row of spruce trees planted by Emaline McLeod still stands, stately and tall marking the spot where our Grandparents carved out a home and a new way of life in Alberta and these trees still hold a meaning for us and somehow these trees were spared when the house burned down a few years ago.

Grandpa and Grandma Allan McLeod's family were – Minnie stayed in Oregon), Dan, John, Albert, Henry, Kate, Frank, Sterling, Leto and Leslie. Of these, Dan, John, Albert and Henry each homesteaded a quarter of 28-30-5-5, Kate having married Alex Sim, homesteaded the SW 4-30-5-5, now owned by William Dirsten). They also bought the NE 7-40-4-5 and in 1943 sold it to Oliver Salmon.

[illegible]

Grandma and Grandpa Allan McLeod raised the family of James McLeod, (more is told of this in the James McLeod history).

There were no telephones, no radios, no television and no electricity! There was however lots of bucksawing of wood to keep the house warm, hauling of feed for the stock, lots of barn cleaning, lots of water carrying and lots of walking if you wished to go somewhere.

Before long someone brought in a wood sawing machine and people gathered at each other's places to exchange work and get the wood pile sawed. Sometimes the crew consisted of nearly as many men as the threshing crews.

Clearing the land by hand with an ax and using a team of horses to pull the stumps, usually used up the summer months, and sometimes was a real struggle before a field of any size was ob[illegible]

Roads were not always passable even to the horse-drawn vehicles. Most of them were winding trails that kept to the higher land regardless of where the road allowances were. Most creeks were without bridges so were just forded, if the water wasn't too deep. Recreation came in the form of sleighing and skating parties, house parties and dances in the local school houses. On one such occasion it was decided to have a masquerade ball, with all the costumes. Leto, being a bit of a clown thought it might be interesting to go as a young lady, and so in long dress, ringleted wig and make-up he arrived at the dance. One young man was badly smitten with the new girl, and lost no time showing his affections, and claiming every possible dance with "her" and finally as his supper partner at which time everyone unmasked to show their identity. The young man was quite shocked to find he had fallen so hard for Leto McLeod, whom he knew quite well.

Grandma and Grandpa McLeod returned to Oregon about 1918, taking Mary, Wallace, Angeline and Isobel with them. Margaret remained in Red Deer, where she was employed. Dan, Albert, Leto and Leslie also returned to Oregon then, as did Kate and Alex Sim, just a short time later.

Frank became a railroad steam engineer and for several years was employed with the C.N.R. on the train that travelled through Leslieville. He transferred to Jasper, where it was discovered he had colour blindness, and he worked in the roundhouse there until his retirement in 1959. He was married and he and his wife, Mildred, operated a rooming house in Jasper until her passing in 1968, and a short time later he sold out and moved to Edson. He married one of the Conn girls (whose parents came to live on the place where Mr. and Mrs. McNeil lived and where the Laurence Olivers now reside). MENZIES, THE ARCHIE L. HISTORY

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Menzies arrived at Sarnia, Ontario, from Scotland in 1905, where they resided for the next two years. Archie came west on a harvest excursion in the fall of 1906 to Innisfail. After the harvest he set out on foot to locate a brother Bob, who had earlier located somewhere near Oras. This was all virgin territory so as a result the ponds he could not wade through, he swam, to get there. Bob and Archie then went on a land scouting spree for a homestead. Archie filed on NW 10-40-5-W5, in September 1907. Bob filed on NE-9-40-5-W5. Archie then proceeded to erect a small log cabin before freeze-up.

The following spring he brought his wife and two young children out to the new home.

Many the disappointments and setbacks they encountered in ensuing years as frost, swamp fever in horses, and shortage of money plagued them as well as all early settlers. All supplies, food, building materials, and other necessities were freighted from Red Deer by oxen and later by horses, a journey of 40 odd miles, a journey through, around, and across muskeg, rivers, and bush trails. However, with typical "Scotch" determination they persisted and finally overcame their adversities. In the ensuing years five more children were born and raised.

In 1911 the first school was voluntarily built but only remained open during the fall and spring months for a couple of years until more settlers and pupils became available.

Archie spent part of the first few winters working at a sawmill fifteen miles from home.

Mary Ann. Archie's wife, stayed home and looked after the family and the few livestock during his absence. He received the princely sum of $15.00 per month for his labour, but it helped to keep the family fed and clothed

He built a new barn and house in 1916 on higher land in hopes of combating the dread of the early settlers — swamp fever which took many a homesteader's horses, leaving him with no farming power for a time

The C N R. railroad constructed a line through to Rocky Mountain House and Nordegg in 1912. Lesliеville then became the hamlet as known to-day Mail service which had previously been brought by stage once a week to the store was now transported by train The settlers really thought everything was going well now. Coal mines opened at Nordegg and settlers earned extra cash working on the railroad and also obtained a market for their surplus hay and oats as feed for the mine ponies

The first phone line of eight miles was constructed by volunteer labour about 1916 and used extensively up until the time the existing lines were taken over by A.G.T

The fruits of the land were wild berries as saskatoons, blueberries, strawberries, raspberries, gooseberries, also wild game like deer, rabbit, moose, prairie chicken and partridge also an abundance of wood for fuel

A log church was put up in Leslieville by interested volunteers in the early years in which Archie participated and the building was used for about twenty-five to thirty years afterwards

Extra money was earned by helping at this

People had various forms of entertainment such as dances, Christmas Tree programmes, also the famed chautauqua made its appearance in the early 1920's or before. Later on the School Fairs and summer picnics held a place in the social life of the community

It seemed like a miracle that seemed to stay healthy as doctors and modes of travel were far away in time of need Midwives were a blessing to many a newborn under those conditions. Home made remedies and cures all seemed to work wonders

During these early days mechanized power was unheard of so brushing, clearing, piling burning, were done by hand. Many laborious hours were spent in these tasks by Archie, Mary Ann and their family until enough land was put in production to meet the demands of a growing family To-day very little of the homestead is not broken

Archie and Mary Ann purchased their first a new 1926 Chevrolet. Prior to this buggies democrats and wagons, as well as horse-back were the modes of travel

Archie and Mary Ann have gone to their just reward. Archie passed away in 1948 at the age of 70. Mary Ann passed away in 1970 at the age of 98 years But the original homestead is still lived in and farmed by some of the sons. Following are the names of their sons and daughters. Archie Margaret Mary Robert, Agnes, Alexander and Donald. All but Margaret still live in the immediate district Margaret lives at Delburne

THE MESTON FAMILY

Mr and Mrs. Robert Meston and three daughters left Aberdeen, Scotland, May, 1911 Mary and Bessie, (Elizabeth) came out to Alberta by themselves, to be followed, a few weeks later, by their parents and the eldest sister. Ella The brothers, George and Bob were already here having taken up land in the Bingley district. George met the family at Red Deer Railway Station. The trip to George's homestead was made by wagon and team, and took two days. It wasn't what you would call a comfortable drive. but George was very proud of his team, "Nancy and Fred" – partly bronco. Looking back, my parents, who were not young, had a great deal of courage and were not afraid of work. Eventually, my father filed on a homestead and Joe Frost, a good neighbor built a comfortable home, on that land. A nearby neighbor of theirs was Billy Barnes. Other neighbors were Fred and Harry Richardson, and Mr and Mrs. J Nielson, who had one son of school age

It was an entirely new life for all. My mother was the happiest of women when she mastered the art of bread-making and she enjoyed looking after the young stock, and the chickens. Father kept a neat farm-yard and knew his cattle Ella had house work to keep her busy The other two sisters followed what they had studied in Aberdeen. Mary became a nurse in the General Hospital, Calgary, and Bessie took up teaching In those days, mail was eagerly looked forward to, and we'd take the afternoon off to visit Bingley P.O. J W Christian handled the mail. then followed by Mr and Mrs Tom Ogden. The Ogdens came from the Bingley district in Yorkshire, England Mrs. Elizabeth Ogden was an enthusiastic gardener and it was usual for her to carry off most of the gardening prizes at Rocky Mountain House Agricultural Fair Her flower garden was always attractive

Father died at home at the age of 74 years Dr Backus of Eckville had visited him from time to time. Mother came with Ella to stay in a neat little house on our farm at Alhambra When our mother had her last illness, Mary came out from Red Deer to nurse her She had reached the age of 84. Both parents are buried in Pine Grove Cemetery, Rocky Mountain House

Also he was a familiar sight at threshing time hauling bundles and grain with his fine team.

John and Teckla always had a large garden in which they grew all their needs from bushels and bushels of potatoes to the "hard-to-grow" vegetables such as corn, cucumbers and John was an ardent hunter and fisherman. Many times he went hunting with Sigurd Sande, Mart Latuva and Leif Skagen. He went on many fishing trips to Buck Lake and Sylvan Lake with old friends like Sam Sande and Alex Schroderus.

Teckla was always very busy caring for her large family, plus preserving, pickling, canning and salting the meat and fish that John got on his hunting and fishing trips.

One very nice change was when the family moved out of the old log house into their new home which John and his sons built with the help of Ed Stenback. This was in 1947.

As the years passed the sons and daughters married and moved away and had families of their own. But usually every Sunday there would be a houseful at John and Teckla's home where many cups of coffee were enjoyed and always there were treats for the grandchildren.

PEEVER, C. — by Jenny (Peever) Skoven)

In 1925, my dad Charles Peever came to the North Leslieville district from the dried-out area of Cavendish, west of Empress, Alberta. My mother had died in 1923, so I was the only one to accompany my dad.

I, Jenny, was born near Cobden, Ontario, on the family farm where my father was also born.

For the first year that we were in the Carlos district we lived in a house on the SE 12, until we located the land to buy, the former Ambury homestead, SW 10-41-5-W5.

For many years the school teachers of Washington Heights found a hearty welcome and many meals at our home. Some of the teachers that boarded with us were: Margaret Whiteside (now Mrs. Jim Nelson) Washington Heights was her first job in the teaching profession. Florence Everett, who later went to Africa as a missionary and married Leslie Crawford. Mrs. Lizzie Welton from Clive. Mr. Bover, Miss Klengersky, Lyla Fretwell, Isabelle Simpson (from Innisfail) Hattie Dobbs, Salme Raabis, Roy Wadson and Doug Sterling were others who stayed with us. The last teacher was Miss Adelle Hallman who married and is still teaching out in Victoria. My dad was a trustee for several years. He also built a cement foundation for the school in 1929. Mr. Paul Fizer and Ival Johnston helped with this project.

My dad passed away in December 1940. In 1941 I married a farmer who lived nearby, Earl Skoven. We were married in Rocky, and have continued to live on the farm here ever since.

PEPPER, EDWARD L.

Fate has decreed that I, Jimmie Pepper, be the one responsible for writing an account of the Pepper family, one of the early homesteaders in the Leslieville community. Obviously at this late date there are many gaps in my memory concerning the events that took place and the order in which they occurred. What follows is my best recollection of the lives of our family.

My mother and father met in San Blas, Argentina, South America. Both of them were employed by an English family who had a large ranch and other holdings in that area. My mother was a governess in the family and my father was one of the overseers.

Theresa and Edward Pepper on their wedding Day, 1900, in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

My mother and father were married in Buenos Aires, Argentina, circa 1900, and shortly after went into ranching on their own. Anita, Eileen and I were all born in San Blas but lived at the headquarters of our ranch at Punta Rouvia, about 20 miles from San Blas. A severe and extended drought forced the family to sell out in 1910 and seek a more favorable place in which to make a living.

We took off by steamship in the spring of 1910 I am sure of this date, as it was the year the ar of Halley's Comet was closest to the earth and we saw it on May 19 as we approached the Canary Islands off the coast of Africa. We sailed from Buenos Aires to Liverpool, England, which, by the way was my father's birthplace. From Liverpool we went to Ireland where Mother was born and raised. After a short visit Dad took off for Canada "the land of milk and honey" according to the pamphlets which the government -

I believe that somewhere on the long journey between Liverpool and Calgary my dad became friends with Fred Snell and they proceeded together to Leslieville Why they decided on Leslieville I do not know but, be that as it may they both filed on homesteads — dad on the NE 18-40-4-W5 and Fred Snell just across the road to

Mother, Anita, Eileen and yours truly remained in Ireland until sometime in 1911 It was during this period that Maureen was born Following this event "Nummie," Mother's Maureen and I took off for Leslieville, leaving Anita and Eileen in a convent school in Sligo where two of our aunts, Mother's sisters, were

We sailed from Liverpool in the steamship Corsica and landed in Montreal. We proceeded by train from there to Red Deer and then by stagecoach to Leslieville. I distinctly remember the trip from Red Deer It took us two days and it rained almost the entire distance Between the mud and the mosquitoes who could ever forget that trip?

Leslieville, as I remember it, consisted then of a store and a post office run by Mr Campbell and his son-in-law Archie McKinnon. There was also a small log church built by the Reillys (who were among the earliest homesteaders of the community) and by many other settlers in a cooperative effort. The old store was on the north side of the present railroad tracks. During that first summer I remember watching the railroad grading crew working on the flats east of the store. It must have been the following summer that the first train went through

After landing in Leslieville, one of the neighbors took us and our few belongings out to the old Ed Denham place which was located between the Percy Leathers' and Henry Collins homesteads. Since money was a very scarce item in those days, Dad soon left us there and went job hunting. "Nummie", as she was now known to practically everyone, Maureen and I lived as best we could, like all homesteaders of that time, on what few groceries we could afford plus some wild rabbits and an occasional partridge which I managed to get with my 22 rifle Game laws were almost nonexistent in those days, although we were all aware that Tom Hart who lived south of Leslieville, was a game warden and was not averse to doing his duty. We always knew when he was on the prowl though, and confined our meal to rabbits until the signal went up that the coast was clear at which time partridges could be on the menu again

Dad came home that first winter after working on the bridge crew that constructed the railroad bridge over the Athabasca River in the Yellowhead Pass near Jasper We then all moved down into Ed Dekker's old shack which was just across the line from where we built our first log house on the homestead. Dad and I worked on the house all winter in spite of cold snow and blizzards. When spring came we moved into the house such as it was. Dad again took off to work and I began clearing some land on the homestead. The next year dad acquired a team of horses which helped to clear the land and break up some sod. Sometime during the first summer we acquired a pony which I was able to ride the five miles to Leslieville for the mail and groceries and to haul Maureen around when we went places

We spent the years of 1912 and 1913 on the homestead. Talk about the cold! No words could ever describe what it was like those two years Only the old-timers would believe me anyway Our nearest neighbors who lived there all the year around were the Leathers and the Delaneys. The Snells, the Dekkers Harry Longstaff and some others whose names I cannot recall lived on their homesteads during the summer months and went to work in various parts of the country during the winters

In the summer of 1914 just before war broke out Anita and Eileen joined us on the homestead bringing the whole Pepper family together for the first time. It was about this time that Dad and Nummie became active in helping to set up a school district After much legwork carrying around the petitions and many meetings, the Blueberry Valley School District was finally formed It was named for the creek of that name but who named the creek I do not know The school first opened in 1915, I believe Nummie served as secretary-treasurer of the school district for many years, a job she thoroughly enjoyed

The first teacher was a kindly old gentleman who had one peg leg — hence the nickname Peg Leg McDonald was soon adopted and used everywhere except within his hearing. Other teachers we had were Mrs. Ludwig, Mr Ludwig and Violet Godkin. Some of the first students were Dooney and Verna Lampi, Timy, Koski and Chellis Carpenter, Milton Birsten Sylvia Orchard, Ingrid and Martin Delaney and the four of us. While it was a simple country school, as I look back on it I feel that it offered a remarkable education for the times

In our own family we all liked books although we had very few of them. Nummie was constantly reciting poetry so we learned many exciting and interesting poems. Even now I can remember many of them but not in their entire

In spite of the hard times, the lack of decent transportation and the awful roads, we all managed to get around and maintain contact with each other within the community. Picnics, dances, box socials, berry-picking safaris, etc were all part of the community life of those days. Nobody had any money to spare but we all managed to have fun without it.

Dances were the most popular. Ludwig Huseby from up Rimbey way played his fiddle for most of them. On occasion George Thompson would supply the fiddling and his brother Charlie chorded on an old organ belonging to the school. These dances often lasted until dawn.

Following World War I baseball became quite the pastime. George Cummerford and Percy McGill were considered the stars of the game. The first game I remember seeing was pitched by Harry Cummerford.

Speaking of the Cummerfords, our earliest medical needs were taken care of by a veterinarian, Doc Cummerford as he was known by everyone. Between administering to those with severe frostbites, colds, whooping cough, measles, or other ailments and taking care of a severe outbreak of swamp fever among horses, he had little time left to run his farm.

In 1915 a young student of medicine and theology from Scotland by the name of Bob McCallum arrived in Lesliеville. For many years — in fact until Dr. Backus came to Eckville — our beloved Bob took care of all our medical and spiritual needs. Since he was an avid reader as well as a homespun philosopher he was also the intellectual leader of our community. I count him among the top scholars I have known.

In addition to these two men there were numerous characters in the Lesliеville community who contributed much to the enrichment of our lives, each in his own way. Chief among these were George Cummerford, who was not only the world's authority on baseball but on any other subject you might wish to discuss, and Percy McGill, a great mimic. His favorite targets were the older ladies in the community who had lost their teeth or those who were attending a W.C.T.U. meeting.

Sam Gormley, the "wild Irishman," was another character. He loved to recite poetry and would do so at the drop of the hat, his favorite poem being "The Battle of Killiecrankie."

Johnny Gore with his love-life problems, Mac Tavish with his amusing anecdotes and sayings and little Al Spears with his tremendous voice with which he could harangue the entire Lesliеville population without benefit of any sound system all added spice to life in Lesliеville. Three younger generation girls, Margaret McKinnon, Eileen and Maureen, were not far behind the above characters in dramatizing the humorous personalities in the community. There was no dearth of mimics in

About 1920 we bought Harold Snell's old place three and a half miles north of Lesliеville. We built a log house on it, moved in and the job of clearing land and breaking up sod started all over again.

Shortly after this we bought an old 1914 Model T Ford. Between working on the engine which burned two quarts of oil with every gallon of gas, adjusting the clutch and brake bands, replacing the differential which was forever stripping gears, and patching blowouts I spent more time working on it than I did riding in it. No words can express the grief that went with all this. Maureen did a good job of driving it except on occasion when she had trouble stopping it to open a gate. The result was simple. She just took the gate right along with her.

Shortly after this last move of ours a new combined grade and high school was built in Lesliеville. Eileen and Maureen finished their schooling there. One of the first teachers in the new school was Ray Salt. That added much spice to the community.

Now for a final brief account of what happened to the members of the Pepper family thereafter. Dad worked on a bridge crew on the CNR for many years, returning to the farm in 1928. He passed away in 1931 and is buried in the Lesliеville Cemetery.

Nummie and Maureen continued to live on the farm for a number of years, after which they moved into a small house just east of the Community Hall in Lesliеville. Nummie spent the last years of her life in a rest home. She died in 1956 and is buried in the Lesliеville Cemetery beside my dad.

Anita stayed with us on the homestead until 1917 or 1918. She then went to New York City where she received her R.N. diploma from one of the city hospitals. She continued her nursing career for several years before marrying Arthur Ross who was employed in the head office of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. They had two children, Jimmie and Dick. The latter is deceased. Anita is now widowed and lives near Clearwater, Florida.

Her son Jimmie received his B.Sc. degree in Chemical Engineering from the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, his M.Sc. degree from Montana State University, and his Ph.D. from Northwestern University. He is married to the former Lucille Viet of New York City and they have seven children. Presently they are living in Naperville, a suburb of Chicago, where he is employed by a large chemical company.

After completing high school, Eileen joined Anita in New York City and received her R.N. diploma from the same hospital as did Anita. She too continued her career for several years before she married Gus Runge, an Engineer graduate of the University of Alberta. They lived in several mining communities in Ontario before

Gus accepted a teaching assignment at a college in Kitchener Ontario. After he passed away in the early 1960's Eileen accepted a position as supervisor of nurses in a Kitchener hospital. She retired from that position about three years ago and has been spending her time between Florida and Kitchener. The Runges had two sons, Ted and Lorne, both of whom live in the United States.

Ted received his B.C. degree from McGill University and his M.B.A. from Toronto University. He married the former Eleanor O'Mara of St. Catherine's, Ontario. They live in Rochester New York with their three children. Ted is employed by Xerox Corporation.

Lorne received his B.Sc. and M.D. degrees from McGill University. He is married to the former Ellen Fitzpatrick of Boston. They live in Syracuse, New York, with their four children where Lorne is assistant professor at Upstate Medical College.

Maureen worked part of the time for Bob McCallum in the Leslieville Post Office, a job she held for several years, and she was the last of the three Pepper girls to leave Leslieville. Maureen spent much of the World War II years working in Prince Rupert, B.C. Then she joined the Department of External Affairs of the Canadian Government. In the years following she was posted in such places as The Hague, Holland, Beirut, Lebanon, Moscow, U.S.S.R. and Pretoria, South Africa. She made many friends while in the Foreign Service and travelled extensively. She has now retired and is living with a widow friend in South Afri

Now for myself. After graduating from South Calgary High School, I attended the University of Alberta, receiving my B.Sc. degree in 1931. The next year I attended Montana State University, receiving my M.Sc. degree from there. Upon graduation I joined the faculty of Zoology and Entomology Department. In the next few years by taking occasional leave to attend the University of Minnesota, I completed work for my doctorate degree and was granted my Ph.D. degree in 1942. In 1947 I was appointed head of the Department of Zoology and Entomology at Montana State University in Bozeman and State Entomologist.

My wife, the former Ruth Staples whom I married in 1934, and I have a son Jimmie and a daughter Jill.

Since I retired in 1973, Ruth and I continue to make our home here in Bozeman.

Jimmie received his B.Sc. degree in Architecture from Montana State University and his Master's degree in Environmental Science from the University of California at Berkeley. He now lives in Santa Cruz, California, where he is associate professor at the University.

Jill received her B.Sc. from Montana State University. She is married to Major Philip W. Nuber of Bozeman. They have two children and are now stationed in Tucson Arizona, where he is a pilot in the U.S. Air Force.

In April, 1947 we and our family of three moved from the farming community of Hemaruka, Alberta, to the former A. D. Richardson farm which was situated directly east of the hamlet of Leslieville.

That fall our eldest daughter, Elaine, started school in the hamlet. At that time the twins, Maxine and Mervyn were two and one-half years old. The following year, 1948, Beverley was born. Dale, Wayne and Brian were later additions to our family.

Presently Elaine Rudyk and family live in Edmonton where she is employed in a bank. Maxine McColman is a school secretary in Spruce Grove, while her twin brother Mervyn has a trucking business in Rocky Mountain House. Beverley is now in London, England after having spent five and one-half years in Australia, one-half year in New Zealand and two years in Johannesburg, South Africa. Dale is engaged in the construction business at Medicine Hat, while Wayne is doing apprenticeship training in the auto body field. Brian now 16 is in grade eleven at David Thompson High School.

REID FAMILY

In 1906 the Reid brothers came to the Golden Heights area. Two sisters and their mother arrived in March 1907.

GEORGE P. REID homesteaded SW 22-40-5 W5. He later lived at Joffre.

M. L. REID, Amus, homesteaded NW 23-40-5 W5 after it was cancelled by Tinkham, also homesteaded the John McLeod quarter. Amus later lived at Edmonton.

MRS. ANN REID — mother of the Reid boys and widowed, was the first woman to file on land in the Leslieville district in 1907. She proved up in 1911, but owing to ill health had to leave in 1912 for a lower altitude. Mrs. Reid's home was a favorite stopping place for the early settlers and half way house to the lumber camps. She loved Leslieville and up to her death never lost interest in her "farm".

Her two daughters were, Edith and Annie, Edith went to live in Scotland. Annie married Fred Kirsch, who homesteaded nearby and eventually retired to Red Deer. Annie's son, Bill, taught school at Leaflard, Golden Heights and Rocky Mountain House.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN REILLY FAMILY — by Mattie L. Martin

It was in the spring of 1903 that Mr Reilly was approached about coming to Alberta, which, at that time was known as the North West [illegible]

After giving the matter much thought it was decided to come to the Indian Industrial school at Red Deer where a position as carpenter instructor was waiting for him. So, on August 27, 1903 the parents with six of their children boarded the train at Toronto for the trip west

It was not much pleasure sitting on those hard, wooden seats for nearly five days but quite an experience for the younger ones who had never been on a train

It had rained most of the summer in the west and another experience was to climb on to a democrat drawn by a team of big horses through mud up to their knees over the three miles from the town of Red Deer to the school. However, we arrived safely and settled down there for two years. By this time we were getting used to the climate and the ways of the people of this country.

Then a notion to go farming was formed as Mr. Reilly and his son Leslie started out to look for suitable land. After driving east in the Content, Buffalo Lake and Red Willow country they did not find anything that suited them so they headed west of Red Deer where they found something more to their liking which was in the township 39, west of the 5th meridian. At that time only Mr. Johnny Campbell lived west till you came to the Clearwater where two bachelors by the name of Fletcher were living. In March 1905 our two men went out and built a little shack on the place. Going back to Red Deer in a few days they had to walk nearly all the way as the snow had nearly all gone and it was all the horses could do to pull the empty cutter. In the meantime, horses and wagon and cows, etc. had been purchased so on March 11, the family and some of their effects were loaded into the wagon and started out for their new home. We arrived later that day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Thompson where we stayed for the night, continuing on down one mile farther in the morning to our new home. We didn't think much of it at that time, but as time went on we were happy in our work, clearing the land, milking the cows, hauling wood, etc., we learned to love the farm.

May I digress here for a moment to pay tribute to those good neighbours the Thompsons and George Baileys, who were the only neighbours we had for over a year and who were always good friends. We had nice times together.

In 1906, we squatted on the land for one year. The land west of us was thrown open for homesteading and soon there were lots of neighbours, mostly bachelors, but soon several families came too and the country was full of people. There were no schools so the younger ones had to be taught at home for two years. In 1906 Mr. Reilly got the contract to build the first school at Old Eckville, then in 1907 to build the Prairie Rose school to which our young folks went. The first teacher was Mr. Fred Dobson, a nephew of Mrs. John McNeil, the next was a young lady from Ontario; Miss Dora Forsyth then Miss Annie Patterson who later became Mrs. Frank Holt, who is still living in Red Deer after teaching there for many years. At this time she is living at Valley Park Manor at the age of nine-two years.

In 1906 Mr. Edmond Bureau came and built a big house — part of which was used as a store and Post Office, the mail being hauled from Eckville by Mr. August Koski. A suitable name had to be found for the post office and several names were suggested, but it was Mr. Bureau who finally settled this. He wanted a name with a "ville" in it so sent in the name Leslieville and it was then accepted by the government.

For a few years church services were held in Reilly's house and people from near and far came to the services that were conducted by students from different denominations. The first one was R. E. Harkness, a Baptist who rode all the way from Burnt Lake on horseback followed by Donald Kennedy, then Anglican, Methodist, Presbyterian and even the Priest, each taking their turn until in 1908 the log church was built on the corner of Mr. Bureau's land which he gave as a site for it. Mrs. John Reilly was the Superintendent of the Sunday School for over twenty years and always a great worker in the church. Mrs. Reilly was also always interested in the work of the church and was also a life member of the W.C.T.U.

John Reilly was born at Morin Plain (now called Morin Heights) about sixty miles north of Montreal, April 27, 1857 — and passed away December 26, 1928 at Leslieville.

Martha Jane (Cameron) Reilly was born December 2, 1857 and passed away May 14, 1926. They are both buried in the Leslieville Cemetery which is on the corner of their land.

Their family were all born in Toronto, Ontario, where they lived when they were first married.

John Archibald Clark, born September 10, 1881, passed away in 1954 at Victoria, British Columbia.

Leslie Howard, born December 27, 1886 passed away at Edmonton, on July 12, 1965.

Martha Lillian (Mattie) born on June 13, 1891 and still resides in Red Deer, Alberta.

Mabel Adelaide, born May 3, 1891, passed away May 10, 1940.

Bertha Alice, born April 9, 1895, passed away October 7, 1977

Victor Leonard, born May 24, 1897 residing at Kelowna, B.C

Gertrude Elizabeth, born July 25, 1899 residing at Penticton, B.C

Clark became a Methodist minister preaching in Montreal and later in Ottawa where he and his wife lived for many years. They had one son who was medical doctor, he died very suddenly a few years ago in Victoria, B.C

Leslie Howard married Miss Irene Hardisty in Edmonton. They had one son and one daughter

Mattie was married to Angus Martin they were the parents of eight children — seven are [illegible]

Mabel was married to Robert Atkins and had no family

Bertha was married to Robert McCallum and had one daughter

Victor was married to Myrtle Weaver in Jasper and they have two sons

Gertie is married to Robert Shaw, residing now at Penticton, B.C no children

Much more could be said about this family their work, their talents, their responsibilities through the years. Even though in our later years we all went our separate ways, we remember with pleasure and kindness the days we spent on the farm with our parents at Lesueville, Alberta

RAY AND OLIVE RICHARDSON — by Olive [illegible]

Ray Richardson lived in the Lesueville area then, in 1940, he brought his wife Olive, and his family of nine children to live on the former Panrucker quarter NE 7-42-5-W5. Here we raised black Angus cattle for three years before renting the Arthur Robb quarter and moving there where we lived for two more years

Ray was always interested in horses, cattle and rodeos. He had a palomino pony and the children had two part shetlands, which they rode to the Aurora school. We always had an assortment of other ponies for riding, too. Ray accompanied his friend, Ray McBride on a cattle drive from this area to Cochrane in 1944. He was active in organizing and working at the local rodeos here

Between 1934 and 1944 we had a family of 11 children. Henry, Hilda, Mark, Pearl, Bill, Laura, Evelyn, Vera, Percy, Marie and Merle. Henry joined the army in 1940 or 1941. He now lives with his family in Vancouver. Laura married Grant Paynter and lives in Vancouver [illegible]

Hilda married Paul Beringer and lives in Kamloops. Mark is single, and Marie is married, and both of them make their homes in Kamloops. [illegible]

Vera is married and lives in Toronto. Percy and Merle both live in Ottawa

Pearl and Bill both died in separate car accidents. Both were married and had families. Evie, also married, passed away in Edmonton. We have 23 grandchildren and several great grandchildren.

In 1945 we had a farm sale at Carlos, and we moved our family to Falkland, B.C., where Ray continued working on ranches until he retired. We then came to live in Kamloops, B.C.

On September 19, 1972 we celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary. Ray passed away June 5, 1974. I am continuing to live in Kamloops.

THE WILLIAM AND LAURA RICHARDSON FAMILY — by Vivian Kohl

William Wallace Richardson came to Leslieville in 1915, being transferred from Jotfre. He was a pumpman for the C.N.R. Archie, the youngest son, then 13 years old, came with him. They bought S½ 25-39-5-W5, this being raw land which they had to clear and break.

Mrs. Richardson and the rest of the family came in 1918. They lived in the village of Leslieville until 1926, at which time they moved to the farm. This was their home until Mrs. Richardson passed away in 1932 and Mr. Richardson in 1940. There were eight children in their family.

Wallace was the oldest child. He worked on a survey crew in 1900 in the Eckville area. He later was married, and he and his wife, Ida, left Canada and went to Washington in the U.S.A. in 1922. They had no children, and both have since passed away.

Archie married Mabel Oja in 1928. They lived on the original homestead until 1946, when Archie sold the homestead and bought the Godkin homestead S½ 1-40-5-W5, which he had been farming for two years. In 1948 Archie sold his land to his son-in-law William Kuhl, and built the hotel in Leslieville. The hotel was opened in 1949 and he and Mabel owned and operated it until 1962 when he sold it to Shirley James, from Ontario.

Archie then bought the Dr. Patrick Cummerford homestead where Archie and Mabel retired and still live.

Archie and Mabel had three children, two of whom were born on the farm — Vivian in 1928 and Roy in 1934. Joy was born at the home of a mid-wife, Mrs. Henderson, in the area in 1935.

All three children received their education at the Leslieville school until they reached grade ten. Vivian then went to Calgary for grades 11 and 12. She also worked for T. Eaton's of Canada there for a time. She returned in May 1947 to the farm and married William Kuhl of Hespero on December 1 of that year. They resided with William's mother, Mrs. Caroline Kuhl, for two years before moving to their farm at Leslieville, where they still live. Vivian's school teacher was Miss Cecily Baker who began teaching the year Vivian began in grade one and left teaching as Mrs. Chandler, the year that Vivian went from grade six to seven. This required a change of rooms in the school. Mr. William Kirch was a teacher for two years and the rest of her time in Leslieville she was taught by Mr. Edgar Nelson, whose wife was teaching in the junior room.

William and Vivian have four children. Marlene Malcolm, of Markerville, was born in Eckville in October, 1948. Myrna Ross was born in Eckville in September 1950, and now lives in Whitecourt, Alberta.

They resided in several places, but finally bought an acreage on the original Richardson homestead. Their two children are Archie, born in 1961 and Paula, born in 1963. They are both in school at David Thompson High School.

He and Raye hauled ties at Nordegg on the ice road until 1928, when trucks moved in. They hauled with men from Eckville, Sylvan Lake, Benalto, Lacombe and many more places. Archie and Raye grew up breaking range broncs for friends and neighbors Archie also ran a custom threshing crew until the year 1946. He is now 74 years old, and is at present breaking a saddle pony for himself. He used to raise purebred Aberdeen-Angus cattle until 1946, but is now raising Murrey-Grey cattle

RODGERS, JAMES R. - by Harry Rodgers
Farewell to Derbyshire

James R Rodgers ventured to Canada through the influence of a letter from his nephew William Rodgers, who had homesteaded on NW ¼ 35-39-6-W5, advising his uncle Jim to come to Canada and take a homestead on SE ¼ 35-39-6-W5

So Jim left Derbyshire, England, in the spring

He landed at Halifax, Nova Scotia and travelled by train to Penhold, Alberta, where he arrived with only $17 He did farm work in that district as well as build his shack on the homestead. In the spring of 1912 he was joined by his wife, Louisa Jane and two daughters, Cecilia age nine and May, one and one half years. They made their home on the homestead one part of the year and went with him to Penhold the other part of the year where he worked. The next few years they acquired some livestock which Mrs Rodgers and family took care of while Jim worked out in the winter in both Cap Card's Sawmill and Daniel McGrandle's Sawmill Later he worked as a teamster in the winter for several years at the Brazeau Collieries now called Nordegg. He walked from his homestead to Penhold numerous times

Then in 1914 a son, Harry, and in 1916 a daughter Ida, were additions to the family

They recall making numerous trips between the homestead and Penhold with team and wagon, fording the Medicine and Horseguard Rivers and going as far as Evarts, for seed grain. As the years went by and the livestock increased he cleared the land with axe and broke it with horses. For years there were not any markets in the country If you had any hogs or beef you dressed them and sold them to cafes and hotels. The feed was sold to people who had a cow and a team of horses in Rocky Mountain House. This took place all through the 1920's. Son Harry recalls hauling with two outfits at temperatures of fifty below zero

Mr Rodgers purchased most of his machinery from Stewart Brothers of Penhold and in 1924 he purchased a new Deering Binder mower at the age of nine. In one case he hit a stump and the team broke the eveners and neck yoke and he went at least thirty feet before he got the horses stopped. Then two years later he took to running the binder and has never missed a year of haying since

The family all attended the Beaver Flat School, which had been built in 1909 of hewed logs later a new school was built in 1925. We often speak of the furnace being capable of freezing out rats. The cold air was vented outside maybe to warm up Alberta. The family walked to school in the early days and later rode horseback. The district had hundreds of sharp tailed grouse

In 1923 Cecil was united in marriage to Axel Hogberg who farmed in the Leslieville district They made their home there until his passing

In 1924 Mr Rodgers quit working out and devoted his full time to the farm, which included milking cows and raising hogs We used to meet the train at Codner to ship the cream to the Alix creamery Harry recalls, around 1925, the Leslieville School Fair to which he took a calf and won first prize which was $3

In 1928 they replaced the old homestead shack with a new home He also purchased a quarter of and NE 27 39-6-W5 from Stanley Wilson who was well known as secretary of the Beaver Flat School for many years. He purchased his first car "The Biskow", but there were no roads to run it on. In 1929 he had the Mason boys namely Chet and Noel, clear and break thirty-five acres That year was very dry with poor hay and grain crops and not enough snow to sleigh all winter

Then came the thirties and the Rodgers' livestock was increasing So they purchased NE 35-39-6-W5 from the Soldiers' Settlement Board for son Harry, this quarter being Bert Hilbert's homestead. In those days if you proved up your first homestead before 1925 you were entitled to a second homestead so he took the opportunity and filed on the NE 26-39-6-W5

Harry recalls breaking up on NE 35-39-6-W5 sixty acres with four horses and sulky breaking plow in 1930. In the winter they cut logs and hauled them to a sawmill to have them sawed into lumber for use on the farm We also cut and sold mine props to bring in a few dollars. Mrs Rodgers filed on a homestead SE 3-40-6-W5 in 931

In the spring of 1932 at an auction sale of John Kemila's at Eckville, Alberta they bought a team of Belgian mares for $50 and got five per cent discount for paying cash. In 1935 they bought a Model A Ford, and in 1936 purchased he first tractor and machinery which he used to break up land. This increased the feed supply

In 1935, daughter May decided to try her hand a working out She worked in Calgary Edmonton, and in Red Deer until 1941 when she was united in marriage to Charlie Brown who purchased a welding and blacksmith shop at Markerville where they made their home this time

In 1943 son Harry purchased NE 34-39-6-W5 By this time the Rodgers livestock had increased, their farming had increased and in 1946 they purchased their threshing machine and that's when son Harry decided to go into registered cattle. In 1948, Harry purchased SW 35-39-6-W5 and his first rubber tired tractor

Mr Rodgers took great pleasure in looking after the garden and after seeding spent a lot of his time with the vegetables and flowers. Mrs Rodgers and daughter Ida through the years were active in taking care of the house, picking berries, cooking raising chickens and turkeys and made many trips to town with team and democrat to deliver the cream and bring home groceries and mail. Sadness came in December of 1948 when Mrs. Rodgers lost her life in an accident on Highway 11 near Benalto, at the age of 1

In the spring of 1949 Mr Rodgers decided to retire from the farm and built a home in Rocky Mountain House, where he later married Mrs Mary Hulda Teske. Through his years of retirement Mr Rodgers enjoyed gardening of both vegetables and flowers until his passing in July 1960 at the age of 81 Mrs. Rodgers enjoyed needlework She stayed in their home as long as her health allowed, then went to live in Westview Lodge for awhile — then lived with Ray and Ida for a couple of years and later in nursing homes until October, 1975, when she passed

In 1949 daughter Ida was united in marriage to Raymond Teskey and took up farming on NW 26-39-6-W5 until his passing in February of 1974

RODGERS, HARRY FAMILY — by Harry Rodgers

The continuation of the farmstead and the LHR Herefords

In the spring of 1948 Harry Rodgers was united in marriage to Louisa Attfield. They purchased the home place SE-35-39-6-W5 and NE-26-39-6-W5 from Mr James Rodgers and continued the farming operation. In December of 1950 they purchased a new truck

In 1951, we became the proud parents of our first child, a daughter, Louisa May March 17 1951 was the date of the worst blizzard on record in the country The railroad between Rocky Mountain House and Red Deer was snow blocked for a week Harry drove in the blizzard from Red Deer to get home as there was nobody home to do chores. The first combine was purchased in 1952

In 1953, son Harry James was born into the family. By this time a lot of the old buildings had to be replaced, and we lost our grain crop by hail. In 1954 we purchased NW-35-39-6-W5. In 1956 we lost another grain crop by hail. In 1957, Harry decided to raise registered polled Hereford cattle. Harry is a life member of the Hereford Association and the letters LHR Herefords are spread for miles around. He purchased NW-34-39-6-W5 in 1957 In 1958 we had one of the best grain crops that we have known

In 1959, another daughter, Beverley Irene was born and the same year we purchased our first self-propelled combine. In 1962, we purchased the first diesel powered tractor and the diesel fuel was eighteen cents per gallon This same year we quit milking cows and continued with beef cattle and raising hogs

In 1964 we replaced the old home with a new one with modern facilities In 1967 we purchased SW 34-39-6-W5 which we cleared and broke up, so the farm has one thousand cultivated acres

Daughter Louisa May completed her education at the Rocky Mountain House School in 1970, and has been a bookkeeper at Rocky Concrete and Construction Limited in Rocky Mountain House, Alberta, for the last six years. Son Harry James completed his education at the same school in 1971, and has been occupied farming with his father up to date. Daughter Beverley received her education at Rocky Mountain, Alberta, and has been active helping her parents

Harry recalls hunting and fishing trips back for forty years, bringing out moose horns with a spread of fifty-seven and one-half inches. Back in the days when they used the ferry over the North Saskatchewan River, Harry, upon returning from a hunting trip with an old friend, Carl Linder found the ferry out, so they had to carry three deer and a moose over the railroad trestle one evening, returning a few days later to bring the car home

Son Harry James enjoys the same sports and we both hope to continue farming as long as health permits

THE SAARELA FAMILY — by Elma Shaw

Evert Saarela was married to Elvie Lissa Kaikkonen in 1912 at Great Falls, Montana. Both of them had come originally from Finland to Michigan, U.S.A., and after their marriage they moved to Helena, and then to Butte, Montana where Evert worked in the mines

Hearing about homestead openings for settlers in Alberta, Evert came in 1913, as far as Red Deer by train there was no railroad west of Red Deer at that time From Red Deer he continued on to the Blueberry Hills, to file on his homestead N W 17-40-4-W5

Number 11 highway was only a trail, and sloughs had to be dodged around, even on foot Blueberry Hills got the name from the blueberries on the hills. They were so abundant that the hills were just blue with the berries

He returned to Montana in 1914 where he worked in the mines during the winter months and then brought his wife and small son, Elmo to the homestead in Alberta. During some winters he worked in the mines at Nordegg while Mother stayed on the homestead, doing the chores, taking care of the children, and exchanging home made butter and eggs for groceries at Lesliеville, seven miles away. Elvie was a good horsewoman in her day as she had learned while a young girl in Finland, to drive reindeer. The three youngest children were born on the homestead with only a neighbor midwife, Mrs Lampi, delivering the babies.

Every summer for years, the early settlers held an annual picnic, some people coming for miles with team and wagon, each lady bringing some food to add to the picnic dinner. The kindly settlers arranged working bees in the neighborhood when anyone wanted some building done. The ladies had their quilting bees, exchanging ideas, and perhaps some gossip. The pioneer theory was that when the new spuds were big enough to eat the partridge made good fryers, and rabbits good roasts or stews.

The Saarela family had no health problems then, even the 1918 flu epidemic was missed.

Elmo started school at Blueberry Valley, at the time not knowing a word of English. There were only six children in the school then, about 1918 and I do not know the teacher's name. Mrs Saarela boarded Leyda Sestrap while she was attending the Blueberry School. Years later Leyda became a doctor of medicine. Mrs Graham was one of the Blueberry Valley teachers. She would carry her young daughter Barbara the one and one-half miles to the Saarela home to be cared for every school day.

In 1922 the Saarelas moved 3½ miles north of Leslieville, S.W. 14-40-5-W5, where Eli and his son Wes, are still farming. The children went to Golden Heights school, walking, riding or driving. The school was the community centre. Sunday school, church services or dances were held there at various times. Bill Ennis did the calling for the dances, often arriving just as the children were let out of school, to be sure he would not be late.

In the depression years Saarela took some wheat to Eckville to be ground into flour for home use. Money was scarce, but no one went hungry. The farmers paid part of their taxes by working for the Municipality, doing road work. Rabbits were so thick that the green-feed stacks were eaten through at the bottom. The buyers wanted rabbits for mink meat so the second generation boys were quick to round up 22 rifles in order to make a few dollars. Rabbits were killed by the thousands and hauled to railways stations. Often the family watched the prairie chickens doing their chicken dance — a never-to-be-forgotten spectacle.

At harvest time the farmers helped one another to get the crops in — only the threshing machine operator had to be paid cash. They were sometimes hailed out and suffered some wet years but had no real drought problem. The second generation played baseball on some hayfield in summer and in winter time a lot of young people and some of the parents tried out their skis on what is known as the Leafland Hills.

The first family car was a 1925 Chev touring, bought in 1926.

Eino, the oldest son, was stricken with spinal meningitis on March 1, 1929 and died in the Eckville Hospital on March 28, 1929 at the age of 16 years.

Before his death on December 26, 1963, from a heart attack at the age of 75, Evert Saarela had made two trips to Finland, in 1947 by ocean liner and in 1952 by air, to attend the World Olympics at Helsinki. Elvie Saarela also made two trips to Finland by air, the first in 1960 and the other one in 1974, at the age of 86 years.

Mr and Mrs Saarela celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary on August 23, 1962. In 1966 Mrs. Saarela moved to Eckville to live and passed away there on December 18, 1976 at the age of 88 years. She had suffered a severe stroke on December 10, 1976.

The children of Evert and Elsie Saarela were: Eino Evert, born December 19, 1912, and died March 21, 1929; Edward Elmer Saarela born August 25, 1914, and died January 31, 1973, Elma Elsie Shaw born March 4, 1918, and Eli Ensio Saarela, born on April 29, 1918.

Edward married Nellie Raivio in July, 1936, and they have three boys and two girls. Joyce married Jerry Verhaegh and they have three boys and two girls. Melvin married Elsie Nygaard and they have one boy and two girls. Hazel lives in Anchorage, Alaska. Vera and Lois live in Rocky Mountain House.

Elma married Lauri Heita in December 1934. Their children were Elsie, who married Eugene Scott and has two boys, Elvie, who married Robert Labonte and has one boy and one girl. Lauri died of a heart attack in 1953 and in 1965 Elma married John Shaw.

Eli married Violet Hiltala in September of 1947, and they have four children. Eileen married Terry Fedderson, and they have two girls. Beverly married Brian Adams, and they have one boy and three girls. Wesley married Karen David and they have three daughters. Judy married Harley Peterson, and they have one daughter.

THE SALMON FAMILY

Arthur Luther and Sarah Salmon lived along the Wishka River near Aberdeen, Washington, where sons Norman, Oliver and Elmer, and daughter Gertie were born. After Arthur had suffered a stroke and was advised to seek a drier climate he decided to move to Canada. In April, 1912, he arrived by stagecoach at Lestieville along with his son Norman. In May the rest of the family joined him there. En route, Norman's skill in horsemanship stood him in good stead, as he was driving a team of half-wild broncos, but was even able to help pull out freight wagons that were bogged down in the muskeg near Sylvan Lake.

After living on several rented places, they homesteaded six and one-half miles north of Leslieville. The youngest son, Harry, was born there, on May 7, 1914. In August of that year, Arthur suffered another stroke and died, aged only 52 years.

The older children worked out to help the family get established. Gertie found employment in Red Deer. Norman worked for the Valley Lumber Company, hauling lumber, but also helped out by bringing home wild meat, even training his dog to tree foot hens, which he could then catch in snares. The Salmons were fortunate in having a spring of ice-cold water which kept the meat fresh for long periods.

Gertie married Herb Card in 1915 and lived in Leslieville.

Norman married Mabel Turner.

Oliver Salmon married Edna Stears.

After returning to the United States for two years, Sarah came back with her family to the homestead, and raised her two grandchildren, Jim and May, there.

Elmer was married to Alice Johnson; they moved for a time, and later moved to live in Rocky Mountain House.

After the grandchildren grew up, Sarah sold the farm and moved to Leslieville, then to Rocky Mountain House, where she passed away in 1963.

THE SIGURD AND ANTHON SANDE FAMILY

Sigurd Olai Sande was born in Sande, Indre Holmedals, Sunnfjord, Norway, May 11, 1883 After completing his education, he clerked for two years in each of these stores in Sande. first at Lyder Sivertsen and then at M. Johannessen They both gave him a high character rating Leaving his fiancee behind, he emigrated to Wisconsin U.S.A in 1903 and worked in the U.S.A for three years before leaving Minneapolis, Minnesota in 1906 to go homesteading in Alberta. Carrying a few belongings he walked west from Red Deer and spent one night in the shelter of a wall of the old fort at Rocky Mountain House, where today only the "Chimneys" remain

He homesteaded on the NW 18-40-5-W5 in the Bingley district, approximately 50 miles northwest of Red Deer He walked to Red Deer for supplies and mail and later he walked to Evarts for them. Andrew Sande, who homesteaded at the same time, filed on the quarter section adjoining Sigurd's land on the south. These ingenious Vikings built one large sod-roofed log barn, half of it on each quarter section, which meant a saving of two walls In the summer months Sigurd broke the land with oxen and in the winter he worked in the lumber camps operated by Martin and McDougal

In 1909-1910 Sigurd returned to Sande, Sunnfjord, Norway to visit his fiancee, Astrid I

Sande and his relatives. While he was away Andrew looked after his place and did the chores.

Astrid L. Sande was born in Bergen, Norway on June 17, 1882. At the early age of two she moved with her parents to Sande, Sunnfjord. She took all her education there. She was a member of the Lutheran Church Choir in Sande for many years. In June, 1911, Astrid and Olga, a sister of Sigurd, arrived in Red Deer where Sigurd met them with horses and buggy. Astrid and Sigurd were married in the St. Luke's Church in Red Deer on June 19, 1911. Sigurd brought his bride and his sister to the two-storey log house he had built on the homestead. They were blessed with three sons and three daughters.

Svanhild — born May 17, 1912, married to Angus Leslie Martin August 7, 1947. They have one daughter.

Anna Louise — born October 15, 1913, married to Knut Olav Sunde December 27, 1940. They have one son, three daughters and seven [illegible].

John David — born April 26, 1915, married to Janet Stelfox July 2, 1939. They have two sons, two daughters and seven grandchildren. Janet died April 30, 1973.

Magda Leonora — born May 27, 1917, married to Leonard LeRoy Billings November 30, 1946. They have two daughters and two grandsons.

Leonard Sigurd — born March 8, 1920, married to Audrey Kathleen Colbeck July 20, 1946. They have two sons and two grandsons.

Clifford Martin — born April 4, 1922, married Mildred Patricia Yarkow February 27, 1954. They have three sons, one daughter and two grandchildren. Clifford died February 7, 1965.

Sigurd and Astrid's first child, Svanhild, was born on a very special day as May 17 is Norway's National Day. For many years, their cozy log house on the homestead was the scene of many happy gatherings of Norwegians in the district. The Sande hospitality was known far and wide to the early pioneers and travellers of many nationalities. Many social evenings were enjoyed by neighbors. Those who played musical instruments brought them and played for the [illegible] and singing. They also enjoyed listening to the new Thomas Edison phonograph that [illegible] evident in the meals she prepared for her [illegible] say "No" to a slice of her homemade bread and butter and a cup of freshly brewed [illegible].

Sigurd and Astrid, like their pioneer neighbors, had their own language, religion [illegible] and lifestyle. How was the language barrier overcome? Timothy Eaton's Catalogue and the Almanac played an important part As small children living on the homestead Alma remembers that when the Almanac had come her sister Svanhild, asked their mother, "Is there a Svanhildnac?"

In the opening up of this area, these pioneers knew hardships, isolation and loneliness, but as the language barriers were overcome the common problems called for co-operation so a process of acculturation was achieved by close personal friendships and mutual respect. Sigurd and Astrid were keenly interested in the progress of the country Sigurd helped to establish the Bingley School District No. 2565 in 1911 and in 1912 he cut logs for the first school house which was completed in 1913 The treasurer was Mr J W Christian, and the trustees were Mr Sam Larsgard, George Diggins and Sigurd who was chairman of the board. After moving to the Beaver Flat School District No. 1914 in 1918, Sigurd served as school trustee for that district for many years. In 1925 the school taxes on his quarter section of land in Bingley were $17 69

The little log schoolhouse became the community center and truly united all nationalities Regardless of rain or sunshine, families for many miles around came by team and wagon or on horseback to participate in the picnic The first picnic that Sigurd and Astrid and Olga enjoyed was at Beaver Flat and Olga still laughs when she tells how she shocked everyone when she hoisted her long skirt above her knees at the beginning of the ladies' race that she won

Other entertainment included the Chautauqua held in the Leslieville community in the late 1920's and early 1930's. Sigurd and his brother Sam were two of the guarantors. Also there were the silent movies, e.g. "Ben Hur" The annual Farmers Ball in the Leslieville Hall in the 1920's drew a good crowd of adults, and children as well, as the spelling bee was held at the same time. This was a popular event in which many schools participated and entered only their b spellers. The school Christmas concert was an annual event and enjoyed by everyone in the packed schoolhouse

Astrid often mentioned how she enjoyed her first Christmas here when Sigurd took her to the Leslieville Church Christmas program, and although she did not understand the language the church atmosphere, the choir singing carols and Mr J Reilly giving the Christmas message meant so much to her Christmas Eve on the homestead was very special. The tree, decorated with homemade streamers, balls, and paper hearts woven in two colors, was put in the centre of the living room Astrid, Sigurd and their little children joined hands and walked around the tree and sang "Silent Night" and other carols in Norwegian Astrid's beautiful singing is a joy to remember

Before 1920, Sigurd and Astrid helped to organize the first Lutheran Congregation at Leslieville and they were members during the years it existed. Services were held in the members' homes Sigurd was secretary treasurer from 1923 until 1930 The pastors at this time were Rev B. Guldseth, Rev Oluf Asper and Rev. Elle Astrid and Sigurd were faithful contributors of donations to the mission field throughout their lives

Sigurd's brother Samuel Olai Sande, another community-minded man, homesteaded SE 25-40-6-W5 in the Bingley district in 1910. He enlisted in World War One and after returning from the war he bought W½ 8-40-5-W5. He and Sigurd worked together for several years to harvest their crops One fall was exceptionally wet and Sam, who had his own blacksmith shop, helped design and build a large wheel that carried the horse-drawn binder over wet fields so they managed to harvest their crops

Not only were schools and churches needed but roads were badly needed. There were road allowances, but many of these were not fenced, not even a snake-rail fence Herds of horses freed from the lumber mills that operated only during the winter months, roamed the country until more settlers homesteaded the land. Sigurd was a road councillor for twenty-five years and a reeve for twelve years of the Municipal District of Lochearn No. 401, Leslieville, Alberta During his early years as a councillor he travelled on horseback and helped many a family in the flu epidemic of 1918-1919 His district covered the area north from his homestead to the North Saskatchewan River, west and north of Rocky Mountain House After he bought one of the first cars, a model T Ford, his work took him in many directions to help people get to the doctor Since Sigurd was on the end of the telephone line in that area the family had to relay the message to neighbors for many miles regardless of weather and road conditions. Most of the road work had to be done by hand in the early days which meant digging ditches with a shovel Low lying area roads were corduroyed to make them passable in the rainy season. This meant covering the road with small 10-15 foot logs and then covering the logs with dirt using a wheelbarrow and shovel. Later, came the horse-drawn machinery, such as the slip for two horses, and the fresno where four horses were used then the two-wheeler-like slip that needed two or four and many a mile has been built using horse power from six to twelve horses, depending on the size of the grader Then followed the mechanized road building machinery The Municipal District was divided into six divisions for many years until it became Local Improvement District No. 10. Shortly after that, the local schools were organized into the Rocky Mountain School Division No 15. Part of the Lochearn Municipal District is now in the Lacombe School Division Sigurd spent many long hours attending council and school meetings, and most of them without a stipend mainly because there was no money anyway Astrid's kind consideration for others and willingness to help all was her first thought This greatly assisted her husband to carry out his duties as councillor reeve, and

The Sande children attended the Beaver Flat School No. 1914 that was established in 1908 and opened in 1909. For several years the school opened in May and continued throughout the summer until Christmas. Most of the time the children walked the two and one half miles, but what a pleasure it was when they had three saddle horses to ride to school. During the years that the six Sande children attended Beaver Flat school the teachers were: Miss Edmundson Miss I. Strong Miss V Leather Miss A Joslin Mrs. C N. Beebe Miss N Wade Mr J Grant Miss L Lytle. Mrs McDonald Mr Wm McRoberts and Mr T Bowbay

Being farmers, Sigurd and Astrid were keenly interested in growing high quality produce This was evinced in the prizes they won at the fair sponsored by the Rocky Mountain House Agricultural Society in the years 1927-28-29 Top awards for wheat, barley, oats, corn and many vegetables were received. Astrid enjoyed sewing and knitting and won several prizes at the fair for her needlecraft. In the 1930's Sigurd won prizes for his grains at the provincial seed fairs and at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, Ontario In 1936, Svanhild won first prize for beans at the Toronto Royal and the following year at the same fair John and Leonard won first and second respectively for oats All three Sande boys were members of the Leslieville Grain Club and won prizes for their grain plots and also for the threshed grain at the seed fair John was leader of the Club for a few years. This shows that the family farm has its merits

Sigurd and Astrid were active members of the Leslieville School Fair Board. Their six children won scholarships and a trip to the Olds School of Agriculture for highest number of points. In recognition of their high quality produce, the Olds School of Agriculture presented them with a variety of shrubs and fruit trees to plant on the farmstead. Their beautiful garden attracted many visitors

Also, they raised cattle and had some registered Shorthorns and Herefords. From this fine herd of Hereford cattle, 4-H Beef Club members purchased animals that won the grand championships several times

In 1935, Astrid went to Norway on a well deserved holiday to visit her father sisters, and a brother whom she had not seen since she left in 1911 When she returned in February 1936, a terrible blizzard was raging in this area. The bus driver Gordon Sorenson drove his bus off his regular route to Rocky Mountain House to her farm home, 10 miles north of Alhambra, to make sure she got home safely This brings to mind the many hazards of winter encountered when travelling. The mailman, Thomas Ogden of the Bingley post office in the early years, fought drifts and cold winds for several miles and this meant weary horses and driver by the time they got to the Sigurd Sande farm Here he came in to thaw out and have a spot of tea. Sigurd was ready with his team and sleigh to take Tom the rest of the way to Leslieville and back to the farm Now Tom could hitch up his rested horses and resume his tough journey with renewed

Sigurd enjoyed hunting moose, elk and deer in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains. He had many sets of large horns. As an avid fisherman he enjoyed catching trout in the west country

The Depression came and it left its mark even on the hardiest of pioneers who had already had a rough time Sigurd was shipping a carload of cattle to Calgary, but before the train personnel would load the cattle, freight charges had to be prepaid. Upon receipt of the cheque for this carload of cattle, he realized less than he had paid for the freight! Many cases of hardship never to be forgotten, were prevalent but these hardy pioneers never gave up. Food was not scarce nor expensive, neither was clothing nor shoes, but they had no cash to purchase them Eggs were selling for three cents per dozen Flour sacks were not only used for underwear but also for shirts, blouses and dresses. Astrid didn't need a pattern to make these garments, she designed them herself, and made many pretty clothes from snow-white flour sacks and from printed flour sacks. These thrifty, frugal, honest hard-working people persevered through the Dirty 30's", and also through World War Two when rationing came into effect for the following gasoline, sugar, jam jelly, coffee, tea canned milk butter and meat

When the Women's Institute was organized in the Beaver Flat district Astrid was one of its active members

After the Rocky Mountain School Division No 15 was established Sigurd was Divisional School trustee for several years He served as a school trustee for over forty-five years, both on the local school boards and on the Rocky Mountain School Division No. 15 Board. A crowd of more than 750 people gathered on February 11, 1958, for the opening ceremonies at the David Thompson High School, which Sigurd was instrumental in having located on the site near Condor Sigurd Sande was honored that evening for his long years of service when the Hon. A. J Hooke presented him with a gold wristwatch engraved with these words "40 YEARS SCHOOL TRUSTEE ROCKY MOUNTAIN SCHOOL DIVISION NO. 15" Later in 1960, a set of encyclopedia was presented to the David Thompson High School in Sigurd Sande's name In the November 1, 1974 issue of "Red Deer County News" Mr Dave Pearson, a trustee of the Rocky Mountain School Division No. 15 at the same time as Sigurd, has high praise for the many trustees he has worked with. He singled out the high-minded conduct of men like Sigurd Sande

Astrid and Sigurd resided on their farm all their lives and kept very active. Astrid died on December 1, 1960

Sigurd continued to be active in his farming and cow-calf operations. He was active in community affairs and keenly interested in world affairs. He died on October 21, 1963

SANDE, THE JOHN D. AND SANDY FAMILY — (By John D. Sande

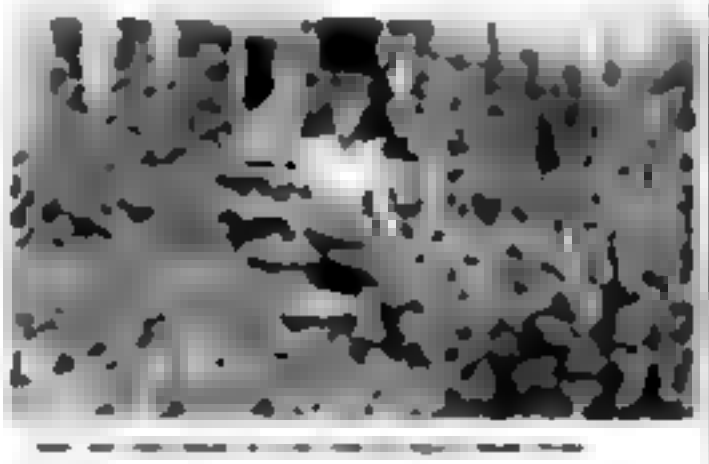
I completed my schooling at the Beaver Flat school in 1930 where my family lived. Through the years before I married Henry Stelfox's second daughter Janet, I helped with the work on the farm. Dad had just bought a 22-36 International tractor disc, and a breaking plow then a year later, a Waterloo threshing machine so we had to go to work at whatever we could get to keep up the payments on all of this equipment through the thirties when prices on farm products dropped to an all-time low. In the summer months we cleared and broke land on Dad's homestead and did custom breaking around the neighborhood. In the fall it was the same we went out threshing, so besides the home farming we had lots of work to do. This continued after I got married to Janet on July 2 1939. I was building my own house on the family farm and this is how I got my lumber. Through the winter months we took out logs on the Wolf Creek that was eighteen miles to the north-west of us. We travelled by team and sleigh when there was snow and by wagon when the roads permitted it. Dad and my brothers put in many a cold trip to bring out the lumber, slabs, and some firewood. This lumber was sawed by Ralph Evans and his crew from east of Lesneville when he had his mill on the Wolf Creek. The forest fire became quite a thing in the spring before the new grass got tall enough. We still had some logs and some lumber that we were unable to get out in the winter months which got burned. The price of lumber at the mill in those years was $7 for rough and $10 for planed per thousand. After our second winter in the timber we took a permit to supply a dairy farmer east of Red Deer with all the material he needed for a small barn at $18 a thousand, delivered

In the spring of 1939 I undertook a different type of work — to build a house to live in after we were married. I built it on Dad's home place out of the best lumber from our winters' work. But the time came to be married and I still had some of the house to finish so we lived with my folks the first year.

July 1, 1939, was a nice bright morning after many a rainy day so Dad and I went to see how many mud holes we had to fix between home and Rocky Mountain House so we could get to the first wedding of our family by car. We got the mud holes repaired with logs and dirt so they really looked good. But by mid-afternoon we had a different outlook on the whole bright day earlier. Black clouds came up and the wind blew stronger. One of the worst hailstorms hit that area, such destruction had never been seen before. Our early morning work went down the road so Dad and I spent from early evening until early the next morning getting back home with the car. So to the pasture I went for the horses so we could get to my wedding in time with team and wagon and the 12 miles to go. But the bright sun and the blue sky really made me forget the night before till I looked at the bare fields that had been all green with grain, and the trees that were stripped of their leaves. Uncle Sam, Dad's brother, and his wife, Aunt Ada came to the wedding in their democrat and team of nice sorrels. They brought my wife Janet, and me back home instead of us going back in the big heavy lumber wagon.



Our first son, David, arrived on May 30, 1946, during the early part of World War II. It was a time of great uncertainty but we carried on the best we could. We continued farming and growing everything that was in demand. In 1941 we moved into our own home. The next year, on April 20, our first daughter, Agnes, was born. The uncertainty caused by the war continued. I got my notice to stay close to my home. Our second son, Harold, arrived on January 18, 1945, a cold day.

Towards the end of the war we decided we should try to get a farm of our own. The family would soon be of school age and we hoped to get and closer to the school than I had been so that they would not have the long distance to go that I had travelled. We got the farm known as the Washburn place. (he N E-1 40-6-W5 which was one mile south of Dad's. It had a nice set of buildings except for quite a small old house compared to the one we had built on the family farm. That fall our son, David, started school at Beaver Flat. Next summer our second daughter Helen, arrived on August 25, 1947. As the children reached school age they continued their educa ion at Beaver Flat until it was closed and then hey were bused to school at Rocky Mountain House

In 1951 I moved the new house we had built on the home place down to our farm to replace the old one because we were all looking forward to getting electricity on the farm. Our farming operations got bigger as the family was able to help. The last few years that we were on the farm we had 20 milk cows, around 75 pigs of all ages as well as beef cattle and a nice flock of sheep. We got our start in sheep from the University of Alberta Experimental Farm, Edmonton.

In 1956 we left the farm. Our younger daughter needed extra teaching and training so in the fall term, after a big decision, we went to the city of Edmonton to live and start new work. This meant the family had to take a close look at what each one wanted to get started in. Janet and I got work at the new School for the Deaf that was to open in the fall. David was in his last year of high school. Agnes was in her last year of junior high, Harold was in his last year of elementary, and Helen went by bus to her school for the handicapped for special training. The farm life was missed by all of us. The last few years at the School for the Deaf, Janet was a house mother with 15 little deaf boys, ages five to eight years. She really enjoyed the chance to help them get started in life.

In 1973 Janet took ill and spent a few months in the hospital. She passed away on April 30, 1973 and was greatly missed by her family and many others for her cheerful smile at all times. A year later I had completed eighteen years at the school and I moved back to the country to live west of Millet in the Pipestone community.

As David and Agnes have compiled their own histories, I will write only about Harold and Helen.

Harold completed his senior high school and then attended the Olds Agricultural College for two years. After graduating he worked on different jobs. When he worked in Red Deer at Corbett Auto Electric Shop, he met Barbara Jean Storey, the youngest daughter of Carl and Gladys Storey of Red Deer. They were united in marriage on September 3, 1966. They have one son, Darryl, and one daughter, Nicole. They bought the Pipestone General Store which they operate at the present time.

Helen took different types of training to help her as she is handicapped. She attended the school at Edmonton Centre and the Alberta School Hospital, now known as Michener Centre, Red Deer. At present she is at Wetaskiwin in a Group Home and goes to the Horizon Unlimited Work Shop.

SANDE, THE DAVID, BARBARA, NEIL AND CRAIG FAMILY

John and Janet Sande's first child was born May 30, 1960 in the Rocky Mountain House Hospital and was named David Joseph. David was the eldest grandchild on both parents sides (Sande and Stelfox) and reaped the early benefits of attention from grandparents, aunts and uncles.

On July 13, 1963 David married Barbara Jean Woywitka whom he had met in 1958 on a scaffold, while decorating the U of A gymnasium for a dance and had dated through their University days. On March 14, 1969 their first child Neil David was born. Two years later their second son Craig Martin was born on April 26, the same birthdate as his grandfather John Sande.

David was very fortunate to have had the opportunity of varied educational experiences. From 1946-1953 he attended Beaver Flat School a one-room country school with grades one to eight. In 1954 and 1955 he was bussed to the much larger Rocky Mountain House School. Following his family's move to Edmonton in the early fall of 1956 David attended Strathcona Composite High School for two years and graduated in the spring of 1958.

In September of 1958 he enrolled at the U of A in the first year of the Bachelor of Physical Education degree program from which he graduated in 1961. In 1966 David returned to the University of Alberta and in 1968 completed his M.A. in Administration. Following two years of study at the University of Oregon in Eugene David graduated in 1975 with a Ph.D. in Education.

David's formal work experiences include assisting on the family farm until they moved to Edmonton in 1956. Summer work between high school or University terms were as follows:

1957 — Work as a carpenter's helper building the David Stelfox house at Ellerslie.

1958-'59 — A labourer and truck driver at Gunnar Uranium Mines on Lake Athabasca.

1960-'62 — Roller operator on asphalt paving crews in the Edmonton vicinity.

In September of 1962 David began work as a high school teacher of physical education, biology and chemistry at Queen Elizabeth Composite High School in Edmonton where he worked until June of 1965. Following the completion of his masters degree course work in 1967 David was hired by the Faculty of Physical Education and Recreation of the U of A where he has continued to work, and is now an Associate Professor.

Since his youth David has maintained an interest in physical education and sports and has continued to participate as an athlete, coach or sports administrator. As an undergraduate David was a student manager with the Golden Bear Hockey team and active in Block "A" activities. For a period of 10 years from 1964 to 1[illegible] David was the Director of a High School Recreation Leadership Training Program at O'Leary Composite High School. As a high school teacher he coached football, basketball, wrestling, volleyball and track and field and was active on CAHPER executive — President 1967. While at the U of A he served as an assistant football coach with the Golden Bears during the late 60's and early 70's.

In 1977 David was chairman of the Canadian Gymnastic Championships in Edmonton. He also served as Deputy Chairman of the 1978 Commonwealth Games Sports Division. As his children grew and showed an interest in sport he acted as a community soccer and hockey coach.

David's childhood days were filled with the excitement of active farm life punctuated by play with brother Harold and sisters Agnes and Helen and the ever present pets (dogs, cats and rabbits). Earliest recollections are of racing downhill to Grandma Sande's, a distance of about 30 yards to greet her and share some cold oatmeal cereal and sugar. Further memories highlight trips to visit Grandma and Grandpa Stelfox in Rocky Mountain House to watch Grandma Stelfox's canary or to sit in a huge stuffed chair with his brother and sisters to hear Grandpa Stelfox spin tales. Christmas, birthdays and other special occasions always meant visits with aunts, uncles and cousins and were very exciting occasions.

As a youth David had major interests in school, sports and livestock. Though never top of the class, David found school a real challenge and never faced any major difficulties. Hunting and Fishing with Grandpa Sande were always exciting. In the fall of 1954 while hunting with Grandpa Sande David shot his first moose. Often after fishing trips, while driving home from Chambers Creek or one of the tributaries of Prairie Creek, David would have to reach to the car's accelerator and pull Grandpa Sande's foot off when a cramp in the thigh would cause him to cramp the accelerator to the floor sending the car lunging through narrow logging roads or the ever present frost boils of Highway 11.

School and community sports days and baseball teams were always important activities for David. During one busy spring he played on two different school teams, a bantam team and a community team.

David's interest in livestock was carefully tutored by his father and led to a deep love of all livestock. This interest was further generated into active participation in the Rocky Mountain House 4H Beef Club and special interest in the records of the farm dairy herd, sheep and hogs. It was also during this period, with many successive years of severe hail damage to crops, that David became aware of the significant gamble involved in farming.

There is absolutely no question that the most significant event of David's adult live was his marriage to Barbara, and their many years of shared joys and sorrows. Their honeymoon was his first significant extended trip and due primarily to Barbara's great love of travel they journeyed to Europe in the summer of 1965, to Expo in Montreal in 1967 and then after Neil and Craig were born they made many camping trips with major journeys in 1974 down the Pacific Coast of the U.S.A. and in 1976 to Montreal for the Olympics. In January of 1977 David and Barbara with Dave's brother Harold and his wife Barbara purchased a quarter section of land in the Pipestone district just east of Pigeon Lake. The purchase came as a result of being forced to sell land in the Cow Lake area of the Rocky Mountain House District when taxes were raised substantially as a result of the land being declared recreational. This sale saw a severance of David's physical relationship with the Rocky Mountain House area but has led to increased pleasure for Barb and Dave in teaching their sons Neil and Craig to ride horses and to share the beauty of the country and the efforts of farm activities while visiting their new farm.

Following her marriage to David, Barbara continued to teach physical education and mathematics at Jasper Place Composite High School until Christmas of 1968 — three months before Neil was born. Barbara has always been very active in church and community activities. She has served Southminster United Church as a choir member, a Sunday School teacher and as an active committee member. Her community activities have included curling, squash, yoga and very active membership on the Parents' Advisory Committee for Greenfield Elementary School's Bilingual program as well as Vice Chairperson of the Alberta branch of the Parents For French Organization. The demands of homemaking have been further challenged by the needs of two very active boys and Barbara has spent hours in support of their activities.

Neil and Craig are typical of most elementary school aged children. They are both in the French Bilingual Program and along with an enthusiasm for school they share their parent's interest in athletics with their own involvement in swimming, skating, hockey, soccer and music activities. Often the backyard is filled with neighborhood children engaged in some boisterous play endeavors. Both boys have taken an active interest in the Boy Scout program. Neil in Cubs and Craig in Beavers.

It is with continued pride and pleasure that Barbara and David watch their children grow and mature in their understanding of man and his world.

CRITCHLEY, THE IAN AND AGNES FAMILY

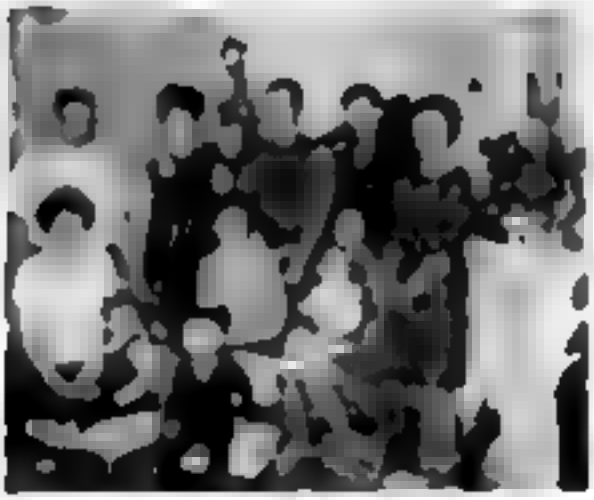
Agnes Kathleen, first daughter of John and Janet Sande, was born in the Rocky Mountain House Hospital on April 20, 1942. She attended school at Beaver Flat, Rocky Mountain House and Edmonton where she graduated. After completing her high school she worked for several years at the Edmonton Centre for the handicapped. While working there she met Walter Ian Critchley who was driving the bus for the handicapped to the Centre. In 1964 Ian joined the army and was transferred to Kingston, Ontario.



the following year. In 1965 Agnes and Ian were married and lived at Kingston where Ian was a Captain in the Canadian Army. They returned to Edmonton in August, 1969. Ian attended University in the faculty of Education and graduated in 1973.

They have three sons. Peter Ian born July 1968, Charles Richard born August, 1972, and Michael David born September, 1977.

When Agnes thinks back to times spent with her grandparents, she thinks of Grandma Sande's homemade butter and cleaning out the wooden butter bowl, of being old enough to be allowed to pick raspberries in Grandpa Sande's prized raspberry patch after he was assured that she knew how to pick without damaging the plants. She remembers being allowed to play their phonograph with its cylindrical records.

BILLINGS, THE FAMILY OF LEONARD AND MAGDA

Magda Leonora the third daughter of Sigurd and Astrid Sande was born on the homestead on May 27, 1917. She got her schooling at Beaver Flat and Alhambra. Chris J. Sande was born December 8, 1947. He grew up on his parents' farm in the Bingley district. At school age he walked a mile and a half to attend the Bingley School where his elementary education was achieved. Teachers at that time were, Mr. H. Rodgers, Mrs. Loewen, and Mrs. P. Brookes. Grades 1 to 6 were taught in this single classroom school. The remainder of Chris' education was received in Rocky Mountain House where he graduated in 1965. The following fall Chris enrolled in a two year Agriculture Mechanics Course at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology in Calgary and graduated with a diploma in 1967. He then returned to the farm where he has worked with his father in a cow-calf operation.

SANDE, THE CLIFFORD MARTIN AND MILDRED FAMILY — by Andy Sande

Clifford Martin Sande, the youngest son of Sigurd and Astrid Sande, was born at Rocky Mountain House, Alberta, on April 4, 1922. He attended Beaver Flat School for part of his education. In Red Deer, he received his high school education and graduated from the Lindsay Thurber Composite High School in 1941. As he was awarded for his excellence of mind, the same is true for his physical ability. He excelled in track and field events where the sportsman that he truly was became very evident. At the age of 15 he won 5 provincial track and field championships, not to mention the trophies for his athletic ability in school.

His many experiences in life could fill a small book and make wonderful stories when he reminisced. One such experience involved luck as well as bravery. He was a boy of 14 at the time.

> On November 2, 1936, while wandering in some woods he came upon a young golden eagle in pursuit of a rabbit. In the minutes that followed he brought down the bird with a big stick, knocking it unconscious and killing it. It was a beautiful bird about two years old with a wing span of seven feet. Weighing approximately eleven pounds and over two feet tall, it had talons that could kill as well as carry most any prey. Arnold Crabtree, a local taxidermist, stuffed and mounted the bird for Clifford.

He worked for the Canadian National Railway as a tie loader and then became a tie inspector at several points in Alberta and Ontario. He was also an employee of the Texaco Oil Company for many years. He began as a roustabout and later, a battery reader.

In 1953 on February 21, he married Mildred Patricia Yurkiw of Radway, Alberta. Before her marriage, Mildred had worked in Edmonton. Later they moved to his farm the SW 25-40-6-W5 approximately 15 miles northeast of Rocky Mountain House. He had purchased this property earlier from Frank Larsgard.

SANDE, THE ANDREW BENNIE FAMILY
Autobiography by Andy Sande

I am the oldest of Clifford's and Mildred's children. I was born September 11, 1954 in Sioux Lookout, Ontario. I was six weeks old when my father, who worked for the C.N.R. in Ontario, moved my mother and me back to Alberta to live on a farm. My parents had three more children born to them: Donald Brian on March 13, 1957, Linda Anne on May 28, 1960, and Stephen Martin on February 2, 1965.

I was attending Rocky Elementary when my father died on February 7, 1965. Mother decided to raise us in the city and so she moved her young family to Edmonton, where the family still resides. She bought a modern home in the city and worked hard caring for her family and growing a big garden. It is not easy to be a single parent and raise a young family, but Mother deserves a lot of credit for helping us to get where we are today.

I attended McArthur Elementary School for three years, then went to Wellington Jr. High School also for three years. It was there that I participated in sports to any degree. I was taught by my parents and close relatives that sportsmanship was far more important than winning or losing. Although I was never pushed by those around me I was near or at the top of most athletic endeavors.

In 1973 I graduated from Queen Elizabeth Composite High School. While attending school I did not make it to the provincials in "Track and Field" as my father did (and won 5 medals) but I came close, and received many ribbons for my efforts. I also took on a part-time job in grade eleven, working at Canada Safeway. Later I made it my career. I had many fields of education open to me and probably could have had any one of a dozen careers, but it was not practical at the time and therefore I went another way in life.

On September 8, 1975, I married Susan Mary Keeler and now reside in Edmonton. We have two children. Beatrice Ann Keeler, by Susan's first marriage, who will be 10 years old May 17, 1978. We also have one of our own, Richele Jane, born to us on December 29 of 1976.

I am now part of the department management of Canada Safeway. I am very happy with my new family and job, and enjoy both respectively. My one dream in life is to have a dairy farm and to have my family grow up and experience life the way my father wished his farm.

Donald Brian Sande was born on March 13, 1957 in Rocky Mountain House. He attended

Rocky Elementary, McArthur Elementary, Wellington Jr High School, and Queen Elizabeth Composite High School in Edmonton. Don was prominant in sports both in school and in the community. He has received many ribbons medals and trophies for both himself and his teams' efforts. Don also has a Hunter Training Conservation certificate from the community. Don now has most of the training from N.A.I.T needed to be a motor mechanic. He is employed at one of Texaco's Service Stations in Edmonton and is engaged to be married in the near future.

Linda Anne Sande, the only daughter of Cliff and Mildred, was born on May 28, 1960. She attended McArthur Elementary, Wellington Jr High School, and Queen Elizabeth Composite High School in Edmonton. She was a Brownie and a Guide with the 58th Pack in the Church of the Good Shepherd. She participated in school and community sports. She also has her Hunter Training Conservation certificate from the community. She too is to be married in the near future.

Stephen Martin, the youngest son of Clifford and Mildred Sande was born February 2, 1965, in Eckville. He attended McArthur Elementary, and is now attending Wellington Jr High School. He was active in Cubs and Scouts in the 112th Pack. Steve is also active in school and community sports. His favorite sport is soccer and he has been on several city championship teams. He has taken over as the man of the house now that his sister and brothers have left to start on their own. He has several small jobs around the community one of which is delivering the city "Journal". Although his future did not look too good at first having lost his father when he was only five days old, he is accepting life and its experiences very well and his family is very proud of him.

GEORGE SCHIEB AND FAMILY

The pioneer days had passed and the country was well settled when the George Schieb family arrived at Lesieville in 1928. They bought and settled on the farm of the late Amos Norem, four and one-half miles north of town.

George, of German parents, was born in Defiance, Ohio, on October 7, 1886, later moving to North Dakota. In March, 1909, he came to Alberta and took a homestead at Winnifred where he farmed for ten years and took part in many community activities.

He was united in marriage to Evalena LaMarsh on October 17, 1919. Evalena, a cousin of the well known Judy LaMarsh) came west from Wheatley, Ontario, with her family in 1910 to settle on a homestead at Winnifred, Alberta.

The Schiebs after their marriage farmed for a while then spent some time at Empress, Alberta. After spending a few years in the lumber industry in British Columbia and Idaho, they settled in Lesieville.

There were two children, Lucille and Garth who received their education in rural schools.

Lucille married Neil Smith in 1938 and they still farm in the community. They raised a family of seven children, four girls and three boys, most of whom still reside in the area or close by.

Garth took high school in Red Deer and later graduated from SAIT as an aeronautical engineer. He spent twelve years with Canadair in Montreal where he married Louise Doyle. They have two sons and now reside in Calgary.

Soon after the Schiebs arrived in Lesieville the depression set in, but the mixed farm proved to be a good place to ride it out — never a lack of food, supplemented by wild fruit, which was plentiful in those days.

The friendly, helpful, spirit of the many wonderful neighbours helped each other through the trying times. Everyone was always ready with a helpful hand and an encouraging word where needed.

In 1937, the family moved to a rented farm owned by George Cummerford, one mile west and one and one-half miles north of Lesieville, across the road from Campbell School. A few years later they bought a farm two and one-half miles south of town, from Charlie Frost where they continued in mixed farming until retirement in 1962 to the village of Lesieville. In November, 1965, they moved to the Twilight Village in Red Deer where they resided comfortably and happily among many former friends and lots of new ones.

George passed away recently — June 5, 1977 in his ninety-first year. Evalena resides in The Pines Lodge, Red Deer and continues to enjoy [illegible]

THE EDWARD LEWIS SIMS FAMILY — (by Maude L. Green)

The Sims family was one of the first settlers in the Beaver Flat district. Mr. Edward Lewis Sims and his wife Rosa May with six children homesteaded in 1906. Claude Hilton was the oldest Sims child, then came Mabel Loraine, Mildred Elizabeth, Emmanuel Edward, Muriel Verna and Mamie Letitia, the baby, three months old. In 1906 they moved back to Red Deer for the winter where Mary Alexandra was born on December 8. Mr. Ed Sims worked for the city of Red Deer that winter hauling coal up the Red Deer River and the thermometer dropped to 70° below zero. Mr. Sims had built a one-room log house and a barn in 1906 and they moved back from Red Deer in the spring, 1909. He helped to build the Beaver Flat log school house where he was one of the first trustees on the school board along with Dave Marshall and Ted Frodeen who lived south of the school. Mr. Sims had a team of bay horses named Dick and Jack and he broke 10 acres for himself and several other settlers who had moved in so they could prove up on their homesteads. He broke land for Bill Law, a bachelor west of him, Mr. Cornell, Bill Deering, Bob Maconachie, Will Hambrook and Hansen who joined Mr. Sims on the north and many others.

They lost one child before birth in 1910 when Mr. Sims was away working. A grass fire swept across from the west and Mrs. Sims lifted a calf through the fence to save it and she became very ill. The neighbor women, Mrs. Risch and Mrs. Wilson, came in to help with the rest of the family. There was no doctor at that time closer than Red Deer.

In March, 1914, their ninth child, Ruth Isabelle, was born. They had lost a two-year old girl, Nellie, from scarlet fever in Troy, Idaho U.S.A. before they moved to Alberta.

The first teacher in Beaver Flat was Miss Martin, sister of Angus Martin. The next one was Miss Goodmanson, then Mr. Oliver, then Mrs. Mitchell. That year the C.N.R. railroad went to Nordegg, and Mr. Sims worked on the railroad south of the school. Then Bessie Meston who is now Mrs. Frank Patterson, living in Rocky Mountain House, taught Beaver Flat three terms. She was teaching the year the war broke out in August 1914. These teachers taught 30 to 34 pupils, Grade 1 to Grade 8 without any help. The Inspector visited the school once a year.

Claude Sims, a returned soldier, married Annie Pitrainen from the Tiamn district and they had nine children.

Mabel Sims married Archibald Dewbury from Calgary and they had four children.

Mildred Sims married Mathew Ramage who was a Sergeant in the 187th Battalion in Red Deer and they had five children.

Mannie Sims, a returned soldier, married Mary Lotteri from Orms district and they had six children.

Muriel Sims married Ted Sullivan from Calgary and they had only one child.

Mamie Sims married Alec Green, a returned prisoner of war, and son of Mrs. Bert Hilbert and they had three children.

Mary Sims married Baxter Will of Calgary and they had three children.

Ruth Sims married Angus MacLean of Red Deer and they had two children.

The early settlers who came after Mr. Sims were: Bill Law, Bert Hilbert — a cowboy, Bob Maconochie, Will Hambrook, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Cornell, Jack Lowen — a cowboy, and Mrs. Jack Lowen, Mr. and Mrs. Washburn, The Malcolms — the father and mother and their three sons: Dave, Donald and Leonard, Three Frodeen Brothers, Joe Scott, Mr. and Mrs. McFaul, Billy Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. James Rodgers, Three Turton Brothers, The Delaneys, Hansen, Bill Hambleton, Ben Kistler, The Rischs, Stanley Wilson who was Beaver Flat school secretary treasurer for years, Thorkmans, Harvey McCallum and his father Mr. McCallum, Fred Kirkman, Ben and Art Chinery, Art Harvey, Ed Poet, and Frank Flescher who homesteaded the John Oja place and made all the desks for the Beaver [illegible] school.

With an eye to the future
And faith in their God
With horses and oxen
They broke up the sod

When flies and mosquitoes
Pester cattle and folks
They built a smudge
And all smelled like smoke

Ducks and geese from the ponds
Fresh fish from the rivers
Green herbs from the sod
These meant health to the liver

The log cabins were sturdy
With dirt for the floor
But the children were healthy
What wished they for more

Of times in the evening
When neighbors dropped in Before saying "Good-night!"
They sang parting hymns

Let us honor the pioneers
Both husband and wife
Our heritage from them
Is a much richer life

SKOVEN, E. — by Earl Skoven

I, Earl Skoven, was born in Billum, West Jutland, Denmark. I came to Hurley, South Dakota in 1923 and to Canada in 1927. I worked in Saskatchewan, and in a lumber camp in Ontario and then in Southern Alberta for a year or two. Finally I came to the north Lesserville area in 1930, in the fall. My brother, Svend Skoven, and I bought the former Ben Austin homestead, the SW 3-41-5-W5. A few years later Svend bought my share of this land and I bought another quarter north west, the former Billy Barton quarter NE 4-41-5-W5, where I have continued to live.

On July 12 1941 I married Jenny Peever. We have a family of three daughters, and eight grandchildren. On October 22 1943 we were blessed with twin daughters. EVELYN she is married to Herman Bolze and lives in Rocky Mountain House. Their children are David, Trevor and Shannon.

ESTHER, married Leonard Mulholland and lives west of Mundare. Their children are Bobby, Carol, and Dianne.

EARLENE married Allen Field and lives at St. Albert, with children Kevin and Monica.

Since retirement my wife and I moved to an apartment in Rocky Mountain House for one winter, but we like the country living, so we purchased a modern mobile home and are continuing to enjoy a quiet life out on the land I bought over 40 years ago.

SKOVEN, S

Svend Slim Skoven Kristenson was born in 1904 in Billum, Denmark. He immigrated to the United States with his brother Earl in 1923. He came to Canada in 1928 and went to work on a farm in Mair, Saskatchewan. During his years in the States and Canada, he spent time working in lumber camps, on rail road work, and several farm jobs.

In 1930 Svend came to Lesserville and bought land nine miles north west of Lesserville. It was the former Ben Austin quarter SW 3-41-5. After buying the farm he went out to work part time at Daimead, where he met his future wife, Christina Walters. She was working in the area also. They were married about 1932 and moved back to the farm.

The rest of their years were spent farming and logging. Two children were born, Marie and Walter. The children went to school at Washington Heights.

In 1950 Christina passed away. Svend passed away July 11, 1976 at the age of 72 years. MARIE left for Calgary in 1952 to work at the Sanatorium. Later she married and moved to British Columbia where her three children were born. In 1977 she returned to the Lesserville area to live on the NE 3-41-5 W5 one of the quarters formerly owned by her dad. WALTER worked for Standard Gravel for some years. In 1968 he met and married Aldonna Luyckfassel of the Bingley district and they started farming the home place and the NW 3. Walter and Aldonna have one daughter Colleen, born in 1975.

SMITH, P. A. — by Ed Smith

Ed Smith, eldest son, is writing this history of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Smith, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Shaw, and Uncle Mr. G. Shaw.

In 1911 my father, grandfather and uncle came from Barrie, Ontario, and took up homesteading and built a house to live in. I came out in 1912 with my mother, little sister Kit and grandmother. I was four years old, and the only thing I remember was sitting in the wagon while they loaded on a barrel churn in front of a big brick building in Red Deer; this was the building where Dr. Long, the dentist, had his office, but is now torn down. However, we did not come from Red Deer with oxen. I think the men drove the oxen and the women and children came with the mailman. (His name was Foster) who had a team of roan horses on a democrat. I remember [illegible] had being knocked off [illegible] under some bushes.

Our grandfather had a house built but he had built it on the wrong quarter so he had to move it. Logs, which had been hewed out to build a barn with, were strung out on which to move the house to the right quarter of land. A stump puller and an ox were used to move it.

P. A. Smith homestead N.E. 9-40-4-5; T. W. Shaw homestead, S.E. 9-40-4-5; G. J. Shaw homestead, N.W. 9-40-4-5; Fred Bott, Sr. homestead S.W. 9-40-4-5.

These neighbours had homes near by. Vic Green on the south and Fred Bott on the west of Shaw's. Kirkmen lived on the east of the Smith homestead. Carpenter lived on the north of G. J. Shaw's and Robert Eckford cornered the G. J. Shaw quarter.

Robert Eckford was the brother of the G. E. T. Eckford, for whom Eckville was named. He homesteaded just north of Eckville and the land is now owned by Ernest S. Barlund.

There was no school when we first came to the homestead. I was 10 years old and my sister Kit was six before we started school. We walked two-and-one-half miles through solid bush on a cow path, but school lasted for only two or three months in the summer. I remember one teacher named Ludwig. He was real stern, he came from Germany. This was during the first World War. One morning he had a bag of cookies and passed them around to the children. When he came to Maureen Pepper, she asked him if they were poison, because he was from Germany and the war was still on.

In 1918 our brother Neil came along and in 1919 our grandmother passed away. In 1920 the family moved from the homestead to a farm they bought from Dave Taylor. This farm was nearer to town and also to the Blueberry School. The homestead was about eight miles from Lesliеville. There was no road in those days.

Many times we could not get home from school because of bush fires. Sometimes we stayed with people that lived near the school. One time there was a hail storm which came up as we were going home. We were just by Robert Eckford's place, so we stayed there until it was over. Mr. Eckford now owned the team of horses that Foster the mailman, had used to bring the mail from Red Deer. There was no railroad at that time; it was just being built in 1912.

In 1922 our sister Rhoda arrived. In 1930 our grandfather passed away.

Our mother was secretary for Blueberry School for many years. I had the janitor job at $36 a month, but do not remember for how long.

In those days we threshed our own crops with a threshing machine and tractor and a crew of men. The farmers would help each other until all the neighbor's crops were threshed.

To keep warm in winter we gathered a huge pile of trees then quite a few neighbours would help each other saw up the wood, making a sawing crew of about six men. The womenfolk were kept busy cooking, providing everyone with plenty of good home-cooked food to eat.

There were lots of deer and some bears on the homestead. Deer would stand on the path on the way to school and we had to walk around them.

One time Harold Arnold and I went to Wood Lake, found a boat, paddled out to the middle and jumped in and had a swim, then continued on to the other side. We left the boat and walked back. The owner of the boat, Mr. Henry Lundgren, was waiting and made us bring it [illegible]

We also had a black dog named Sam. He would run around and scare grouse into trees and then bark. All we had to do was pick them out of the trees with a .22 rifle. I still have this gun. The grouse were then stuffed with dressing and roasted and tasted real good.

In 1933 our sister Doris was born. She used to love riding a horse. One day in 1952, her horse stumbled and she was hurt so badly that she passed away.

In 1939 our mother passed away and in 1956 our father passed away.

We, the Ed Smith family, live on the west half of 19-39-4-W5. We own three quarters and have lived and farmed for 44 years. The land originally was the homestead of Herb Card and Anderson and Reilly. Leslieville was named after Leslie Reilly, the son of John Reilly.

I remember seeing my first threshing outfit. I was working on the Kirkman homestead. The engine was a one cylinder upright Stickney and a hand fed wooden separator. This was owned by Molander and Stridsberg of Eckville. Later, I owned a threshing outfit and did threshing around the country for about 20 years. Mr. George Johnston, our neighbour, used to haul bundles for us and then he would get his threshing done. While we were threshing on his farm, George would always be driving around in his buggy bringing out lunch and what not. One day the boys took all the nuts out of his buggy wheels. He did not know this, and even though he drove around all day the wheels did not come off. I guess the joke was on us! At this time, threshing was done by the hour. One of the men went to get a drink of water and George said to me, "There goes some of my money." Another time someone put a dead cat under George's pillow in the bunk house where the threshing crew slept. He slept on it for a week before he found it.

There were lots of hard times in the thirties for everyone especially when you were just starting to farm on rented land, even though we grew most of our own food.

In the year 1933 I was married to Mary Menzies. Our first child was Iris Lorraine. The second child is Phyllis Mary. Our girls went to school in Leslieville School, since we lived in the Leslieville district. The girls are both married to John and Ensio Schroderus, and have given us six grandchildren.

Lorraine and John Schroderus' children a names are Karen, Lorne, Julie and Loralie. They live in Eckville, except for Karen, who lives in Red Deer where she is employed.

Phyllis and Ensio Schroderus' children's names are Kenneth and Audrey. They live in the Leslieville district. Kenneth now works in Red Deer.

Karen, our oldest granddaughter, is married to Robin Tolonen. They live in Red Deer.

In the year 1936, my sister Kit was married to Louis Henderson, of Penhold. Their two children are Peggy and Betty, and now have seven grandchildren. They own a garage and gravel trucks. Louis passed away 21 years ago.

The girls went to school at Penhold. Peggy married Lou Boudreau, and Betty married Raymond Strickland.

Peggy and Lou Boudreau's children's names are Annette, Michael and Cheryl. They reside in Trenton, Ontario.

Betty and Raymond Strickland's children's names are Mark, Lorie, Shannon and Leanne. They live in the Penhold district.

In 1936 Neil was married to Lucille Scheib, both of Leslieville and reside on the farm where all the Smith children were raised. Their children are Sharon, Leslie, Linda, Victor, Peter, Rhoda and Pamela. The children went to school at Blueberry, Leslieville and David Thompson. Five of Neil and Lucille's children are married, and have given Neil and Lucille nine grandchildren.

Sharon and Marvin's children's names are Dean and Heather. They have recently moved to an acreage north of Leslieville.

Leslie and Sandra Smith's children's names are Shauna, Kelvin and Kent. They live in [illegible].

Linda and Don Mockford's children's names are Sherry and Loralie. They live in the [illegible].

Victor and Bonnie Smith's children's names are Todd and Lee. They live in the Leslieville district.

Rhoda and Jim Swinston were married recently and lived in Red Deer.

In the year 1942 Rhoda was married to Bill Oldford of Penhold. They now live in Penticton, B.C.

TESKEY, RAYMOND AND IDA - (By Ida Teskey)

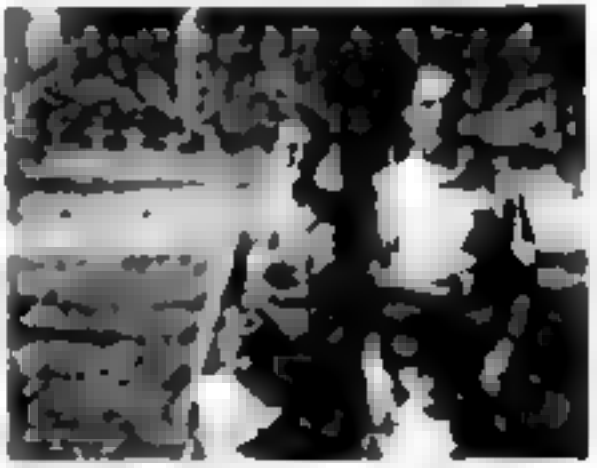
Mrs. Mary Teskey and her sons, Raymond, Elmer and Leonard came from Meadow Lake, Saskatchewan in 1942 to settle in Rocky Mountain House, Alberta. They bought the property where Walter Good had his greenhouse. Raymond and Leonard worked for some time for John Gibson. Then they took out props in the area north of Rocky Mountain House and sold them in town. They also worked for their uncle Fred Adrain, at the sawmill at Ricinus. Later James Rodgers of the Beaver Flat district employed them.

In 1946, Raymond bought the SW 26-39-6-W5 and in 1947 he bought the NW-26-39-6-W5 from Harry and Jim Gault. Raymond cut logs and sawed lumber, then built a house on the NW 26 39-6-W5. He sold the SW-26-39-6-W5 to Henry Steffox. In 1949, he purchased the NE 27-39-6-W5 from James Rodgers. This quarter was homesteaded by Louis Karlson.

On July 2, 1949, Raymond David Teskey was united in marriage to Florence Ida Rodgers then living on the farm. In 1958 they adopted two children, a daughter Joyce Ida and a son, Brian David.



[illegible]

Raymond and Ida farmed a half section of land and Ida enjoyed working in her big garden and raising chickens and turkeys, while Raymond enjoyed his horses and his dog, Buster. Raymond enjoyed fishing and hunting. Ida also enjoyed fishing.

In 1973, Joyce Ida was united in marriage to Vernon Grosso. They have a son, Nicky. Brian works at the Aquitaine Gas Plant located southwest of Rocky Mountain House.

In 1974, Raymond passed away with a heart attack at the age of fifty-nine. In April of that same year Ida had a farm auction sale and sold everything. The farm was sold to Kory Idland. Ida bought a house in Rocky Mountain House where she resides.

TURTON, HAROLD FAMILY

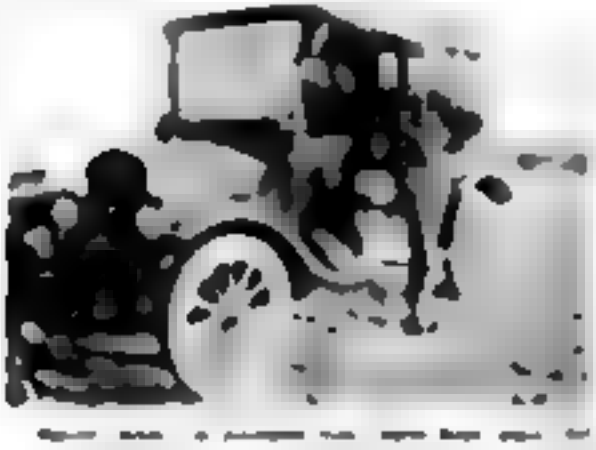
Harold Turton was born July 3, 1884 in Carlton, Yoshire, England. At the age of 21 years, sailed for America aboard the ship Lucania, landing in New York on October 27, 1905. After two years at Jacksonville he left on the 13th of August, 1907, for Nanaimo, B.C., arriving on August 9. He worked at the Western Fuel Co. Mine for $2.85 a day. In those days one could purchase six pairs of slacks for 50¢, a hat for 20¢ and a pair of boots for $2.50.

On January 25, 1908, he homesteaded the N½ 4-40-5-W5.

Being fifty miles to the nearest town they walked to Red Deer and packed their groceries back, taking up to two days. One could buy a side of bacon for $1.70 or two pounds of steak for 50c. In 1913 he bought an ox from Jim Hall by the name of "Spot" for $85. Along with his brother George Turton who had the breaking plow they were able to break a few acres for neighbours.

Later he worked on the concrete piers of the present North Saskatchewan railway trestle firing the steamer.

In the early 1920's Harold married Winnifred Lawrence who had two children, Frieda and Harry. They had a daughter born on January 16 1925 whom they named Kathleen. Both mother and daughter Kathleen died about one-and-one half years later with tuberculosis.



He then raised Frieda (Mrs. Henry Courtright now residing in Rocky Mountain House and Harry Lawrence now of Calgary.

In February of 1939 Florence Kathleen Marborrow and Harold Turton were united in marriage. Florence came to Canada from England at the age of five years with her parents' mother, Mrs. William Hambleton and stepfather, William Hambleton.

Harold and Florence had three daughters Hilda born in 1939. (Mrs. Clayton Grosso Trudy born in 1943 Mrs. Clifford Hall), both residing near Rocky Mountain House and Kathleen Mrs. Frank Klein of Calgary.

The girls attended school at Beaver Flat a distance of two miles away. The School teacher then was Miss Rose Erskine and later Mrs. Roberta Lynn.

Florence was a member of the Beaver Flat W.I. and Harold a member of the "Knights of Columbus" Lodge in Leslieville.

Being a very avid gardener he took pride in his many flower gardens, fruit trees and shrubs. Also worth mentioning, along the driveway at the farm and still standing are the spruce trees and the northwest poplar shelter belt and many other trees he planted well over 50 years ago.

In April of 1957 they had a farm sale, but remained on the farm until November 1958. At this time they retired to Rocky Mountain House. They remained active in church functions. Harold was honorary member of the Anglican.

Harold Turton passed away December 29 1973 at the age of 80 years.

ZANDER, CARL FAMILY (THE)

Carl Zander came to Canada in 1912 and worked in southern Ontario for a number of years before coming to western Canada. He first worked as a hired man for a grain farmer in southern Saskatchewan and then travelled to Edmonton where he learned a trade as a barber. During the 1st World War, he worked in the C.P.R. yard in Red Deer. A few years later he came to the Leslieville area and bought a quarter of land — NW 32-39-5-W5.

Mr. Zander married in 1923 and Carl and his wife, Anna, worked hard clearing land and eventually expanding their farming by W5 from the Hudson Bay Co. in 1928 and an other — SE 5-40-5W5 in 1936 from Mr. E. Erlandsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Zander raised two sons — Max who now resides at Rutland, B.C. and Paul who lives on the family farm.

Max and Paul both got their schooling at Campbell School, that taught through Grade 8. When Max started school he didn't know a word of English but Paul, being four years younger, learned from his brother so found it easier. They walked two miles to school each day unless the weather was too severe. While attending school, they also got the chance to learn to swim in the creek nearby during their noon hours, and had many happy hours of fun on the Butte hill nearby. During the summer months, they also attended Sunday School in the school house which Rev. Bob Young conducted.

After Max and Paul finished school, they started logging, having lumber sawed and erected new buildings on the farm. All the buildings on the farm today have been built from their own lumber with the exception of their home.

Max, a journeyman welder, left the farm in 1962 and moved to Rocky Mountain House. He married in 1970 and in 1974, he and his wife, Ann moved to Rutland, where they now reside.

Paul married the former Helen Stelfox of Rocky Mountain House in 1953 and they raised two children — Pat and Don. Both children received their education at the Leslieville Elementary and David Thompson High Schools. Pat married Don Dirsten of Leslieville in 1974. Don moved to Red Deer in 1974 where he is employed.

Carl Zander passed away in 1961 after a lengthy illness at the age of 73 years. Anna Zander passed away in 1969 at the age of 86 years.

AMBURS, JAKE AND KATE

Jake and Kate Amburs with children Chloe Walter, Lester and Jimmy came from Kansas U.S.A. in 1907 to homestead the S.E. 34-40-4-W5. They brought horses, cows, and a few household effects and a wagon. As most pioneers did they likely came to Lacombe by rail and drove out to the valley. They built a one-roomed log house and barn also a large root cellar in the hillside possibly fearing the cyclones of Kansas.

Thelma was born in 1911. Mrs. Amburs took time to cut up yards of American cotton print and pieced quilts by hand. They were hard working people raising horses, cattle, pigs and chickens. They also had a very good garden.

Both were very good neighbors, and like all the pioneers were very happy even though times were hard.

Chloe, Walter and Lester attended Medicine Valley School when it opened in 1913.

In 1916 they sold the farm and rented the S.E. 6-41-3-W5 for several years. Later they moved to Montana where they had a sheep ranch. Another boy, Jake, was born there. He was killed when in training in the U.S. Army in Alaska about 1944.

Chloe married and lived in Montana as did Walter and Lester. Jimmy never married. Thelma married and lived in Washington. Lester died in 1956 and Mr. Amburs passed away in 1958. Mrs. Amburs had died several years before.

ANDERSON, JOHN

John Anderson came from Fargo, North Dakota in 1910 a well-dressed mannerly young man who homesteaded SE 6-41-4-W5. Clearing the land with axe and grubhoe as others did.

He was a well-known horse trader who always had to have a few dollars to boot on a deal.

He farmed with horses and when they became too old to work, he would butcher them for meat. It amused him to serve it when someone stopped in for a meal and tell them later that it was horse meat.

Reg and Mina Mason and family moved there to take care of him. He signed the farm over to them.

On Christmas day 1953, he was burned when his small house burnt down, dying in hospital at age 80 years.

Reg sold to John Pickering who later sold to Pierson Brothers.

ANDERSON BROTHERS

Oscar Anderson came out from Sweden in 1909 to homestead the N.E. 5-41-4-W5. He put up some buildings, started clearing land and got some livestock.

In 1913 his brother Andrew came and filed on [illegible].

He and Oscar always lived together and never married. They were wonderful neighbors and liked by all who knew them.

They raised good cattle. As the farm was very isolated they were very unruly when strangers came. In 1929 they sold two seven year old Hereford steers by getting them in a small corral. They were able to get them loaded in a truck chaining each as they weighed 1900 pounds each with a tremendous spread of horns. The Kootus stock yards were busy controlling them until they could be shipped.

They also owned a jackass that could be heard across the valley.

Andrew passed away in 1941. Soon after Oscar made his home with Gus and Emma Nygard until he passed away in 1947. He left his farm to Gus and Andrews to Lyle Engen who had always been loyal friends to them. Jim Lawton now owns Andrew's farm

Oscar and Andrew Anderson

BARDENHAGEN, CARSON AND ALMA — by Joan Maddox

Carson came from Minnesota, U.S.A. to Lacombe about 1906. He worked at various jobs in Alberta. Later making his home with his parents at Gilby.

In 1918 he married Alma Maddox of Gilby. They worked near Calgary and later Vernon British Columbia, where their only daughter Evelyn was born.

In 1921 they rented the SE 34-40-4-W5. Carson worked on local road construction that summer. They had bought horses and a few cattle.

In 1922 they moved to Winfield, Alberta to a homestead which they sold in 1929, returning to Gilby to rent land until 1930 when they bought the W½ 13-40-4-W5 from J. Simmons.

Evelyn rode four miles to the Medicine Valley school, having had very little schooling before.

They put up a set of buildings and improved the farm land.

In 1953 they rented the land and bought a house in Eckville. They sold the farm to Fred Pregoda in 1956. Carson spent a year in the Rimbey Three Way Home passing away in 1963. Alma's health was failing, she spent some time in the hospital, later going to the Red Deer Nursing Home. She passed away in December 1971. They had three grandchildren.

BARNES, EDGIL RENSHEL

I have been told I was two years old when I went North, so I don't remember anything about the trip. I was four years old when we moved to the Amburs place, about one-half mile from the school. We didn't stay there very long; we soon moved back home. It seemed my folks always had to be on the move — I never knew why.

I don't remember my first teacher because World War I was going strong and teachers didn't stay long. We had cattle thieves and cowboys. One teacher I have never forgotten was Mr. Frame. He ruled by the stick! My last teacher was Miss Dobbs. That was in 1923.

Once I went out to rope a cow and the rope stuck to the saddle horn. My horse fell with me. I don't know how long I was unconscious, but I was rough at 12 years of age. I would ride anything, but I haven't roped anything since that episode. On April 15, 1919, while at school we could hear a bad storm coming. My brother and I had four miles to walk to get home from school. We made it home all right, but we got very cold on the four mile trip. We stayed on the north side of a fence so we wouldn't get lost.

We made one more move — to the Kates place for the winter. This was a bad winter with lots of snow and ice. I attended school for a short time that year before we moved back home again. We had lots of fun skating and going places. I can still see the dirt barn and granary and the grove of trees in front of the house. I remember pumping water by hand. We had a big water tank to keep full. We always had plenty to do. My mother taught me to milk cows when I was seven years old. I remember the flu, as I fell ill with it. I knew if I had a cup of cream I would get well, but no one had a cow milking then. So I didn't get any cream, but I'm still here!

I would surely like to go back and see the old place, but I know it would be different now! We used to drive old Queen to Eckville with George once a week to take butter and cream to sell. That was a distance of 12 miles. The roads weren't very good — usually either dusty or muddy. I remember when my father moved the house away from the barn. It took four horses to pull it. I attended school at Medicine Valley School, and I remember the names of the boys and girls we went to school with throughout the years. Gilby was the post office and store. We used to have a lot of fun there at dances and parties. We eventually moved away from that area because my mother wanted to come back to Oregon, and I am still living in Oregon.

I remember getting ice from Wood Lake, so we could have ice to use all summer. That was a cold job! It was frozen about three feet deep, and had to be sawed by hand. We used to trap muskrats and weasels at Wood Lake, also. Usually we didn't make much money trapping because it was so cold, and often the snow was too deep.

I was married in 1936. My wife, Ruth, and I have two girls and one boy — Pat, Bill and Myr

dle. They are gone from home now, and just the two of us are here. We have three grand daughters and two grandsons. We have now been married for over 40 years. My wife is from Wyoming, U.S.A. I had been working in Oregon but left there and went to work in a mine in Wyoming, in 1936. After I was married I came back to Oregon and went to work falling timber. I stayed with that job until after World War II and then I shipped out to Guam for one year. After that I came back to Wyoming to work on construction work, building bridges, dams, schools, roads and paper mills, doing carpenter's work and form-setting. My wife raised the children as I was gone most of the time on a job. All I did was work hard, but I never got rich. However I'm happy the way things are now.

One year we made a trip to Texas. We stopped at Hereford and I worked on a school and a grain elevator. Then we came back to Wyoming. I tried farming for one year in Wyoming while I worked on a dam and power house, but soon gave that up and went back to Salem, Oregon. Here I worked at harvesting prunes and working in the woods again. I never seem to stay on a job very long, as I like a change.

Now I have retired and am living in Saint Helens, Oregon, until I can move to a better place. There is lots of good fishing here, but I do not go fishing. I like to hunt, but am not able to shoot a gun any more because of doctor's orders. We are just living and enjoying our retirement.

BARNES, JOHN AND WIFE, PAMELIA — by Mabel Barnes Simmons

John William Barnes was born in Erie, Kansas, U.S.A. on October 5, 1870. He crossed the plains with his parents by ox cart in 1876 and the family settled in Union County, Oregon. Mother was born on June 28, near Joplin, Missouri, and crossed the plains by covered wagon train in 1866. Her folks settled at Eugene, Oregon.

My folks were married on July 3, 1893. Dad took a timber claim near Mohawk, Oregon. They had two children while living there, and had lost a small child. Clarence, our older brother, was born while they were visiting father's folks at Mohawk.

During the time the folks lived on the timber claims the Cleveland panic was on. There was no work, money or food, and the settlers and their families nearly starved. Their only food was what they could raise in their gardens and the wild game that they were able to get. In 1899 dad decided to go to eastern Oregon, near Prineville and homestead. He sold his rights to the timber claim, bought a team and wagon, loaded everything they owned on it, trailed a cow, had a pig in a crate, and started across the Cascade Mountains.

Dad filed on his homestead, built a 12 by 16 foot shack, and moved the family in. He then went back to work. Mother was a small, young mother afraid of everything, so life was rough for her. Her folks lived up the valley about five miles away.

I was born on the homestead — the fifth child born to my parents within a period of six and a half years. The country was hot and dry; the best crops raised were sand toads and children. The midwife who helped at my birth charged the folks a 50 pound sack of flour.

We spent our school days in Eugene, Oregon. In 1913 the folks decided to immigrate to Canada where there was free range. The pioneer blood was flowing in dad — he just had to go deeper into the new land. On July 4 we had spent our last celebration in the States for a long time. The next day our wagon was loaded and we were on our way across the mountains again, to eastern Oregon, to stay with mother's mother while dad went into Canada to locate a new place.

On July 27, 1913 our dad took a few belongings and started walking across country to Madras, Oregon, where he would catch a train which would take him to the north land, across the border, into Canada. He arrived at Lacombe, in a few days. There he met an old fellow named Bill Long, who was tired of the loneliness and wanted out. Dad had found the thing he was looking for! He had never seen Mr. Long's place, but fell in love with the country around Lacombe. So they traded places, without dad even seeing the land or buildings.

Dad sent for us to come. Mother and six of us children arrived in Lacombe on September 27. Nellie was married by this time, so she stayed behind, at Eugene. The next day we, along with everything we owned, were again loaded onto a wagon and at day-break we started for the farm. For us, it was a trip into the unknown! We traveled around big lakes, over corduroy roads, and reached the farm in time to look it over before night set in. We thought it was beautiful! The buildings were good (the house was joined to the barn on the north). The fences were good, and we had one of the best wells in the country.

We older children went to school on the next day after we arrived at the farm, on Friday, in order to find out the supplies we needed. In those days your parents furnished all your supplies. We had a man teacher who didn't like the neighbors across the border, so we got off to a bad start. However, he wasn't hired to teach there the next year.

Father had to go to work the next day, leaving mother and we six children, ranging from two years to 14 years in age, alone in a strange land. There was no lock on the door — only a wooden button. We were all sitting around by lamp light when something drew our attention. There, against the window, was a man's face. Mother blew out the light, hurried to put a chair under the door knob, and to this day we have no idea who it was. Needless to say, we didn't sleep any that night. Dad worked until winter set in. When he came home he brought a supply of flour, coffee, sugar and lard, and a lot of other small articles of food. Believe me, it was a good thing he did, for the winter was long and cold. As for meat, there was rabbits, prairie chickens and partridge. You could fish through the ice. We trapped the birds in order to save the ammunition.

Our neighbors were a mile each way. Engens on the west and Simmons' on the south. Bardenhagens were southeast, Jewels to the east, and Sentraps to the northeast. The Engens had three children, two boys and one girl, who were near our ages. Mrs. Engen had another child in the spring, but something went wrong and she passed away, leaving her family and her new baby girl. My mother felt very bad about this, and tried to help all she could. Our two families were always very close.

We grew, as all young people do. We walked three miles to school and in the winters our lunches often froze, and we along with them. However, the country was beautiful. There were dances, school programs, box socials, and each year, on the 24th of May, Eckville always had a celebration which we never missed. We made our own fun, and sometimes took such chances that we wondered sometimes, how we made it. As the saying goes, it was "survival of the fittest", yet we all stayed well.

Then came World War I. We all worked a little harder while the men folks went off to war. Bessie, Clarence and I all worked out, when there was no school. I worked east of Lacombe for eight dollars a month. I got up at five a.m. and went to bed at 10 p.m. I stayed there 10 months. It had been agreed that I was to go to school, too, but the lady of the house managed it so I never went for even one day. I was only 50 miles from home, but it took four days to get there.

Mother and dad lived on the old home place until 1925. Mother wanted to go back to the States to be near her mother. So the folks had a sale and moved back to Salem, Oregon. Dad passed away on August 3, 1943 and mother in July 1962.

There are many, many things to tell about. Some were a little rough, but most were good. I'll write a short story about the young people of the Barnes family.

THE CHILDREN OF JOHN AND PAMELA BARNES — by Mabel Barnes Simmons

Bessie Barnes was 14 years old when her folks moved to Canada from Oregon, U.S.A. She worked hard on the ranch, and also worked out a lot. She never really liked the valley, yet she spoke kindly about her early years later in life. In 1918 she married Johnny Adamson, who was a rancher near Rumbey. They later lived in Rumbey. John had three children — a daughter and two sons — who are all lovely people and seem just like our own. Bessie and Johnny later had a daughter, who was a blessing to all of us. After some years they moved to Salem, Oregon, in order to be near Grace. Bessie spent her last days there, passing away in the early 1970's.

Clarence left the farm in Canada to make his way in the world. He spent some time journeying around, later working in the forests in Idaho U.S.A. He also supervised crews of Civilian Conservation Corps boys. This was a project set up by the U.S. Government to provide work for young men during the depression years. Clarence met and married a girl from Idaho. They have a son and a daughter and four grandchildren. Clarence lives at Lebanon,

Oregon, where he is retired. His health is not too good, but he is happy

As for myself, Mabel, I've been back and forth, so haven't lost contact with Canada. I have two sons and one daughter. James has three sons and one daughter. Bill is single. Janice lives in Oregon and has two sons and a daughter. There is more of my history in Simmons' story.

Johnny was a hard worker, a happy-go-lucky sort of a guy. Although he worked hard it seemed as though life wasn't good to him. However, he had two lovely sons and they have a nice family. Johnny passed away with a heart ailment in September, 1955. He was young, but this is life. It seemed to me as though I had lost my best

Cecil married a girl from Salem, Oregon. They had two sons and one daughter. Cecil's work took him away from home so much, and things went wrong in the little family. He moved to California and started life anew. He married again and worked for some time as a heavy-duty machinist. One of his sons is making a career in the navy. He also has grandchildren. He and his wife are now retired.

Edgil lives at St. Helens. He has two daughters and one son, and several grandchildren. His story appears in a separate Nellie was never so well known at Gilby. She never made outside friends, like we younger ones did. She married and had seven children. She passed away in 1975 and her husband died just three months later.

Needless to say, the years we spent in Canada were dear to all of us, and will never be forgotten.

THE BEDNARD FAMILY — As related by Eugene Bednard

Dad and Mother, Prokop and Helen Bednard, their sons, Walter and myself, landed in Halifax on January 1, 1926, from Poland. Knowing the meagre living we were able to eke out on our few acres back home, Mother's sister, by now living in the United States, provided the money for our passage and had made arrangements to have a Saskatchewan farmer sponsor us. At Halifax an immigration officer directed us to the train, and we were on our way to Kamsack.

Our first Canadian dwelling was a one-room shack which was provided by the sponsoring farmer, a Doukhobor. Dad and Mother worked there a little over a year. The wages were $25 a month, and we were on our own for all the expenses.

We came to the Eckville area due to arrangements having been made by means of letters, that we live with the Yacooshins, my uncle and his family. In the spring of 1927, Mother's sister, Eva, and her husband, Peter Yacooshin, acquired their farm east of Eckville. As Peter was a factory worker in the Ford Motor Company in the United States, he knew nothing about farming. He was afraid that he couldn't manage the farm himself, so he had a crop-sharing agreement for dad's help.

In 1927 dad filed on a homestead NE 27-40-4 W5. The same year he also bought the Hudson Bay quarter NW 26-40-4-W5, across the road, and broke a few acres on it. He paid $25 down and then made yearly payments on it. The only reason he homesteaded the first quarter, as it was practically under water and useless, was that he wanted to build a house that he knew he would not lose. If he were unable to pay for the Hudson Bay quarter, he could go out and work and he'd still have a home to come back to.

In their spare time, during the summer that mother and dad lived at Yacooshins, they went to the homestead to build a one-roomed cabin of logs which they cut themselves. The barn was a dug-out in the hillside, and was supposedly lived in by an American convict some years previous. When his picture came out in the papers showing that he was wanted by the U.S. authorities, he disappeared.
